DATE LABEL

*Call No.*_____ *Date*_____

*Acc. No.*_____

K. UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

This book should be returned on or before the last date stamped above. An over-due charge of .06 P. will be levied for each day if the book is kept beyond that day.

DONATED

By

PANDIT SHAMBOO NATH DAR.

(1901 — 1969)

ADVOCATE,

and former President

SRINAGAR MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

THE JAMMU & KASHMIR UNIVERSITY LIBRARY.

DATE LOAND

Class No. _____ Book No _____

Vol. _____ Copy _____

Accession No. _____

G. N. Dar
Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar.

THE ALL INDIA DIGEST, CIVIL.

1811—1911.

THE JAMMU & KASHMIR UNIVERSITY
LIBRARY.

DATE LOAND

Class No. _____ Book No _____

Vol. _____ Copy _____

Accession No. _____

Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar.

THE ALL INDIA DIGEST

SECTION II (CIVIL)—1811-1911

BY

T. V. SANJIVA ROW
First Grade Pleader, Trichinopoly

WITH THE HELP OF

P. RAMANATHA IYER, B.A., B.L.

AND

P. HARI RAO, B.A., B.L.
First Grade Pleaders, Trichinopoly.

VOL. VIII.

Preliminary Objection—Ryotwari Tenure

PUBLISHED BY

T. A. VENKASAWMY ROW

AND

T. S. KRISHNASAWMY ROW

Proprietors, The Law Printing House, Madras, and The Lawyer's Companion Office, Trichinopoly and Madras.

1914

[Copyright Registered.]

PRINTED AT THE LAW PRINTING HOUSE
MOUNT ROAD, MADRAS

Books Checked

K. UNIVERSITY LIB.
K. DIVISION
Acc. No. 76117
Date 25.2.70

51/02

Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar.

ABBREVIATIONS EXPLAINED.

REPORTS.

A.	Indian Law Reports, Allahabad Series.
Agra.	Agra High Court Reports.
A. L. J.	Allahabad Law Journal.
A. W. N.	Allahabad Weekly Notes.
B.	Indian Law Reports, Bombay Series.
B. H. C.	Bombay High Court Reports.
B. L. R.	Bengal Law Reports.
Bom. L. R.	Bombay Law Reporter.
Bourke.	Bourke's Reports.
Bur. L. R.	Burma Law Reports.
C.	Indian Law Reports, Calcutta Series.
C. L. J.	Calcutta Law Journal.
C. L. R.	Calcutta Law Reports.
C. W. N.	Calcutta Weekly Notes.
C. P. L. R.	Central Provincés Law Reports.
Cor.	Coryton's Reports.
Hay.	Hay's Reports.
Hyde.	Hyde's Reports.
I. A.	Law Reports. Indian Appeals.
Ind. Cas.	Indian Cases.
Ind. Jur. N. S.	Indian Jurist, New Series.
Ind. Jur. O. S.	Indian Jurist, Old Series.
Knapp.	Knapp's Reports.
L.B. R.	Lower Burma Rulings.
M.	Indian Law Reports, Madras Series.
M. H. C.	Madras High Court Reports.
M. J.	Madras Jurist.
M. L. J.	Madras Law Journal.
M. L. T.	Madras Law Times.
M. W. N.	Madras Weekly Notes.
Marsh.	Marshall's Reports.
M. I. A.	Moore's Indian Appeals.
Moo. P. C. C.	Moore's Privy Council Cases.
N. L. R.	Nagpur Law Reports.
N. W. P. H. C.	North-West Provinces High Court Reports.
O. C.	Oudh Cases.
P. R.	Punjab Record.
P. L. R.	Punjab Law Reporter.
P. W. R.	Punjab Weekly Reporter.
R. & J's.	Rafique and Jackson's Oudh Privy Council Decisions.
Sar.	Saraswati's Privy Council Judgments.
S. L. R.	Sind Law Reporter.
Suth.	Sutherland's Privy Council Judgments.
U. B. R.	Upper Burma Rulings.
W. R.	Sutherland's Weekly Reporter.

OTHER ABBREVIATIONS.

Appl.	Applied.
Appr.	Approved.
Cons.	Considered.
D. or Distd.	Distinguished.
Disc.	Discussed.
Diss.	Dissented from.
Exp.	Explained.
F.	Followed.
(F. B.)	Full Bench.
Obs.	Observed on.
(P. C.)	Privy Council.
R. or Refd. to	Referred to.
Rel. on.	Relied on.
(S. B.)	Special Bench.

N.B.—In the Punjab Record and the Punjab Law Reporter and also in the Punjab Weekly Reporter, the cases are known by their numbers and not by the pages where they are printed; (e.g.) 4 P. R. 1910 would mean Case No. 4, in the Punjab Record of 1910. The same explanation applies to the Punjab Law Reporter as well as to the Punjab Weekly Reporter also. It has also to be remarked that the Punjab Record, the Punjab Law Reporter and the Punjab Weekly Reporter have been divided into two sections, Civil and Criminal.

THE JAMMU & KASHMIR UNIVERSITY LIBRARY.

DATE LOAND

Class No. _____ Book No _____

Vol. _____ Copy _____

Accession No. _____

T. N. Dar
Advocate, High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar.

TABLE

OF

HEADINGS, SUB-HEADINGS AND CROSS-REFERENCES.

The headings and sub-headings under which the cases are arranged are printed in this table in Capitals and Small Capitals respectively. The Cross-references are printed in ordinary type.

PREGNANCY ... 1
Preliminary Decree ... ,,
PRELIMINARY OBJECTION ... ,,
Preliminary Order ... ,,
Preliminary Point ... ,,
Premature Suit ... 2
Premium ... ,,
PREROGATIVE OF THE CROWN ... ,,
PRESCRIPTION ... 3
1.—GENERAL ... ,,
2.—EASEMENT ... 4
I.—General ... ,,
II.—Houses and other Buildings. 8
III.—Land ... 9
IV.—Light and Air. ... 11
V.—Money Allowance ... 16
VI.—Privacy ... 18
VII.—Water, Right concerning ,,
VIII.—Way, Right of ... 27
3.—MISCELLANEOUS ... 30
Presents ... 32
Presidency Banks Act ... ,,
Presidency High Courts Act ... ,,
Presidency Jails Act ... ,,
Presidency Magistrates Court-fees Act ... ,,
Presidency Small Courts Acts ... ,,
PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (IX OF 1850) ... ,,
PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (XXVI OF 1864) ... 33
PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (XV OF 1882) ... ,,
PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (I OF 1895) ... 46
Presidency Small Cause Courts Law Amendment Act ... 47
Presidency Towns Amending Act, Police ,,
Presidency Towns, execution in, of Mofussal Process ... ,,
PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT (III OF 1909) ... 47
Presidency Towns, Police, Amending Act ... 53
Presidency Towns, Small Cause Courts Act, 1850 ... ,,
Presidency Towns, Small Cause Courts Act, 1864 ... ,,
President of Taluk Board ... ,,
Press and Registration of Books Act ... ,,
PRESUMPTION ... ,,
Presumptive Heirs ... 63
Prevailing Rate ... ,,
PREVARICATION ... ,,
Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act ... ,, Price ... ,,
Priest ... 64
Prime-movers, Bengal Steam-boilers ... ,, PRIMOGENITURE ... ,,
Prince ... 66
PRINCIPAL AND AGENT ... ,,
1.—GENERAL ... 67
2.—AUTHORITY OF AGENT ... 84
3.—COMMISSION AGENTS ... 103
4.—DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF AGENTS ... 105
5.—DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF PRINCIPALS ... 116
6.—RATIFICATION OF AGENT'S ACT ... 129
7.—REVOCATION OF AGENT'S AUTHORITY ... 131
8.—MISCELLANEOUS ... 133
PRINCIPAL AND SURETY ... 139
1.—GENERAL ... ,,
2.—DISCHARGE OF SURETY ... 143
3.—SURETY, RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF ... 150
4.—MISCELLANEOUS ... 156

Principal Sadr Amins, etc., Bengal ... 157
PRINTING ... ,,
PRIORITY ... ,,
PRISONER ... 162
Prisoners Act, State ... ,,
Prisoners in Calcutta ... ,,
Prisoners' Testimony Act ... ,, Privacy ... ,,
PRIVACY, RIGHT OF ... ,,
Private Agent ... 165
Private Fisheries Protection Act ... ,,
Private Lotteries Act ... ,,
Private Market ... ,,
Private Street ... ,,
Private Water-Courses Act ... ,,
Private Way ... ,,
PRIVILEGE ... ,,
PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATION ... 166
Privilege of Counsel ... 168
Privity of Contract ... ,,
Privy ... ,,
Privy Council Appeals Act ... ,,
PRIVY COUNCIL, PRACTICE OF ... ,,
1.—GENERAL ... 169
2.—CONCURRENT JUDGMENTS ON FACTS ... 177
3.—COSTS ... 185
4.—CROSS-APPEAL ... 190
5.—DISMISSAL OF APPEAL FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION. 191
6.—PRACTICE AS TO OBJECTION.. 192
7.—QUESTIONS OF FACT ... 195
8.—RE-HEARING ... 200
9.—REMAND OF CASE TO INDIA... 202
10.—RESTORATION OF APPEAL ... ,,
11.—SPECIAL LEAVE TO APPEAL AND TO DEFEND APPEAL ... 205
12.—STAY OF PROCEEDINGS IN INDIA PENDING APPEAL ... 216
13.—VALUATION OF APPEAL ... 218
14.—MISCELLANEOUS ... 221
Privy Council Rules ... 229
Probabilities, Decisions based on ... ,, PROBATE ... ,,
1.—GENERAL ... ,,
2.—EFFECT OF PROBATE ... 242
3.—FORM OF PROBATE ... 247
4.—GRANT OF PROBATE ... ,,
5.—JURISDICTION IN PROBATE CASES ... ,,
6.—POWER OF HIGH COURT TO GRANT PROBATE ... 249
7.—PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE AS TO PROBATE ... ,, PROBATE—concluded.
8.—REVOCATION OF GRANT ... 252
9.—MISCELLANEOUS ... 260
PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT (V OF 1881) ... 262
PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT (VI OF 1889) ... 310
Probate Duty ... 311
Probate Proceedings ... ,,
Procedure ... ,,
Procedure, Chota Nagpur Landlord and Tenant Act ... ,, PROCEDURE CODES, CONSTRUCTION OF ... ,,
Procedure, Landlord and Tenant Act ... ,,
PROCEEDINGS ... ,,
Proceedings of Legislative Council ... 312
Proceeds of Sale ... ,,
PROCESS ... ,,
Process Execution in Presidency Towns of Mufassal Act ... 314
PROCESS FEES ... ,,
PROCESSION ... ,,
Process-Servers Act ... 316
Proclamation ... ,,
PROCLAMATION OF SALE ... 317
PRODUCE OF LAND ... 318
PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS ... ,,
Professional Misconduct ... 321
PROFESSIONAL TAX ... ,,
Profits ... ,,
PROFITS A PRENDRE ... ,,
PROFITS, SUIT FOR ... 322
Pro forma Defendant ... 325
Prohibited Degrees ... 326
PROJECTION ... ,,
PROMISE ... ,,
Promisee ... ,,
Promises de futuro ... ,,
PROMISSORY NOTES ... ,,
PROOF ... 327
Proof of Age ... 328
PROPERTY ... ,,
Propinquity ... 329
Proprietary Dues ... ,,
Proprietary Estates, Village Service Act ,,
PROPRIETARY RIGHT ... ,,
Prosecution ... 330
Prospectus ... 331
PROSTITUTE ... ,,
PROSTITUTOIN ... 332
Protection of Judicial Officer's Act ... ,,
PROTECTION ORDER ... 333
Protection, Private Fisheries ... 334

Provident Fund ... 331
Provident Funds Act ... ,,
PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT (III OF 1907) ... ,,
Provincial Public Works Act ... 354
Provincial Small Cause Courts Acts ... ,,
PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (XLII OF 1860) ... ,,
PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (XI OF 1865) ... 355
PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (IX OF 1887) ... 359
Proxy, Vote by ... 404
Puberty ... 405
Public Agent, Contract by ... ,,
Publication ... ,,
Public Charitable Property ... ,,
PUBLIC CHARITY ... ,,
Public Conveyances (Bombay Town Suburbs and Harbour) Act ... ,,
Public Demands Recovery Act ... ,,
Public Demands Recovery Amendment Act ... ,,
PUBLIC DOCUMENTS ... ,,
Public Ferries and Canals ... 406
PUBLIC HIGHWAY ... ,,
PUBLIC MARKET ... 407
PUBLIC OFFICER ... 408
PUBLIC PLACE ... 409
PUBLIC POLICY .. ,,
Public Purposes, Acquisition of Land for ... 411
Public Record ... ,,
PUBLIC RIGHT ... ,,
Public Road ... ,,
PUBLIC SERVANTS ... 412
PUBLIC STREET ... 414
PUBLIC THOROUGHFARE, OBSTRUCTION TO ... ,,
PUBLIC WAY ... 415
Public Work Cess ... 418
Public Works, 'Provincial Act' ... ,,
Public Worship ... ,,
PUCHOTRA ... ,,
Pudukottah ... 419
PUFFING ... ,,
Puffing Statements ... 420
Puisne Judge ... ,,
Puisne Mortgage ... ,,
Punchayat ... ,,
PUNCTUATION ... ,,
PUNDITS, OPINION OF ... ,,
Punishment Act (Corporal) ... 421
Punjab ... ,,
Punjab Acts ... 421
Punjab Alienation of Land Act ... ,,
Punjab Appeals Act ... ,,
Punjab Chief Court Act ... ,,
PUNJAB CIVIL CODE ... ,,
Punjab Civil Courts Act ... 423
Punjab Courts Act ... ,,
Punjab Court of Wards Act ... ,,
Punjab Descent of Jaghirs Act ... ,,
Punjab General Clauses Act ... 424
Punjab Government Tenants ... ,,
Punjab Land Alienation Amending Act. ,,
Punjab Land Revenue Act ... ,,
Punjab Laws Act ... ,,
Punjab Laws Amendment Act ... ,,
Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act ... ,, Punjab Loans Limitation Act ... ,,
Punjab Municipal Act ... ,,
Punjab Municipality ... ,,
Punjab Pre-emption Act ... ,,
"Punjab Record" ... ,,
Punjab Rules ... ,,
Punjab Ruling Chiefs ... ,,
Punjab Tenancy Act ... ,,
Purakudies ... ,,
Purbia Kurmis ... ,,
Purchase ... 425
Purchase-money ... ,,
Purchasers ... 426
PURCHASE WITHOUT NOTICE ... ,,
Purdanashin Lady ... ,,
Purdanashin Woman ... ,,
Purohit ... ,,
Putni ... 427
Putnidar ... ,, Putni Taluq ... ,, Putni Tenure ... ,,
"Putra Poutradi Krame" ... ,,
"Putra Poutradi Santan" ... ,,
"Putra Poutra Paryantam" ... ,, PUTTEEDAREE VILLAGE ... ,,
PYATPAING ... 428
Pykes ... ,,
Quarrel ... ,,
QUARRY ... ,,
QUARTERLY RETURNS ... 430
QUARTERLY STATEMENTS ... 431
Queen ... 432
Queen in Council, Appeals to ... ,,
QUESTION OF FACT .. ,,
QUESTION OF LAW ... 433
QUIA TIMET ACTION ... 434
RABID ANIMAL ... ,,

Rack Rent ... 434
RAFFLE ... 435
Railway ... ,,
Railway Act (Amendment Act) ... ,,
RAILWAY COMPANY ... ,,
Railways Act ... 447
Railway Fare ... ,,
Railway Servant ... ,,
Railway Station ... ,,
Rain Water ... ,,
Raiyat ... 448
RAIYATI HOLDING ... ,,
Raiyati Interest ... ,,
Raiyati Land ... ,,
Raiyatwari Estates ... ,,
Raj ... ,, Rajkot ... ,,
RAJPUT ... ,,
RAJ, SUCCESSION TO .. ,,
RAMNAD ZAMINDARY ... 449
Rampur Stamp Law ... ,,
RANGOON SMALL CAUSE COURT... 450
RATEABLE DISTRIBUTION ... 451
RATIFICATION ... 453
RAZINAMAH ... 454
RE-ADMISSION OF APPEAL ... ,,
Re-admission of Appeals, Bengal and Madras ... 455
Realisation ... ,,
RE-ARREST ... ,,
Reasonable and probable cause ... ,,
Reasonable Care ... ,,
Reasonable Time ... ,,
Rebel ... ,,
Rebellion, Confiscation, etc., for ... ,,
RECALLING CERTIFICATE ... 456
RECEIPT ... ,,
Receipt Stamps ... 458
RECEIVER ... ,,
RECEIVING APPEAL ... 493
Receiving Officer ... 494
RECITALS ... ,,
Reciting Texts ... 495
RECLAMATION ... ,,
Reclamation Lease ... ,,
RECOGNIZED AGENT ... ,,
RECORD ... 496
RECORDS, DESTRUCTION OF ... 497
Recorders' Courts' Burma Act ... ,,
Recorder's Court in British Burma ... ,,
RECORDER OF MOULMEIN ... ,,
RECORDER OF RANGOON ... 498
RECORD-OF-RIGHTS ... 499
Record of Suit ... 501
Record Room Contingencies ... 501
RECOVERY OF DEBT ... ,,
RECOVERY OF MONEY ... ,,
Recovery, Public Demands Act ... 502
Rectification of Instrument ... ,,
Recusant Witnesses Act ... ,,
Reddi ... ,,
REDEMPTION ... ,,
References by Mufassil Small Cause Courts Act ... 503
REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION ... ,,
REFERENCE TO FULL BENCH ... 505
REFERENCE TO HIGH COURT ... 506
REFORMATORY ... 512
Refund ... 513
REFUND OF FEES ... ,,
REFUND OF PURCHASE-MONEY.. ,,
Refund of Stamp-duty ... 514
Refusal of registered packet ... ,,
Register ... ,,
Registered Deed ... ,,
Registered Letter ... ,,
REGISTER OF SUITS ... ,,
REGISTRAR ... 515
Registrar-General ... ,,
Registrars, Marriage by Act ... 516
REGISTRAR OF HIGH COURT ... ,,
REGISTRAR'S SALE ... ,,
REGISTRATION ... 517
REGISTRATION ACT (XIX OF 1843). 542
REGISTRATION ACT (XVI OF 1864). 543
REGISTRATION ACT (XX OF 1866). 545
REGISTRATION ACT (VIII OF 1871). 557
REGISTRATION ACT (III OF 1877) ... 558
REGISTRATION ACT (XVI OF 1908, III OF 1877, VIII OF 1871, XX OF 1866, XVI OF 1864, XIX OF 1843) ... 563
Registration and Limitation Act Amendment Act ... 755
Registration of Land Act ... ,, Registration of Assurances Act ... ,, Registration of Books, Press ... ,,
Registration of Certain Deeds Act ... ,, Registration of Mahomedan Marriages and Divorces, Bengal Act ... ,, Registration of Ships Act ... 756
Registration, Societies Act ... ,, REGISTRATION MANUAL ... ,, REGISTRATION MEMORANDA ... ,, RE-GRANT ... ,,
RE-GRATING ... ,, Regular Appeals, Bengal ... ,, REGULATIONS ... ,,
1.—IMPERIAL REGULATIONS ... 757

REGULATIONS—concluded.
2.—BENGAL REGULATIONS ... 760
3.—BOMBAY REGULATIONS ... 859
4.—BURMA REGULATIONS ... 873
5.—MADRAS REGULATIONS ... 876
6.—PUNJAB REGULATIONS ... 897
Rehan ... ,,
RE-HEARING ... ,,
Rejgi 900
RELATIONSHIP ... ,, Relationship, Evidence of ... 901
RELEASE ... ,, RELIEF ... 902
Relief, Oudh Taluqdars Act ... 909
RELIGION ... ,, Religion, Change of ... ,,
RELIGIOUS ASSEMBLY ... 910
Religious Association ... ,, Religious Ceremonies ... ,, RELIGIOUS COMMUNITY ... ,, RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENTS ... 912
Religious Endowments Act ... 945
RELIGIOUS INSTITUTION ... ,, Religious Mendicant ... 950
Religious Offerings ... ,, RELIGIOUS OFFICE ... ,, Religious Question ... 951 Religious Rites ... ,, Religious Services ... ,, Religious Trusts ... ,, Religious Usage ... ,, RELINQUISHMENT ... ,, Relinquishment, Deed of ... ,, RELINQUISHMENT OF PORTION OF CLAIM ... ,, RELINQUISHMENT OF TENURE ... 964
Remainderman ... 966
REMAND ... 967
RE-MARRIAGE ... 1020
Re-marriage, Hindu Widow's ... 1021
REMISSION ... ,, REMOTENESS ... ,, REMOVAL FROM OFFICE ... 1022
Remuneration ... ,, Remuneration of Amins effecting partitions ... ,, RENT ... ,,
Rent, Agra ... 1043
Rent, Bengal Act ... ,, Rent Court ... ,,
Rent-free Estates, Bombay, Titles to, Act ... ,, Rent Note ... ,,
Rent, Oudh ... ,,
Rent Recovery, Bengal (Under-tenures) Act ... 1043
Rent Recovery, Madras ... 1044
Rent Roll ... ,,
Rent, Sales in satisfaction of decrees for. ,, Rent Settlement, Bengal ... ,, RENT, SUIT FOR ... ,, Renunciation ... 1106
Repealing Act ... ,, Repealing Enactments relating to Civil Procedure ... ,, REPEAL OF ACT, EFFECT OF ... ,,
Repeal of part of Madras Regulation IV of 1821 ... 1107 Repeal, Usury Laws Act ... ,, Repetition ... ,, Reply to Notice ... ,, REPORT ... ,,
Reports by Select Committee ... 1108
Reports, Indian Law, Act ... ,, REPORTS OF CASES ... ,, Representation ... ,, REPRESENTATIVE ... ,, Representative Capacity ... ,,
REPRESENTATIVE OF DECEASED PERSON ... 1109
Representative Order ... 1114
Representatives' Suits, Legal, Act ... ,, Reprieves and Pardons ... ,, Repudiation ... ,, Reputation ... ,,
Re-purchase ... ,,
Requests, Military Courts of, Act ... ,, RE-SALE ... ,, Rescinding Circulars ... 1115
Rescission ... ,, Rescission of Conveyance ... ,, RESERVATION ... ,, Reserved Forest ... ,, RESIDENCE ... ,,
Resistance to civil process ... 1117
RESISTANCE TO EXECUTION OF DECREE ... ,, RES JUDICATA ... 1127
1.—GENERAL ,,
2.—ADJUDICATIONS ... 1174
3.—CAUSE OF ACTION ... 1231
4.—COMPETENCY OF COURT ... 1278
5.—ESTOPPEL BY JUDGMENT ... 1324
6.—JUDGMENT ON PRELIMINARY POINTS, EFFECT OF ... 1330
7.—MATTERS IN ISSUE ... 1339
8.—PARTIES ... 1395
9.—RELIEF NOT GRANTED ... 1442

RES JUDICATA—concluded.
10.—RES JUDICATA IN EXECUTION PROCEEDINGS ... 1447
11.—MISCELLANEOUS ... 1470
Resolution ... 1502
RESPONDENT ... ,,
RESPONDENT, DEATH OF ... 1503
RESTITUTION ... ,,
RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS ... 1505
RESTITUTION OF RIGHTS BY MOTION ... 1526
Restoration of Appeal ... 1527
Restoration of Suit ... ,, RESTRAINT OF LEGAL PROCEEDINGS ... ,, RESTRAINT OF TRADE ... ,, RESTRAINT ON ALIENATION ... 1528
Restraint on Anticipation ... 1529
RESULTING TRUST ... ,, Resumption ... ,, Resumption, Bengal Land Revenue ... ,, RESUMPTION, RIGHT OF ... ,,
1.—GENERAL ... ,,
2.—EFFECT OF RESUMPTION ... 1541
3.—PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE. 1543
4.—MISCELLANEOUS ... 1548
RETRIAL ... 1549
RETROSPECTIVITY OF ACTS ... 1550
"Return," Doctrine of ... 1552
Re-union ... ,, Reuter ... ,, REVENUE ... ,,
REVENUE ADMINISTRATION ... 1557
REVENUE AGENTS ... 1558
Revenue Agents, Mukhtars and Pleaders. ,, Revenue Arrears, Sales of land for ... ,, REVENUE AUTHORITIES ... ,, Revenue Board ... ,, REVENUE CIRCULARS ... ,, Revenue Commissioner ... 1560
REVENUE COURT ... ,, Revenue Courts, Oudh ... 1561
REVENUE FREE GRANT ... 1562
Revenue Jurisdiction, Bombay ... ,, Revenue Officer ... ,, Revenue-paying Estate ... ,, Revenue-paying Estates, Partition of ... ,, REVENUE, PAYMENT IN KINDS... ,,
Revenue Records ... 1563
Revenue Recovery ... ,, Revenue Recovery, Madras ... ,, Revenue Recovery, Madras (Amendment) ... ,, Revenue Register ... 1563
Revenue Resumption, Bengal Land ... ,, Revenue Sale ... ,, Revenue Sales, Bengal Land ... ,, REVERSAL OF DECREE ... ,, REVERSIONARY INTEREST ... 1564
REVERSIONER ... ,, Reverter, Doctrine of ... 1567
REVIEW ... ,,
1.—GENERAL ... ,,
2.—GROUNDS FOR REVIEW ... 1591
3.—JURISDICTION TO REVIEW ... 1607
4.—PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE... 1617
5.—REVIEW AFTER TIME ... 1628
6.—REVIEW BY JUDGE OTHER THAN JUDGE IN ORIGINAL CASE ... 1638
7.—REVIEW WHEN LIES ... 1647
8.—WHAT QUESTIONS CAN BE RAISED ON REVIEW ... 1656
9.—MISCELLANEOUS ... 1658
REVISION ... 1660
1.—GENERAL ... ,,
2.—SMALL CAUSE COURT CASES. 1707
Revival ... 1712
Revival of Attachment ... ,, Revival of Claim ... ,, REVIVAL OF SUIT ... ,, REVIVOR ... 1713
Revivor of Judgment ... ,, Revocation ... ,,
Revocation of Agent's Authority ... ,,
Revocation of Certificate ... ,, Revocation of License ... ,, REZA MILKIAT ... ,,
RIGHT OF APPEAL ... 1714
RIGHT OF OCCUPANCY ... 1719
1.—GENERAL ... 1720
2.—ACQUISITION OF RIGHT ... 1734
3.—LOSS OF RIGHT ... 1772
4.—TRANSFER OF RIGHT ... 1779
5.—MISCELLANEOUS ... 1804
RIGHT OF REPLY ... 1816
RIGHT OF SUIT ... 1817
1.—GENERAL ... 1818
2.—ACCOUNTS ... 1842
3.—ACTS DONE IN EXERCISE OF SOVEREIGN POWERS ... 1843
4.—ATTACHMENT PROCEEDINGS, SUITS CONCERNING ... 1844
5.—AWARDS, SUITS CONCERNING. 1845
6.—BOUNDARY QUESTIONS, SUITS CONCERNING ... 1847
7.—BUILDING, SUIT TO RESTRAIN ,,

RIGHT OF SUIT—concluded.
8.—CASTE QUESTIONS, SUITS CONCERNING ... 1849
9.—CONTRACTS, SUITS ON ... 1854
10.—CO-SHARERS, SUITS BY ... 1860
11.—COSTS ... 1862
12.—CUSTOMARY RIGHTS ... 1864
13.—DEBTOR AND CREDITOR ... 1866
14.—DECREES ... ,,
15.—DIGNITIES ... 1871
16.—ENDOWMENTS, SUITS RELATING TO ... 1873
17.—ENHANCEMENT OF RENT ... 1882
18.—EXECUTION OF DECREE ... ,, 19.—FRESH SUITS ... 1893
20.—INJURIES BY REPRESENTATIVES OF DECEASED ... 1895
21.—INJURIES TO ENJOYMENT OF PROPERTY ... 1896
22.—JUDICIAL OFFICERS, SUITS AGAINST ... 1897
23.—LANDLORD AND TENANT, SUITS CONCERNING ... 1899
24.—MESNE PROFITS ... 1902
25.—MUNICIPAL OFFICERS, SUITS AGAINST ... 1903
26.—OBSTRUCTION TO PUBLIC HIGHWAYS, SUITS CONCERNING ... ,, 27.—OFFICE OR EMOLUMENT, SUITS RELATING TO ... 1907
28.—ORDERS, SUITS TO SET ASIDE. 1920
29.—POSSESSION, SUIT FOR ... 1922
30.—PRIVACY, INVASION OF ... 1926
31.—PUBLIC WORSHIP, SUITS CONCERNING, RIGHTS TO .. ,, 32.—REGISTRATION OF NAME ... ,,
33.—REVENUE, SALE FOR ARREARS OF ... 1928
34.—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE 1929
35.—SUBSCRIPTION ... 1936
36.—TORTS ... 1937
37.—TRUSTS, SUITS RELATING TO. 1938
38.—WITNESS ... 1940
39.—MISCELLANEOUS ... ,,
RIGHT OF SUPPORT ... 1962
RIGHT OF WAY ... ,, RIGHT, TITLE AND INTEREST ... 1974
Right to appear ... 1975
RIGHT TO BEGIN ... 1976
Right to Sue ... ,,
RIGHT TO USE OF WATER ... ,,
Rioting ... 1982
Riparian Owners ... ,, RIPARIAN PROPRIETORS ... 1982
RIPARIAN RIGHTS ... 1986
Risk Note ... ,, Rival Claims ... ,, Rival Sects ... ,, RIVER ... ,,
River Bed ... 1988
RIWAJ-I-AM ... ,,
ROAD ... 1989
Roads and Bridges, Tolls on ... 1990
Road cess ... ,, Road-cess, District ... ,, Road cess Returns ... ,, Robbery ... 1991
Rokar Accounts ... ,,
Roman Catholic Christians ... ,, Roman Catholic Church ... ,, ROMAN LAW ... ,, Roots ... ,, Rope ... ,, Royal Family ... ,, Royalty ... ,, Rozina Allowance ... ,,
Rule against perpetuity ... ,, Rule in Pigot's Case ... 1992
RULE IN SHELLY'S CASE ... ,, Rule Nisi ... ,, RULES ... ,, RULES, CONSTRUCTION OF ... 1993
RULES MADE UNDER ACTS ... 1994
RULES OF BOARD OF REVENUE. 1996
RULES OF CHIEF COURT, PUNJAB 2000
RULES OF THE HIGH COURTS AND SUPREME COURTS ... ,, 1.—BOMBAY. ... ,,
2.—CALCUTTA. .. 2003
3.—MADRAS. ... 2006
4.—NORTH WEST PROVINCES. ... 2008
RULES FOR PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURT'S ACT ... 2010
Rules—Rules of Privy Council ... 2011
RULES OF PRACTICE ... ,, RULE TO SHOW CAUSE ... ,, Ruling Chief ... 2012
RULINGS OF HIGH COURT ... ,,
Rural Police, Hazaribagh Lohardugga... ,, RURAL POLICE RATE ... 2013
Ruthusanthi ... ,, Ryot ... ,, Ryoti Holding ... ,,
Ryoti Kadimi Tenure ... ,, Ryotwari Settlement ... ,, RYOTWARI TENURE ... 2014
Ryotwari Village ... 2016

THE JAMMU & KASHMIR UNIVERSITY LIBRARY.

DATE LOAND

Class No. _____ Book No _____

Vol. _____ Copy _____

Accession No. _____

THE
ALL INDIA DIGEST
1811—1911.

SECTION II.—CIVIL.—VOL. VIII.

Pregnancy.

(1)—Adoption — Knowledge of wife's.— An adoption, by a Hindu, who knew of his wife's pregnancy, at the time, is not invalid. NAGA BHUSHANAM v. SESHAMMAGARU, 3 M. 180. [F., 29 A. 310=A.W.N. 1907, 57; Appr., 12 B. 105 ; R., 19 B. 658.]

See DAMAGES—MISCELLANEOUS, L.B.R. 1872—1892, 114.

Declaratory suit that defendant was not pregnant at her husband's death, not maintainable—See DECLARATORY DECREE, SUIT FOR —WHEN DECLARATORY SUITS LIE, 124 P. W.R. 1908.

Preliminary Decree.

Appeal against—See APPEAL—GENERAL, 10 C.L.J. 113=36 C. 762=1 Ind. Cas. 413.

In partition suit—See APPEAL — CASES WHERE APPEAL LIES OR NOT, 30 C. 683.

In a partnership suit—Appeal not filed within time—See PARTNERSHIP—SUITS RELATING TO PARTNERSHIP, 23 C. 406.

Preliminary Objection.

(1)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act X of 1877), s. 561—Dismissal of appeal on preliminary objection—Cross-objection.—Where the respondent in an appeal took a preliminary objection against the hearing of the appeal upon its merits and the objection was allowed, held, that the cross-objection of the respondent could not be entertained, as the appeal had not been heard, within the meaning of s. 561, Civ. Pro. Code, 1877. The respondent was, under the circumstances, in precisely the same position as regards her cross-objection, as if the appeal had been dismissed on its presentation. THE SECRETARY OF STATE v. ELIZA LOUISA NONIS, 38 P.R. 1880.

Preliminary Order.

Not contested till final orders passed in the case—Whether can be revised—See CIV. PRO. CODE (1908), O. XXI, rr. 98, 99, 101, 103, 129 P.L.R 1911.

Preliminary Point.

What is a—See CIV. PRO. CODE (1908), O. XLI, r. 23, 49 P.L.R. 1905.

Premature Suit.

Right of suit accruing during pendency of suit —Effect—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 137 P. W.R. 1910=8 Ind. Cas. 576.

Premium.

Life Insurance—Declaration as to age, untrue —Its effect in rendering policy void—Return of premium—See POLICY OF INSURANCE, 25 M. 183=11 M.L.J. 379.

Prerogative of the Crown.

(1)— Rule of interpretation.—The rule of interpretation that the prerogative and the advantages it affords cannot be taken away except by the consent of the Crown embodied in a statute, applies not only to the statutes passed by the British, but also to the Acts of the Indian Legislature, framed with constant reference to the rules recognised in England. GANPAT PUTAYA v. THE COLLECTOR OF KANARA, 1 B. 7. [F., 25 M. 457=12 M.L.J. 208 ; R., 14 B. 213, 31 B. 86, F.B.=8 Bom.L. R. 904=2 M.L.T. 13, 12 Bom. L.R. 34.]

(2)—Prerogative of the Crown in India.—Rights which, according to the common law of England, are comprised in the royal prerogative, may not either be applicable to or may not have been introduced into India. On the other hand, it is probably true that the Crown has, according to the common law of India, certain prerogatives which it may exercise in India, though not in England, notably the prerogative of imposing by an executive act assessment on lands and varying the same from time to time. The prerogatives of the Crown in India, a country in which the title of the British Crown is of a very mixed character, may vary in different provinces, as also in the Presidency towns as distinguished from the Mofussil. The determination, with anything like legal precision, of all the prerogatives of the British Crown in India is by no means an easy task. MAJOR C. BELL v. THE MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONERS FOR THE CITY OF MADRAS, 12 M.L.J. 208=25 M. 457.

See PAUPER SUITS, 2 A. 196.

Prerogative of the Crown—concluded.

Power of Viceregal Council and Provincial Councils to make laws affecting Prerogative of the Crown—See ST. 24 AND 25 VIC., CH. 67, ss. 22, 24, 40, 43, 12 M.L.J. 208=25 M. 457.

Prescription.

1.—GENERAL.
2.—EASEMENT.
i.—GENERAL.
ii.—HOUSES AND OTHER BUILDINGS.
iii.—LAND.
iv.—LIGHT AND AIR.
v.—MONEY ALLOWANCE.
vi.—PRIVACY.
vii.—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING.
viii.—WAY, RIGHT OF.
3.—MISCELLANEOUS.

——1.—General.

(1)—Prescription—Period of commencement—Right of purchaser.—The purchaser of immoveable property is entitled to avail himself of any pleas which his vendor could have set up in respect of that property; and, therefore, where the purchaser sets up a plea of prescription, the period of limitation for prescriptive purposes is to be calculated from the date when the possession became adverse in the hands of his vendor, and not merely from the date of his purchase. HIDAYAT-UN-NISSA v. AHSAN ALI, 4 A.W.N. 1884, 296.

(2)—Ancient right — Prescription—Evidence. — In this country, while the law recognises that rights may be gained by long and continuous enjoyment or, in other words, by prescription no fixed period has been laid down within which such right may be gained. The evidence must justify the Court in inferring the existence of a valid ancient right, having regard to the nature of that right and the circumstances under which it has been exercised. KRISHNA MOHAN MOOKERJEE v. JAGANNATH ROY JOGI, 2 B.L.R.A.C. 323=11 W.R. 236. [Disappr., 3 B.L.R.A.C. 166, 11 W.R. 522; Expl., 3 B.L.R.A.C. 325, 12 W.R. 76; R., 30 C. 281, 14 W.R. 199; D., 3 B.L.R.A.C. 211.]

(3)—Money allowance for Palki huk—Immoveable property — Bom. Reg. V of 1827. — A money allowance for Palki Huk paid by Government out of the land revenue of a particular Pergunnah to successive Desais, for upwards of thirty years, does not create a prescriptive title as such; money payment is not "immoveable property" within the meaning of Bom. Reg. V of 1827, s. 1, cl. 1. THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY v. DESAI KULLIANRAI HAKOOMUTRAI, 14 M.I.A. 551.

Prescriptive right to maintain bund—Vis-Major—See EMBANKMENT, 3 C. 776.

See HINDU LAW—WIDOW, A.W.N. 1891, 208.

Prescription—continued.

——1.—General—concluded.

Limited interest can be acquired by — See LANDLORD AND TENANT — RELATIONSHIP OF LANDLORD AND TENANT, 3 Ind. Cas. 431.

Provisions of statutes, the Crown how far affected by—Limitation Act, s. 26 not applicable to the Crown—Rights of pasturage claimed as against Government—Profits a prendre, rule of English law regarding—Acquisition by custom or prescription—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 26, 14 B. 213.

Suit for declaration of right to office of Dharmakarta of temple and possession of property attached to it—Prescription—Hereditary right—Right to possession dependent on right to office—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, arts. 120, 124 and 144, 26 M. 113.

See BOM. REG. V OF 1827, ch. I, s. 1, cl. (i), 1 B. 286.

Prescription — Bathing ghat dedicated to public—See RIGHT OF SUIT — CUSTOMARY RIGHTS, 20 A. 200=A.W.N. 1898, 25.

See RIGHT OF WAY, 6 C.W.N. 197.

Riparian rights—Prescriptive right — Erection of bunds—Cause of action—See RIPARIAN PROPRIETORS, 4 B. L. R App. 30=13 W. R. 48.

——2.—Easement.

I.—GENERAL.
II.—HOUSES AND OTHER BUILDINGS.
III.—LAND.
IV.—LIGHT AND AIR.
V.—MONEY ALLOWANCE.
VI.—PRIVACY.
VII.—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING.
VIII.—WAY, RIGHT OF.

See EASEMENT.
See EASEMENTS ACT, 1882.

————I.—GENERAL.

(1)—Easements, Law of applicability of, to British subjects in India—Civil Law.—The law of easements in England, being derived from the civil law, has no peculiarities to debar its being applied to British subjects in India. CULLIANDAS KIRPARAM v. CLEVELAND, 2 Ind. Jur O. S. 15.

(2)—Easement by prescription—Twenty years' user.—Prior to the passing of the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, the Court insisted upon twenty years' uninterrupted user being proved for acquiring the right of easement of way by prescription. NAROTAM BAPU v. GANPATRAU PANDURANG, 8 B.H.C.O.C. 69.

(3)—Title by prescription—Period of user.—Length of user for any period shorter than 12 years, the ordinary period prescribed by the

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————I.—GENERAL—continued.

Statute of Limitation, is not sufficient to create a title by prescription DOORGA CHURN PAUL v. PEAREE MOHUN, 9 W.R. 283.

(4)—Prescription--User.—A party claiming the right of user by prescription over the property of another must show not only that that right has existed from ancient days, but also that it has been exercised as of right, and has not been interrupted. MALLIK JAWAD-UL-HUQ v. RAM PROSAD DAS, 3 B.L.R.A.C. 281. [R., 14 W.R. 199.]

(5)—Easement—Right of way—User—Prescription.—A right of way by prescription could be acquired by proof of uninterrupted user of the way in question for a period of more than thirty years. RAMBHAU BAPUSHET v. BHAI BABUSHET, 2 B.H.C. 333.

(6)—User—Prescription—Period of time required.—Where there is evidence showing a long and continuous user, it is sufficient for the Court to find whether it has or has not lasted long enough to confer the right to it without particular reference to any specific number of years. RUP CHANDRA GHOSE v. RUPMANJARI DASI, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 325=12 W.R. 274. (3 B.L.R. A.C. 166, 2 B.L.R. A.C. 322, Expl.) [R., 14 W. R. 199.]

(7)—Easement—Prescription—User—Reg. V of 1827—Act XIV of 1850.—Reg. V of 1827 provides that uninterrupted enjoyment for more than thirty years is necessary to acquire a title by prescription to an easement. Act XIV of 1859 has not changed the law in this respect. ANAJI DATTUSHET v. MORUSHET BAPUSHET, 2 B H.C. 334. [F., 3 B. 174 ; R., 6 C. 608, 15 B. 299, 16 B. 593.]

(8)—Reg. V of 1827, s. 1—Scope—Prescription.—Where the holding of certain persons and their predecessors has been by virtue of appointment made on each occasion when a vacancy occurs, held that the holding is not a holding as proprietor so as to give the holders a right of property, but it is a holding not contemplated by the Regulation. TVATAT SVAMI GURU TVATAT SVAMI v. ANDANYA CHARANTI GURU TVATAT SVAMI, 6 B.H.C. A.C. 132.

(9)—Prescription—Easement—Act IX of 1871.—The right to an easement by prescription can be acquired only by enjoyment of the right for 20 years ending within two years previous to the institution of the suit. SHAIKH HUBEEBUL HOSSEIN v. SHEIK SHAHAMUT ALI, 25 W.R. 15.

(10)—Ancient right—Prescription—Evidence.—In this country, while the law recognises that rights may be gained by long and continuous enjoyment or, in other words, by prescription, no fixed period has been laid down within which such right may be gained. The evidence must justify the Court in inferring the existence of a valid ancient right, having regard to the nature of that right and the circumstances under which it has been exercised. KRISHNA MOHAN MOOKERJEE v. JAGANNATH ROY JUGI, 2 B.L.R. A.C. 323. (9 W.R. 9, Cons.) [Disappr., 3 B.L.R. A.C. 166; Expl., 3 B.L.R. A.C. 325 ; R., 14 W.R. 199 ; D., 3 B.L.R. A.C. 211.]

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————I.—GENERAL—continued.

(11)—Easement— Prescription — Evidence.—A claim to easement must be proved by prescription. Conclusive evidence is required to prove an easement the result of which is great damage to the "servient tenement." The general rule of law in cases of title by prescription is that there must have been an interrupted user as of right exercised, neither by force nor by stealth, nor at the mere will and favour of the other party, and the right claimed must not be so large as to destroy or extinguish all the ordinary user or profits of the property. MOONSHEE ZUMER ALI v. MUSSUMAT DURGABUN, 1 W.R. 230. [R., 14 W.R. 199, 15 W.R. 295.]

(12)— Prescription— Possession not merely permissive.— A title by prescription may be acquired by long possession ; but it must be possession not merely permissive, but as of right, e.g., in the capacity of a master, or, in the case of easements, adversely to the owner of the land. ASKAR v. RAM MANIK ROY, 5 B.L.R. App. 12=13 W.R. 344.

(13)—Hindu Law—'Nibandha'—Fixed permanent allowance, if immoveable property for purpose of acquiring prescription.—Although the Hindu Law regards the right to a fixed permanent allowance payable out of the revenues of a temple or 'nibandha' as immoveable property, when the right had once been acquired, yet, this rule of Hindu Law could not enable the payments to be regarded as the possession of immoveable property, so as to enable the right to be acquired by prescription. LAKSHMAN DAS BHAGAT RAMJI v. MANOHAR GANESH TAMBEKAR, 10 B. 149. (5 B. 322, 6 B. 546, R.)

(14)—Indian Easements Act, 1882—Projection for purpose of ornamentation.—There can be no prescriptive right to projection, which has been erected merely for the purpose of ornamentation. NRITTA KUMARI DASSI v. PUDDOMONI BEWAH, 30 C. 503=7 C.W.N. 649. (3 B.L.R. O.C. 18, 47, R.) [R., 29 M. 511=16 M.L.J. 281.]

(15)—Duty of Court to decide upon evidence :—Arrangement between parties as to mode of dealing with evidence, Court not to take into consideration — Documents more than thirty years old, English, rule of evidence dispensing with proof of execution of, inapplicable in absence of proof of custody—Possession and enjoyment for a long time, evidence of title against real owner, only if continuous and undisputed.—A Court of law is bound to decide upon the evidence before it, and upon such evidence only ; its judgment could not in any way be fettered by any previous arrangement that might have been made between the parties with regard to the mode of dealing with the evidence. Whatever rights may be created under such an arrangement between the parties by way of contract, it could have no binding effect whatever upon a Court of law. There is a rule in the English law of evidence by which, when a document is produced from the proper custody and by the proper person, formal evidence of its execution is dispensed with, if the document be more than thirty years old. But the rule goes no further, and should the genuineness of the document be for any reason doubtful, it is perfectly open to the Court or Jury to reject it, however ancient it may be. Further, assuming the English rule applicable to the Courts in India, in cases in which it is not shown in whose custody the document had been kept, such rule could have no application. Even where this had been shown satisfactorily, it is yet competent to the Judge to reject the document if he be of opinion that it is a fabrication. [F., 12 W.R. 90.] Long and undisturbed user or possession, when the origin of it is unknown, confers a title, because no other inference can be drawn than that the possession is, in some way or other, founded on title, although it is not known whence or how the title was obtained. In cases of questions of title, evidence of possession and enjoyment is, as against the real owner, good evidence of title only where it has been undisturbed and continuous ; otherwise any trespasser in possession might claim a title. GOOROO PERSHAD ROY v. BYKUNTO CHUNDER ROY, 6 W.R. 82.

Prescription – continued.

—2.– Easement—continued.

——I.—GENERAL—continued.

(16)—Collection of revenue by one of two joint kabuliatdars--Kabuliat signed each year by co-kabuliatdar — No prescriptive right to collect revenues claimable as against co-kabuliatdar.— Plaintiff sued to recover from the defendant certain money which the former had a right to collect but the latter had collected as the revenue due by the dharekaris of the village. The lower Courts decreed in favour of the plaintiff, on the ground that he had had exclusive enjoyment of the right for thirty years as owner and had, therefore, acquired a prescriptive title. The High Court reversed the decrees obtained by the plaintiff in the Courts below. Supposing the actual collections had been made by the plaintiff for thirty years, the defendant would not thereby have forfeited his right. The fact that the defendant or one of his family was all along executing the kabuliats jointly with the plaintiff, clearly showed a continuous assertion of his right by the defendant, and an admission of it by the plaintiff. Further, as an ordinary rule, joint kabuliatdars make themselves jointly responsible for the Government revenue and have an equal right to manage the village, and one of two kabuliatdars who collects a portion of the Government revenue does not do so illegally. He is responsible to his partner for the due application of the money received, but he cannot be made to refund it as money had and received for his partner's use. BABU RAM PARBHU v. VISAJI CHANDO SAKTANEKAR, 8 B.H.C.A.C. 182.

Prescription—continued.

—2.—Easement—continued.

——I.—GENERAL—concluded.

——II.—HOUSES AND OTHER BUILDINGS.

(1)—Buildings adjoining each other--Side wall—Right of easement.—The house of the defendant was built on to the house of the plaintiff which was standing by itself originally. There was a passage between the two houses. Over this passage the defendant built a room connecting the two houses. This room corresponded with plaintiff's first floor, and it had an open terrace on the top of it. The structure by which the defendant connected the two houses was quite independent of plaintiff's house. It was supported throughout by wooden pillars adjoining the plaintiff's wall which the cross beams did not penetrate. But the structure was built close to the plaintiff's wall which served as a side wall to the room. Held that, by merely building her house on her own ground close to the wall of the plaintiff's house, the defendant could acquire no easement over the plaintiff's premises. If she had built her house against the wall and so used it for supporting her own house, or if she had fixed her beams and posts in the wall, or if she had used the top of the wall as a terrace, she might have acquired an easement over it. But, by merely building on her own ground, close to the plaintiff's house, she could not acquire any right over the wall, even through she had built no side wall to her own house but trusted to the plaintiff keeping up his wall to shelter her house on that side. GORDHAN DALPATRAM v. CHOTALAL HARGOVAN, 13 B. 79.

(2)—House dedicated to public for prayer—Rights of public—New building raised by public on the site.—A thatched house was erected by and stood on the land of one K, who used it as a house of prayer for himself, family, and neighbours and those who liked to resort to it; no objection whatever was ever taken to such use of the house ; the house having been blown down and K having no means to rebuild and restore the house, a brick built house was erected on the site by public subscription and maintained for the purpose for which it was originally used. The new building was simply a substitute for the house which was found by the Court below to have vested in the public by implied grant, tacit consent and user, for the purposes of resort for public prayer and to have been blown down. After the death of K, his heirs brought the suit to establish a title to and to recover possession of the new pucka house built. Held, that the consent of the proprietor, added to the long use of the house by the public entitled them by way of an implied grant, to the occupation of the same as a house for prayer. SUFROO SHAIKH DURJEE v. FUTTEH SHAIKH DURJEE, 15 W.R. 505.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

——II.—HOUSES AND OTHER BUILDINGS—concluded.

(3)—Easement—Right of suit—Non-existence of dominant tenement — House. — Where the house, the right of easement to which was claimed was not and had not been in existence for several years, nor was the intention shown of rebuilding it within a reasonable time; the right of easement (which is acquired by prescription and enjoyment and continues so long as the person enjoying it continues the enjoyment and shows an intention to continue it) would be lost by discontinuance, and by the destruction of the dominant tenement the servitude would be extinguished, and there can be no right of action to enforce the right of easement. TEEKA RAM v. DOORGA PERSHAD, 1 Agra 196.

(4)—Light and air—Prescriptive right—New house in place of old one.—Any prescriptive right to air and light, which an old house may have conferred, disappears with the construction of a new one. KALEE DAS BANERJI v. BHOOBUN MOHUN DOSS, 20 W.R. 185.

———III.—LAND.

(1)—Right based on custom, facts and conditions necessary to decide the existence of—Trespass on land.—Where it is sought to establish a local custom by which the residents of a particular locality are entitled to commit, on land not belonging to or occupied by them, acts which, if there was no such custom, would be acts of trespass, the Court could decide that such a custom exists, only if it is satisfied of its reasonableness and its certainty as to extent and application, and is further satisfied by the evidence that the enjoyment of the right was not by leave granted or by stealth or by force, and that it had been openly enjoyed for such a length of time as suggests that originally, by agreement or otherwise, the usage had become a customary law of the place in respect of the persons and things which it concerned KUAR SEN v. MAMMAN, 17 A. 87=A.W.N. 1895, 10. [F., 23 B. 666, 28 A. 434=A.W.N. 1906, 80; Appr., 20 M. 389; R., A.W.N. 1905, 266=2 A.L.J. 790.]

(2)—Right to use certain land during particular festival—Customary easements—Act V of 1882 (Easements Act), ss. 4, 18—The Court of first instance gave a decree for possession of certain land to the plaintiff subject to the rights of the defendants to use it during the celebration of their Moharam festival in accordance with an established custom in their favour. Reversing the decision of the lower appellate Court that the defendants had not established any right of easement within s 4 of the Easements Act, the High Court upheld the defendant's rights as amounting to a customary easement, under s. 18 of the Easements Act, capable of acquisition by means of prescription. MAMMAN v. KUAR SEN, 16 A. 178=A.W.N. 1894, 12. (A.W.N. 1884, 186, R.)

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

———III.—LAND—continued.

(3)—Land used as burial ground from time immemorial—Zamindar claiming exclusive possession.—The inhabitants of a mohulla had been in the habit of burying their dead in a piece of land from time immemorial. The Zemindar of the place wanted to construct a drain in that land, which was likely to destroy the graves. Held in a suit by some inhabitants, to restrain the Zemindar, that such immemorial enjoyment for the purpose alleged operated to exclude any claim by the Zamindar, and that the plaintiffs were entitled to maintain the suit without joining with them all the residents in the mohulla. MOHUN LALL v. SHAIKH NOOR AHMUD, 1 N.W.P. 202.

(4)—Right to locate stall on another's land, how acquired—Market.—The mere fact that a person, as a member of the public, is entitled to resort to the market on the land of another, is not sufficient to give the former a right to locate a stall at a particular spot on the land. Such a right may be acquired only by grant or by prescription. RAM MANICK ROY v. SHAIKH ASGUR, 11 W.R. 112. [F., 16 W.R. 268.]

(5)—Landlord and tenant—Existence of rent-paying tenure—Decree by competent Court conclusive — Prescription—Limitation by adverse possession.—The question in this case was whether, assuming the plaintiff to have established that, by reason of the decree passed in 1837 which he relied on, the relation of landlord and tenant then existed, the defendant, having been in possession for a great number of years without paying rent, and, as the Judge has found, always verbally denying her landlord's title, was competent to claim to hold these lands against the plaintiffs. The High Court, in the result, remanded the case to the lower appellate Court with directions to receive the decree of 1837 as conclusive proof that a rent-paying tenure then existed, unless it be clearly shown by the defendant, by affirmative evidence, that, by reason of some fraud or misrepresentation, the decree was not binding upon her. RAJ NARAIN DUTT v. GOUR MONEE DOSSEE, 6 W.R. 215.

(6)—Limitation—Uninterrupted possession—Reg. V of 1827, s. 1, cl. 1.—The plaintiff sued in 1861 to recover a certain share in a watan. It was admitted that neither the plaintiff nor his ancestors had enjoyed any share in the watan since 1810 or 1811. The land was in the enjoyment of the defendants till 1830, when the Government attached the property and enjoyed possession of the watan till 1845, when they removed the attachment, and restored the property to the defendants. Held, that the suit was barred under cl. 1, s.1, Reg.V of 1827, the defendant having been enjoying the property for more than 30 years and for nearly 50 years, that is, from 1811 to 1861. The attachment of the property from 1830 to 1845 was not an interruption such as was contemplated by cl. 1, s. 1, Reg. V of 1827. The period of sequestration could not be taken into account. LADO LAKSHUMAN v. KRISHNAJI SADASHIV, 6 B.H.C.A.C. 41.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————III.—LAND—concluded.

————IV.—LIGHT AND AIR.

(1)—Prescription—Light and air—When commences—Infringement of injunction--Attachment —Surveyor's opinion, Court not bound by.—In the acquisition by prescriptive user of a right to light and air, the enjoyment of light and air begins from the time when the window frames are put into and the roof-tree and beams are laid on, the new building, with reference to which the right is claimed. When the building assumes the appearance and outward aspect of a dwelling house, there can be no doubt as to the intention of the then proprietor in erecting it. The ground of the rule of law, by which the fact of 20 years' user and enjoyment of an advantage like that of the access of light and air is held to confer a right to such advantage, is this, that it is thence presumed that the persons concerned in preventing such right from being acquired have agreed or assented to the acquisition of the same. Therefore, when a building assumes the shape and appearance of a house, and by the placing of window-frames, the intention is indicated that by their means the access of light and air is to be had, then begins the time for persons interested in preventing such user from becoming a right, to challenge the same and take steps to prevent such right from being acquired. On an infringement of an injunction restraining a person from interrupting the access of light and air to certain windows, an attachment will issue, even though the defendant has taken the advice of a surveyor and legal adviser in constructing the building complained of as a breach of injunction. The Court will not be bound by the opinion of the surveyor, but will form its own judgment as to the effect of the new structure complained of. VALLABHRAM JUGJIVAN v. WOODHOUSE, 1 B.H.C. 148. [R., 8 B.H.C. O.C. 69.]

(2)—Easement, completion of title to—Light and air.—Where there has been no appropriation of light and air through an aperture for the statutory period of 20 years, no right of easement is created thereby. SARUBAI kom JITMAL v. BAPU NARHAR SOHONI, 2 B. 660. [R., 3 N.L.R. 114.]

(3)—Air, Right to—Right to uninterrupted passage of air.—The owner of a house cannot by prescription claim to be entitled to the free and uninterrupted passage of a current of wind.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————IV.—LIGHT AND AIR—continued.

He can claim no more air than what is sufficient for sanitary purposes. BARROW v. ARCHER, 2 Hyde 125.

(4)—Access of air—Interference—Right of action—Right of south breeze—Right to light, extent of—Indian Limitation Act—English Prescription Act—Scope and object—Light and air—45° rule.—To give a right of action (in a case where there is no express contract on the subject) for an interference with the access of air to dwelling houses by building on adjoining land, the obstruction must be such as to cause what is technically called a nuisance to the house; in other words, to render the house unfit for the ordinary purposes of habitation or business. The right of air is co-extensive with the right to light. [R., 8 O.C. 356, 3 S.L.R. 36.] There is no right to the uninterrupted flow of south breeze as such. [R., 7 Bom. L.R. 352, 3 S.L.R. 36.] The only amount of light for a dwelling house which can be claimed by prescription, or by length of enjoyment without an actual grant, is such an amount as is reasonably necessary for the convenient and comfortable habitation of the house. (3 B.L.R.O.C. 41, F.) The Indian Act, unlike the English Act, places light and air upon the same footing. The object of the Prescription Act and of the provisions in the Limitation Act was not to enlarge the extent and operation of the easement, but to provide another and more convenient mode of acquiring such easements—a mode independent of any legal fiction and capable of easy proof in a Court of Law. The two Acts do not, therefore, alter in any way the pre-existing law as to the nature and extent of the right. This rule of 45° is not a positive rule of law, but it is a circumstance which the Court may take into consideration, and is especially valuable when the proof of the obscuration is not definite or satisfactory. Of course, where lights are closed up by high buildings at the sides, this rule may not be applicable. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LTD. v. HEM LALL DUTT, 14 C. 839.

(5)—Easement to discharge water—Right of servient owner to build on the land without disturbing easement—Easement of light, extent of--Servient owner may build without diminishing light.—An easement to have the water carried off over the servient land, does not disentitle the servient owner from building on his own land, provided that he makes the necessary arrangements to receive the water from the mori (drain) and roof and to carry it away. [R., 7 Bom. L.R. 352, 4 S.L.R. 180.] An easement of light to a window extends only to the access of sufficient light to the plaintiff's room through the window, which is usually considered to be light at an angle of 45°. The servient owner can build on his land, if he does not obstruct the light to that extent. And where such light is obstructed, the Court in granting an injunction should order the removal of so much of the building only as prevents the amount of light mentioned above. BALA v. MAHABU, 20 B. 788.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————IV.—LIGHT AND AIR—continued.

(6)—Light and air—Suit to remove obstruction—Prescription—Lost grant—Presumption—Servitudes—Their recognition in Hindu and Mahomedan Law.—Per Norman, J.—A right to the unobstructed access of light through the windows looking on another man's land could be conferred, firstly, by express grant or covenant that the grantee should enjoy the lateral access of light to his windows, or secondly, by implied grant or reservation, when the dominant and servient tenements had originally belonged to the same owner. Such implication might arise when such owner sold the house with its appurtenances, or, after the erection of house, sold the land overlooked by its windows. A right to the unobstructed access of light to windows is not a property or interest in the light itself, or a right to be enjoyed in or over the soil of the adjacent owner. By analogy of the Law of Limitation, an adverse and uninterrupted use of an easement for 20 years would confer a right to it. When the access of light and air through the windows of a house has been enjoyed for so long a period as 20 years, and there is nothing to rebut the presumption of title, the law implies an obligation on the part of the adjoining owner not to interrupt the free access of necessary light and air through such windows. Per Peacock, C.J.—A right to the unobstructed flow of the south sea breeze may be acquired by express grant, but it cannot be acquired merely by presumption arising from user, whether the presumption is a presumption of prescription, or not. The only amount of light for a dwelling house which can be claimed by prescription or by length of enjoyment without an actual grant, is such an amount as is reasonably necessary for the convenient and comfortable habitation of the house. The uninterrupted enjoyment of light for 20 years, acquiesced in by the owner of the servient tenement, raises a presumption of right which, in the absence of any evidence to rebut it, ought to be acted upon by these, whether Judges or Jurymen, who have to determine the facts. Such presumption is one of law, and not of fact. [F., 6 B.L.R. O.C. 85, 14 C. 839; Appl., 30 C. 503 =7 C.W.N. 649; R., 15 B.L.R. 361, 7 Bom. L. L.R. 361; D., 8 B.H.C. O.C. 69.] Per Norman, J.—The laws of every country must necessarily recognize servitudes. It has been well said that the origin of servitudes is as ancient as that of property, of which they are a modification. It seems clear that servitudes were known and recognized both by Hindu and Mahomedan Law. JOHN GEORGE BAGRAM v. KHETTRANATH KARFORMAH, 3 B.L.R. O.C. 18.

(7)—Easement—Light and air — Premises situate in Calcutta—Law applicable—Prescrip-

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————IV.—LIGHT AND AIR—continued.

tion—English Law before Prescription Act—Acquiescence—Presumption.—In a suit in which the plaintiff's right to the access of light and air through certain windows of his house is in question, where the premises are situated within the limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court, namely, in Calcutta, the law to be applied to the case is the English law as it was before the passing of the Prescription Act, 2 and 3, Will. IV, c. 71, which does not extend to India. [Affirm., 12 B.L.R. 406, P.C.; R., 15 B.L.R. 361, 6 C, 608, 3 N.L.R. 114; D., 8 B.H.C. O.C. 69.] By the English Law before the Prescription Act, all the presumption of a grant in the case of a claim to the access and use of light for a building was a presumption of fact, the presumption being founded on the consent, or acquiescence of the owner of the servient tenement. For acquiescence or consent, knowledge is necessary. When the owner was in possession, his knowledge was taken to be proof of his acquiescence; and in such cases, a grant was presumed. But it was otherwise when the owner was not in possession. In that case, if there was no direct evidence of his knowledge of the enjoyment, it was for the jury to say whether, from the circumstances proved, and having regard to the nature of the easement that had been enjoyed, it might fairly be presumed. As 20 years' enjoyment with acquiescence is necessary, there must be knowledge for that period. If the knowledge were for a lesser period, it would be a question for the jury whether there was a grant, and not a presumption which they would be bound to make. BHUBAN MOHAN BANERJEE v. J. S. ELLIOTT, 6 B.L.R. 85=19 W.R. 194. [R., 6 C. 608, 22 B. 1.]

(8)—Ancient lights—New window—Enlargement of window—Obstruction.—If a man has a right to light from a certain window and opens a new window or enlarges the old one, the owner of an adjoining house has a right to obstruct the new or enlarged opening, if he can do so without obstructing the old, but if he cannot obstruct the new without obstructing the old, he must submit to the burden. PROVABUTTY DABEE v. MOHENDRO LAL BOSE, 7 C. 453. [R., U.B.R. 1897—1901, Vol. II, 126.]

(9)—Easement of light and air—New house erected on site of old house—Extinguishment of right—Test.—The mere fact of the old house having been taken down, or having fallen down and a new house being erected on its site, would not by itself be sufficient to extinguish any right to light and air which the owner of the house may possess. Whether the right is, or is not, extinguished will depend upon the consideration of the question whether the easement claimed as appertaining to the newly constructed house imposes a different and greater burden on the servient tenement. CASPERSZ v. RAJ KUMAR alias RAJENDRA KUMAR SARKAR, 3 C.W.N. 28.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

——IV.—LIGHT AND AIR—continued.

(10)—Easement of light and air—Obstruction—Relief by way of injunction when may be given—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 54.—In the case of an obstruction of light and air which had been passing through some ancient windows to a certain house, it is not enough for the owner of the house, for obtaining relief by way of injunction, to show that the light is less than before and has been sensibly diminished. But there must be such a "large, material and substantial privation of light" as to require interference by injunction, or the house, although the light and air have only been sensibly diminished, must be rendered unfit for the purpose for which it may reasonably be expected to be used. Or, in other words, the Court must consider whether the light and air have been so much diminished as to render the house—having regard to the habits of the people who occupy houses so situated—unfit for the purpose to which it might reasonably be applied. GHANASHAM NILKANT NADKARNI v. MOROBA RAMCHANDRA PAI, 18 B. 474. [F., 20 B. 704, 19 A. 259, 9 M L.T. 383; R., 22 M. 251, P.L.R. 1900, 173, 5 Bom. L R. 446, 7 Bom. L.R. 352, 3 N.L.R 114, 1 Ind Cas. 958=3 S.L.R. 30]

(11)—Easement—Light and air—Document purporting to prevent acquisition of easement—Document relating to immoveable property—Registration not compulsory.—A document which limits or extinguishes the chance of acquiring an easement of light and air does not require registration; because a chance of acquiring right to light and air is not immoveable property within the meaning of the Registration Act, III of 1877, nor can any pecuniary value be put upon it. SULTAN NAWAZ JUNG v. RUSTOMJI NANABHOY, 20 B. 704 [Affir., 24 B. 156, P.C.; R., 3 N.L.R. 114, 3 S.L R 30 =1 Ind. Cas. 958.]

(12)—Prescription—Light and air—Acquiescence—Constructive knowledge of owner of servient tenement.—Plaintiffs sued for an injunction restraining defendants from proceeding with a certain building and that a certain portion of it might be pulled down; their case being that they were receiving light and air through certain windows in their building which, they alleged, might be obstructed by the building which the defendants were running up. The plaintiffs' windows had been completed on the 14th April, 1850; from that date, the plaintiffs were getting light and air through the same; within twenty years from such user, i.e., in March, 1870, the defendants informed the plaintiffs by means of a notice that they were about to raise a building twenty feet high, which would have the effect of obstructing plaintiffs' lights; and in the same month the defendants commenced the building in question, though it reached the height so as to obstruct plaintiffs' lights after the lapse of twenty years from the completion of plaintiffs' windows. Held, under these circumstances, that it was quite impossible to presume enjoyment on the plaintiff's part for more than twenty years with the acquiescence of the defendants, the owners of the servient tenement, so as to entitle them (plaintiffs) to the reliefs prayed for Held, also, that the Prescription Act, 2 and 3 Will. IV. C. 71, being inapplicable, the English law which prevailed before its passing ought to be resorted to. Quære.—Whether acquiescence by the owner of the servient tenement may be presumed from proof of actual knowledge of the obstruction on the part of his agent who collected his rents and fixed their amount? ELLIOTT v. BHOOBUN MOHUN BONNERJEE, 12 B.L.R. 406, P.C.=I.A. Sup. Vol. 175=19 W.R. 194=3 Sar. 236.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

——IV.—LIGHT AND AIR—concluded.

(13)—Easement — Light and air — Ancient light—Obstruction—Plea that party complaining has other windows.—Ancient lights cannot be obstructed by a party owning the neighbouring land and building on it so as to obscure the light and air always enjoyed. It is no answer to this to plead that the party complaining has other windows on another side of his premises. He is entitled to retain the light and air he has always had and the owner of the adjacent land cannot obstruct it. PURAN MUDDUCK v. OODAY CHAND MULLICK, 3 W.R. 29. [F., 4 W.R. 23.]

(14)—Right to ancient light and air, person wilfully obstructing, liability of, for removal of obstruction.—Where, one person is entitled to the free use of ancient light and air, but, another person chooses wilfully and intentionally to obstruct that light and air, he is liable for the removal of the obstruction, money damages being no sufficient compensation. (The decision in 3 W.R. 29 was followed in this case. There the defendant was prevented from building a second story to his house, on the ground that it obstructed ancient lights.) SYUD MAHOMED HUSSEIN v. SYUD JAFUR ALI, 4 W.R. 23.

(15)—Easement--Partition of family dwelling-house by decree—Implied grant of easement.—Where a partition between brothers in respect of a family dwelling-house having windows with ancient lights was effected by means of a decree which made no mention of the right of easement in respect of the windows, that was not claimed in the suit, held, the partition decree must be taken to have made an implied grant of such easement. DWARKA NATH PAUL v. SUNDER LALL SEAL, 3 C.W.N. 407. (14 C. 797, Cited.)

See INJUNCTION—SPECIAL CASES, 8 B. 95, 13 B. 674.

——V.—MONEY ALLOWANCE.

(1)—Allowance by Government not incidental to hereditary office—Prescriptive right—Reg. V

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement —continued.

————V.—MONEY ALLOWANCE —concluded.

of 1827, s. 1, cl. 1.—In considering with reference to limitation, the question whether any particular allowance (other than an allowance incidental to an hereditary office) is or is not immoveable property, the High Court has generally, if not invariably, applied the following test, viz., is or is not the allowance in question a charge upon land or other immoveable property? Where an allowance by Government is neither incidental to an hereditary office nor a charge upon immoveable property and is not supported by a grant from Government, the enjoyment of it for thirty years does not create a prescriptive title to its continuance under Reg. V of 1872, s. 1, cl. 1. THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY v. GOSVAMI SHRI GIRDHARILALJI, 9 B.H.C. 222. [R., 5 B. 322, 10 B. 149, 18 B. 92.]

(2)—Prescription—Inam—Annual allowance paid by Inamdar for over a century.—This was a suit instituted by the plaintiffs against the Inamdar of an Inam village, to recover from him the amount of a certain russum or annual allowance which they alleged to be a charge on the Inam, in arrears for six years, and also to establish their right to recover the same. The defendant contended that the payment of the allowance claimed was not provided for in the grant of the village, and although his predecessors might have paid the amount, their payments should be taken only as voluntary payments, and that the plaintiffs had no legal claim against him. Held, (Tucker, J., dissenting), that the receipt of an annual allowance for a century or more under the circumstances found to have existed in this case gave a title by prescription to the recipients (plaintiffs), and absolved them from the necessity of showing the origin of the allowance, a sufficient consideration for it being in such a case presumable. BHAVANI v. HASAN MIYA, 1 B.H.C. 45. [Expl., 9 B.H.C. 222 ; R , 4 B.H.C. 1.]

(3)—Annual payments by Government to chirda hakdar—Prescriptive right—Reg. V of 1827, s. 1.—In this case, the collection of giras haks by the claimants themselves and their retainers having ceased, the duty of the chirdadars ceased with it, but the Government continued the payment to the latter of an amount equal to that of their previously accustomed percentage for many years. The enjoyment, thus continued in the chirdadars for upwards of thirty years, it was urged, constituted a prescriptive title binding the Government to the continuance of the payment. It was however, held that the repetition of a voluntary payment even for a period of over thirty years, could not create a prescriptive right to have such payment continued for ever; the mere fact of payment to a man of that to which he is not entitled is never in itself an injury, so as to afford him a just ground of complaint when the payment afterwards ceases. COLLECTOR OF SURAT v. DAJI JOGI, 8 B.H.C. A.C. 166. [R., 3 B. 3.]

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————VI.—PRIVACY.

(1)—Right to privacy claimed under custom, nature of.—The law as prevailing in the North-Western Provinces recognises a right to privacy whenever the existence of such right is established by custom. Such a customary right of privacy is one incidental to the possession of the property by its owner claiming such right irrespective of the religion to which he may belong. ABDUL RAHMAN v. D EMILE : D. EMILE v. ABDUL RAHMAN, 16 A. 69=A.W.N. 1893, 217. [R., 3 N.L.R. 114 ; D., 18 M. 163 =5 M.L.J. 26.]

(2)—Customary easement of privacy, infringement of—Mandatory injunction.—Where the findings of the lower Court showed that the plaintiff was entitled to have his right of privacy observed, the High Court granted a mandatory order compelling the defendant to permanently close the door or window complained of. LACHMAN PRASAD v. JAMNA PRASAD, 10 A. 162=A.W.N. 1887, 295.

(3)—Right of privacy—Opening of windows—Suit to close windows—Easement.—Whatever may be the extent of injury, if the plaintiff has a right to be exempt from the invasion of privacy and if the Court is satisfied that privacy is invaded, the plaintiff is entitled to the closing of the windows opened by the defendant. Unless the defendant can establish some right from long usage to the apertures, he cannot, merely because the comfort and ventilation of his own building is increased, claim to have them open, and the burden of erecting a screen to secure the privacy to which he is already entitled cannot be imposed on the plaintiff. If the windows are not new or are mere substitutions for former openings which had long existed, the defendant may have a right to the access of light and air by their means. GOOR DASS v. MANOHUR DASS, 2 Agra 269. [R., 10 A. 358.]

————VII.—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING.

See RIPARIAN PROPRIETORS.

(1)—Right to easement in flow of water—Validity against Government—Continued user—Acquisition of right to easement—Limitation Act, 1859, s. 1, cl. 12.—The right to an easement in the flow of water through an artificial water-course is as valid against the government as it is against a private owner of land. [R., 14 M.L.J. 350, 28 M. 539=15 M.L.J. 251, 5 M.L.T. 149=19 M.L.J. 131=32 M. 141= 2 Ind. Cas. 325; D., 7 M.H. C.R. 60.] Per Scotland, C.J.—The grant of an easement may be presumed from mere continued user of the privilege openly enjoyed by the occupiers of the dominant tenement as of right throughout any long period of time without interruption on the part of the proprietor of the servient tenement, but with this qualification, that the user should be for at least the period of adverse possession which is prescribed by s. 1, cl. 12 of the Act of Limitation as a bar to the enforcing of titles to corporeal property.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————VII.—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING —continued.

Per Innes, J.—No precise period of uninterrupted enjoyment can be fixed as sufficient of itself to establish a right to an easement. PONNUSAMY TEVAR v. THE COLLECTOR OF MADURA, 5 M.H.C. 6. [R., 8 B.H.C.O.C. 69. 5 M. 253, 14 B. 213, 11 M.L.J. 75.]

(2)—Easement—Prescription—Grant presumed from long user.—A right to the uninterrupted flow of water through a certain channel which has its course through another's land may exist in certain circumstances independently of the statute (Act IX of 1871). A suit cannot be dismissed on the ground that it is brought to establish a right in the nature of an easement and there has been no user for the two years next preceding the institution of the suit, if, as a matter of fact, the right is claimed as an hereditary and customary right, and evidence is given in support of long user, sufficient to raise a presumption of grant. ARNI JAGIRDAR v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA, 5 M. 226.

(3)—Landlord and tenant – Erection of dam by tenant on permission of landlord—Derogation of right of other tenants of same landlord—Revocation of grant—Right of landlord to remove dam. —Suit to compel the removal of a dam erected by a tenant upon the land held by him of the plaintiff. It was found that an agent of the plaintiff had assented to the erection of the dam and the plaintiff had ratified his act. Held that the mere permission did not amount to a grant and the defendant's possession could not confer on him a title by prescription. The case was simply one of a tenant derogating from the natural rights of other tenants by permission of their common landlord. Held also that as the right of the defendant existed by permission, it might be terminated by the revocation of that permission. But the revocation could only be permitted on the terms of the plaintiff paying to the defendant the expenses which he was induced by the permission to incur. Held further that even if the dominant and servient tenements had been the property of different persons, such permission would not have amounted to an irrevocable license. A man may license an act in its inception and yet be entitled to relief when it is found to have injurious consequences which he could not have contemplated at the time of the license. KESAVA PILLAI v. PEDDU REDDI, 1 M.H.C. 258.

(4)— Easement — Diversion of water by Government from channel belonging to it—Right of adjacent owners—Damage actual or prospective—Suit for injunction against Government — Maintainability.— The plaintiffs, as shareholders in and heads of certain villages, sued for an injunction directing Government to close an irrigation channel which was opened in 1869 and to remove a sluice. A channel had, by means of a branch, for very many years supplied the plaintiffs' village with water. The water of the channel was diverted into the new channel at a point above the point of divergence of the branch channel to the plaintiff's village. The relief was prayed for in the Court of First Instance on the ground that the supply by the channel before the diversion had never been sufficient for the wants of the village and the new channel must necessarily cause a still further deficiency The Civil Judge found that the plaintiffs sustained no loss by the opening of the new channel and dismissed the suit. On appeal, it was contended, 1st, that plaintiff had an absolute right to the uninterrupted flow of all the water in the old channel without subtraction or diminution by the Government or those landowners for whose benefit the diversion was made, and that any diminution though not causing loss, was an invasion of their rights ; 2nd, that if they had not such absolute right, they had a right to a supply of water for the necessary purposes of irrigation and otherwise for their village, and that the possibility of loss at some future time, arising from a possible wrongful diminution of the water to their detriment through the new sluice and channel, entitled them to the relief claimed. Held that the plaintiffs had not the extensive and exclusive right to the water contended for by them, their right being limited to the beneficial enjoyment of the water for irrigation and other necessary purposes of their tenancies as heretofore enjoyed; that the Government, as proprietor of the channel and water in it, had, subject to the above limited use by the plaintiffs and other villages in the same position as the plaintiffs, a right to distribute the water of the channel for the benefit of the public. Held also that no ground existed for granting an injunction, as no right of the plaintiffs, had been invaded, no damage had accrued, and no case of prospective damage had been made out. KRISTNA AYYAN v. VENCATACHELA MUDALI, 7 M.H.C. 60. (5 M.H.C. 6, Dist.) [F., 7 M.H.C. 342 ; Expl., 24 M. 36; R., 16 M. 333, 14 M.L.J. 350, 28 M. 72=15 M.L.J. 32, 28 M. 539=15 M.L.J. 251, 32 M. 141=19 M.L.J. 131=5 M.L.T. 149 =2 Ind. Cas. 325 ; D., 7 B. 209.]

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————VII.—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING —continued.

(5)—Suit by ryots against agents of Government for diminishing supply of water—Legal right—Relief.—In a suit by certain ryots under the Government to restrain the agents of the Government and others from so altering a Calingula as to diminish the quantity of water which the plaintiffs were entitled to receive for the irrigation of their lands, where the plaintiffs alleged that the supply of water had been materially diminished by reason of the acts of the defendants and the plaintiffs put their claim upon the only ground that they had received the water for a long time, held.—Per Holloway, J., that the plaintiffs had shown no clear legal right which could have been violated by the

Kashmir University Library
Accession No 76117

Prescription—continued.

—2.—Easement—continued.

——VII.—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING —continued.

defendants, and that, if such right were established, there was nothing to show that the injury was one which could not be compensated by damages. Per Innes, J., that the evidence did not show any diminution of the supply of water below the quantity to which the plaintiffs were entitled. VENKATA REDDY v. A. LISTER, 7 M.H.C. 342.

(6)—Easement evidenced by immemorial user —Act XV of 1877, s. 26, proof of title under, how far necessary—Continuing nuisance, saving of limitation under s. 23.—In this suit to compel the defendants to remove the obstruction which they had placed over their drian, through which plaintiff alleged that the rain-waters from his buildings used to flow on to the defendants' land from time immemorial, it was held that the plaintiff had, by long user, acquired a prescriptive right the enforcement of which was not barred by s. 26 or any other section of the Limitation Act. S. 26 of the Act, by allowing a user of twenty years, if exercised within two years of suit, under the conditions prescribed, to give, without more, a title, cannot prevent the proof of an easement founded on another title independently of the Act. The plaintiff in this case, having made out a title evidenced by immemorial user, was held not to require the aid of the said s. 26; and inasmuch as the obstruction complained of constituted a continuing nuisance, as to which the cause of action was renewed de die in diem, the plaintiff's claim was not barred by any provision of the Limitation Act, but, on the contrary, was saved by the express provisions of s. 23 of the Act. PUNJA KUVARJI v. BAI KUVAR. 6 B. 20. [F., 1 C.W.N. 96; R., 8 C. 956=10 C.L.R. 577, 16 B. 592, 28 M. 72=15 M.L.J. 32, 2 Ind. Cas. 410.]

(7)—Partition wall with drain for passage of water—Continuous and necessary easements, grant of, by implication—Findings of fact by first appellate Court binding on Court of second appeal only when supported by reasons—Defendant having stopped the flow of water from the plaintiff's land by a drain in a partition wall between their lands, the latter instituted this suit praying for an injunction to restrain the former from doing so. Held, that the plaintiff would be entitled to the easement claimed by him if he could show either that it was necessary for the enjoyment of his share of the property, or that it was apparent and continuous and necessary for enjoying the share as it was enjoyed when the partition took effect. Upon a severance of tenements, easement used as of necessity, or in their nature continuous, will pass by implication of law. In the above case, the findings of the lower Appellate Court as to the necessity of the easement claimed by the plaintiff were treated by the High Court as unsatisfactory and not binding upon them because the lower Court had given no reasons for them and a finding of fact unsupported by reasons is not binding on a Court of second appeal. The decree of the lower Appellate Court was therefore reversed and remanded for re-hearing on the merits with reference to the above remarks. PURSHOTAM SAKHARAM v. DURGOJI TUKARAM, 14 B. 452. [R., P.L.R. 1900, p. 173, 8 C.W.N. 425, 5 Bom. L.R. 956.]

(8)—Right to passage of water in defined channel—Easement.—Where it was established that, for a long series of years, the water from the plaintiff's land escaped through certain passages in the boundary between the plaintiffs and the defendant's lands and in a particular direction, held, the defendant was not entitled to interfere with the plaintiff's rights in this respect in any manner. IMAM ALI v. PORESH MUNDUL, 8 C. 468=10 C.L.R. 396. [R., 1 N.L.R. 182, 10 M.L.J. 582=29 M. 539=1 M.L.T. 333.]

(9)—Easement—Artificial channel—Water, flow of.—A right in a flowing stream running from the lessor's to and through, the lessee's tenement, which existed as a flowing stream prior to the lease, and which was made expressly for the purpose of the tenement leased, is an apparent and continuous easement and passed by implication of law. MORGAN v. KIRBY, 2 M. 46. [Appl., L.B.R. 1872—1892, 233, P.L.R. 1900, 177, 4 L.B.R. 246; Appr., 14 M.L.J. 350.]

(10)—Right to an artificial watercourse—Presumption of title from long continued enjoyment.—Where it was found that an artificial watercourse was constructed on the defendant's land by the plaintiff's ancestors a great many years ago, possibly fifty or sixty years--certainly more than 20 years—before suit, and was enjoyed ever since with certain advantages to the defendants to compensate them for any injury or inconvenience, a Court ought to refer such a long enjoyment to a legal origin and to presume a grant or an agreement between the original owners. RAJRUP KOER v. ABDUL HOSSAIN, 6 C. 394, P.C.=7 C.L.R. 529=7 I.A. 240=4 Sar. 199. [Appl., 5 M. 226; R., 11 M.L.J. 75, 5 M. 253, 31 C. 503; F., 5 M.L.T. 107.]

(11)—Right to the use of water in artificial watercourses—Presumption of such right.—The right to water flowing to a man's land through an artificial watercourse, constructed on a neighbour's land, must, unlike the natural right to that flowing in a natural channel, rest on some grant or arrangement, either proved or presumed, from or with the owners of the lands, from which the water is artificially brought, or on some other legal origin. [F., L.B.R. 1872—1892, 233, 11 C.W.N. 85=4 C.L.J. 370; R., 7 M. 530, 18 C. 652, 14 C.P.L.R. 145,

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————VII.—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING —continued.

6 Bom. L.R. 291.] Such a right may be presumed from the time, manner, and circumstances of the enjoyment of the easement. RAMESSUR PERSAD NARAIN SINGH v. KOONJ BEHARI PATTUK, 4 C. 633=6 I.A. 33, P.C.= 3 Sar. 856. [Rel. on, 30 C. 281]

(12)—Right of user—Channel—Interruption —Effect.—A wrongful interruption of right of user of a channel to permit the egress of water collecting on plaintiff's land would not necessarily destroy the right of user, unless such interruption has been acquiesced in by the plaintiff. ROY LUCHMEE PERSHAD v. MUSSAMAT FUZEELUTOONISSA BIBEE, 7 W.R. 367. (Marsh 506, R.)

(13)—Easement—Right of passage of water—Presumption.—Where the plaintiff has exercised the right of passage of his surplus tank water over the land of the defendant openly and uninterruptedly year by year for upwards of twenty years, an undoubted presumption arises that he has obtained this easement as of right. POORNO CHUNDER CHATTERJI v. SHURUT CHUNDER BHATTACHARJEE, 24 W.R. 228.

(14)—User--Prejudice to right of user.—Where a plaintiff, who had a right of user in a tank, and had it established, sought to compel defendant to close two channels which passed through his own land, on the ground that the flow of water through these channels lessened plaintiff's a supply of water; but it was found that defendant's channels had existed for a long time, and that plaintiff had never before attempted to close them: Held that plaintiff's right of user did not entitle him to get the defendant's channels closed. MOOKTARAM PATTUR v. NEMYE PATUR, 26 W.R. 102.

(15)—Easement—Servitude—Right to flow of water.—Where A has a right to discharge the surplus rainfall from his land on to the land of B, no length of time will give B a right to compel A to send the water on, provided that A does not interfere with any portion of the water which flows from his land to that of B in a natural and defined channel. The servient owner cannot prevent the dominant owner from putting an end to the servitude at any time he may think proper. KHOORSHED HOSSEIN v. TEKNARAIN SINGH, 2 C.L.R. 141. [F., 14 C. P.L.R. 145.]

(16)—Easement to discharge water--Right of servient owner to build on the land without disturbing easement.—An easement to have the water carried off over the servient land, does not disentitle the servient owner from building on his own land, provided that he makes the necessary arrangements to receive the water from the mori (drain) and roof and to carry it away. BALA v. MAHARU, 20 B. 788 [R., 7 Bom. L.R. 352, 4 S.L.R. 180.]

(17)—Easement—Time and manner of enjoying easement.—In a suit for the recovery of a right of easement in a drain that had been closed up, in which the Moonsiff found that a drain had existed which had recently been closed, and that there was no other way whereby water could escape from plaintiff's land, and accordingly gave the plaintiff a decree which was upheld by the Judge: Held that the real issue to be tried was, whether the plaintiff had enjoyed the easement for the time (20 years) and in the manner laid down in the law. RAMESSUR MISSER v. BROJO BHOOKUN MISSER, 25 W.R. 271.

(18)—Riparian proprietors of rayatwari village lands, relative rights of, to use of water of river—Extent of rights of Government.—The usufructuary interest of riparian proprietors of lands being incident to their possession of the adjacent soil, whatever may be the nature of their tenancy, it is they, and not the Government, that are entitled to the enjoyment and benefit of the water flowing in the stream. Each of such occupants is to use his right so as not to materially interfere with the rights of the other occupants. So, an action will lie where the user, by any of the occupants, of the common right to use the water, is found to be unreasonable, but the Government cannot have, at any time during such occupancy, the power arbitrarily to curtail or interfere with the right of each occupant to the enjoyment of the water, as it existed at the commencement of his occupancy, a right which must have constituted a most important consideration in fixing the amount of land assessment which each such occupant agreed to pay. THE FIRST ASSISTANT COLLECTOR OF NASIK v. SHAMJI DASRATH PATIL, 7 B. 209. [R., 16 M. 333 =2 M.L.J. 279, 23 B. 506, 28 B. 105=5 Bom. L.R. 790, 32 M. 141=5 M.L.T. 149=19 M.L. J. 131.]

(19)—Easements Act — Natural streams—Surface water—Rights of riparian owners.—The Indian Easement Act only declared the existing law in regard to the easement over water. An easement may be acquired in regard to the water of the rainfall, though the supply from that source may be only casual and intermittent. Surface water not flowing in a stream and not permanently collected in a pool, tank, or otherwise, is not a subject of easement by prescription. It may, however, be a subject of express grant or contract. It is the natural right of every owner of land, to collect and dispose of all water on the surface which does not pass in a defined channel. Riparian owners are entitled to use and consume the water of streams flowing by their lands for drinking and household purposes, for watering their cattle, and even for irrigating their land, or for purposes of manufacture, provided they exercise their right subject to the conditions, viz., (i) that the use is reasonable; (ii) that it is required for their purposes as owners of the land; and (iii) that it does not destroy or render useless or materially diminish or affect the application of the water by riparian owners below the stream in the exercise either of their natural right or right of easement, if any. PERUMAL v. RAMASAMI CHETTY, 11 M. 16. [F., 35 P.R. 95, 3 L.B.R. 23; R., 4 C.L.J. 370=11 C.W.N. 857.]

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————VII.—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING —continued.

(20)—Customary easement and customary right—Enjoyment — Dominant heritage.—A customary right is different from a customary easement. No fixed period of enjoyment is laid down by law as necessary to establish a customary right. A customary right to draw water from a well situated on private land can be acquired by all the residents of a village using its water for a long period of time. PALANIANDI TEVAN v. PUTHIRANGONDA NADAN, 20 M. 389.

(21)—Easement—Right to throw back water on another's land till required for use—Acquisition of right by prescription.—The tank used for the irrigation of the plaintiff's village was supplied in part by rain water falling on the lands of the village occupied by defendants nine to seventeen and the bund of the tank used formerly to throw back the waters so flowing into the tank on to the lands of defendants, where it remained till gradually drawn off into the area of the tank. Defendants nine to seventeen through the agency of the Government, relieved themselves of this inconvenience by making a work for drawing off the water so periodically thrown back upon their land. A channel was also constructed for conducting a supply of water to the plaintiff's tank. Plaintiffs, however, claimed to have the former state of things restored, on the ground that they had a prescriptive right to throw back the water on to defendant's lands and to keep it there till required for use. Held that there was here no object over which a right could be acquired. J. D. ROBINSON, COLLECTOR OF NORTH ARCOT v. AYYA KRISNAMACHARIYAR, 7 M.H.C. 37. [F., 27 M. 409=14 M.L.J. 162; Appr., 11 M. 16; D., 24 M. 202.]

(22)—Limitation—Prescription—Easement—Over-hanging of roof—Right to discharge rain-water.—Where the roof of one person overhangs the land of another for more than thirty years, such enjoyment thereof would, if considered as possession, extinguish the right of the other to sue, and if considered as mere easement, would vest in the former a proprietary right to the space occupied by the over hanging roof. [F., 29 M. 511=16 M.L.J. 281; R., 16 B. 353, 28 B. 428=6 Bom.L.R. 356.] A right to compel the defendant to receive upon the roof of his house rain-water flowing from the roof of the plaintiff's house can be acquired only by contract or prescription. MOHAN LAL JECHAND v. AMRATLAL BECHARDAS, 3 B. 174.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————VII.—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING —continued.

(23)—Easement—Discharge of water from roof in particular direction—Imposing new mode of discharge.—A person who has ancient rights to the discharge of water from his roof in a particular direction has a right to say that this state of things should continue. A purchaser of the servient tenement has no right, by interfering with this discharge to impose on the other party the trouble and expense of procuring some new mode of discharge. The purchaser, although he may exercise his right of ownership either by building or otherwise on his own land, must exercise such right in such a way that all proper provision may be made to prevent any interruption to the water flowing from the roof in that direction. BABOO SHEONATH SINGH v. BABOO BISHONATH SINGH, 2 Agra 391.

(24)—Easement—Prescriptive right to flow of water from thatch.—Where there was clear evidence in a suit for the removal of a wall, that the plaintiff had been allowed by the defendant for a number of years, possibly 15 or 16 years, to rest the thatch of a hut upon the defendant's wall, and on this wall being thrown down by a cyclone, the plaintiff re-built the wall and erected a thatch roof thereupon; that the thatch roof had subsequently been blown down and was not existing at the date of the suit: Held, under these circumstances, the plaintiff could not have acquired a prescriptive right that the water from the thatch in question should pass over the defendant's lands; and he was not therefore entitled to restrain the defendant from building up the wall which was necessary for his convenience. LALL MONEE DOSSEE v. JOY NARAIN SHAHA, 11 W.R. 508.

(25)—Easements Act, s. 24—Right accessory to an easement.—Where a plaintiff has an easement of having the roof of his house projecting on the defendant's land and discharging the water on such land, he has the right of going into the defendant's land for the purpose of repairing his wall and roof as a right accessory to the easement. HAYAGREEVA v. SAMI, 15 M. 286.

(26)—User—Prescription — Construction.—Proof of uninterrupted user for 12 years and upwards is sufficient to establish a prescriptive right to water. The term "barabar" in respect to user construed to mean "all along" or "always" certainly for more than 12 years. KARTIK CHANDRA SIRKAR v. KARTIK CHANDRA DEY, 3 B.L.R.A.C. 166=11 W.R. 522. (11 W.R. 236, Com. on.)

See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 11, 5 M. 253.

See LICENSE, 4 M.H.C. 98.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

——VII.—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING—concluded.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, ss. 3, 26, 28, 5 M. 253.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 26, 6 C. 394, P.C.=7 C.L.R. 529=7 I.A. 240.

——VIII.—WAY, RIGHT OF.

See RIGHT OF WAY.

(1)—Easements — Modes of acquisition — Implied grant—Necessity — Limitation Act (1877), s. 26.—S. 26, Limitation Act, is not intended to interfere with the other modes of acquiring an easement; it may be acquired by an implied grant, which may arise in one of two ways. (1) The use of the path and ghat (mentioned in this suit) might be absolutely necessary to the enjoyment of the defendant's tenement, in which case there would be an easement of necessity. (2) The use of the path and ghat, though not absolutely necessary to the enjoyment of the defendant's tenement, might be necessary for its enjoyment in the state in which it was at the time of severance; and in this case, if the easement were apparent and continuous, there would be a presumption that it passed with the defendant's tenement. [R., 14 B. 452, P.L.R. 1900, p. 173=49 P.R. 1900; Cons., 15 A. 270=A.W.N. 1893, 151; D., 26 C. 311.] The principle of the "disposition of the owner of two tenements" is in consonance with the rule of justice, equity and good conscience, which must guide the Court in the absence of positive direction by the Legislature. CHARU SURNOKAR v. DAKOURI CHUNDER THAKOOR, 8 C. 956=10 C.L.R. 577. [R., 18 B. 616, 26 C. 516.]

(2)—Easement—Right of way—Unity of possession and subsequent severance—Right of passage—Mode of enjoyment—Nuisance created by acts of many.—The words "appurtenant" or "belonging" will ordinarily carry only actual existing easements, and these will carry no right of way over the land of the grantor, though, under certain circumstances, even these words will have a wider construction. Further words, such as "therewith held or used" will carry a way formerly enjoyed as an easement, but as to which the right has been suspended by unity of possession, though not a way made by the owner of both properties during the unity of possession for his own greater convenience in the use of the two properties jointly. But, where, during the unity of possession, a way, which has never existed as an easement, is in fact used for the convenience of one of the tenements afterwards severed, the words are large enough to carry it. [Affirm., 8 C. 677.] One, who has a right of passage over any place, must not, any more than the owner of the soil might, use it in an excessive or improper manner, so as to obstruct the exercise by the others of their rights.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

——VIII.—WAY, RIGHT OF—continued.

[Affirm., 8 C. 677.] What may not be appreciable and be no nuisance, if done by one, may become a serious nuisance, if done by many. CHUNDER COOMAR MOOKERJEE v. KOYLASH CHUNDER SETT, 7 C. 665. [Affirm., 8 C. 677.]

(3)—Easement—Right of way.—This is an appeal in the case reported in 7 C. 655, the decision in which was practically confirmed. SHAMA CHURN DEY v. CHUNDER COOMAR MOOKERJEE, 8 C. 677. (7 C. 665, Affirmed.)

(4)—User—Act IX of 1871 (Limitation), s. 27—Right of way—Obstruction.—Where the owner of a dominant tenement, with the intention of preventing the use of a way, creates an obstruction of a permanent nature rendering such use impossible, the way cannot be said, during the continuance of the obstruction, to have been 'openly enjoyed' within the meaning of the section. SHAM CHURN AUDDY v. TARINY CHURN BANERJEE, 1 C. 422=25 W. R. 228.

(5)—Right of way for boats in the rainy season—Extent of right—Analogy to right of way over land—Direction of right.—A right of passage for boats over another man's channel is analogous to a right of way over another's road; and the dominant owner's right is limited to a passing and re-passing with the convenience to which he has been accustomed. A right of passage for boats over another's water can be validly claimed only in a particular direction. DOORGA CHURN DHUR v. KALLY COOMAR SEIN, 7 C. 145=8 C.L.R. 375.

(6)—Easements Act, whether compulsorily applicable in case of suits prior to Act VIII of 1891—Tenant, whether can acquire easement against landlord.—The passing of Act VIII of 1891 which extended the operation of the Indian Easements Act (V of 1882) to the North-west Provinces, cannot, in the absence of express words, be taken as retrospective, or as either disturbing existing rights or creating new ones. Therefore, till the date of the coming into force of Act VIII of 1891, questions of easements were governed by s. 26 of the Indian Limitation Act, and there is nothing in Act VIII of 1891 to compel the application of the provisions of the Easements Act to a suit commenced before Act VIII of 1891 came into force. A tenant or occupier of land cannot by user acquire for his own benefit by prescription, an easement or right of way over any adjoining land belonging to the landlord. UDIT SINGH v. KASHI RAM, 14 A. 185. F.B.=A.W.N. 1892. 38. [Appr., 1 C.W.N. 151, 29 C. 363=9 C.W.N 856; R., 31 C. 503=8 C.W.N. 425; D., 16 A. 181.]

(7)—Easement—Prescription—Landlord and tenant—Way of necessity—Tenants of the same landlord—Acquisition of easement by one tenant against another.—A tenant cannot acquire, as against his landlord by prescription, an easement of way, in favour of the land occupied by him as tenant over other land belonging to his landlord; but a tenant is entitled to a way of necessity over the adjoining land of his landlord. (14 A. 185, R.) [Appr., 29 C. 363=9 C.W.N. 856.] It is doubtful whether one tenant can acquire a prescriptive right of easement against another tenant under the same landlord. JEENAB ALI v. ALLABUDDIN, 1 C.W.N. 151.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—continued.

————VIII.—WAY, RIGHT OF—continued.

(8)—Easement—Accessory right—Overhanging trees—Right of way for owner of trees for picking up fruit—Prescriptive right.—The prescriptive right of a person to have the trees belonging to him overhanging the land of his neighbour, does not carry with it the right to go over the land of the latter for gathering the fruits on the trees. The right to go on the land of the neighbour to pick the fruit off the branches is perfectly distinct from the prescriptive right to have the branches overhanging the land, and cannot be said to "be accessory" to the latter right in the sense of being within the limits of that right, however useful and even necessary it might be to the owner of the trees in order to obtain the full enjoyment of the profits of the branches so overhanging. NAIK PARSOTAM GHALA v. GANDRAP FATELAL GOKULDAS, 17 B. 745.

(9)—Right of passage over water—Prescription.—A right by prescription to pass and re-pass in boats, during the rainy season, over certain lands belonging to T, may be acquired by R. although the general public may have no such right of passage over the water and the channel does not lead to R's house, and is injurious to a tank belonging to T. RAMSOONDER BURRAL v. WOOMAKANT CHUCKERBUTTY, 1 W.R. 217.

(10)—Dispute as to right of way—Magistrate's order with consent of party—Adverse suit by consenting party.—Where a Magistrate before whom there was a dispute concerning a right of way, which he was competent to inquire into, repaired to the spot and with the express consent of one of the parties altered the path then existing to one which would be more convenient to the public generally, held that the party who gave the consent was, by reason of the consent, precluded from bringing an adverse action. MUDDUN GOPAL MOOKERJEE v. NILMONEE BANERJEE, 11 W. R. 304.

(11)—Crim. Pro. Code, Ch. XX, application of, to public thoroughfares, and not to private roads—Owner of land suffering neighbour's cows to pasture—Easement, if created.—S. 311 of the Crim. Pro. Code, and the other sections of Ch. XX of the Code refer to public thoroughfares, and cannot apply to private roads over which a right of way may have been established. It cannot be contended that, because an owner of a patch of waste land between a village and the public road allows his neighbour's cows to stray over it on their way to pasture, he thereby creates over such land a right of easement having the practical effect of depriving it of all value by rendering its cultivation impossible. GOOROO CHURN GOON v. GUNGA GOBIND CHATTERJEE, 8 W.R. 268.

Prescription—continued.

——2.—Easement—concluded.

————VIII.—WAY, RIGHT OF—concluded.

(12)—Ss. 23, 26, Limitation Act, 1877—Infringement of a right of way — Continuing cause of action.—The infringement of a right of way is a continuous wrong giving rise to a cause of action de die in diem, notwithstanding the fact of the plaintiff's claiming a right of way under s. 26 of the Limitation Act and his basing his right on a previous decree giving him a title to the right of way. SREEMATI SOOJAN BIBI v. SHAMED ALI, 1 C.W.N. 96. (6 B. 20, F.)

(13)—Right of way—Twenty years' user to support servitude—Continuance of user after—Calcutta Municipal Act (Beng. Act IV of 1876)—Extent of user.—In the matter of an easement, viz., a right of way, claimed by the plaintiffs over the defendant's passage for the purpose of having their latrine cleaned several times annually by mehters or scavengers and proved to the satisfaction of the Courts below by a user of the right for upwards of twenty years before suit, the proper construction of the plaintiffs' right was held to be identical with a reasonable and convenient user for the above purpose, that is, a user of the passage as often as was necessary for cleansing the privies. There was no agreement specifying times or occasions of access to militate against this construction of the plaintiffs' right. When, therefore, in obedience to the rules framed by the Calcutta Municipality under Act IV of 1876, the plaintiffs were obliged to arrange for the daily cleaning of their privies and, in consequence, found it necessary to use the defendant's passage more frequently than before, i.e., every morning daily, held that the above user was neither a discontinuance by the plaintiffs of their user nor an aggravation of the servitude and that, the purpose for which the right was claimed being identical with the original purpose, the user proved prior to the passing of the Act entitled the plaintiffs to the more frequent exercise of their right over the passage, when inclination, custom or a change in the law compelled them to do so. JADULAL MULLICK v. GOPALCHANDRA MUKERJI, 13 C. 136=13 I.A. 77=4 Sar. 713. (9 C. 778, Affirmed.)

See FERRY, 6 C. 608=7 C.L.R. 504.

——3.—Miscellaneous.

(1)—Funeral rites—Right to share in funeral fees.—No Hindu or Mahomedan can claim in a Civil Court the right to officiate at any religious or funeral rites in respect of any member of his faith; nor can he claim to share in the offerings or fees collected by others. GHUNIA v. BOOTA, 94 P.R. 1867.

Prescription—continued.

——3 —Miscellaneous—continued.

(2)—User—Right to injure another—Prescriptive right.—No prescriptive right to injure another can be acquired (as for instance, a right to throw the burnt earth, of which crucibles are made, in a neighbour's tank) however long such right may have been exercised. SREEDHUR DEY v. ADOYTO KURMOKAR, 20 W R. 237. [R., 2 Ind. Cas. 230=5 N.L. R. 52.]

(3)—Limitation—Prescription, acquisition of right by—Practice—Basis of claim—Inconsistency—Election.—According to the new Limitation Act, 1871, which came into operation on the 1st of July, 1871, peaceable and open enjoyment by the person claiming the right, without interruption, and for twenty years, must be proved in order to acquire a right by prescription. [Diss., 4 C.L.J. 437, F.B.=34 C. 51=11 C.W.N. 21=1 M.L.T. 364; D., 4 C. L.J. 367.] Where a plaintiff, coming into Court with a vague double case, is called upon by the Court to elect which branch of his case he will proceed with, the election must be distinct and clear, and such as will bind the party electing, and will show accurately on the face of the record the claim (if any) which is abandoned. RAJAH BIJOY KESHUB ROY v. OBHOY CHURN GHOSE, 16 W.R. 198. [R., 4 C.L.J. 437=34 C. 51=11 C.W.N. 21=1 M.L. T. 364 ; D., 4 C.L.J. 367.]

(4)—Suit to close a road—Possessory suit—Pleas—Suit for establishment of two rights—Proof of one right—Declaratory decree for other right also.—The plaintiff alleged that the defendant had built a bridge over the beel, and opened a road through his land, and sought to recover possession of the land, and to close the road. The defendant alleged first that the land, where the road was, was his ; and secondly that there was a road there and that it was an ancient wide road for the public for the passage of men and carriages. Held that it was enough if the defendant proved one or other of his defences. Where a plaintiff asks for the establishment of two rights, and it appears that he is only entitled to one of them, the other must in some way be relinquished or abandoned. It is not sufficient to insert in the decree a declaration which would bar the plaintiff's right to that which he has failed to establish, and to give him a decree for that which he has established. DHUNPUT SINGH BAHADOOR v. NARAIN PERSHAD SINGH, 20 W.R. 94. [R., 4 C.L.J. 437=1 M.L.T. 364=11 C.W.N. 21=34 C. 51.]

Claim under, not inconsistent with relief on ground of proprietary right—See ALTERNATIVE CLAIMS, 4 C.L.J. 367.

See LEASE—CONSTRUCTION OF CASE, 10 B.H.C. 216.

Right to prescribe for title to a space occupied by a building — Projection of building—See LIMITATION—GENERAL, 16 M.L.J. 281=29 M. 511.

Prescription—continued.

——3.—Miscellaneous—concluded.

Acquisition of a title by—to a place used as a burial ground for a long time—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—WAKF, A.W.N. 1906, 159=3 A. L.J. 546.

Whether a right for the discontinuance of a procession of an idol can be acquired by—See RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENT, 16 M.L.J. 150.

Presents.

Suit for damages for withholding customary presents to member of caste.—See RIGHT OF SUIT—CASTE QUESTIONS, SUITS CONCERNING, 10 B. 661.

Presidency Banks Act.

See ACT XI OF 1876.

Presidency High Courts Act.

See ACT XX OF 1862.

Presidency Jails Act.

See ACT XII OF 1867.

Presidency Magistrates Court-fees Act.

See ACT IV OF 1877.

Presidency Small Courts Acts.

See REVISION — SMALL CAUSE COURT CASES.

See SMALL CAUSE COURTS, MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF.

See SMALL CAUSE COURTS, PRESIDENCY TOWNS, JURISDICTION OF.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1850).

[REP., ACT XV OF 1882.]

(1)—See COSTS—SPECIAL CASES, 1 Ind. Jur. N.S. 95.

(2)—S. 25—See COSTS —SPECIAL CASES, 1 B.L.R.O.C. 66.

(3)—Act IX of 1850, ss. 26, 41—Calcutta Small Cause Court, rule of practice of—Service of summons.—The meaning of s. 26, Act IX of 1859, is that the time between the service of summons and the day on which the Court is holden on which the cause is to be tried, shall in all cases be fixed by the rules for regulating the practice of the Court. The only time fixed by Rule 3 is two clear days. The words "unless the Court shall otherwise order" do not fix any other time, but give the power in any case to disregard the rule and the Act, and to have the summons served at any time before the trial. S. 41 does not authorise this. The rules for regulating the practice and proceedings of the Court, cannot override the provisions of the Act, and dispense with fixing a time for service when the Act has expressly required that it should be done. BHAIRABDAN RAMCHAND v. BASSANTLAL BHAGAT, 9 B.L.R. 256.

S. N. Dar
Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1850)—concluded.

(4)—S. 41—See NO. 3, supra.

(5)—S. 54—See CERTIORARI, WRIT OF, 1 Ind. Jur. O.S. 68.

(5-a)—S. 58—"Goods and chattels" under Small Cause Court Act (Mofussil Act IX of 1850).—The words 'goods and chattels' in s. 58 of the Act do not include fixtures (10 B.L.R. 448, 8 B.L.R. 508, R.) Oil and flour mills and a steam-engine and boiler are fixtures, and not "goods and chattels" within the meaning of s. 58 of the Act and could not be seized in execution of a Small Cause Court decree. The difference in English Law between trade fixtures and other fixtures cannot be imported into matters of execution. The question whether fixtures are removable by a tenant as against his landlord has nothing to do with the question whether they are seizable in execution as goods and chattels. MILLER v. BRINDABUN, 4 C. 946=4 C L.R. 460=4 Ind. Jur. 240. (14 B.L.R. 201, R.)

(6)—S. 88—See BAILMENT, 5 B.L.R. App. 31=14 W.R. 303.

(7)—Ss. 91, 98—Jurisdiction—Court of Small Causes.—A Small Cause Court (Madras) has no jurisdiction under ss. 91, 98 of Act IX of 1850 to try questions of doubtful title bona fide raised by the persons in possession. MUHAMMED ESUF SAHIB v. GEORGE AND JANE, 4 M. 385, F.B.

(8)—S. 98—See NO. 7, supra.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XXVI of 1864.)

[REP., ACT XV OF 1882.]

(1)—See EXECUTION OF DECREE—JOINT DECREES, EXECUTION OF, 22 W.R. 354.

(2)—S. 7—High Court, Reference to.—When a case had been heard by a single Judge of the Small Cause Court, and a new trial has been applied for, and the case has been re-heard by two Judges, the Court is bound, under s. 7, Act XXVI of 1864, to refer the case for the opinion of the High Court, if requested to do so by either party to the suit, though the Judges do not entertain any doubt or differ in opinion. MADHAB CHANDRA RUDAR v. AMRIT SINGH NARAIN SINGH, 5 B.L.R. 111.

(3)—S. 7—See CERTIORARI, WRIT OF, Cor. 90.

(4)—S. 9—See COSTS—SPECIAL CASES, 2 Hyde 237, 1 B.L.R.O.C. 27, 1 B.L.R.O.C. 66, 4 B. 407.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882).

[REP., IN PART ACT XII OF 1891 : ACT VII OF 1896 ; REP., IN PART AND AMENDED ACT I OF 1895 ; AMENDED ACT VII OF 1892, S. 12; ACT III OF 1899 ; SS. 28, 39 (2), 69, AMENDED ACT IV OF 1906 ; SS. 2 TO 4, S. 3, LAST PARA, REP., ACT V OF 1908.]

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—continued.

(1)—Power of High Court to restrain suit in Presidency Small Cause Court—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1882, ss. 20, 211, 9 C.W.N. 748.

(2)—Abandonment of excess—Extension of jurisdiction of Small Cause Court.—The abandonment, by a plaintiff, when the jurisdiction of the Presidency Small Cause Court was limited to Rs. 1,000, of an excess over that sum, in a suit for damages, will not, after the introduction of the Act of 1882 and a consequent rise in the pecuniary jurisdiction, preclude him from claiming such excess, if he had elected a non-suit in the first suit. SIMSON v. GORA CHAND DOSS, 9 C. 473.

(3)—Failure to apply for permission under the rule—Court allowing plaintiff to proceed with suit—Irregularity—Revision—Rules 89, 98, Madras High Court Rules.—Where a plaintiff, who had to apply to Court under r. 98 of the Madras High Court Rules for permission to proceed with the suit, failed so to apply, but he was nevertheless permitted by Court to proceed with the suit and obtained a decree. Held, that the High Court would not interfere in revision on the mere failure of the plaintiff to apply under r. 98. PATCHAPERUMAL v. SAMPATHU, 8 M.L.T. 362=8 Ind. Cas. 160.

(4)—Injunction against person proceeding in Presidency Small Cause Court, Bombay—Power of High Court to issue.—The High Court of Judicature at Bombay has the power to issue an injunction against a person from proceeding in the Presidency Small Causes Court at Bombay with a suit referring to the same matter to which the suit in the High Court relates. UDERAM v. HYDERALLY, 10 Bom. L.R. 1141 =33 B. 469.

(5)—Injunction not to carry on suit in Small Causes Court—High Court—Jurisdiction.—The High Court, on its Original Side, cannot in the course of a suit pending before it grant an injunction, on an interlocutory application, to restrain a party to it from carrying on his suit, which he has already instituted in the Presidency Small Causes Court; but, it may remove the latter suit into the High Court and try the same under cl. 13 of the Letters Patent, 1865. JAIRAMDAS v. ZAMENLAL, Bom. L.R. 201=27 B. 357.

(6)—Transfer of suit—High Court.—The Bombay High Court has power to transfer to itself a suit pending in the Bombay Small Causes Court. MAGANLAL VIJBHUKBANDAS v. BOMBAY CO. LTD., 7 Bom. L.R. 143.

(7)—Ss. 1, 94—See RIGHT OF SUIT—DECREES, 8 B. 1.

(8)—Ss. 6, 622, Civ.Pro. Code, 1882 (=s. 115, new Code)—High Court's jurisdiction to revise orders passed without jurisdiction.—Having regard to s. 6, Presy. S. C. Courts Act, the High Court has jurisdiction to revise, under s. 622, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, orders which are said to have been made without jurisdiction in the Presidency Small Cause Court. HALADHAB MACTI v. CHOYTONNA MAITI, 30 C. 588=7 C.W.N. 547.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—continued.

(9)—Ss. 6, 18, cls. (a) and (c), 33—St. 24 and 25, Vict. Cap. 104, s. 15—Civ. Pro. Code. s. 652—High Court—Power to make rule re leave to sue defendant out of jurisdiction.—The High Court had no power to declare under s. 33 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, XV of 1882, that the granting of leave to sue a defendant out of the jurisdiction under s. 18, cls. (a) and (c) of the Act, was a non-judicial or quasi-judicial act within the meaning of that section. RAJAM CHETTI v. SESHAYYA, 18 M 236, F.B. =5 M.L.J. 114. [F., 34 C. 619=11 C.W.N. 649=5 C L.J. 405=2 M.L.T. 406; R., 19 M. 90, 11 C.W.N. 663]

(10)—Ss. 9, 23, 37—See CLAIMS TO PROPERTY ATTACHED, 18 C. 296.

(11)—Ss. 9, 38—Practice--Full Court--Appeal from the decision of a single Judge—Powers of full Court to interfere on questions of fact.—There exists a long and inveterate practice, in the Court of Small Causes at Bombay, under which the full Court consists of two Judges, the Chief Judge or in his absence, the senior Judge presiding; and the Judge against whose decree any application is made, is the second member, if he is present in Court, and if he is absent any other Judge takes his place, and the Court thus constituted proceeds to hear and dispose of the application preferred against the decision of an individual Judge of the same Court. This practice is not ultra vires and void, although there are no rules framed respecting it under s. 9 of the Presidency Small Causes Courts Act, 1882. The power to alter, set aside, or reverse the decree or order, contemplated by s. 38 of the Presidency Small Causes Court, 1882, includes the power to pass a decree in favour of the party in whose favour the application is granted. The practice in the Court of Small Causes at Bombay, of reviewing evidence in cases in which the notes of evidence are sufficient to enable the full Court to undertake that review and of setting aside a wrongful dismissal of the suit, where the decision is manifestly against the weight of the evidence, is not contrary to law. BEHRAM v. ARDESHIR, 5 Bom. L.R 555=27 B. 563.

(12)—S. 18—Jurisdiction—Army Act (44 and 45 Vic. C. 58), s. 151.—S. 151 of the Army Act does not, either expressly or inferentially, affect the jurisdiction given to Small Cause Courts by Act XV of 1882. The discretion of the Small Cause Courts in giving leave to sue under s. 18 of Act XV of 1882 is one that ought to be only very cautiously exercised in such cases. WALLIS v. TAYLOR, 13 C. 37. [Appl., 18 C. 144; Expl., 14 C. 526.]

(13)—S. 18—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 20, 3 Bom. L.R. 82=25 B. 528.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—continued.

(14)—S. 18—See LEAVE TO SUE, 14 C. 526.

(15)—S. 18 (1)—S. 7, St. 51, Vic. C. 4 (1888), amending sub-s. 1, s 151 of the Army Act, 1881 (44 and 45, Vic. C. 58)—Effect—Grant of leave to sue a military officer.—Sub-s. 1 of s. 151 (44 and 45, Vic. C. 58) has since been amended by an Act of 1888 (51 Vic. C. 4), s. 7, as follows:—In sub-s. 1 of s. 151 of the Army Act, 1881, the words 'where the persons so subject are resident within the local jurisdiction,' shall be substituted for the words 'within the jurisdiction.' The words in the amending section must be meant to restrict the words 'within the jurisdiction, etc.,' to persons resident within it, so as to meet and exclude the case of persons casually within the jurisdiction for a short time and not actually resident within it, and are limited to that purpose, and therefore do not affect the powers conferred by s. 18 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (1882). [Not F., P.R. 1893. F.B.] When the cause of action has arisen within the jurisdiction of a Presidency Small Cause Court but the defendant, a military officer, resides out of such jurisdiction, the Court can grant leave under s. 18 (1) of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act. WALLIS & CO. v. BAILEY, 18 C. 372.

(16)—S 18, Expl 1—Set-off not agreed by defendant—S. 111, Civ. Pro. Code, Act XIV of 1882.—If the plaintiff's original claim is beyond pecuniary jurisdiction of a Presidency Small Cause Court, but he reduces it to an amount below such limit by set-off of an amount due to him under an entirely different transaction, and the defendant did not, before, or at the time of the trial of the suit, agree to its being set-off against the plaintiff's claim, held, by Macpherson and Trevelyan, JJ., (Petheram, C.J., dissentiente). that the suit will be liable to dismissal. N.B.—English cases relating to the present case considered. RAMDEO v. POKHIRAM, 21 C. 419.

(16-a)—S. 18, Expl. 1—See SET-OFF, 20 C. 527.

(17)—S. 18—See NO. 9, supra.

(17-a)—Ss. 18, 22—See HIGH COURT, JURISDICTION OF—BOMBAY, 11 Bom. L.R. 273=34 B. 13=3 Ind. Cas. 837.

(18)—S. 19, cls. (f, g, h)—Arrears of maintenance out of hypothecated property—Suit for—Jurisdiction.—A suit to recover arrreas of maintenance due under a covenant in a mortgage-deed, by which the defendant agreed to pay a certain amount out of the income of the hypothecated property, does not fall under cl. (f), (g), or (h) of s. 19 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act. KRISHNA DOSS PARAMANANDA DOSS v. FREDERIC WILLIAM EMERY, 2 M. W.N. 1911, 341=10 M.L T. 331=12 Ind. Cas. 426. (28 M 394, R.)

(19)—S. 19, cl. (g)—"Suit for determination of any right to or interest in immoveable property," meaning of—Question of title incidentally raised

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—continued.

in suit for rent—Jurisdiction not affected—Determination of jurisdiction—Bona fide contention of defendant involving question of title, effect of.—Cl. (g) of s. 19 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act exempts from the jurisdiction of such Courts, suits expressly brought for the purpose of obtaining a decree determining a right or interest in immoveable property, and not suits for money or moveable property in which a question of title to immoveable property may be raised by the defendant. It is the nature of the suit as brought by the plaintiff, and not the nature of the defence, that is to be looked into, to determine whether or not the Court of Small Causes has jurisdiction. It would be obviously wrong to hold that it is in the power of a defendant to oust the Court of a jurisdiction that it would otherwise have, by the mere raising of a plea of title. Nor does the bona fides of such a defence affect the question of jurisdiction. For such a plea, whether made bona fide or not, would have to be enquired into; and the Court of Small Causes has the power to enquire into it and determine it for the purpose of the suit which it has jurisdiction to try. In this case, plaintiff sued in the Presidency Small Causes Court, Bombay, to recover from the defendant fazendari rent in respect of certain lands. The defendant contended that no rent had been paid for the lands since 1846; that the claim was barred by limitation, and that the plaintiff had no title to the lands in question. Held that, although the defence raised involved the determination of a bona fide question of title to immoveable property, still the suit was cognizable by the Court of Small Causes. BAPUJI RAGHUNATH v. KUVARJI EDULJI UMRIGAR, 15 B. 400. [R., 20 B. 15, 5 Bom. L.R. 398.]

(20)—S. 19 (k)—Suit to enforce arrears of annuity — Suit to enforce a trust.—A suit to enforce the arrears of an annuity payable under a will and to which the executors have assented, is cognizable by the Presidency Small Causes Court; it does not fall under s. 19 (k) of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882. DOSIBAI MARKAR v. COOVERBAI MARKER, 10 Bom. L.R. 758=32 B. 575.

(21)—S. 19 (q) — Breach of promise of marriage—Contract between parent of intended bride and intended bridegroom—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court—See MAD. ACT VII OF 1892, s. 3, 24 M. 652.

(22)—S. 20—Valuation of suit—Jurisdiction—Small Causes Courts—High Court—Costs.—The mere fact that the plaintiffs have claimed a sum in excess of the Small Causes Court's jurisdiction is not enough to take the case out of the operation of s. 20 of the Presidency Small Causes Courts Act, 1882, where the result of the suit shows that the true amount or value of the subject-matter was not above the Court's limit. SHRIDHAN v. GORDHANDAS, 3 Bom. L.R. 893=26 B. 235.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—continued.

(23)—Ss. 22, 11, Presy. S. C. Courts Act, 1895—Suits under Rs. 2,000 but over Rs. 1,000—S. 6, General Clauses Act, 1868—S. 9, Act XXIV of 1864.—S. 11, Presy. S. C. Courts Act, 1895, repeals pro tanto the provision as to amount in the Old Act (1882), but there is no provision that it should be retrospective in its operation. When at the time a suit, for an amount under Rs. 2,000 but over Rs. 1,000 was instituted in the High Court, the Amending Act I of 1895 (Presy. S. C. Court, had not been passed, the alteration of Presy. S.C. Court Act, 1882, s. 22, did not affect the suit and the matter was concluded by s. 6, General Clauses Act (1868). (16 C. 278, Appl.) [R., 153 P.L.R. 1901=4 P.R. 1902; Not F., 21 B. 779.] By the terms of s. 22, the Legislature did not intend much to extend the powers given to the Judge under s. 9, Act XXIV of 1864, according to which he could only certify when "by reason of the difficulty, novelty, or general importance of the case, or of some erroneous course of decisions in like cases in the Court of Small Causes, the action was fit to be brought in the High Court." — Per Trevelyan, J. ISMAIL ARIFF v. S J. LESLIE, 24 C. 399=1 C. W.N. 188.

(24)—S. 22—See COSTS—SPECIAL CASES, 21 B. 729.

(25)—S. 22—See NO. 17-a, supra.

(26)—S. 23—See NO. 10, supra.

(27)—S. 28—"For the purposes of execution," meaning of.—The words "for the purposes of execution of the decree" in s. 28 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act only mean that, as between the judgment-debtor and the judgment-creditor, property of this particular class (i.e., tiled huts) shall, for the purposes of execution, be deemed to be moveable. That section does not contemplate that the Small Cause Court should deal, in execution proceedings, with questions of title or determine any right to, or interest in, tiled huts, at any rate as between the attaching creditor and the mortgagee of the judgment-debtor. DENO NATH BATABYAL v. ADHOR CHUNDER SETT, 4 C.W.N. 470. (18 C. 296, D.) [R., 29 C. 498, 31 C. 1001, 34 C. 823.]

(28)—S. 31, cl. (b)—Court executing decree of Presidency Small Cause Court, if must be pecuniarily competent—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), s. 24—Transfer.—Under s. 31 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, the Court to which a decree may be sent for execution is the Civil Court competent to deal with it under the provisions of the Civ. Pro. Code. Pending proceedings which are without jurisdiction cannot be transferred to a Court which would have jurisdiction. Where a decree of the Calcutta Small Cause Court exceeded in value the pecuniary limit of the jurisdiction of the Munsiff to whose Court it was sent for execution: Held, that the Munsiff had no jurisdiction to execute the decree. SHAMSUNDAR SAHA v. ANATH BANDHU SAHA, 14 C.W.N. 662=6 Ind. Cas. 97=37 C. 574.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—continued.

(29)—S. 33—See NO. 9, supra.

(29-a)—Ss. 36, 38 and Rule 223—Garnishee proceedings—Ex parte order—Re-hearing—See GARNISHEE PROCEEDINGS, 8 Ind. Cas. 856=21 M.L.J. 525.

(30)—S. 37, Act XV of 1882 (Presidency Small Cause Courts Act)—S. 622, Civ. Pro. Code 1882—Second new trial.—It is competent for a Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court to hear more than one application for a new trial in the same case, (the decree or order in s. 37, Act XV of 1882, meaning not necessarily the original "decree or order" but "the decree or order existing or subsisting in the suit.") It was not the intention of the Legislature, in using the words of s. 37, Act XV of 1882, to prohibit such practice. To allow such new trials after previous new trials, would be in accordance with the practice of the Courts in England. SURRUT COOMARI DASSEE v. RADHA MOHUN ROY, 22 C. 784. (10 B.L.R 355, F.) [D., 3 C.L.J. 199, 4 C. L.J. 46=10 C.W.N. 14.]

(31)—S. 37, powers of Full Bench under, whether altered by s. 13 of Amending Act (I of 1895).—The powers of the Full Bench of the Presidency Small Cause Court, to revise a decree of a single Judge or order a new trial under s. 37 of Act XV of 1882, have not been altered by the amendment of the Act by s. 13 of Act I of 1895. The alteration in the title of the chapter into "new trials and appeals" cannot be considered as sufficient to allow appeals to the Full Bench, notwithstanding the express words of s. 37. Further, the introduction of the words "where a suit has been contested" in the present s. 38, has the effect not of extending the powers of revision previously possessed by the Full Bench, but, on the other hand, of limiting them to contested cases. SRINIVASA CHARLU v. BALAJI RAU, 21 M. 232. [R., 23 B. 414, 27 B. 563, 31 M. 490=18 M.L.J. 480= 4 M.L.T. 283.]

(32)—S. 37—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. IX, r. 13, O. XVII, r. 2, 21 C. 296.

(33)—S. 37—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 164, 17 B. 507.

(34)—S. 37—See NO. 10, supra.

(34-a)—Ss. 37, 38, 69—Judges differing on a point of law—Procedure.—Where in an application to the Full Bench under s. 37 of Act XV of 1882 for a new trial, the Judges differ on a point of law, the proper procedure is as indicated in s. 69, to state a case for the opinion of the High Court and to reserve judgment or give judgment contingent on such opinion, and not to enter into the merits of the case and to dispose of it. Such a disposal is in effect a new trial, though an order for re-trial is not expressly made. SESHAMMAL v. MUNISAMI MUDALI, 20 M. 358=7 M.L.J. 140. [F., 31 M. 490=4 M.L.T. 283=18 M.L.J. 480.]

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—continued.

(35)—S. 38—Application to Full Bench of Small Cause Court—Revision petition to High Court direct from a decision of a Presidency Small Cause Court Judge whether lies—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115.—The High Court will not, except in very special cases, interfere in revision, with the decision of a Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court, unless the party aggrieved had first applied to the Full Court of the Presidency Small Causes under s. 38 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882. SEETHAPATHY NAIDU v. LAKSHMANA CHETTY, 10 Ind. Cas. 551.

(36)—S. 38—No question of law—Whether new trial may be ordered on question of fact—Scope of s. 38.—S. 38, Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, gives the Court power, inter alia, to order a new trial to be held. There is no limitation in s. 38 that such power can be exercised only if a question of law arises. A new trial may be ordered where the judgment is manifestly against the weight of evidence. JOHAN SMIDT v. RAMPRASAD, 38 C. 425=12 Ind. Cas. 11. (24 C. 455, R.)

(37)—S. 38—Suit—Proceeding—Power of the Small Cause Court in the Presidency town to order new trial.—The Presidency Small Cause Court cannot take action under s. 38 of the Presidency Small Causes Courts Act, 1882, in reference to an order passed in a proceeding under Chapter VII of the Act. RAMKRISHNA v. HAJI DAWOOD, 9 Bom. L.R. 208=31 B. 259.

(38) — S. 38 — Chap. VII — Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 108, 647—Ex parte order—Power of the Small Cause Court to set aside the order.—The Court of Small Causes at Bombay has inherent power to deal with an application to set aside an order made ex parte and to set it aside upon a proper cause being substantiated. TYEB BEG v. ALLIBHAI, 8 Bom. L.R. 803=31 B. 45.

(39)—S. 38—Small Causes Court—Ordering a new trial—Jurisdiction—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 622—High Court—Revision.—The jurisdiction exercised by a Presidency Small Causes Court under s. 38 of the Presidency Small Causes Court Act, 1882, is in no way limited like the jurisdiction exercised by the High Court under s. 622 of the Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 S. 38 is in the widest possible terms. BAPUJI v. DASTUR, 8 Bom. L.R. 678.

(40)—S. 38—New trial—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 108—Re-hearing of suit decreed ex parte—Rules made by the High Court—Rule 70.—When a suit has been decreed ex parte and an application under s. 108 of the Civ. Pro. Code, for setting aside such decree dismissed, an application cannot be made under s. 38 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act for a new trial. S. 38 only applies "where the case has been contested." Where there was no contest, there was no "trial" and consequently there cannot be a "new trial." In an application, under s. 38, for a new trial of the matters arising under s. 108, Civ. Pro. Code, and Rule 70

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—continued.

of the High Court's Rules, the Small Cause Court has no jurisdiction to go into the merits of the case. ANANTA COOMARI DASSI v. RADHARANI DASSI, 3 C.L.J. 199. (22 C. 784, 10 B.L.R. 355, D.)

(41)—S. 38—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, . 115, 4 M.L.T. 325.

(42)—S. 38—Application to High Court for re-hearing—See HIGH COURT, JURISDICTION OF—BOMBAY, 12 B. 579.

(43)—S. 38 — See NOS. 11, 29 and 34-a, supra.

(44)—Ss. 38, 69—"Miscarriage of justice." —Where a case was gone into and thoroughly in the Presidency Small Cause Court, and the Judge of the Small Cause Court was willing to state a case for the opinion of the High Court under s. 69 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, if the plaintiffs desired it, but the plaintiffs, by their pleader, expressly declined this, and then applied to the High Court under s. 38 of the Act for a re-hearing on the ground that the Judge of the Small Cause Court was wrong in the view he took of the law as applicable to the facts of the case. held that there was no "miscarriage or failure of justice" within the meaning of s. 38 of the Act, and that therefore the application ought to be refused. It is difficult to see how there can be said to be a "miscarriage or failure of justice," when a party, instead of taking the opinion of the High Court, as he has the means of doing, voluntarily elects to have the law applicable to the case decided by the Small Cause Court. A mistake in law and a miscarriage or failure of justice are not convertible terms. VOSSONJI TRICUMJI AND CO. v. THE SOUTHERN MARATHA RAILWAY COMPANY, 17 B. 14.

(45)—Ss. 38, 71—Application for re-hearing of suit dismissed by Small Cause Court—Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (1882)—Court-fee to be paid in full—Supply of deficient Court-fee disallowed after expiry of prescribed period.—Eight days are by s. 38, Act XV of 1882, allowed, within which an application for the re-hearing of a suit dismissed by a Small Cause Court could be made; and by s. 71 of the Act the application is not to be received unless the proper stamp duty has been paid in full, before the expiry of the period of eight days prescribed therefor Where, on such an application being made by petition at the rising of the Court on the last possible day, which was not a regular motion day, the hearing of the matter was postponed to a later date, and on the application being brought on that day it was found that the petition was not sufficiently stamped according to the requirements of s. 71, Act XV of 1882, held, that the supply of deficient Court-fee after the expiry of the prescribed period, not being a compliance with the requirements of the section, that could not be done; held, also, that although consideration of the application was deferred to a later date, that made no difference, as the eight days had expired before the petition was in such a condition that it could be received, and that if it had been considered then, it could not have been received, but must have been rejected. NORENDRONATH BOSE v. ABINASH CHUNDER ROY, 18 C. 445.

(46)—Ss. 38, 71—Application for re-hearing without complying with requirements of Act—Subsequent compliance, if sufficient—Practice in Bombay High Court.—The Court of Small Causes at Bombay passed a decree against A on 9th December 1887. An application to the High Court for re-hearing was made formally under s. 38 of Act XV of 1882, on 16th December 1887 (because such applications should be made within eight days) by A's counsel, before the Court rose for the day, and the hearing of the petition was adjourned to some subsequent day. On the case being called on, the Court was informed (1) that the petition for re-hearing, which was requisite under Rule No. 208 of the High Court Rules, Bombay, had not been signed and declared until 17th December 1887, i.e., the day after the application was made formally in Court, (2) that the affidavit in support of the application, as required by s. 38, had not been filed until two days after the application, and (3) that the Court-fees, which must be paid prior to the application as required by s. 71, had not been paid until four days after the application. Held, that the application for re-hearing made on behalf of A must be rejected. Although the application was nominally made on 16th December 1887, it was only provisionally received. Every objection to its reception which could have been taken on that day can be taken on the day when the application came on for hearing. The fact that A subsequently complied with the requirements of the Act cannot place him in a better position than he occupied at the time when he made the application. Under s. 38, read with s. 71 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), an application to the High Court for re-hearing a case once decided by the Court of Small Causes must be made in writing. In re JAIKISSONDAS PURSHOTAM DAS, 12 B. 408.

(47)—S. 41 — Mortgagor and mortgagee — Ejection suit.—S. 41, Presidency Small Causes Courts Act, 1882, applies to the suit brought by a mortgagee to eject the mortgagor from the mortgaged property even though no actual relation of landlord and tenant is created between them. RAGHAOJI v. NARANDAS, 1 Bom. L.R. 860.

(48)—S. 41—Mortgagee—Mortgagor a tenant-at-will of the mortgagee from him, but not of the purchaser — Purchaser suing the mortgagor in ejectment in the Small Causes Court—Purchaser not a person claiming through the mortgagee—Ejectment suit—Jurisdiction.—The defendant mortgaged his house to L on 8th April 1896. L sold it by auction to the plaintiff on 8th October 1900; and executed the conveyance on

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—continued.

20th idem. The plaintiff gave the defendant notice to quit on 15th January 1901; but defendant denied plaintiff's right to demand possession of the property. The plaintiff, then, filed suit in the Court of Small Causes at Bombay, under s. 41 of the Presidency Small Causes Courts Act, 1882, to eject the defendant from the house. The Small Causes Court submitted the following questions for the opinion of the High Court. (1) Whether the defendant was a tenant-at-will of the plaintiff or held in his own right? and (2) Whether the Court had jurisdiction to try the suit under s. 41 of the Presidency Small Causes Courts Act, 1882: Held, (1) that where a mortgagee conveys the mortgaged property under his power of sale it cannot be said that the mortgagor is in possession with the permission of the mortgagee's purchaser; (2) that the Small Causes Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, under s. 41 of the Presidency Small Causes Courts Act, because the plaintiff could not be said to claim through the mortgagee in the sense intended by the section. CHHABIL DAS v. MOWJI, 3 Bom. L.R. 456=26 B. 82.

(49)—S. 41—See EJECTMENT, SUIT FOR, 1 Bom. L.R. 860.

(50)—S. 41—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—MISCELLANEOUS, 10 B. 30.

(51)—Ss. 42, 45, 46, 48—Order for ejectment without summons served on the defendant—Validity—Position of defendant—Applicability of the provisions of Civ. Pro. Code.—Where the respondent was not served with a summons under s. 42, before an ejectment order was passed, but not against him, and he was ejected under it. Held that the respondent was not a party to the order under which he was ejected, but a person holding the position of a person other than the judgment-debtor when the case is one of dispossession under the decree. Though Ch. VII of the Act makes no express provision of the procedure to be adopted in such a case, it merely states that the party aggrieved may have a remedy by suit under ss. 45, 46, but it will not prevent the application of s. 48, which extends the provisions of the Civ. Pro. Code to Small Cause Courts, other procedure not being prescribed. BAGGIAMMA v. APPADURAI GRAMANY, 7 M.L.T. 385=6 Ind. Cas. 722.

(52)—S. 45—See NO. 51, supra.

(53)—S. 46—See NO. 51, supra.

(54)—S. 48—See NO. 51, supra.

(55)—S. 69—Case stated for opinion of High Court—Reference to be only on precise point of law or usage—Practice.— Held (Farran, J., doubting) that the Presidency Small Cause Court ought not to make general indefinite reference to the High Court, under s. 69 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act. The case stated must relate to a point of law or usage having the force of law, and the question referred must be precise. Otherwise the High Court would send back the reference for amendment. In this suit before the Presidency Small Cause Court, Bombay, plaintiff claimed damages from the defendant for breach of contract to deliver goods. The defendant paid into Court the sum of Rs. 779, and the only dispute was as to the principle on which the damages were to be assessed. At the conclusion of the hearing, and before the judgment was delivered, the plaintiff's attorney informed the Chief Judge that he would require a case to be stated for the opinion of the High Court, under s. 69 of Act XV of 1882, unless the decision were in his favour. The Judge, thereupon, desired to be informed as to the exact question of law the plaintiff's attorney would wish to be referred; but the latter declared himself unable to do so until after the judgment was delivered, and said he could not then say anything more explicit than that he would require a case to be stated for the opinion of the High Court on any question of law that might arise in the case. The Chief Judge, thereupon, stated the facts to the High Court and referred the following general question for its opinion:—"Whether on the facts above set forth, the plaintiffs are entitled to recover from the defendant any, and if so what sum greater than Rs. 779-10 0 paid into the Court by the defendant." A preliminary objection was taken as to whether the reference was in proper form. No question of law or usage having the force of law having been formulated for the opinion of the Court, held (Farran, J., doubting) that the reference should be sent back to be amended by stating the precise question arising in the case. RALLI BROTHERS v. GOCULBHAI MULCHAND, 15 B. 376. [R., 15 M. 179, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 537, 11 Bom L.R. 830=33 B. 708=3 Ind. Cas. 960.]

(56)—S. 69—Reference—Time—Delivery of judgment.—The language of s. 69 of Act XV of 1882 shows that the party requiring the Judge to make a reference to the High Court must do so before the Judge has delivered his judgment, as it gives the Judge the option, on being so required, either of postponing his judgment or delivering it contingent on the opinion of the High Court. BANK OF BENGAL v. VYABHOY GANGJI, 16 B. 618. [Appr., 11 Bom. L.R. 830=33 B. 708=3 Ind. Cas. 960.]

(57)—S. 69—New trial, application for, under s. 69, Act XV of 1882—Difference of opinion between Judges—Contingent judgment—Proper course.—The refusal of a new trial, subject to the opinion of the High Court on certain points referred to it, is not a "contingent judgment," under s. 69 of Act XV of 1882; and the proper course, upon a difference of opinion between the Judges, would be to grant a new trial, wherein the point would be fully discussed. NUSSERWANJEE v. PURSOTUM DOSS, 11 C. 298. (12 B.L.R. 34, F.) [F., 15 M. 179; D., 20 M. 358=7 M.L.J. 140.]

(58)—S. 69—Jurisdiction—Question of title.—The Presidency Small Court has jurisdiction

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—continued.

to try questions of title, which arise incidentally in a suit before it. It may also try such a question where it is the principal question. But, it ought not to try such a question where that is the sole and the only point in the suit. RAJENDRA MULLICK v. NANDA LALL GUPTA, 31 C. 1001.

(59)—S. 69, Scope of—S. 621, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 (=O. XLVI, r. 5)—High Court, power of.—The conditions of s. 69, Act XV of 1882, ought to be strictly complied with, before the High Court can give an opinion on the matter referred. The conditions necessary are:—the referring Court ought to entertain a reasonable doubt upon a point of law; it ought to state the point upon which the doubt is entertained: it must give a statement of the case. If these conditions are not complied with, the High Court, under s. 621, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, will return the case to the lower Court for amendment. BARLING v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA, 30 C. 458.

(60)—S. 69—Reference to the High Court—Property—Risk—Bill of lading—Consignee.—S. 69, Presidency Small Causes Court Act, enables the Small Causes Court to make a reference to the High Court on any question of law, or usage having the force of law, or the construction of document; but not on any question of fact. SURROSH v. MUGONLAL, 2 Bom. L.R. 460.

(61)—S. 69—Question whether cheque was presented within reasonable time, whether one of fact—Whether the Small Cause Court can refer such question to the opinion of the High Court.—The question whether a cheque has been presented within a reasonable time has to be determined with regard to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade and of bankers and the facts of the particular case. Such a question is clearly a question of fact and not of law; and it is not therefore a question which the Small Cause Court can refer to the opinion of the High Court under s. 69 of the Act. THE EAST INDIAN AND ANGLO INDIAN DEPOSIT AND LOAN SOCIETY, LTD. v. T. M. NAIR, 4 M.L.T. 89=31 M. 364. [Cited., 32 M. 206.]

(62)—S. 69, Effect of High Court's decision.—Where the Presidency Small Cause Court passes judgment in favour of a plaintiff contingent upon the opinion of the High Court and the latter decides, on the reference, that, on the plaint before the Court, the plaintiffs could not recover, the Presidency Small Cause Court ought to dismiss the suit. A. YULE & CO. v. MAHOMED HOSSAIN, 24 C. 129.

(63)—S. 69—Reference to High Court when permissible—Reasonable doubt by the referring Court.—S. 69 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act permits a reference to the High Court only when the referring Court entertains a reasonable doubt on the point referred. KRISHNA DOSSPARAMANANDA v. FREDERICK WILLIAM EMERY, 17 Ind. Cas. 93.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882)—concluded.

(64)—S. 69—See BOM. ACT II OF 1864, ss. 8, 9, 11 Bom. L.R. 830=3 Ind. Cas. 960=33 B. 708.

(65)—S. 69—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 622—Difference of opinion among the Judges constituting the Full Bench—Disposal of the case according to the opinion of the majority—Legality—Jurisdiction of the High Court—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 115, 4 M.L.T. 283.

(65-a) S. 69—See NOS. 34-a, 44, supra.

(66)—S. 69, r. 428 of Rules of procedure of Presidency Small Cause Court—Stating case for opinion of High Court.—R. 428 of the Rules of Procedure of Presidency Small Cause Court is not ultra vires. Nor is it in conflict with s. 69 of Act XV of 1882. The rule and the section proceed on different lines, the rule providing for cases in which the Judge is in doubt, and not for cases covered by the section. MUHAMMAD KHUMARALI v. RANGA RAO, 24 M. 654.

(67)—Ss. 69, 70—Effect of failure—Deposit—Costs of reference.—Where a judgment is given contingent on the opinion of the High Court on a point to be referred to the latter, and the party, at whose instance the contingent judgment is given and the reference is made, fails to deposit the security "at once," the reference will be liable to be dismissed. JUGAL KISHORE v. SEWMICK ROY, 28 C. 260. (14 B.L.R. 180, D.)

(68)—Ss. 69 and 70—Application for new trial—Practice.—A party requesting a Presidency Small Cause Court to deliver judgment contingent on the opinion of the High Court under s. 69 and subsequently abandoning the exercise of such right is not precluded from applying for a new trial. The last clause of s. 70 only means that the judgment becomes final and conclusive, save as provided by ch. VI. PROTAP CHUNDER SEN v. TUNSOOK DASS, 23 C. 967.

(69)—Ss. 69, 70—See REFERENCE TO HIGH COURT, 28 C. 260.

(70)—S. 69, r. 428—See RULES—RULES MADE UNDER ACTS, 24 M. 654.

(71)—S. 70—Payments under, whether makes money the property of the decree-holder—See ST. 11 AND 12, Vic. c. 21, ss. 39, 40, 7 M.L.T. 207=5 Ind. Cas. 379=33 M. 467.

(72)—S. 70—See NOS. 67, 68, 69, supra.

(73)—S. 94—See NO. 7, supra.

(74)—R. 223—See NO. 29, supra.

(75)—R. 428—See NOS. 66, 70, supra.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (I of 1895).

[S. 4, REP. ACT I OF 1903; S. 5, VIRT. AM., ACT III OF 1899, S. 4.]

(1)—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, ss. 74, 76, 31 C. 284=8 C.W.N. 125.

(2)—S. 11—See COSTS—SPECIAL CASES, 21 B. 779.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (I of 1895)—concluded.

(3)—S. 38—Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (I of 1895), s. 622, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882(= s. 115, new Code)—Tiled huts—Suit for title—Jurisdiction.—Tiled huts are immoveable property, and as the law stands at present, the Small Cause Court has no jurisdiction to try a question of title to such huts as between an attaching creditor and a third person, who alleges that they belong to him and not to the judgment-debtor. AMRITA LALL KALAY v. NIBARAN CHANDRA NAYEK, 31 C. 340=8 C.W.N. 246. (5 B. 572, F.; 11 C. 261, D.) [R., 31 C. 1001.]

(4)—S. 38—Dismissal of contested suit for default—Restoration of suit on application of plaintiff—Application to set aside order restoring suit.—An application does not lie under s. 38 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act to set aside an order of a Judge of the Court setting aside his order dismissing a contested suit for default of plaintiff's appearance, the order setting aside the dismissal order not being a decree nor having the force of a decree. CHINNATHAMBI MUDALIAR v. VEERABADRIAH NAIDOO, 26 M. 163. [F., 31 M. 490=18 M L. J. 480=4 M.L.T. 283.]

(5)—S. 38—Presidency Small Cause Court Act, 1895—Jurisdiction, Nature of.—The jurisdiction given to a Presidency Small Cause Court under s. 38, Presidency Small Cause Court Act 1895 is a revisional and not an appellate jurisdiction. The judgment of the original Court can be reversed and a new trial ordered only when the judgment of the original Court is manifestly against the weight of evidence. SASSOON v. HURRY DAS BHUKUT, 24 C. 455=1 C.W.N. 44. (19 M. 96, F.) [R., 27 B. 563. 23 B. 414, 29 C. 498, 4 M.L T. 283=18 M.L.J. 480=31 M. 490.]

(6)—S. 39, sub-s. (1)—See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 1 C.W.N. 32.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Law Amendment Act.

See ACT X OF 1888.

Presidency Towns Amending Act, Police.

See ACT XLVIII OF 1860.

Presidency Towns, execution in, of Mofussal Process.

See ACT XXIII OF 1840.

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909.)

(1)—S. 6—Practice—Right of audience—Attorneys can appear before the officer appointed under s. 6 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act—Indian Insolvent Act (11 & 12 Vic., c. 21), ss. 3 and 76.—Attorneys of the High Court have a right of audience before the officer appointed by the Chief Justice, in the exercise of the powers conferred upon such officer under s. 6 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. In re THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL OF BOMBAY, 15 Bom. L.R. 217, F.B.=19 Ind. Cas. 421.

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909)—continued.

(1-a)—Ss. 7, 86—Official Assignee—Suit by stranger—Suit in Civil Court—Right of suit.—Where the Official Assignee goes into possession of or claims certain property as belonging to the insolvent, and it is also claimed by a stranger as his, it is competent to the latter to bring a suit against the Official Assignee in a Civil Court. NAGINLAL CHUNILAL v. THE OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE, 13 Bom. L.R. 900=35 B. 473=12 Ind. Cas. 391.

(1-b)—S. 9—Requirements of—Substantial compliance—Whether sufficient—Amendment—When to be allowed—Rights of other parties—Prejudice.—Where a petitioning creditor relies on an act of insolvency within the meaning of s. 9 (d) (i) and where the petitioner does not expressly allege an intent to defeat or delay creditors. Held, that, if the petition and the affidavit contain language which may be construed as a statement of an intention to defeat or delay creditors, the requirements of s. 9 are substantially complied with and that the statement of such intention need not be in the exact language of the section itself. Where there is no subsisting order of adjudication, an amendment of the petition could be allowed to be made, provided it is made within three months of the act of bankruptcy upon which the petitioner relies. It is a settled rule of practice that amendments are not admissible when they prejudice the rights of the opposite party as existing at the date of such amendment. T. MAHOMED AYYAB SAHIB v. MESSRS G.P. GUNNIS AND CO., 13 M.L.T. 275=M.W.N. 1913, 264=24 M.L.J. 562=19 Ind. Cas. 19.

(1-c)—Ss. 9 (e), 10—Partnership debt—Attachment of property in execution of a joint decree against partners—Property claimed on behalf of an endowment—Enquiry as to whether property attached was really judgment-debtor's if essential—General Clauses Act (X of 1897), s. 13—Act or default, if to be personal of person sought to be adjudicated—Delay in applying for annulment.—S. 9 (e) of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act requires that the act or default which amounts to an act of insolvency must be a personal act or default of the particular individual, or, in certain circumstances, of his agent. Where properties alleged to belong to three judgment-debtors remained under attachment in execution of a joint decree against them for more than 21 days. Held—That this alone could not be relied on as an act of insolvency on the part of H, one of the co-judgment-debtors, when, in the execution proceeding, claim was laid to what was alleged to be his share of the property on behalf of an endowment, and that claim was pending when the adjudicating order was made against him and the other co-judgment-debtors. On an application by H for annulment of the adjudication, held—that the above act of insolvency on the part of his co-judgment-debtors could not be regarded as an act of insolvency on the part of H. Held—That it was necessary to inquire whether the property attached was in fact the applicant's. An objection that the application for annulment was not made till after the lapse of a considerable time, having been raised for the first time on appeal: Held that there being no bar of limitation in the matter, this objection taken at this late stage should not be entertained. HARISH CHANDRA MUKERJEE v. THE EAST INDIA COAL CO. LD., 16 C.W.N. 733=14 Ind. Cas. 576.

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909) —continued.

(1-d)—S. 10—See NO. 1-c, supra.

(1-e)—S. 15—Debtor obtaining personal discharge—Right to apply again in respect of fresh debts—See STATUTE 11 AND 12 VIC., C. 21, s. 47, 10 Ind. Cas. 792.

(1-f)—S. 17—Land-holder insolvent—Suit by tenant to set aside distraint—S. 17, inapplicable —Official Assignee—Property in his hands—Leave.—S. 17 of Act III of 1909 applies only to suits by a creditor in respect of his debt, and not to a suit by a tenant to set aside distraint by an agent of the Official Assignee. There is no rule of law requiring that leave should be obtained from the Official Assignee on the Insolvency Court before any suit could be instituted against that officer or one claiming under him. An insolvent's property in the hands of the Official Assignee is not in custodia legis and there is no contempt of the authority of the Court in instituting a suit against the Official Assignee with respect to property vested in him and in his possession. RAMALINGA CHETTY v. ANANTHA CHARIAR, M.W.N. 1913, 237=24 M.L.J. 350=13 M.L.T. 303=18 Ind. Cas. 722.

(2)—Ss. 17, 103—Adjudged insolvent—"Suit or other legal proceedings" against the insolvent —Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 421—Fraudulent transfer of property—Magistrate jurisdiction to try the offence.—M applied to the Insolvent Debtors Court at Bombay for relief under the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, 1909, and was adjudicated an insolvent the same day. Ten days later, a creditor of his filed a complaint in the Magistrate's Court, against him for an offence under s. 421, Penal Code, and against two others for abetment of the offence. M contended that the Magistrates jurisdiction to entertain the complaint under s. 421 was excluded by the Insolvency Act, 1909, and that only the Insolvency Court at Bombay had jurisdiction to entertain the complaint: Held, that the Magistrate's jurisdiction to try an adjudged insolvent for an offence under s. 421, Penal Code, was not taken away by the Insolvency Act, 1909. The expression "or other legal proceedings" in s. 17 of the Insolvency Act, 1909, following as it does the word "suit," a word of more limited application, must be construed on the principle of ejusdem generis. Where the Insolvency Act, 1909, creates an offence, it is the Insolvency Court which has jurisdiction as to it. But as to offences under the Indian Penal Code, the ordinary jurisdiction of the Criminal Courts cannot be held to be excluded, unless expressly or by necessary implication the Act repeals the Code for the purposes of those offences. S. 103 of the Act does not substantially interfere with s. 421 of the Code. As its essential ingredient shows, it is more or less a new offence, created by the Act in addition to the offence under the Code. One statute may be impliedly repealed by a subsequent statute necessarily inconsistent with it; but the inconsistency must be so great that they cannot both be to their full extent obeyed. EMPEROR v. MULSHANKAR HARINAND BHAT, 12 Bom. L.R. 750.

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909) —continued.

(2-a)—Ss. 17, 126—Effect of order of adjudication over property in the mofussil under attachment by mofussil Court—Right of Official Assignee over such property—S. 50, Act III of 1907 (Provincial Insolvency.)—The Presidency Towns Insolvency Act is an Act of the Legislative Council of the Governor-General, and purports to vest the property of the insolvent wherever situate in the Official Assignee. S. 17 of that Act, therefore, vests the property of the insolvent in any part of British India in the Official assignee. (37 C. 418=37 I.A. 86, F.) The wording is substantially the same as that of the Imperial Statute which was repealed by the present Act. In this case, prior to the order of adjudication by the Insolvency Court at Calcutta, certain properties at Delhi belonging to the insolvent were attached and sold in execution by the District Court of Delhi, and the sale proceeds were brought into the District Court. On the passing of the order of adjudication by the Court at Calcutta, held that the assets of the insolvent in the Delhi Court belong to the Official Assignee, and that the District Court at Delhi should be requested to act in aid under s. 50, Provincial Insolvency Act. In re JEWANDAS JHAWAR, 40 C. 78=8 Ind. Cas. 908.

(3)—S. 25—Protection order—Insolvent—Practice—Change effected by the new Act—Stare decisis—Orders interim—Binding character of. --The Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, 1909, gives to the Court and its officers the fullest powers to investigate into the conduct and affairs of an insolvent: The Official Assignee conducts his public examination and reports on his conduct when he applies for his discharge; while the burden which has hitherto rested upon creditors of protecting commercial morality has been entirely removed from their shoulders. S. 25 of the Act clearly intends that, while an insolvent diligently performs the duties prescribed by the Act he should not be harassed by execution creditors, and should not be rendered liable to pressure, whereby one creditor may get undue advantage over another. The section does not deprive the Court of its discretion in granting or refusing protection, but sub-s. 4 indicates clearly the line along which that discretion should be exercised when a creditor opposes the grant. If an insolvent can produce the certificate referred to, the onus is thrown on an opposing creditor of showing cause why the protection order should not be granted, but he is not entitled to ask the Court to enter into an inquiry whether the insolvent has been guilty or not of commercial immorality, or of an offence under the Act. It is open to a creditor to show that an insolvent has imposed on the Official Assignee, and that in spite of the certificate he has not conformed to the provisions of the Act or that an insolvent has been guilty of delay in applying for his discharge; for the Court will not countenance an insolvent resting unreasonably beneath the shade of the protection order. It has never been the practice for the Commissioners in Insolvency under the Indian Insolvency Act to consider themselves bound by their previous decision on applications for interim orders when it has been a matter for their discretion. In re MEGHRAJ GANGABAX, 12 Bom. L.R. 517=7 Ind. Cas. 448.

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909)—continued.

(3-a)—S. 36 (5), (6)—Witness—Examination in an insolvency case—Order for delivery of property when to be made—Application by Official Assignee should be in writing.—An order under s. 36, sub-s. 5, Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, can be made only upon application by the Official Assignee, and such application must be in writing signed by the Official Assignee. The examination under s. 36 (6) can be delegated to an officer of the Court, and an order under sub-s 5 can be based on such examination above. But the person examined should have an opportunity of contesting the granting of the order. In the matter of appeal of ISMAIL MAWOON DAWOODJI, 16 Ind. Cas. 87=6 L. B.R., 4th Qr., 142.

(4)—S. 52—'Absolute order, possession and dispossession'—Test of—Creditor having custody of keys during nights—Debtor left in enjoyment of goods during day—Effect—Fraud upon the Act.—H, a creditor of an insolvent, made various advances to the insolvent and obtained a letter of hypothecation from the latter in which one term was "we agree to deliver to you the keys of the said business premises and to take from you every morning the said keys and return them to you every evening. For breach of any stipulation contained herein or failure to pay the money due when demanded, it shall be lawful for you without my consent to retain the keys and seize the goods or otherwise take possession of them." The agreement was given effect to and on the day when the insolvent absconded. H took possession of the goods and claimed to rank as a 'secured creditor.' Held, that, under the agreement, the goods continued to be in the possession, order or disposition' of the insolvent, notwithstanding that the keys were every night taken to the creditor and were taken from him every morning, and that the insolvent was the reputed owner of the goods under s. 52, Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. The possession which H had under the agreement was not a real but sham possession, and this is the test. (11 C. 451, D.) A device of this sort, under which the debtor was in effect really left in the enjoyment of an effective control of the goods, was simply a device to effect fraud upon the Act. In any event, during the day time and during working hours, the goods were in the insolvent's absolute order, possession and disposition. In the matter of GULAM ALI SHAMSUDDIN SAHEB. 11 M.L.T. 203=22 M.L.J. 441=15 Ind. Cas. 371.

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909)—continued.

(5)—S. 56 (1)—'With a view,' meaning of—Fraudulent preference—Transfer of whole stock without valuation to the creditor on account of pressure—Invalidity.—Where, after a certain amount of pressure from one of their creditors who was also a near relation of theirs, the insolvents got a deed drawn up without any proper valuation at all, by which they transferred the whole of their stock-in-trade except the book-debts to that creditor as in satisfaction of the debt due to her. Held that the transfer was one which was made with the view of giving the creditor an undue preference over other creditors, and was therefore, one that cannot stand. The transfer need not be made with the sole view of giving that creditor preference, but it must be made 'with the view' and that has been explained as meaning that it must be made with this substantial or dominant view. MRS. FLORA CRONAN v. THE OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE OF MADRAS, 9 M.L.T. 211=8 Ind. Cas. 1085.

(5-a)—S. 68—Forward contract entered into during solvency, when can the Official Assignee take advantage of—Powers of the official assignee under s. 68 of the Act how derived.—To take benefit under forward contracts entered into by the insolvent during his solvency, the Official Assignee must (a) communicate his election to take up the contracts within a reasonable time; and (b) tender cash before calling upon the seller to deliver the goods. The Official Assignee acting of his own motion has only two powers, viz., (i) to sell property and (ii) to give receipts; the other powers conferred by s. 68 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act require sanction of the Court. The sanction contemplated by the second part of the section, which is founded on s. 57 of the Bankruptcy Act (1883) in England, is not a general sanction but particular leave to do particular thing or things. The Official Assignee was not entitled to carry on business of the insolvent for beneficial winding up without sanction of Court. An election to take up contracts communicated on 1st September, when shipping time for July and August shipment had expired, was far too late, and the Official Assignee could not enforce the contract or get damages, although the defendants had for the purposes of their own business not cancelled the shipment. C. E. GREY v. LAMOND WALKER & CO., 17 C.W.N. 578=18 Ind. Cas. 786.

(6)—S. 86—See NO. 1-a, supra.

(7)—S. 103—See NO 2, supra.

(8)—S. 108—Letters of administration, application by creditor—Debtor dying in insolvent circumstances.—Letters of administration may be granted to a creditor, although the liabilities of the deceased debtor appear to be in excess of the assets. Application in the Insolvency Court is not the creditor's only remedy. In the goods of MAKHAN LAL CHATTERJEE, 15 C.W.N. 350.

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909) —concluded.

(9)—S. 126—Adjudication in England—Petition by trustee in Bankruptcy to the Indian Court to act in aid of the English Court—Jurisdiction of Indian Court when and how arises —Ss. 27, 118, English Bankruptcy Act (46 and 47, Vic, C. 52).—Under s. 118 of the English Bankruptcy Act, the jurisdiction, in respect of which the Indian Court may be asked to exercise its power as a Court in aid, is given on the request of the English Court, and in the absence of a letter of request by the English Court to the Indian Court, the jurisdiction of the Indian Court cannot properly be exercised. The presentation of a copy of the order of the English Court by the Trustee in Bankruptcy or some other person is not sufficient to give jurisdiction to the Indian Court. In re L. KING & CO., BANKRUPTS, 38 C. 542=12 Ind. Cas. 542.

(9-a)—S. 126 —See NO. 2-A, supra.

(10)—S. 127 (2)—Effect—See ST. 11 AND 12, VIC., C. 21, 5 S.L.R. 4.

Presidency Towns, Police, Amending Act.

See ACT XLVIII OF 1860.

Presidency Towns, Small Cause Courts Act, 1850.

See PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT, 1850.

Presidency Towns, Small Cause Courts Act, 1864.

See PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT, 1864.

President of Taluk Board.

Suit against — Held wrongly framed — Special limitation under s. 156 of Mad. Act V of 1884—See MAD. ACT V OF 1884, ss. 27, 156, 16 M. 296.

Press and Registration of Books Act.

See ACT XXV OF 1867.

Presumption.

See BURDEN OF PROOF.

See EVIDENCE.

See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, S. 90.

See HINDU LAW—PRESUMPTION OF DEATH.

(1) — Presumption of joint tenancy.— The tendency of English Courts to presume a tenancy in common rather than a joint tenancy has no application to Indian tenures; where the presumption is generally the reverse. RUN BAHADUR SINGH v. LUCHO KOER, 11 C. 301, P.C.=12 I.A. 23=4 Sar. 602. (On appeal from 6 C. 406.)

Presumption —continued.

(2) — Due performance of official acts. — Regard should be had to the presumption in favour of the due performance of official acts. PROSUNNO COOMAR ROY v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 26 C. 792=3 C.W.N. 695. [F., 13 C.W.N. 235=9 C.L.J. 265; R., 8 C.L J. 470, 11 C.W.N. 928.]

(3)—Judicial officer having power to do certain things—Presumption.— Where a judicial officer has powers to do certain things, it is to be presumed that, when he does these things, he was acting under these powers, though he may not expressly say so. IRSHAD ALI CHOWDHRY v. KANTA PERSHAD HAZAREE, 21 C. 935.

(4)—Lower Court's procedure—Presumption. —The rule is to presume that lower Court has done its duty; neglect of duty cannot be assumed at the mere suggestion of the appellant. RAJAH RASH BIHARI LALL SINGH v. NABAYI PADDAR, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 99=11 W. R. 465.

(5)—Of continuance of existing jurisdiction—Applicable only to superior Courts.—The presumption regarding the continuance of the existing jurisdiction of a Court, in the absence of express words to that effect, is usually applicable only to the jurisdiction of a superior Court. PROSAD DOSS MULLICK v. RUSSICK LALL MULLICK, 7 C. 157=8 C.L.R. 329. [R., 6 C.P.L.R. 105.]

(6)—Inference of death — Rebuttal.—The inference of a man's death, from his absence, may be rebutted at any time. BEJOY CHUNDER BANERJEE v. KALLY PROSONNO MOOKERJEE, 4 C 327.

(7)—Legal presumptions, Value of—Title—Possession.—Where little or no evidence of actual possession or title can be procured, it would be almost impossible to administer justice, without having recourse to legal presumptions. MOBARUCK SHAH v. TOOFANY, 4 C. 206=2 C.L.R. 446.

(8)—Presumption as to possession.—When the evidence of possession is conflicting, the presumption is that possession follows title. BABU KASTURI SINGH v. RAJKUMAR BABU, 8 C.W. N. 876.

(9)—Land, Occupancy of—Tracing possession to common ancestor — Presumption.— When possession of land (of which the occupancy is in suit) is traced a long way back through generations, the presumption is that the last person, whose occupation is proved, got the land from his father, unless it is shown that he got it in some other way, the onus of proving which allegation lies on the person making it. It is the most natural way of getting the occupancy of land, and the presumption is by no means that the last holder, of whom living witnesses can speak, was the first of his line. BALLHU v. CHARAT SING, 18 P.R. 1876. [F., 187 P. R. 1882; Appl., 62 P.R. 1882; D., 90 P.R. 1883, 154 P.R. 1883.]

Presumption—continued.

(10)—Presumption of right of occupancy—Continuous occupation—Act XXVIII of 1868, s. 6—The question in this case was whether the defendant had within the meaning of s. 6, Act XXVIII of 1868, continuously occupied the land from the date of entry of his name in the first settlement record, so as to raise the presumption of his being a tenant with a right of occupancy. Held that the question "what is a continuous occupancy" was one that must depend upon circumstances and that a tenant's temporary absence could not be considered as discontinuing his tenancy, for, given the fact that a cultivator might arrange for the cultivation during his absence, it is clear that he might arrange for the harvest to be taken by the proprietor or effect some arrangement for a brief period which would have the effect of saving his occupancy from a break, although he might not locate a cultivator in his place. KANH SINGH v. WUZEERA, 20 P.R. 1871.

(11)—Right of occupancy—Landlord and tenant—Presumption.—When a tenant gives the right of cultivation to the proprietor he is presumed to lose his rights of occupancy. JHANDA v. KHUDAYAR, 1 P.R. 1871, Rev.

(12)—Right of occupancy—Long possession—Continuous occupancy—Punjab Tenancy Act.—According to the first settlement of 1847, the uncle of the plaintiff was recorded as an hereditary cultivator of the land and he had then been in possession for 15 years. From that time to the date of this suit, those whom the plaintiff represented had been in possession. Held that plaintiff, with this previous long possession in his favour, and subsequent continuous occupancy on the same terms with payment of nothing more than the Government demand, brought himself within the requirements of the Punjab Tenancy Act, and was entitled to hereditary tenancy of the land. LAKH RAM v. SUDDA RAM, 13 P.R. 1872.

(13)—Long continued possession of land—Payment at Revenue rates—Presumption—Tenants recorded at Settlement as non-hereditary cultivators—Entry impugned—Nature of investigation to be made.—The plaintiffs, landlords, claimed possession of the suit lands from the defendants who, they alleged, were tenants at will. This allegation was supported by the entry in the Settlement Record of 1842. Defendants questioned the correctness of the entry in the Settlement Record, denied plaintiffs' right to oust them, and claimed to have held as hereditary tenants for a very long time. It was found that the defendants had been in cultivating possession for over 25 years before the Settlement of 1842 and that since then they had been in continuous possession paying only at revenue rates. Held that in trying the issue raised about the correctness of the Settlement entry, nothing can be argued from the existence of such entry; for such an entry, against long and continuous possession and payment at revenue rates, unless there is good evidence of the defendants having been parties to it, is of very title value. It is wrong to argue from such entry to ascertain the character of the defendants' possession. The process should rather be reversed, and the main point to be considered is possession with its length and character and what is the conclusion to be drawn as to the correctness of the entry. For, possession for a long period after the Settlement and payment of revenue rates supply an element in the case from which a presumption may arise and give effect to a possession anterior to the Settlement, which would indicate error in the record. Held accordingly that the defendants were entitled to a decree. SAWUNT v. AMAR SINGH, 70 P.R. 1869. [R., 21 P.R. 1873.]

(14)—Actual amount received by person in wrongful possession — Amount recoverable by ordinary diligence.—Prima facie, it is fair to infer that a person in possession of land may, by ordinary diligence, get rent for it according to the prevailing rates for such land, and that the true owner wrongfully dispossessed has been a loser by that amount. GRISH CHUNDER LAHIRI v. SHOSHI SHIKHARESWAR ROY, 27 C. 951, P.C.=27 I.A. 110=4 C.W.N. 631=10 M.L.J. 356=2 Bom L.R. 709=7 Sar. 687. [R., 24 A. 376=22 A.W.N. 90, 23 A. 252.]

(15)—Suit to recover money on bond—Refusal of defendant to enter witness-box.—A sued to recover from B Rs. 10,000 on a bond which he alleged B had executed to him when he lent him the money. B denied having received the money or executed the bond, and contended that his alleged signature was a forgery. C, B's brother, also asserted that the endorsement which purported to have been written by him was forged. Held that the evidence adduced by B was most unsatisfactory, while the refusal of B and C to enter the witness-box, to deny that they had acted as alleged by A, weighed strongly against the probability of their story. RUGHOOBUR DUTT CHOWDHRY v. FUTTEH NARAIN CHOWDHRY, 7 M.J. 311.

(16)—Mere necessity raises no presumption of unfair advantage.—The mere fact that a person is in urgent need of money is not, in itself, sufficient to raise the presumption that the persons to whom he applies for the loan will take unfair advantage of his necessity. UMESH CHANDRA KHASNAVIS v. GOLAP LAL MUSTAFI, 31 C. 233=7 C.W.N. 876.

(17)—In case of long standing transaction.—A transaction of long standing must be presumed to have been, in all respects, rightly executed or legally done, in the absence of evidence to the contrary. JAMNABAI v. DHARSEY, 4 Bom. L.R. 893.

(18)—Bond—Co-obligees — Right of each.—When a claim is on a money bond to two or more obligees, the presumption in equity is that the obligees are tenants-in-common and not joint-tenants of the debt and any security held for it. A discharge given by one obligee cannot be set up against another suing for his share of the debt. The presumption can, however, be rebutted. MANZUR ALI v. MAHMED-UN-NISSA, 25 A. 155=A.W.N. 1902, 216. [F., 32 A. 164=7 A.L.J. 99=5 Ind. Cas. 129; R., 1 N.L.R. 24.]

Presumption—continued.

(19)—English and vernacular date given in document—Mistake—Effect.—Where a patwari report as to the date of a person's death gave the English and vernacular dates and the dates did not correspond to each other, held that the vernacular date should be taken as the true one and the English date as a miscalculation. JAGATPAL SINGH v. JAGESHAR BAKSH SINGH, 25 A. 143, P.C.=30 I.A. 27=7 C.W.N. 209=8 Sar. 367.

(20)—Evidence—Proof of Dakhilas.—A ryot who puts in Dakhilas as evidence to support his case is bound to prove them. Their admission as genuine is not to be legally presumed, merely because they are not formally disputed by the landlord. KIRTEEBASH MAGETEE v. RAMDHAN KHORIA, B.L.R. Sup. 658, F.B.=7 W. R. 526.

(21)—Sale—Joint family—Commensality—Presumption—Act VIII of 1859, s. 230.—To establish the presumption of joint property, commensality is not sufficient; the existence of joint funds, out of which the property may have been purchased, must be shown. RADHIKA PRASAD DAY v. MUSSAMUT DHARMA DASI DEBI, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 124=11 W.R. 499. [R., 12 B.L.R. 349.]

(22)—Gift by judgment-debtor of all his property—Presumption of gift being in fraud of creditors and illegal.—Plaintiff held a decree against D, who made a gift of his house to the defendant, thereby giving her all that he was possessed of. Holding that the gift was presumably made in fraud of creditors and consequently illegal, the first Court decreed that the house was liable to attachment under the plaintiff's decree. The Commissioner on appeal confirmed this decision. Held that there was sufficient evidence to show that the necessary effect of the gift to the defendant would be to defeat and delay the judgment-creditor, the plaintiff, and the lower Courts had drawn from this the inference that there was an actual intention to defeat the claims of creditors. Also, as laid down in 35 P.R. 1874, when a voluntary settlement of property reduces the means of the person making it to such an extent as in effect to defeat or delay creditors, the inference of an intention to defraud is justified and the transfer may be set aside as fraudulent and void, even though no attachment had been made at the time of the transfer. MUSSUMMAUT GANGI v. MEHR CHAND, 86 P.R. 1879. [R., 10 P.R. 1882.]

(23)—Property acquired by ancestor in his wife's name—Whether advancement.—Where the ancestor had acquired property in his wife's name, held that there was no presumption that he intended such property to be in the nature of advancement to her. BARKAT-UN-NISSA v. FAZL HAQ, 26 A. 272.

Presumption—continued.

By acquiescence against a female — See ACQUIESCENCE, 4 Bom. L.R. 180=26 B. 577.

See BEN. ACT VII OF 1868, s. 8, 9 C. 271=11 C.L.R. 466.

See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 5, 49, 8 C.W.N. 139.

As to status from uniform payment of rent after record of rights published—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 30, 37, 50, 52 and 115, 12 C.W.N. 904.

In s. 103-B of the Bengal Tenancy Act, applicability of, to a suit instituted before the publication of the Record of Rights—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, s. 103-B., 4 C.L.J. 519.

As to the correctness of entries in a Record of Rights—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 103-a, 111-a, 11 C.W.N. 48.

As to local publication of record as required by s. 103-A of Act V of 1897 (Partition)—Regularity of proceedings of officer conducting partition—See BEN. ACT V OF 1897, ss. 46 and 48, 13 C.W.N. 93=4 Ind. Cas. 316.

Act requiring concurrence of official—Presumption in favour of its due execution—Presumption how rebutted—See BOM. ACT VI OF 1888, s. 31, 11 Bom. L.R. 665=33 B. 443=3 Ind. Cas. 753.

Entry in record-of-rights—Presumption as to correctness of entry—See C.P. ACT XVI OF 1889, s. 72, 10 C.P.L.R. 33.

See PUN. ACT XXVIII OF 1868, s. 6, 17 P.R. 1880, Rev., 10 P.R. 1880, 11 P.R. 1880.

See PUN. ACT IV OF 1872, s. 11, 67 P.R. 1874.

As to correctness of entries in record of rights—Rebuttable presumption—See PUN. ACT XVII OF 1887, s. 44, 13 P.L.R. 1903.

Bye-laws passed by Municipality—Presumption—Validity—See U. P. ACT XV OF 1883, s. 55, 19 A. 493.

Recorded co-sharer — Presumption rebuttable—See U.P. ACT II OF 1901, s. 201, 6 Ind. Cas. 703.

What is a—Effect of "shall presume"—See U. P. ACT II OF 1901, s. 201 (3), 7 A.L.J. 682=32 A. 427=6 Ind. Cas. 609.

See APPELLATE COURT — OBJECTIONS FIRST TAKEN IN APPEAL, 12 W.R. 199=3 B.L.R. 305.

See BENAMI TRANSACTION—GENERAL, 13 W.R. P.C. 1.

Purchase in name of son by Hindu or Muhammadan father—, of benami purchase—Onus of proof to the contrary—See BENAMI TRANSACTION—GENERAL, 6 B. 717.

Of payment of bond—Parties between whom—is raised—See BOND, 12 C. 546.

See BUDDHIST LAW—HUSBAND AND WIFE, 1 L.B.R. 11.

Presumption —continued.

Execution sale—Material irregularity—Inadequacy of price—Presumption—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 90, 7 C. 466=9 C.L.R. 114.

See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 230 (1), 27 M. 315.

No conclusive, that trees belong to owner of soil—See CUSTOM, U.B.R. 1897—1901, Vol. II, 360.

Presumption as to the genuiness of documents thirty years old—See CUSTOMS—PUNJAB—ALIENATION, 110 P.L.R. 1902.

See CUSTOM—PUNJAB—INHERITANCE, 60 P.R. 1895.

Entry in Wajib ul arz—See CUSTOMS—PUNJAB—PRE-EMPTION, 139 P.L.R. 1903=65 P.R. 1903.

Of permanent tenancy—Presumption of transaction—See DEBUTTER PROPERTY, 15 C.L.J. 227=16 C.W.N. 227.

See ENHANCEMENT OF RENT—ENHANCEMENT, EXEMPTION FROM, 1 Agra Rev. 65, 2 Hay 514, Marsh 424.

Evidence—Document—Non-production—See EVIDENCE—GENERAL, 6 C.L.R. 101, P.C.=7 I.A. 8=4 Sar. 112.

Evidence—Proof—Of genuineness of adoption deed—Copy only produced—Document 80 years' old—See EVIDENCE—GENERAL, 13 B.L.R. 495=20 W.R. 446.

Map by officer of Government in private possession of property—Of accuracy—Evidence Act, s. 83—See EVIDENCE—MAPS, 5 C. 287=4 C.L.R. 574.

Later Government survey map—Of accuracy of earlier map—See EVIDENCE—MAPS, 5 C. 822=6 C.L.R. 519.

See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS, 10 M.I.A. 165.

As to document more than thirty years old, discretion of Court as regards—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, ss. 4 and 90, 7 O.C. 290.

Public record—Ancient documents—Presumption as to their genuineness—Production from proper custody—Mortgage—Acknowledgment of liability—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, ss. 35, 74, 80, 90, 59 P.R. 1901.

Of continuance of same state of things—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, ss. 109, 114, U.B.R. 1897—1901, Vol. II, 414.

See EXECUTION OF DECREE—EXECUTION BY AND AGAINST REPRESENTATIVES, A.W.N. 1888, 49.

Malabar—Forest lands—Presumption—See FOREST LANDS, 9 M. 175.

Oral gift in favour of daughter of part of taluka by Talukdar—Oral gift of land before Transfer of Property Act—As to nature of estate taken by female under oral gift—Act I of 1869, ss. 13, cl. (1) and 22—Hindu Law—See GIFT, 5 O.C. 345.

Presumption—continued.

Scope of power to appoint acting Judges of High Court—in favour of validity of appointment—See HIGH COURT JUDGES, 16 A. 136, F.B.=A.W.N. 1894, 39.

See HINDU LAW—ADOPTION, 3 B.L.R. 27, P.C.=12 W.R.P.C. 29=13 M.I.A. 85.

Infrequency of litigation, whether gives rise to presumption of non-existence of custom—See HINDU LAW—CUSTOM, 17 A. 294, F.B=A.W.N. 1895, 167.

Hindu law—Husband and wife—Presumption—See HINDU LAW—HUSBAND AND WIFE, 2 C.W.N. 367.

See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 29 C. 433, P.C.=29 I.A. 82=6 C.W.N. 490.

Precept that Byragi can acquire no property—Counsel of perfection—Presumption as to ownership of property held and money paid by head of a mutt—See HINDU LAW—INTERPRETATION, 26 M. 79=12 M.L.J. 439.

See HINDU LAW—JOINT FAMILY, 11 C. 177, P.C.=12 I.A. 112, 9 W.R. 558, 3 B.L.R. P.C. 13=12 W.R.P.C. 21=13 M.I.A. 523, 11 M.I.A. 369, 1 Agra 220, 8 B. 154, 27 M. 32, A.W.N. 1899, 214, 5 P.L.R. 1900, 140 P.R. 1892, 27 M. 228, 20 A. 182=A.W.N. 1898, 19, 3 C. 315, P.C., 3 C.L.R. 97, 3 C.W.N. 134.

As to age—See HINDU LAW—MARRIAGE, 1 C. 289, P.C.=3 I.A. 72=25 W.R. 235.

Proof of celebration of marriage—Presumption of validity and performance of ceremonies—See HINDU LAW—MARRIAGE, 12 C. 140.

Legitimacy, nature of—in case of opportunity for sexual intercourse—See HINDU LAW—MARRIAGE, 1 M.H.C. 478.

Of marriage from co-habitation—See HINDU LAW—MARRIAGE, A.W.N. 1906, 204=3 A.L.J. 807.

As to joint character of family property—Circumstances rebutting ordinary presumption—See HINDU LAW—PARTITION, 2 C.P.L.R. 87.

Grant in favour of temple—Presumption of—Annuity granted to defray temple expenses, a charge upon village out of profits of which it was to be realized—See HINDU LAW—RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENT, 4 O.C. 61.

Hindu widow—Acquisitions from property inherited from husband, her power of disposition—Presumption—See HINDU LAW—WIDOW, 25 M. 351=12 M.L.J. 5.

Impartible property—Vatan property attached to office of desai—Presumption—Evidence of family or local custom—Onus of proof—See IMPARTIBLE ESTATE, 7 C.L.R. 1, P.C.=4 B. 494=7 I.A. 162=4 Sar. 154.

Of valid appointment—See KARNAM, 10 M. 292.

See LANDLORD AND TENANT—GENERAL, 28 C. 738=5 C.W.N. 858.

Presumption—continued.

Grant of land—as to nature of tenure—Erection of buildings—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—ALTERATION OF CONDITIONS OF TENANCY, 8 C. 960.

Mere long possession of homested land insufficient to justify presumption of permanent grant — See LANDLORD AND TENANT — NATURE OF TENANCY, 25 C. 896.

See LANDLORD AND TENANT—NATURE OF TENANCY, 11 C.L.R. 281.

Of law regarding person in whom property in timber on tenant's holding vests—Right of tenant to cut and remove such timber—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—PROPERTY IN TREES, ETC., ON LEASED PREMISES, 5 A.L.J. 99=3 M.L.T. 194=A.W.N. 1908, 51=30 A. 134.

See LANDLORD AND TENANT—RELATIONSHIP OF LANDLORD AND TENANT, 16 C. 223 =16 I.A. 6, P.C., 22 C. 533, P.C.=22 I.A. 60.

Tenants under inamdars, whether presumed to be tenants with occupancy rights—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—MISCELLANEOUS, 30 M. 502=2 M.L.T. 470.

Solicitor—Falsehood in deed—Presumption of fraud—Onus—See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS —ATTORNEY, 1 B.L.R. P.C., 55=10 W.R. 43, P.C.

Compromise by counsel or vakil, how far binding on client—See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS —PLEADER—AUTHORITY TO BIND CLIENT, 6 C.W.N. 82.

Mahomedan Law—As to dower being prompt —See MAHOMEDAN LAW—DOWER, 6 M.H. C. 9.

Dower—Prompt or deferred—as to—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—DOWER, A.W.N. 1881, 77.

Whether prompt or deferred—as to dower being prompt — See MAHOMEDAN LAW — DOWER, 23 M. 371, F.B.=10 M.L.J. 123.

See MAHOMEDAN LAW—JOINT FAMILY, 8 C. 826=10 C.L.R. 603.

Lengthened co-habitation — Presumptive evidence of marriage—Marriage—See MAHOMEDAN LAW —MARRIAGE, 21 C. 666, P.C.= 21 I.A. 56.

Mahomedan Law—Addition to joint estate by managing members—in respect of such addition—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—MISCELLANEOUS, 2 M.H.C. 414.

Against heritability of maintenance grant—See MAINTENANCE GRANT, 4 C.L.J. 399.

Marriage properly and duly performed—of alidity—See MARRIAGE, 12 C. 706, F.B.

Suit for mesne profits—Evidence regarding area under cultivation with held by defendants — Presumption See MESNE PROFITS — SUITS FOR MESNE PROFITS AND ASSESSMENT IN EXECUTION, 18 C. 540, P.C.

Presumption—continued.

Mortgage—Payment of first mortgage by third mortgagee in ignorance of second—Registration—Notice—Presumption of intention to keep alive first mortgage—See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 8 M. 246.

See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, 1881, s. 118, 2 P.R. 1902.

Evidence of ownership—arising from possession—See OWNERSHIP, 14 C. 740=14 I.A. 101, P.C.

Law relating to presumptions—Whether enables wrong-doer to turn it to his own account —See POSSESSION—ADVERSE POSSESSION, 8 A.L.J. 247.

Nazal land in Oudh, suit for possession of—Burden of proof—Lord Canning's proclamation of 15th March 1858, effect of—Power-of-attorney signed by Deputy Collector for Deputy Commissioner — as to—See POSSESSION — SUITS FOR POSSESSION, 7 O.C. 65.

See PRE-EMPTION — CONSTRUCTION OF WAJIB-UL-ARZ, 26 A. 549=1 A.L.J. 278.

See PRE-EMPTION — PURCHASE-MONEY, 29 P.R. 1875.

See PRESCRIPTION—EASEMENTS— LIGHT AND AIR, 3 B.L.R.O.C 18.

Right to an artificial watercourse—of title from long continued enjoyment—See PRESCRIPTION — EASEMENTS—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING, 6 C. 394, P.C.=7 C.L.R. 529 =7 I.A. 240.

Right to the use of water in artificial watercourses—See PRESCRIPTION—EASEMENTS—WATER, RIGHT CONCERNING, 4 C. 633, P.C.

Public road—Dedication—of dedication—Length of use by public sufficient to give rise to a—of dedication to public use—See PUBLIC WAY, A.W.N. 1900, 128.

Rent Roll—See BEN. REG. VII OF 1822, s. 9, A.W.N. 1886, 26.

See RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS, 76 P.R. 1867.

See RENT, U.B.R. 1897—1901, Vol. II, 535.

See RES JUDICATA—MISCELLANEOUS, 6 C.W.N. 589.

As to possession of waste land—See RES JUDICATA—MISCELLANEOUS, 9 O.C. 32.

See REVIEW—GROUNDS FOR REVIEW, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 568.

See REVIEW—REVIEWS AFTER TIME, 101 P.R. 1876.

Long occupation—See RIGHT OF OCCUPANCY—ACQUISITION OF RIGHT, 154 P.R. 1883.

Possession for two generations—Onus—See RIGHT OF OCCUPANCY—ACQUISITION OF RIGHT, 187 P.R. 1882.

Evidence Act, s. 114—Failure to produce title-deed—See RIGHT OF WAY, 15 A. 270=A.W.N. 1893, 151.

Presumption—concluded.

See RIGHT OF WAY, 5 B.L R. App. 84=14 W.R. 124.

Execution sale—Material irregularity in proclamation of sale—Substantial injury—Presumption—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—MISCELLANEOUS, 7 C. 730=9 C.L.R. 341.

See SERVICE TENURE, 7 C. 697=9 C.L.R. 233.

Legacy to person appointed executor—Rebuttal of—Parol evidence—See SUCCESSION ACT, 1865, s. 128, 15 C. 83.

Joint Hindu family—Family debt, suit for—Certificate if necessary—Hindu Law—Evidence—Presumption as to nature of debt—See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT, 1889, s. 4, 19 B. 338.

Possession of—from evidence of title—Waste lands—See TITLE, 5 C.L.R. 481.

Presumption as to fraud—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 53, 22 C. 185.

See TREES, 16 B. 547.

Legal adviser and client—Contract with persons in fiduciary relation—Mooktear—Presumption—Onus probandi—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—INVALID SALES, 1 B.L.R.A.C. 95=10 W.R. 128.

See WILL—GENERAL, 31 C. 885=8 C.W.N. 821.

Mental capacity of testator in dispute—Execution of will, proof of—Rules for deciding such cases—See WILL—EXECUTION, 21 C. 279.

Blank spaces—Alterations and erasures—Presumption—See WILL—MISCELLANEOUS, 16 B. 652.

Presumptive Heirs.

Right of—See HINDU LAW—WIDOW, 6 C.W.N. 169=29 I.A. 1=24 A. 94, P.C.=4 Bom. L.R. 233.

Prevailing Rate.

See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, s. 30 (a), 21 C. 986.

Prevarication.

(1)—Penal Code, Act XLV of 1860, s. 228—Prevarication in giving evidence.—Prevarication in giving evidence is not an offence under s. 228 of the Penal Code. REG. v. AUBA bin BHIRAV, 4 B.H.C. Cr. 6. [R., Rat. Un. Cr. Cas. 69, Rat. Un. Cr. Cas. 473.]

Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act.

See ACT XI OF 1890.

Price.

Irregularity — Inadequacy of price—Inference—See BEN. ACT XI OF 1859, ss. 6, 33, 6 C.W.N. 526.

Price—concluded.

Inadequacy of—Substantial injury—Inadequacy of price, result of irregularity—Proof—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, rr. 66, 70, 90, 6 C.W.N. 836.

Inadequacy of—Material irregularity—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, rr. 83, 90, 92, 8 B. 424.

Execution sale — Material irregularity—Inadequacy of price—Presumption—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 90, 7 C. 466=9 C.L.R. 114.

Relation between proved material irregularity and inadequacy of—How established—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 90, 20 C. 599.

Inadequacy of price and irregularity in proceedings, connection between — See SALE—GENERAL, 11 C. 200.

Inadequacy of—fetched at sale being result of irregularity, complained of, established how—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—GENERAL, 30 C. 1=6 C.W.N. 688.

See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—SETTING ASIDE SALE, 20 M. 159.

Priest.

Exclusive right to officiate as—Agreement between members of family as to division of earning as priest, how far enforceable—See DECLARATORY DECREE, SUIT FOR—ENDOWMENTS, 13 C.L.J. 449.

Religious endowment—Priest—Succession—See HINDU LAW—RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENT, A.W.N. 1881, 52.

Suit for damages by—for withholding religious observances due to his sacred rank—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 1 M.H.C. 301.

See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 3 B. 9.

Prime-movers, Bengal Steam-boilers.

See BEN. ACT III OF 1879.

Primogeniture.

See HINDU LAW—IMPARTIBLE ESTATES.

(1)—Restriction on alienation—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 462—Leave of Court, if to be express—Presumption — Compromise decree when to be set aside.—Where there is a custom of primogeniture, there is no restriction on alienation by the incumbent for the time being, unless a special custom is proved to the contrary (22 M. 383=26 I.A. 83, F.) In order that a compromise may be binding upon a minor, the leave of the Court must be express, and further it must be arrived at upon the exercise of judicial discretion as to the propriety of the compromise in the interests of the minor. (16 W.R. 232, 9 C. 810, 7 C.W.N. 90, 8 C.L.J. 266, F.; 26 B. 109, 17 A. 531, 29 M. 104, R.) Where a decree was passed without any judicial inquiry, or finding as to whether the compromise was for the benefit of the minor, although a formal order of sanction to file the compromise petition was given to an Official of the Court who acted as the minor's guardian ad litem: Held, that the decree was inoperative. When the Court permits a compromise, it must be presumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary that it gave due consideration to the matter. (8 C.L.J. 31, R.) Although in appeal, a decree made upon a compromise in a suit in which a minor was a party, would be held to be invalid as against a minor, it could not, after it had become final and been acted upon, be set aside, unless it were shown to be prejudicial to the minor. KRISHNA PERSHAD ROY v. ROMESH CHUNDER MANDOL, 8 C.L.J. 274=13 C.W.N. 163 =4 Ind. Cas. 467. (20 A. 98, F.)

Primogeniture—continued.

See U.P. ACT I OF 1869, 10 C. 511=11 I.A. 51, P.C.

Succession to Talukdari estate granted under —Succession to the estate after death of last transferee—Mahomedan Law, applicability of —See U.P. ACT I OF 1869, ss. 8, 11, 14, 15, and 22, cl. (b), 8 O.C. 45.

Meaning of the term—See U.P. ACT I OF 1869, s. 8. lists I and V, and s. 22 (11), 14 C. W.N. 1010, P.C.=12 C.L.J. 303=8 M.L.T. 273=7 Ind. Cas. 734=7 A.L.J. 1122=12 Bom. L.R. 1015=13 O.C. 316=20 M L J. 917=32 A. 599.

See U. P. ACT I OF 1869, s. 22, sub-ss. 4 and 7, 21 C. 997, P.C.=21 I.A. 163.

See U.P. ACT I OF 1869, s. 22, sub-s. 11, 20 C. 649=20 I.A. 77, P.C.

See U.P. ACT I OF 1869, s. 33, 26 C. 81, P. C.=25 I.A. 161=2 C.W.N. 737.

Grant by sanad in 1802 of Zamindari without change of rule of succession by primogeniture—Madras Regulation XXV of 1802—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 13 M. 406, P.C. =17 I.A. 134.

Inheritance by—Onus of proof as to—See BURDEN OF PROOF—HINDU LAW, 15 A. 147 =A.W.N. 1893, 85.

Custom of primogeniture set up, onus of proof of—Admissibility in evidence of statements of deceased persons—Opinion evidence—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, ss. 32, 49, 60, 23 A. 37, P.C. =27 I.A. 238=5 C.W.N. 33.

Rajputs of Agra, family custom of—Evidence establishing impartibility—See HINDU LAW—CUSTOM, 19 A. 1, P. C.=23 I.A. 147.

Deshpande vatan, partition of— Custom of primogeniture—See HINDU LAW—CUSTOM, 10 B. 327.

Suit for partition of vatan property—Family custom of primogeniture set up — Deshmukhi vatan, impartible nature of — Patelki vatan, partibility of—See HINDU LAW—CUSTOM, 10 B. 598.

Primogeniture—concluded.

See HINDU LAW—DEBTS, 6 C.W.N. 879.

Rule of—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 32 C. 6.

Succession—Lineal — Custom — Evidence—Office of Chowdhuri—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE 6 A.L.J. 364, P.C.=13 C. W. N. 581=9 C. L. J. 497=11 Bom. L. R. 530=36 C. 590=19 M.L.J. 239=6 M.L.T. 84=1 Ind. Cas 754.

Impartible estate—Succession to—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 4 M. 250.

Hindu Law—Succession to impartible Zemindari or Raj—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 5 A. 542=A.W.N. 1883, 121.

Sons of different mother—Succession—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 2 M. 286=8 I.A. 1=8 C.L.R. 315, P. C.=4 Sar. 203.

See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 6 B. L. R. 232, P.C.=15 W.R. P.C. 10=13 M.I.A. 542, 5 B.H.C.A.C. 161, 6 M. H. C. 93.

Management of family charities—Succession—Natural heirs—Rule of—See HINDU LAW—PARTITION, 6 M.L.T. 319=20 M.L.J. 108= 4 Ind. Cas. 76.

Custom of—See HINDU LAW—RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENT, 12 B. 331.

See MAHOMEDAN LAW—CUSTOM, 3 A. 723 =A.W.N. 1884, 43.

Mahomedan Law—Succession to religious office—Rule of primogeniture—Custom—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—WAKF, 13 B. 555.

See NAWAB OF TANK, 30 C. 843, P.C.=67 P. R. 1903=112 P.L.R. 1903.

See SALSETTE, 19 B. 680.

Prince.

Suit in British India by independent—Agent for instituting suit—See CIV.PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 85, 10 C. 136.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 85, O. III, r. 2, 19 A. 510=A.W.N. 1897, 135.

Suit by or against a prince — Recognised agent—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. VI, rr. 14 and 15 (1), s. 85, 54 P.L.R. 1902=41 P.R. 1902.

Principal and Agent.

1.—GENERAL.
2.—AUTHORITY OF AGENT.
3.—COMMISSION AGENTS.
4.—DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF AGENTS.
5.—DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF PRINCIPALS.
6.—RATIFICATION OF AGENT'S ACT.
7.—REVOCATION OF AGENT'S AUTHORITY.
8.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——1.—General.

(1)—Advocates not necessarily agents of clients in mercantile transactions.—Advocates who act as solicitors are not thereby, without special appointment, constituted the agents of their clients for carrying out mercantile transactions. COOVERJEE LADHA v. VISHRAM EBRAHIM AND CO., 1 L.B.R. 346.

(2)—Manager of joint family—Agent—Trustee and cestui que trust.—The manager of a joint family property is not the agent of the members of the family, so as to make them liable to be sued as if they were the principals. The relation of such persons is not that of principal and agent, or of partners; it is much more like that of trustee and cestui que trust. ANNAMALAI CHETTY v. MURUGESA CHETTY, 26 M. 544, P.C.=7 C.W.N. 754=30 I.A. 220. [Expl., 5 M.L.T. 145=19 M.L.J. 70=32 M. 271; R., 24 P.R. 1904, 29 A. 37=3 A.L.J. 785 =A.W.N. 1906, 261, 30 A. 422=5 A.L J. 375 =A.W.N. 1908, 175=4 M.L.T. 49, 13 C.W.N. 815.]

(3)—Agency—Evidence to prove authority to execute and register a document—No mention of the name of the principal in the document—Estoppel—Entry of husband's name as joint occupier, effect of—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), O. I, r. 9—Misjoinder of parties.—A conveyance, it was alleged, was executed by the husband and the son of a woman as her agents, but the woman's name was nowhere mentioned in the conveyance, and the husband and the son did not sign as agents for any one. Held, that the husband and the son were not the agents of the women and that she was not bound by the conveyance. The entry of a person's name in the Revenue Maps as joint occupier with X would not estop X from claiming the lands as her sole property. Such an entry merely shows that the other man was in joint possession with X, and a transferee before taking the conveyance is bound to inquire as to the title of each. A suit cannot be defeated by misjoinder of parties. MG YE v. MY AUNG THA, 12 Ind. Cas. 206.

(4)—Family Karar—Agency—Words conferring power to contract debts not sufficient to constitute agency.—Where, under the terms of a family Karar S, one of the brothers, was empowered to contract debts for specific purposes and the other brothers agreed to be bound by the same; held that words conferring such power were not sufficient to create S an agent of the other brothers. In re SRINIVASA AIYANGAR, 1912 M.W.N. 495=14 Ind. Cas. 681.

(5)—Principal and agent—Limited authority of latter known third party—"Holding out," principle of, if applies—Estoppel—Negligent or improper act of principal apparently investing the agent with extended authority, not proved—Misdirection.—A person, who deals with an agent whose authority he knows to be limited, does so at his peril, in this sense, that, should the agent be found to have exceeded his authority, the principal cannot be made responsible.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

In order that the principle of "holding out" should, in any given case of agency, apply to the act done by the agent, and relied upon to bind the principal, it must be an act of that particular class of acts, which the agent is held out as having a general authority on behalf of his principal to do. But if the agent be held out as having a limited authority to do on behalf of his principal acts of a particular class, then the principal is not bound by an act done outside that authority, even though it be an act of that particular class, because, the authority being thus represented to be so limited, the party prejudiced has notice, and should ascertain whether or not that act is authorised. Where the principal did not by any negligent or improper act allow the agent to be apparently invested with an authority beyond or greater than the limited authority which the customer knew him to possess, there could not be any estoppel as against the principal, in respect of any of the steps in a transaction whereby the customer was deceived by the agent acting beyond his authority. THE RUSSO-CHINESE BANK v. LI YAU SAM, 14 C. W. N. 381. P. C. =5 Ind. Cas. 789.

(6)—Agency — Agent's misrepresentation — Principal's liability.—The principal cannot in any way be affected by the misrepresentation of the agent, when the misrepresentation does not refer to anything within the scope of his agency. RAMASWAMI AIYAR v. KANTHAYYAN, 9 M.L.J. 57.

(7)—Liability of master or principal for acts of servant or agent.—A master or principal is liable for any wrong done by a servant or agent, provided the act is done on his behalf and with the intention of serving his purposes. ISWAR CHUNDER SANTRA v. SATISH CHUNDER GIRI, 30 C. 207=7 C.W.N. 126. [R., 6 Bom. L.R. 131.]

(8)—Negligence of agent—Liability for negligence.—Where the plaintiffs alleged that they purchased goods and directed the defendants to send them to a particular place, and the goods were directed to other places, on account of which they suffered loss and claimed damages from the defendants, who pleaded that the goods were misdirected through the negligence of Railway officials, held that the ownership of the goods vested in the plaintiffs from the date of purchase, and the defendants became their agents from that date. Held further that the defendants, in contracting with the Railway, contracted as agents of the plaintiffs, irrespective of the fact whether they did or did not disclose the names of their principals and that they could only be held to be liable to pay damages if negligence was brought home to them. KISHAN DAYAL v. HAR PRASAD, 7 A. L.J. 732=7 Ind. Cas. 287.

(9)—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 198, 211 and 216—Secret profits by the agent—Ratification— Res judicata—Two appeals from one decree—

Principal and Agent—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

Decrees in appeal drawn up in identical terms—Appeal from one decree only.—The defendant had entered into a contract for sale of merchandise with the plaintiff on his behalf. The defendant supplied his own goods in fulfilment of these contracts, but, when subsequently the goods consigned by the plaintiff arrived, he sold the same to another merchant at a higher rate than the contract rate. The plaintiff claimed the difference as profits and asked for a settlement of accounts. The Court of first instance found a certain amount to be due to the plaintiff and decreed the claim in part. Both parties appealed to the District Judge, who dismissed the plaintiff's appeal and allowed that of the defendants. But the decrees that were drawn up in these appeals were exactly similar. The plaintiff appealed from the decree passed in his appeal. A preliminary objection was taken that the decree in the defendant's appeal having become final, the plaintiff's appeal ought not to be heard. Held, that there was in fact but one decree settling the accounts between the parties, and the decree in the case in which no appeal was preferred did not operate as res judicata and preclude the hearing of the other appeal. Held, further, that the defendants, being the plaintiff's agents, could not be permitted to make any profits out of the plaintiff's goods, and were liable to account to plaintiff for the sale of his goods at a higher rate. It is a well recognised principle of law that an agent is not entitled to make a secret profit by dealing in the business of the agency on his own account. Duty of agent discussed. So long as the relation of principal and agent subsists, the principal is entitled to the exercise of the disinterested skill, diligence and zeal of the agent for his exclusive benefit. There can be no ratification, until the person ratifying comes to know all the material facts. Where the principal did not know, until after the institution of the suit, that the agents had sold to him their goods at a price which was in excess of the market price, he could repudiate the transaction after the institution of the suit. DAMODAR DAS v. SHEORAM DAS, 4 A.L.J. 587 = A.W.N. 1907, 245 = 29 A. 730. (33 C., 1101, 29 M. 333, R.) [Diss., A.W.N, 1908, 211 = 4 M. L.T. 172.]

(10)—Common agent—Same person, agent of mortgagor and mortgagee.—Where a person, who acts as agent both of the mortgagor and the mortgagee in a transaction, acts fraudulently towards the latter by not disclosing to him the flaw in the title, the latter is entitled to say that the agent's knowledge should not be imputed to him and used to his prejudice. SOOLEMAN v. RAHIMTULA, 6 Bom. L.R. 800, on appeal, 7 Bom. L.R. 407, C.A., and 10 Bom. L.R. 1065, P.C.

(11)—Public agent—Government—Express or implied authority to bind Government—Ratification—Authorised agent.—An agent contracting on behalf of Government is not personally bound by such a contract but it must be shown

Principal and Agent—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

he was acting within the scope of his agency. A Government officer as such has no express or implied authority to pledge the credit of Government for all matters necessary to the performance of the duties imposed on him by Government. Ratification of the acts of a Government officer done beyond the scope of his authority cannot be made by an unauthorized agent; it can only be made by Government itself or with its full knowledge. SECRETARY OF STATE v. SULEMANJI, 4 Bom. L.R. 706 = 26 B. 801.

(12)—Minor agent — Estoppel. — Where a person knowingly enters into a contract with minors whereby the latter are appointed his agents, and contract of agency subsists for a time, it is not open to the former subsequently to say that the contract of agency, having been made by the minors, is void. MADAN GOPAL v. HINDU BUISCUIT CO. LD., 4 Bom. L.R. 627.

(13)—Indentor—Manufacturer sending goods through an agent—Relation between agent and indentor.—Although the transaction between a commission merchant in Europe and an indentor in Bombay may be a contract of sale passing the property from one to the other, there may be superadded the duty of an agent to his principal, e.g., to buy the goods at the lowest price possible. BEIER v. CHHOTALAL, 5 Bom. L.R. 519, on appeal, 6 Bom. L.R. 948.

(14)—Principal and agent—Payment to unauthorised agent.—Payment to an agent, who, to the knowledge of the debtor, had no authority to receive the payment, does not discharge the debtor. MACKENZIE LYALL v. SHIB CHUNDER SEAL, 12 B.L.R. 360.

(15) — Agent appointed by administrator—Liability of agent to person entitled to estate.—Where an agent is appointed by the administrator of an estate, in his capacity as such an administrator neither the agent, nor his representative, is liable to be proceeded against, on the contract of agency, by the person entitled to the estate notwithstanding that the administrator obtained letters of administration as attorney of the mother and guardian of the person entitled. CHIDAMBARAM CHETTI v. PICHAPPA CHETTY, 30 M. 243 = 2 M.L.T. 326.

(16)—Gambling debt of principal paid by agent—Right of agent to recover sums actually paid—Hundi drawn by principal—Consideration—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 23—Public policy.—Held, that an agent is entitled to recover from his principal sums actually paid by the agent in settling a gambling debt incurred by the principal, whether the payment is by way of adjustment of accounts or in cash. A Hundi executed by a principal in favour of his agent for such payments is for consideration. GHASI RAM v. JAI LAL, 60 P.W.R. 1912 = 79 P.L.R. 1912 = 13 Ind. Cas. 319. (79 P.R. 1908 = 130 P.W.R. 1908, F.B., F.)

(17)—Principal and Agent—Debt, satisfaction of.—A, B and C jointly and severally owed a debt to the respondents. A died and the respondents agreed to take a boat of his in full satisfaction of the debt due to them. C was asked by the respondents to bring the boat and hand it over to them. C brought the boat but did not hand it over as arranged. The respondents sued to recover the debt. It was contended that C became the agent of the respondents and delivery of the boat to him amounted to delivery to the respondents :—Held, that C, being one of the three principals who owed the debt, could not be considered as an agent for the respondents. It would have been a different matter if C, had been a stranger. SHWE AUNG v. ARUNACHELAM CHETTY, 11 Ind. Cas. 864.

Principal and Agent—continued.

—1.—General—continued.

(18)—Contract—Agreement to procure loan—Principal and agent—Loan stipulated for not obtained in full, but loan obtained accepted by principal—Remuneration of agent.—The defendant applied to the plaintiff to negotiate a loan for him, and a memorandum of the terms on which the loan was to be raised was made by him to the following effect :—" Rs. 3,50,000 are required for paying off certain creditors. Interest will be 8 annas per cent. per mensem. Interest will be paid annually, and not less than Rs. 10 towards the payment of principal. Commission will be paid at 2 per cent. Estate free from any charge and yielding a profit equal in amount to the annual interest, and a quarter thereof will be hypothecated in the deed, which will be a hypothecation bond. The value of the stamp and the costs of registration will be paid by the debtor." The plaintiff failed to procure the loan which the plaintiff wanted, but did procure a loan of Rs. 3,00,000 bearing interest at 9 per cent. The defendant accepted this loan and subsequently promised to pay the plaintiffs commission at the rate mentioned in the memorandum ; but he did not do so. On suit by the plaintiff to recover commission at 2 per cent. it was held that the memorandum above set forth did not constitute a contract between the parties, but was no more than a note of the terms upon which the defendant would be glad to raise the loan, and that, as the defendant had accepted the loan negotiated by the plaintiff and subsequently promised to pay the commission due, the plaintiff was entitled to recover his commission at the rate mentioned in the memorandum. SETH SHAPURJI v. SHEORAJ SINGH, A.W.N. 1900, 43.

(19)—Suit for accounts by principal—No set off pleaded by agent—Involves an undertaking to pay whatever is found due to agent—No claim for set off necessary—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 215-A, 216—Decree in account cases.—A suit for accounts by a principal against an agent, where the agency is not denied, necessarily involves an undertaking by the plaintiff to pay to the defendant any sum that may be found due to the defendant by him on the taking of accounts, and it is unnecessary that the defendant should plead a set-off or counterclaim. Hence, where a suit was brought against an agent for rendition of accounts, and the agent expressed himself as ready and willing to render the accounts, but alleged that, on such accounts being taken, money would be found to be due to him without specifically praying for a decree, and the Court granted a decree to the agent upon the finding that money was really due to him, held, that the decree was justified with reference to the provisions of ss. 215-A and 216 of the Code of Civil Procedure (1882). PARMANAND v. JAGAT NARAIN, 7 A.L.J. 543=6 Ind. Cas. 162=32 A. 525.

Principal and Agent—continued.

—1.—General—continued.

(20)—Principal and Agent—Suit for accounts—Suit for surcharging and falsifying accounts—Reliefs in two classes of suit—Fraud—Errors—Inconsistent pleas—Amendment of plaint—Account stated, whether balancing of an account is—Money in agent's hands for specific purpose—Burden of proof.—A suit by a principal for accounts on the allegation that the defendant, his agent, has not rendered any account, has manifestly an entirely different scope from that of a suit in which a principal alleges that the defendant, his agent, has rendered accounts, but prays to have them re-opened or to have liberty to surcharge and falsify them on the ground of fraud or material error. In the first class of cases, if it is established that the defendant is the agent of the plaintiff and has not rendered accounts, a preliminary decree must follow as a matter of course. In the second class of cases, if the plaintiff seeks to re-open settled accounts on the ground of fraud, such fraud must be specifically alleged in the plaint and proved in the evidence. If, on the other hand, he seeks merely to surcharge or falsify the accounts, the particular grounds upon which he seeks such relief, must be specifically stated, and some substantial errors pointed out so as to enable the defendant to controvert the charges and allow the Court to judge whether the plaintiff ought to be allowed to surcharge and falsify. A plaintiff may be allowed to amend the plaint and put forward two inconsistent cases, namely, first, that the defendant had never rendered accounts, and, therefore, should be called upon to render them, and secondly, that the defendant had rendered accounts but that they ought to be re-opened on the ground of fraud or the plaintiff should be given liberty to surcharge and falsify them because vitiated by overcharges and material errors. If there are errors in the account, of sufficient number and sufficient magnitude, it is not necessary that the errors shown should amount to fraud ; if they are sufficient in number and importance, whether they were caused by mistake or caused by fraud, the Court has a right to open the accounts. Although the mere balancing of an account in a book of accounts does not, of itself, constitute an account stated, yet where the defendant and his superior officer met month by month and went over the accounts, the balance was struck and accepted as correct, it cannot be disputed that the defendant has rendered accounts. Where an agent has been entrusted with the money of his principal to be expended for a specific purpose, he may be required to account on equitable grounds, and upon such accountings, the burden is upon him to show that his trust duties have been performed and also the manner of their performance. PRASANNA KUMAR MOOKERJEE v. BURN & CO. LTD., 7 Ind. Cas. 270.

Principal and Agent—continued.

—1.—General—continued.

(21)—Suit for money due after prior suit for account—Res judicata.—In the mofussil, a second suit by a principal against his agent, for the recovery of the sum found due in a prior suit for account alone, is not barred as res judicata by the first suit. GOBIND MOHUN CHUKERBUTTY v. SHERIFF, 7 C. 169=8 C.L.R. 357.

(22)—Suit for an account by an agent against his principal—Contract Act, 1872, s. 213.—An agent cannot sue his principal for adjustment of accounts and the mere fact that the principal keeps the account does not give the agent of necessity any right to claim "an account" from him. JOWAHAR SINGH v. HARIA MAL, 6 P.L.R. 1900=60 P.R. 1899.

(23)—Principal and agent—Accounts—Wages—Set-off.—A claim to wages cannot properly be preferred by an agent or treated by a Court as a set-off to his principal's suit for an account; but such a claim would find its appropriate place on the debit side of the account to be furnished by the agent, and would receive the attention of the Court when the account should come to be considered. AJUDHIA BAKSH SINGH v. SHEOMANGAL SINGH, A.W.N. 1883, 218.

(24)—Suit for account.—Prayer in plaint, and the subsequent procedure, step by step, till the drawing up of the final decree, pointed out and explained. DEGAMBUR MOZUMDAR v. KALLYNATH ROY, 7 C. 654=9 C.L.R. 265. [R., 15 C.P.L.R 61.]

(25)—Suit for account—Burden of proof—Facts to be proved by plaintiff.—In a suit for an account against an Agent, it is not incumbent on the principal, first to satisfy the Court that there is, or ought to be, some surplus in the hands of his agent. It is sufficient if it is shown that the defendant was an agent bound to account. RAMDAS v. BHAGWAT DAS, A.W.N. 1905, 1. (A.W.N. 1883, 218, R.)

(26)—Payment to Agent—Mode of proving items in account - Burden of proof.—Held, that payment to agent is payment to principal, and the Court cannot direct that the debtor should recover from the agent the amount paid to him. In an account case the plaintiff is bound to prove each item, and the best mode of doing so is that the defendant should be asked what items in the account he disputes and plaintiff should be called on to prove them. TULSI RAM v. KARM CHAND, 25 P.W.R. 1912=36 P.L.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 955.

Principal and Agent—continued.

—1.—General—continued.

(27)—Debt by co-sharer under power-of-attorney from other co-sharers—Promissory-note executed by agent only—Loan for paying Government revenue of joint estate—Letter given by agent—Liability of principals—Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), ss. 4 and 28. —The defendant No. 4 was an agent of his co-sharers, the other defendants, under a power-of-attorney, under which he had authority to borrow money generally for the management of their estate. He borrowed money from the plaintiff by executing a hand-note. The money was payable to the plaintiff. As part of the same transaction he gave a letter to the plaintiff to this effect: "I have this day borrowed from you Rs. 5,000 by executing a hand-note for paying the Government revenue of estate belonging to S and others. I deposit with you the agentnamah showing that I am the agent of the said persons." The plaintiff sued all the defendants for the money: Held, that, by taking the hand-note from defendant No. 4, the plaintiff cannot be held to have elected to treat him as his sole debtor, and that all the defendants were liable for the money: S. 28 of the Negotiable Instruments Act does not arise for consideration when the promissory-note is not negotiable. SATTYA PRIYA GHOSHAL v. GOBINDA MOHUN ROY CHOWDHRY, 5 Ind. Cas. 110=14 C.W.N. 414=11 C.L.J. 236.

(28)—Contract—Principal and agent—Suit by broker to recover brokerage.—A suit by a broker for brokerage at the rate agreed upon, will lie when he has performed his part of the contract. When a person contracts with a broker for a loan to be secured on the first mortgage of certain properties, and promises a commission to him, the broker is entitled to his remuneration, on his finding a lender willing to lend the amount, though the transaction falls through, because of the inability of the borrower to satisfy the lender's attorney on the question of title. (Green v. Lucas (1875), 33 L.T. 584, F.; Prickett v. Badger, (1856), 1 C.B.N.S. 296, 3 C.W.N. clxxvii, R.) Here, regard being had to the terms of the agreement between the broker and his principal, the broker is not bound to prove some real defect in the title, for recovering the remuneration claimed. ELIAS v. GOVIND CHUNDER KHATICK, 30 C. 202=7 C.W.N. 297.

(29)—Factors' Act, 5 and 6 Vict. C. 39—Act XX of 1841—Mala fide pledge of securities by agents—Appeal — Abatement.—The Factors' Act, 5 and 6 Vict. C. 39, is extended to India, by the Act of the Indian legislature, XX of 1844. A banian, or agent, was entrusted by his principals with a bill of lading for a particular purpose, and he pledged the same, mala fide, without the consent of his principals to a native Banker, for advances made to himself; held that in order to invalidate a pledge made under the third section of the Act, 5th and 6th Vict. c. 39, it is necessary that the Court, or jury should find that the lender had notice of the agent's mala fides, or want of authority to pledge the goods To establish such notice, it is sufficient to show that the circumstances attending the transaction were such that a reasonable man of business applying his understanding to them, would certainly know that the agent had no authority to make the pledge even if the agent was not also acting mala fide towards his principals. An appeal abated by the death of the respondent. Administration with the Will annexed was granted to the Administrator-General of Bengal. On the application of the appellant, the appeal was revived against the Administrator-General as the personal representative of the respondent. GOBIND CHUNDER SEIN v. THE ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL OF BENGAL, 1 W R.P.C. 43=9 M. I.A. 140=1 Ind. Jur. O.S. 17. [R., 10 C.L.J. 331.]

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

(30)—Construction — Document embodying terms of compromise—English word 'mistake' used in Tamil document—Principal exonerating agent from all 'mistakes'—What the term includes—Fraud.—After the termination of the agency, the plaintiffs charged their agent with misappropriation and false entries in the accounts. In complete settlement of all the differences between the plaintiffs and their agent, a compromise was arrived at and a Tamil document embodying the terms of the compromise was executed, in which the English word "mistake" was used, and a term exonerating the agent from all his "mistakes" was inserted. Held, that the term "mistake" according to its common use in such a document was wide enough to cover all kinds of default and error including fraud. M.S.M.S. MYAPPA CHETTY v. PERIANAN CHETTY, 8 M.L.T. 236.

(31)—Fraud of agent— Agent fraudulently withholding information from the principal—Principal cannot be fixed with the knowledge—Company—Internal defects such as want of resolution or non-existence of a competent board of directors, not to affect innocent third party without notice—Agreement to borrow money on a charge on property—Agreement creates valid charge.—The plaintiff advanced to the defendant Company six lacs of rupees on a mortgage of the Mills belonging to the Company, on the 15th April 1905. Under the terms of the deed of mortgage, the plaintiff appointed his Munim, J. to be a director of the defendant Company, which office J filled till the 12th July 1909 on which date he sent in his resignation. During his directorate it came to J's knowledge that the Company had on 11th July 1907 borrowed three lacs of rupees from a Bank for one year on condition not to further mortgage or charge the property of the Mill during the currency of the loan. The loan was renewed twice, but at neither time was this condition renewed. On the 5th August 1909, the Company's principal agent and director D obtained from the plaintiff a loan of two lacs of rupees and passed a receipt bearing one anna stamp which recited that the sum was a part-payment of the sum of five lacs of rupees which the plaintiff had intended as a further charge on the Mills; that if the plaintiff advanced the said amount, the Company would execute a proper legal conveyance; and that if he did not, the sum would be returned to him with interest. This transaction was not sanctioned by the board of directors; and as a matter of fact there was no competent board in existence then to authorize it. Before making the loan, the plaintiff had consulted J as to its advisability, but J had withheld the knowledge he had about the Company's borrowings from the Bank and had advised him that there was no objection to his making the loan. The receipt was subsequently stamped as a conveyance and duly registered. The affairs of the defendant Company having gone into liquidation, the plaintiff sued to have a charge declared on the Mill as to his loan of two lacs of rupees; and to have it declared that he was a secured creditor to the extent of the loan. Held, (1) that J, in concealing the information which he had from his master, the plaintiff, was guilty of fraud and misfeasance against the plaintiff; and that the plaintiff could not, therefore, be fixed with knowlege of things which were fraudulently concealed from him by J. (2) That the resolution by which the Company had agreed not to further charge the Mill property had exhausted itself on the 11th June 1908. (3) That, even if the condition not to further mortgage or charge the property had existed, the defendant-Company could not be permitted to plead the same in derogation of the rights and claims of the plaintiff to a charge on their property. (4) That, if the plaintiff acquired a charge on the property of the defendant-Company, that charge was valid and binding on the Company, notwithstandig the facts that, at the time the charge was given, the board of directors had not passed a resolution authorizing the creation of such charge, or that there was not at the time in existence a Board of Directors properly constituted according to the requirements of the Articles of Association. (5) That a valid, legal and binding further charge was created in favour of the plaintiff against the mortgaged property of the defendant Company for the two lacs of rupees advanced by the plaintiff on the 5th August 1909. Where the agent, though acting on the principal's behalf in some transaction in which his knowledge would othewise be imputed to his principal, takes part in any fraud or misfeasance against the principal, the principal is not bound by the agent's knowledge of such fraud or misfeasance. In law, neither the want of a resolution nor the defect in the board of directors of a Company can affect adversely the rights of third parties, who have no knowledge of the existence of such infirmities when dealing with the Company. SHIVLAL MOTILAL v. TRICUMDAS MILLS, 14 Bom. L.R. 45=14 Ind. Cas. 353=36 B. 564.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

(32)—Agent under a power of attorney—Suit for recovery of money spent by him in the course of agency—Money recoverable under s. 70, Contract Act—Period of limitation— Limitation Act, sch. II, arts. 61, 83, 116, applicability of—Obligation to indemnify agent—Contract Act, s. 222—Obligation not expressed in writing but imposed by law, whether to be treated as in writing—Agent's right of retainer—Lien—His right to sue for money—Period within which may be enforced.—Where an agent under a power of attorney brought a suit for recovery of monies spent by him in the course of the agency, held, (1) that his expenditure of monies belonging to himself in the business of the agency would be recoverable under s. 70 of the Contract Act immediately after he expended his monies (2) and that the suit ought to be brought within three years from the date of payment under art. 61 of the Limitation Act. Art. 61 relates to a suit for money payable to the plaintiff for money paid to the defendant. The article is not confined to cases where the defendant is under a legal liability to make a payment. Art. 116, which relates to a suit for compensation for breach of a contract in writing registered, does not apply to this case, for, in the power of attorney there is no promise tr pay, and there is no breach of a contract in writing registered. The obligation of the principal to indemnify under s. 222 of the Contract Act, which is not a term of the contract nor to be deemed a part of the contract, but a mere obligation cast on the principal by the operation of law,cannot be held to be in writing registered within the meaning of art. 116. Art. 83, which relates to a suit upon any other contract to indemnify, ceases to be applicable to this case, since the obligation to indemnify is not a contract to do so. Even if it would apply, the starting point of limitation would be the date of payment when the agent might be said to be damnified. Where an agent is obliged to sue for monies spent by him in the business of the agency, his right of action is not postponed until the termination of the agency, even though his right of retainer and his lien may be enforced long after the expenses have been incurred, so long as moneys or the goods of the principal in connection with the agency are held by the agent irrespective of the period that has elapsed since the expenses themselves were incurred. KANDASAMI PILLAI v. AVAYAMBAL, 8 M.L.T. 194=7 Ind. Cas. 399=20 M.L.J. 989=M.W.N. 1910, 316.

(33)—Joint power of attorney.—The petitioner held a power of attorney jointly from five persons which did not authorize him to act generally in any matter in which one or more of those five persons might be severally concerned, nor was it sufficiently stamped to cover five separate powers of attorney on behalf of five individuals: Held, that under this power-of-attorney the agent could not act, in cases in which all the executants of the power-of-attorney were not concerned. SAHAI LAL v. LALTA PERSHAD, 1 O.C. 159.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

(34)—Suit against agent, commencement of limitation for, from termination of agency—Mere absconding of agent, not such termination.—Where an agency has been created for a fixed period, the mere absconding of the agent would not amount to such a determination of the agency as to cause limitation to run from that date, in respect of a suit against the agent for recovery of money which he was bound to collect and pay over to his principal. BISSESSUR ROY CHOWDHRY v. RAM DOOLAL CHUND, 6 W. R. Act X, Rul. 29.

(35)—Necessity of demand—Termination of agency—Ss. 201, 218, I.C.A., 1872.—If demand for an account is not made, no cause of action accrues against the agent until the agency is determined. The agency of a person, employed by another for selling goods on the latter's behalf, does not terminate, when the goods are sold and the money received by the agent, but only when the agent has fully accounted to the principal for money received on his behalf. FINK v. BULDEO DASS, 26 C. 715=3 C.W.N. 524. (12 A. 541, F.)

(36)—Principal and agent—Authority, termination of—Notice — Acknowledgment—Limitation. — Plaintiff sued the defendant upon accounts and based his claim on a statement of account signed by the ex-agent of the defendant. Plaintiff knew at the time of the acknowledgment by the agent that he had quitted the defendant's service though no formal notice was given of the fact. Held that the plaintiff must be taken to have known that the agent had no general authority to sign the statement of account on behalf of the defendant and that the acknowledgment signed by him could not prevent the operation of the Statute of Limitations. DINOMOYI DEBI v. LUCHMIPUT SINGH BAHADUR, 6 C.L.R. 101, P.C.=7 I.A. 8=4 Sar. 117.

(37)—Suit for rent against agent—Limitation —Act VIII of 1869 (B.C.)—A suit for the recovery of money in the hands of an agent, employed to collect rents, must be brought, under Act VIII of 1869, within a year after the termination of the agency. PARBUTTINATH ROY v. TEJOMOY BANERJI, 5 C. 303.

(38)—Suit for money against agent, limitation of one year for. commencement of. from date of plaintiff's knowledge of dues by agent.—Where a previous suit having been brought against the agent for rendering of accounts, the latter had tendered the accounts in Court, a subsequent suit against the agent for money must be brought within one year from the date of the tender of the accounts by the agent, such date being the date on which plaintiff had obtained

Principal and Agent—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

knowledge of the sum due to him. HURO SHURN NARAIN SINGH v. ROOCHEE DOBEY, 6 W.R. Act X, Rul. 30. [D., 12 W.R. 116.]

(39)—Suit for money in agent's hands, limitation for, under s. 33 of Act X of 1859, to be computed from date of agent's suspension.—Defendant, a tashildar in the service of the plaintiff, was suspended from his duties to which he never returned. The present suit for money received by him was brought beyond the period of one year limited by s. 33 of Act X of 1859. Plaintiff contended that the defendant was not actually dismissed till within the period of one year of the suit. But the High Court held that, as a general rule, the period of limitation should be counted as from the date of the suspension. RADHIKA PERSHAD CHATTERJEE v. RAMDHUN POOROHEET, 6 W.R. Act X, Rul. 27.

(40)—Stamp Act, s. 35—Stamp—Unstamped document—Copy cannot be accepted as evidence on payment of penalty—Principal and Agent—Power of attorney—Document not admissible in evidence for being unstamped—Agency may be established by other evidence—Ratification—Mortgage— Interest.—Held, that copy of an unstamped document cannot be admitted in evidence on payment of penalty under s. 35 of the Stamp Act. (23 M. 49, F.; 30 M. 386, 17 M. 473, 18 A. 295, R.) It was alleged that a mortgage was effected in favour of the plaintiff by a person who had got a power of attorney from the defendant. The power of attorney was not produced in evidence though its execution was admitted. The lower Court held that evidence was not admissible to prove the agency otherwise than by production of the power of attorney and that ratification of the mortgage was not established. Held, by the Chief Court, that, as a power of attorney is not the only evidence legally admissible to prove the authority of the agent, the fact could be proved by evidence aliunde, and, so far as third parties were concerned, none the less so because the agent was appointed under a written document executed by the principal. Held, further, that the authority of the agent and ratification of the mortgage by the principal were established by the statements of the parties to the deed and their conduct in relation to the transaction, that the payment of the mortgage money to the agent entitled the mortgagee in equity to recover the money from the principal. The mortgage-deed provided that interest shall be payable to the mortgagee until he obtains possession of the mortgaged property, and further that he may, if he so prefers, instead of taking possession, continue to charge interest at the rate agreed upon. Held, that in such a case, the mortgagee is entitled to claim interest. LALA NANAK CHAND v. MUHAMMAD AFZAL, 11 P.L.R. 1913.

(41)—Agent — Power-of-attorney executed—Proof of agent's authority by other evidence—

Principal and Agent—continued.

— 1.—General—continued.

Third party's right prove relation of principal and agent by evidence other than written power of attorney—Evidence Act, ss. 91, 92—Unstamped original—Copy whether admissible on payment of penalty—Stamp Act, s. 35—Mortgagee given choice to recover possession or interest—Interest—Mortgage by agent—Agent's authority to mortgage not proved—Principal aware of mortgage—Money raised on mortgage received by principal—Liability of principal to re-pay mortgage-debt.—There is no rule of law that the only evidence of an agent's authority admissible in evidence is a written power-of-attorney. The fact can be proved by evidence, aliunde, and so far as third parties are concerned, none-the-less so because the agent was appointed under a written document executed by the principal. There is nothing in s. 91 or s. 92 of the Evidence Act to preclude such third party from proving the existence of a particular relationship between the persons who respectively executed and accepted the power-of-attorney, though the terms which govern such relationship appear to be in writing. A copy of an unstamped original cannot be accepted in evidence upon payment of the penalties recoverable in respect of the original (23 M. 49 = 30 M. 386 = 17 M.L.J. 308, 17 M. 473, F.) Where a mortgage-deed expressly provides that interest shall be payable to the mortgagee until he obtains possession of the property, and further that he may, if he so prefers, instead of taking possession when his right to demand possession accrues, continue to charge interest, the mortgagee is entitled to rely on the terms of the contract, and to claim interest until he obtains possession or realises the sums due to him from the mortgagor. Where an agent's authority to mortgage his principal's property is not established, but it is proved that the principal was well aware that the mortgage had been effected by his agent, and it is also proved that the money raised by the mortgage was received by the principal, the mortgagee would be entitled in equity to recover the mortgage debt from the principal. LALA NANAK CHAND v. MUHAMMAD AFZAL, 279 P.W.R. 1912 = 16 Ind. Cas. 950 = 33 P.R. 1913. (18 A. 295 = A. W.N. 1896, 68, R.)

See ABATEMENT OF APPEALS, 1 Agra 215.

Suit for accounts by principal against his agent—Limitation — See ACCOUNTS — SUIT FOR ACCOUNTS, 7 C.L.J. 279 = 12 C.W.N. 820 = 35 C. 298.

See ACCOUNTS—SUIT FOR ACCOUNTS, 6 C. 754 = 8 C.L.R. 321, 14 C. 147 = 13 I.A. 123.

See ACT IX OF 1890, s. 77, 24 C. 306.

See BEN. ACT X OF 1859, s. 33, 2 O.C. 425.

Government Political Agent in Native State of minor Chief, whether could sue for property in British territory—Political Agent not certificated guardian under Minor's Act XX of 1864 —Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 37 (c)—Recognised agent—See BOM. ACT XX OF 1864, 11 B. 53.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

One of several joint pattahdars is not an agent for purposes of accepting pattah under the Madras Rent Recovery Act—See MAD. ACT VIII OF 1865, s. 9, 28 M. 393.

Notice to agent—Effect against principal—See U.P. ACT XXII OF 1886, 25 A. 1=29 I.A. 203 P.C.=6 C.W.N. 849=4 Bcm. L. R. 832.

Wrongs by—Agent cannot bind his principal (a statutory body) by his own wrong—See ACT OF STATE, 6 Bom. L.R. 131.

Reference to arbitration by agent—Subsequent ratification thereof by principal—Legality of reference—See ARBITRATION—REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION, 8 O.C. 263.

Money in the hands of—Attachment of—See ATTACHMENT—SUBJECTS OF ATTACHMENT, 16 A. 286=A.W.N. 1894, 84.

Default of principal misleading agent into doing something—See BANKER AND CUSTOMER, 8 Ind. Cas. 98.

"Landing agents" at Penang, position of —See BILL OF LADING, 13 C.W.N. 733, P.C.= 6 M.L.T. 11=19 M.L.J. 316=4 Ind. Cas. 475.

Suit for account against agent—Cross suit by agent—Separate trials—Legality—Res judicata—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 10, 11, 15 C.W.N. 930.

See CIV. PRO.CODE, 1908, s. 85, O. III, r. 2, 19 A. 510=A.W.N. 1897, 135.

Conditions for suing by agent—Absence of principal from jurisdiction — Objections first raised in second appeal—Maintainability—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 99, O. III, r. 2, O. VI, rr. 14 and 15 (1), 4 L.B.R. 284.

Suit by agent for undisclosed principal — Death of agent—Principal not entitled to continue suit, when the representatives of the deceased agent are not brought on record — See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXII, r. 1, 17 M. L.J. 116.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XLI, r. 4, 6 W.R. Act X, Rul. 82.

Secretary—Personal liability—See CLUB, 15 P.R. 1891.

Agent appointed by company, suit for injunction not maintainable by, to restrain company from, carrying into effect resolution of directors appointing solicitor—See COMPANY —POWERS AND LIABILITIES OF DIRECTORS, 6 B. 266.

See COMPANY—POWERS AND LIABILITIES OF DIRECTORS, 5 B.L.R. 195.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

Ordering of goods through commission agents —Effect—Contract for sale — Form in which action should be brought — See CONTRACT -- CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACTS, 13 B. 470.

Liability of principal to pay agent sums due on account of wagering contract — See CONTRACT— WAGERING CONTRACTS, 79 P.R. 1908, F.B.=130 P.W.R. 1908.

Wagering contract—Liability of agent—See CONTRACT—WAGERING CONTRACTS, 7 A.L. J. 1146=8 Ind. Cas. 783.

Agent who has to pay money to his principal must follow him and pay where his principal is—See CONTRACT—MISCELLANEOUS, 11 O. C. 191.

Suit to recover money paid by agent on account of bets made by him on behalf of principal—No bar of suit —See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 30, 17 C.P.L.R. 67.

Wagering transaction — Right of agent to recover payment actually made by him— Onus—Proof of agency—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 30, 57 P.W.R. 1907=74 P.R. 1908.

Wagering contract—Payment by agent — Liability of principal to reimburse agent— See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 30, 14 M.L.J. 326.

See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 30, 25 A. 639 =A.W.N. 1903, 161.

See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 135, 22 A. 351 =A.W.N. 1900, 106.

Liquidator of Company—Advances and disbursements by Secretaries and Treasurers of Company—Lien on property of Company as against other creditors—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, ss. 171, 217, 222, 13 B. 314.

See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, ss. 230, 233, 192, 109, U.B.R. 1897—1901, Vol. II, 341.

Underselling by agent—Measure of damages —See DAMAGES—MEASURE AND ASSESSMENT, 20 B. 633.

Father accredited, of joint family consisting of father and sons — Father's representative without written authority—Act of father binding on sons—See HINDU LAW—JOINT FAMILY, 12 C.W.N. 687.

Agent has insurable interest in goods consigned on behalf of principal—Agent's right to sue for value of goods—See INSURANCE— MARINE INSURANCE, 13 Bom. L.R. 1211.

See JOINDER OF PARTIES, 64 P.R. 1881.

See LEASE — GENERAL, P. L. R. 1900, p. 303.

See LAMBARDAR, A.W.N. 1898, 31.

Power of agent to sign an acknowledgment on behalf of principal—Agent having authority to receive goods, whether has authority to sign acknowledgments — See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 19, 55 P.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 948=136 P.L.R. 1910.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

Gumasta managing master's business — Acknowledgment by gumasta — Effect of master's death—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 19, 13 Bom. L.R. 264=35 B. 302.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, arts. 59, 60, 10 B.H.C 300.

Agent failing to pay to a third person according to instructions of principal—Third person recovering from principal by suit—Principal's suit against agent—Limitation—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 90, 9 Ind. Cas. 54=9 M.L.T. 268=21 M.L.J. 453.

Constructive knowledge of negligence of agent—Start of limitation—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 90, 6 Ind. Cas. 456=7 A.L.J. 724.

See MAHOMEDAN LAW—PRE-EMPTION—GENERAL, 7 A. 41=A.W.N. 1884, 255.

See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS — HUNDIS—GENERAL, 9 B.L.R. 1.

Rights and liabilities of undisclosed principals under the Contract Act and under the Negotiable Instruments Act—See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, 1881, ss. 8, 27, 78, 1 M.L.T. 377, F.B.=16 M.L.J. 508=30 M. 88.

Right of agent to sue or be sued—General rule—See PARTIES TO SUIT—GENERAL, 6 B.L.R. 486.

See PARTIES TO SUIT—GENERAL, 3 N.W. P. 175, 4 N.W.P. 68.

See PARTIES TO SUIT—ADDING PARTIES TO SUITS, 3 Agra 131.

Non-attendance in Court — Appearance by agent—See PARTIES TO SUIT — MISCELLANEOUS, Marsh. 627.

Presentation of document by—under defective power of attorney—Validity of registration —See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, ss. 33, 49, 60, 87, 4 A. 384.

Duty of agent—Agency when terminable. See RES JUDICATA—ADJUDICATIONS, 7 M. L.T. 87=33 M. 162=5 Ind. Cas. 758.

Suit by owners for sum realised by sale of ship—Abandonment of French ship to French Consul—Principal and agent—See RIGHT OF SUIT—MISCELLANEOUS, Bourke O.C. 112.

Sale—Agency—Authority to sell, whether includes authority to receive purchase-money —Notice on the outer wall of house to make enquiries of vendor's vakil, whether amounts to an authority to vakil to sell the house—See SALE—GENERAL, 8 M.L.T. 7=20 M L.J. 479 =7 Ind. Cas. 189.

Contract by undisclosed agent—Burden of contract—See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE, 11 C. W.N. 946, P.C.=17 M.L.J. 454=4 A.L.J. 740 =6 C.L.J. 682=2 M.L.T. 448.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——1.—General—concluded.

Service of process on—Carrying on business, meaning of—See SUMMONS, 4 B. 416.

See SUMMONS, 8 B.H.C. O.C. 159.

Agent's liability to account—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER — GENERAL, 21 M.L.J. 359.

——2.—Authority of Agent.

(1)—Principal and agent—Authority—Proof —Liability of principal.—In order to hold a person bound by the acts of his agent, it must be shown that he was acting within the scope of his authority. MANOHUR DASS v. DEEN DYAL, 3 N.W.P. 179.

(2)—General agent—Powers not co-extensive with those of universal agent.—An agent employed by a trader to manage generally his trade business has not ordinarily powers co-extensive with those possessed, by what is term -ed an universal agent, i.e., an agent who may be appointed to do all acts, which principal generally can do. DOORGA CHURN v. KOONJ BEHAREE PANDEY, 3 Agra 23.

(3)—Powers of.— An agent's assent to be bound by the statement of a particular witness does not amount to an assent to arbitration, but is within the scope of his general authority to carry on his principal's suits. RAJENDER CHUNDER NEWGEE v. MAHOMED AYNOOD-DEEN MOONSHEE, W.R. 1864, 142.

(4)—Husband and wife—Husband allowing wife to have control over property—Effect.—If a husband allowed his wife ostensibly to have control over the property and to mortgage it, she must be considered, in fact, to be his agent, if he was really the principal, and he would, therefore, be bound by her act. MOORADEE BEBEE v. SHEIK SYEFOOLLAH, W.R. 1864, 318.

(5)—Contract Act, IX of 1872, s. 237—Agent for making particular purchase—No general agency. —Where a person sent another to an auction authorising him to bid for certain articles and up to a certain sum, the authority so given cannot be considered to induce third persons to believe that that person has been employed generally for the purpose of bidding, so as to make the principal liable for all purchases made in his name. MACKENZIE, LYALL & CO. v. E. O. MOSES, 22 W.R. 156.

(6)—Principal and agent—General or special power of agent.—The extent and nature of the power vested in an agent are not so much a matter of law as a matter of fact to be decided in each case in which a question of agency arises. RAM BAKS LAL v. KISHORI MOHAN SAHA, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 273=12 W.R. 130.

(7)—Authority coupled with interest—Irrevocability.—What is meant by an authority coupled with an interest being irrevocable is this - that, where an agreement is entered into on a sufficient consideration whereby an authority is given for the purpose of securing some benefit to the donee of the authority, such an authority is irrevocable. (Carmichael's Case, 1896, 2 Ch. 643, R.) KONGATTI VALIA NAYAR v. SUBRAMANIAN PATTAR, 9 M.L.J. 290.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(8)—Scope of agent's authority—Fraud by agent in his own interest and not in the interest of the principal—Liability of principal—Contract Act, s. 238.—A principal is liable for the wrongs of his agent committed within the scope of his authority and purporting to be for the benefit of the principal, though no express order of the principal can be shown, but where the fraud is committed by the agent when he is acting not in the interest of his employers but entirely in his own interests, the principal cannot be held responsible for the consequences of his fraudulent conduct. An undertaking by a broker to refund advances made by third parties to his constituents and a guarantee given by him for the re-payment of advances with profits is altogether outside the scope of his ordinary business, and would not bind his partner unless the latter assented to it or subsequently ratified it. D. MC LAREN MORRISON v. VERSCHOYLE, 6 C.W.N. 429. [R., 13 C W.N. 619=36 C. 647.]

(9)—Authority of agent to sue on behalf of principal—Right of defendant—Right of Court to enquire as to agent's authority.—A Court, whose aid is invoked on behalf of one person, through the agency of another, is entitled, in some form or other, to enquire whether the alleged agent really had authority to bring the suit. It may be necessary to do so for the protection of the person sued. A defendant is entitled to question the authority of an agent on behalf of his principals, as if the authority is defective; otherwise he is liable to be sued afresh at the instance of the principals, if the agency did not exist. NAM NARAIN SINGH v. RAGHU NATH SAHAI, 19 C 678, P.C.=19 I. A. 135=6 Sar. 202. [R., 109 P.R. 1907.]

(10)—Contract — Agency — Agent exceeding authority—Liability of principal for acts of agent.—An agent who is appointed for the general management and conduct of a business cannot bind his principal by an unusual contract not strictly relating to the conduct of the business, unless he has express or implied authority for the same. The fact that a consignor dealt in good faith with the agent who exceeded his authority is not sufficient to bind the principal. The consignor dealing with the agent ought to satisfy himself of the agent's authority. Where the principal has not ratified his agent's act by receiving the benefit of the contract, he cannot be bound by the acts of his agent and liable to make good the losses. MUDAREE LALL v. MR. J. A. G. GILMORE, 3 Agra 196.

(11)—Contract Act, IX of 1872, s. 230—Principal and agent—Contract by agent—Agent's right to suit—'Disclose,' meaning of—Presumption under section when arises.—If a contract made by a person who is an agent, is worded so as, when taken as a whole, to convey to the other contracting party the notion that the agent is contracting in that character, and that he is the mouth-piece through which the principal speaks, he cannot sue or be sued on the contract. In the present case, the plaintiffs by a charter party contracted to let the steamship Oakdale to the defendants upon certain terms. They made the agreement as "agents" for the owners of the steamer. The charter party, further, contained a clause by which the owners undertook to receive the cargo "on being paid freight" at the rate afterwards specified. But the charter party was signed with the names of the agents simply. Held that the contract contained sufficient indications that the plaintiffs contracted only as agents; and that their signing their own name simply did not alter their character; and that, therefore, they cannot be permitted to sue in their own name. [F., 7 B. 51; R., L.B. R. 1872—1892, 658, 27 M. 315.] A presumption arises, under s. 230 of the Contract Act, that an Agent may sue and be sued where he has not disclosed the name of his principal. The word 'disclose' in the section means no doubt to make known. But the essential point is knowledge, and, therefore, where there is actual knowledge, it is equivalent to disclosure, and, in such a case, the presumption mentioned above will not operate. In this case, the name of the ship and the registry number having been given, the defendant not only knew that the agents were not the owners, but could immediately find out, if they did not know before, who the owners were. Hence, it was held that it was equivalent to actual knowledge, and actual knowledge was equivalent to disclosure the sole object of which would be to convey such knowledge. MACKINNON MACKENZIE & CO. v. LANGMOIR & CO., 5 B. 584.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(12)—Power to sue given to agent—Agreement as to remuneration to vakil entered into by agent.—A mere power to sue would not authorize an agent to do more than employ a vakil on the terms of paying him a reasonable remuneration. The present agreement was of a special character by which the client agreed to pay a large sum in the event of success for the chance of having to pay nothing if the vakil failed in gaining the case. Held that the agent could not enter into such an agreement without express authority from his principal. KESHAV BAPUJI v. NARAYAN SHAMRAV, 10 B. 18. [R., 14 B. 455.]

(13)—Agent and principal.—Where an agent presumes to exercise an authority which he does not possess, and, by the exercise of that authority, induces another to enter into a contract, he is liable to the same extent, though not, according to English notions, in precisely the same manner as the principal would have been, had he been bound by the contract. Where a Mooktear holding a general power of attorney granted a lease containing a stipulation that the lessee was to receive from the lessor the expenses which he might incur in any litigation which might take place with third parties respecting the land leased, held that the stipulation in question was clearly beyond the Mooktear's power and would not bind the lessor. T. J. KENNY v. MOOKTA SOONDEREE DABEE, 7 W.R. 419.

Principal and Agent—continued.

— 2 —Authority of Agent—continued.

(14)—Suit conducted by general agent—Relinquishment of claim by agent, effect of.—In a suit instituted by their general agent G, the plaintiffs claimed certain land on two grounds, 1st, on proprietary right to the land, and 2ndly, on the right of pre-emption. The Mukhtarnamah by which the agent was appointed declared that, as the plaintiffs had often occasion for instituting Civil suits, Criminal actions and Revenue cases and for appointing pleaders for defending cases, they appointed G as their general agent, and that whetever prosecution made by him, questions put by him, questions answered by him, documents tendered or taken back by him, and pleaders appointed by him, acts done or performed by him in their cases pending in Courts, should be accepted and agreed to by them as if they were done by them in person. At the hearing of the suit, G admitted that the plaintiffs had no claim on the ground of ownership, the case then proceeded and was heard with reference to the plaintiff's claim for pre-emption, and dismissed. Held by a Full Bench (Campbell, J., dissenting) that G was not authorised to make the admission, and that the case must be re-tried as regards the question of plaintiff's proprietary rights. Per Campbell, J.—G was granted the fullest powers by the plaintiffs in their deed appointing him their attorney, and he was duly authorized to make the admission. BANSI LAL v. MAJOR TWIGGE, 37 P.R. 1877, F.B. [F., 58 P.R. 1878.]

(15)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act VIII of 1859), ss. 98, 376 and 378—Confession of judgment by agent holding general power of attorney how far binding on principal.—On 24th February 1877, A sued B to establish his right to the office of Diwan of a Khangah and to share in the management of the institution, as being a hereditary right. On 7th March, before the summons was served, B's general agent or C filed an 'Ikbaldawa' or confession of judgment admitting plaintiff's claim, and a decree was passed in A's favour. On the 29th March, B applied for review of judgment, on the grounds, 1st, that the ikbaldawa had been accepted and judgment passed before the date fixed for hearing, 2nd, that the ikbaldawa had been filed without B's consent or authority. Held (1) that C had no authority, merely by virtue of his power of attorney, to file a confession of judgment, unless it could be shown that he had been expressly or impliedly authorized by B to do so ; (2) that under the C.P.C. (Act VIII of 1859), even a decree by consent may be set aside if the attainment of the ends of justice require it. ABDUL MAJID v. FAZI HAQ, 58 P.R. 1878, F.B. (37 P.R. 1877, F.)

Principal and Agent—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(16)—Power of agent to borrow—Evidence of authority.—Although a general agent may not have power to borrow money for his principal, yet the authority to borrow in a particular case may be shown by a previous authority, either express or implied, or by subsequent ratification. BUNWAREELALL SAHOO v. MOHESHUR SINGH, Marsh 544=2 Hay 644.

(17)—Authority to receive money due to principal—Receipt by agent of property in lieu of cash--Ratification by principal.—An agent, who is authorized to receive money due to his principal, can only receive cash ; but if he receives property in lieu of cash, the principal may accept the transaction and take the property. MUKUND RAM SUKAL v. SALIGRAM SUKAL, 2 C.P.L.R. 202.

(18)—Principal and agent—Agent exceeding authority—Liability of principal — Broker—Custom allowing deviation from instruction of principal—Validity.—It may be said as a general rule that, in order to bind the principal, the act done by the agent must be within the scope of the authority committed to the agent. In other words, the authority or commission must be punctiliously and properly pursued, and its limitation and extent duly observed, although a circumstantial variation in its execution will not defeat it. If the act varies substantially from the authority or commission in its nature or extent or degree, it is void as to the principal, and does not bind him. Where a principal instructs his agent to enter into a contract for the delivery of cotton at the end of a certain month, but the agent enters into a contract for the delivery thereof in the middle of the month, the agent exceeds his authority, in such a manner as to exempt the principal from liability upon the contract. A custom allowing a broker to deviate from his instructions is unreasonable and cannot be enforced. ARLAPA NAYAK v. NARSI KASHEVJI & CO., 8 B.H.C. A.C. 19.

(19)—Principal and agent—Balance struck after termination of agency—Balance of account —Act VIII of 1869 (B.C.) s. 30.—Where an agent, after the period of his agency has come to an end, renders his accounts to the plaintiff and a balance is struck in his presence and he afterwards gives his consent to the correctness of the balance in the shape of a letter written by him to the plaintiff, it constitutes a cause of action against the agent not within the scope of s. 30, Act VIII of 1869 (B.C.) but upon the general ground that a balance of account has been stated and agreed to by the defendant as due by him to the plaintiff. SYFOOLLAH KHAN v. JHAPA THAKOOR, 20 W.R. 309.

(20)—Principal and agent — Partners — Authority — Extent— Claim— Estoppel.—It is clear that one partner of a partnership in trade has an implied authority to bind the firm by drawing a bill or giving a promissory note in the name of the firm; but in the case of partnerships which are not of a mercantile character, there is no such implied authority (Hedley v. Bainbridge, 3 Q. B. 310, R.) Where one of the partners in a firm was authorized to draw bills on the firm to the extent of Rs. 200 each, such partner had no authority to make two promissory notes in the name of the firm, but without its knowledge, for Rs. 1,000 each. In such a case, the firm will not be liable for the whole amount drawn. The firm will not be liable even to the extent of Rs. 200, as the contract was not capable of division (Baines v. Euring, L. R. 1 Exch. 320, R.) It would be a very dangerous doctrine that a person who honours two or three bills drawn upon him for an amount in excess of that for which he has especially authorized his agent to draw, thereby holds out to the world that he will pay any promissory note which his agent may make. PREMABHAI HEMABAI v. T. H. BROWN, 10 B.H.C. 319.

Principal and Agent—continued.

—2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(21)--Agency--Authority--Original jurisdiction.—In a suit to recover money alleged to have been advanced to C by the plaintiffs, tea-brokers, under the belief that C was the proprietor of the Laojan Tea Estates and not merely the manager, where owing to C's death and plaintiff's inability to re-imburse themselves by reason of the non-delivery of a portion of the season's tea, they sued the defendants as owners of the tea estate : held by Couch, C.J., that the question in the case was whether the transaction between C and the plaintiffs was within the scope of the authority which C had, or was allowed by his partners to appear to have, in managing and conducting the affairs and business of the partnership. It was a question of actual or apparent authority, and whether the transaction was one which the owner of a tea garden carrying on the cultivation of it would, in the ordinary course of business, enter into. Held, also that the transaction would have been according to usage if C had been the sole owner of the tea garden and the defendants by allowing him to manage ostensibly as sole owner clothed him with every authority incidental to a sole owner in that business. W. SPINK v. W. MORAN, 21 W.R. 161.

(22)—Account opened by mother with bank through her son as agent—Banker how far warranted in advancing money to son as accredited agent.—The defendant opened an account with the plaintiff, a banker, in order to provide for the punctual payment of the Government revenue and to meet her current expenses. The account was opened through the defendant's son who also acted as her agent in withdrawing money for the payment of revenue and for meeting current expenses. Held that these facts did not warrant the plaintiff in advancing to the son large sums of money upon bonds, apparently in excess of the amount to the credit of the defendant and without any authority from her. BEEBEE MISRAIN v. GOPALL LALL DOSS, 10 W.R. 376. [R., 15 W.R. 176.]

Principal and Agent—continued.

—2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(23)—Principal and agent—Contract by agent—Excess of authority—Cantract, if binding on principal.—A contract made by an agent on the part of the Government in excess of authority given to him is not binding on the Government; still less is a payment made by him in making the contract. BEER KISHORE SAHOY v. THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, 17 W.R. 497. [R., 4 Bom L.R. 706=26 B. 801].

(24)—Agent authorized to bid at auction, collateral and separate contract by, not binding on principal.—Supposing a man sends an agent with direct authority and positive directions to bid at an auction and purchase an estate, and the agent in the execution of such authority bids for it with the result that it is knocked down to him, but collaterally and in a bye-manner the agent enters into a distinct and separate contract with a person that in consequence of something to be done or forborne, he will pledge his principal to pay a sum to that person, the principal can in no manner be deemed as bound by such bye-transaction on the part of the agent. ISHAN CHUNDER SINGH v. SAMACHURN BHUTTO, 6 W.R. P.C. 57=11 M.I.A. 7=2 Ind. Jur. N.S. 7.

(25)—Power of commission agent—Breach of warranty—Purchaser's rights—S. 112, Contract Act.—The purchase by a commission merchant of goods on behalf of a correspondent in a foreign market is made as principal and the authority of the correspondent is not pledged by him. He is a vendor in so far as he has a right to recover the dues from the correspondent and an agent responsible for buying goods at a price as much below that fixed in the order as he reasonably can and bound to charge what he actually paid for it. Any other conduct will amount to fraud on a principal. If there is no fraud, the goods purchased under the contract become the property of the correspondent and he must pay their proper value and cannot rescind the contract merely because the commission agent demands a price higher than that which he has actually paid. But such excess charge will be disallowed in the account between the parties. Where goods supplied under an order to provide according to sample are appreciably different in quality from such sample, the buyer may either reject the goods or keep them and claim a reduction in price by way of compensation giving notice to the seller of such claim, within a reasonable time. F. W. SHAW v. BAIJ NATH, 21 P.R. 1897.

(26)—Banian—Del credere agent—Dealings between Native and European firm.—G. S. & Co. employed R to make purchases for them in the bazar, upon orders which were in force for two days, and they imposed restrictions on R's authority to pledge their credit, which were not made known to those with whom he dealt. His remuneration was to be certain dustooree on the purchases, and he paid and gave receipts for the jute, as agent for G S & Co. He furnished accounts, specifying the price of the goods and the expenses incurred by him upon them, and, upon being paid, he affixed his receipts to them. The purchases were unusually large, and in R's books G S and Co., were debited with the amount paid for the goods, R, retaining no interest in, or profit out of it. J S, one of the vendors to R, sued G S & Co., for the price of some of the goods so purchased by R. Held that a general authority implies all powers necessary, or usual, or proper, as means to effectuate the purposes for which it was created. A banian is a del credere agent with regard to his employer in making purchases, and is a principal with reference to third persons. A person who has been allowed to represent himself as agent of a merchant under a general authority is not as such a banian; when a Native dealer makes purchases for a European house, the presumption is that the vendor gave credit to the native dealer, and that goods having been purchased for an employer and etered to his debit, and receipts given for them in his name, raises no presumption that the buyer was a banian. GRANT SMITH & CO. v. JUGGOBUNDOO SHAW, Bourke, A.C. 17=2 Hyde 301.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(27)—Held in the same above case in the Court below.—In the absence of a specific contract, a European firm in Calcutta, is not bound by a contract made by third parties with their banian. JUGGOBUNDOO SHAW v GRANT SMITH & CO., 2 Hyde 129=Cor. 47.

(28)—Agency—Insurance—Proof of authority as agent.—Where it was proved that a particular person was in the habit of underwriting policies for his principal, and the latter was in the habit of paying the losses upon policies so subscribed, it was not necessary to produce the document appointing the person as agent for the purpose of charging the principal upon a policy, so subscribed by that person. But, where there was not sufficient evidence to connect the person sought to be made liable with the document upon which the suit was brought, the Court had no other alternative than to dismiss the plaintiff's suit. MULTANI MULCHAND CHUTUMAL v. THAKAR SUNDARJI NARAINJI, 7 B.H.C.O.C. 39.

(29)—Conditional sale executed by mookhtear—Proof of authority to bind the principal—Power of attorney—Evidence.—Where a plaintiff comes into Court basing his title upon a deed of conditional sale executed by the mookhtear of the defendant, and the defendant resists the plaintiff's claim founded upon this deed by denying that he executed the deed, or that it was executed by any one having authority from her to execute it, it is incumbent upon the plaintiff, before he can succeed, to show that the mookhtear, when he executed the deed on behalf of the defendant, had authority by virtue either of a general power-of-attorney or special power of attorney to execute that deed and to bind the defendant by executing that deed. MUSSAMUT MOHAN KOOER v. BABOO AJOODHYA DOSS, 20 W.R. 119.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(30)—Principal and agent—Agent authorized to buy has no power to sell—Ratification.—An agent who has authority to buy cannot be said to have an implied authority to sell. The mere fact that the principal did not question his agent's right to sell is no proof that he consented to the exercise of such right. GOLUCK CHUNDER CHOWDRY v. KANTO PERSHAD HAZAREE, 15 W.R. 317.

(31)—Principal and agent—Agency to sell—Authority to pledge credit of principal not presumable from.—Plaintiffs appellants had sought to render certain parties liable for debts incurred by an agent. They relied on the admission of the defendants that they employed the agent to sell produce. But they had not shown either that express authority to pledge the credit of the defendants was given to the agent, or that the defendants, by their course of dealing, impliedly recognised any such authority. The High Court was of opinion that a mere admission of an agency to sell will not necessarily raise a presumption of an authority to buy on credit, or otherwise to pledge the credit of the principal, and dismissed the appeal. RAM NARAIN POTDAR v. RAMNATH SHAHA, 2 W.R. 231.

(32)—Factor's Act, 5 and 6 Vict., C. 39—Act XX of 1841—Protection of bona fide pledger of securities by agents—Notice—Appeal—Abatement.—The Factor's Act, 5 and 6 Vict., C. 39, is extended to India by the Act of the Indian Legislature, XX of 1814. A banian or agent, was entrusted by his principals with a bill of lading for a particular purpose, and he pledged the same, mala fide, without the consent of his principals to a native banker, for advances made to himself. Held, that, in order to invalidate a pledge made under the third section of the Act, 5th and 6th Vict., C. 39, it is necessary that the Court, or jury, should find that the lender had notice of the agent's mala fides, or want of authority to pledge the goods. To establish such notice, it is sufficient to show that the circumstances attending the transaction were such that a reasonable man of business applying his understanding to them, would certainly know that the agent had no authority to make the pledge, even if the agent was not also acting mala fide towards his principals. An appeal abated by the death of the respondent. Administration with the Will annexed was granted to the Administrator-General of Bengal. On the application of the appellant, the appeal was received against the Administrator-General as the personal representative of the respondent. GOBIND CHUNDER SEIN v. THE ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF BENGAL, 1 W.R.P.C. 43=9 M.I.A. 140=1 Ind. Jur. O.S. 17. [R., 10 C.L.J. 331.]

Principal and Agent—continued.

—2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(33)—Suit for goods sold and delivered to wife after separation.—It is not necessary that knowledge of a separation between husband and wife should be brought home to the plaintiff in an action for goods sold and delivered to the wife after separation where plaintiff has long dealt with the wife as the husband's agent. SHAM CHUND DOSS v. COX, Cor. 82.

(34)—Written authority to buy and send goods—Authority to draw—Money paid to and goods purchased by buyer's agent—Goods not reaching principal—Liability on hoondees drawn.—The defendant's Karindaw H was sent to the plaintiffs with a written authority according to which the plaintiffs were directed to buy goods and send them to the defendant, and draw upon him for the money spent. Instead of doing so, the plaintiffs appeared to have given money to H, who purchased goods with the money but the goods themselves did not reach the defendant. Held that the plaintiffs could not claim from the defendant the value of the hoondees which they had drawn. GOMANEE LALL v. JEEWUN RAM, 2 Agra 33.

(35)—Factors, interest of, in principal's goods, by reason of advances made—Right of factors to ship goods for sale—Powers and duties of factors regulated by general mercantile law—Sale of bills drawn against consignees in their own names—Acceptance of bills by consignees—Liability of factors as drawers for amount exceeding value of goods.—The evidence in this case showed that no particular usage or custom prevailed at Calcutta qualifying the rules obtaining under the mercantile law of England as between principal and factor, factors having an interest, in goods belonging to their principal, by reason of their having made advances, have the right to ship those goods for sale, either "on account of those concerned," or "on account of themselves," unless their general authority has been controlled by instructions from their principals, or by contract. In this case, the factors who had been entrusted with the possession of the goods belonging to their principal, who had received advances from them, shipped the goods to London and drew bills against them in their own names and sold such bills in the market with the shipping documents. Had the bills not been accepted by the consignees, the holders, though pledgees by means of the bills of lading, of the goods, could have had no remedy for any deficiency against the principal. The acceptance of the bills by the consignees, and the delivery of the shipping documents to them, made them the pledgees, but did not alter the character of the transaction, which was one whereby the factors had pledged the goods for the payment of bills on which they, and not the principal, were liable as drawers for an amount exceeding the value of the goods. No privity existing in such a case between the consignees and the undisclosed principal, where loss has occurred on the shipment, the principal should make good such loss to the factor's estate. MIRTUNJOY CHUKERBUTTY v. JOHN COCHRANE, 4 W.R. P.C. 1=10 M.I.A. 229. [R., 6 B. 304.]

Principal and Agent—continued.

—2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(36)—Master and servant—Principal and agent—Purchase of goods upon credit, servant generally instructed by master to make—Acts of servant binding on master.—Plaintiff sued the defendant Ranee for a balance of account as due from her, as a principal purchasing by her authorized agent. Plaintiff was admittedly a dealer in chunam; and the second defendant S was employed by the defendant Ranee to repair some of her buildings; S purchased from plaintiff the materials in respect of which the present claim was made. There was in this case the deposition on oath of the defendant S in favour of the case of the plaintiff, and the High Court held that it was quite right for the lower appellate Court to have thrown the onus of rebutting that deposition on the Ranee defendant. In the absence of any such rebutting evidence, the purchases on the Ranee's credit should be taken to have been made under a recognized agency capable of fixing the principal's liability for the agent. In this case, the High Court also remarked that if it were necessary to go further they were prepared to hold that, under certain circumstances, if a master usually instructed his servants to buy goods upon credit, he will be bound by his acts, even if he has, in a certain case, specially prohibited him from buying upon credit; and in this case, the habit of entrusting S to buy on credit from plaintiff had been shown on the part of the Ranee. MAHARANEE NARAINEE KOONWAREE v. JOOGUL KISHORE ROY, 6 W.R. 309.

(37)—Vendor and purchaser—Broker and principal—Sale of goods.—A person, who was both a merchant and a broker, bought cotton from the plaintiff's firm, representing himself to be a mere broker, after entering the defendant's name in the firm's books and transmitted it to the defendants, holding himself out to them as the real seller, and the latter paid him the price in good faith, held that such payment by the defendants protected them from any claim on the part of the plaintiff. PETUMBER BHUGUTT v. MUTHOORA DASS, 1 Agra 121.

(38)—Agent—Authority—Suit—Costs—Liability—Safeenamah.—In the absence of any special power or authority, the manager of an estate under a safeenamah on behalf of his proprietor, cannot act as general mookhtear of the proprietor or represent him in any suit. Costs incurred by the manager for the defence of any such action brought against the proprietor cannot be saddled upon the latter. The manager must take the consequences of his own acts and cannot hold the proprietor responsible for them. BHOLANATH SANDYAL v. GOUREE PERSHAD MOITRO, 16 W.R. 310.

(39)—Contract by manager how far binding on principal.—He who adopts and takes advantage of the management of his affairs by another, must fulfil the engagements which that other has contracted in his name, provided the engagements be within the proper limits of a manager's authority and be for the benefit of the estate. KOORA v. CAPTAIN ROBINSON, 2 Agra Mis. 2.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(40)—Partners—Undertaking by manager—Liability.—The manager of a partnership concern has authority to bind his partners personally by an undertaking made as their avowed agent. MASSEYK v. GRISH CHUNDER CHUCKERBUTTY, 24 W.R. 34.

(41)—Act X of 1859, s. 69—Suit by gomastha—Power of attorney.—Where a suit under Act X of 1859 is brought by the plaintiff as the gomashta of the zemindar, it is not necessary if it is proved by the evidence that he filled that character, to require the production of a power of attorney or any other formal document conferring on the plaintiff special powers. MADHO SINGH v. GUNEISHEE LALL, 2 Agra 275.

(42)—Gomashta employed to collect rents—Power to distrain—Ratification.—A gomashta employed to collect rents is not authorized to distrain, unless he has been expressly authorized by power of attorney. Therefore, if a gomashta, without such express authority, distrain for rent due, or pretended to be due, to his principal, his principal is not bound by his acts, unless he ratify them, as, for example, by receiving the proceeds of the distress, knowing they had been obtained by distress. RAMJOY MUNDUL v. KALLYMOHUN ROY CHOWDHRY, Marsh 282. S.C. KALLYMOHUN ROY CHOWDHRY v. RAMJOY MUNDUL, 2 Hay 289.

(43)—Authority to sue for principal without special powers.—A suit for rent under Act X of 1859 may be instituted by a gomashta employed in the collection of rents or management of land, on behalf of his principal, without his being specially empowered by warrant of attorney. MEAJAN KHAN V. AKALLY, Marsh 384=2 Hay 426.

(44)—Gomashta, Power of—Contract through broker.—N sued J S and Co. for damages occasioned by the inferiority of certain goods, which he alleged that he bought of them on a verbal contract made by his gomashta M through his broker F. The defendant's case was that the contract was a written one, and contained a stipulation exempting them from liability on certain conditions which had not been complied with, and was made by K one of the plaintiffs' gomashtas, by the pen of J, one of their brokers, whom R had authorised to sign the contract. The Court below found that K was N's gomashta, but could not as such depute a third party to sign a contract for N, and judgment was given for the plaintiffs. On appeal, held that a gomashta has a general authority to manage his employer's business, not as a mere agent, but with power to do all acts necessary for carrying it on, and to authorise brokers to make contracts. A broker authorized to sign a particular contract is not authorized to sign, if it contain a stipulation unknown to his employer, and vice versa. JARDINE SKINNER AND CO. v. NATHORAM, Bourke A.C. 43.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(45)—Liability of Principal—Liability in civil action of principal for consequences of agent's fraud.—In a suit to recover the value of the bullocks hired by the defendant's gomastah to convey quantities of salt from the Government golahs, which, proving to be in excess of the quantity entered in the Government pass owing to the fraud of the gomastah in making an addition to the lawful quantity, was seized by the salt officials as contraband, and the bullocks sold under the provisions of Regulation X of 1819; Held that neither the want of authority on the part of the gomastah, nor the ignorance of the salt merchant, the defendant, could be pleaded to exonerate him from the consequences of his servant's fraudulent act. SADHOOJUNNA v. RAMHURRY MUNDUL, 1 Hay 461.

(46)—Lessor and lessee—Fraud—Presumption.—The mere fact of a lease being obtained from the manager of an estate at an abnormally low rate of rent does not give rise to a legal presumption of fraud. THE ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF BENGAL v. ANUNDO CHUNDER BOSE, 21 W.R. 425.

(47)—Siri Nishanee—Hoondee.—The words "Siri Nishanee," &c., at the head of a hoondee may make the firm so named responsible if the drawer of the hoondee was at the time the gomashta of such firm, but not otherwise. The very fact of the gomashta altering the form in which he had hitherto drawn hoondees on the part of the firm employing him is sufficient indication to the public that he is no longer the gomashta of such firm. SHADI RAM v. ARJI RAJ, 13 P.R. 1871.

(48)—Reg. VII of 1822, ss. 10, cl. 1, 17—Act XIV of 1863, s. 2, cl. 4—Settlement with sole proprietor — Recording of birthyas as zemindars during, and signing of Malikanadar's agent in Wajib-ul-arz of, latter settlement—Omission of Settlement officer to record right of malikanadar— Waiver or relinquishment of right.—About 1838, the settlement of a mouza was made with M as sole proprietor. In 1841, certain persons who had claimed a subordinate proprietary right and had established that right by suit were recorded as birthyas and were made liable for the payment of the Government revenue, while the sole proprietor's right was secured in the shape of a malikana allowance. At the revision of the settlement in 1864, the existence of two separate properties or interests of different kinds was overlooked, and the birthyas were recorded as zemindars. The agent of the representative in interest of the original malikanadar signed the recent wajib-ul-arz. The widow of the auction-purchaser of the rights of the original malikanadar sued in the Revenue Court for arrears of malikana dues, but the suit was dismissed. The lower appellate Court confirmed the Deputy Collector's judgment. Held, that the agent's signature in the wajib-ul-arz cannot be regarded as a waiver on relinquishment or the part of the plaintiff's husband of the malikana right which had been in existence since 1841; and that the oversight and omission on the part of the settlement officer to record a right which had found a place in the records of the preceding twenty-three years, cannot have the effect of extinguishing the malikanadar's right. MUSSUMAT IMAMBUNDEE v. BHUGWANT DASS, 1 N.W.P. 38.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——2—Authority of Agent—continued.

(49)—Suit for possession of lands for rectification of thakbust map and for reversal of Act X decisions—Endorsement—Act of agent—Remand.—The plaintiffs sued for rectification of a certain thakbust map, for the reversal of two Act X decisions, and for the recovery of possession of some lands. The first Court, the lower appellate Court and the High Court decreed in favour of the plaintiffs. On its being found that the lower Courts had before them an incorrect copy of the thakbust map, the original forming part of the record of another suit, the High Court, which refused on appeal to send for the original map, subsequently, on review, sent for it. It appeared that the original map did not, in fact, altogether coincide with the copy filed by either of the parties to the suit. The original contained an endorsement on the back to the effect that the lands in dispute were pointed by Tilak Chundra Roy acting as agent of the plaintiffs, to be measured as belonging to the defendant's talook. The copies originally before the Court did not contain them. Held, the case must be remanded to the lower appellate Court to determine whether Tilak Chandra Roy was the agent of the plaintiffs, and, as such agent and acting within the scope of their authority, did sign the map as a correct map on behalf of the plaintiffs; and whether, as stated by the Ameen in the endorsement on the back of the map, Tilak Chandra, as one of the karmacharis, did point out the lands as belonging to the defendant's talook, and if so, how far these acts of the agent were binding on the plaintiffs. SUDUKHINA CHOWDRAIN v. RAJ MOHAN BOSE, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 377.

(50)—Boundary disputes—Headmen of Village—Agency.—In this case, the authority of the headmen of a village to act for their co-sharers in (among other matters) the adjustment of all disputes relating to boundaries was in question. Two of the Judges of the Sudder Court held that the headmen of the village, although possessing no formal or written authority, must, in virtue of the position and general powers accorded to them by village custom, be held to be duly empowered to act for their co-sharers in such matters.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

The other two Judges of the Sudder Court held that, in order that their acts be binding on their co-sharers, it should be shown that they were specially authorized to perform those acts for them whether by formal power of attorney or otherwise. As the opinions of the Judges were equally divided, the matter was referred under the provisions of s. 7, Reg. VI of 1831 for the opinion of a Judge of the High Court of Calcutta, who did not agree with either of the views but held as follows:—"As a question of fact, the existence of the power may be inferred from the context and acts of the several co-sharers and their ordinary usages: but this inference is not to be lightly drawn. It may be that the headmen ordinarily act for the other sharers and that much of the business of the community is transacted through them; and yet that this authority does not extend to enable them to refer to arbitration a boundary dispute between their own and adjacent villages." Generally no one can become the agent of another person except by the will of that person. His will may be manifested in writing or orally or simply by placing another in a situation in which, according to ordinary rules and usages, that other is understood to represent and act for the person who has so placed him, but in every case it is only by the will of the principal that an agency can be created. If it can be shown that the headmen of the villages or of their particular village, have usually in similar disputes been permitted to represent and act for the other sharers, their authority to do so on a particular occasion may be inferred. Specific authority by power of attorney or otherwise is not necessary; nor, in the absence of such prior authority is "an express or implicit assent and sanction" subsequently required. The requisite authority may be inferred from, the facts of each case. GANGA PERSHAD v. BABOO AJOODHIA PERSHAD, Agra F.B. 31, Ed. 1874, 23.

(51) — Dur-mokurruree lease — Absence of notice of prior agreement by lessor with third party, effect of—Person authorized to negotiate, constructive notice given to.—The dur-mokurruree pottah taken by one of the defendants in this case had been duly registered, and he, having taken the lease without notice of the previous agreement with his co-defendant, had a perfectly good title as against the plaintiff to whom such co-defendant, by the said agreement, had agreed to grant a lease of the same property. Where a person has been authorized to conduct negotiaions respecting a lease, he should be deemed to be such an agent as notice to him, could be notice to the principal. NUDDEAR CHAND SEIN v. KISHOREE LAL CHUKERBUTTY, 7 W.R. 463.

(52)—Title claimed under pretended deed of gift—Lease granted under title—Lessees not competent to maintain possession under.—If a manager, alleging himself to be the proprietor of the trust-property under a pretended deed of gift, should grant a lease in perpetuity, it would be an act clearly beyond his powers as a manager ; and, especially where, as in this case, the deed of gift itself was brought into question and set aside by decree of Court, his lessees cannot claim to maintain possession. SHEO SHUNKUR LALL v. DHURM JHOY POOREE, 8 W.R. 360.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(53)—Lease by Ijaradar, good only for term of ijara—Naib not competent to grant leases without special authority.—A lease granted by an ijaradar can be good only so long as the ijara itself remains in existence, and it is worthless for any period subsequent to the expiry of the ijara. The lease in this case had further been granted by the naib of the ijaradar, and because the decisions have laid down that it does not lie within the ordinary scope of a naib's authority to grant leases, but that special authority to grant them must be proved, the case was remanded so that it may be distinctly ascertained whether the naib had any special authority to grant the lease relied upon. OMA TARA DEBIA v. PEENA BIBEE, 2 W R. 155. [F., 7 W.R. 394 ; R., 26 C. 546 =3 C.W.N. 336.]

(54)—Agent—Lease—Special powers.—Without special powers, an ordinary agent of a zemindar who cannot grant a lease, cannot authorize the quasi transfer of a lease by a tenant to some other party. RAI MOORAREE DOSS v. BUCHA SINGH, 4 N.W.P. 122.

(55)—Principal and agent—Lease by agent with authority--Suit to set aside—Fraud and collusion—Presumption — Ratification.—In a suit to set aside a lease as granted without authority by an agent to the defendant, who was the naib of the estate, the plaintiff alleging fraud and collusion between the agent and the lessee-defendant, held that the owner must be presumed to know what was being done on his behalf by the agent. The owner having (in this case) got the benefit of these acts, it was a fair presumption that he took pains to ascertain what the agent was doing, and to keep himself acquainted with the way in which the estate was being managed. The presumption is that a man acts rightly and not fraudulently and wrongly. The mere circumstance that the rents were low did not give rise to the presumption that there had been fraudulent conduct on the part of the naib, or that he had not stated the circumstances to the agent before obtaining the lease from him. Even if the transaction is liable to be set aside, the ratification by a person having authority from the owner to make enquiries and ratify what had been done, would render it valid. ANUND CHUNDER BOSE v. MR. L.P.D. BROUGHTON, 17 W.R. 301. [Affirm., 21 W.R. 425.]

(56)—Lessor's agent to receive payment of rent, not competent to receive notice of renewal by lessee—Notice to such agent, not notice to lessor.—Plaintiff was the owner of the premises let to the defendants for seven years, the lease being renewable on giving notice to the plaintiff, a month before the expiration of the lease. Plaintiff gave an order to the defendant to pay the rent to one C as her agent. The notice for renewal mentioned in the lease was given by the defendant, not to the plaintiff but to the said C, and plaintiff claimed to re-enter alleging that she had no notice of renewal in the terms of the covenant. Reversing the decree of the first Court, the lower appellate Court decided against the plaintiff, on the ground that there was no express denial that plaintiff had received notice through her agent. The High Court, however, held that C was not shown to be in any way plaintiff's agent for more than receipt of rents so that a notice to him was not sufficient. If, however, C, be found to have given the notice to the plaintiff within the time fixed for the purpose by the lease, that might render the notice sufficient. This not having been either proved or admitted, the case was remanded to the first Court to give the defendants an opportunity of proving that the notice reached the plaintiff in time through her agent. MRS. E. BARNET v. MR. C.B. SKINNER, 2 W.R. 208.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

(57)—Grant of pattas by mofussil naibs—Their powers.—It does not fall within the ordinary scope of the duties of a mofussil naib to grant pattas for fixed rents. It is requisite, therefore, in such cases, that express authority should be proved to make his grants valid. GOLUCKMONEE DABEA v. ASSIMOODEEN, 1 W. R. 56. [F., 3 W.R. Act X, Rul. 1, 7 W.R. 394.]

(58)—Authority—Grant of pottah.—In a suit for a kabooleut at a specified amount of rent, the defendant pleaded a pottah for the period from the gomastha of the plaintiff. Held that the gomastha was not competent to grant pottahs, unless he had special authority from the plaintiff to do so. KALEE COOMAR DOSS v. SHEIKH ANEES, 3 W.R. Act X, Rul. 1. [F., 7 W.R. 394.]

(59)—Act X of 1859, s. 24—Agent for collecting rents—Duty to account to principal — Act XXVI of 1867, s. 6—Cross appeal prior to—Act filed on two rupees stamp —Payment of additional stamp duty.—Where a suit is brought against an agent employed in the collection of rents, under s. 24 of Act X of 1859, the defendant is bound to account to the plaintiff for all the moneys which he might have received ; but he may render such account either by showing that they were paid to plaintiff, or for his use and by his authority; and, as a general rule, such an agent cannot discharge himself of money for which he might be liable to account, by proving payments or advances to third parties unless he can show that such advances or payments were made by the express authority of his master or with his knowledge and consent. [F., 18 W.R. 339.] Even in cases where a petition setting out the grounds of cross-appeal has been filed on a stamp of two rupees before the passing of Act XXVI of 1867,

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—continued.

the Court is precluded from hearing the objection unless the respondent pays an additional stamp-duty as required by s. 6 (e) of the Act. G. L. FAGAN v. CHUNDER KANT BANERJEE, 7 W.R. 452. [F., 7 W.R. 462 ; R., 8 W.R. 322.]

(60)—Remission of rent by Naib — Sanction of zemindar.—Remissions of rent by a Naib, who was shortly afterwards dismissed from his office, required the sanction of the zemindar. BHOOBUN MOHUN v. BHUBO SOONDUREE DEBIA CHOWDHRAIN, 8 W.R. 452.

(61)—Principal and agent—Collection of rent —Question of title.—An agent appointed for the collection of rents cannot be allowed to question the title of his principal to realize the rents. He must pay all that he has collected for his master. DHUNUN JOY KUR v. GOBIND CHURN DOSS MOHUNT, 3 W.R. Act X, Rul. 3.

(62)—General authority to collect rents—Writing, whether essential.— Per Markby, J. Though it has been decided that a general sunnud to collect rents and sue for them must be stamped, there is no decision to the effect that a general authority to collect rents and sue for them must be in writing. MODHOO SOODUN SINGH v. MESSRS. WILLIAM MORAN AND CO., 11 W.R. 43.

(63)—Government officers—Officers acting as agents of Government.—Question of authority of Government officers acting as agents of Government discussed. RUNDLE v SECRETARY OF STATE, 2 Hyde 25. 36. JOHNSON v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 2 Hyde 153.

(64) —Specific performance — Contract with Government through head of department or subordinate agents.—The Executive Engineer employed by the Government requested the plaintiff to state at what rate he would agree to sell his right to quarry kunkur in certain villages. Plaintiff replied that he was willing to dispose of all his interest in the kunkur beds at 0-8-0 per 100 cubic feet of kunkur provided Government purchased all his beds. On the 14th January 1869, the Engineer, in reply to a letter from the plaintiff, wrote to plaintiff that he was directed to communicate with the Government Advocate, and if it were found that the purchase of the quarries would not involve the Government in any liabilities, the purchases were to be made at the rates proposed "to the extent of funds available." The draft agreement sent by the Government Advocate was signed by the plaintiff, who informed the Engineer that he was in a position to transfer the title-deeds of the kunkur quarries to Government. The deed was never signed by any one on behalf of Government and it was returned to the plaintiff by the Engineer with a letter stating that the Government did not desire to entertain the proposal to purchase plaintiff's right as there were no funds available. The question was whether there was such a binding contract between the parties that the Court could decree specific performance of it. Held that the Local Government might contract by the head of a department or through subordinate agents, but the contract made through the subordinate must clearly be within that particular agent's authority, either express or implied. In this case, the Engineer had neither express nor implied authority to contract on behalf of Government to buy the kunkur referred to. He received permission to "buy to the extent of funds available," meaning funds available to him and in his own division. The Secretary to the Government in the Public Works Department had not signed any document addressed to the plaintiff or entered into any agreement on behalf of Government to buy kunkur absolutely. There was thus no contract of which specific performance could be claimed. TAYLOR v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 60 P.R. 1871.

(65)—Agent of Government, extent and scope of authority of—Government whether bound by unauthorised acts of agent.—One B corresponded with Government in connection with a contract to erect certain buildings in the Public Works Department. The Superintending Engineer through whom B communicated with the Government sent on the Government acceptance to B, without a clear explanation, giving B to understand something different from that which the Government had authorised him to do. The Engineer was authorised to say "your contract is not accepted but you may go on with the foundations," but from the reply through the Superintending Engineer B was led to understand that there was an absolute acceptance of the offer made by him. It was held by the Chief Court that the Government was not bound by the contents of the letter of the Superintending Engineer. In cases of public agents, the Government or public authority is not bound unless it manifestly appears that the agent is acting within the scope of his authority or he is held out as having authority to do the act, or is employed, in his capacity as a public agent, to make the declaration or representation of the Government. The Government in this case had in every way made known (by sending to B copies of the Secretary to Government's letters to the Superintending Engineer) that the scope of the employment of the Superintending Engineer was limited to the instructions as regards the making of such contracts as the present. BERTOLA v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 64 P. R. 1875.

(66)—Mookhtears—Their powers—Reg. VIII of 1819, sale under—Notice.—Mookhtears must be considered to have a certain discretion, and unless the contrary is shown, to act with authority in matters which come within the ordinary scope of their duty. So, where formal acts are done by general Mookhtear to enforce the rights of his principals (who are co-sharers) it is unnecessary to trace back his authority in each case to the explicit sanction of every single member of the family. In the case of a sale under Reg. VIII of 1819, where, in the absence of town, village or cutchery on the putnee, the peon sticks up the notice in the Collector's Office and the Sudder Cutchery of the Zemindar, and obtains the receipt of the defaulter, he carries out substantially, as far as he can, the provisions of law regarding notice as laid down by the Regulation. HURRY KISTO ROY v. MOTEE LALL NUNDEE, 14 W. R. 36. [R., 22 W. R. 202.]

Principal and Agent—continued.

——2.—Authority of Agent—concluded.

See ACKNOWLEDGMENT, 1 A.L.J. 355.

Offer to be bound by opposite party's oath, persons entitled to make—Power of attorney empowering agents to act in suit, whether authorises agents to make offer—See ACT X OF 1873, s. 9, 14 B. 455.

Managing Agent of Company, powers of—Agreement against Company's interest—See ACT VI OF 1882, s. 242, 10 P.R. 1905=100 P.L.R. 1905.

Suit in British India by independent Prince—Agent for instituting suit—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 85, 1 O. C. 136.

See CONTRACT—WAGERING CONTRACTS, 12 B.H.C. 51.

Authority of agent to do what is necessary and useful- Power to refer disputes to arbitration—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 188, 3 S.L. R. 164=4 Ind. Cas. 1151.

See DAMAGES—DAMAGES, SUIT FOR, 3 W. R. 54.

See INSPECTION OF DOCUMENTS, 25 C. 294.

See LANDLORD AND TENANT—RELATIONSHIP OF LANDLORD AND TENANT, 4 B. H. C. A.C. 125.

Insufficiency of acknowledgment by agent—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 19, art. 148, 1 A. 642.

See PLAINT—GENERAL, 191 P.R. 1883.

See REVIEW—PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 58 P.R. 1878.

——3.—Commission Agents.

(1)—Contract Act, IX of 1872, s. 202—Discretion to sell at any price—Principal's power to impose limits.—An agreement, in pursuance of which goods are sent to an agent for sale, who pays for them in advance and who is given absolute discretion to sell at any price, and the principal agrees to re-pay shortages in sale-proceeds, creates an agency coupled with interest. The principal cannot therefore vary the terms of the agency by imposing a limit on the prices at which the goods are to be sold. KONDAYYA CHETTI v. NARASIMHULU CHETTI, 20 M. 97.

Principal and Agent—continued.

—— 3.—Commission Agents- continued.

(2)—Suit to recover brokerage commission—Undertaking by broker to find out solvent purchasers—Default of purchaser—Right of broker only to quantum meruit.—This was a suit to recover brokerage alleged to be due to the plaintiff on the sale of a certain agency commission belonging to the defendants. It appeared that the stipulation in a letter to the plaintiff, to the effect that the brokerage was to be paid only on the receipt of the purchase-money by the defendants was to govern the whole of the subsequent dealings between the parties, so that the broker to the extent of his brokerage was to be answerable for the solvency of the purchaser. It was held, therefore, that the plaintiff could not, under the circumstances, claim to recover the entire commission, but was entitled only to a quantum meruit calculating the agreed percentage on the amount actually received by the defendants for the shares sold. Where the bargain actually struck is merely that the broker is to introduce the purchaser, and effect an agreement between him and the seller, the right to be paid commission accrues to the broker when his part of the transaction is performed. Where, however, as the understanding in the present case happened to be, part of the business for which the broker is employed is to find out a solvent purchaser, he will not be entitled to his brokerage till he has done so. If the contract had fallen through owing to the default of the defendants, in this case, plaintiff could claim the whole of his commission. That was not the case here because the defendants were anxious and willing to sell, and their failure to do so was due not to their own but to the default of the purchaser introduced by the plaintiff. STOKES v. SOONDERNATH D. KHOTE, 22 B. 540.

(3)—Contract—Agency—Contract by Insurance Company to pay percentage of premiums to agent—Right of agent to claim such percentage after determination of agency.—Plaintiff sued to recover from the defendant, an Insurance Company a sum of money as due to him on account of the percentage of premiums payable to him, after the determination of his agency, under a contract with the defendant company. Plaintiff alleged that he was engaged as agent by the defendant company on the terms of receiving for every policy taken out through his instrumentality a certain percentage as long as the premiums continued to be paid, irrespective of the continuance between the parties of the relation of employer and agent. Held that, if the contract was a alleged by the plaintiff, he was entitled to claim damages, but could not sue as if he were the assignee of the premiums payable by policy-holders. In the absence of such a contract, the plaintiff was entitled to receive the percentage claimed as long as the agency lasted. RAGHAVA CHARRY v. ORIENTAL LIFE ASSURANCE CO., 10 M.L.J. 236.

(4)—Principal and Agent—What entitles agent to Commission—Express stipulation—Direct intervention.—In the absence of any express stipulation, an agent, to succeed in a claim for commission for selling or letting a house, must show that such sale or lease was the direct result of his intervention and was obtained by means of his agency or some sub-agent of his; it is not sufficient for him to show that such lease or sale was obtained indirectly as a remote and casual consequence of his efforts. JORDAN v. RAM CHANDRA GUPTA, 8 C.W.N. 831.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——3.—Commission Agents—concluded.

Commission—Agent's right to claim—Sale falling through owing to vendor's neglect—See CONTRACT—BREACH OF CONTRACT, 8 M.L.T. 40=6 Ind. Cas. 740.

See SALE—SALE OF GOODS, 17 B. 520.

See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—GENERAL, 20 B. 124.

——4.—Duties and Liabilities of Agents.

(1)—Statement made by — Admissibility. — The statement made by an agent whom the Court regards to make it, is admissible though not on oath. GOVINDJI v. CHHOTALAL, 2 Bom. L.R. 651.

(2)—Agent making profit in the agency.—An agent cannot without the knowledge and consent of his principal be allowed to make any profit out of the matter of his agency beyond his proper remuneration as agent. HARIVALLABHDAS v. BHAI JIVANJI, 4 Bom. L.R. 469 =26 B. 689.

(3)—Agent's profits beyond ordinary compensation.—All profits and advantages which are made by an actual or constructive agent beyond his ordinary compensation, are to be deemed to have been made for the benefit of his employers. SIRDAR HEERA SINGH v. SIRDAR JOWAHIR SINGH, 19 P.R. 1867, Rev.

(4)—Act VIII (B.C.) of 1869, s. 30—Suit by principal more than a year after termination of agency—Account signed by agent—Fresh cause of action.—Suit by principal against agent. The defendant pleaded that the suit, having been brought more than a year after the termination of the agency, was out of time under the provisions of s. 30 of Act VIII (B.C.) of 1869. It was, however, proved in the case that the defendant had subsequently signed an account and given a letter to the plaintiff, showing that a balance was due to the latter. Held that the account with the letter furnished a fresh cause of action. PEAREE MOHUN GHOSE v. MESSRS. JARDINE, SKINNER AND CO., 22 W.R. 338.

(5)—Agent underselling goods—Agent directed not to sell goods below a certain price without permission — Agent underselling the goods—Liability—Damages—Measure of damages.—The plaintiffs, a trading firm in Italy, consigned to the defendants, a firm in Bombay, certain goods consisting of lead ore, under an agreement which provided that the defendants were not to sell the goods without the plaintiffs' consent below a stated price. They were sold below that price without that consent; whereupon the plaintiffs brought this suit for damages arising out of breach of contract. The original Court held that the measure of damages was the difference between the price realized and the cost of production:—Held, that the measure of damages awarded was not a correct measure; the correct measure was the difference between the price actually realized and the price which would have been realized had the defendants used reasonable diligence and skill. FABBRICHE v. JAGMOHANDAS, 1 Bom. L.R. 718.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——4.—Duties and Liabilities of Agents—cont.

(6)—Principal and agent—Claim for services rendered—Principle upon which calculation is made.—Plaintiff was a law agent but not an authorized practitioner of any Court. Defendant, an ex-member of the Royal House of Delhi, was ordered by Government to remove out of Delhi. At his request, plaintiff wrote letters to Government on his behalf, and brought the case of the defendant to the notice of the Secretary of State for India. An enquiry was instituted and in the result, Government ordered the defendant to reside at a place between Delhi and Calcutta. For the services thus rendered, defendant paid plaintiff a sum of Rs. 1,000. Having also suffered some losses during the mutiny, defendant again requested the plaintiff to exert himself and apply to Government on his behalf for compensation, and entered into an agreement for that purpose which ran as follows. "I Mirza Elahi Baksh agree with Mr. Fenwick that I will pay the said Mr. Fenwick ten per cent. on whatever I shall receive from the Government by way of compensation or reward. That I will make no objection. That therefore I have written this agreement for payment of 10 per cent. so that it may become a sannad." It was upon this agreement that the present suit was brought claiming a sum of Rs. 7,930, being 10 per cent. on Rs. 79,379 paid to the defendant as compensation for his losses during the mutiny. The defence was that the plaintiff was negligent in the performance of his duties, and that it was not through his intervention that the defendant obtained payment of this large sum of money, and in fact the Secretary of State had made an order directing a further enquiry into the matter, but when, upon such an order, the Government of India had to determine the amount, the plaintiff did not interest himself in his employer and did not move a finger on his behalf; though he wrote letters, etc., which procured to the defendant a re-hearing of the case, yet when the question as to the determination of the amount of the loss to be paid to the defendant arose, the plaintiff did not render him any help for that purpose. The questions therefore for consideration were:—(1) Did the fact that the amount of compensation was paid to the defendant without the intervention of the plaintiff, disentitle him to his commission according to the agreement? (2) Had the fact that the plaintiff was not possessed of the requisite skill, any bearing on the question? Held that in regard to (2) it is clear that as the defendant himself had chosen the plaintiff for the purpose, he must be presumed to possess such skill as is found in persons of his class, and unless the defendant showed that even in the exercise of that skill, he was so negligent and that it resulted in loss to him, it was of no avail, and the defendant could not rely upon it for reduction of damages. But in that case, the defendant must shew that such neglect directly caused loss to him: on evidence, however, it was perfectly clear that notwithstanding there was supineness and neglect on his part, the enquiry was instituted and was going on even in his absence, and that shewed that the neglect did not cause any loss to him. As to (1), it was perfectly clear that it was upon the letter to the Secretary of State for India written by the plaintiff on behalf of the defendant that a further enquiry was ordered, and that was quite enough to entitle plaintiff to payment of his commission. MR. FENWICK v. MIRZA ELAHI BAKSH, 25 P.R. 1866.

Principal and Agent—continued.

—4.—Duties and Liabilities of Agents—ctd.

(7)—Indian Contract Act, s. 194—Government Road Superintendent appointed to supervise building—Responsibility—Reasonable diligence —Compensation for loss—Bad materials, supply of, and negligent supervision—Damages.—A Road Superintendent under Government employ was appointed by the Deputy Commissioner to superintend the building of a Tahsil Cutchery. He received Rs. 12,360 for its construction. After its completion, the Executive Engineer reported it to be worth Rs. 6,157. Thereupon he was asked to pay back Rs. 3,500. He paid nearly half of the sum demanded. When the Government sued him for the balance, he pleaded that the work was fairly good, that it was done by himself under the supervision of the Officers above him, that he purchased the materials under the direct management of his superiors, and that, consequently, he was not at all liable to pay back anything. Both the lower Courts more or less decreed the claim of the Government. The Chief Court, in remanding the suit, held, (a) that, according to s. 194 of the Indian Contract Act, the defendant having been appointed as agent of the Government, was responsible to the latter, that as such agent he was bound to act with reasonable diligence, and to use such skill as he possessed (even assuming that he, being only a Road Surveyor, was not bound to conduct the business with as much skill as was possessed by professional builders) and that he was liable to make compensation to the Government in respect of the direct consequences of his own neglect, want of skill or misconduct; (b) that the Court of first instance, in making its enquiry whether the defendant (as to whose want of special skill there should have been a finding and also as to whether Government had notice of it) acted with reasonable diligence and such skill as he possessed (which was a principal issue before it to try) should have decided the question of the defendant's liability in respect of his bills for materials and work from the question of his effective or non-effective supervision; (c) that the damages should not have been assessed without due regard to the defendant's opportunities of keeping up a complete supervision with reference to his other work. BALMOKAND v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 77 P.R. 1874.

(8)—Agent, Liability of, for negligence—Unstamped document, Admissibility of.—Case where it was held that, under the circumstances thereof, a company had sustained loss in consequence of the negligence of their agent and that he was bound to make it good. A document which was unstamped having been received as evidence in the lower Court, the objection as to the want of stamp is untenable in the Appellate Court as not affecting the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the lower Court. G. CRAWLEY v. R. MALING, 1 Agra 63. [F., 7 N.W.P. 124.]

(9)—Banian—Liability—Custom.—Where a man deals with a banian, qua banian, the principal does not incur any liability whatever. There is a peculiar presumption in Calcutta, that where a seller deals with a banian of an European firm, qua banian, he can look to the banian for his price, and to the banian alone. SHEIK FAIZULLA v. RAMKAMAL MITTER, 2 B.L.R.O.C. 7.

(10)—Contract with Municipal Overseer for doing Municipal work—Personal liability—Quasi contract—Amendment of plaint.—The plaintiff sued one M. overseer of the Municipal Office, for the recovery of a sum of money due on a contract under which plaintiff had done a quantity of earth work for the Municipality. There was no evidence to show that the defendant had pledged his personal credit. The defendant clearly contracted for the Municipality, and for the performance of work well known by the plaintiff to be a Municipal work. The Municipality ignored the contract. Held that the contract in the present case was a quasi contract and that the defendant could not be made personally liable in the present action of contract. Held, further, that the plaint could not be amended so as to make the defendant liable in tort for a misrepresentation of his authority. In re MOHENDRONATH MOOKERJEE, 9 W.R. 206.

(11)—Rents received but alleged to be embezzled by agent, suit to recover, cognizability of, under Revenue law.—The defendant, a gumashtah employed to collect rents, was sued for sums collected by him and not duly paid over or accounted for to his employer. Held, whether, with respect to moneys if any retained by him, he had committed an offence within the Penal Law or not, his liability still continued and the lower appellate Court was wrong in its decision that, the plaintiff having charged the defendant with what amounts to "embezzlement," the plaintiff's claim to recover the sum sued for was not cognizable under the Rent Law. MESSRS. R. SKINNER CO. v. RUJUB ALI KHAN, 2 W.R. Act X, Rul. 105.

Principal and Agent—continued.

—4.—Duties and Liabilities of Agents—ctd.

(12)—Gratuitous agent, liability of, for gross negligence.—A gratuitous agent is not bound to undertake the agency, but having undertaken it, he is liable for any loss sustained by his principal through his gross negligence. What is gross negligence is a question on the facts of each particular case. G. V. AGNEW v. THE INDIAN CARRYING COMPANY, 2 M.H.C. 449.

(13)—Agent—Principal—Suit.—According to the established principles of law, a suit against an agent is bad in law. The principal only must be sued. HURISH CHUNDER TALAPATTUR v. MR. W. P. O'BRIEN, 14 W.R. 248.

(14)—Principal and agent—Contract—Consideration—Agent's personal liability.—For goods sold and delivered to him the first defendant addressed a note to the 2nd defendant, his agent, calling upon him to pay a certain sum of money to the plaintiff, the vendor of the goods. The 2nd defendant endorsed as follows on the note: "The sum mentioned in the perwana I will pay within 15 days from this date."—In a suit for recovery of the amount mentioned in the note, held, that the second defendant was not at all liable. KALEE MOHUN SIRCAR v. HUMAUN KADAR MAHOMED ALI MIRZA, 25 W.R. 91.

(15)—Agent—Liability of agent to third parties—Money paid by mistake—Liability as between two innocent persons.—M who was manager to K got two letters from a certain person purporting to be written by K, but which afterwards turned out to be forgeries. One of these letters directed him to obtain Rs.2,500 worth of notes from the manager of the M.S. Bank, and the other to the manager asking him to send the notes through M. The latter presented both the letters to the manager of the Bank, and procured the notes, giving a receipt which he signed for K. He delivered the notes to the person who had brought him the letters. As the letters were forgeries, the Bank suffered loss and it sued M to recover the money. Held that in presenting the letter, in receiving the notes, and in granting a receipt for them, it may be that M was in some sense an agent of K; but inasmuch as the notes were given under the authority of the letter addressed to the manager of the Bank itself, and not in consequence of any representation made by M, the latter cannot be held liable for the loss sustained by the former. MOONEY v. THE MUSSORIE SAVINGS BANK, 6 N.W.P. 319.

(16)—Money borrowed by agent—Personal transactions of agent mixed with those of principal—Right of lender to decree against agent personally.—This was a suit by the plaintiff, against a guardian mother of certain minors, her sons and her agent to recover the amount of a bond executed by them. The lower appellate Court dismissed the suit on the ground that, as the bond did not recite how much was borrowed for the purposes of the estate, and how much for the private purposes of the agent, the latter was not authorized to mix up his own private transactions with those of his principal; and, further, that the bona fides of the transaction had not been established. On second appeal, the High Court held that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree against the agent. The agent exceeded his authority in mixing up his private transactions with those of his principal. So far as regards the estate, the transaction on the part of the lender was not bona fide inasmuch as he did not use proper diligence to satisfy himself that the agent was borrowing for the legal necessities of the estate. Consequently the agent alone was liable and he, having admitted execution of the bond but failed to prove that he borrowed for the benefit of the estate, a decree was passed against him personally. JUGGURNATH ROY CHOWDHRY v. MUNOREKHA DOSSEE, 2 W.R. 156.

(17)—Contract—Agency—Contract by agent on behalf of Captain and owners of ship then in the roads—Liability of agent.—The defendants contracted with the plaintiffs as agents of the Captain and owners of a ship then in the Madras roads. The plaintiffs were aware of this at the time when the contract was made. The Captain was at the time in charge of the ship. At the time of the contract, nothing was said by either party as to the person or persons on whose credit the contract was made. All that occurred was that defendants, known by plaintiffs to have been acting as agents for the Captain and owners of the ship, agreed with the plaintiffs to carry certain goods of the plaintiffs on board the ship to Calcutta. The defendants did not, at the time of the contract, in terms say that they contracted only as agents. The plaintiffs did not know the names of the owners nor of the Captain; nor had they any further or other knowledge of the latter than that which his designation by his office of master of the ship conveyed. Held that, in the absence of anything more than knowledge that the defendants were acting as agents of the master and owners of a ship in the roads, a decision declaring the agents liable was strictly in accordance with English law. PATER v. GORDON, 7 M.H.C. 82.

(18)—Principal and agent—Liability of each—Cause of action—Jurisdiction—No carrying on business within limits.—Where the plaintiff knew that the defendant contracted on behalf of his principal and not personally, he must sue the principal and not the agent for breach of contract. When the present suit was brought against the defendant in the Small Cause Court at Delhi, he had departed from that place and was not carrying on business there, nor was he represented by an agent there. It was therefore held that the Court had no jurisdiction. MEERKHAN v. C. J. MUNDEN, 30 P.R. 1867.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——4.—Duties and Liabilities of Agents—ctd.

(19)—S. 230, Contract Act (1872)—Presumption arises when — Rebuttal — Undisclosed principal — The presumption, which arises under s. 230, only arises when an agent is acting for a principal, so that such a presumption cannot be said to be rebutted by the mere fact of a person signing himself as agent for a principal. The agent may nevertheless be liable. But where the principal's name is not disclosed at the time of the contract, a subsequent disclosure of the principal's name is not sufficient to rebut the presumption against the agent's personal liability. GUBHOY v. AVETOOM, 17 C. 449.

(20)—Personal liability of agent on contract —Disclosure of principal's name as a ground of exemption—Disclosure of principal's name by agent—Semble.—If, on the fact of a written contract, an agent appears to be personally liable, he cannot escape liability by evidence of any disclosure of his principal's name apart from the contract. Quære.—Whether it is a sufficient disclosure of the principal's name by the agent, if it is not done on the face of a written contract by the latter. SOOPROMONIAN SETTY v. HEILGERS, 5 C. 71=4 C. L.R. 377.

(21)—Payment to agent—Agent's omission to pay to the principal—Cause of action against agent.—A suit by a plaintiff against an agent on the ground that the latter received certain moneys from plaintiff and did not pay the same to his principal whereby he was damaged is not maintainable, in the absence of an express contract of the defendant with the plaintiff to pay the moneys to his principals. The disposal of the moneys received by the agent is a matter in which the agent is responsible to his principal only. NAGAR MAL v. PIRBHU DIAL, 57 P.R. 1887.

(22)—Agency—Agent of one share-holder drawing money under mooktarnamah from his principal—Liability to other share-holders.—An agent of one co-sharer is not liable to other co-sharers for money drawn by him under a mooktarnamah from his principal, and not as trustee for the others, although the agent may have, when paying over the money to his principal, taken from him a bond by way of precaution to protect himself from any future possible claim by the co-sharers. SHAIK WALEE MAHOMED v. FATIMA BIBEE, 5 W. R. 172.

(23)—Proprietorship of land — Purchase of land for benefit of whole village—Agency—Adverse possession.—A village having been washed away by flood, it was necessary to provide house sites for the fishermen who formed the inhabitants of that village. At the instance of the Deputy Commissioner, the lambardar of the village negotiated for the purchase of some lands from the zemindars of the adjoining village. The sales were in a way forced upon these zemindars for the benefit of the fishermen. The lumbardar managed to make out many of these sales in his own name and to have his name recorded at Settlement as proprietor, and after some time set up an exclusive title to these lands. Held that the sales were intended for the benefit of the whole village, that the lumbardar must be considered to have acted as agent for the village in respect of the purchases, and that his claim to exclusive possession was therefore untenable. AHMED YAR v. SHAH BUKSH, 104 P.R. 1868.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——4.—Duties and Liabilities of Agents—ctd.

(24)—Hundis drawn in favour of plaintiff as agent of defendant to pay for goods brought by the latter—Agent, how far responsible for negligence in respect of the hundis—Del Credere agency, express or implied contract necessary for creation of—Implication of contract from dealings of particular parties or from usage of trade.—Plaintiff did duty as the agent, at Mooltan, of the defendant, a merchant in Sialkote. For paying the price of certain goods purchased by him at Mooltan, hundis for Rs. 2,000 were drawn by defendant in favour of plaintiff on certain Amritsar firms. A firm in Mooltan purchased the above hundis on 10 days' credit. The Amritsar firms fully paid up the hundis but the Mooltan firm, when only Rs. 1,000 had been paid, became bankrupt, and only Rs. 300 and odd were subsequently recovered from the firm. Held that the liability of the plaintiff in respect of the hundis depended on the question whether, when selling, he acted as a del credere agent or not. The defendant pleaded that the plaintiff had guaranteed the solvency of the purchasers of the hundis and the due payment of the price for which they purchased them. But this was not made out. Unless the plaintiff was something more than an ordinary broker or factor, and was acting either by express or implied contract as a del credere agent which he never once became, it was the defendant that would be responsible for the loss on the transaction. It was also found and was not denied by the defendant that the Mooltan firm, at the time of the sale of the hundis to them, was in good credit, so that the grant of 10 days' credit to the purchasers for the payment of the amount quite accorded with the usage in Mooltan. Although, if the plaintiff had expressly or impliedly undertaken to guarantee the solvency of the purchaser, he might then be responsible, yet if he had undertaken as in the present case, only to make a bargain between his principal and the purchaser, he could not be subjected to subsequent liability. HURDIAL AND BISHENDIAL v. KHILLOO MULLICK, 98 P.R. 1869.

(25)—Bill of exchange—Unconditional acceptance by agent — Liability to pay.—Plaintiffs drew a bill on the defendant payable at B in favour of certain persons, directing the amount to be charged to S and R. The defendant's agent at B, after accepting the bill unconditionally, refused to pay as S and R failed before it was due. The plaintiffs having paid the payees sued the defendant. Held that the defendant's agent's unconditional acceptance of the bill must be viewed as an admission of the defendant's obligation to pay the amount when due, and that he must be held liable for the same. SALIG RAM v. JUGGUN NATH, 1 Agra 137.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——4.—Duties and Liabilities of Agents—ctd.

(26)—Principal and agent—Previous suit against Government as representing principal dismissed—Subsequent suit against agent and principal—Res judicata.—A lent money to B as agent of C. Government having confiscated C's property, A sued Government for this debt but the suit was dismissed. He then sued B and C. It was admitted by the plaintiff that B was only the agent of C, but the plaintiff stated that he looked to B alone for payment, as he had no hope of getting the money from C. Held that the suit must be dismissed as against A who was admittedly an agent, that, as against C, the suit was not barred by the dismissal of the previous suit. For the issue in the previous suit was as to the liability of Government as having taken up the debts of C by having confiscated his property; it had no reference to C's own liability; whereas in the present suit, the issue was as to the liability of B or C. The plaintiff's statement that he looked to B alone for the payment of the money, cannot, in the face of his admission that B acted as agent of C, have the effect of exonerating C. against whom, therefore the suit had to proceed. MAHOMED MOHKAM v. RAMZANEE, 10 P.R. 1868.

(27)—Principal and agent—Liability of each—Cause of action—Jurisdiction—Not carrying on business within limits.—Where the plaintiff knew that the defendant contracted on behalf of his principal and not personally, he must sue the principal and not the agent for breach of contract. When the present suit was brought against the defendant in the Small Cause Court at Delhi, he had departed from that place and was not carrying on business there, nor was he represented by an agent there It was therefore held that the Court had no jurisdiction. MEERKHAN v. C.J. MUNDEN, 30 P.R 1867.

(28)—Contract—Principal and agent—Purchase by agent in rising market—Duty of agent—Repudiation by principal.—Agents who buy indigo seed in a rising market under an order to purchase on the most favourable terms, cannot experiment by sowing a sample and waiting before they purchase to see whether it will germinate. They are only bound to act to the best of their judgment and to use proper care and skill as agents in purchasing what they are ordered to purchase. It is incumbent on the principal to show affirmatively that the agent had been guilty of negligence in executing his order before he can repudiate the agent's action. BETTS v. ARBUTHNOT & CO., 19 W.R. 65.

(29)—Principal and agent—Promissory note by agent—Principal undisclosed—Liability of principal—Oral evidence, admissibility of.—

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——4.—Duties and Liabilities of Agents—ctd.

Where a gomashtah signed a promissory note without disclosing the names of his principals, held that the latter could not be made liable; no parol evidence is admissible with a view of establishing their liability. SHEO CHURN SAHOO v. MR. G. CURTIS, 3 W.R. 139.

(30)—Bankruptcy of agent, effect of—Breach of contract—Damages—Amendment of bill of complaint.—This was a suit for foreclosure of a mortgage for Rs 50,000 during a certain contract which, the plaintiffs contended, had determined by the bankruptcy of their Calcutta agents. The defence was that the contract was not so determined; and that, even if it were, the defendant had a right of lien or set off, which would cover the amount of the advances. This set-off consisted of the amount of loss in the sale of silk, which the defendants after the said bankruptcy, had shipped direct to London and sold there on non-acceptance by the plaintiffs; and of a claim of Rs. 18,024, the amount of a bill of the said agents, which the defendant had accepted from them as payment for silk, but which bill was dishonoured after the said bankruptcy. Cl. 6 of the agreement was as follows: —"The silk to be paid for on delivery. Delivery to be taken within ten days of the arrival of any parcel in Calcutta; failing the payment within that time, Carr, Tagore & Co. may sell it at the market price; and should this be under the contract rate, you agree to pay the difference." Cl. 10 of the agreement was as follows:—"As you have no authority to make advances previous to the receipt of the silk, and as Carr, Tagore & Co. stipulate for the advance in part of the sum which they are out of pocket, to carry on the cultures, the advances proposed being Rs. 50,000 at such times and in such portions as they may require after the delivery of the first parcel of silk under this contract, so that such advances shall not, at any time, be in excess of Rs. 50,000 beyond the silk delivered, for which interest at the rate of 6 per cent. will be allowed, and it is agreed that the question of advances shall be an open question; and that, in the event of advances being authorised, the contract shall at once be in force. The lower Court held that, under these two clauses, the defendant could not resort to the advances for their set-off; that the plaintiffs were not liable for the Rs. 18,024; and that the contract was not determined. Plaintiff also alleged a series of frauds on the part of their agents, with whom defendants were in collusion, but these charges were abandoned at the hearing. Held, that acceptance by the agent binds the principal where there is no fraud; that voluntary acceptance of an agent's bill as payment discharges the principal; that a contract is not determined by death or bankruptcy of an agent, unless there has been an express stipulation to the effect; that an impossibility of fulfilling the terms of a contract must be clearly established in order to avoid a liability for breach thereof; that when a place of delivery is specified in a contract, delivery must be made there; that the plaintiff, having failed to prove alleged fraud in a deed, although entitled to relief under a distinct head of equity, will not be allowed to make a new case, and cannot, in the same suit, obtain a decree on the footing of the said deed ; that amendment of a bill will not be allowed, if it appear that an account, being the relief attainable, would have been given, if demanded, and that the plaintiff has not offered to perform his part of a contract and allow compensation for breaches thereof to the defendant and to pay any balance that should be found against him ; that the mode of ascertaining damages for breach of contract prescribed in the contract must be adopted, and the remedy by action at once accrues. POLE v. GORDON, 2 Hyde 289 = Cor. 83 = Bourke O.C. 1.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——4.—Duties and Liabilities of Agents—ctd.

(31)—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 192, 194 — Agent – Sub-agent — Negligence.— The plaintiffs were a firm engaged in business at K. The defendants were partners in another firm engaged in business at the same place. It was usual that, when one firm was sending a person to Calcutta to purchase goods for them, the other firm took advantage of the opportunity to get the same person to purchase goods on their behalf. The defendants' firm sent the third defendant, a member of the firm, to Calcutta, to purchase goods, and the plaintiffs made over a sum of money to the second defendant in order that the third defendant might purchase articles for them. The third defendant lost through his own negligence the money given by plaintiffs. It was found that the defendants' firm were agents for the plaintiffs' firm and had implied if not express authority to appoint a sub-agent. Held that the defendants' firm was, by cl. 2 of s 192 of the Contract Act, responsible to the plaintiffs, the principals for the acts of the sub-agent and that therefore defendants' firm, and not only the third defendant, was responsible for the amount lost. Held also that s. 194 has no application to a sub-agent. SEKUNDER MONDUL v. NOCOWRI BISWAS, 11 C. L. R. 547.

(32)—Principal and agent— Contract with defendant as servant of Government—Defendant not personally liable—Liability of Government.—Plaintiff sued to recover from the defendant money being the unpaid portion of the price of bricks taken by the latter from the former. Plaintiff admitted that he was aware that, at the time the defendant gave him orders for the bricks, he was a servant of Government. Defendant stated that plaintiff was aware at the time of the contract that he was acting forGovernment and that the plaintiff was aware that the bricks were required for building bridges ; and, on the question that had to be decided as to whether defendant could, under the circumstances, be considered personally liable, the High Court was of opinion that the evidence in the case was sufficient to justify the Judge of the Small Cause Court in coming to the conclusion that the contract, in the case was rather with the Government and not with its agent personally and that the said Judge had rightly fixed the amount recoverable from Government by the plaintiff. SREE NATH ROY v. MR. D. S. ROSS, 4 W.R.S.C.C. Ref. 13.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——4.—Duties and Liabilities of Agents—cld.

Suit against agent for account—Sums claimed in plaint as damages—Necessity for taking accounts prior to decree—See ACCOUNTS—SUIT FOR ACCOUNTS, 6 C. 754 = 8 C.L.R. 321.

Receiver appointing tahsildar —Agent and sub-agent—Suit for accounts not maintainable against tahsildar—Sub-agent liable to render accounts to receiver—See ACCOUNTS—SUIT FOR ACCOUNTS, 8 C.L.J. 114 = 12 C.W.N. 1035.

See ACCOUNTS—SUIT FOR ACCOUNTS, 14 C. 147, P.C. = 13 I.A. 123.

Liability of agent to render accounts—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, ss. 30 and 213, 95 P.L.R. 1901 = 46 P.R. 1901.

See JURISDICTION— CAUSES OF JURISDICTION, 22 P.R. 1874.

See MASTER AND SERVANT, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 67.

Adverse possession by agent—Agent acquiring title by adverse possession as against his principal—See POSSESSION— ADVERSE POSSESSION, 7 Bom. L.R. 836.

See VARIANCE BETWEEN PLEADING AND PROOF, 6 B.L.R. 273 = 14 W.R. 181.

See VENDOR AND PURCHASER--PURCHASE-MONEY AND OTHER PAYMENTS BY PURCHASER, 4 B.H.C. O.C. 125.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal.

(1)—Purchase of property by agent—Constructive purchase—Proof.—In this case, a principal sued his agent on the allegation that he, having the charge and the management of his funds, fraudulently bought certain properties out of these funds in the names of his wives. The suit was to recover the properties. The Court observed that, in order to make out a case of constructive purchase at all, the plaintiff would have to prove not only that the defendant was his agent, but that at the time he made the purchases he had in his hands funds of the plaintiff sufficient to make the purchase. The defendant may have been the plaintiff's agent at the time he made the purchases, and he may have had no means to make the purchases out of his own funds, but these two facts alone are quite inadequate by themselves to establish even a prima facie case of constructive purchase. MUSST. ROOHONISSA v. SYUD WOOLFUT ALI, 3 W.R. 232.

(2)—Election to sue agent—Dismissal of suit —Suit against principal.—Where a suit by a creditor against the agent of his debtor as being personally liable for the debt, is dismissed on the ground that the creditor gave credit to the principal, the creditor does not lose his remedy by suit against the principal. RAMAN v. VAIRAVAN, 7 M. 392.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

(3)—Principal and agent—Authority of agent—Liability of principal—Diligence of vendor—Notice.—Plaintiff received an order from the defendant R who was Manager of the Putturghatta Indigo Factory, for certain maunds of indigo seed at a certain rate. In the body of the letter ordering the seed, R styled himself the Manager of the factory though he distinctly signed himself "R for C," a stranger. The plaintiff now brought a suit for the recovery of the balance of purchase money against R, C and the owner of the factory. The owner of the Factory contended that R had no authority from him to purchase the seed; that he never received the seed; and that the transaction was a private one between R and the plaintiff. It was found that the seed was not purchased for or on behalf of the factory. It was also found that it was not within the reasonable scope of R's authority to make such purchases. Held (Glover, J. dissenting) that the owner of the factory was not liable for the claim. The plaintiff was bound, before he supplied R with the seed, even for the owner of the factory, to be quite certain that, R held authority to make the purchase. R in signing "R for C" disclosed to the plaintiff that. C was his principal and not the owner of the factory. Had the plaintiff made any enquiry at the time he might have ascertained for whom the seed was required. ROGHOOBURDYAL MUNDER v. MR. ALEXANDER CHRISTIAN, 3 W.R. 123.

(4)—General power-of-attorney — Principal bound by agent's act—Court not competent to import limitations into deed.—Plaintiff sued the defendants for cancelment of a perpetual jote jumma granted to the latter by the general agent and the then owner of a factory—a grant which was entirely beyond the scope of that agent's authority. Differing from the first Court, the first appellate Court was of opinion that the power-of-attorney gave the agent no power to make such transfer and on that ground gave the plaintiff a decree. On appeal, the High Court reversed the decision and revived that of the first Court. By the power-of-attorney, the agent was vested with the most extensive powers as to the transactions with zemindars and ryots or the Government. There were no words in the instrument expressly or impliedly limiting such powers, and it would not be competent to the Court to import into the power-of-attorney a limitation which the party executing it had omitted to enter in it himself. If persons do not limit their confidence, the Court cannot limit it for them when they find that it has been misplaced; but they must, and those who purchased from them must, also suffer the effect of their own ill-judged act. The lease granted by the agent to the defendant in this case was thus within the scope of the powers of the agent and was not liable to be set aside. SHOSHEE BHOOSHUN DUTT v. CHUNDER COOMAR ROY, 6 W.R. 41.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

(5)—Costs — Dismissal of suit brought by agent—Principal when liable for costs.—Where a suit brought by an agent was dismissed on the ground that it must have been instituted by the principal, in the absence of any evidence that the suit was brought by the directions of the principal, the latter cannot be made liable for costs. BHOBO TARINEE DOSSIA v. MADHUB CHUNDER DUTT, 7 W.R. 143.

(6)—Liability of agents—Agent of foreign principal—Presumption of law as to whom credit is given.—Where it is sought to make the agent of a foreign principal liable on a contract, there is no presumption of law, but the case must be determined by the particular facts. But in the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed, as a matter of fact, that credit was given to the agent. MCGAVIN v. WILSON, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 405.

(7)—Liability of agents—Banian, Liability of — Custom.—There is a presumption in Calcutta that, where a vendor of goods deals with a banian of a European firm, qua banian, he is only to look to the banian for the price. FAIZULLAH v. RAMKAMAL MITTER, 2 B.L.R. O.C. 7; JUGGOBUNDOO SHAW v. GRANT, SMITH AND CO., 2 Hyde 129=Cor. 47; S. C. on appeal, GRANT, SMITH AND CO. v. JUGGOBUNDOO SHAW, Bourke A.O C. 117=2 Hyde 301.

(8)—Contract Act, s. 233—Suit against agent on hypothecation bond—Purchase of hypotheca by decree-holder in execution of decree—Delivery successfully resisted by principal—Subsequent suit against principal in respect of same matter—Maintainability.—A suit was instituted to recover the amount due on an hypothecation bond. At the time when the suit was instituted, the plaintiff knew that the defendant was only an agent. Having obtained a decree, the plaintiff satisfied it in part by attachment of a sum of money. Then he caused the hypotheca to be sold and purchased it himself. But the delivery of possession was successfully resisted by the principal on the ground that the purchaser derived no title from the judgment-debtor. Thereupon the plaintiff instituted a suit against the principal for the balance of the amount due on the bond. Held, that when once the plaintiff elected to hold the agent responsible upon the contract, to sue him and, having obtained judgment and decree against him, to execute such decree and write up satisfaction thereof, it was not competent afterwards for him to maintain a suit against the principal in respect of the same subject-matter. BIR BHADDAR SEWAK PANDE v. SARJU PRASAD, 9 A. 681 =A.W.N. 1887, 229. [R., 22 A. 307.]

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

(9)—Railway Companies—Agreement for interchange of traffic—Liability for loss of goods—Agency.—The plaintiff at Bellary, a station in the Madras Railway, delivered there to the Madras Railway Company a bale of cloth belonging to the plaintiff to be conveyed thence to Sholapur, a station on the G.I.P Railway, and there to be delivered to the plaintiff. The bale was conveyed safely from Bellary past Raichore, where the Madras Railway terminated, and was lost between Raichore and Sholapur on the defendants' (G.I.P. Railway Company's) line, and was never delivered to the plaintiff, who by the present suit claimed damages to the extent of the value of the lost bale. The receipt was granted by the Madras Railway Company "subject to the Rules and Regulations in force on this or any other Railway over which the goods may pass, and must be produced before the goods can be delivered." There existed also between the two Companies an agreement regarding the interchange of traffic, providing that goods should be booked through to and from all stations on both lines at certain stated rates, that in such cases one Company should receive payment and should account to the other; and that any claim for loss or damage should be met with by the Company in whose custody the goods were lost or damaged. Held that the suit was rightly brought against the G.I.P. Railway Company, whether it might or might not have been brought also against the Madras Railway Company, because the agreement between the two Companies showed that each Company became the agent of the other for the purpose of, at least, so much of the traffic as benefited that other Company, although the agreement may not have actually constituted a partnership between the two Companies. N B.—Westropp, C.J., reviews in his judgment the several English and Indian cases connected with this question. THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY COMPANY v. RADHAKISAN KHUSHALDAS, 5 B. 371. [R., 3 Bom L.R. 260.]

(10)—Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 231, 232—Sale to agent of undisclosed principal —Right of unpaid vendor—Accounts between principal and agent not material.—The Indian Contract Act has by s. 232 adopted as regards the undisclosed principal, concerned as such in a transaction, the qualification imposed on him by the English Law, viz., that he must take the contract subject to all the equities, in the same way as if the agent were the real principal. The section makes the right of the principal to require performance, subject to the rights and obligations existing between the agent and the other contracting party, and thus qualifies the unlimited right of the principal given by the first portion of s. 231. In the converse case of the other contracting party, however, the section does not impose upon him the qualification laid down by the rules of English Law, viz., that his (the other contracting party's) right to hold the principal liable is subject to the condition that the principal has not paid the agent or that the state of the account between the principal and the agent has not been altered to the prejudice of the principal. The only qualification imposed on the assertion, by the other contracting party, of his rights against the principal, is that imposed by s. 234, namely, that he has not induced the principal to act upon the belief that the agent only will be held liable. PREMJI TRIKAMDAS v. MADHOWJI MUNJI, 4 B. 447.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

(11)—Agent—Purchase by, binding on principal in its entirety.—In respect of the purchase of property by an agent on behalf of the principal, the latter may adopt or reject the agent's acts as he pleases; but, if he adopts them, he must take the property subject to the conditions with which the agent encumbered it, notwithstanding any secret arrangement between them, not known to third parties ISHEN CHUNDER SINGH v. SHAMA CHURN, W.R. 1864, 3.

(12)—Income-tax Act (XXXII of 1860), s. 97, return made under, not conclusive evidence regarding perpetuity of tenure—Fraudulent statement by agent, principal not bound by.—The principal point for decision in this case was whether a tenure held by one R, and now in the hands of the defendant, was a tenure in perpetuity or only a tenure for the life-time of R who admittedly held it at a fixed rent. The evidence relied on to show that the tenure was a tenure in perpetuity was a return made by the plaintiff in which it was described as one in perpetuity. It was contended that that return made to the income-tax officer under the terms of Rule 4, s. 97 of Act XXXII of 1860, was absolutely conclusive on the point of perpetuity of tenure as against the party who made it. The High Court held that the return could not be conclusive evidence upon the point of perpetuity against the plaintiff. Further, the statement was not one actually made by the plaintiff but had been made by some person on his behalf, and although, for statements of the agent made by him bona fide on behalf of his principal, the latter may well be held liable as for acts falling within the scope of the agent's authority, it could never be possibly taken that statements made fraudulently by an agent for his own benefit should be binding on the principal, and such a fraudulent intention the Court cannot be expected to carry out. JOWAHIR LALL v. TAKEIT & POOKURUM SINGH, 6 W.R. 252.

(13)—Fraud by agent—Effect.—If an authorised agent commits a fraud in the sale of the principal's property, the principal, and not the stranger, is, in the absence of actual or constructive notice, the person to suffer. DOORGA NARAIN SEN v. BANEY MADHUB MAZOOMDAR, 7 C. 199.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

(14)—Misfeasance by servant or agent—Liability of principal for, on assent or ratification.—A principal is liable not only for the misfeasance or tort of his servant done or committed within the scope of the ordinary business, but he is also liable when such misfeasance or tort has been done or committed by the previous command or with the subsequent assent, adoption, or ratification of the principal. The Judge of the Lower Appellate Court in this case had found that the appellants were cognisant of the act of their servants in having seized the crops for which damages were claimed in this suit, and the evidence in support of such finding went even further, and, if accepted, was sufficient to prove that the trespass was comitted under their orders. And when the principal has been cognisant of and countenanced the acts of his servants it is not too strong an inference that he assented to them. RAI KISHEN CHAND v. SHEOBARAN RAI, 7 N.W. P. 121.

(15)—Liability of agents.—On 6th April, 1865, A, who resided and carried on business at Bombay, through his gomastah at Calcutta, shipped on board the Sir Jamsetjee Family 268 bags of sugar, and received from the Captain a bill of lading by which he certified that they were shipped in good order and well conditioned on board the said ship bound for Bombay, to be there delivered in like good order and well conditioned to B, or his assigns, on payment of freight at Rs. 16 per ton. The bill of lading was subject to the usual exceptions. The vessel was at the time chartered to H A, and C and Co. were agents for the owners. H A. being unable to carry out the terms of the charter, there was a delay in the departure of the vessel. On 26th May 1865, A wrote to C & Co., addressing them as agents of the ship: "I beg to inform you that I have shipped per Sir Jamsetjee Family 268 bags of sugar for Bombay; I hold the bills of lading for the same, and the ship is still detained here. I hope you will be kind enough to let me know what you will do about the cargo,—if the said ship will sail for Bombay or tranship to any other vessel,or deliver the cargo here." To which C & Co, on the same day replied: "We shall be able to tell you in the course of a week or so what we propose doing with the ship Sir Jamsetjee Family; as soon as anything has been decided, due notice shall be given to the shippers of cargo already on board." On 1st June, C & Co., again wrote: "H A having failed to carry out his charter of the Sir Jamsetjee Family in terms of the shipping order and sundry goods having been sent on board by him, of which the following are believed to be to your order, and for which bills of lading have been signed and delivered to H A, we shall be glad to know whether you are willing that the said goods—268 bags of sugar—be transhipped to a steamer going to Bombay, at the current rate of freight, the bills of lading for the same being sent to the owners of the Sir Jamsetjee Family, to be delivered to the consignees of the goods upon production of the Bills of Lading already signed. You will, of course, understand that the goods are liable for the chartered rate, viz., Rs. 20-10 per ton; and the charter having failed to complete the loading, the difference of freight between what H A granted you a shipping order at and the freight charged by the steamer will have to be paid by the shipper previous to the goods being delivered in Bombay." On the 8th June, A replied: "I am agreed that my goods be transhipped to a steamer going to Bombay at the current rate of freight, but I must not pay the difference of freight, whatever it may be. In regard to H A, I have nothing to do with them, as the bills of lading per Sir Jamsetjee Family for 268 bags of sugar being signed by the captain of the same at the rate of freight, Rs. 16 per ton, I am liable for the same only. If you are willing to tranship my said goods to a steamer at the same rate of freight, I am willing and must pay it; otherwise, you will kindly order to deliver my goods from Sir Jamsetjee Family here." C & Co., accepted and acted on the proposal in the last letter. The sugar was transshipped from the Sir Jamsetjee Family to the Ganga, from the mate of which C & Co. obtained a receipt, stating that the goods had been shipped in good order, etc. The goods were afterwards removed without the knowledge of C & Co., from the Gunga to another steamer, the Mula, which belonged to the same owners. Subsequently C & Co., gave up the receipt from the mate of the Gunga, and obtained in exchange a Bill of Lading signed by the agents for the captain of the Mula. The Bill of Lading stated the receipt of goods(in which were included those of A) from C & Co., and made them deliverable to order of C & Co, at Bombay, and receipt of freight for the whole at Rs. 15 per ton was admitted. A knew that his goods had been put on board the Mula, and got his policy of insurance, which was against a total loss only, transferred. There were inserted in red ink in the bill of lading, when given to A, the words "Bags all more or less in bad order and torn; contents damaged and rotten; marks indistinct; not responsible for marks or condition of packages or contents." The Mula proceeded on her voyage, but returned to Calcutta with her cargo damaged by the perils of the sea: 260 of A's bags of sugar were condemned and sold in Calcutta, under the authority of the agents of the Mula, without notice to C & Co., or to A, and neither were aware that the sales were about to take place. The remaining 8 bags were sent to Bombay in another ship by the agents of the Gunga and Mula, and were received by A. Held (overruling Phear, J.,) that C & Co., were agents only of the owners of the Sir Jamsetjee Family; but had C. & Co., been liable as agents for A, they would not have been liable for the full value of the goods damaged by the perils of the sea. Quære—If C & Co., had, expressly as agents of the owners of the Sir Jamsetjee Family, contracted to tranship and deliver at Bombay according to the terms of Bill of lading, would they have been personally liable? Semble—A contract made with express reference to a principal, though not by name, would not render the agent personally liable as the agent of an undisclosed principal. COWIE v. DHURMSEE POONJABHOY, 2 Ind. Jur. N.S. 75.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

(16)—Captain and officers of man-of-war—Damages occasioned by treatment of stranded ship without consent of owner.—A, the captain of a man-of-war, gave written instructions to B, his lieutenant, concerning a certain ship which was stranded. The official instructions contained the following passage:—"You will, in all emergencies, act as your discretion and judgment direct." At the same time, A sent a demi-official letter to B, in which, after several directions having reference to the disposal of cargo, he added, "After getting all you can, I should think that the wreck ought to be burnt; but all is left to your discretion and judgment." In pursuance of these orders, the wreck was burnt without the consent of the owner. A subsequently ratified the act of his subordinate. Held, first, that A, by the expressions used in the demi-official letter, rendered himself liable as principal; and second, that B, as the agent directly concerned in causing the burning of the ship, was liable jointly with A to the owner for the damage occasioned thereby. ABDULLA bin SHAIK ALLY v. STEPHENS, 2 Ind. Jur. O.S. 17.

(17)—Liability of agents—Fraud—Fraudulent agreement between agent and contractors for work.—The ex-king of Oudh ordered M, one of his officers, to procure the erection of certain buildings. M made over to Y (also one of the King's officers) the contract for a portion of the work which the appellant undertook to execute. The contract for the work was signed by the appellant alone, and it provided, among other things, that X was to be allowed Rs. 20,000 out of every Rs. 1,000,000 paid to the appellant. By another agreement, it was stipulated that the work should be examined and checked by Y or his agents. The appellant was discharged before the completion of the work, and he sued Y M, and the ex-king jointly. Held that Y did not render himself personally liable, and that the contract was of such a description that the appellant was not entitled to a decree against the other respondents in respect of it, as both Y and the appellant were parties to a fraud on the ex-king. BHOGOBAN CHUNDER SEN v. BADSA ALLY SHA, 1 Ind. Jur. O.S. 103.

(18)—Suit for rent against lessee's agent—Plea of payment—Question at issue.—The plaintiff sued for rent the parties in whose name a lease stood, knowing full well that they were only the agents of a third party and had no beneficial interest in the lease. The defendants did not raise these pleas, but only pleaded payment. Held, that the suit ought not to be dismissed on the ground that the defendants had, to the plaintiff's knowledge, no beneficial interest in the lease; that the plaintiff, by electing to sue the agents knowing them to be such, gave up all his claim against the principal, and as the agents, without objecting to their liability, pleaded payment, the case should be decided with reference to the question whether the payment had been made or not. GOUREE SUNKUR v. BHOLEE PERSHAD, 11 W.R. 247.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

(19)—Practice—Amendment—Written statement—Conversion—Demand and refusal, effect of—Intention of the converter fixes him with responsibility—The Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 108, 178, 189—Possession, meaning of—Pledgee has wider powers than a vendor—Principal and agent—Principal affected with the fraudulent witholding of information by his agent—Principal not liable for the sudden dishonesty of a qualified agent who has served him for years.—The plaintiff alleged that he bought certain bales of cotton and entrusted them to his Muccadam (defendant 2) for warehousing, but the latter pledged them to a Bank (defendant 1) which in spite of the plaintiff's demands, did not restore the goods to him or compensate him. He prayed for a relief on this head: and further prayed in the alternative that, if it be held that the pledge was valid, then he claimed to stand in the shoes of his Muccadam as against the Bank. The defendant Bank replied that it never had the plaintiff's bales; that, if they were among the bales pledged by the second defendant, the pledge was valid; and that, if any of the bales pledged were lost or missing, the Bank was not liable. The defendant Bank raised issues embodying the substance of these contentions. After some evidence was led, the defendant Bank by its cross-examination indicated that it intended to rely on a defence that, if the Bank ever did receive the plaintiff's bales in pledge from defendant 2, it returned them to him. The plaintiff objected to this, saying that it was a new defence, which had taken him by surprise, and that, even if it were a good defence, his right to follow the property in the hands of those to whom it had passed had become barred by lapse of time: Held, that no amendment which would let in new defence, which was not raised in the pleadings, could be allowed. It is a general rule of pleading that the defendant must raise, by his pleading, all such grounds of defence as, if not raised, would be likely to take the opposite party by surprise or would raise issues of facts not arising out of the previous pleadings, as for instance, release, payment, performance, etc. So, too, all facts which show a subsequent discharge of a once subsisting cause of action must be specially pleaded, such, for instance, as that the defendant had paid the debt or that it had been released. The rule as to amendment of pleadings rests upon a deduction from the broad principle of estoppel. The test is, whether, owing to the party who wishes to amend having kep tback either intentionally or through carelessness an attack or defence which he afterwards wishes to use, and thereby placed his opponent in such a position that, if the use of that defence or attack turns the scale against him, he could not be restored to the same position as he would have been in, had it been disclosed to him at the proper time, then, it cannot be allowed. Conversion arises by a wrongful taking but more commonly by a wrongful detention. Where the person charged with conversion has exercised over the goods a dominion inconsistent with the ownership of the rightful owner, then there has been a conversion from that moment. Conversion really depends upon the intention of the convertor, an intention which has been given effect to by some definite act which is in fact the conversion, as for instance, the passing off the property or changing or destroying it. If the intention is clear, it matters very little whether this has been done before or after demand. It is the intention of the convertor, either shown in conduct or expressly avowed, that fixes him with responsibility, not the mere accident of the time at which the true owner may happen to come down upon him. Demand and refusal is only evidence of conversion, when the demand is made while the goods are in the possession of the defendant. A false denial of ever having had the goods is at least as good and conclusive evidence of conversion as a refusal while the goods are still in the defendant's possession. For the purpose of giving a good title by sale, the possession must have been with the consent of the owner. For the purpose of making a valid pledge, all that is necessary is that the possession shall not have been obtained, from the owner or the person having the lawful custody of the goods, by an offence or by fraud. The Legislature seems to have conferred a wider power on pledgors than on sellers. S. 189, Contract Act, appears to have been framed in the interest of bona fide pledges. The quality of the possession under the section is immaterial. Possession may roughly be divided into three main divisions: (1) detention : (2) imperfect or qualified possession and (3) perfect or unqualified possession. Cases of imperfect or qualified possession, that is, possession to which the law has attached the right to possessory remedies, fall within the scope of ss. 108 and 178. A warehouse man, who has his own jettas and godowns completely under his control, who may put locks on his doors, who might, if the goods deposited with him were wrongfully taken from him, bring an action for their recovery, is in "possession" of those goods as long as they remain in his charge. If a principal employs an agent to keep him informed, and that agent is thoroughly competent and might have kept him informed, but, in fraud of his principal and in violation of his duty, keeps back information which he has, the principal is not affected with it. Where a principal has employed qualified agents who have for years served him well, and given him no cause at all for suspicion, the sudden dishonesty of one of them ought not to be imputable because it could not have been foreseen by the principal. NANDLAL THAKERSEY v. THE BANK OF BOMBAY, 11 Bom.L.R. 926=4 Ind. Cas. 652.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

(20)—Purchase by agent on behalf of the principal—Liability of principal — Suit by agent against the principal, when maintainable.—Plaintiff stated that, as the agent of the defendants, he purchased goods for their shops, that they paid up only part of the price due for the goods and it was for the balance of the price due by the defendants together with commission and interest that he brought the present suit against them. The suit was decreed in favour of the plaintiff by the Court of first instance but was dismissed by the District Judge on appeal. On second appeal, it was argued on behalf of the plaintiff-appellant that he had to pledge his own credit before the wholesale dealers would consent to supply the goods, that, therefore, he was entitled to recover from the defendants the amounts due to those dealers in view of any future claim that might be made by them from himself. The above contention was overruled on the ground that it was the setting up of an entirely new case not even suggested in the pleadings before the lower Courts, and it was held that plaintiff, avowedly, acted as an agent for the defendant, and would not be personally liable to the whole sale dealers, and, inasmuch as the defendants may be liable in an action brought by those dealers, plaintiff had no cause of action against the defendants until he was compelled to pay the demands of those dealers KHURKUN SAHA v. DHATIA DAS, 32 C. 1145.

(21)—Agent's knowledge--Doctrine of constructive notice—Mortgage — Auction-sale under a power in it — Mortgagee's conduct to induce would-be bidders to leave—Purchaser buying with notice of such conduct—Its effect on the sale. —A mortgage was of the English type and contained a power-of-sale in an ordinary form followed by a proviso, which was in substance an echo of s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. The mortgagees, purporting to act under the power of sale in the mortgage, caused the property in question to be put up for sale by auction. One of the conditions of sale was that "the purchaser shall accept such title as the vendors can give, and shall not require the vendors to enter into any other covenant except a covenant that they have not incumbered and shall not raise any question or objection to the title, and shall be held bound to accept such title as the vendors possess." The property was knocked down to the appellant, who signed a written contract to purchase on the same day and some days after the contract of sale was completed instructed the mortgagee's solicitor to act for him in the preparation of the deed of conveyance. A few days later the mortgagees executed a conveyance to the appellant. The Court of Appeal set aside the sale holding that although the aforesaid condition of sale was a depreciatory one, wholly unwarranted by the actual state of the title, the purchaser was affected with constructive notice of the true state of the title by reason of the fact that the solicitor knew enough of the real title to show that the condition in question was unjustiflable. Held, that the view of the Court of Appeal imputes to a principal the knowledge of an agent, not acquired in the matter of which he was agent, and uses it to upset a transaction of a date before the agency commenced, and that it was an extension of the doctrine of constructive notice in which their Lordships could not concur. Where, at an auction sale under a power-of-sale in a mortgage the mortgagees by themselves or their agents so conducted themselves with reference to the sale that would be bidders at it were induced to leave and the purchaser had notice of those circumstances, using the word notice as it is defined in the Transfer of Property Act, the purchaser bought at his peril, and as the sale was not a bona fide auction sale it must be set aside. CHABILDAS v. DAYAL MOWJI, 9 Bom. L.R. 1062=6 C.L. J. 674=17 M.L.J. 465=11 C.W.N. 1109=4 A.L.J. 750=31 B. 566=2 M.L.T. 394=34 I. A. 179, on appeal from 6 Bom. L.R. 557, 5 Bom. L.R. 247.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —continued.

(22)—Agent's acts.—No person can as agent bind by contract a principal who does not exist at the date of the contract. LAKSHMISHANKAR v. MOTIRAM, 6 Bom. L.R. 1106.

(23)—Principal and agent—Fraud of latter—Liability of former—Cheque presented at the Government treasury cashed and amount misappropriated by employees at the treasury—Liability of Government.—The true rule of law with regard to the liability of the master for the misconduct of the servant is, that the master is liable for the fraud of his servant in the course of his service and for the master's benefit, and that a master is not liable for the misconduct of the servant committed for the servant's own private benefit, and that it is not necessary that the benefit should accrue to the master. (5 I.A 130, 6 C.W.N. 429, 9 C.W.N. 495, 18 I.A. 111, R.) Where plaintiff, who had got a cheque for work done for the District Board, presented it for encashment at the District Treasury, but the head poddar and the mohurir employed there, misappropriated the amount of the cheque, and it was found that the latter did so for their own benefit. Held, that, in these circumstances, the Secretary of State for India in Council was not liable for the fraud committed by his employees. GOPAL CHANDRA BHUTTACHARYA v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 13 C.W.N. 619=36 C. 647=1 Ind. Cas. 735.

(24)—Suit against principal on agent's contract.—A person, who has made a contract with an agent, may, if and when he pleases, look directly to the principal, unless, by the terms of the contract, he has agreed not to do so; and that, whether he was or was not aware, when he made the contract, that the person, with whom he was dealing, was an agent only. (Calder v. Doball, R).—per Petheram, C.J.. In the matter of the GANGES STEAM TUG AND CO., 18 C. 31.

(25)—Principal when bound by acts of agent—Honest belief in agent's authority.—Even when an agent of the firm exceeds the extent of the authority given to him, the principal is bound by the contract of his agent, if the contracting party has reasonable grounds for believing and, in good faith believes, in the authority of the agent. RAM PERTAB v. MARSHALL, 26 C. 701, P.C.=3 C.W.N. 313.

(26)—Decree obtained by agent against third person—Suit by principal to declare himself entitled to the benefit of decree—Maintainability—Adoption of agent's transaction, subject to burdens—Single transaction of agent's suit respecting, if lies.—Plaintiff's agent, in the course of his agency, advanced a sum of Rs. 300 to another person for the purchase of paddy, sued him for breach of contract and recovered a decree. Plaintiff who had full knowledge of the commencement and progress of the litigation did not intervene at any stage of the suit but, after its terminationsued the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor for a declaration that he was beneficially interested in the decree, and for an injunction to restrain the latter from paying any money into the hands of the former in satisfaction of the decree. Plaintiff did not however offer to bear the costs of the litigation. Held, that the suit was not maintainable in this form. Plaintiff might have adopted the contract made by his agent and sued on it, or he might have intervened at any stage of the action commenced by the agent. But he was bound to adopt it cum onere or not at all. In the absence of a special contract in that behalf, a principal cannot be permitted to select capriciously a single transaction of the agent and claim the profits thereof, without an adjustment of the rights and liabilities of the parties in relation to other transactions. GODHAN RAM BHAKAT v. JAHARMALL, 17 C.W.N. 67 =16 Ind. Cas. 583=4 O.C. 335=17 C.L.J. 636.

Principal and Agent —continued.

——5.—Duties and Liabilities of Principal —concluded.

(27)—Principal entitled to final account at the determination of agency—Accounts.—A principal is always entitled to have a final account taken between himself and his agent at the determination of the agency. If accounts have been taken from time to time and settled between the parties, the agent when rendering the final account will be entitled to rely upon those casual accounts and to urge that they ought to be accepted as being prima facie correct. ABHAI CHARAN CHAKRAWARTI v. KESHO DAS, 13 Ind. Cas. 642.

Acts or omissions of—Binding on principal —See MAHOMEDAN LAW—PRE-EMPTION—GENERAL, 7 A. 41=A.W.N. 1884, 255.

See SALE—SALE FOR ARREARS OF RENT —SETTING ASIDE SALE AND ITS EFFECT, 16 W.R. 80.

——6.—Ratification of Agent's Act.

(1)—Acts of agent—Knowledge and consent of principal—Subsequent ratification bind principal though beyond the scope of agency.—Plaintiff had acquired the land in question subject to a right of permanent occupancy vested in the 1st defendant with regard to the major portion (if not the whole) of the land. Plaintiff's son, the second defendant, acting as his father's agent, granted permanent leases to the 1st defendant in respect of the whole and it had to be decided whether the leases had been validly created by the 2nd defendant as agent. Held, that, since in granting the leases, the son acted with the knowledge and consent of his father and the latter subsequently ratified his son's action, the father, as principal, could not repudiate the leases, even though the son in granting them might perhaps have exceeded the limits of his agency. RAMASAMY AIYANGAR v. OBAI GOUNDEN, 15 M.L J. 487.

(2)—S. 522, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Illegal award--Appeal--Reference by unauthorised agent —Implied ratification by principal.—An appeal will lie from an award, which is illegal and void ab initio. (17 B. 357, F.) When a principal is aware of the reference to arbitration on the application of his agent not authorised to do so, and tacitly ratifies the action of his agent in applying for such reference, he cannot then question the legality of the order of reference. SATURJIT PERTAP BAHADOOR SAHAI v. DULHIN BULAP KOER, 24 C. 469. (9 M. 451, R.) [F, 1 Bom. L.R. 261, 2 N.L.R. 81, 8 O.C. 263; R., L.B.R. 1893—1900, 548, 112 P.L.R. 1901=84 P.R. 1901, 5 O.C. 13, B; D., 28 C. 303=5 C.W.N. 268, 7 C.W.N. 343.]

(3)—Mercantile agent—Special authority required to draw or endorse bills—Authority may be implied—Act of agent in name of principal—Ratification.—A special authority is required to empower a mercantile agent to draw or endorse bills or notes; such an authority may be implied from the circumstances. Where an act has been done by an agent in the name of the principal, and such act has been communicated to and ratified by the principal, the act becomes in point of law the act of the principal. NESSERWANJEE BOTTLEWALLAH v. GOOL MAHOMED SAHIB, 7 M.H.C. 369.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——6.—Ratification of Agent's Act—contd.

(4)—Mortgage by unauthorised person—Subsequent ratification, when effective.—The mortgages sought to be enforced in this case had been effected by the first two defendants, the adoptive mothers of the third, and it was contended that the mortgage had become effectual, on account of ratification by the subsequent conduct of the said adopted son. It was in evidence that the said son, the third defendant, promised his adoptive mothers that he would redeem the mortgages; but he made no promise to the plaintiff, nor was there any consideration for such promise as he made. Nor could the promise be treated as amounting to a ratification, for, a ratification of the unauthorized contract of an agent can only be effectual when the contract has been made by the agent avowedly for or on account of the principal, and not when it has been made, as in this case, on account of the agent himself. The adopted son was, therefore, not liable on the mortgage. SHIDDESHWAR v. RAMACHANDRA RAV, 6 B. 463. [R., 54 P.R. 1902=64 P.L.R. 1902.]

(5)—Mortgage by lambardar to pay Government revenue—Mortgage as agent of co-sharers —Foreclosure—Notice suit by co-sharers to recover their shares—No appeal against decree of first Court—Acquiescence — Repudiation.—The plaintiffs were shareholders whose interests were mortgaged by their lambardar with his own share to the lambardars of another puttee in the same estate to raise a sum necessary to satisfy an arrear of Government revenue. The defendants had served notice of foreclosure upon the lambardar who represented the plaintiffs, and obtained a declaration that the sale had become absolute and they also sued and obtained a decree against the lambardar for possession. The plaintiffs brought this suit claiming to recover possession of their own share in the puttee on the ground that the mortgage was made without their authority and was not binding on them and claiming pre-emption of the share of the lambardar. Held that the plaintiffs must be taken to have been parties, through their agent the lambardar, to the mortgage-deed, for, if they were not, they should have repudiated the judgment of the Court of first instance which decreed them their shares conditionally on their paying their quota of the mortgage-debt; moreover, inasmuch as the mortgage was made to obtain the sum necessary to discharge the arrears of Government revenue, the plaintiffs must be held to have been acquainted with the act of their lumbardar and content to be bound by it. Therefore, as parties to the mortgage through their lambardar, they could not repudiate the consequences of the deed to which they were parties. Where a mortgage was made by a lumbardar for himself and as agent for other sharers, it is necessary to issue notice of foreclosure both to the lumbardar and to his co-sharers and in a suit for possession, the co-sharers also should be made parties. PUNCHUM SINGH v. MUNGLE SINGH, 2 Agra 407.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——6.—Ratification of Agent's Act—concld.

(6)—Wajib-ul-arz—Condition — Acquiescence by mortgagee—Agent of proprietors.—A condition in the Wajib-ul-arz which has been signed and attested by a third party then in possession, not as authorized agent on behalf of the proprietors but as a mortgagee, is not binding on the original proprietors. Subsequent acquiescence by the mortgagor or his representative may be only an acquiescence in the mortgagee's act to the extent and in the qualified way in which his consent was given. BHAGEERUTH v. MOHUN, 2 Agra 129. [R., 1 N.W.P. 277.]

(7)—Grant of lease by agent— Ratification by principal—Effect.—Where a lease granted by the agent on behalf of his principal was subsequently ratified by the latter and was acted upon for several years, the lease was binding on the principal and he could not resile from it. HAZARI LAL v. DEBI PERSAD, 1 C.P.L.R. 87.

——7.—Revocation of Agent's authority.

(1)—Suspension of Agent—S. 33, Act X of 1859.—If a principal suspends an agent, the agency becomes determined, within the meaning of s. 33 of Act X of 1859, from the time of the suspension. MUDDUN MOHUN ROY v. GOPEE MOHUN ROY, W. R. 1864, Act X, 8.

(2)—Principal and agent—Authority—Determination—Share-holder—Manager— Partition —Intention of severance--Lease—Rights of lessee —Decree against lessor.—It is a well-known principle of law that a principal has a right to determine the authority given to an agent at his mere pleasure, for, since the authority is conferred by his mere will, and is to be executed for his own benefit and his own purposes, the agent cannot insist upon acting when the principal has withdrawn his confidence, and no longer requires his aid. Neither can one co-sharer resist the revocation by another of the authority given to the manager, there being no distinct stipulation that the authority should continue for any definite time. Any act or declaration showing an unequivocal intention on the part of any share-holder to hold or enjoy his own share separately, and to renounce all rights upon the shares of his co-parceners, constitutes a complete severance or partition. [R., 6 W.R. 139.] A lessee can take no greater rights than his lessor, and is bound by the decree in a suit against his lessor to the same extent as the lessor himself. BULAKEE LALL v. MUSSAMUT INDURPUTTEE THOWAR, 3 W.R. 41.

(3)—Agency—Revocation of authority—Agent if entitled to remuneration.—The defendant

Principal and Agent—continued.

——7.—Revocation of Agent's authority —continued.

asked the plaintiff to sell certain grounds in Bombay at a profit, promising to give the plaintiff by way of brokerage half the net profits realised by the sale. Some time afterwards, the defendant wrote to the plaintiff revoking this authority. After the revocation, plaintiff secured a purchaser whose offer defendant refused to accept. Thereupon plaintiff brought the present suit to recover on the agreement. Held that the right of the agent to remuneration, although stipulated for in the form of part of the property to be produced by exercise of the power, was yet not such an interest that would make the authority to sell irrevocable without an express stipulation to that effect. It would be unreasonable to hold that the defendant by employing the plaintiff to sell the land on such terms, bound himself to allow it to remain on sale for an indefinite time. At the most, he would be bound to allow the plaintiff a reasonable time to find a purchaser. HURST v. WATSON, 2 B.H.C. 400.

(4)—Contract—Agency—Acceptance of office —Consideration—Power of revocation of agency —Agent to be paid out of rents of land - Interest in land, whether created—Improper revocation of agency—Remedy—Contract Act, s. 205—Agreement to pay agent a permanent annuity— Suit for specific performance by agent—Want of consideration.—The acceptance of an office by an agent is a sufficient consideration for his appointment. Where, therefore, the plaintiff and his descendants were constituted the hereditary agents of the defendant for the management of his share in an inam village, held that the appointment was valid and binding at least as between the parties, whether or not any valuable consideration passed; for, the mere acceptance of the office by the plaintiff was a sufficient consideration for the appointment. In the case mentioned above the defendant would have a right independently of any terms of the instrument creating the agency, under the general provisions of the law (Contract Act, IX of 1872, s. 203), to revoke the authority given to the plaintiff, whether or not the agency had been created for a valuable consideration. The mere arrangement that the plaintiff's salary should be paid out of the rents, cannot be regarded as giving to the plaintiff an interest in the property which formed the subject-matter of the agency. The remedy for the improper revocation of an agency lies, under ordinary circumstances, in an action for damages for breach of contract. By s. 205 of the Contract Act, the principal is bound to make compensation to the agent, whenever there is an express or implied contract that the agency shall be continued for any period of time. This would probably always be the case when a valuable consideration had been given by the agent. Where a person appointed another his agent, and afterwards revoked the appointment and the agent brought a suit not for damages, but for specific performance of the terms of the contract which related to the payment of his remuneration, the only foundation for his claim for payment after his services ceased being a clause in the agreement, viz., "If I get my work done by others, I will, without making any reduction in your pay, permanently continue to give you the sum of money now fixed," held that such an agreement to pay a perpetual annuity, whether any services were rendered by the annuitant or not, would be nudum pactum, unless there were a valuable consideration for the promise; and if there was no valuable consideration the agent would be entitled to recover only for work and services actually rendered. VISHNUCHARYA v. RAMCHANDRA, 5 B. 253.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——7.—Revocation of Agent's authority —concluded.

——8.—Miscellaneous.

(1)—Power of attorney.—A power-of-attorney which gave an agent authority "to make, sign, seal, execute and deliver any agreements, contracts, conveyances, assignments, leases or counterparts of leases, bills of sales, bonds, mortgages, re-conveyances, etc.," and "generally to act in the management and superintendence" of the affairs of the principal, and "in any of the aforesaid capacities without any reservation whatsoever, and to do, perform and execute all acts and things as fully and effectually as "the principal might or could do if personally present and did the same, notwithstanding no special power or authority is contained in these presents," was held to authorize the agent to borrow money for the use of the principal DURGA DAYI v. FINLAYSON AND CO., A.W.N. 1882, 39.

(2)—Agents with general and special power—Transactions by— Validity.—An agent with general power can borrow money in his principal's name, and it is not necessary that he should have special power authorising him to do so. A sale of land made by an agent with special power therefor, is binding on the principal, and proof of motive on the part of the principal in giving such power is unnecessary. MUSSAMMAT RUGHOOBUTTEE KOONWAR v. NUKHOO PUNDAH, 1 W.R. 33.

(3) — Contract—Agency — Termination of agency—Transaction with agent by outsiders for consideration without notice of revocation — Validity.—The shrotriemdars of a village had executed a power-of-attorney to one of themselves to manage the affairs of the village. Subsequently, disputes having arisen between the agent and his co-shrotriemdars, the power was cancelled by them. But this fact was not brought to the knowledge of the ryots, who continued to pay rent to the agent as before. The rent for certain years having fallen into arrears, the ryots executed certain bonds in the name of the agent. Plaintiff, the assignee of these bonds from the agent, sued the ryots to recover the amount due thereunder. The defendants contended that, as the bonds were executed at a time when the agency had been terminated, they were not valid and the assignment thereof gave plaintiff no right to sue. Held that the contention that the bonds were executed to the agent-shrotriemdar as agent alone was not correct. He was himself a co-sharer and as such was entitled to a portion of the rent due. A contract with him for the consideration of giving time for payment was valid, even though it was made at a time when his authority to act as agent for his co-sharers had in fact been determined. As notice of determination of the agency was not given to the defendants, they were protected by s. 208 of the Contract Act from any possible claim by the other co-sharers for the rent due to them. The plaintiff as the assignee of the bonds was, therefore, entitled to sue upon them and recover the amount due. NARASINGA PILLAI v. MUTHUSAMI NAICKAR, 7 M.L.J. 218.

Principal and Agent*—continued.

——8.—Miscellaneous—continued.

(4)—Act X of 1859, s. 33—Suspension of agent —Determination of agency.—The suspension of an agent by his principal is a determination of the agency within the meaning of s. 33, Act X of 1859. MAHARAJA MAHTAB CHAND BAHADOOR v. JUDOO MOHUN MITTER, 5 W.R. Act X, Rul. 91.

(5)—Suit for money advanced to agent for benefit of principal — Principal and Agent —Agent, authority of—Agent, act of, beyond authority—Agent, necessary acts of, if binding on principal — Civ Pro. Code, s. 257-A Authority to have a sale postponed, extent of —Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872), *s.*188--Powers of attorney, construction of—Interest on loan. Where A does an act as agent for B without any communication with C, C cannot, by afterwards adopting that act, make A his agent and thereby incur any liability or take any benefit under the act of A. Under s. 257-A of the Civ. Pro. Code, every agreement to give time for the satisfaction of a judgment-debt is void, unless it is made for consideration and with the sanction of the Court which passed the decree, and such Court deems the consideration to be, under the circumstances, reasonable. Powers of attorney are to be construed strictly, that is to say, where ~~an act~~ purporting to be done under a power of attorney is challenged as being in excess of the authority conferred by the power, it is necessary to show that, on a fair consideration of the whole instrument, the authority in question is to be found within the four corners of the instrument either in express terms, or by necessary implication. An agent, authorised to obtain an extension of time and postponement of an intending judicial sale, has, within the meaning of s. 188 of the Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872), authority to do every lawful thing, which is necessary in order to do the act which he is expressly authorised to do. If the implied authority of an agent to raise a loan is not established, but it is proved that the sum borrowed or a portion thereof has been applied for the benefit of the principal with his knowledge, the creditor is entitled to be reimbursed by the principal to the extent he has been benefited (1 C.L.J. 199, R.) Although an unqualified admission of a debt implies a promise to pay, yet if there is a covenant and an agreement to pay, which is not absolute but qualified in its terms, for instance, if there is a covenant to receive payment out of a specified fund, it does not create the relation of creditor and debtor as upon a simple loan of money. (4 C.L.J. 246, 4 C.L.J. 510, R.) Whether there is such a covenant must depend upon the construction of the instrument in each case and the intention of the parties as evidenced by the circumstances. An implied authority to agree to the payment of a particular rate of interest must be made out in the same manner as an implied authority to raise a loan. GHASIRAM v. RAJA MOHAN BIKRAM SHA, 6 C.L.J. 639. (1 C.L.J. 199, R.) [R., 3 Ind. Cas. 330.]

Principal and Agent—continued.

——8.—Miscellaneous—continued.

(6)—Contract—Agency—Agent for sale on instructions—Sale by agent contrary to instructions—Liability of agent to pay damages to principal—Measure of damages.—Where an agent for sale of goods consigned by the principal at a profit sold the goods in contravention of directions which he had received from the principal, with the result that it became impossible that the consignments could be sold at a profit, the principal was entitled to such damages as might have placed him in the position in which he would have been if the agent had not sold the goods in breach of his duty as such. The principal was under no obligation to replace the goods which had been wrongfully sold by the agent with a view to reselling them if and when the market rose. He was not bound to enter into a speculative transaction which might have resulted in his being able to recoup himself and might have resulted in a further loss. In the absence of proof of substantial loss, the principal was entitled at least to nominal damages. CHELAPATHI v. SURAYYA, 12 M.L.J. 375.

(7)—Powers of agent—Rights of third party.—In a question between the principal and a third party who had dealt bona fide with the agent of the principal, the true limit of the agent's power to bind the principal, is the apparent authority with which agent is invested. In the absence of express authority, a party who is employed to find a purchaser for a horse is not authorized to receive the price, much less to take in exchange another horse and conveyance. LIVERSEY v. COLIN CAMPBELL, 1 A.L.J. 124.

(8)—Managing agent of Company—Liability to account—Non-joinder of parties—Objection of non-joinder not taken in proper time—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 34.—The managing agent of a Company ought to submit proper accounts to the other, though such agent may be paid by Commission or is subordinate to the control of its Directors, or had delivered up to them all the account books of the Company, as those do not exonerate him from the liability to account. (14 C. 147, P.C., 7 C. 627, R.) An objection as to non-joinder of parties not raised at the proper time, i.e., at the earliest possible opportunity would be treated as waived by the defendant. ANDERSON v. DELHI COTTON MILLS COMPANY, LIMITED, 69 P.R. 1903. (156 P.R. 1889, F.B., R.)

Principal and Agent—continued.

——8.—Miscellaneous—continued.

(9)—Limitation—Del-credere agent—Act XIV of 1859, s. 1, cl. 9.—A suit against a del-credere agent on a balance of accounts in respect of dealings, regarding which there is no express written contract, is governed by the three years' limitation prescribed by cl. 9, s. 1, Act XIV of 1859. OKOOR PERSAUD BUSTOOREE v. MUSSAMAT FOOL KOOMAREE DABEE, 10 B.L.R. 15, P.C. = 16 W.R. P.C. 35 = 14 M.I.A. 134.

(10)—Plaintiff's agent, inability of, to give evidence—Procedure—Act X of 1859, s. 35.—On the inability of a plaintiff's agent to give sufficient evidence, the Court must require the attendance of the principal and not dismiss the suit under s. 35, Act X of 1859, that section having nothing to with a case when once it has proceeded to a hearing. BABOO LEKHRAJ ROY v. MR. W. H. BUCKLAND, W.R. 1864, Act X, Rul. 51.

(11)—Act X of 1859, s. 24—Suit against agent for accounts and papers.—A suit under s. 24, Act X of 1859, for accounts and papers, can be brought by zemindars and others in receipt of the rent of the land against any agents employed by them. DULEEL MAHOMED GOMASHTA v. MOHIMA CHUNDER GHOSE, 5 W.R. Act X, Rul. 36.

(12)—Act X of 1859, s. 20—Cause of action accruing against agent, survival of.—A cause of action against an agent for money received and accounts kept falling within the class mentioned in s. 20 of Act X of 1859, survives the death of the agent, it having accrued during his lifetime MR. T HILLS v. SHOKHEE MONEE DOSSEE, 10 W R. 59.

(13)—Act X of 1859, s. 24—Common agent appointed by joint landlords—Suit maintainable against agent by one landlord separately, the other landlord being added as defendant.—The suit was dismissed by the lower Court on the ground that it was not maintainable because when two landholders jointly appointed one agent for the collection of rents of their joint property, they could not be permitted to sue separately under s. 24 of Act X of 1859.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——8.—Miscellaneous—continued.

Held, that such a suit would lie, so long as the other joint landlord is made a party (defendant) to the suit, so as to ensure his interest being protected. PUDDO MONEE DOSSEE v. BISTNO CHUNDER BISWAS, 10 W.R. 495. (9 W.R. 344, F.)

(14)—Fraud—Limitation—Act VIII (B.C.) of 1869, s. 30.—A suit against an agent for the recovery of money under Act VIII of 1869, (B.C.), s. 30, though brought within three years from the termination of the agency, was held barred, because it was not brought within a reasonable time after discovery of the fraud imputed to the agent. JAN ALI CHOWDHRY v. TARINEE CHURN RUKHEET, 21 W.R. 107.

(15)—Act VIII (B.C.) of 1869, s. 30—Agency.—To a suit against an agent with regard to Zemindari matters for the recovery of money or the delivery of accounts and papers, there is no limitation other than that prescribed by Act VIII of 1869 (Bengal), s. 30. RAM BHUROSEE CHOWDHRY v. HUNOOMAN SINGH, 21 W.R. 240.

(16)—Landlord's suit to recover from agent illegal cesses realised from tenants—Agent's liability to account—Ss. 217, 218, I.C.A.—A landlord's agent is liable to pay to the landlord any sum realised by him from the tenants as khurcha or illegal cesses; a suit by a landlord for recovery of such sums against his agent, is maintainable. In Indian, as in English Law, an agent is not discharged from accounting to his principal, by reason of unlawful acts of the principal in the matter of the agency, and an agent cannot plead that, by reason of the money having been collected under an unlawful agreement, which has been made between the principal and the person, from whom the money was collected, he is not liable to account for the money to the principal. NAGENDRA BALA DASSI v. GURU DOYAL MUKERJI, 30 C. 1011=7 C.W.N. 535. (Gobind Soonder Singh v. Chandi Charan Bhattacharjee, F.; 25 W.R. 8, Doubted & Expl.)

(17)—Agent joint—Death of one, effect of—Contract Act, ss. 42, 43, 44, 201—Limitation Act, 1908, art. 116.—Where there are two joint agents and one of them dies, upon his death the contract of agency terminates so far as he is concerned, but, not as regards the surviving agent. By a registered kabuliat executed in favour of the plaintiff by the appellant and the grandfather of the second defendant, it was provided that the rent should be collected by the agents acting jointly or individually, and that receipt granted to tenants duly signed by both or one of the agents would be a sufficient discharge, although each of the agents would be liable for the sums collected by the other. The appellant continued to act for many years after the death of his co-agent, till he was discharged in June, 1906. In a suit brought on the 27th May, 1909: Held, that the appellant was liable under the original registered contract and not under any implied oral contract of agency subsequent to the death of his co-agent. The Rule of Limitation applicable to such a case was that provided in art. 116, Limitation Act. BHAGIRATH SAMANTO v. PREM CHAND PAL, 17 C.L.J. 201 =16 Ind. Cas. 852.

Principal and Agent—continued.

——8.—Miscellaneous—continued.

Suit for accounts—Procedure — Burden of proof—See ACCOUNTS—SUIT FOR ACCOUNTS, A.W.N. 1905, 3=27 A. 374.

Suit for accounts by Principal against Agent —Burden of proof—What facts to be proved by plaintiff— Procedure of Court — See ACCOUNTS — SUIT FOR ACCOUNTS, A.W.N. 1905, 1.

Suit by zemindar against agent on account—Limitation—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1869, s. 30, 7 C. 89=8 C.L.R. 285.

Suit by agent—Dismissal of suit—Principal's right of appeal—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. I, r. 10 (1), 4 L.B.R. 95.

See COMPANY—POWERS AND LIABILITIES OF DIRECTORS, 6 B. 326.

Agent dealing on his own account in business of agency—Principal's rights—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, ss. 215, 216, 11 Bom. L.R. 779=34 B. 292=3 Ind. Cas. 801.

See DAMAGES — MEASURE AND ASSESSMENT, 8 B.L.R. 544.

Agent's power to bind principal to arbitration—See HIGH COURT, JURISDICTION OF—BOMBAY, 11 Bom. L.R. 273=34 B. 13=3 Ind. Cas. 837.

Contractor employed by agent of Ruling Prince—Contractor's right to sue Prince or Agent--Limitation--See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 19, art. 56, 14 P.L.R. 1909=43 P.R. 1910=79 P.W.R. 1909.

Suit for balance on running account—Jurisdiction—Benami transaction — See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 85, 128 P.L.R. 1909=115 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 960.

Death of principal—Agent becoming agent of principal's sons – Suit by latter for accounts—Limitation—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 89, 9 C.L.J. 107=3 Ind. Cas. 684.

Suit for account against agent—Limitation —Payments made by agent, how proved—Moneys taken to pay illegal gratifications, if must be accounted for — See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 89, 13 C.W.N. 212=4 Ind. Cas. 556.

Liability of agent, his sons and grand sons—Accounts—Limitation— Cause of action—See Principal and Agent—concluded.

——8.—Miscellaneous—concluded.

LIMITATION ACT, 1908, arts. 120, 57, 62, 89, 6 A.L.J. 667=2 Ind. Cas. 118=31 A. 429.

Execution of document by attorney—Power of attorney to several persons—Name of principal signed by one attorney — Document attested by the other attorneys—See POWER OF ATTORNEY, 6 A.L.J. 462=2 Ind. Cas. 805.

Possessory lien of agent of mortgagor, if paramount to right of Receiver appointed in the suit of the mortgagee—See RECEIVER, 13 C.W.N. 654=9 C.L.J. 563=36 C. 713=1 Ind. Cas. 356.

Principal and Surety.

1.—GENERAL.

2.—DISCHARGE OF SURETY.

3.—SURETY, RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF.

4.—MISCELLANEOUS.

——1.—General.

(1)—Debt-bond—Stipulation as to dealings between creditor and debtor not discharging surety—Contract Act, IX of 1872, s. 135.—The plaintiff-bank sued on a debt-bond executed to the Bank by the principal debtor and two sureties. The money was repayable in monthly instalments, default in any one instalment having the effect of causing the whole amount to become at once payable. On any such default, the sureties were to become principal debtors to the Bank, so that any arrangements between the Bank and the principal debtor could not have the effect of realising them. The question arose whether or not the sureties had been released from their liability by reason of time having been granted by the bank to the borrower, and it was held that the sureties remained such till the debtor continued to pay the instalments, that they became principal debtors as soon as the borrower made default in the terms fixed for the re-payment of the debt, and that the giving of time to the principal debtor without their knowledge could not release their liability to the bank, the sureties having contracted themselves out of the rule which would otherwise exonerate them from liability on grant of time to the principal debtor. HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK LIMITED, 23 A. 137=27 I.A. 168, P.C. =2 Bom. L.R. 971=5 C.W.N. 1=10 M.L.J. 279=7 Sar. 767.

(2)—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 35, paras. 1 and 2—Surety's liability on judgment-debtor's death before specified date—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), s. 145—Surety bond—Personal liability—Registration.—The appellant executed a surety bond for the payment of a decretal debt, due by another person to the respondent. The appellant, by the terms of the bond, bound himself to make the judgment-debtor come and deposit the decretal amount and costs in Court by a specified date, and undertook to pay the amount himself if the judgment-debtor failed to do so. There was a further provision that if the surety failed to pay, the Court could take his house in satisfaction. The judgment-debtor died before the specified date, and the surety then disputed his own liability to pay on the ground that the contract had become void under s. 35, para. 1 of the Contract Act. Held, that the second para of that section applied, and not the first, and that the specified uncertain event was the payment of the decretal debt by the judgment-debtor, and that as that event did not happen before the specified date, the contingent contract becomes enforceable. It was further contended that the surety bond was inoperative for want of registration, as it purported to affect a house worth over Rs. 100: Held, that, as there was distinct and separate personal undertaking to pay the decretal debt, the bond was admissible in evidence for the purpose of proving this undertaking. Held, further, that there was nothing to prevent the respondent from applying for execution, against the house, under s. 145 of the new Code, which was in force where the judgment-debtor died and when the proceedings against the surety were instituted, and that it was according to the terms of s. 145 that the case fell to be decided. WADARA DEVAN v. MA KIN, 8 Ind. Cas. 985.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

(3)—Decree against two principal debtors and surety for a certain sum—Decree against principal debtors alone for larger sum including the former sum — Partial satisfaction of decree against the principal debtors alone by rateable distribution under s. 295, Civ Pro. Code—Extent of liability of surety.—In a suit against two principal-debtors and their surety, plaintiff obtained a decree for Rs. 3,000 against all the three, and a decree for Rs. 5,000 (including the Rs. 3,000) against the principal debtors alone. As there were other creditors of the two principal-debtors, the decree-holder recovered, as against the two, a proportionate amount of his judgment-debt, by rateable distribution under s. 295, Civ. Pro. Code. On the question of the extent of the surety's liability, held that the decree-holder is entitled to recover in execution, as against the surety, the total amount of the judgment-debt of the surety, viz., Rs. 3,000 (assuming, of course, that, after allowing for the amount received by the decree-holder in the rateable distribution, Rs. 3,000 or more remains due under the decrees) and that the surety is not entitled to deduct a proportion of the sums recovered by way of rateable distribution, from the amount which is due from him under the decree against him. If the decree-holder had, in execution, obtained the full amount of the decrees attached by him, and the amount of such decree was less than Rs. 2,000 the surety could not have been heard to say that he was entitled to any deduction from the amount due by him under the decree against him. He ought not to be in a better position because, by reason of the rateable distribution, the decree-holder has only recovered a proportionate amount of the attached decrees. APPUSAWMY IYENGAR v. RAMANATHAN CHETTIAR, 2 M.L.T. 30=30 M. 167.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

(4)—Security for debt — Surety—Procedure.—A creditor, who holds securities from the principal debtor for his debt, need not first resort to them before suing the surety. GANPATI v. PANDU KUNBI, 10 C.P.L.R. 73. (19 B. 578, F.)

(5)—Principal and surety—Payment of interest by principal debtor—Effect on surety's liability.—The mere payment of interest on a pronote by the principal debtor in advance does not of itself constitute a binding contract, on the part of the creditor not to sue, during the time covered by the interest, and does not therefore release the surety. DWARKANATH MITTER v. G.H. DELY, 15 B.L.R. 338, Note. [F., 15 B.L.R. 331, 4 C. 132.]

(6)—Principal and surety—Receipt of interest in advance—Contract to give time.—A binding contract to give time to the principal cannot be inferred from the mere receipt by the creditor of the interest in advance on the note. PUNCHANUN GHOSE v. DALY, 15 B.L.R. 331. [F., 4 C. 132.]

(7)—Principal and surety · Forbearance to enforce claim against third person—Saving lessee from forfeiture of lease.—The forbearance to enforce a claim against a third person is a sufficient consideration for a surety bond, though there may be no express contract by the obligee so to forbear. A surety deed, by which a person became surety for a lessee, in order to save him from forfeiture of his lease, or the institution of legal proceedings against him, was held to be of sufficient consideration, as the terms resulted in an advantage to the lessee. JAGADINDRA NATH ROY v. CHANDRA NATH PODDAR, 31 C. 242. (29 C. 68, R.)

(8)—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), sch. I, art. 65.—A surety becomes liable only on his contract of guarantee and not by the mere fact of the loan. He is liable for each loan as soon as it is made, and is liable to be proceeded against as soon as default is made by the principal debtor. Time runs against the surety from each date of default, which is the date of each loan, and art. 65 of the Limitation Act applies. DWARKADOSS GOVERDHANA v. CHIVAKALA KRISHNAIYA, 9 Ind. Cas. 204=9 M.L.T. 215 =21 M.L.J. 457.

(9)—Appeal—Decree against principal and surety—Appeal by principal debtor only—Dismissal of claim—Liability of surety not appealing.—Where, on an appeal, only by the principal judgment-debtor against a decree providing that, on his failing to pay the amount of decree, his surety shall be liable, the plaintiff's claim is dismissed, the latter (surety) is not discharged from the judgment-debt simply because the decree has been set aside against the former (principal judgment-debtor). SHAM LAL v. SOHNU SHAH, 14 P.W.R. 1911=98 P.L.R. 1911. (5 B. 647, 12 C. 330, R.)

(10)—Suit by surety for money paid for debtor—Cause of action.—Where the plaintiff sued to recover from the defendant the price of a horse sold to defendant on his security, held that the period of limitation commenced from the date of the sale. KUNHYA v. MOLKA, 72 P.R. 1866.

(11)—Principal and surety—Breach of contract made with Foreign State—Payment by surety—Suit by surety against principal in British Court—Inquiry into question of breach of contract determined by Foreign State, whether permissible.—A Native State with which A entered into a contract, found on enquiry, that he had broken the contract, and by an executive order rescinded it, and compelled B, who was a surety for A, to pay the amount for which he had become surety. In a suit then brought in a British Court by B to recover from A the money which B had been compelled to pay as surety, A pleaded that he made no default in the performance of the contract, and that he was therefore not liable to pay the money which B might have paid to the State. Held, (Boulnois, J., dissenting) that the order of the Native State on the point that default had been made by A was conclusive between the parties, and was not open to question in British Courts, and all the British Court could do was to determine whether the plaintiff did in fact pay to the State the sum demanded from him as surety; and if it determine the question in the affirmative, it must hold that the payment was rightly made under the guarantee, and the plaintiff would be entitled to recover the sum paid. Per Boulnois, J.—The order of the Foreign State was not conclusive and the British Court should enquire into and determine whether the defendant had made default in performing the contract; that Courts of one country have never done more than recognise the judgments of the Courts of another country, as under some circumstances, conclusive, and no comity requires that executive orders should be treated as, conclusive in regard to facts proper for establishment. SUJAN SING v. HARDYAL SING, 36 P.R. 1877, F.B. [Confirmed on appeal, 7 P.R. 1882, P.C.; F., 21 P.R. 1894.]

Liability of, after suit once dismissed but subsequently decreed on remand by superior Court—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 145, 8 Ind. Cas. 980.

See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, ss. 134, 137, 24 A. 504=A.W.N. 1902, 166.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——1.—General—concluded.

Time given to the principal debtor without surety's consent—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 135, 2 Bom. L. R. 967.

Payment of interest by principal—Whether saves limitation against — See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 20, 9 Ind. Cas. 8.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 81, 98 P. R. 1881.

Bill of exchange—Position of holder and acceptor—See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, 1881, ss. 32, 37, 13 O.C. 206=7 Ind. Cas. 727.

Suit against—Limitation—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 6, 8 A.L.J. 199.

Trust deed by mortgagor in favour of a son—Relation between trustee and mortgagor—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, ss. 8, 130 and 135, 17 M.L.J. 87=30 M. 235.

——2.—Discharge of Surety.

(1)—Loss of securities by creditor - Surety's liability.—If a creditor who has had or ought to have had the securities in his full possession or power, loses them or permits them to get into the possession of the debtor, or does not make them effectual, the surety, to the extent of such security, will be discharged. GANPATI v. PANDU KUNBI, 10 C.P.L.R. 73.

(2)—Lending money on security— Fresh arrangement, effect of, on suretyship.—Where a person who has stood security for a loan to another, died before such loan was repaid, and the creditor subsequently entered into a fresh arrangement with the principal debtor, the heirs of the surety were held not liable for the debt, as the subsequent arrangement did not contemplate the continuance of the surety's responsibilities. SEETARAM SAHOO v. J. DACOSTA, 12 W.R. 294.

(3)—Principal and surety—Mortgage bond—Bond not registered—Discharge of surety—Evidence.—Plaintiff sued one V as principal, and two others as sureties, on a mortgage bond for Rs. 230, abandoning his lien on the house which was mortgaged. One of the sureties appeared and pleaded that he was discharged from his liability in consequence of the plaintiff's neglect to have the mortgage registered. Held that the mortgage could not be used to prove the loan of the money, and that, if the loan could be proved by other evidence, the principal might be sued for it as for money lent. Held also that the surety was discharged, as he could be liable only by virtue of the mortgage bond, which being invalid, could not be used against him. SHANKAR BAPU v. VISHNU NARAYAN, 4 B.H.C. A.C. 79. [F., 10 C.P.L.R. 73.]

(4)—Principal and surety— Discharge of surety.—A stood surety for B for the faithful discharge of the latter's duties as gomashta.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——2.—Discharge of Surety—continued.

Subsequent to this, an adjustment of accounts took place between B and his master. B executed an ekrar which stated that a certain sum after deduction, was found to be due by the principal; he accepted the liability stating that he could not pay the amount then, and he was given sometime without the knowledge of the surety. Held that the acceptance of the ekrar discharged the surety. PURI SUNDARI DEBI v. SRIMATI DROBOMAYI DEBI, 7 B.L.R. App. 10=15 W.R. 252.

(5)—Principal and surety—Instalment bond taken from debtor without consent of surety—Discharge of surety.—Where a creditor takes from the principal debtor, without the knowledge or consent of the sureties, a bond fixing certain periods for the payment of the sums mentioned in the bond, the sureties are entitled to be discharged of all their liability. PUREE SOONDUREE DABEE v. CHUNDER SHEKHUR GHOSSAL, 15 W.R. 252.

(6)—Mortgage—Relinquishment by mortgagee of his claim against portion of security—Release of sureties.—Where a mortgagee in a suit on the mortgage relinquished his claim on a portion of the mortgaged properties, the sureties to the debt were released from the liability to pay the debt, inasmuch as their position by such release became worse. NARAYAN GOVINDOK v. GANESH ATMARAM FADKE, 7 B.H.C. A.C. 118.

(7)—Principal and surety—Variance in terms of contract—Discharge of surety—Indian Contract Act, s. 133.—A variance in the terms of the contract between the creditor and the principal debtor, by which the liability of the latter is increased without the surety's consent, discharge the surety in respect of defaults or liabilities arising or accruing subsequent to such variance. KHATUN BIBI v. ABDULLAH, 3 A. 9.

(8)—Surety— Discharge of surety—Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 134, 137, 139 and 141.—In the course of execution-proceedings, the decree-holder agreed to accept payment of the decretal amount by a number of annual instalments; and certain other persons agreed to stand surety for the judgment-debtor. The surety-bond was in the following terms: "In case of default of paying the instalments, the whole decretal money with costs, and interest at eight annas per cent. shall be executed after one month; and for the satisfaction of the decree-holder, we, the executants, stand as surety of the judgment-debtor to Rs. 816-3-6, with all the costs of the Court and interest." Five annual instalments were regularly paid, and then they ceased; and the decree-holder took no steps to execute his decree, with the result that the decree became time-barred and inexecutable. He then sued the sureties for the balance of the decree, with interest. Held, that the suit must be dismissed, as the legal consequence of the decree-holder's omission to execute the decree was the discharge of the judgment-debtor, and likewise of the sureties also (s. 134 of the Contract Act). For, the condition of the surety-bond that, on the occurrence of a default, the decree should be executed, was a pre-emptory one, and imported much more than the usual agreement under such circumstances, that the decree-holder may, or is at liberty, to execute his decree, if he pleases, on a default. S. 137 of the Contract Act could not apply, as the omission to execute the decree was much more serious than mere "forbearance" in favour of the judgment-debtor. By his failure to carry out the express part of the agreement, the decree-holder did an act inconsistent with the equities of the sureties, (s. 139, I.C.A.) and omitted to do an act which his duty to the sureties under the agreement required him to do, whereby the eventual remedy of the sureties themselves against the principal debtor must necessarily have been impaired. The decree was a security in the hands of the decree-holder, to the benefit of which the sureties were entitled, and the loss of such security operated to discharge the sureties to the extent of its value (s. 141, I.C.A.). HAZARI v. CHUNNI LAL, 8 A. 259=A.W.N. 1886, 75. [F., 11 A. 310, 24 A. 504, 2 N.L.R. 42.]

Principal and Surety—continued.

—2.—Discharge of Surety—continued.

(9)—Principal and surety — Acceptance of interest in excess—Discharge of surety.—Where a creditor, without the knowledge of the surety, accepts from the principal debtor a sum on account of interest in excess of the interest then due on a promissory note, without anything further appearing as to the intention of the parties, and so gives time to the principal debtor, he thereby discharges the surety from liability on the promissory note. KALI PRASANNA ROY v. AMBICA CHARAN BOSE, 9 B.L.R. 261=18 W.R. 416. [F., 4 C. 132.]

(10)—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 134, 137—Remedy against debtor barred—Surety discharged—Creditor's forbearance.—If the remedy against the principal debtor be allowed to be barred by limitation, even though it is due to the creditor's forbearance, the surety will be discharged under s. 134, and the effect of this section is not limited by s. 137 which is applicable only to a forbearance, during the time that the creditor can be said to be forbearing to exercise a right which is still in existence. RADHA v. KINLOCK, 11 A. 310=A.W.N. 1889, 94. (5 B. 647, 12 C. 330, Diss.; 8 A. 259, R.) [R., U.B.R. 1892—1896, Vol. II, 308, 2 N.L.R. 42.]

(11)—Bond in English form—Law applicable—Limitation—Act XIV of 1859, s. 1, cl. (2)—Suit against surety—Policy of insurance accepted as collateral security—Failure to keep policy on foot—Laches of creditor—Discharge of surety.—In a suit by the creditor against a surety for the recovery of principal and interest due on a bond, two questions arose, (1) whether the suit was barred by limitation, and (2) whether it was the duty of the creditor to the surety to keep on foot a policy of insurance on the life of the principal debtor which policy was assigned to the creditor as collateral security. The bond executed by the parties being in the English form and apparently executed with reference to the English Law of contract, the English Law with reference to special contracts was in contemplation of the parties when they executed it, and the fact of the contract having been entered into at Simla did not prevent the rights of the parties from being governed by English law. Held that the suit was not barred, being governed by s. 1, cl. 11 of the Limitation Act. The creditor having failed to pay the premium, the Insurance Company refused payment. Inasmuch as the surety was injured by reason of the laches of the creditor in having omitted to ascertain whether or not the premium had been duly paid, and the creditor had, by reason of his having accepted the policy on the terms of his keeping it alive, led the surety to believe that he would do so and thereby put him off his guard when he might otherwise have protected his own interests, the surety was held discharged from his liability as surety. SIMLA BANK CORPORATION v. CAREY, 72 P.R. 1873. [Overruled, 77 P.R. 1875.]

Principal and Surety—continued.

—2.—Discharge of Surety—continued.

(12)—Giving time--Advance interest.—Whether receipt of interest in advance by a creditor amounts to giving time to the principal debtor, is a mixed question of law and fact. As a general rule, the acceptance of interest in advance by the creditor, does operate as a giving of time to the principal debtor, and, consequently, as a discharge to the surety, unless the transaction is assented to by him. PROTAP CHUNDER v. GOUR CHUNDER ROY, 4 C. 132=2 C.L.R. 455. (9 B.L.R. 261=18 W.R. 416, F.; 15 B.L.R. 331 338, Not F.)

(13)—Accommodation acceptor—Advance interest by drawer of hundis to holder.—Where the drawer of hundis pays advance interest to the holder and thereby obtains time for payment after due date, the liability of an accommodation acceptor of the hundis depends upon his knowledge of, and consent to, the arrangement. 6 C. 241, P.C.=6 C.L.R. 591.

(14)—Hundi — Accommodation bill—Principal and surety — Time given to principal.—Plaintiff sued to recover the amount of a hundi drawn by defendant at Patna on defendant at Calcutta, payable 41 days after date to S. A. or order. The defence was that the hundi was an accommodation bill given by the defendant to S.A. for accommodation and without consideration; and that the plaintiff after the hundi had become due, and after notice that the defendant was, with regard to this hundi, only surety for S.A. the principal debtor, gave time to the principal S.A. in such a manner as to release the surety. Held, that the effect of the new arrangement was not to alter the position of the parties, i.e., of converting S.A. into the principal, and the defendant into a surety, so as to release the defendant from his original obligation as principal debtor. HARJIBAN DAS v. BHAGWAN DAS, 7 B.L.R. 535=16 W R.O. J. 16.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——2.—Discharge of Surety—continued.

(15) — Deposit bills — Sale—Redemption of securities—Surety, Release of—Application of proceeds.—A drew five bills in favour of B on Fergusson & Co., who accepted the same, and got them discounted by the Bank of Bengal, and, on their becoming due, procured their renewal. Fergusson & Co., subsequently, drew three bills on the Bank of Bengal; and, for securing as well the repayment of the principal sum due on these bills and interest, as of all and every sum or sums which the Bank had already advanced or should advance on account of the drawers, deposited as collateral securities various quantities of Chili copper, of a larger amount in value than the advances then made. By a condition in these bills, the Bank were authorised, in default of payment within the time stipulated, to dispose of the copper by public or private sale, and to reimburse themselves the principal and interest due thereon. Shortly afterwards, Fergusson & Co., failed, and assignees of their estate and effects were appointed under the India Insolvent Act. On presentation to A of the first of the renewed bills, he served notice on the bank not to part with the securities so deposited with them, alleging that the bills drawn and renewed by him were accommodation bills, for which he had not received any consideration, and were renewed on the faith of the securities being applicable to their discharge. The assignees of Fergusson & Co. redeemed the copper by paying to the bank the amount of the principal and interest due upon the bills drawn by Fergusson & Co. All the bills drawn by A were dishonoured, and the Bank of Bengal brought an action against A for their amount. On a bill filed by A, the Bank were restrained by injunction from proceeding with the action at law. Held, on appeal, by the Judicial Committee, discharging the injunction and reversing the decree of the Supreme Court, that, under the circumstances, the redemption of the securities was a sale within the meaning of the condition contained in the deposit bills, and that such sale was not a release to A, as surety for the previous bills, the condition not being that the copper or proceeds thereof should be applied preferentially or pari passu with the other debts, but simply in reimbursement to the Bank of the principal and interest due upon the bills. THE BANK OF BENGAL v. RADAKISSEN MITTER, 3 M.I.A. 19.

(16)—Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 143 —Surety's liability—"Keeping silence," meaning of—Duty of bank to disclose guilt of person for whom defendant was surety.—S. 143 of the Contract Act provides that "any guarantee which the creditor has obtained by means of keeping silence as to a material circumstance is invalid." The expression "keeping silence" implies intentional concealment as distinguished from mere non-disclosure; the withholding must be fraudulent, as necessarily is the case when a material circumstance is intentionally concealed. Where, therefore, there is no reason to suppose any intentional concealment of any fact; and the fact itself seems to be of such a trivial and unimportant nature as to least affect the readiness of the surety to make himself liable, the section will not absolve the surety from his liability. In the present case, the defendants stood sureties to the plaintiff Bank on behalf of one K for the faithful discharge of the duties of khajanchi by the said K. This K was holding the same office of second clerk in the Bank, and he continued to hold the same in addition to his being the khajanchi. It appeared that the defendants were not aware of the fact that K would continue to act as the second clerk also. The evidence also showed that the duties of the two offices were perfectly distinct, and that K's continuing to do the duties of the second clerk would not in any way materially alter or affect his duties as khajanchi. Held, that there was no "keeping silence" of any material fact within the meaning of s. 143 of the Contract Act, on the part of the Bank, and that the defendant would not be relieved of his obligation as surety by the continuance of K in his former office, unless the surety bond contained an agreement that the principal should not undertake any other business, which was not the case here. It was further contended by the defendant that the Bank ought to have informed him of what occurred in 1883, some time after the surety bond was entered into, when certain forged bills were allowed by K to pass. On that occasion, there was no suspicion of K's honesty, and, under the circumstances the Bank did not enforce their claim against K, as in strictness they might have done. Held, that this fact showed only that K was fallible in detecting forgeries and not that he was in any way dishonest; and, as the infallibility of K was not the ground on which the surety undertook his responsibility, it cannot be said that the omission of the Bank to inform the surety of this fact would absolve him from his responsibility as such. BALKRISHNA V. N. KRITIKAR v. THE BANK OF BENGAL, 15 B. 585.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——2.—Discharge of Surety —continued.

(17)—Creditor and surety—Duty of creditor —Discharge of surety—Act IX of 1872, ss. 134, 137, 139—Discharge under English Bankruptcy Act, how far good in India.—The creditor is not bound to show diligence in enforcing his remedy by action against the principal debtor, and mere forbearance on his part towards the principal will not release the surety. The question whether a creditor is bound to take proceedings against his principal debtor when called upon by the surety to do so and whether, in the event of his omitting to do so, the surety would be discharged, is one which seems open to argument. But when such a duty was created by correspondence between the surety and the creditor, the creditor would be held to have done his duty if he had done his best to enforce his claim against the principal debtor. Neglect to do so would not release the surety unless it could be shown that the principal was at the date of the undertaking by the creditor, solvent and had since become insolvent. A surety would not be discharged by the circumstance that the creditor has allowed his right of action against the principal debtor to become barred by the law of limitation. A discharge under the English Bankruptcy Act would be given effect to in India irrespective altogether of anything the creditor might say or do. DR. J. C. MORICE v. THE SIMLA BANK CORPORATION, LIMITED, SIMLA, 2 P.R. 1878. [D., 136 P.R. 1892.]

Principal and Surety—continued.

——2.—Discharge of Surety—continued.

(18)—Surety, liability of—Discharge—Non-disclosure of material facts by creditor.—There is no rule of law which entitles a surety, without questions asked, to a disclosure of all the material facts known to the creditor which it may be material to him to know. The non-disclosure of all material facts to the surety is not a sufficient ground for his discharge. A surety is not entitled to his discharge without proof of fraudulent misrepresentation or concealment on the part of the creditor or his agent. DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LTD. v. HUNTER, 3 N.W.P. 264.

(19)—Suit against principal debtor and surety—Failure to serve summons on principal debtor, surety's liability not affected by—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 99-A.—In a suit brought by the creditor against the principal debtor and the surety, the inability or omission of the plaintiff to serve the summons on the principal debtor can have the effect only of enabling the Court to dismiss the suit, as against the principal debtor, after the expiration of one year, under s. 99-A of the Civ. Pro. Code, leaving the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit. The non-service of summons on the principal debtor cannot in any way have the effect of discharging the surety from his liability under s. 134 of the Contract Act, IX of 1872. SHAIK ALLI v. MAHOMED, 14 B. 267. [D., 1 L.B.R. 150.]

(20)—Bond debt—Decree against surety—Execution against deceased principal's property.—A suit having been brought in a Small Cause Court on a bond which had been entered into by a principal, since deceased, whose representatives were not within the jurisdiction of the Court, the claim was inquired into as against the surety alone, who confessed liability. In the course of the inquiry, it appeared that the deceased had left some property within the Court's jurisdiction. The amount claimed was decreed against the surety. Held that the property of the deceased could not be taken in execution of the decree against the surety. KALI CHARAN v. SRIRAM, 2 B.L.R. A.C. 192=11 W.R. 69.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——2.—Discharge of Surety—concluded.

——3.—Surety, Rights and Liabilities of.

(1)—Liability of surety—Extent.—The liability of a surety cannot be stretched beyond the precise limit of his undertaking. The surety is not liable for any sum voluntarily paid by his principal to any third party for any purpose of his own. KHETTER NATH SEAL v. SHIBNATH CHATTERJEE, W.R. 1864, 284.

(2)—Surety—Liability of—Decree against surety, execution of—Necessity of seeking remedy against principal debtor before suing surety.—A creditor is not bound to exhaust his remedy against the principal debtor before suing the surety; and when a decree is obtained against a surety, it may be enforced in the same manner as a decree for any other debt. LACHHMAN JOHARIMAL v. BAPU KANDU; AND SURETY TUKARAM KHANDOJI, 6 B.H.C. A.C. 241. [R., 7 B.H.C A.C. 118, 4 C.L.R. 145, 16 C.P.L.R. 76.]

(3)—Contract—Surety, when liable for costs and interest.—A surety's liability must be measured by the contract, and where the contract is specific and not in general and indefinite terms, the surety cannot be liable for costs and interest incurred in suing the principal debtor. DABEE CHURN v. JANKEE PERSHAD, 3 Agra 141.

(4)—Principal and surety—Suit by surety against principal—Cause of action—Payment by surety to creditor necessary.—The mere fact that certain bonds have been executed in favour of the sureties by the principal debtor, provided that it is shown that the transaction is really one of guarantee out of which the execution of the bond arose, does not prevent the operation of the general law that a surety cannot recover against a principal until he has paid or performed all that he is liable for. Until the sureties have actually paid the debt for which, directly or indirectly they in effect had become sureties, it is impossible to consider that their cause of action had arisen. GUNGA RAM v. RAMKISHEN, 17 P.R. 1875.

(5)—Debtor and creditor—Principal and surety—Surety's liability—Creditor's laches.—It is not only open to the creditor to use the surety at once on default, but the law makes it his interest in a case of any doubt, to sue the surety in preference to the debtor. In order that the decree may be passed against the surety, the principal debtor need not be summoned. In this case, the fact that the sum lent was agreed to be re-paid in a certain number of instalments within one year, did not establish an agreement that payment after the lapse of a year was not guaranteed by the sureties. The sureties must be taken to have guaranteed payment absolutely as well as payment within the year, and non-payment within the year did not absolve them. It is for the debtor to find out and pay his creditor. It is also for the surety to see that the principal debtor pays the debt, and it is not the duty of the creditor (in the absence of any special agreement to that effect) to call in and demand the debt within a certain time, provided the period of limitation fixed by law is not exceeded. Mere laches on the part of the creditor in regard to the principal debtor will not discharge the surety, and it is the duty of the surety to see the creditor paid. When the creditor is shown to have wilfully shut his eyes and connived at the principal debtor's default, or by any irregularity of his own to have enabled the debtor to do what he ought not to have done, or to omit to do what he ought to have done, while, but for such conduct, the omission or commission would not have happened, the surety is discharged. MAJOR-GENERAL INNES v. THE DELHI BANK, 100 P.R. 1866.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——3. Surety, Rights and Liabilities of —continued.

(6)—Suretyship—Consideration.—When the contract between the principal debtor and the creditor is completed, by the exchange of a loan and a bond, a surety bond subsequently given by the surety is without consideration and void. Observations on the legal position of a surety. (Per Stuart, C.J.) NANAK RAM v. MEHIN LAL, 1 A. 487.

(7)—Security— Contribution — Liability to costs incurred in defence of suit.—One of several sureties who is compelled to pay the whole debt, can in equity compel the others to contribute towards payment of it. This equitable right is one independent of contract, although it may be taken away by special agreement. As a general rule, one co-surety cannot recover from the others the cost of defending an action, unless he is authorised or induced by the latter to do so, or unless, from some combination of circumstances, it became necessary to defend such suit. MRS. K. C. BYRNE v. C. H. MACLEOD, 86 P.R. 1868.

(8)—Joint and several liability—Liability of principal—Decree against one, no bar to suit against other.—Under the terms of a bond, if two parties (surety and principal) are jointly and severally liable to the creditor, the latter is entitled to bring a suit against the principal debtor notwithstanding that he had already obtained a decree against the surety for the same sum. The creditor is not bound to bring his action to suit the convenience of his debtor, and may defer it to the last moment that the law allows a suit to be brought. MAHOMED-ROHEE MOODDEEN v. INDOOR CHUNDER JOWHUREE, 12 W.R. 191.

(9)—Punjab Civil Code, Part II, s. 1, para 6—Re-opening of suit already decided—Powers of Commissioner--Appeal time—Right of creditor to sue principal or surety.—The Commissioner is vested with power to revise the decisions of Courts subordinate to him for special reasons, although no appeal should have been preferred, provided such revision takes place within the time prescribed for the hearing of appeals. He cannot therefore reopen a case after the appeal time has expired without any appeal having been filed. A creditor is entitled to sue either principal or surety when there is a default in payment and is under no obligation to proceed against one before suing the other. A decree against the principal is when it cannot be executed against him no bar to a suit against the surety. The practice of the Punjab Court is to implead both the principal and surety together in one suit, though their liabilities being several, they ought not to be sued jointly. MIRCER v. DECORTANZE, 8 P.R. 1866

Principal and Surety—continued.

——3.—Surety, Rights and Liabilities of —continued.

(10)—Indian Contract Act, s. 145—"Rightfully paid" —Money paid by surety for debt barred as against principal, whether recoverable from the latter.—S, a surety, sued P his principal to recover the amount paid by him under a decree obtained by X the creditor, against him as surety. In the first suit P was also sued and the decree in the Court of first instance was against both P and S. P appealed and the decree against him was reversed on the merits. S did not appeal but acquiesced in the decree against himself. In the first suit, the action of X as against P was barred by limitation and that against S. would also have been barred but for the circumstances that S had, during the currency of the period of limitation, struck a balance of the account against P and signed an acknowledgment that the balance was due. Held that the obligation of the surety is accessory to that of the principal, and, under ordinary circumstances is extinguished when the principal obligation is extinguished, and that a surety who discharges the mere moral obligation of his principal has no legal right to be indemnified by his principal, and S could not therefore recover from P the money that he had paid to X. A sum is "rightfully" paid within the meaning of s. 145 of the Indian Contract Act when the surety has been compelled to pay it as a result of the principal's default and without any mistake or want of prudence on his own part. SUJA v. PHALWAN, 30 P.R. 1878.

(11)—Principal and surety — Liability of surety—Suit against lessee and surety—Jurisdiction—Revenue and Civil Courts.—Where a contract of guarantee has been given and the principal debtor makes default, the creditor may at once prefer the claim against the surety, or if there be more than one, then against all or any of them, unless the contract of guarantee contains any stipulation to the contrary. A lessor sued the lessee and two other persons who had jointly guaranteed the payment of the rent by the lessee, for arrears of rent, by enforcement of the lien expressly created by the sureties on their houses. The suit was brought in the Court of the Munsif of Moradabad. The house of one of the sureties was not situated within that District. Held that the suit as against the lessee was cognizable by the Revenue Courts and not by the Civil Courts and that part of the claim which sought to enforce the lien in respect of property out of the District, should also be dismissed. But the suit should be decreed against the other surety. KARIM BAKSH v. BITHUL DAS, A.W.N. 1882, 132.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——3.—Surety, Rights and Liabilities of —continued.

(12)—Release of judgment-debtor's representative by decree-holder—Property, which is security for payment of debts by principal debtor, if liable.—A decree-holder, who releases his decreed judgment-debtor's representative into whose hands that debtor's assets have come and thus exempts the property from execution, is not entitled to proceed against property which was not liable in the first instance, but only became so by way of security for the due payment of the debt by the principal debtor. NOWAB SYUD VELLAYAT ALI KHAN v. SHAH AMEENOODDEEN AHMED, 23 W.R. 19.

(13)—Rights and liabilities of surety—Mutual debts--Set-off--Discharge of surety.—R borrowed money of the D. B. Corporation payable by monthly instalments, and G. became security for him. R. failed to pay the D.B. Corporation, having then a considerable balance to his credit in their hands. A year after they sued G. as surety for the sum borrowed. Held, in giving a decree for the plaintiffs, that a banker need not set-off against a debt a cash balance of the debtors in his hands, but may proceed against the surety. DELHI BANK CORPORATION v. GREENWAY, Bourke O. C. 227.

(14)—Surety for discharge of clerical duties —Liability of surety.—In a suit against the surety, who had undertaken to secure the due performance by the principal, of his duties as clerk of the Small Cause Court, for the recovery of moneys misappropriated by the said clerk out of the proceeds of sales of moveable properties held in execution of decrees, passed by the Judge of the Small Cause Court in the exercise of his powers as Subordinate Judge, held that the surety was liable for the moneys so misappropriated, as the grant and exercise of Subordinate Judge's powers was an incident attached by law to the office of Small Cause Court Judge, and the clerk of the Court is as much bound to perform the incidental, as the ordinary duties of his appointment; and that it would have made no difference that, at the time of the execution of the bond, the Small Cause Court Judge was not invested with the powers of a Subordinate Judge. CROSTHWAITE v. HAMILTON, 1 A. 87.

(15)—Rights and liabilities of surety—Bond for faithful discharge of duty of overseer—Carelessness of principal.—By a bond given for the faithful discharge of the office of overseer to a ferry fund Committee, the surety became bound "to make good any funds entrusted to the overseer which may be misused." Held that, under these words, the surety was liable for a loss of funds arising from the mere carelessness or indiscretion of the principal, independently of any dishonesty, as by his lending the money to contractors. SECRETARY OF THE FERRY FUND COMMITTEE v. WARD, Marsh 89=1 Hay 155.

(16)—Cash credit loan account—Bond by principal debtor and sureties—Running accounts—Notice to surety.—A bond was entered into between the manager of a Bank as obligee, and W.M. and the respondents as obligors, by which W.M. was allowed to open a cash credit loan account for a certain sum secured on a policy of Life Assurance. It was stipulated that the respondents were to be liable for the said sum if the full amount with interest, premium and charges were not paid by W.M. within one year from the date of the bond. At the end of one year, he was indebted to the bank to a large extent. But the bank allowed him to keep a running account for two years more beyond the due date, during which time payments made by him exceeded the amount of the debt secured by the bond and there were subsequent withdrawals. The Bank sued the sureties. Held that, as the whole account from beginning to end was an ordinary running account, the rule "that each item of payment or credit is applied in payment of the earliest items of debit standing in the account, until the whole payment, or credit is exhausted," should be applied and as the debt secured by the bond had been satisfied, the bank was not entitled to maintain the suit against the respondents. Semble: It was open to the respondents to show by evidence dehors the bond, that they were sureties, although on the face of the bond it may not appear to be so. Semble that the sureties were not entitled to notice from the bank of the default made by their principal. Semble that there being no express stipulation in the bond prohibiting a greater credit than the amount mentioned in it the fact that the principal overdrew his account would not have discharged the sureties from their liability. KOONDEN LALL v. E.D. JAHANS, 1 Agra 17.

(17)—Mahomedan Law—Mutwali—Treasurer, misapproriation by — Surety, liability of—Fraud—Connivance — Rights of mutwali—Acquittal of principal on misappropriation of funds —Civil action against sureties not barred—Bond —Rights of obligee—Optional stamp—Act XXVI of 1860, s. 14.—Under the Mahomedan law, the mutwali of an endowment, though himself guilty of gross neglect in supervising his accounts and cash balances, has a right to recover from the sureties of the treasurer, sums misappropriated by the latter, in the absence of any fraud or virtual connivance at the delinquency of the treasurer. The acquittal of the principal in a Criminal Court on a charge of misappropriation of funds does not prevent the institution of a suit against the sureties in a Civil Court. Where a person knowingly and without mistake, ignorance or inadvertence executes a document on an optional stamp, the obligee can recover such a sum only as that optional stamp covers; no larger sum than that can be recovered in any Court of Justice under the provisions of s. 14, Act XXVI of 1860, and no amount of penalty can make up the deficiency in the stamp. SYED KERAMUT ALI, MUTWALI v. MOONSHEE ABDOOL WAHAB, 17 W.R. 131.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——3.—Surety, Rights and Liabilities of —continued.

(18)— Hundi—Accommodation acceptor—His liability—Surety—Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 128.—In a suit on a hundi against the acceptor, it is not open to the defendant to say that he accepted the hundi for the accommodation only of a third person, that he was liable only as surety and that all the remedies must first be exhausted against his principal. In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the liability of the surety is co-extensive with that of the principal and so it is not necessary for the plaintiff to exhaust all his remedies first against his principal. J. C. PANIOTY v. DWARKA MOHUNDASS, 4 C L.R. 145. (4 M. H.C. 190, 6 Bom. H.C. 241, R.)

(19)—Remedy against principal debtor barred —Liability of surety--Contract Act, 1872, ss. 133, 139.—The liability of a surety (for arrears of rent) will not be extinguished, merely because the liability of the principal debtor has been allowed to become barred by limitation. KRISTO KISHORI CHOWDRAIN v. RADHA ROMAN, 12 C. 330 (5 B. 647, Appr.) [Diss., 11 A 310=9 A.W.N. 94. U.B.R. 1892—1896, Vol. II, 308, 2 N.L.R. 42; D., 1 L.B.R. 150.]

(20)—Suit against surety to recover damages on contract to deliver goods—No allegation of willingness on the part of plaintiff to pay on delivery—Suit not bad on that account--Surety beginning to perform duty contracted to be performed by principal debtor.—No alteration of liability.—In a suit to recover damages against a surety upon a contract to deliver coffee to the plaintiff, the circumstance that the plaint contains no allegation of the willingness of the plaintiff to pay on delivery does not render the suit bad, when the absence of such an allegation has not prejudiced the defendant. A surety is at liberty to perform that for the non-performance of which he has rendered himself liable, and his liability for non-performance cannot be altered by his having done so. ROBERT HODGES PIERCE v. OPENDRA SHEFFI GANAPATHY, 7 M.H.C. 364.

(21)—Contract of Guarantee—Evidence to prove it—Damages, Measure of.—In a suit by the plaintiff to recover from the defendant, the amount misappropriated by his employee, A, whose honesty the defendant had guaranteed it was contended on behalf of the defendant that the evidence proving the guarantee consisted merely of a statement made at the time that the defendant believed A to be honest and that, though he subsequently wrote two letters wherein he specially referred to A's honesty, he refused to sign any guarantee bond. Held, that the words used at the time of taking A into service, were sufficient evidence of a contract of guarantee and as the same was confirmed by subsequent letters, the contract was complete. In a suit against the surety for damages for the dishonesty of the employee, the Court must act upon the principle that the damages must be proved to have resulted from the dishonest act of the employee. On this principle, the amount misappropriated by the employee can be claimed, but not the travelling allowance paid to him to join the appointment or the costs of a suit against the employee. DECERTANZE v. MERCER, 1 P. R. 1866, O.J.

Principal and Surety—continued.

——3.—Surety, Rights and Liabilities of —concluded.

(22)—Execution of decree—Surety after decree.—A person who becomes a surety after the passing of a decree cannot be proceeded against in execution of such decree. BUNSIDHAR v. BEHARI LALL, 62 P.R. 1871. [F., 59 P R. 1880.]

See DAMAGES — MEASURE AND ASSESSMENT, 106 P.R. 1866.

Mortgage—Purchase of mortgaged property by one of two joint-mortgagees, effect of, on the debt under the joint-mortgage—Guarantee for personal default of the obligors—Extent of surety's liability—See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 9 A. 205=A W.N. 1886, 279.

——4.—Miscellaneous.

(1) - Suretyship — Liability and rights of surety.--A and B became sureties for a Treasurer in a Collectorate, and bound themselves to make good any losses or deficiencies which might occur in the Treasury from any cause whatever. The Collector discovered certain deficit in the deposit accounts of some zemindars, carried to account the amount then in deposit, and attached the property of the sureties for the recovery of the balance of the deposit. A and B (the sureties) then sued the Zemindar, the Collector and the Treasurer for a refund of the moneys. Held that the treasurer only was liable, but not the Collector or the Zemindars. SADUT ALI KHAN v. MANIKARNIKA CHOWDHRAIN, W.R. 1864, 119.

(2)—Oral guarantee—Evidence to establish it —Mandate.—A offered a building contract to B, who, being unable to accept it on the score of some other engagement, introduced C and D as persons fit to undertake the work, promising in a general way to supervise their work and see that it was properly done. A contract was eventually entered into with C and D. They

S. N. Das
Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar.

Principal and Surety—concluded.

—4.—Miscellaneous—concluded.

did the work very badly, committed acts of fraud and absconded. A therefore sued B, C and D for damages. There was no evidence that B connived at any acts of fraud on the part of C and D, and that he had any interest in their contract. Nor was there any consideration for his guaranteeing the good work of C and D. Held, under the circumstances, that B was not liable. Nor could B be held liable as under a contract of mandate entered into by him gratuitously, but nevertheless binding on the ground of the trust reposed in him. GENERAL BRIND v. MUTHRA, 93 P.R. 1868.

(3)—Surety—Subrogation.—By the law of England and the law of Scotland, and by the general law of Europe, when a surety has paid off the debt of his principal, not only are all the collateral securities transferred to the surety but, by what is called subrogation, the right is also transferred to him to stand in the place of the original creditor, and to use against the principal debtor every remedy which the principal creditor himself could have used. The law of this country may be reasonably taken to be that which has been considered equitable in other countries, namely, that the surety is not debarred from proceeding against the original debtor upon the instrument itself which created the debt, by reason of the debt having been paid by himself. HEERA LAL SAMUNT v. SYUD OOZEER ALI, 21 W.R. 347. [D., 4 C.W.N. 590.]

(4)—Decree, execution of, against third party—Agreement of such party in respect of decree—Effect.—A third person by becoming a party to an agreement made between the immediate parties to a suit, and by varying the terms of a decree, does not thereby become a party to the decree so that execution may be had against him; he is and continues to be a stranger to the suit, and to the decree, and any rights against him arising out of his agreement must be enforced against him in a separate proceeding. DIWAN RAM CHAND v. MUHAMMAD SULTAN, 75 P.R. 1876. [F., 59 P.R. 1880.]

See EXECUTION OF DECREE—EXECUTION ON OR AFTER AGREEMENTS OR COMPROMISE, 62 P.R. 1871.

Principal Sadr Amins, etc., Bengal.

See BEN. ACT XVI OF 1868.

Printing.

(1)—Rates of Printing executed at private Presses.—Indents for Stationery. Cir. No. 9 dated the 13th March 1866, 5 W.R. Civ. Cir. Orders, p. 4.

See COSTS—SPECIAL CASES, 10 C. 106.

Priority.

Among several mortgagees—See ATTACHMENT—PRIORITY OF ATTACHMENT.

Priority—continued.

See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY.

See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 50.

(1)—Priority—Purchase of jote at successive rent and mortgage sale—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 65, 161, 167 — Mortgage-decree, if an incumbrance.—After a mortgagee had obtained a decree for sale on his mortgage, the landlord of the jote, the subject of the mortgage, brought a suit for rent and sold the jote in execution of a decree obtained therein. Later on the property was sold in execution of the mortgage-decree and purchased by the mortgagee, who took possession. Held, in a suit for possession brought by the purchaser at the rent sale after notice served on the mortgagee under s. 167, Bengal Tenancy Act, purporting to annul the mortgage, that the question was really one of priorities, and the purchaser at the rent sale had priority over the purchaser in execution of the mortgage-decree. GOPI NATH MOHAPATRO v. KASHI NATH BEG, 13 C.W.N. 412=9 C.L.J 234=1 Ind. Cas. 35. (29 C. 813, R.) [F., 10 C.L.J. 640.]

(2) — Judgment-creditor—Official Assignee—Priority.—A judgment-creditor has no priority over the Official Assignee in respect of property attached by him previous to the passing of the vesting order. FREDERICK PEACOCK v. MADAN GOPAL, 29 C. 428=6 C.W.N. 577, F.B. (15 C. 202, F.; 28 C. 419, Overruled; 5 B.L.R. 691, 10 C. 150, D.) [F., 29 B. 405=7 Bom. L.R. 488; R., 26 M. 673=13 M.L.J. 278, 7 O.C. 314, 5 C.L.J. 80=11 C.W.N. 163, 5 P.W.R. 1909=6 P.L.R. 1909; D., 30 M. 413=7 M.L.J. 334=2 M.L.T. 365.]

(3)—Registered and unregistered documents, priority between—Quære.—Whether the case of a second registered purchaser with notice of a prior unregistered sale in an exception to the rule in 8 C. 597, F.B. BAMASUNDARI DASSI v. KRISHNA CHANDRA DHUR, 10 C. 424. [Expl., 13 C. 70.]

(4)—Priority — Priority between registered sale and prior unregistered sale of which the registration was optional — Notice. — Where, when two documents being of the kinds specified in the first clause of s. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, come into competition, the earlier of which the registration is optional being unregistered, and the latter being registered. The holder of the latter document is not affected by notice of the former. LEHNA v. GANPAT, 115 P.R. 1890, F.B. (159 P.R. 1883, 37 P.R 1882, Overruled; 3 M.H.C. 89, 5 M. 75, F.)

Unregistered mortgage without possession optionally registrable—Subsequent registered sale - Priority—See ACT XIX OF 1843, 4 B. 459.

See ACT XIX OF 1843, 6 M.H.C. 391, 18 B. 332.

Priority—continued.

See ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT, 4 B.L.R. F.B. 63=13 W.R. 9, Bourke O.C. 260, 1 Ind. Jur. N.S. 393=Bourke O.C. 92.

See BOTTOMRY BOND, 1 Ind. Jur. N.S. 303.

Registered certificate of sale—Unregistered previous optionally registrable sale-deed — Priority—See CERTIFICATE OF SALE, 7 M. 418.

Insolvent—Distribution of assets—Dower debt — Mortgage debt — See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1882, s. 356 (d), A.W.N, 1884, 33.

Decree-holder first attaching property—First applicant in execution— Priority—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 73, 5 M.H.C. 113.

Decree-holder first attaching property—Not forfeited by delaying to obtain order for sale—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 73, 6 M.H.C. 348.

See DECREE—DECREE, FORM OF, 22 C. 100.

Claim of attaching-creditor and incomplete equitable title of assignee of decree, preference between—See EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT, 5 C. 869=6 C.L.R. 498.

Of mortgage by Receiver for preservation of estate, over subsequent equitable mortgage—See EQUITABLE MORTGAGE, 4 C.L.J. 495=11 C.W.N. 1=34 C. 427.

See EXECUTION OF DECREE — JOINT DECREES, EXECUTION OF, 5 N.W.P. 98.

Hindu Law—Benares School—Inheritance—Priority among daughters—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 3 C. 587, P.C.=5 I.A. 40=2 C.L.R. 51.

Of Official Assignee—See INSOLVENCY — CLAIMS OF ATTACHING CREDITORS AND OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE, 2 Ind. Jur. N.S. 188, 2 Ind. Jur. N.S. 337.

Subsequent insolvency—Of Official Assignee—See INSOLVENCY — MISCELLANEOUS, 1 Ind. Jur. N.S. 11=Bourke O.C. 339.

See INSOLVENCY — MISCELLANEOUS. 1 Ind. Jur. N.S. 325 and on appeal Ibid. 373, 2 B.L.R. A.C. 61=10 W.R. 353.

Over purchaser in execution of decree under prior unregistered Mortgage, of subsequent registered purchaser without notice of the mortgage—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 4 C.L.J. 490.

See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 13 C. 10.

Of mortgage—Intention to preserve prior security—See MORTGAGE — CONSTRUCTION OF MORTGAGE DEEDS, 16 C. 523.

See MORTGAGE—MARSHALLING, 6 C.L.R. 336, 23 P.R. 1891.

Purchaser of equity of redemption at sale in execution of money-decree, neither certificate of sale nor possession obtained by—Sale in execution of decree on prior mortgage—of rights of purchaser under—See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 9 B. 10.

Priority—continued.

Successive mortgages of same property—Sale under both mortgagee—Redemption—See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 11 C.L.R. 1=9 I. A. 21, P.C.

Mortgage— Fraud — Priority — Lien—See MORTGAGE — SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 1=11 W.R. 286.

Mortgage in renewal of prior mortgage—Right of mortgagee to—over subsequent mortgages—See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 20 M. 274=7 M.L.J. 87.

See MORTGAGE — SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 4 B. 34, 11 B.H.C. 41.

Mortgage—Purchase in succession by mortgagees in execution of mortgage decrees —Delivery of possession — Date of delivery—See MORTGAGE—MISCELLANEOUS, 26 M. 486.

Relinquishment of—See MORTGAGE—MISCELLANEOUS, 5 C.W.N. 649, P.C.=3 Bom. L.R. 713=28 I.A. 203=23 A. 313.

Prior mortgage—Subsequent registered sale—of claim—See MORTGAGE — MISCELLANEOUS, 4 M.H.C. 434.

Earlier unregistered mortgage—Subsequent registered mortgage- Suit by second mortgagee—Sale of mortgaged property — Prior rights of first mortgagee over holder of money decree against mortgagor — See MORTGAGE— MISCELLANEOUS, 18 B. 684.

See MORTGAGE —MISCELLANEOUS, A.W.N. 1885, 130.

See MOVEABLE PROPERTY, 2 C.P.L.R. 108.

Of other sharers of joint estate, entitled under partition decree, to receive owelty money from co-sharer over mortgagees of that co-sharer's undivided share in joint estate— See PARTITION—GENERAL, 12 C.W.N. 373=35 C. 388.

Applicability of priorities given by s. 12 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act II of 1905 to a claim to right of pre-emption with reference to a sale executed before the commencement of the Act—See PRE-EMPTION—RIGHT TO PRE-EMPT, 18 P.W.R. 1908, F.B.=17 P.R. 1908=153 P.L.R. 1908.

See RECEIVER, 16 B. 577.

Registered mortgage—Subsequent sale with possession—Priority—See REGISTRATION, 2 B. 662.

Registered conveyance — Unregistered conveyance with possession—Priority—Notice—See REGISTRATION, 7 C. 753=10 C.L.R. 129.

Registered conveyance—Unregistered contract for sale—Preference—See REGISTRATION, 6 B.L.R. App. 1=15 W.R. 239.

Priority—continued.

Registered deed of sale—of—Tangible immoveable property, definition of—See REGISTRATION, 2 O.C. 74.

Registered and unregistered-deed—See REGISTRATION, 4 B.L.R.A.C. 8=12 W.R. 456.

See REGISTRATION, 10 B.L.R. 380=19 W. R. 279, L.B.R. 1872—1892, 151.

Registered conveyance—Unregistered mortgage—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17, 13 C.L.R. 256.

Of later registered deed—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17, 10 C. 82.

Mortgage—Value of mortgage — Deed for purposes of registration—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, ss. 17, 50, 5 A. 447, F.B.=A.W.N. 1883, 87.

Several deeds of sale registered — Priority according to date of execution—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 47, 8 B. 182.

See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, ss. 47, 49, 50, I L.B.R. 293.

Possession under unregistered lease — See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 48, 5 B.L.R. App. 86=14 W.R. 250.

Sale of property mortgaged with possession — Subsequent sale by a registered document—Priority—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 48, P.L.R. 1900, p. 8, 352.

See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 48, 9 M. 267.

Preference between innocent purchasers—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, ss. 48, 50, 5 C. 336=4 C.L.R. 257.

See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, ss. 49, 50, 8 M. 167.

See RIGHT OF SUIT—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE, 12 A. 546=A.W.N. 1890, 77.

Revenue sale for patni—Darpatnidar's decree for compensation—Attachment by patnidar's mortgagee—Priority—See SALE—SALE FOR ARREARS OF RENT — SURPLUS PROCEEDS OF SALE, RIGHT TO, 7 C. 173=8 C.L.R. 341.

See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—GENERAL, 1 A. 727.

See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—MORTGAGED PROPERTY, SALE OF, 5 N.W.P. 81.

See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—PURCHASERS, RIGHTS TO, 4 N.W.P. 5.

Sale under attachment during subsistence of prior attachment—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—WRONGFUL AND INVALID SALES, 6 C.L.R. 85.

Sales in execution of different decrees—Prior sale under later attachment—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—WRONGFUL AND INVALID SALES, 8 C.L.R. 468.

Priority—concluded.

Successive sales in execution of decrees—Confirmation—C.P.C. 1882, ss. 11 and 320—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—MISCELLANEOUS, A.W.N. 1887, 267.

Of title between purchasers at rent sale and at execution of mortgage decree—See TITLE, 10 C.L.J. 640=4 Ind. Cas. 750.

See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY, U.B.R. 1897—1901, Vol. II, 573.

Mortgages— Prior unregistered mortgages, subsequent registered mortgagee with notice of, not entitled to the—Under s. 50 of the Registration Act III of 1877—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 53, 8 A. 540=A.W.N. 1886, 174.

See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 54. 18 M. 61.

Of registered over unregistered deeds—Scope of rule—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—POSSESSION, 6 B. 193, F.B.

Prisoner.

(1)—Appeal petition of prisoner in jail under Civil warrant—Duty of Court.—A prisoner in jail under a civil warrant is entitled to present a petition of appeal to the Court having power to hear appeals, without the intervention of a Vakil. KRISTNAPPAH, PETITIONER, 6 M.H.C. 38.

See VAKALATNAMA, 1 B.H.C. 16.

Prisoners Act, State.

See ACT III OF 1858.

Prisoners in Calcutta.

See BEN. ACT XII OF 1865.

Prisoners' Testimony Act.

See ACT XV OF 1869.

Privacy.

Invasion of right of—See EASEMENT, 4 A. L.J. 445=A.W.N. 1907, 183=29 A. 582.

See EASEMENT, 108 P.L.R. 1903.

Invasion of—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 3 Agra 253.

Right of—Pardanashin woman—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 5 B.L.R. 676=14 W.R. 103.

Suit to have windows removed—Invasion of—Of woman— See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 5 B.L.R. 677, Note.

See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 3 M.H.C. 141, 18 M. 163.

Right to have windows closed—Invasion of privacy, comfort and ventilation—See PRESCRIPTION—EASEMENTS— LIGHT AND AIR, 2 Agra 269.

Privacy, Right of.

(1)—Easement— Right of privacy—Invasion of the right—Question of fact.—The question whether a right of privacy exists, and whether it has been substantially infringed, is a question of fact. RAM NARAIN v. SHIB LAL, 6 Ind. Cas. 398.

Privacy, Right of—continued.

(2)—Succession of right of privacy—Mandatory injunction.—Although the right of privacy is not recognized by the law of England, such a right exists in the country where the conditions of life are different. The object of a mandatory injunction is to restore things to their original order and not to create a new state of things. Hence a defendant who has made a roof which interferes with the privacy of the plaintiff's house cannot be ordered to erect a wall on the roof, so as to prevent a view of the plaintiff being had from the roof. The decree which the plaintiff is entitled to is a decree restraining the defendants by injunction from permitting any portion of the building raised by them, by which the privacy of the plaintiff's house is or may be invaded, to remain, and from erecting any building or permitting any erection to remain on the site of the former building of the defendants so as to interfere with the privacy of the plaintiff's house, as the same was enjoyed prior to the erection of the building complained of. SHEO NATH RAI v. ALI HUSSAIN, 1 A.L.J. 118.

(3)—Right of privacy, Nature of.—The right of privacy does not arise from prescription but is a creation of custom, which has been recognized as such in Gujrat by judicial decisions. The right, however, is limited to particular apartments secluded from general observation. NATHUBHAI v. CHHAGANLAL, 2 Bom. L.R. 454.

(4)—Privacy, suit to enforce right of — Customary right of privacy.—The plaintiff brought a suit for removal of windows in the defendant's house which overlooked the female apartments of his house. A lane separated the two houses. A custom was proved to exist by which the plaintiff was entitled to the right of privacy which he claimed. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the relief prayed for and the fact that the houses of the parties were separated by public thoroughfare did not prevent the existence of a custom of privacy which could be enforced. LALA BHAGWAN DAS v. SHAHZADA MIRZA MASUD QUADAR, 7 O.C. 126. (10 A. 358, F.)

(5)—How arises—Usage, proof of—Prescriptive right—Limitation Act, 1877, s. 26.—There is in Bengal no inherent right to privacy, and such a right can arise at all only by local usage, by grant or by special permission. In a suit for closing the window on the wall of the defendant and for the issue of a permanent injunction restraining him from opening any windows in future in that wall, on the ground that the privacy of the plaintiff had been interfered with, it was proved that it had not been usual for windows to be opened out in any one house in the village so as to overlook the female apartments of another, but not that the villagers had been in the habit of preventing their co-villagers from opening windows in such a manner. Held that the usage as to the right of privacy was not proved. The right of privacy cannot be claimed under s. 26 of the Limitation Act. The fact that the defendant's wall had been standing there over 50 years, and that during this period no window had been opened, is not sufficient to give the plaintiff a prescriptive right to prevent the defendant opening a window in that wall. If the plaintiff be able to establish that, for a long period sufficient to establish a right by prescription, he had been exercising the right of preventing the defendant from opening such a window, that might establish a prescriptive right. SRI NARAIN CHOWDHRY v. JODOO NATH CHOWDHRY, 5 C.W.N. 147.

(6)—Right of privacy in N.W.P.—Interference with such right actionable—English law—Questions to be determined—Right of privacy to new buildings, when reasonable, and when not.—The right of privacy exists by custom in the N.W.P., among the Hindus and Muhammadans, who observe the custom of parda; and any substantial interference with such right, where it exists, if without the consent of the owner of the dominant tenement, affords such owner a good cause of action. The fact that there is no such custom of privacy known to the law of England can have no bearing on the question whether there can be in India a usage or custom of privacy valid in law. [R., 8 A. W.N. 270, 16 A. 69, 5 C.W.N. 147, 7 O.C. 126, 29 A. 64=3 A.L.J. 670=A.W.N. 1906, 283; D., 18 M. 163=5 M.L.J. 26.] Every case of interference with the right of privacy must depend on its own facts. A primary question must in all cases be:—Does the privacy in fact and substantially exist and has it been and is it in fact enjoyed? If this is answered in the negative, no further question arises. But, if in the affirmative, the next question would be:—Was it substantially and materially interfered with by acts of the defendant done without the consent or acquiescence of the person seeking relief against those acts? [R., 29 A. 582=A. W. N. 1907, 183=4 A. L. J. 445.] In the case of a building for parda purposes newly erected, without the acquiescence of the owner of an adjacent building site, a custom which would prevent the owner of such site from building so as to interfere with the privacy of the first new building, would be unreasonable, and consequently, a bad custom in law. If, however, the owner of such an adjacent building site were without protest or notice, to allow his neighbour to erect, and consequently to incur expenses in erecting building, or premises for the use of pardanashin women, a custom, which would prevent him from subsequently interfering with the privacy of such new building, would not be unreasonable in this country. N.B.—The Indian case law relating to right of privacy discussed and reviewed. GOKUL PRASAD v. RADHO, 10 A. 358=A.W.N. 1888, 135.

(7)—Privacy, Invasion of — Opening new windows.—Where a person opened a new window in his own premises rendering thereby the defendant's house less private than before, held that he was not guilty of any tortious act, and should not be debarred from improving his own house, though, the effect might be, to some extent, prejudicial to his neighbour. The right of privacy will not be allowed unless a special custom to that effect is proved. SHRINIVAS UDPIRAY v. L. REID, DISTRICT MAGISTRATE OF DHARWAR, 9 B.H.C. 266. [F., 18 M. 163=5 M.L.J. 26; R., 10 A. 358=8 A.W.N. 135.]

Privacy, Right of—concluded.

See CUSTOMS—PUNJAB—MISCELLANEOUS, 19 P.R. 1882.

See EASEMENT, A.W.N.1892,159, 3 Ind.Cas. 88, 21 P.R. 1869, 91 P.R. 1869, 96 P.R. 1876.

Suit to close doors—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 6 B.L.R. App. 76.

Private Agent.

Mukhtear and — Distinction between— See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS—MUKHTEAR, 6 C. 585=7 C.L.R. 562, Private Fisheries Protection Act.

See BEN. ACT II OF 1889.

Private Lotteries Act.

See ACT V OF 1844.

Private Market.

Private market, the Chowpati foreshore is not a—See BOM. ACT III OF 1888, s. 410, 7 Bom. L.R. 726.

Private Street.

Private street, balconies abutting on, can be removed by District Municipality—See BOM. ACT VI OF 1873, s.33, 5 Bom.L.R.48=27 B.221.

Private Water-Courses Act.

See ACT XII OF 1866.

Private Way.

Right of private way, suit for—Special damage, proof of, whether necessary—See RIGHT OF WAY, 6 C.W.N. 197.

Privilege.

(1)—Libel — Debtor—Qualified privilege.—Of two creditors of the same debtor, one creditor sued him for a certain sum. Held that the other creditor who intervenes and presents a statement to the Court, pointing out what he considered suspicious elements in the other creditor's claim, is protected on the ground that he had the qualified privilege of persons acting in good faith and making communications with a fair and reasonable purpose of protecting their own interests. HINDE v. BAUDRY, 2 M. 13. [F., 17 B. 127, 17 B. 573; Appr., 11 M. 477; R., 14 B. 97, 23 C. 867, 4 A.L J. 614; R.& D., 29 A. 685.]

Attaching to an official publication is absolute —See ACT OF STATE, 6 Bom. L.R. 131.

Privilege — Good Faith, proof of — See DEFAMATION, 3 A. 815=1 A.W.N. 81.

Suit for damages for defamation—Judicial proceeding — Pleadings — See DEFAMATION, A.W.N. 1885, 204.

Privilege—concluded.

Of Judge—See DEFAMATION, 17 M. 87.

Privileged communication—Malice, proof of — See DEFAMATION, 83 P.R. 1908 = 152 P.W.R. 1908=26 P.L.R. 1909.

Attaching to reports by a public officer to his superiors—See DEFAMATION, 5 Bom. L.R. 664 =27 B. 585.

See DEFAMATION, 28 C. 794=5 C.W.N. 804, 23 C. 867.

Defamatory statement in affidavit—Privilege—See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS, 6 Ind. Cas. 309=8 M.L.T. 55.

Of a European British subject to be tried by High Court—See HIGH COURT—JURISDICTION OF BOMBAY, 5 Bom. L.R. 869.

Application for production and inspection of document—Affidavit of document—Right of party to put in a further affidavit in support of claim of privilege, if original affidavit is insufficient — Practice — See INSPECTION OF DOCUMENTS, 22 C. 105.

See INSPECTION OF DOCUMENTS, 11 C. 655.

Libellous statements during judicial proceedings, suit for damages whether maintainable—See LIBEL, 14 B. 97.

Foundation of doctrine of—Welfare of society —See LIBEL, 12 C.W.N. 1053, P.C.=19 M.L.J. 20=14 Bur. L. R. 225=4 M.L.T. 21=1 Ind. Cas. 348.

See PARDANASHIN WOMEN, 1 B.L.R. F.B. 31=10 W.R.F.B. 21.

To papers passing between a Company and its officers after threatened suit—See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 10 Bom. L.R. 796.

Privileged Communication.

See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, S. 126.

See PRIVILEGE.

(1)—Indian Evidence Act, I of 1872, s. 129—Communications with legal advisers, privileged nature of.—Compulsory disclosure of confidential communications with legal advisers ought not to be pressed in the absence of any necessity for doing so for the purpose of explaining any evidence given by the party who has offered himself as a witness. The rule of protection provided for by s. 129 of the Evidence Act should be construed in a sense most favourable to bringing professional knowledge to bear effectively on the facts out of which legal rights and obligations arise and disclosures of the ordinarily privileged confidential communications should not be enforced in any cases except where they are absolutely necessary. MUNCHERSHAW BEZONJI v. THE NEW DHURUMSEY S & W. Co., 4 B. 576.

(2)—Letters between solicitor of several plaintiffs—Privileged communication.—One of the letters, of which inspection was sought in this case, was a letter written by the solicitors of two of the plaintiffs in the suit to the solicitors of the third plaintiff, and the other was a letter written to the third plaintiff by his solicitors, and it was held that they must be regarded as confidential communications and, as such, need not be produced and that the defendant had, therefore, no right to see them. The mere fact of parts of the letters having been read to the defendant's solicitors could not amount to a waiver of the privilege, so far as regards the portions which were not so read, or give any right to the defendant to inspect the documents which were of a confidential nature. KAY v. POORUNCHAND POONA LAL JAVHERRY, 4 B. 631.

Privileged Communication—continued.

(3)—Evidence Act (II of 1855), s. 24—Vakeel's evidence.—Although under s. 24 of the Evidence Act, II of 1855, a vakeel may be excused from answering certain questions relating to communications between him and his client, the section does not excuse him from being put in the witness box. DOOLAR JHA v. RUNJEET ROY, 15 W.R. 340.

(4)—Defamation—Allegations in petition and written statement—Privileged communication—Damages substantial.—Suit for damages for defamation. Defendant had put in a petition to the Magistrate alleging that his clerks in collusion with the plaintiff had abstracted a bundle of papers and leaves of account books, etc., and that the fact should be proclaimed by a crier. Held under the circumstances of the case that the filing of the petition was done with the sinister motive of giving a colour to the statement which the defendant intended to file in connection with a suit pending in the Civil Court, that the allegations were not privileged as the action of the Magistrate was ministerial and not judicial; and that the defamatory statement was utterly irrelevant to the occasion and did not fairly arise out of it as it would have been sufficient for the defendant to have informed the Magistrate that he had reason to believe that his papers were stolen, without specifying any person as the object of his suspicion; and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover substantial damages. CHOWDHRY GOORDUTT SINGH v. GOPAL DASS, 1 Agra 33.

(5)—Affidavit of documents—Privileged communications.—Where privilege is claimed for a correspondence, by reason of its containing instructions and confidential communications from the client to his solicitor, it must not only appear that the correspondence generally contains instructions, etc., but that each letter contains instructions or confidential communications to the attorneys with reference to the conduct of the suit. (Bewicks v. Graham, 7 Q.B.D. 405, Followed.) THE ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION v. J. F. BROWN & CO., 12 C. 265. [R., 15 B. 7.]

(6)—Defamation — Petition by raiyats to Tahsildar—Bona fide statements against Zemindar held privileged.—When an application by a Zemindar for the removal of a Village Munsiff was being considered by the Tahsildar, the raiyats of the village addressed a communication to him containing several statements reflecting upon the character of the Zemindar and imputing certain criminal acts to him. Prior occurrences justified the communication and the raiyats had acted bona fide. The communication was held to be protected from being defamatory, since the occasion of the publication conferred a privilege under the principle that a communication made bona fide upon any subject-matter in which the party communicating has an interest or in reference to which he has a duty, is privileged if made to a person having a corresponding interest or duty, although it contains criminatory matter which, without the privilege, would be slanderous and actionable. VENKATA NARASIMHA v. KOTAYYA, 12 M. 374.

Privileged Communication—concluded.

(7)—Defamation—Statements made by the manager of a company regarding its servant—Privilege.—Communications of a defamatory character touching a servant of a company, contained in letters from the manager, to the directors of the company, and to another of its servants written ostensibly in the interest of the company, were held to be privileged. The onus lay on the plaintiff, the person defamed to prove that the defendant believed them to be untrue when he made them or acted maliciously in making them. LEISHMAN v. HOLLAND, 14 M. 51.

See DEFAMATION, 1 Bom. L.R. 478=24 B. 13.

See INSPECTION OF DOCUMENTS, 11 C. 655, 2 B. 453, 15 B. 7.

See LETTERS PATENT, HIGH COURT, N.W.P. 1 Ind. Jur. N.S. 192, Bourke O.C. 18.

What amounts to—Proof of malice—See LIBEL, 13 C.W.N. 1165=36 C. 907=3 Ind. Cas. 831.

Privilege of Counsel.

See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS—ADVOCATE, 2 Bom. L.R. 3.

Privity of Contract.

See CONTRACT—MISCELLANEOUS, 6 Bom. L.R. 421.

Privy.

Grant of land for habitation—Right to erect privy — Implied grant— See GRANT—CONSTRUCTION, 16 B. 552.

Privy Council Appeals Act.

See ACT VI OF 1874.

Privy Council, Practice of.

1.—GENERAL.

2.—CONCURRENT JUDGMENTS NO FACTS.

3.—COSTS.

4.—CROSS APPEAL.

5.—DISMISSAL OF APPEAL FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION.

6.—PRACTICE AS TO OBJECTION.

7.—QUESTIONS OF FACT.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

8.—REHEARING.

9.—REMAND OF CASE TO INDIA.

10.—RESTORATION OF APPEAL.

11.—SPECIAL LEAVE TO APPEAL AND TO DEFEND APPEAL.

12.—STAY OF PROCEEDINGS IN INDIA PENDING APPEAL.

13 —VALUATION OF APPEAL.

14.—MISCELLANEOUS.

See APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 109—112, O. XLV, rr. 1-16.

——1.—General.

(1)—Privy Council's power to rectify mistakes —Misprision - Judgments.—By the common law, this Court possesses the same power as the Courts of Record and Statute have of rectifying mistakes which have crept in by misprision or otherwise, in embodying its judgments. RAJUNDER NARAIN RAE v. BIJAI GOVIND SINGH, 2 M.I.A. 181=1 Moo. P.C. 117=1 Sar. 175.

(2) — Procedure — Mistake in drawing of decree—Wrong judgment and decree--Remedy.— Where it was alleged for the appellant before the Privy Council that the Judges of the three Courts below were mistaken in saying that a certain bond had not been set up by him in a previous litigation, whereas in fact it had been so set up and that the decree was wrong in not dealing with it, it was held by the Judicial Committee that the decree might have been corrected if not in accordance with the judgment, or appealed against when both judgment and decree were wrong; and that their Lordships could not go behind such decree, where neither of these courses had been adopted. SRI GOPAL v. PIRTHI SINGH, 6 C.W.N. 889, P.C.= 4 Bom. L.R. 827=29 I.A. 118=24 A. 429=8 Sar. 293.

(3)—Practice in interfering with discretion of lower Courts.—The Privy Council is always slow to reverse the decisions of the Courts below made in the deliberate exercise of a discretion vested in them by law. JAIPAL KUNWAR v. INDAR BAHADUR SINGH, 26 A. 238, P.C.= 31 I.A. 67=8 C.W.N. 465=6 Bom. L.R. 495= 14 M.L.J. 149=8 Sar. 625. [R., 29 B. 71=6 Bom. L.R. 780, 101 P.R. 1909.]

(4)—Discretion of lower Court not interfered with by Judicial Committee.— The Judicial Committee is always reluctant to interfere with a matter of discretion exercised by the Courts in India, unless it can be shown that the Court has acted upon an erroneous principle. BANK OF HINDUSTAN, CHINA AND JAPAN v. THE EASTERN FINANCIAL ASSOCIATION, LTD., 3 B.L.R.P.C. 8=12 W.R.P.C. 27=13 M.I.A.15= 2 Suther. 250=L.R. 2 P.C. 489=20 L.T. 889 =2 Sar. 476=6 M.P.C. (N.S.) 114.

(5)—Appeal to Privy Council—Restoration. --The High Court has the power, and ought to exercise its discretion in each particular case, with regard to restoring appeals to the Privy Council dismissed for default, or removed for any reason from the file of the High Court. In the matter of the petition of RADHA BINODE MISSER, B.L.R. Sup. Vol. 730, F.B=7 W.R. 531.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

(6) -Documents not part of the record—Procedure— Transmission. — Privy Council, on application, may direct High Court to transmit certain documents used in the litigation, but not sent up as part of the record. HIS HIGHNESS THE MAHARAJAH OF VIZIANAGAR v. ZEMINDAR OF BOBBILI, 4 M.J. 283.

(7)—Fact, concurrent findings of, by lower Court—Judicial Committee, practice of.—The Judicial Committee will not make a fresh examination of facts for the purpose of disturbing concurrent findings by the lower Courts, especially when such findings are based on facts, whose significance is best appreciated by Judges, most familiar with Indian manners and customs. KUNWAR SANWAL SINGH v. RANI SATRUPA KUNWAR, 3 C.L.J. 86, P.C.=10 C. W.N. 230=1 M.L.T. 6=16 M.L.J. 77=28 A. 215=33 I.A. 53=8 Sar. 903. (21 C. 997=21 I.A. 163, F.)

(8)—Improper admission of documents by Court below—Practice of Judicial Committee—Civ. Pro. Code (Act VIII of 1859), s. 39.—The Judicial Committee will not determine an appeal against a decree upon the mere fact that some evidence has been improperly admitted by the Court below. It is the rule of this tribunal to do substantial justice between the parties, and to see if there is sufficient evidence on the whole record to justify the conclusion at which the Court below has arrived. According to the true construction of s. 39 of Act VIII of 1859, it is not fatal to the admission of documentary evidence that it is brought in subsequent to the filing of the plaint, if it appears to have been received with the sanction of the Court. GOSAIN TOTA RAM v. RAJA RUKINIBALLAB, 3 B.L.R. P.C. 34=12 W.R. P.C. 32 =13 M.I.A. 77=2 Sar 487=2 Suther. 253. [F., 8 M. 373; R., 6 C.L.J. 621, 13 C.W.N. 797=10 C.L.J. 33=2 Ind. Cas. 946.]

(9)—Document impeached as forged—Document sent for from India.—Where a document was impeached as being forged on the face of it, the case was directed to stand over for the original document to be transmitted from India for inspection at the hearing of the appeal. RANEE SURNOMOYEE v. MAHARAJAH SUTTEESCHUNDER ROY BAHADOOR, 10 M.I.A. 123=1 Suther. 548=2 Sar. 60=2 W.R. P.C. 13.

(10)— Will, admitted to probate— Proof— Semble. — Where an instrument has been admitted to probate, and acted upon in the Courts below, the Privy Council will not enter into the question whether the instrument is sufficiently proved or not. KHOORSHEDJEE MANIKJEE v. MEHRWANJEE KHOORSHEDJEE, 5 W.R.P.C. 57=1 M.I.A. 431=1 Suther. 73=1 Sar. 38.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

(11)—Credibility of witnesses.—Where the two lower Courts gave concurrent judgment upon a question of facts, their Lordships of the Privy Council did not consider it necessary to review at length all the evidence bearing upon it. Their Lordships of the Privy Council did not conceive it to be any part of their duty to criticise with any strictness the opinion expressed by the lower Court as to the credibility of witnesses, that being eminently a question for the Court in India. MUSAMMAT SHAFIQ-UN-NISA v. RAJA SHABAN ALI KHAN, 6 Bom. L.R. 750=26 A. 581=9 C.W.N. 105=7 O.C. 290=31 I.A. 217=8 Sar. 674.

(12)—Practice—Evidence of doubtful admissibility.—When evidence of doubtful admissibility has, under the looser practice of the Indian Courts, been received in an Indian cause, the Judicial Committee, sitting as an appellate Court, will deal with the case as they think substantial justice requires, and will not allow any merely technical objections to prevail. BOTH NARAIN SINGH and AJODHYA PRASAD SINGH v. UMRAO SINGH, 6 B.L.R. 509, P.C. =15 W.R.P.C., 1=13 M.I.A. 519=2 Sar. 607= 2 Suther. 371. (7 M.I.A. 137=4 W.R.P.C. 121, F.)

(13)—Fresh evidence—Review—Act VIII of 1859, s. 355.—The Privy Council will not lightly admit fresh evidence. GOBIND SUNDARI DEBIA v. JAGADAMBA DEBIA, 3 B.L.R. P.C. 25.

(14)—Appreciation of evidence—Miscarriage of justice.—Where, in a case of appreciation of evidence, both the lower and appellate Courts agreed, held that the usual rule of Privy Council should be followed and the decisions confirmed as the appellant had failed to prove any real miscarriage of justice. GOVIND SOONDAREE DEBYA AND OTHERS v. JUGGODUMBA DEBIA, 6 M.J. 113=6 B.L.R. 168= 15 W.R. P.C. 5=2 Suther. 375=2 Sar. 611.

(15)—Remand—Further evidence available—Previous occasions not availed of.—The Judicial Committee will not send back a case to a Court below for further investigation, on the ground that further evidence might now be produced before it, when the party has had opportunities of bringing forward that evidence below, of which he has not availed himself. RAJA ROW VENCATA NILADRY ROW v. ENOOGOONTY SOORIAH AND RAMANIAH, 2 Knapp. 259=1 Suther. 16=5 W.R. P.C. 79.

(16)—Judicial notice of country from which appeal preferred—Right to sue—Evidence—Hindu Law--Adoption--Succession to collaterals.—The Judicial Committee are bound to take notice of the law of the country from which the appeal comes, and to decide according to it, although it has not been noticed in the Court below. When, therefore, a Court below had decided upon the ground of evidence of which they had cognizance in another suit, but which was not legally before them in the suit in question, their decree was supported on the ground that the appellant, who was the plaintiff before them, had, according to the law of the country, no right to sue. An adopted son, according to the Hindu Law, is entitled to succeed to his collateral as well as his direct relations by adoption. SUMBOOCHUNDER CHOWDRY v. NARAINI DIBEH, 3 Knapp. 55 =1 Suther. 25.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

(17)—Privy Council — Appeal— Practice—Concurrent judgments on facts--Disagreement on subordinate points.—The Judicial Committee does not ordinarily entertain an appeal from concurrent judgments on a mere question of fact. The mere fact that the two Courts do not agree on all the steps which lead to one and the same conclusion, is no reason for disregarding the above well-known rule. That rule, however, is not an absolute rule; it presses upon the appellant with more or less weight according to the circumstances of the case, and the fact that the Courts have differed on some important but subordinate questions as matter to be taken into consideration in determining whether the evidence before the lower Courts should be reviewed in detail. RAJAH CHITPAL SINGH v. BHAIRON BUKSH, 10 C.W.N. 225=1 M.L.T. 7=16 M.L.J. 76, P. C.=28 A. 219.

(18)—Questions of fact—Reveresed of judgment by Privy Council—Costs—Fresh evidence.—When a Court below has decided upon a case depending upon questions of fact alone, the Judicial Committee will not advise a reversal of their judgment, unless there appears some clear distinct point in which they are wrong, although doubts may be entertained as to its correctness. A superior Court having affirmed the decree of an inferior Court, with costs against the appellant, but not until they had required and taken much evidence in addition to what had been taken below; Held that they ought not to have given costs against the appellant, and their decree so far reversed although affirmed in other respects. BABOO ULRUCK SINGH v. BENI PERSAD, 2 Knapp. 265=1 Suther. 13.

(19)—Statute 3 and 4, Wm. IV, C. 41, appeals prosecuted by Government under—Costs incurred by Government, suit for recovery of—Limitation—Inapplicability of Reg. II of 1805 —Reg. III of 1793, s. 14—Printed case, Lodging of.—In an appeal which was heard in virtue of Statute 3 and 4, William IV, c. 41, empowering the Crown to appoint the East India Company to take charge of appeals and bring them to a hearing, it was directed, by an order in Council of 1836 that the costs incurred by the East India Company should be paid by the respective parties to the suit. No fruitful proceedings having been taken on the part of the Government to realise these costs, the present suit was brought by the Government in 1852 against the representatives of one of the parties to the appeal to recover part of the costs incurred in bringing the appeal to a hearing. The main objection taken on behalf of the defendant was that the suit was barred by the statute of limitation. The important point for decision was whether Regulation II of 1805 extended to the present case so as to enable the Government to sue notwithstanding the lapse of time. It was held that the recovery of the costs sought for in this case cannot be regarded as a "public right" within the provisions of cl. 2, s. 2 of Bengal Regulation II of 1805 giving the Government a period of 60 years for bringing the suit. The admission by the defendant in this case that the demand was claimable from some quarter or other but not as against the plaint property, could not amount to an admission capable of saving the suit from limitation under Regulation III of 1793. The claim was, therefore, barred by s. 14 of that Regulation, and the Court in India precluded from entertaining this suit which had not been brought within the 12 years' period prescribed by that Regulation. The respondents appeared by Counsel at the hearing to argue the appeal, without having lodged a printed case. Their Lordships refused to hear the appeal until a printed case was lodged. THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL v. MUSSAMAT SHURRUFFUTOONNISSA, 3 W.R.P.C. 31 =1 Sar. 749=1 Suther. 405=8 M.I.A. 225.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

(20) —Judgment reversed—Costs left to discretion of Courts below.—In reversing the judgment of the Court below, the Judicial Committee remitted the cause with certain directions, leaving the question of the allowance of costs in the discretion of the Court below. GOPEEKRIST GOSAIN v. GUNGAPERSAUD GOSAIN, 6 M.I.A. 53=2 Suther. 13=1 Sar. 493=4 W.R.P C. 46.

(21)—Leave to appeal on ex parte application —Security for costs—Prosecution of appeal—Recognisance.—Leave to appeal on an ex parte application was, under special circumstances, granted upon terms of the appellant prosecuting the appeal and giving security for £ 500. No step was, however, taken by the appellant to perfect the security or prosecute the appeal. The respondents, on being served with the order admitting the appeal, filed a counter-petition to revoke the leave granted to appeal. The Judicial Committee, under the circumstances, there having been great delay, made an order, putting the appellant upon terms of lodging his petition of appeal within six weeks, or the appeal to stand dismissed, and enlarged the amount of the recognizance to £. 1,000 to cover the expenses occasioned by the proceedings in the Master's Office, reversing the costs of the application to revoke the leave to appeal, to the hearing. MCKELLAR v. WALLACE, 5 M.I.A. 372=8 Moo. P. C. 378=1 Equity Rep. 309=1 Sar. 453.

(22)—Appeal from Judicial Commissioner of Oudh not provided for—Privy Council, Admission of appeal by—St. 3 and 4, Vic., c. 41, s. 4.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

—No provision by Statute, or Charter, being made for appeals to Her Majesty in Council from judgments of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh, created on the annexation of that kingdom in the year 1858, the Judicial Committee to prevent the denial of justice, admitted an appeal under Statute 3rd and 4th Will. IV, c. 41, s. 4. SALIK RAM v. AZIM ALI BEG, 8 M.I.A. 270=14 Moo.P.C. 329=1 Ind. Jur. N.S. 117=1 Sar. 840.

(23)—Refusal by High Court to grant leave to appeal to Privy Council—Application to Privy Council for special leave—Value of the matter for appeal within s. 596.—In a suit for damages for Rs. 30,000, on the original side of the High Court, no assessment of the amount of damages having been made by the Court, an appeal was preferred before the appellate side of that Court. The appeal was dismissed and an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, was made, which was refused by the High Court, on the ground of the petitioner's failure to establish the value of the matter in dispute, for the appeal, to be Rs. 10,000 or upwards. A petition, preferred to the Privy Council thereon, for special leave to appeal, was granted, their Lordships holding that the value of the subject-matter of the suit must be taken to be the value for the purposes of the appeal, unless a different value has been determined for the latter as result of enquiry by Court or otherwise. IKRAMUL HUQ v. WILKIE, 33 C. 893, P.C.=33 I.A. 106.

(24)—Case involving new and arguable point —Grant of special leave to appeal.—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council will give special leave to appeal in cases coming from a place from which no appeal has hitherto been filed and involving new and important arguable points. The Court of the Political Agent in Kathiawar having refused to entertain a suit on the ground that the debt in question had not been certified to by the Political Agent, the plaintiff appealed to the Governor-in-Council and the latter also overruled the plaintiff's contention that the notification of the Government of India requiring the certificate of the Political Agent did not apply to his case. The question involved in the case was as to the retrospective effect of the notification. The plaintiff in another suit against another Talukdar, whose suit was also dismissed by the Court of the Political Agent on the same ground presented a petition to the Privy Council for grant of special leave to appeal, without preferring an appeal to the Governor-in-Council in the first instance. Held that, as the point raised by the petitioner had been adversely decided by the Governor-in-Council in another suit, the petitioner could apply direct to the Privy Council without having previously appealed to the Governor-in-Council, and their Lordships of the Judicial Committee could grant special leave to appeal. MAUN BHAGWANJI KANJI v. DARBAR SHRI VALA

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

JASA RUKHAD and HEMCHAND DEVCHAND v. AZAM SAKARLAL CHOTAMLAL and BUGWANDAS BECHARDAS v. VALA MANASIA NAG, 13 M.L.J. 154, P.C.

(25)—Leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council granted without authority—Objection when to be taken—Special leave to appeal.—The order of a High Court in India granting leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council in a certain case being ultra vires, the respondent took a preliminary objection, before the commencement of the hearing of the appeal before Judicial Committee. Such objection was allowed and the appeal was dismissed with costs. An objection to the maintainability of an appeal must ordinarily be taken at the earliest possible opportunity. Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee may, however, in proper cases, entertain such objections at any stage and also grant special leave to appeal, directing that the petition for leave should go to Her Majesty with the report on the appeal itself. Such an application was under the special circumstances of this case refused. GAJADHUR PERSHAD v. THE WIDOWS OF EMAM ALI BEG, 15 B.L.R. 221, P.C.=2 I.A. 205=3 Sar. 495.

(26)—Lower Courts failing to decide principal question—Question of fact—Interference by Judicial Committee.—Although the Judicial Committee adhere to the rule not to disturb the findings of two concurrent Courts in India upon a question of fact, yet, such rule does not prevail where the Courts in India have never dealt with the real question raised by the issues, and have drawn wrong inferences from the evidence. In such a case, the Court of ultimate appeal will disregard those concurrent judgments and decide the case upon the evidence contained in the record. MOULVI SYAD AZHAR ALI v MUSSAMAT BIBI ALTOOF JATINA, 4 B.L.R.P.C. 1=13 W.R.P.C. 1=13 M.I.A. 232=2 Suther. 279=2 Sar. 522.

(27)—Mistake of law — Point not taken in Court below.—When parties before the Privy Council allege that a mistake has been made on a point of law, if they have not raised the point in the Court below, although it is certainly open to them to raise it before their Lordships, yet their Lordships ought to be satisfied that the Judge below has really made the mistake imputed to him and that the wrong decision complained against is attributable to such mistake. PAHALWAN SINGH v. MAHARAJA MUHESSUR BUKSH SINGH BAHADUR, 9 B.L R. 150, P.C.=16 W.R. P.C. 5=2 Sar. 683=2 Suther. 442, 660.

(28)—Privy Council—Practice—Fresh point—Not to be raised.—It is not usual to allow a point to be raised on appeal to the Privy Council, which has not been discussed in the Court below, and upon which their Lordships have not got the assistance of that Court. JIT SING v. MAHARAJ SINGH, 10 M.L.T. 551=M.W.N. 1912, 29, P.C.=15 C.L.J. 78=14 Bom. L.R. 30=16 C.W.N. 122=13 Ind. Cas. 257=21 M.L.J. 122.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——1.—General—continued.

(29)—Point not raised by issues in suit.—A point not having been raised by the issues in the suit, the Judicial Committee refused to decide the question. KOOER GOLAB SING v. RAO KURUN SINGH, 10 B.L.R. 1, P C.=14 M. I.A. 176=2 Suther. 474=2 Sar. 722. [R., 2 M. 346.]

(30)—Minors — Compromise — Procedure — Practice—Privy Council—Sale of claim—Collusion—Burden of proof.—Where minors are parties to a suit, a compromise of such suit ought to be carried out by proper deeds and filed in Court so as to have the assent of the Court at the time instead of its being concealed from them. Objections to matters of practice will not be taken notice of by the Privy Council unless their Lordships could see and see very clearly that justice had not been done to the parties. [F., 26 B. 109=3 Bom.L.R. 565; R., 24 C. 908, F.B.=1 C.W.N. 597, 3 C.L.J. 119.] A suit was instituted by the plaintiff's guardian for the plaintiff's mother's share in certain dower. The suit was sold by the guardian for a smaller amount to a stranger who then proceeded with the suit and got a decree according to the plaint. The plaintiffs on attaining majority brought the present suit to set aside the sale as collusive. Held that it was incumbent on the purchaser to prove that he paid the consideration to the plaintiffs when they came of age or at least that the money reached the plaintiffs' hands when they came of age. MOULVIE ABDOOL ALI v. MOZUFFER HOSSEIN CHOWDHRY, 16 W.R.P.C. 22=2 Suther. 462. [F., 26 B. 109=3 Bom.L.R. 565; R., 24 C. 908, F.B.=1 C.W.N. 597, 3 C.L.J. 119.]

(31)—Execution of orders of Privy Council—Procedure Act II of 1863, s. 14—Declaratory orders.—A party in a suit, desirous of executing an order or judgment of Her Majestty in Council, ought to apply, in conformity with s.14, Act II of 1863, to the Court from which the appeal was finally brought to the Queen in Council, to enforce and execute the decree of Her Majesty in Council; and it is the duty of such Court to give directions for executing the decree to the Court of first instance by which the suit was originally tried. A declaration of Her Majesty in Council must not be considered as not being equivalent to an order. When Her Majesty in Council does make a declaration, the form in which that declaration is conceived, and the words in which the order is framed, amount to a direction to the Court below to clothe that declaration in the proper form of a mandatory order, and to give effect to the mandatory order so expressed. If any difficulty should arise in that form, or be sought to be produced from having recourse to that non-existent ground of objection, the Privy Council will not fail to recommend Her Majesty to deal with such obstructiveness in the most serious and stringent manner. BARLOW v. ORDE, 3 P.R. 1872, P.C.=18 W. R. 175. [R., 9 B.H.C. 398; D., 19 W.R. 232.]

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——1.—General—concluded.

See APPELLATE COURT—DUTY OF APPELLATE COURT, 1 Hyde 223.

See APPELLATE COURT — OBJECTIONS FIRST TAKEN IN APPEAL, 16 W.R. 5, P.C.=9 B.L.R. 150.

Whether appeal lies from Governor-General's agent in Bhopal to— See ARBITRATION—MISCELLANEOUS, 12 C.W.N. 585, P.C.=7 C.L.J. 520=138 P.L.R. 1908=10 Bom. L.R. 581=18 M.L.J. 266=99 P.W.R. 1908=14 Bur. L.R. 146=4 M.L.T. 25=80 P.R. 1908=35 C. 648=35 I A. 83.

See CHUR LANDS, 6 B.L.R. 677, P.C.=15 W.R.P.C. 20=13 M.I.A. 607.

See CROWN GRANTS, 2 Knapp. 103.

See EVIDENCE—PRACTICE, 2 W.R. 1, P.C.

See GRANT—CONSTRUCTION, 18 W.R. 469.

See HINDU LAW—INTERPRETATION, 7 A. 114=A.W.N. 1884, 282.

High Court refusing to admit appeal beyond time—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, ss. 4, 5, 30 C. 309, P.C.=30 I.A. 20.

Order of Privy Council confirming decree of lower Court—Application to enforce the order—Application of art. 180, Limitation Act (1877)—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 183, 4 Ind. Cas. 402.

Order of—Confirming decree of lower Court—Execution—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 183, 8 C. 218, F.B.=10 C.L.R. 425.

See MESNE PROFITS—SUIT FOR MESNE PROFITS AND ASSESSMENT IN EXECUTION, 5 B.L.R. 611, P.C.=14 W.R.P.C. 21=13 M.I.A. 479=2 N.W.P. 402.

See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 2 M.I.A. 181, 2 M.I.A. 441, 13 M.I.A. 232.

Where question of fact involved legal considerations in every point in the reasoning process, though findings of Indian Courts were concurrent, the Privy Council could review such findings in appeal—See BEN. REG. III OF 1891, 12 C.W.N. 1095=4 M.L.T. 234=10 Bom. L.R. 1102=8 C.L.J. 436=18 M.L.J. 549=36 C. 1=P.L.R. Journal parts, 110=1 Ind. Cas. 182.

View of—Weight to be attached—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—GENERAL, 10 M.L.T. 298.

——2.—Concurrent judgments on facts.

(1)—Concurrent findings of fact—Practice.—When there are concurrent findings of the Courts below on questions of fact, the Privy Council will not interfere with such findings. KADIR MOIDIN v. NEPEAN, 26 C. 1, P.C.=2 C.W.N. 665=25 I.A. 241=7 Sar. 394. [F., 50 P.R. 1904=83 P.L.R. 1904.]

(2)—Findings on fact—Practice.—Where the findings of the two Courts are concurrent on a matter of fact, they would not be questioned by the Judicial Committee MAHABIR PERSHAD v. RADHA PERSHAD SINGH, 18 C. 540, P.C.=6 Sar. 16.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——2.—Concurrent judgments on facts —continued.

(3)—Question of fact, concurrent findings of two lower Courts on—Practice of Privy Council.—The ordinary rule of the Judicial Committee is not to disturb the concurrent findings of two lower Courts, on a question of fact, but to accept them. The mere fact that a part of the evidence in the suit has not been considered by the lower Court does not prevent the rule from applying when both Courts have arrived at the same result. RAM LAL v. MEHDI HUSAIN, 17 C. 882=17 I.A. 70, P.C.=5 Sar. 572.

(4)—Concurrent findings of fact—No question of law involved—Practice—No question of law being involved in the case, held that the Judicial Committee will not interfere with the concurrent findings of two lower Courts on a question of fact. LACHMAN LAL CHOWDHRI v. KANHAYA LAL MOWAR, 22 C. 609, P.C.=22 I A. 51=6 Sar. 558. [R., 10 O.C. 308-B, 4 A.L.J. 121=A.W.N. 1907, 36=29 A. 267.]

(5)—Practice—Concurrent findings — Privy Council.—The Privy Council followed in this case the usual course of confirming the concurrent judgments of the Courts below on questions of fact, and stated that, even if they had felt some doubts in it, they would have hesitated long when they were asked to continue the litigation, and send the matter again for trial in India. DEVAJI GAYAJI v. GODABHAI GODBHAI, 2 B.L.R. P.C. 85=11 W.R. P.C. 35=2 Suther. 208.

(6)—Practice—Concurrent findings on facts.—Where two Courts have concurred, their findings will be accepted and the Privy Council will not disturb such concurrent findings of fact. BIRESWAR MUKERJI v. ARDHA CHANDER ROY, 15 C. 452, P.C.=19 I.A. 101=6 Sar. 171.

(7)—Practice — Concurrent findings.—The Judicial Committee will not, as a rule, disturb the concurrent decisions of both the Courts below upon a question of fact, unless it very clearly appears that there has been some miscarriage of justice, some mistrial or that the conclusion is very plainly erroneous. GOSAIN TOTA RAM v. RAJA RUKINIBALLAB, 3 B.L.R.P.C. 34=12 W.R.P C. 32=13 M.I.A. 77=2 Sar. 487=2 Suther. 253.

(8)—Concurrent judgments on fact.—The rule of the Privy Council, not to allow the concurrent judgments of two Courts, on a question of fact, to be disputed, may be relaxed if the questions of fact are a great deal mixed up with questions of law. PAULIEM VALOO CHETTY v. PAULIEM SOORYAH CHETTY, 1 M. 252=4 I.A. 109, P.C.=3 Sar. 698

(9)—Privy Council -- Appeal on question of fact—Concurrent findings in Indian Courts —Practice.—In an appeal to the Privy Council on a question of fact which has been decided in the same way by both Courts in India, it is the duty of the appellant to satisfy their Lordships of the Privy Council, beyond all reasonable question, that there was some miscarriage in the Courts below in respect of some principle which they acted upon, in respect of some presumption to which too much weight was given or in respect of something as to which they could see that there was a matter of principle involved which they ought to set right for the guidance of the Courts of India in other cases. GOBINDSUNDARI DEBI v. JAGADAMBA DEBI, 6 B.L.R. 168, P.C.=15 W.R. P.C. 5=6 M.J. 113=2 Suther. 375=2 Sar. 611. [R., 14 B. 463.]

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—2.—Concurrent judgments on facts —continued.

(10)—Practice of Privy Council, in disturbing concurrent findings of lower Courts, on a matter embracing a number of facts.—Where a question is not simply one of fact, but one which embraces a great number of facts, whose significance is best appreciated by those who are most familiar with Indian manners and customs, the Privy Council would be specially unwilling to depart from the general rule, which forbids a fresh examination of facts for the purpose of disturbing concurrent findings by the lower Courts. UMRAO BEGUM v. IRSHAB HUSAIN, 21 C. 997, P.C.=21 I.A. 163=6 Sar. 469. [F., 28 A. 215, P.C.=10 C.W.N. 230=3 C.L.J. 86=16 M.L.J. 77=1 M.L.T. 6.]

(11)—Concurrent findings of fact by lower Courts, discretion of Appellate Courts not to interfere with.—Where, touching the concurrent findings of fact in both the lower Courts, nothing was stated on appeal to the Privy Council, that could make Their Lordships form an opinion that, if they went through the whole of the evidence, and differed from the Courts below, they would differ from them on any thing but questions of pure fact, the case was held by Their Lordships to fall within the rule which makes the appellate tribunals reluctant to interfere, and in most cases makes them refuse to interfere, with concurrent findings of the Courts below. On the question of the credit due to witnesses, Their Lordships will have the same reluctance to interfere with the concurrent findings of the lower Courts thereon. KRISHNAN v. SRIDEVI, 12 M. 512, P.C.=5 Sar. 455.

(12)—Appeal to Privy Council—Concurrent findings on facts.—Where the lower Courts proceeding upon evidence, had come to the same decision on substantially the same grounds, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, as a rule of practice, would not enter into the question whether the decisions of the Courts below were or were not correct on matters of fact. JAIMUNGAL KOERI v. MOKHUN KOERI, 10 C.L.R. 611=4 Sar. 344.

(13)—Practice of Privy Council—Concurrent findings on fact—Miscarriage of justice or violation of law.—Appellants failing to prove.—On the appellants before the Judicial Committee failing to show any miscarriage of justice or the violation of any principle of law or procedure, their Lordships refused to interfere with the concurrent findings of two Courts on pure questions of fact, although they thought the case to be one of great difficulty. RANI SRIMATI v. KHAGENDRA NARAIN SINGH, 31 C. 871, P.C.=31 I.A. 127=9 C.W.N. 74=8 Sar. 635.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—2.—Concurrent judgments on facts —continued.

(14)--Inferences of fact--Concurrent findings by two lower Courts, not influenced by precisely the same considerations, upon the same evidence.—It cannot detract from the weight of concurrent findings of fact that different Courts, in arriving at the same results upon the same evidence, have not been influenced by precisely the same considerations ; a difference of opinion to that extent is only calculated to suggest that the evidence, whatever view be taken of it necessarily leads to one and the same inference. NILMONI SINGH DEO BAHADUR v. KIRTI CHUNDER CHOWDHRY, 20 C. 847, P.C.=20 I.A. 95=6 Sar. 321.

(15)—Concurrent findings of fact.—Where the question is essentially one of fact, and of the weight and credibility of evidence upon which the Court of review can never be in quite as good a position to form an opinion as the Court of first instance, it would probably be enough to prevent their Lordships from interfering if it should appear that there was evidence such as might justify either view without any clear preponderance of probability. FATIMA BIBI v. SHEIKH AHMED BUKSH, 10 Bom. L.R. 50=35 C. 271=22 C.W.N 214=7 C.L.J. 122=18 M.L.J. 6= 35 I. A. 67, P.C.

(16)--Concurrent judgments on facts--Practice.—It is a principle recognized by the Judicial Committee, and commonly observed in second Courts of appeal, that such Courts will not interfere with concurrent judgments of the Courts below on matters of fact, unless very definite and explicit grounds for that interference are assigned. MOUNG THA v. MOUNG PAN, 2 Bom. L.R. 985=28 C. 1=4 C.W.N. 808=27 I.A. 166=7 Sar. 786.

(17)—Concurrent findings of fact.—It would be inappropriate that the Privy Council, in reviewing concurrent judgments, should rediscuss the evidence in detail. IBRAHIM v. SAIBOO, 9 Bom. L.R. 872=4 A.L.J. 572=11 C.W.N. 973=35 C. 1=6 C.L.J. 695=17 M.L.J. 408=34 I.A. 167.

(18)—Trial—Question of fact.—Where the issue is one of fact only, and there have been concurrent judgments by the Courts in India, the Judicial Committee will not disturb such finding, unless they are satisfied that the Courts below were wrong in the conclusions they arrived at from the evidence. MEETHUN BEBEE v. BUSHER KHAN, 7 W.R. P.C. 27=11 M.I.A. 213=1 Suther. 683=2 Sar. 255. [R., 17 A. 294, F.B.]

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—2.—Concurrent judgments on facts —continued.

(19)—Pleadings — Concurrent findings — Frame of issue upon question of title to land.—As a rule, the Judicial Committee will not disturb the concurrent judgments of the Courts below on questions of fact, if the facts, as found, are decisive of the real issue between the parties under the circumstances. [F., 20 B. 699.] From the frame of the issue upon a question of title to land, decrees of the Courts below were by their lordships reversed, without prejudice to a new suit being brought by the plaintiff upon a different issue. RAJAH BURDACANT ROY v. BABOO CHUNDER COOMAR ROY, 11 W.R. P.C. 1=2 B.L.R. P.C. 1=12 M.I.A. 145=2 Suther. 169=2 Sar. 402. [F., 20 B. 699.]

(20)—Appeal to Privy Council—Concurrent judgments — Questions of fact — Conflicting evidence—Practice.—Where the circumstances are very extraordinary, and it is difficult to come to a satisfactory conclusion one way or the other on account of the conflicting evidence in the case, the Privy Council will not disturb the judgment given by the Courts in India, where the party appealing was the party upon whom the onus of proof lay, and who had failed to make out his case to the satisfaction of those who had to decide. RAJA ROW VENKATA NILADRY ROW v. ENOOGOONTY SOORIAH, 5 W.R. P.C. 79=1 Suther. 16=2 Knapp. 259.

(21)—Hindu Law — Joint property—Self-acquired property thrown into common stock—Questions of fact—Concurrent judgments.—The Courts in India, original and appellate, had found, and arrived at the conclusion that certain property, though originally self-acquisition of a member of a joint Hindu family, had been thrown into the common stock and had thereby become joint property. These conclusions were based upon admissions made by the parties in documents. The Judicial Committee refused to disturb the judgments of the Courts below. CHELLAYAMAL v. MUTTIAL AMAL, 15 W.R. P.C., 1. [F., 33 C. 1119=10 C.W.N. 765=3 C L.J. 616.]

(22)—Concurrent findings of fact by lower Courts—Interference by appellate Court—Its powers.—The findings on questions of fact by two lower Courts when they are concurrent, cannot be interfered with by the appellate Court. So, in a case where, on the allegation that he and the defendant had lived in commensality and enjoyed certain joint property, of which the defendant, being the elder, was the manager, and that the latter had no exclusive possession thereof as alleged by him, the plaintiff applied for his share of the joint property, and both the lower Courts had found against the defendant, held that there was no ground for reversing the decree. JOYNARAIN GIRI v. SHEEB PROSHAD GIRI, 19 W.R. 275 =2 Suther. 816.

(23)—Appeal—Concurrent findings—Question of fact—Custom.—Their Lordships of the Privy Council declined to interfere in a case where there were two concurrent decisions on a question of fact, viz., whether there was any special custom, applicable to the class of persons to whom the parties belonged, which would exempt them from the operation of the Mitakshara Law with reference to inheritance. MUST. KISHMISH KOER v. PHUL CHAND LAL, 6 Bom.L.R. 764.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—2.—Concurrent judgments on facts —continued.

(24)—Concurrent findings of fact by two Courts—Interference by Privy Council.—Findings on questions of fraud and undue influence are findings of fact, and the judicial committee of the Privy Council will not, except under peculiar circumstances, interfere with findings of fact by two Courts. AJIT SINGH v. BIJAI BAHADUR SINGH, 11 C. 61, P.C.=11 I.A. 211 =4 Sar. 560.

(25)—Question of fact — Considerations of law involved in the process of reasoning.—Their Lordships were unable to accept the contention that the question whether certain jhum lands lay within or without the limits of the settled estates was a question of fact, and that their Lordships should accept the concurrent findings of the two Courts in India because, in a sense the question was one of fact; but at every point in the process of the reasoning considerations of law had to be regarded. MAHOMED ALI v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 10 Bom. L.R. 1101 =12 C.W.N. 1095=4 M.L.T. 234= 36 C. 1=8 C.L.J. 436=18 M.L.J. 549=35 I.A. 195.

(26)—Concurrent decisions of fact—Fabricated documents—Practice.—Judgments of the lower Courts—holding that two documents set up by the defendants under which they claimed to hold as jotedars were fabrications — upheld. Where the lower Courts have come to the same finding on a question of fact, their Lordships, before interfering with such finding, will see not merely that there is a mere balance of testimony, but that there is so strong a preponderance of testimony against that finding, that they can confidently pronounce it to be wrong. RANI SARAT SUNDARI DEBI v. KUMAR PARESNARAYAN ROY, 8 B.L.R. 113, P.C.=16 W.R. P.C. 9.

(27)—Practice of Privy Council—Question of fact—Concurrent findings. — Where the first Court found that the instrument was not genuine, and the High Court on appeal, upheld this finding, but had considered relevant, and had admitted in evidence documents rejected by the first Court when tendered by the appellant, such reception of evidence would afford no reason for making the case an exception to the application of the rule, in the discretion of the Committee, against the disturbance of concurrent decisions upon a fact in issue below. HURRI BHUSAN MUKERJI v. UPENDRA LAL MUKERJI, 24 C. 1, P.C.=23 I.A. 97 =6 Sar. 680.

(28)—Case in which the Judicial Committee refused to go into questions of fact and evidence.—In a suit, which involved a disputed question of fact as to an alleged adoption and the due execution of a Will, the Court in India, disregarding other evidence, relied solely upon the evidence of a witness examined at the instance of the Court itself. The effect of the evidence of this witness was to show that at the time of the adoption and execution of the Will, the alleged Testator was in a dying state, and, although at times roused to consciousness, was, from his enfeebled mind, incapable of understanding the acts he was represented to have performed; the Court below, however, upon the evidence of this witness as to his testamentary capacity, corroborated, as it thought, by a letter of the widow of the alleged Testator, recognizing the adoption, and by her acquiescing in the performance of certain funeral rights of her deceased husband by the supposed adopted son, pronounced both the adoption and the will to be valid. Upon appeal, held, that although as a general rule, on a question of fact, the Judicial Committee were unwilling to disturb the judgment of the Court below, yet that as it was the duty of the appellate Court to weigh the evidence and probabilities, and form an independent judgment, and taking into consideration the evidence regarding the state and capacity of the alleged adopter and Testator, they were of opinion that the evidence relied upon was so unsatisfactory, that neither of the decrees of the Courts below could be supported, and reversed the same with costs. TAYAMMAUL v. SASHACHALLA NAIKER, 10 M.I.A. 429=2 Sar. 139.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——2.—Concurrent judgments on facts —continued.

(29)—Evidence as to custom of inheritance—Concurrent findings by lower Courts—Re-examination of case by Privy Council.—Where an alleged custom of inheritance among an Oudh clan was found not proved by the original and appellate Courts, upon evidence of instances of succession in kindred families and of rights recorded in certain wajib-ul-arz, held, that, in the absence of proof of any principle of evidence not having been properly applied or of any documentry evidence to show that the lower Courts had been led into error, the case would not be re-examined on appeal to the Privy Council. THAKUR HARIHAR BAKSH v. THAKUR UMAN PRASHAD, 14 C. 296, P.C.=14 I.A. 7=4 Sar. 766. [R., 3 O.C. 22, 26 A. 299, P.C.]

(30)—Question of fact—Privy Council—Practice.—When the question is one simply of fact, and when, above all things, the question of fact is as to boundaries, where the local knowledge of the local Judges and the observation of the local witness are all important, the Privy Council will not interfere with the concurrent decisions of the lower Courts. MAHARAJ KUMAR BABOO GANESWAR SING v. DURGA DUTT, 7 B.L.R. 651, P.C.=15 W.R. P.C. 37=6 M.J. 143.

(31)—Practice—Concurrent findings of fact—Interference by Privy Council—Compromise and decree thereon—Review.—Where the controversy is as to the weight to be attributed to evidence, the Privy Council will not differ from the concurrent decisions of the two Courts below, unless they find that there has been some violation of the ordinary principles upon which causes ought to be tried. A decree was founded upon a compromise. An application for review was made, and facts were brought to the knowledge of the Court showing that the compromise ought to be treated as a nullity. The Privy Council treated that application for review as a proper mode of raising the question whether the compromise ought to be treated as a nullity or not. LALJI SAHU v. THE COLLECTOR OF TIRHOOTT, 6 B.L.R. 648, P.C.=15 W.R.P.C. 23=6 M.J. 143. [F., 10 C. 612; Rel. on, 6 C.W.N. 82; Cons., 13 C.W.N. 1197=10 C.L.J. 420=2 Ind. Cas. 865; R., 34 C. 83.]

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——2.—Concurrent judgments on facts —continued.

(32)—Will—Constructive compliance with terms of Will—Will admitted to probate Proof.—The heirs of a Parsee merchant having, upon his death, taken possession of his shop and continued to carry on his business for nearly two years, the Courts below refused to disturb their possession upon the production of a will, by which the business was directed to be carried on by the executor for their benefit, until he should think proper to admit them into possession. Held, that the abstaining from producing the Will for the above period was a consent on the part of the executor to the heirs' possession of their father's estate and business and was, therefore, a virtual compliance with the terms of the Will. Semble:—Where an instrument has been admitted to probate, and acted upon in the Courts below, the Privy Council will not enter into the question whether the instrument is sufficiently proved or not. KHORSHEDJEE MANIKJEE v. MEHRWANJEE KHOORSHEDJEE, 5 W.R. P.C. 57=1 M.I. A. 431=1 Suther. 73=1 Sar. 138.

(33)—Mortgage—Conditional deed of sale—Concurrent decision of Indian Courts.—Where a question arose as to whether a document was an ordinary mortgage or a conditional deed of sale, and both the Indian Courts decided that it was an ordinary mortgage. Held, that the concurrent decision of two Courts should not be lightly set aside; and that upon the evidence adduced, the lower Courts came to a correct conclusion. AGHA HUSSUN KHAN BAHADOOR v. MUSSAMUT JANEE BEGUM, 8 M.J. 149.

(34)—Pleadings—Practice—New plea before Privy Council.—In the lower Court, the only point raised and argued by the defendant was whether or not defendant's agent signed certain accounts by which it was sought to bind the defendant. That point was decided against the defendant in the Indian Courts. On appeal before the Privy Council, the defendant raised the plea, for the first time, that his agent had no authority to bind him. The Judicial Committee refused to entertain such plea. BABOO LALL v. LUTTOO RAM, 18 W.R. P.C. 233.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——2.—Concurrent judgments on facts —concluded.

(35)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 596—Substantive question of law, meaning of—Privy Council—Practice—Concurrent findings of facts by lower Courts.—The last paragraph of s. 596 of the Civ. Pro. Code, is to be construed with reference to the practice of the Privy Council declining to interfere with concurrent findings of fact of the lower Courts, and so, a question which only arises if the concurrent findings of fact by the lower Courts are disregarded, a question which never can arise so long as the Privy Council maintains those concurrent findings of fact, cannot constitute a substantial question of law which the appeal to the Privy Council involves. It cannot be said that an appeal involves a question of law, when it is in a high degree improbable that the Privy Council will entertain the question at all, having regard to its established practice above referred to. BANKE LAL v. JAGAT NARAIN, 23 A. 94=A.W.N. 1901, 8. (2 C. 228, 16 C. 292 N, 20 B. 699, R.) [F., 59 P.R. 1905=177 P.L.R. 1905.]

See TITLE, 19 W.R. 1.

——3.—Costs.

(1)—Privy Council decree—Costs.—When a decree of the Privy Council gives a certain specified sum as the costs of the appeal to England and also awards the costs incurred in the Courts in India, it must be construed as entitling the decree-holders to take out execution in respect also of the costs of translating the record of the appeal and transmitting it to England. ASGUR ALI v. NUGENDRO CHUNDER GHOSE, 23 W.R. 463. (15 W.R. 356, 18 W.R. 89, 21 W.R. 411, F.)

(2)—Inclusion of irrelevant papers in appeal—No objection by respondent—No costs.—The Privy Council did not deprive the successful appellant of any part of his costs for the inclusion in the record of a bulk of papers absolutely irrelevant to the appeal, as the respondent did not object to their inclusion. BIJOY GOPAL MUKERJI v. SHRIMATI KRISHNA MAHISHI, 9 Bom. L.R. 602=11 C.W.N. 424=5 C.L.J. 334=2 M.L.T. 133=17 M.L.J. 154=4 A.L.J. 329=34 C. 329=34 I.A. 87.

(3)—Costs of inserting irrelevant matter in printed record—Procedure of Privy Council.—Where plenty of irrelevant matter had been introduced into the printed record in an appeal before the Privy Council, their Lordships directed the Registrar to omit such matter in taxing the costs. PITTAPUR RAJA v. BUCHI SITAYYA, 8 M. 219, P.C.=12 I.A. 16=4 Sar. 598.

(4)—Appeal to Privy Council—Costs occasioned by inclusion of unnecessary documents.—In taxing the costs of appeal to the Privy Council, all such costs and expenses as may have been unnecessarily occasioned by the inclusion, in the transcript sent from India, of matters improperly introduced therein, should be disallowed. TARAKANT BANNERJEE v. PUDDAMONEY DOSSEE, 5 W.R. P.C. 63=10 M.I.A. 476=2 Sar. 184=1 Suther. 631.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——3.—Costs—continued.

(5)—Privy Council—Costs.—Where the Privy Council reversed the decrees of three Courts in India with costs in each, and dismissed the suit with costs specifying a sum as the costs of the appeal to itself, held that such sum did not include the costs of translation, etc., incurred in the High Court. MUSSAMAT UMATUL FATIMA v. AZHUR ALI, 9 B.L.R. App. 23, Note. [R., 10 C. 106.]

(6)—Respondents filing printed case and not appearing at hearing—Hearing ex parte—Right of respondents to costs—Practice.—When the respondents file their printed case, and do not appear at the hearing, they, notwithstanding their non-appearance, are, on the appeal being dismissed, entitled to the costs thereof, up to, and including the filing of their printed case, as well as to the cost of applying for those costs. SUMBHU NATH SANTRA MAHAPATRA v. SURJAMONI DEI, 25 C. 187, P.C.=24 I.A. 191=1 C.W.N. 649=1 Sar. 247.

(7)—Appeal to Privy Council—Specific costs—Translating and printing, costs of—Waste.—Although, upon ordinary principles, where an order directs payment of costs, and afterwards specifies a particular sum, such sum comprises all costs, yet as it has never been the practice of the Privy Council to make a specific order as to costs incurred here for preparation and transmission of the record, and as it had been too long the practice of the High Court to allow costs to adopt now a different rule, and as there had not been unnecessary expense in this case, the Court allowed the costs. Semble:—Had there been extravagance and waste in the preparation of the record, the Court would have referred the parties to England. SARODA PRASAD MULLICK v. LACHMIPAT SINGH DUGAR, 9 B.L.R. App. 23, N=18 W.R. 89. [F., 9 B.L.R. App. 22=18 W.R. 253; R., 23 W.R. 463.]

(8)—Costs—Appeal to Privy Council—Court's discretion as to costs—Bombay Code, Reg. II of 1800, s. 7—Practice.—Where a discretion is vested in a Court as to costs, the Privy Council will not allow an appeal against the exercise of that discretion, because no appeal against a mere decree as to costs will be allowed. But where the Court has no discretion to exercise upon the subject (as for instance, where a suit was instituted by parties who had no right to institute it, as the person, in whose name and on whose behalf they instituted it, was dead at the time and therefore, having no right to institute it and the judgment was upon the merits), costs ought to follow the decree. MUSSUMAT KEEMEE BAEE v. LUCHMUN DAS NARAIN DAS, 5 W.R. P.C. 59=1 M.I.A. 470=1 Suther. 75=1 Sar. 141. [R., 3 M.H. C. 279.]

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—3.—Costs—continued.

(9)—Misstatements in petition for special leave to appeal—Costs.—An order in Council granting leave to appeal is liable at any time to be rescinded with costs, if it appear that the petition upon which the order was granted contains any misstatements or any concealment of facts which ought to be disclosed. Even in the absence of bad faith the effect of a misstatement of a material fact is the same, if the Court has been induced to make an order, which, if the facts were fully before it, it would not or might not have been induced to make. In order, therefore, to maintain the order, it is not enough to clear the case of bad faith. (8 M. I.A. 195, R. & F.). Where, of three grounds on which special leave to appeal had been obtained, two were found to have been correctly stated, but in respect of the third, there was error in the petition, to which objection was taken at the hearing, held, on its appearing that there had been no intention to mislead, that the appeal might be heard and allowed, but without costs. THE MUSSORIE BANK v. ALBERT CHARLES RAYNOR, 4 A. 500, P.C. = 4 Sar. 346 = 9 I.A. 70. (2 I A. 82, R.)

(10)—Costs — Defending judgment—Appeal. —Proof of gomastah's authority to endorse.—A suit was decreed in the Court of first instance and the decree was affirmed in appeal. The Privy Council, holding that the plaintiff had not made out his case, reversed the judgment and awarded to the defendant costs in the first Court and not in either of the Appellate Courts, on the ground that the plaintiff, as respondent, was defending the judgment. A party resident at Baroda indorsed two hoondies, or Bills of exchange, in the name of a firm carrying on the business of banking at Surat, alléging himself to be the Gomastah or Agent of the firm, and afterwards, on the Bills being dishonoured, absconded. Held, that in order to fix the firm at Surat with the amount of the Bills, clear evidence ought to have been produced of the authority to act as Gumastah; and their Lordships not being satisfied with the evidence admitted in the Courts below, reversed the decrees of both the Zillah and Sudder Courts with costs. MADHO ROW CHINTO PUNT GOLAY v. BHOOKUN-DAS BOOLAKI-DAS, 5 W.R. P. C. 33 = 1 M.I.A. 351 = 1 Suther. 54 = 1 Sar. 128.

(11)—No appeal by defendant from interlocutory decree—Report of master's office—Interlocutory decree appealed from to England—Costs of proceedings in master's office.—A defendant did not appeal from an interlocutory decree, but proceeded in the Master's office in respect of the matters included in the accounts; but before the general report was made by the Master, he appealed from such interlocutory decree to England. In reversing such decree, the Judicial Committee ordered him to pay the costs of the proceedings in the Master's office, and remitted the cause to the Court below, with directions, that the costs payable to the defendant upon the dismissal of the bill, and the costs payable by him consequent upon his proceedings in the Master's office, should be set off, the one against the other, and the balance paid to the party entitled to the same. MC. KELLER v. WALLACE, 5 M.I.A 372 = 8 Moo. P.C. 378 = 1 Equity Rep. 309 = 1 Sar. 453.

(12)—Evidence—Existence of probabilities in favour of transaction, duty of Court to consider —Letter in the nature of guarantee.—The sole question in this case was whether the appellant had produced adequate proof that a document upon which he relied was a true and genuine instrument. It was not denied on the part of the respondents that, if that document were genuine, the effect of it would be to exonerate the appellant from the demand made against him; nor was it said on the part of the appellant that he would not be liable if not protected by the document in question. The Judicial Committee agreed with the following arguments among others, urged for the respondents, viz., that considering the habits and customs of the natives of India, their well-known propensity to forge any instrument which they might deem necessary for their interest, and the extreme facility with which false evidence is procurable from witnesses, the probability or improbability forms a most important consideration in ascertaining the truth of any transaction relied upon. The Committee expressed their opinion that the whole of the transaction under consideration was perfectly consistent with probability; and, in support of the genuineness of the document relied on, there was the evidence of witnesses against whose veracity no solid objection had been raised beyond the general observation that oral evidence in India is untrustworthy; and held that where the probabilities are thus in favour of the transaction, the Court should not conclude against it solely because of the general fallibility of native evidence; such an argument would go to an extent not maintainable in any Court, for, it would tend to establish a rule that all oral evidence must be discarded, and it is manifest that, however fallible such evidence may be, however carefully to be watched, justice never can be administered in the most important causes without recourse to it. In this case, their Lordships also observed that, however much they may lament the great latitude with which documentary evidence is received in the Courts in India, it would be contrary to justice in any particular case, to visit upon an individual penal consequences merely because the administration of justice was not more strictly conducted with reference to the admission of evidence. A letter in the nature of a guarantee, wholly in the handwriting of A., written upon stamped paper, sealed, but not signed or attested by witnesses, or registered, to B., a co-plaintiff with A., undertaking to indemnify B. from costs, if he would join as a co-appellant with A, in an appeal to England, established, and held to operate as a release in an action brought by A's heirs against B. to recover his pro rata share of the costs of the appeal. BUNWAREE LAL v. MAHARAJAH HETNARAIN SINGH, 4 W.R.P.C. 128=7 M.I.A. 148=1 Sar. 610=1 Suther. 307. [R., W. R. F. B., p. 4.]

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—3.—Costs—continued.

(13)—Interest, slight modification of rate of —Costs of appeal—Respondent's right to costs.—A slight modification as to the rate of interest was held not sufficient to deprive the respondent of costs of appeal. LALLA BUNSEEDHUR v. KOONWUR BINDESEREE DUTT SINGH, 10 M.I.A. 454 = 2 Sar. 167.

(14)—Agreement by Council not to appeal—Effect—Costs—Sum given nomine expensarum. —The High Court at Calcutta, at the instance of the appellant's Counsel, agreed to confine the decision of that Court to one point, with an undertaking that no appeal to Her Majesty in Council should be made from the decree. Notwithstanding such undertaking, an appeal was brought to England. The High Court certified in the record the undertaking. Held, by the Judicial Committee, on a preliminary objection being taken to the hearing on the ground of the incompetency of the appeal, that such undertaking precluded an appeal. [App., 8 C. 455 ; R., 1 A. 267 F.B., 15 C.P.L.R. 73.] As none of the respondents had applied in the first instance to dismiss the appeal on that ground, but had allowed the case to proceed to the hearing of the appeal, a fixed sum of money nomine expensarum was allowed to each of the respondents. MUNSHI AMIR ALI v. MAHARANI INDERJIT KOER, 9 B.L.R. 460, P. C.=14 M.I.A. 203=2 Suth. 479=2 Sar. 731.

(15)—Rules of English law relating to champerty and maintenance, not applicable as such in India—Nature of transaction, Court to look into—Appeal affirmed—Costs.—The grounds on which the Judicial Committee arrived at the conclusion in this case made it unnecessary to decide whether, under the law as administered in the Courts of India, those acts which in the English Law, are denominated either maintenance or champerty, and are punishable as offences, partly by the common law, and partly by Statute, are forbidden. They observed however, in passing, that although it may be admitted that the Court would have the right, perhaps even be under an obligation, to take cognizance proprio motu of any objection manifestly apparent on the face of the proceeding which showed that it was against morality or public policy ; yet where, as here, that was only to be collected from the evidence by inference, and was capable of explanation or answer by counter evidence, it is highly inconvenient,as well as contrary to the ordinance which regulates the practice of the Court, and may lead to the most direct injustice to enter into the enquiry if the issue has not been presented by the pleadings, or the points recorded for proof. In the present case, their Lordships held that the nature of the transaction was such as not to affect the points on which the whole question of maintenance depended, which was this—was the appellant suing in respect of his own interest for a violation of a contract made with himself, or was he representing another man's interest and suing on a contract to which he had been originally a stranger, in virtue only of the objectionable assignment ? The appellant was the real party to the original agreement, and the person really interested in its performance ; he was to advance the loan; the profits that were expected to result from the loan were to be his ; he might have intervened in the first instance, and conducted the litigation which first ensued in his own name. The agent was contracting for the appellant avowedly as agent only, not undertaking to borrow from the appellant the money, and then lend it to the respondent but to procure for him the loan of it from the appellant. [F., 1 M.H.C. 153; Appl., 12 M. 118, 6 B.H.C. 63, 8 B.H.C.O.C. 1, 22 W. R. 148, 2 C. 233, P.C.=4 I.A. 23 ; R., 11 A. 57, 31 C. 433=8 C.W.N. 408, 2 Ind. Cas. 385 ; D., 14 B. 72.] Where an appeal was affirmed upon wholly different grounds from those relied upon by the Court below, the dismissal was ordered to be without costs. FISCHER v. KAMALA NAICKER, 3 W.R.P.C. 33=8 M. I. A. 170=1 Suther. 395=1 Sar. 733.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—3.—Costs—concluded.

See CO-SHARERS—GENERAL, 16 C. 62, P.C.

See COSTS—INTEREST ON COSTS, 1 P. R. 1877.

—4.—Cross-appeal.

(1)—Cross appeal before appeal—Admission of —Conditions.—A cross-appeal from a decree of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlat Court in India, although not interposed within the proper time was admitted, upon conditions (1) of the principal appeal being prosecuted ; and (2) that the principal and cross-appeals be consolidated and heard on one printed case. OMANATH CHOWDRY v. SHEIKH NUJEEB CHOWDRY, 8 M.I.A. 498=1 Sar. 812.

(2)—Cross-appeal allowed although respondent did not apply in India for leave to appeal. —Cases where a cross appeal was allowed from part of a decree of the Sudder Court appealed from to England, although the respondents had not applied in India for leave to appeal within the proper time The respondents being mistaken in the practice of the Judicial Committee upon a cross-appeal ; such cross-appeal directed to be prosecuted and heard upon one printed case, if the principal appeal was proceeded with ; but, in the event of the principal being dismissed for want of prosecution, liberty was reserved to the respondents to prosecute the cross-appeal as a separate appeal. NANA NARAIN RAO v. HURREE PUNT BHAO, 6 M.I.A. 464=11 Moo. P C. 36.

(3)—Appeal from portion of decree—Leave to present cross-appeal—Reference of question to law officer.—A question was raised on the part of the respondents, whether the appeal, although from part of the decree only, did not open to them, the respondents, the whole decree? Their Lordships were of opinion that it did not, but they thought that, under the circumstances of this case, leave should be given to present a cross appeal, and the appellants not having insisted that the mere form of presenting such an appeal should be gone through, it was agreed that the whole decree should be considered as open. Where a question of right and title in a suit has to be referred to a law officer, in order that such reference may be valid and bind the right, it should embrace all important facts proved or admitted in the cause, which may affect the conclusion, and it is the duty of the Court itself so to frame the questions that they may elicit an opinion upon the very facts on which the legal title depends. If the facts be not ascertained, but are stated and disputed, then the questions should embrace either view of the facts. When the opinion given is apparently irreconcilable with the opinions of text-writers, those who gave the opinion should be asked further to explain that which appears prima facie thus irreconcileable, so that they may show on what they ground an exception from the general law, whether on general custom modifying text, on local usage, family customs, or other exceptional matter. MYNA BOYEE v. OOTTORAM, 2 W.R. P.C. 4 =8 M.I.A. 400=1 Sar. 797=1 Suther. 452=2 M.H.C. 196. [R., 8 M.I.A. 498.]

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——4.—Cross-appeal—concluded.

——5.—Dismissal of appeal for want of prosecution.

(1)—Dismissal of—By Sudder Court where no steps taken by appellant after grant of leave to.—An appeal was allowed in October, 1854, by the Supreme Court at Calcutta to England. After the allowance of the appeal, no further steps were taken by the appellant. In March, 1856, the Judicial Committee, upon a certificate of the Registrar of the Supreme Court that no further proceedings had been taken after the order allowing the appeal, dismissed the appeal, at the instance of the respondents, for want of prosecution. SREEMUTTY RABUTTY DOSSEE v. RADANAUTH SEIN, 6 M.I.A. 346=1 Sar. 547.

(2)—Restoration of appeal—Conditions—Security for costs.—Costs.—Case where the restoration of an appeal was allowed upon condition of the appellant lodging in England security for the costs the appeal. Six months having elapsed without the appellant having lodged the required security, the respondent applied to dismiss the appeal by reason of the non-performance of that condition. As it appeared that the appellant's agent was in daily expectation of funds from India, the case was, upon the appellant paying costs of the day, ordered to stand over for three months, for the appellant to perform that condition: in failure thereof, the appeal to stand dismissed. RANEE HURROSOONDREE DEBHIA v. RAJA PRAN KISHEN SING, 7 M.I.A. 16=11 Moo. P.C. 305=1 Sar. 590.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——5.—Dismissal of appeal for want of prosecution—concluded.

(3)—Appeal by guardian—Appellant attaining majority—Infant applying for withdrawal of appeal—Costs of guardian.—The guardian of an infant who has filed an appeal to the Privy Council on behalf of her infant son has not such an interest in the appeal or such a locus standi as to insist that the appeal shall go on, when the party in whose name it is brought wishes, on coming of age, to withdraw from it. If she has incurred costs, there can be no appeal for mere costs; having incurred costs on behalf of the infant, she may have a claim to be recouped from his estate, if he has any; but that does not entitle her to prosecute the appeal in his name against his will. RANI BISTUPRYA PATMADYI v. BASUDEB DHALL, 6 B.L.R. 190. P.C.=15 W.R P.C. 19=13 M.I.A. 602=2 Sar. 631=2 Suther. 391.

——6.—Practice as to objection.

(1)—Practice of Privy Council.—Case in which the Privy Council refused to entertain a mere objection of form, that did not affect the substantial merits of the case. THE MOKUDDIMS OF MOUZAH KUNKUN WADY v. THE ENAMDAR BRAHMINS OF MOUZAH SOORPAL, 7 W.R. P.C. 8=3 M.I.A. 383=1 Suther. 164 =1 Sar. 292.

(2)—Practice as to objections—Method of disposal.—The Judicial Committee, in appeals from the native Courts in India, will look to the broad principles of justice, and discourage mere technical objections which do not affect the merits of the case, and, more especially, will discountenance the introductions of objections that may have occurred in the course of litigation, but were not raised at the commencement of the suit. THE ZEMINDAR OF RAMNAD v. THE ZEMINDAR OF YETTIAPOORAM, 7 M.I.A. 441=1 Sar. 701=1 Suther. 360=4 W.R. P.C. 31.

(3)—Suit for possession under Wusseeyutnamah—Reg. III of 1793, s. 13, issue of proclamation under—Forms of pleadings in appeals from India—Practice—Privy Council.—In this suit brought by the descendants of a deceased Rajah for possession of his property under an alleged wusseeyutnamah or deed of gift, the Court directed proclamation to issue in accordance with s. 13 of Reg. III of 1793 to all persons claiming any right to the property, to come in and prosecute the same. The lower Courts passed a decree declaring the claimants' right of succession any specifying the shares pursuant to the above Regulation. On this appeal, objection was raised on behalf of the appellant that, in the Court below, some of the questions which had been determined were never put in issue, and that, in consequence, the appellant was aggrieved, not by this omission only, but by being deprived of the opportunity of producing evidence materially to support his own case. But their Lordships were of opinion that this objection was in both respects void of any solid foundation. In reviewing the proceedings in India, whence the appeal was brought from the Courts where the Hindu and Mahomedan laws were the rule, and the forms of pleading are wholly different from those in use in Courts where the law of England prevailed, the Judicial Committee would look to the essential justice of the case, not considering whether matters of form had been strictly attended to. GHIRDHAREE SINGH v. KOOLAHUL SINGH, 6 W.R P.C. 1 = 1 Sar. 200 = 1 Suther. 98 = 2 M I.A. 344. [R., 11 B.H.C 249, 10 C.L J. 517 = 3 Ind. Cas. 34]

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

—6.—Practice as to objection—continued.

(4)—Events subsequent to decision of suit, no right of appeal in consequence of—Untraversed averments whether to be deemed as admitted.—The main question for decision in this case was, whether the decision of the Principal Sudder Ameen was, when pronounced, a correct decision of the issues then pending before him between the then parties to the suit. Held that no subsequent event or devolution of interest can affect the above question, and, to give effect to these, should justice require it, would be the office, not of an appeal, but of some supplemental proceeding. Their Lordships were of opinion that the strict rule that averments not traversed must be taken to be admitted was inapplicable to the Courts in India, and in the present case their Lordships thought that it would be objectionable to disturb or vary decrees properly made by the Zillah and Sudder Courts in this suit for the mere purpose of guarding against the possible error of some other tribunal in some future suit. ANUNDMOYEE CHOWDHRAIN v. SHEEB CHUNDER ROY, Marsh 455 = 2 W.R.P.C. 19 = 9 M.I.A. 287 = 1 Suther. 485 = 1 Sar. 854. [F., 34 C. 57 = 11 C.W.N. 225 = 5 C.L.J. 181; R., 18 W.R. 287]

(5)—Privy Council—Special leave to appeal on questions of great general importance—Technical objections urged at a late stage—Permissibility.—The defendant in a suit applied for and obtained leave to appeal to the Privy Council, which leave, however, became abortive owing to his failure to make the deposit for costs in due time. He then applied to the Privy Council for special leave to appeal on the ground that the suit was one concerning properties of large value, and involving questions of great importance to the sect to which he belonged. Special leave having been granted on the ground, the appellant urged, at the hearing before the Privy Council, certain preliminary objections to the maintainability of the suit, objections to which no reference had been made either in his application to the High Court for leave to appeal, or to the Privy Council for special leave. Held that, though it was not, by any means, intended to lay down, as a rule, that no questions can be raised at the hearing, which are not indicated in the petition for special leave to appeal, yet in the present cases considering the importance of the questions upon which the appellant obtained special leave to appeal, and the somewhat technical character of the objections raised to the maintenance of the suit, objections which altogether excluded the consideration and discussion of those very important questions, the appellant ought not, at that stage, to be allowed to insist that, by reason of these objections, the suit ought to be dismissed. SHEO SINGH RAI v. DAKHO, 1 A. 688, P.C. = 2 C.L.R. 193 = 5 I.A. 87 = 3 Suther. 529 = 3 Sar. 807. [F., 8 A. 365 = 6 A.W.N. 1886, 129.]

(6)—Point not submitted to either Court in India not entertained in Privy Council.—Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee were unable to entertain a point urged by the appellants, the same having been submitted in the conduct of the case to neither Courts below. MA WEEN DI v. MA KIN, 10 Bom.L.R. 41 = 35 C. 232 = 12 C.W.N. 220 = 7 C L J. 112 = 18 M.L.J. 3 = 5 A.L.J. 63 = 35 I.A. 41 = 3 M L.T. 93 = 14 Bur.L.R. 3 = 4 L.B.R. 75, P.C.

(7)—Point not taken before either of the lower Courts—Whether the same was open before the Privy Council.—A point not taken by a party before either of the lower Courts was not open to it at the time of the hearing of the appeal before their Lordships. MUHAMAD NASEEM v. MAHAMAD ABBAS ALI, 10 Bom.L R. 126 = 18 M.L.J. 133 = 7 C.L.J. 215 = 12 C.W.N. 355, P.C.

(8)—Concurrent decisions — Estoppel.—A point not raised in the plaint in the District Court, nor in the High Court, cannot be raised before the Privy Council. SUMBHU NATH SANTRA MAHAPATRA v. SURJAMONI DEI, 25 C. 187, P.C = 24 I.A. 191 = 1 C.W.N. 649 = 7 Sar. 247.

(9)—Concurrent findings of facts—Special circumstances, not raised in pleadings and in lower Court.—Where there were concurrent findings of facts by two Courts, and it was sought to distinguish the case against two of the defendants on the ground of special circumstances (connected with their holding), which were never relied upon in the pleadings and no issue was directed as to them and there was no proper examination of the case with respect to them, the High Court was justified in refusing the appellant to raise the point. NAM NARAIN SINGH v. BHIM GANJHU, 3 C.W.N. 249, P.C.

(10)—Technical objection not taken in Court below.—The Privy Council will not entertain a purely technical objection to a party's right of action which has not been made in the Court below. THE BANK OF BENGAL v. MACLEOD, 5 M.I.A. 1 = 7 Moo. P.C. 35 = 13 Jur. 945 = Taylor, 434 (b) = 1 Sar. 391.

(11)—Right of suit not questioned in Courts below—Question in Privy Council.—The right of a party to institute a suit as heir of the original grantee, not having been disputed in the Courts below, cannot be questioned before

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——6.—Practice as to objection—concluded.

the Judicial Committee. MILLS, COLLECTOR OF KAIRA v MODEE PESTONJEE KHOORSEDJEE, 2 M.I.A. 37=3 Moo. P.C. 368=1 Sar. 215

(12)—Objection as to limitation raised for the first time at the hearing before the Privy Council.—An objection raised for the first time at the hearing of the appeal before the Privy Council, that the Government's right to sue was barred by the Regulation of Limitation II of 1805, from lapse of time, sustained; the proceedings in India before the Revenue Collector and Special Commissioner under Regulations II of 1819, and III of 1828, not being in the nature of a regular suit. MAHA RAJA DHEERAJ RAJA MAHATAB CHUND BAHADOOR v. THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, 4 M.I.A. 466=1 Sar. 285.

(13)—Death of a sole appellant pending appeal to England— Substitution of one of the respondents instead · Objection to such substitution at hearing of the appeal—Practice.—Pending an appeal to England the sole appellant died, and the Sudder Court made an order substituting one of the respondents in his stead as appellant. Semble:—It is not competent to the other respondents to object to such order at the hearing of the appeal, the proper course being to move the Sudder Court to discharge such order. BABU KASI PERSAD NARAIN v. MUSSUMAT KAWALBASI KOOER, 5 M.I.A. 146=1 Sar. 412=1 Suther. 225.

(14)—Objections to report of Commissioner for examination of accounts.—In this case, the Court of First Instance appointed a commissoiner for examining, and reporting upon, certain accounts. This officer made a report and also a supplemental report. No objection was taken thereto either in the first Court or in the grounds of appeal before the appellate Courts in India. The appellant, for the first time, took certain objections to the report of the Commissioner before the Privy Council. Held, such objections as were not taken in the Courts in India not entertainable. SETHS GUGMULL, JETHMULL AND THANMULL v. MUSSUMAT CHAHEE KOWAR, 2 I.A. 34=3 Sar. 419.

(15)—S. 561, Civ, Pro. Code, 1882—Variation of decree, asked by respondent, requiring cross appeal—Practice.—A respondent cannot ask for a decree to be varied in his favour except by means of a cross appeal. When he has not filed a cross appeal, the rule prevails that he can only be heard to support the decree, s. 561, Civ. Pro. Code, not applying here A CASPERSZ v. KISHORI LAL ROY CHOWDHRI. 23 C. 922, P.C.=1 C.W.N. 12=7 Sar. 31. [R., 27 M. 543, 2 C.L.J. 288]

——7.—Questions of Fact.

(1)—Reversal of decrees by Privy Council—Practice.—It is not the practice of the Judicial Committee to disturb the finding of the Courts below upon mere issues of fact, unless it is clearly satisfied that there has been some miscarriage, either in the reception or in the appreciation of evidence. In cases that turn upon the credibility of the testimony given, it is disposed to defer to the judgment of those who, with the advantage of local experience, have had the means of seeing witnesses under examination, and of inspecting the original documents. RICHARDSON v. THE GOVERNMENT, 1 W.R.P.C. 47=1 Suther. 513.

Prvly Council, Practice of—continued.

——7.—Questions of Fact—continued.

(2)—Practice — Consideration of case as a whole by Privy Council.— Considering the advantages the Judges in India generally possess of forming a correct opinion of the probabilities of a transaction, and in some cases of the credit due to the witnesses, the fact that the Courts in India have decided against the validity of an instrument (a question of fact only) affords a strong presumption in favour of the correctness of their decision, but does not and ought not to relieve the Privy Council, the Court of last resort, from the duty of examining the whole evidence and forming for itself an opinion upon the whole case. MODHOO SOODUN SANDIAL v. SOROOP CHUNDER SIRCAR CHOWDHRY, 7 W.R. P.C. 73=4 M.I.A. 431=1 Suther 216=1 Sar. 378. [F., 10 M. 429.]

(3 & 4)—Credibility of witnesses--Disturbance of judgment--Conclusion from evidence—Semble: The Judicial Committee will not disturb a judgment of a Court in India upon a question of the credibility of witnesses, unless it is manifestly clear, from the probabilities attached to certain circumstances in the case, that the Court below was wrong in the conclusion drawn from such evidence. MUSADEE MAHOMED CAZUM SHERAZEE v. MEERZA ALLU MAHOMED SHOOSTRU, 6 M.I.A. 27=8 Moo. P.C. 110=1 Sar. 489.

(5)—Disputed facts—Appeal to Privy Council—Procedure of Privy Council.—It is the practice of the Judicial Committee, in a case of disputed facts, when the Courts in India appear to have diligently investigated the evidence, and no palpable mistake is apparent in the appreciation by the Court below of such evidence, to affirm the decree appealed from with costs. CHUNDERMONEE DEBIA CHOWDHOORAYN v. MUNMOHEENEE DEBIA, 8 M.I.A. 477=1 Sar. 809.

(6)—Practice—Evidence improperly admitted—Appeal.—Where evidence which ought not to have been admitted has been improperly admitted, it is the duty of the Judicial Committee who are Judges of the fact in such a case to consider whether, throwing aside such evidence, there still remains sufficient evidence to support the decrees. The improper reception of evidence is always to be deprecated, if only from its tendency to provoke an appeal. MOHURSINGH v. GHURIBA, 6 B.L.R. 495, P.C.=15 W.R. P.C. 8=6 M.J. 193=2 Sar. 379.

(7)—Concurrent findings as to facts—Grounds of decision different—Practice of Privy Council.

P. N. Das
Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—7.—Questions of Fact—continued.

—The rule that the Judicial Committee will not disturb a finding as to facts, upon which both the Courts below are agreed, unless such finding can be shown to be clearly erroneous, —is none the less applicable, because the Courts may not have taken precisely the same view of the weight to be attached to each particular item of evidence, and in this way may not have been quite agreed on the grounds of their decision. The rule is applicable to a case where one Court has relied on the oral testimony and the other on the documentary evidence. RAM ANUGRA NARAIN SINGH v. CHOWDHRY HANUMAN SAHAI, 30 C. 303, P C.=30 I.A. 41 =7 C.W.N. 225=5 Bom. L.R. 6=8 Sar. 409.

(8)—Practice—Question of fact decided by the first Court—Not submitted to appeal Court—Raised before the Privy Council.—Where on appeal to the Privy Council the argument offered was on a question of fact, which was decided in the first Court and was not submitted for review to the Appeal Court below. Held, that it was out of their Lordships' power to entertain the ground of appeal. DHANAKDHARI v. MAHABIR PERSHAD, 9 Bom. L R. 651=11 C.W.N. 739=6 C L.J. 11=34 C. 709= 17 M.L.J. 353=34 I.A. 164, P.C.

(9)—Appeal to Privy Council—Question of fact.—Their Lordships declined to reverse a decision of the High Court upon a question of fact in which the High Court had the documents and had the evidence of the witnesses before them, and had an opportunity of witnessing the demeanour of the witnesses on both sides. RAJAH JUGOJEEBUN LALL DHUBAL DEB v. KARTICK CHUNDER BONDOPADHYA, 25 W.R. 1, P C.=11 M.J. 108=3 Sar. 559=2 I.A. 283=3 Suther. 213.

(10)—Appeal to Privy Council—Questions of fact—General rule—Finding by Civil Court—Interpretation of — Decree based on finding—Finding in first Court—Appeal.—In an appeal to the Privy Council, the appellant cannot generally succeed upon a pure question of fact which had been found against him by the Courts below. A finding by a Civil Court must be taken altogether. A decree cannot be passed, based on one part thereof, if it would be inconsistent with another part of the same finding unless it is proved that this latter part is incorrect. Where a party to a suit waives the benefit of a finding in his favour by the first Court, he is not competent to get a decree based thereon in appeal, although he could have the benefit of it in some future proceeding. KOER PORESH NARAIN ROY v. ROBERT WATSON AND CO., 23 W R. 451.

(11)—Practice — Concurrent findings—Evidence—Native Courts.—The native Courts in India, in receiving evidence, do not proceed according to the strict technical rules adopted in England. According to the practice there, a copy of a public document, authenticated by the signature of the proper Officer, is received as prima facie evidence, subject to further inquiry, if it is disputed. It is not the practice of the Judicial Committee to advise the reversal of a decision of the Court below, merely on the effect of the evidence or the credit due to witnesses, as the Judges in India have better means of determining questions of fact than the appellate Court. NARAGUNTY LUCHMEDAVAMMA v. VENGAMA NAIDU, 1 W.R.P.C. 30=9 M.I.A. 66=1 Suther. 460=1 Sar. 826. [Appl., 10 W R.P.C. 10; R., 10 W.R.P.C. 10= 10 M.I.A. 196; Expl., 6 C. 171, F.B.=6 C.L. R. 439.]

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—7.—Questions of Fact—continued.

(12)—Claim to inheritance in defendant's possession—Defence pleading deed of gift by last owner—Question in issue—Decision by both lower Courts that gift deed even if executed was inoperative—Execution of deed, if contested.—Where, in a claim to an inheritance in the possession of the defendant, who, although related to the last owner, set up, independently of other title, a deed of gift from the latter in his favour, and it was decided in both the lower Courts that the deed, even if it had been executed, was inoperative, and an appeal was made to the Privy Council, on the ground that the question of the actual execution of the deed was left undisposed of, held that an issue having been fixed as to the execution, and the plaint also showing that the execution was disputed, it cannot be assumed that the matter had never been in contest. ANAND KUAR v. TANSUKH, 11 A. 396, P.C.= 5 Sar. 372=13 Ind. Jur. 171.

(13)—Appeal—Failure to produce evidence at hearing.—Where the decision went against a party, owing to his non-production of a document to prove a material fact, though he had sufficient warning of it, the fact that it could have been proved by a reference to records in another proceeding would be no ground for reversing the decision, especially when that was not made a ground of appeal in two appellate Courts. CHANDI CHURN SHASHMAL v. DURGA CHURN MIRDUA, 9 C. 260=12 C.L.R. 81, P.C.=4 Sar. 351.

(14)—Privy Council appeal—High Court's decree confirmed—Execution— Mis-translation. —In this case, the Privy Council confirmed a decree of the High Court, but left the question whether the respondents were entitled to the full amount claimed in the plaint or not for the determination of that Court. The latter Court allowed execution to issue for the whole amount, as the doubt entertained by the Privy Council was owing to the word "Shahodar" in the plaint being mistranslated as "sons" instead of "uterine brothers." In the matter of MEER MAZUFFER HOSSEIN CHOWDHRY v. AMEEROON-NISSA KHATOON, 17 W.R. 340.

(15)—Privy Council—Interference with findings of fact—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, ss. 584, 585—Jurisdiction to hear second appeal, on what matters—Second appeal to Judicial Commissioner - Appeal to Privy Council—Interference with findings of facts.—The Privy Council will not, unless under very exceptional circumstances, disturb a finding of fact in which the Courts below have concurred. Under ss. 584, 585, no second appeal shall lie except on the ground of the decision being contrary to some specified law or usage having the force of law, or the decision having failed to determine some material issue of law or usage having the force of law, or for substantial defect in procedure. The Privy Council, sitting on appeal from the order of the Judicial Commissioner, can only do what the Judicial Commissioner himself in second appeal could have done; and no special leave to appeal from the decree of the Commissioner (the first appellate Court) having been applied for, the Privy Council will be bound by his findings of facts. LUCHMAN SINGH v. PUNA, 16 C. 753=16 I.A. 125 P.C. =5 Sar. 370.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——7.—Questions of Fact—continued.

(16)—Evidence— Unwillingness to interfere with conclusions of Courts below on questions of fact—Plunder during mutiny.—A sued 126 persons for plundering his house during the mutiny and robbing him of treasure laid at Rupees 92,450. Principal Sudder Ameen, who tried the suit, awarded Rupees 21,498 against 13 of the defendants. Sudder Court, in appeal, reversed this decree, even as regards those who had not appealed. Held that, on the subject of evidence, Courts below have advantages which do not belong to the Tribunal of the Privy Council, and that their Lordships will not interfere with conclusions of fact, except when clearly satisfied that there has been error or mistake in arriving at such conclusions. In the present case the Principal Sudder Ameen, who tried the cause, appeared to have proceeded throughout very cautiously in considering the evidence, while the Court of Appeal overlooked the fact that the main evidence had received important corroboration. The decree of the Sudder Court, therefore, reversed, and that of the Principal Sudder Ameen restored and affirmed. RAMBUKSH SINGH v. JUGUT NARAIN SINGH, 5 M.J. 232.

(17)—Principal and surety —Novation of bond—Evidence.—A treasurer of a Collectorate was found, on going into his accounts, to have been a party with another in embezzling Government moneys in the Collectorate. His defalcations ran over several years. A surety-bond had been given on behalf of the treasurer, and the bond was renewed three times by the same surety during the period the treasurer was in office, but the surety never asked for the old bonds to be delivered up when they were renewed. In an action by Government against the surety to recover the amount embezzled, held that the renewal of the bonds did not discharge the surety from his liability under the first bond, as the renewed bonds were not in substitution of the first bond. The ex parte deposition of a witness who might have been called and cross-examined at the trial ought not to have any weight given to it. The lower Courts having admitted inadmissible evidence, the Judicial Committee examined the whole evidence and, on being satisfied that there was sufficient evidence to support the decision of those Courts independent of such inadmissible evidence, dismissed the appeal. LALA BANSHIDHAR v. THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, 9 B.L.R. 364, P.C.=16 W.R.P.C. 11=14 M.I.A. 86=2 Suther. 448=2 Sar. 689.

See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS, 15 W. R. 20, P.C.=6 B.L.R. 677=13 M.I.A. 607.

Findings of Lower Courts on questions of fact—See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 9 M. I.A. 456.

——8.—Rehearing.

(1)—Privy Council order, grounds for re-opening.—The finality of a judgment of the Privy Council particularly after its confirmation by an order in Council, cannot be generally questioned; such an order will not be allowed to be re-opened or varied, unless it is shown that, by some accident, without any blame and without any default on the part of the party himself, he has not been heard and an order has been inadvertently made as if he had been heard. PERTAB NARAYAN SINGH v SUBHAO KOOER, 4 C. 184, P.C.=5 I.A. 171=1 C.L.R. 11=3 Sar. 840.

(2)—Re-hearing—Conditions.—There may be exceptional circumstances which will warrant the Judicial Committee in allowing, even after an order of Her Majesty in Council has issued upon their report, a re-hearing at the instance of one of the parties. The indulgence extended in such cases is mainly owing to the natural desire prevailing to prevent irremediable injustice being done by a Court of the last resort, where, by some accident, without any blame, the party has not been heard, and an order has been inadvertently made as if the party had been heard. APPA RAO, In re, 10 M. 73, P.C. =13 I.A. 155=4 Sar. 755. [R., 14 M. 439, P.C.]

(3)—Rehearing of case decided by the Privy Council—Fresh evidence--Practice.—A judgment of the Privy Council, reported to and confirmed by Her Majesty in Council, cannot be re-opened merely because new evidence was forthcoming. SRIMANTU RAJA YARLAGADDU DURGA v. SRIMANTU MALLIKARJUNA, 14 M. 439, P. C.=17 I.A. 134 (10 M. 73, R.)

(4)—Re-hearing of appeal—Privy Council.—The re-hearing of an appeal heard ex parte, on which an order in Council had been made, refused, the default in not appearing and contesting the appeal being occasioned by the agents of the respondent who sought to have the appeal re-heard. N.B.—A re hearing will not be allowed except under very special circumstances. RANI SWARNAMAYI v. SHASHI MUKHI BARMANI ex-parte, KRISHNA NATH ROY, 2 B.L.R. P.C., 60.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——8.—Rehearing—continued.

(5)—Suit in ejectment— Onus— Possession—Dispossession — Remand—Settlement of issues and trial—Irregularities.—Decrees were made in the year 1816, in suits respecting disputed boundaries of certain mouzahs in two zemindaries, and the boundary line determined. In 1845, a suit was brought by the representatives of one of the parties in the above suits to recover land alleged to be part of one of those mouzahs, which land, it was admitted by the plaintiff, the defendants had been in possession of since the year 1834. It was pleaded in defence, first, that the land claimed was within the boundary declared by the decrees of 1816 to belong to the defendants ; and, secondly, that the plaintiff, or those under whom he claimed, had been out of possession for upwards of twelve years, and that the cause of action was, consequently, barred by Ben. Reg. III of 1793, s. 16. In such circumstances, it was held that the issue as to possession was the first point to be considered and that such issue was wholly independent of the question of boundary. Held further, that as the plaintiff sought to disturb the possession of the defendants admitted by him to have existed for eleven years, but which the defendants alleged was a much longer period, the onus probandi was upon the plaintiff to remove the bar to the action imposed by Ben. Reg. III of 1793, s. 16, by satisfactory proof that the cause of action accrued to him on a dispossession twelve years before the commencement of the suit, and that he, or some person through whom he claimed, was in possession during that period ; and that no proof of anterior title in his favour, such as would be involved in the boundary question, could relieve him from this onus, or shift the onus on the defendants by compelling them to prove the time and manner of possession. Although the evidence of witnesses for the defendants as to possession, if of no better character than those produced by the plaintiff as to dispossession, yet, it lies on the plaintiff to make out his case, and as the probabilities were against dispossession, it was held by the Judicial Committee, affirming the judgment of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlat, that the plaintiff had failed to prove the fact of the dispossession of the defendants, which was necessary to maintain the suit. [F., 2 W.R. 65, 2 W.R 75, 7 W.R. 212, 14 W.R. 135, 15 W.R 43, 9 C. 744, F.B.=12 C.L.R. 257 ; R., 14 W.R. 51, 4 C.L.R. 390, 9 M. 175, 7 C. 225=8 C.L.R. 126, 6 B. 508, 9 C W.N. 111, 7 C.L.J. 414=12 C.W.N. 272=3 M.L.T. 212 ; D., 15 W.R. 35, 6 C. 725=8 C.L.R. 90.] A remand having been ordered for the proper issue to be laid down, and for the trial of the case de novo after calling upon the parties for their proofs, and the appellant having declined to adduce further evidence on the issues so settled, and having called for the judgment of the Court upon the evidence already given :— Held that, if this manner of trial were irregular, it was not for the appellant to complain of the irregularity. The suspicion that a party, who has failed to prove his case, may prove more successful on the second and fuller investigation, is no sufficient ground for directing a new trial. MAHARAJAH KOONWAR SINGH v. BABOO NUND LALL, 1 W.R.P.C. 51=8 M. I.A. 199=1 Suther. 420=1 Sar. 744.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——8.—Rehearing—concluded.

(8)—Respondent in appeal to Privy Council, whether entitled to notice of transmission of records from High Court.—No formal notice of the transmission of the records to the Privy Council is required, by the rules of the High Court, to be given to the respondent in the appeal to the Privy Council. The mere fact that no express notice of such transmission was given to the respondent and that the hearing before the Judicial Committee therefore went on ex parte, is no sufficient ground for the granting of a re-hearing thereof. LALTA PRASAD v. SHEIKH AZIZ-UD-DIN, 19 A. 209=24 I.A. 49, P.C.=7 Sar. 123.

——9.—Remand of case to India.

(1)—Suppression of documents—Privy Council's opinion on merits—Remand.—The Judicial Committee will not act as a Court of original jurisdiction. Therefore, where the Judge of the Court below improperly suppressed documents, which were not discovered until after the transmission of the appeal to Her Majesty in Council, their Lordships refused to give an opinion on the merits, and remitted the case to the Sudder Dewanny Court for consideration. JUVEER BHAEE v. VURUJ BHAEE, 3 M.I.A. 324=1 Sar. 286.

(2)—Practice—Appeal to Privy Council (upon the merits)—Decree of High Court (questions as to form of).—Parties appealing to the Privy Council upon the merits ought not to take the general decree which the High Court may have given, without asking the High Court to condescend upon the details of it, if they mean to object that the general judgment is not sufficient to found the proper execution. A suit for possession and redemption of certain mortgaged property, in which a third party intervened upon a claim that the mortgagor the plaintiff had sold and conveyed to him one-half of the mokurari property in dispute, was dismissed. On appeal by the plaintiff, in which the intervenor did not appear, the lower appellate Court merely reversed the decree of the first Court, and the High Court affirmed the decree of the lower appellate Court. The Privy Council affirmed the judgment of the High Court, but remanded the cause to the High Court to amend their decree in conformity with their judgment, by declaring affirmatively what the plaintiff was entitled to recover, though it observed that the question ought to have been raised in the High Court. LALA SHAM SOONDUR LAL v. SOORAJ LAL, 26 W. R. 48.

——10.—Restoration of Appeal.

(1)—Leave to restore appeal—Consolidation of appeals.—Leave given to restore an appea dismissed for want of prosecution, the Cour below having consolidated it with another appeal in the same cause, which was still pending. SURROOPCHUNDER SIRCAR CHOWDRY v. RAMRUTTON MULLICK, 1 M I.A. 358=1 Moo. P.C. 404=1 Sar. 128.

Privy Council. Practice of—continued.

——10.—Restoration of Appeal—continued.

(2)—Transcript received late—Dismissal of appeal—Restoration.—Leave given to restore an appeal dismissed for want of prosecution, the appellant's agent, though instructed to prevent the dismissal of the appeal, not having received the transcript until after the expiration of a year and a day from the time of the allowance of the appeal, and the respondent having, in consequence thereof, obtained an order of dismissal. SREEMUTTY BISSNOSOONDERY DABEE v. RAJAH BURRODACAUNT ROY, 2 M I.A. 127=3 Moo. P.C. 11=Morton 372=1 Sar. 160.

(3)—Ignorance of appellant of introduction of new rules.—Appeal restored, after being dismissed for want of effectual prosecution, within the time limited by the fifth rule of the Order in Council of the 13th of June, 1853; the new rules having been only recently adopted by the Sudder Court at Calcutta, and the appellant, in ignorance of their existence, being engaged in taking steps to prosecute the appeal within the time and according to the practice previously existing. GUDADHUR PURSHAD TEWARREE v. MUSSUMAT SOONDER KOOMAREE, 6 M.I.A. 201=1 Sar. 530.

(4)—Same question at issue between same parties—Appeal under St. 8 and 9, Vict., c. 30, s. 2—Non-prosecution—Restoration of appeal.—In circumstances showing conflicting and opposite decisions by the Sudder Court upon the same question at issue, between the same parties, an appeal treated under the Statute, 8th and 9th Vict., c. 30, s 2, as abandoned for non-prosecution, was restored upon terms of paying costs and undertaking to lodge cases forthwith, and to lodge security or a bond in England to the amount of £500. Where an appeal has been treated as abandoned by Statute, 8th and 9th Vict., c. 30, s. 2, their Lordships have no power to grant leave to institute a new appeal; only a discretion to allow the original appeal to be restored. RANEE HURROSOONDREE DEBIAH v. RAJAH PRAN KISHEN SINGH, 6 M I.A. 491=11 Moo. P.C. 152.

(5)—Dismissal of appeal—Want of effectual prosecution—Restoration of appeal—Recognizances to prosecute appeal.—Appeal from the Sudder Court in India, which stood dismissed under Rule V of the Order in Council of the 13th June, 1853, for want of effectual prosecution, restored, as the appellant was in ignorance of the existence of the new rules, the Sudder Court having served the appellant (after interposition of the appeal) with notice that two years were allowed after the arrival of the transcript in England, for prosecuting the appeal. Where Government securities for the due prosecution of the appeal and costs were deposited in the Registry of the Sudder Court, the Judicial Committee, in restoring the appeal, dispensed with the usual recognizances in England. SETO LUCHMEECHUND v. SETO ZORAWUR MULL, 6 M.I.A. 204=1 Sar. 531.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——10.—Restoration of Appeal—continued.

(6)—Privy Council—Dismissal of appeal on failure to prosecute—Application for restoration—Deposit of fresh security in England.—This was a petition for restoration of an appeal dismissed for want of prosecution. Their Lordships observed that the circumstances were such that, if the petitioner's personal interest had been alone concerned in the matter, his application would be wholly unsuccessful, yet, taking into consideration the circumstance that there were infants concerned whose interests were confided to him, and the manner in which such interests of the minors were involved, they would accede to the application on condition that the applicant must find fresh security to be deposited in England and that he must undertake to get the appeal set down for a hearing within the time fixed in the order restoring the appeal. RANEE BIRJOBUTTY v PERTAUB SINGH, 3 W. R. P. C. 36=8 M.I.A. 160=13 Moo.P.C. 465=1 Suther. 408=1 Sar. 740.

(7)—Dismissal of appeal for default of prosecution owing to vakeel's illness—Act XVI of 1845—Act XVI of 1845 amending Act XXIX of 1841, enacts, that it is competent to the Sudder Court in the case of the dismissal of an appeal for want of prosecution, upon the application of the appellant within three months after the appeal has been dismissed, to re-admit the appeal, if the appellant satisfies the Court that the dismissal was "occasioned by the default of his Vakeel or by unavoidable accident" An appeal was made to the Sudder Court at Calcutta, but in consequence of the absence from illness of the appellant's Mookhtar, the written reasons of appeal were not lodged within six weeks, the time prescribed by Act XV of 1853, s. 6, and the appeal was dismissed. Upon application for re-admission of the appeal, the evidence showed that there had been no wilful delay, and that the appellant was in ignorance of the fact of the reasons of appeal not having been filed. Held, reversing the decree of the Sudder Court, that such circumstances constituted a case of "unavoidable accident," within the meaning of the Act XVI of 1845, and the appeal ordered to be re-admitted on the file of pending causes. ANUNDMOYEE DOSSEE v. POORNOO CHUNDER ROY, 9 M I.A. 26=1 Sar. 820.

(8)—Appeal to Privy Council—Dismissal for want of prosecution—Terms as to security and costs before restoration.—On an appeal having been presented to the Privy Council the records were sent up to the Registrar of the Judicial Committee. No further steps were taken by the appellant, and the appeal was dismissed under r. 5 of the orders in Council. On the delay and omission by appellant being satisfactorily explained, their Lordships directed the appeal to be restored upon condition (1) that money as security for costs be deposited in the registry of the Privy Council and (2) that the respondents be paid all costs hitherto incurred by them. RABIABAI v. MAHOMED ISMAIL, 21 B. 723, P. C. = 24 I. A. 128 = 7 Sar. 217.

Privy Council, Practice of —continued.

——10.—Restoration of Appeal —concluded.

(9)—Appeal—Revival of abated appeal—Substitution of new appellant.—Where, owing to the death of the appellant before the hearing, the appeal abated, but was revived on the application of another person, whose name was substituted for that of the deceased appellant, held, that the substituted appellant could not be allowed to use the position so obtained, for the purpose of advancing his own personal claim. UMRAO BEGUM v IRSHAB HUSAIN, 21 C. 997 P.C. = 21 I.A. 163 = 6 Sar. 469.

——11—Special leave to appeal and to defend appeal.

(1)—Application for leave to appeal to Privy Council, conditions necessary.—By the order in Council of April 1838, the Sudder Court has been empowered to grant leave for appealing to the Privy Council only in cases where the petition for the purpose has been presented within the prescribed period and the matter in dispute in such appeal amounts to the sum of at least Rs. 10,000. Where, in such a case, the appeal is from the whole decree covering an amount of over Rs. 10 000 including interest up to the date of the decree, i.e., the sum recoverable at the date of the judgment exceeds Rs. 10,000, the case clearly falls within the terms of the said order in Council. But, in cases in which the specified amount of Rs. 10,000 can only be reached by the addition of interest subsequent to the decree, their Lordships intimated that the grant of leave to appeal was a matter resting in their discretion. MAHARAJA SUTEESCHUNDER ROY v. GANESH CHUNDER, 3 W.R.P.C. 14 = 8 M.I.A. 164 = 13 Moo. P. C. 469 = 1 Suther. 399 = 1 Sar. 741. [Appl., 8 M.I.A. 262.]

(2)—Privy Council, leave to appeal to—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 596, cl. 4 (= *s.*110, present Code)—Concurrent findings of fact—No question of law.—To allow leave to appeal to the Privy Council on the ground that "there seems to be a point of law" is not a compliance with s. 596 (4), Civ. Pro. Code, which requires that there "must be some substantial question of law." KARUPPANAN SERVAI v. SRINIVAS CHETTI, 6 C.W.N. 241 = 29 I. A. 38 = 25 M 215, P.C. = 4 Bom. L.R. 248 = 8 Sar. 250.

(3)—Criminal cases—Leave to appeal in criminal cases—Grave and substantial injustice to be shown — Crim. Pro. Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 233, 234, 235, 236, 237 and 239—Joinder of charges.—Before granting leave to appeal, in criminal cases, to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the High Court must be satisfied that by a disregard of the forms of legal process, or by some violation of the principles of natural justice, or otherwise, substantial and grave injustice has been done. In re BAL GANGADHAR TILAK, 10 Bom L R. 973 = 33 B. 221.

Privy Council, Practice of —continued

——11.—Special leave to appeal and to defend appeal - continued.

(4)—Salvage cause—Dismissal of the case of the salvors—Leave to appeal from the principal sentence — No objection to competency of appeal taken in India - In a salvage case, the Supreme Court, by its sentence pronounced in March, 1849, dismissed the claim of the salvors. In the month of April following, the Promovents moved for a rule nisi to show cause why the defendants should not pay their costs. This rule the Court refused. In August, in the same year, the Promovents applied for, and the Supreme Court granted, leave to appeal to England from the principal sentence of March 1849. No objection was taken to the competency of the appeal in Bombay by the respondents, nor was any protest against the right of appeal entered in England, but the respondents at the hearing objected to the reception of the same, contending that the appeal was prevented by the proceedings had in the month of April. Held, that such objection was fatal, that the application for costs, after the decision in the cause, had the effect of absolutely perempting the appeal, so as to entirely take away from the Supreme Court the power of granting leave to appeal, as nothing could, after the proceedings in April, be done to restore the appeal from the principal sentence. Costs of appeal, under the circumstances, refused. LOUGHNAN v. HAJI JOOSUB BHULLADINA, 5 M.I.A. 137 = 7 Moo. P.C. 373 = 1 Sar. 410.

(5)—Valuation of appeal to Privy Council—Bengal Stamp Regulation X of 1829, necessity of compliance with the terms of.—Fresh evidence, on question of value, if admissible.—In this case the leave to appeal originally granted provided that such leave should be null and of no effect unless satisfactory evidence should be supplied by the appellants to the Registrar of the Sudder Court, that the real or market value of the land in dispute exceeded the sum of Rs. 10,000. This order having been obtained ex parte and appearing to have been obtained upon an inaccurate statement of the facts, was discharged. The present application was put in to discharge the said order of discharge and to restore the appeal. Held, there was no fraud practised upon the Court in obtaining the order granting leave to appeal and the condition on which that order was granted had been fulfilled. There was therefore, prima facie no ground for refusing to restore the appeal. It was contended for the respondents that the value of the land in dispute was untruly stated in the plaint in fraud of the Revenue Laws of India, and that leave to appeal ought not therefore to be granted. But it was held that it was a mistake on the part of the Court, no less than that of the appellants, to have allowed the cause to proceed upon such a representation of the value as was contained in the supplementary plaint, and their Lordships suggested that Bengal Regulation X of 1829 upon the subject of value should be carefully attended to. Permission was asked by the respondent to go into evidence on the question of value, but their Lordships were not disposed to deviate in this respect from their original order, which was carefully and designedly confined to evidence to be adduced by the appellants, with a view to prevent the introduction, for the purpose of a merely fiscal Regulation, of a contested issue on the question of value, a result, which in their Lordships' judgment, ought, in all cases, as far as justice will permit, to be avoided. MOHUN LAL SOOKUL v. DEBEE DOSS DUTT. 2 W.R.P. C. 9=8 M. I. A. 492=1 Suther. 458=1 Sar. 811.

Privy Council. Practice of—continued.

——11.—Special Leave to appeal and to defend appeal—continued.

(6)—Subject matter under appealable value—Leave to appeal refused—Prior application to High Court.—The Judicial Committee will not entertain an application for special leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council from a decree of the High Court, where the subject-matter in suit is under the appealable value prescribed by the 39th and 40th section of the Bombay Charter of 1862, unless the petitioner has applied to the High Court for such leave, and has been refused. GUNGOWA KOME MALUPA v. ERAWA KOME JOGAPA, 13 M.I.A. 433=2 Sar. 583.

(7)—Privy Council, appeal to—Case below appealable value in original Court--S. 596, Civ. Pro. Code 1882 (=s. 110, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908), construction of—Special leave to appeal —Substantial question of law—Practice—Application for special leave to appeal to be first made to High Court—S. 600, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, (O. XIV, r. 3, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908)—Interests subsequent to decree—Value of subject matter.—Where the value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance is below Rs. 10,000 the appealable value, the conditions prescribed by s. 596, Civ. Pro. Code, are not fulfilled and the High Court cannot grant the certificate of leave. The word 'and' in the first part of s. 596, Civ Pro. Code, means 'and' and not 'or', [R. 13 C.W.N. 1127.] The practice of the Judicial Committee is not to give special leave to appeal in cases which are not otherwise appealable, unless there is some substantial question of law of general interest involved. Where a party in an Indian case comes for special leave to appeal, the case being under appealable value, and, therefore, not to appeal as of right, he should, in the first instance, apply to the High Court for leave to appeal, on the ground that it is otherwise a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council, but this rule will not bind the Judicial Committee, although that course has not been taken. As a rule, however, that course ought to be followed. [R. 13 C.W.N. 1127.] Semble:—Interest falling due subsequent to the date of the decree in the original Court cannot be taken into consideration in determining the value of the subject matter of the suit in the Court of first instance within the meaning of s. 596, Civ. Pro. Code. MOTI CHAND v. GANGA PERSHAD SINGH, 6 C.W.N. 362, P.C =29 I.A. 40=24 A. 174=4 Bom. L.R. 159=8 Sar. 247.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——11.—Special Leave to appeal and to defend appeal—continued.

(8)—Leave to appeal granted ex parte—Appeal allowed on allegation unfounded in fact—Appeal dismissed.—If leave to appeal be obtained ex parte, the respondent may, as a matter of course, present a counter-petition to dismiss. Where an appeal had been granted ex parte upon an allegation unfounded in fact, the Judicial Committee refused to hear the case, and dismissed the appeal with costs. SIBNARAIN GHOSE v. HULLODHUR DOSS, 6 M.I.A. 207=1 Sar. 532.

(9)—Decree affirming original decree.—Where in a Land Acquisition case, the claimant appealed from the District Court's award and stamped the appeal according to the difference between his claim and the amount awarded, and the High Court granted a sum in addition to that awarded by the lower Court, but less than that claimed, held that this was properly a decree affirming the first Court's decree, and since there was no point of law involved, the application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council ought to be refused. RAJA SREE NATH ROY v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 8 C.W.N. 294. [Diss., 10 O.C. 65.]

(10)—Special leave to appeal on facts—Practice—Evidence.—The Privy Council will only, under very special circumstances, grant to an appellant from a judgment of the High Court passed in special appeal, nunc pro tunc, special leave to appeal on the facts. In this case, the Privy Council declined to grant that leave, and agreed with the High Court that a certain chitta was fairly admissible as evidence, and that it tended very much to negative the case put forward by the appellant. GOLAM ALI v. KALLY KISHEN THAKOOR, 12 B.L.R. 107, P. C.=18 W.R. 299.

(11)—S. 626, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Special leave to appeal—Review—Mere omission to record reasons.—The provisions of s 626, Civ Pro. Code, requiring the Judge granting a review to put his reasons on record, is rather a direction to the Judge how to act when he has decided to grant the application, than a condition of granting it. The failure to record his reasons is not a ground for granting special leave to appeal to the Privy Council. SHANKAR BAKSH v. BULWANT SINGH, 27 C. 333, P.C.=27 I.A. 79=4 C.W.N. 203=2 Bom. L.R. 596=7 Sar. 686. [R., 7 O.C. 345.]

(12)—Leave to appeal—Appeal—Political act —Act of State—Order passed by the Governor-General of India in Council.—Their Lordships of the Privy Council declined to grant leave to appeal against an act of the Governor-General of India removing the appellant from the Government of the State of Panna; inasmuch as it was clearly a political Act—an Act of State—done by the Viceroy in Council in the interest of the State of Panna, and the inhabitants of Panna, and for the peace and good government of India generally. In re MAHARAJAH MADHAVA SINGH, 6 Bom. L.R. 763=32 C. 1=8 C.W.N. 841= 1 A.L.J. 691=8 Sar. 731.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

—11.—Special Leave to Appeal and to defend appeal—continued.

(13)—Leave to appeal to Privy Council—Civ. Pro. Code. 1882, ss. 595, 622 Letters Patent of 1865, s. 39—Permission to sue as pauper.—An order passed by the High Court under s. 622 of the Civ. Pro. Code, deciding that a party should be allowed to sue in forma pauperis is not a final decree within the meaning of s. 595, nor is it a final judgment made on appeal within the meaning of s. 39 of the Letters Patent of 1865, and, therefore, the High Court has no power to grant a certificate for leave to appeal to the Privy Council against such order. BABU SAKAN SINGH v. GOPAL CHANDRA NEOGI, 8 C.W.N. 296.

(14)—Appeal in forma pauperis to the Queen in Council —Semble.—Although the Courts in India admit a party to appeal to England, in forma pauperis, yet the appellant ought to make a special application to the Queen in Council, for leave to prosecute such appeal in forma pauperis. MUNNI RAM AWASTY v. SHEO CHURN AWASTY, 7 W.R. P.C. 29=4 M.I A. 114=1 Suther 166=1 Sar. 323.

(15)—Application for special leave to appeal —Necessity to state full particulars of case and particular points of law involved.—A petition for special leave to appeal contained a general statement of the proceedings in India, and an averment, that they were irregular and contrary to law. Such petition ordered to be dismissed or to stand over for amendment, as being too general and vague. It is incumbent upon a party applying for special leave to appeal to set out in the petition a full statement of the facts and legal grounds, to show that there is a substantial case on the merits, and a point of law involved, proper to be determined by the Appellate Court. On an amended petition, stating in detail the facts, and specifically showing legal grounds of objection to the decrees and order of the Court below refusing leave to appeal, special leave to appeal was granted. GOREE MONEE DOSSEE v. JUGGUT INDRO NARAIN CHOWDERY, 11 M.I.A. 1=2 Sar. 207.

(16)—Matter not appealable grievance—St. 3 and 4, Wm. IV, c. 41—Matter referred by Her Majesty to Privy Council—Leave to appeal.—Where a matter has been referred by Her Majesty to the Judicial Committee which is not strictly an appealable grievance, their Lordships may, under the reservations contained in the 3rd and 4th Wm. IV, c. 41, advise

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

—11.—Special Leave to Appeal and to defend appeal—continued.

Her Majesty to grant the petitioner leave to appeal. MORGAN v. LEECH, 2 M.I.A. 428=3 Moo. P.C. 368=1 Sar. 215.

(17)—Decree in cross-appeal, petition for leave to appeal from—Grant of leave without further security.—On the present application for special leave to appeal from a decree of the High Court in the cross-appeal, the applicant having already been granted such leave as for an appeal to the Privy Council, from a decree to the same effect passed by the High Court in the appeal itself, the Judicial Committee was of opinion that they should recommend the granting of leave applied for, without the petitioner having to file any further security; than had already been taken. MUHAMMAD IKRAM-UD-DIN v. MUSAMMAT NAJIBAN, 19 A. 95=23 I.A. 167, P.C.=7 Sar. 99.

(18)—Leave to appeal to the Privy Council granted after six months from decree—Authority of Supreme Court to grant leave after six months —Leave granted by the Privy Council as a special case.—The Supreme Court at Madras admitted an appeal to the King in Council, after the expiration of six months from an original decree. Held, that the Court was not authorized by the Madras Charter of 1800, creating the Supreme Court, to grant leave to appeal. Upon a special application to the King in Council, founded upon the fact that the uniform practice of the Supreme Court at Madras, though upon an erroneous construction of the Charter, was to admit only appeals upon a final decree; leave to appeal was granted by the Privy Council. THE EAST INDIA COMPANY v. SYED ALLY, 7 M. I.A. 555=1 Sar. 867.

(19)—Decree as to interest—No appeal to Privy Council in time —Payment of costs—Leave to appeal granted — Leave to appeal granted, on payment of costs, from an order of the Sudder Court at Bombay, decreeing interest upon the amount awarded by the judgment of the Court; the appellant having failed to apply to the Court in India, within six months, as required by the Order in Council of the 10th April, 1838. KIRKLAND v. MADEE PESTONJEE KHOORSEDJEE, 3 M.I.A. 220=1 Sar. 270.

(20)—Non appearance of respondent — Ex-parte hearing of appeal—Appearance of respondent before hearing—Prayer for adjournment —Leave granted on terms.—The respondent not having appeared, the appeal was, after two years, set down for hearing ex parte. Before the hearing, the respondent appeared, and moved, under special circumstances, to postpone the hearing for six months, to enable him to lodge his case. The Judicial Committee put him upon the terms of having the appeal heard at the next sitting, restraining him from doing anything in the interval to the prejudice of the fund in the Court below, and with payment of the costs of the application. WATSON v. SREEMUNT LAL KHAN, 5 M.I.A. 447=1 Sar. 468.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——11.—Special Leave to Appeal and to defend appeal—continued.

(21)—Special leave to appeal — Importance of the question involved.—The question in this case was whether a Zillah Court, refusing to set aside an order of a Registrar refusing to register a compulsorily registrable document under the Registration Act VIII of 1871, had power to admit a petition for review and whether, when such a petition has been admitted, the High Court had power to interfere with the order of the Zillah Court. Considering the importance of the question involved, the Judicial Committee granted special leave to appeal. MEER REASUT HOSSEIN v. HADJEE ABDOOLLAH, 1 I A. 72=3 Sar. 315.

(22)—Wrongful act amounting to legal injury, damage occasioned by, liability for—Plea of action under order of Government not sustainable—Leave to appeal—When a wrongful act of the plaintiff is complained of as having occasioned damage to the defendants, they must have the same remedy by action against the doer, whether the act was his own, spontaneous and unauthorized, or whether it were done by the order of the superior power. The civil irresponsibility of the supreme power for tortious acts could not be maintained, if its agent were not personally responsible for them. In the case of damage occasioned by a wrongful act—that is an act which the law esteems an injury—malice is not a necessary ingredient to the maintenance of the action. It cannot therefore be deemed to make any difference that the act complained of had to be considered as the act of the Government, and that in the part which the defendant took in it he acted only as the officer of the Government, intending to discharge his duty as a public servant with perfect good faith, and with an entire absence of any malice, particular or general, against the plaintiffs. [R., 4 M. 344, 6 Bom. L.R. 131, 28 B. 314=6 Bom. L.R. 65.] In an action the Court at Calcutta gave damages, the amount of which was under the appealable value prescribed by the Calcutta Charter. As an important point of law was involved, special leave to appeal was, upon petition, granted. ROGERS v. RAJENDRO DUTT, 2 W.R.P.C. 51=8 M.I A. 103=13 Moo. P.C. 209=3 L.T. 160=9 W.R. 149 (Eng.)=1 Suther 413=1 Sar. 755.

(23)—No application for leave to—Made to Court below—Value of subject-matter exceeding appealable value though decreed amount was below appealable value.—Special leave to appeal granted, notwithstanding that no application had been made for such leave to appeal to the Court below, upon the allegation that, though the amount decreed was much under the appealable value, the original demand being necessarily limited by the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit was originally instituted, yet the subject-matter at issue exceeded in value the appealable amount. MUTUSAWMY JAGAVERA YETTAPA NAIKER v. VENCATASWARA YETTIA, 10 M.I.A. 313=1 Ind. Jur. N S. 203=2 Sar. 131.

(24)—Consolidation of Appeals — Defendant accepting the consolidated value precluded from questioning valuation of appeal to Privy Council.—Two suits, each of which was valued at less than Rs. 10,000 were consolidated and heard together by the Court of First Instance. The defendant accepted, and acted upon such valuation in preferring an appeal to the High Court. The Defendant having succeeded in the High Court, the plaintiff applied for leave to appeal to the Privy Council. The defendant contended that no leave ought to be granted on the ground that each of the two appeals, taken separetaly, was less than Rs. 10,000 in value. Held, the defendant having consented to, and acted upon, the consolidation of the suits and having also accepted the consolidated value for purposes of his own appeal to the High Court, it was not open to him to question the valuation of the plaintiff for purposes of the latter's appeal to the Privy Council. Under the circumstances, special leave to appeal was granted. KRISTO INDRO SAHA v. HUROMONEE DASSEE, 1 I.A. 84=3 Sar. 317.

(25)—Subject-matter trifling—Amount under appealable value — Jurisdiction — Leave to appeal – Terms.—The Supreme Court, in overruling the objections to the jurisdiction of the Court, refused leave to appeal; the subject-matter of the action being trifling, and under the amount required by the rules of the Privy Council. Upon petition, the Judicial Committee granted leave to appeal, but upon terms of the East India Company paying the respondent's costs of the appeal, to enable him to appear to prevent the question being argued ex-parte. SPOONER v. JUDDOW, 4 M.I.A. 353=6 Moo. P.C. 267=Perry O.C. 392=1 Sar. 363.

(26)—Appeal to Privy Council—Value of subject-matter found to be below Rs. 10,000. though laid in the plaint as above that sum—Leave to appeal granted on condition of appellant reopening the question of value of subject-matter.—The value of the subject-matter in dispute, though laid in the plaint at a sum exceeding the minimum amount of Rs. 10,000, provided, by the Order in Council of the 10th of April, 1836, was reduced on calculation by the Zillah Judge to an amount under that sum; and the finding upon the merits was for the plaintiff for such reduced sum. Upon a cross-appeal, the Sudder Court dismissed the entire claim, and, on the ground that the matter in dispute was under the appealable value, refused leave to appeal to England. Upon special petition, leave to appeal allowed, the appellant claiming to open the question of the value of the subject-matter in question calculated by the Zillah Judge. PRANNATH ROY CHOWDRY v. RANEE SURNOMOYEE, 7 M.I.A. 553 = 1 Sar. 708

Privy Council, Practice of - continued.

——11.—Special Leave to Appeal and to defend appeal—continued.

(27)—Amount under appealable value—Point of law—Aggregate amounts more than appealable value—Leave to appeal.—In circumstances, special leave to appeal granted, although the amount involved in the action was under the appealable value, Rs. 10,000. There being (1), an important question of law raised, and eleven other actions brought involving the same question of law, and which had been directed by an order of the Court below to be heard upon the same evidence and concluded by the same judgment; and (2), the aggregate amount involved in the actions being more than the appealable value. KO KHINE v. RICHARD SNADDEN, 5 Moo. P.C.N.S. 67 = L.R. 2 P.C. 50 = 37 L.J. P.C 119.

(28)—Leave to appeal—Terms—Appealable value below Rs. 10,000.—Where the Privy Council grants leave to appeal, under the general jurisdiction of the Queen in Council, it will impose such terms upon the party applying as the special circumstances of the case require. Appeal admitted from an order confirming the report of Commissioners in a partition suit, although the appealable value was under Rs. 10,000, the amount prescribed by the Order in Council of the 10th of April, 1838. The petitioner (the plaintiff) had offered to compensate the defendant, if the report of the Commissioners was varied. The Judicial Committee, in granting leave to appeal, put the petition upon terms of lodging in the Council Office, within four months, a certificate of recognizance to the Queen in the sum of £1,500, for such compensation and costs as might be awarded In re SIBNARAIN GHOSE, 5 M.I A 322 = 8 Moo. P.C. 276 = 1 Sar. 448.

(29)—Leave to appeal to Privy Council granted on certain conditions though time limited by Charter expired.—Leave given to appeal, under the circumstances, though the time limited by the Bombay Charter had expired, and the decree of the Court below sanctioning the sale of real estate—the subject of the suit—had been partially acted on; the petitioner undertaking not to disturb the possession or title of the purchasers of any part of the property actually sold; to give security for costs, and to abide by any order which the Judicial Committee might think fit to make, touching the matters in dispute. In re MUSADEE MUHOMED CAZUM SHERAZEE, 5 M.I.A. 196 = 8 Moo. P.C. 90 = 1 Sar. 416.

(30)—Undischarged insolvent, mortgage by—Lien under mortgage, Priority of, to claim of Official Assignee.—Leave to appeal under special circumstances.—The right of the Official Assignee to the subsequently acquired property of an insolvent is subject to th qualification that, if the insolvent carries on trade at a subsequent period, with the assent of the Assignee of the estate under the Insolvent Act, in the first instance, the property which is acquired in the subsequent trade will be subject in equity to the charge of the creditors in that trade, in priority to the claim of the assignee under the first insolvency. In the present case, the insolvent carried on the business of a hotel agent or manager for others. Subsequently, he made an arrangement with the appellant, by which he became the purchaser of the property in dispute and carried on the said trade on his own account with the knowledge of the Assignee under the insolvency. The appellant had advanced a sum of money for the purpose of being laid out in the purchase of the property subject to an agreement that it was to be laid out in a particular manner, and a mortgage of the property was accordingly executed. Under the circumstances, the insolvent was held not to have acquired anything except subject to the lien of the creditor, and the Assignee could stand in no better situation. [R., 8 C. 556 = 12 C.L.R. 253, 17 M. 21, 20 B. 636, 7 Bom. L R. 337.] The sum involved was under the prescribed amount limited by the Order in Council of the 10th April, 1838. Upon a special application, the fact appearing that the question involved the construction of an Act of Parliament respecting the operation of the law of insolvent debtors in India, leave to appeal was granted. KERAKOOSE v. BROOKS, 4 W R P C. 61 = 8 M I.A. 339 = 1 Suther 426 = 1 Sar. 778.

(31)—Suspension of a pleader for misconduct—Act XX of 1865—Special leave to appeal—Expiry of period of suspension—High Court's finding on question of fact.—Where a pleader was suspended for professional misconduct, and the period of suspension had considerably expired, before application was made for special leave to appeal against his suspension, that in itself would form some ground why their Lordships should not accede to the application; but, if the effect of the order of suspension had been to inflict, upon the character of the applicant, a lasting stigma, and there had been a clear miscarriage of justice shown, the fact that the period of suspension had expired would not alone have sufficed to refuse the application. Where the High Court, acting regularly within their jurisdiction, come to the conclusion, from facts placed before them, that a pleader is guilty of professional misconduct, and suspend him from practice, and there are no materials to show that such conclusion, on a pure question of fact, is wrong, or even where there is some doubt on the subject, the Judicial Committee will refuse to grant special leave to appeal. In the matter of QUARRY, 2 A. 511, P.C. = 7 I A. 6 = 4 Sar. 99.

(32)—From the original decree and the order refusing review.—In circumstances, where the six months prescribed by the Order in Council of 10th April 1838, from the date of the decree of the High Court at Calcutta, had expired, special leave to appeal from the original decree and the order refusing a review was allowed. NAGENDER CHUNDER GHOSE v. MAHOMED EUSUFF, 12 M.I.A. 107=2 Sar. 358.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——11.—Special Leave to Appeal and to defend appeal—continued.

(33)—Special leave to appeal.—Special leave to appeal given in a case involving a question of tenure service called Chakeeran, although the subject-matter in dispute was below the appealable value; there being many other suits depending on the decision of the case JOYKISSEN MOOKERJEA v. THE COLLECTOR OF EAST BURDWAN, 8 M.I.A. 265=1 Sar. 773.

(34)—Special leave to appeal from an order taking a minor from her mother's custody.—Special leave to appeal allowed from an order of the High Court of Judicature for the North Western Provinces of India, by which order, an infant daughter was taken from the custody of her mother, a Mahomedan, on the ground that the minor's deceased father had been a professed Christian, and her mother, who was, as the Court held, living in adultery, was inducing her daughter to adopt the faith and habits of a Mahomedan. Liberty given, pending the hearing of the appeal, to the petitioner to apply to the High Court to have access, at suitable times to her daughter. In re SKINNER, 13 M.I.A. 532=2 Sar. 615.

(35)—Privy Council — Special leave to appeal on questions of great general importance—Technical objections urged at a late stage—Permissibility.—The defendant in a suit applied for and obtained leave to appeal to the Privy Council, which leave, however, became abortive owing to his failure to make the deposit for costs in due time. He then applied to the Privy Council for special leave to appeal on the ground that the suit was one concerning properties of large value, and involving questions of great importance to the sect to which he belonged. Special leave having been granted on this ground, the appellant urged, at the hearing before the Privy Council, certain preliminary objections to the maintainability of the suit, objections to which no reference had been made either in his application to the High Court for leave to appeal, or to the Privy Council for special leave. Held that though it was not, by any means, intended to lay down as a rule, that no questions can be raised at the hearing, which are not indicated in the petition for special leave to appeal, yet in the present case, considering the importance of the questions upon which the appellant obtained special leave to appeal, and the somewhat technical character of the objection raised to the maintenance of the suit, objections which altogether excluded the consideration and discussion of those very important questions, the appellant ought not, at that stage, to be allowed to insist that, by reason of these objections, the suit

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

——11.—Special Leave to Appeal and to defend appeal—concluded.

ought to be dismissed. SHEO SINGH RAI v. MUSSAMUT DAKIO, 2 C.L.R. 193=5 I.A. 87=1 A. 688. P.C.=3 Sar. 807. [F., 8 A. 365=6 A.W.N. 129.]

(36)—Special leave to appeal on the ground of a conflict of decisions. OLAGAPPA CHETTY v. ARBUTHNOT, 7 M.J. 190.

——12.—Stay of Proceedings in India pending appeal.

(1)—Leave to appeal granted—Application, ex-parte, for stay of proceedings in Lower Court refused.—The Sudder Court at Calcutta, remanded a suit to the Zillah Court for trial de novo. An appeal to England from this decree was refused, but, upon special application, was admitted by the Privy Council. The appellant then applied to the High Court at Calcutta to stay proceedings pending the appeal to England, on the ground that the decision of the appellate Court would govern the question at issue, which application that Court refused. The appellant then presented a petition to Her Majesty in Council, and applied ex parte for the same relief, but the Judicial Committee, in the respondent's absence, refused to make any order, though without prejudice to the petitioner's further application when he had served the respondent. RAJAH PERLADH SEIN v. BABOO BHOODOO SINGH, 10 M I.A. 78=2 Sar. 73.

(2)—Stay of proceedings—Proof of injury, in case proceedings are not stayed, should be given.—Application, to stay proceedings in a cause in which an appeal from an order in the nature of an interlocutory order is pending before Her Majesty in Council, ought satisfactorily to show that a serious injury will be the result to the party applying, unless the delay, asked for, be granted, and that the party applying has come promptly to make the application. Where, therefore, an appellant from an Order of the High Court of Judicature, which remitted a cause, appealed to that Court from the Zillah Court, back for the trial of issues framed in accordance with the provisions of Act No. VIII of 1859, s. 139, having failed in obtaining an Order from the High Court to stay proceedings in the Zillah Court, pending the appeal, but, not having appealed from that decision, presented a petition to Her Majesty in Council, praying that all proceedings in the remanded suit might be stayed till the pending appeal had been heard; the Judicial Committee, without determining the question of their right to interfere in such circumstances, held that the petitioner had not shown any such injury, or used such expedition, as entitled him to ask for a stay of proceedings. Quaere.—Whether, where an order has been made by the Superior Court below, refusing to stay proceedings, and such order is not specially appealed from, the Judicial Committee have any authority to interfere, though an appeal is pending before them from a previous order of the Superior Court made in the same suit, remitting the cause back to the inferior Court before which it is pending? NAWAB SIDHEE NUZUR ALLY KHAN v. RAJAH OOJOODHYARAM KHAN, 10 M.I.A. 322=1 Ind. Jur. N.S. 185=6 W.R.P.C. 83=2 Sar. 183.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

—12.—Stay of Proceedings in India pending appeal—continued.

(3)—Stay of execution — Order of Sudder Court, Application to rescind— Limitation.—Motion to rescind order of the Sudder Court at Madras, for the execution of a decree pending an appeal, and to stay execution, refused, on the ground of the length of time that had elapsed from the making of the order, and the probability of its having been acted on in India. In re RAJAH BOMMARAUJEE BAHADOOR, 5 M.I.A. 298.

(4)—Appeal to Privy Council—Security for Privy Council decree Grant of leave to appeal from interlocutory orders in execution—Order staying execution—Intimation to Court below.—The Privy Council granted leave to appeal from certain interlocutory orders in execution in the matter of a decree from which leave to appeal to the Privy Council had been obtained; but refused to order stay of execution, as the decree had not yet been appealed to the Privy Council, but intimated to the lower Court that the petitioner's prayer was reasonable, and observed that the petitioner might apply to the proper (lower) Court for due security being taken from the opposite party, who, it was not advisable, should be put in possession of large sums of money in dispute in the suit. INDER KUMARI v. JAIPAL KUMARI, 14 C. 290, P.C. =14 I.A. 1=4 Sar. 757. (10 M.I.A. 322, 10 M.I.A. 196, R.) [Expl., 5 C.W.N. 781.]

(5)—Practice of Privy Council—S. 608(c), Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Stay of execution, order for.—Where the Judges of the High Court had differed in opinion as regards the propriety of staying execution of decree under cl.(c), s. 608, and their discretion had not been exercised, as they were empowered to exercise it under that section, their Lordships of the Privy Council ordered that the execution of the decree should be stayed. CHATRAPAL SINGH DURGA v. DWARKA NATH GHOSE, 22 C. 1, P.C.=21 I A. 170=6 Sar. 514. (15 C. 725, P.C., R.) [R., 29 M. 379, P.C.=8 Bom. L.R. 497=16 M.L J. 299=4 C.L.J. 101=10 C.W.N. 945.]

(6)—Stay of proceedings, application for — High Court's jurisdiction to order security for costs pending appeal by special leave to Privy Council— Privy Council, jurisdiction of —S. 608, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882.—On the refusal of the High Court for want of jurisdiction, to direct that the manager of the estate in suit should remain in possession, pending an appeal by special leave to the Privy Council, the Judicial Committee refused to interfere, but ordered stay of proceedings, the appellant being —12.—Stay of Proceedings in India pending appeal—concluded.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

answerable in damages, and any aggrieved respondent having leave to move for the discharge of the order. When the Courts below have jurisdiction, and an intimation to them would be effective, or when the appellant being in possession, a stay of proceedings would keep the position of things in fact, the Judicial Committee would ordinarily interfere. The Judicial Committee would not directly interfere to appoint or continue a manager of a receiver. The Judicial Committee would not direct the High Court to make any order for interim protection, unless their Lordships were satisfied that the Court below had jurisdiction. Quaere. — Whether the High Court has jurisdiction to make an interim order pending appeal by special leave. MOHESHCHANDRA DHAL v. SATRUGHAN DHAL, 27 C. 1, P.C.=26 I A. 281=4 C.W.N. 34=7 Sar. 561. [Rel. on, 3 O.C. 243 (b); R., 28 C. 171, 5 C.W.N. 781; Appl., 10 C.L J. 326.]

(7)—Abandonment of appeal—Recognisance.—Recognisance entered into to abide the determination of an appeal vacated upon petition of the appellant upon the abandonment of the appeal. REED v. SREEMUTTY GOURMONEY DABEE, 6 M. I. A. 490=11 Moo. P. C. 151.

—13.—Valuation of appeal.

(1)—Application for leave to appeal to Privy Council, Conditions necessary.—By the order in Council of April 1838, the Sudder Court has been empowered to grant leave for appealing to the Privy Council only in cases where the petition for the purpose has been presented within the prescribed period and the matter in dispute in such appeal amounts to the sum of at least Rs. 10,000. Where, in such a case, the appeal is from the whole decree covering an amount of over Rs. 10,000 including interest up to the date of the decree, i.e., the sum recoverable at the date of the judgment exceeds Rs 10,000, the case clearly falls within the terms of the said order in Council. But, in cases in which the specified amount of Rs. 10,000 can only be reached by the addition of interest subsequent to the decree, their Lordships observed that the grant of leave to appeal was a matter resting in their discretion. MAHARAJA SATEESCHUNDER ROY v. GANESH CHUNDER, 3 W. R. P. C. 14=8 M. I. A. 164=13 Moo P. C. 469 =1 Suther. 399=1 Sar. 741. [Appr., 8 M. I. A. 262.]

(2)—Method of ascertaining appealable value Whole matter to be looked to—Reg. X of 1829, s. 17—Stamp—Leave to appeal.—In estimating the appealable value, restricted by the Order in Council of the 10th of April, 1838, for regulating appeals from the Supreme and Sudder Dewanny Courts in the East Indies, to Rs. 10,000 as the amount in dispute, regard should be had to the whole matter involved in the suit, and not to the value of a fractional part of the property sought to be recovered. A suit was brought to recover a zemindary in the possession of different persons under deeds of sale in execution of a decree. The value of the property sued for was, by Ben. Reg. X of 1829, s. 17, stated in the plaint to be Rs. 14,325. The Sudder Court upheld the sales so far as related to the claim of some of the defendants. The other defendants applied for leave to appeal to England, which the Sudder Court refused, on the ground that, as the value of their portion was only Rs. 8,215, it was not within the appealable value prescribed by the Order in Council of the 10th of April, 1838. Such construction overruled, and leave to appeal granted by the Judicial Committee. Quære.—Whether the stamp upon the plaint required by Ben. Reg. X of 1829, s. 17, being for fiscal purposes only, is conclusive of the value of the property sued for. MUSSAMMAT AMEENA KHATOOR v. RADHABENOD MISSER, 7 M.I. A. 261=12 Moo. P.C. 470=1 Sar. 644.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

—13.—Valuation of appeal—continued.

(3)—Beng. Reg. X of 1829—Market-value—Test of.—By Ben. Reg. X of 1829, the test of the value of the property in suit is the selling or market-value. MOHUN LALL SOOKUL v. BEBEE DOSS, 8 M.I.A. 193=1 Sar. 792.

(4)—Leave to appeal—Proof that subject-matter of suit is worth more than Rs. 10,000—Stamp duty.—Leave to appeal granted conditionally, upon the production of satisfactory evidence in India by the petitioner, and transmitted with the transcript, that the real or market value of the property in dispute exceeded Rs. 10,000, otherwise the leave granted to be null and of no effect. By the procedure of the native Courts, the value of the suit, for the purpose of the stamp duty, is assessed at three times the annual rent payable to Government in respect of the property sued for. Held, on an ex parte petition for leave to appeal, in a case in which the value was laid in the plaint as being under Rs. 10,000, that, as the calculation was estimated with reference to the stamp duty only, leave to appeal would be granted conditionally, upon the production of satisfactory evidence in India by the petitioner, and transmitted with the transcript, that the real or market value of the property exceeded Rs. 10,000, otherwise the leave granted to be null and of no effect. MOHUN LALL SOOKUL v. BEBEE DOSS, 7 M.I.A. 428=1 Suther. 458 =1 Sar. 739.

(5)—Aggregate value of five suits exceeding Rs. 10,000, though value of each was below that sum—Leave to appeal to Privy Council—Same point of law involved in all suits—Five separate suits were brought by the same plaintiff against the same defendants, in which the same question of law was raised. The amount involved in each suit was under Rs. 10,000, the appealable value, although in the aggregate the amounts claimed exceeded that sum. Leave to appeal in the five suits granted, upon the understanding that, if the parties consented within two months, by a proceeding before the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, to abide by the decision of the Privy Council in the first appeal, as governing the four other appeals, the Registrar of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut was to transmit only the transcript of the first suit; otherwise the five transcripts to be remitted in the ordinary course. BABOO GOPAL LALL THAKOOR v. TELUK CHANDER RAI, 7 M.I. A. 548=1 Sar. 737.

Privy Council, Practice of—continued.

—13.—Valuation of appeal—concluded.

(6)—Stat. 21, Geo. III, c. 70, s 21—Consolidation of suits—Appeal to Privy Council.—Two suits having been brought for sums due on the same account, each of which was under £5,000—held that such suits could not be consolidated for the purpose of appeal, though the original severance of them was contrary to the plaintiff's instructions, and the aggregate amount of both exceeded that amount. MOOFTI MAHUMMUD UBDOOLLAH v. BABOO MOOTECHAND, 5 W. R. P. C. 34=1 M I.A. 363=1 Suther. 56=1 Sar. 129. [F., 24 A. 236=A.W. N. 1902, 46.]

(7)—Costs cannot be added to the sum awarded.—Costs of suit cannot be added to the principal sum and interest, in calculating the appealable value of Rs. 10 000, the amount restricted by the Order in Council of the 10th of April, 1838. DOORGA DOSS CHOWDRY v. RAMANAUTH CHOWDRY, 8 M I.A. 262=1 Sar. 772.

(8)—Value of property sued for laid in plaint at less than Rs. 10,000—Evidence showing value to exceed that sum.—Appeal admitted from the Sudder Court at Calcutta, in a case where the land sued for was laid in the plaint as under Rs. 10,000, upon evidence stating the value of the property much to exceed that sum. GOURMONEY DEBIA v. KHAJA ABDOOL GUNNY, 8 M I.A. 268=1 Sar. 774

(9)—Costs — Appealable value—Objection.—Quære: Whether, in estimating the appealable value of Rs. 10,000, the costs of suit can be added to the principal and interest decreed? An objection to an appeal, on the ground that the amount in dispute is below the appealable amount, comes too late, when made to the Privy Council at the hearing of the appeal. NILMADHAB DAS v. BISWAMBHAR DAS, 3 B. L.R. P.C. 27=12 W.R.P.C. 29=13 M.I.A. 85 =2 Suther. 251=2 Sar 489.

(10)—Valuation for purposes of Court-fees—Appealable value.—The fact of a party's valuing the subject-matter of a suit at less than Rs. 10 000, under the law obtaining in India relating to Court fees, will not be a bar to his obtaining leave to appeal to the Privy Council, should it appear that the actual market value exceeds Rs. 10 000, which is the appealable value. BABOO LEKHRAJ ROY AND OTHERS v. KANHYA SINGH, 1 I A. 317=3 Sar. 373.

This circular lays down the rules regarding Regular Appeals valued at 10,000 rupees and upwards. 14 W.R.H.C. Rules. p. 5.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—14.—Miscellaneous.

(1) — Kathiawar Courts — Jurisdiction — Kathiawar— British Dominions—Appeal lies to King in Council from a judicial order by a Court administering justice on King's behalf—Court of Political Agent—Jurisdiction exercised by it is political and not judicial — Kathiawar is not as a whole within the King's dominions. If a Court, administering justice on the King's behalf, makes an order judicial in its nature, by which some one is unjustly and injuriously affected, the person aggrieved is not precluded from applying to the King in Council to redress his wrong merely by the fact that he is not the King's subject. The jurisdiction exercised by the Court of the Assistant Political Agent in Kathiawar and upon appeal from him to the Court of the Political Agent and of the Governor of Bombay in Council is political and not judicial in character, and therefore no appeal lies to the King in Council HEMCHAND v. SAKARLAL; TALUKA OF KOTDA-SANGHANI v. STATE OF GONDAL, 8 Bom. L.R. 129=10 C. W.N. 361=3 A L.J. 250=33 C. 219=3 C.L J. 395=16 M L J. 115=1 M.L T. 115=33 I.A. 1, P C.

(2)—Order of Privy Council, nature of—No distinction made between appeals to Privy Council from High Court in its original civil jurisdiction and those from appellate jurisdiction.— When once an order is made in Council, it becomes the paramount decision in the suit. When a decision of the Judicial Committee has been reported to Her Majesty, and has been sanctioned and embodied in an Order in Council it becomes the decree or order of the final Court of appeal. No distinction is made between cases going up to the Privy Council from the High Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction and those from its appellate jurisdiction. FUTTEH NARIAN CHOWDHRY v. CHUNDRABATI CHOWDHRAIN, 20 C. 551. (8 C. 218 and 6 App. Ca., 482, appr.)

(3)—Sudder Dewanny Court refusing to carry out an Order in Council—Pre-emptory orders by the Judicial Committee to Sudder Dewanny Court.—In suits before the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut at Madras, that Court decided in favour of A and, pending appeals to England by B and others, put A into possession of the disputed estates, which were of great value, without taking from him the security required by Madras Reg. VIII of 1818, s. 4. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council reversed the decree of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, and directed that Court to put B into possession of the estates. Pending the appeals the Board of Revenue took possession, sold a portion of the estates for satisfaction of arrears of revenue, and became themselves purchasers. The Sudder Dewanny Court declined to interfere or carry into execution the Order in Council confirming the report of the Judicial Committee, on the ground that the estates were then in the possession of the Madras Government. Upon a petition by B to the Judicial Committee complaining of such refusal, a peremptory order was issued, commanding the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut forthwith to carry into execution the Order in Council made on the appeals, and to direct the Collectors of the Districts in which the estates were situate to put B into possession, according to the terms of the Order in Council. The application, being ex parte, was postponed for notice to be given to the East India Company and the Board of Control of the petition and proceedings. In re RAJAH VASSAREDDY LUTCHMEPUTTY NAIDOO, 5 M.I.A. 300=8 Moo. P C. 115=1 Sar. 446.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

—14.—Miscellaneous—continued.

(4)—Discretion of the Court Interference.— Their Lordships of the Privy Council are always slow to reverse the decision of the Court below made in the deliberate exercise of a discretion entrusted to them by law. THAKURAIN JAIPAL KUNWAR v. BHAIYA INDAR BAHADUR SINGH, 6 Bom. L. R. 495=14 M.L J. 149=8 C. W. N. 465=26 A. 238=31 I. A. 67 =8 Sar. 625, P.C.

(5)—Reversal of judgment.—To induce the Privy Council to reverse the judgment appealed from, the appellant must do something more than show that the respondent's title is not free from doubts; the appellant must at least give some acceptable explanation of the circumstances which have led the Court below to its conclusion. DINOMONI v. BROJO MONINI, 4 Bom. L. R. 167=12 M. L J. 83. P. C.=6 C. W. N. 386=29 C. 187=29 I. A. 24=8 Sar. 224.

(6)—Non-appearance of respondent—Service of notice through lower Courts.—No appearance having been entered by the respondents, to appeal from India, and the appellant's case being ready to lodge for hearing, their Lordships, upon the application of the appellant, made an order, that the respondents should be served with notice, that, unless they brought in their case without delay, the appeal would be heard ex parte; giving the appellant liberty to proceed in the Court below, to render such service effectual; and the Court was ordered to certify to the Judicial Committee what had been done with respect to the same. WISE v. KISKENKOOMAR BOUS, 4 M.I.A. 201.

(7)—Order in Council giving leave to appeal —Construction of order.—On special application for leave to appeal from two decrees of the Sudder Court and also two decrees made by the Court of first instance, the order in Council made on the leave given was confined to the Sudder Court decrees. Held, that such order was, for the purpose of the hearing of the appeal, to be considered as embracing all four decrees RAM CHUNDER DUTT v. CHUNDER COOMAR MUNDUL, 13 M.I.A. 181=2 Sar. 507.

(8)—Admission to practise in Privy Council —High Court Vakil—Ss. 2, 38of the Rules of 31st March 1871.—The words of Ss. 2 and 3 of the Rules only apply to solicitors or others practising in London, and to solicitors admitted by the High Courts in India or the Colonies respectively. They have not left an undefined class to be admitted at the discretion of the Judicial Committee. In the matter of the Petition of R. E. TWIDALE, 16 C. 636, P.C.=16 I. A. 163=5 Sar. 336.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——14.—Miscellaneous—continued.

(9)—Appeal to Privy Council—Preparation of record—Practice.—Where the High Court has based its decision on some issues only and left out of consideration other issues in the case, the only papers to be printed for transmission to the Privy Council are those parts of the record which properly bear upon and are material to the questions decided by the High Court and forming the subject of the appeal. RAJA RAO VENKATA SURIYA MAHIPATI RAM KRISHNA RAO BAHADUR v. THE COURT OF WARDS, 20 M. 395, P.C.=24 I. A. 194=7 Sar. 252.

(10)—Revivor—Substitution of parties—Practice of Privy Council.—Where a party on the record of an appeal pending before the Privy Council dies, proper evidence must be given in the Court from which the appeal was preferred of the representative character of the person or persons by or against whom the revivor is sought. There ought to be some finding of the Court below. That Court should also give its own opinion as to who are the parties proper to be substituted upon the record and make a certificate or statement on which their Lordships of the Privy Council can act. HAIDAR ALI v. TOSSADUCK RASUL 16 C. 184=15 I.A. 209, P.C.=5 Sar. 270.

(11)—Extension of time to appeal, jurisdiction of Judicial Committee to grant.—The Judicial Committee have no jurisdiction to entertain an application for extension of time to appeal, until the petition of appeal is lodged. GUNGADHUR SEAL v. SREMUTTY RADDAMONEY DASSE, 6 M.I.A. 209=1 Sar. 532.

(12)—Insolvency of appellant—Abatement of appeal—Omission of Official Assignee to revive appeal as ordered—Appeal dismissed.—After an appeal from Calcutta had been set down for hearing, intelligence reached England, shortly before the day appointed for the hearing, that the appellant had been adjudged an Insolvent under the Indian Insolvent Act, 11th Vct., c. 21. Upon the appeal being opened, the Court postponed the hearing for six months, to enable the Official Assignee in Insolvency at Calcutta to revive the appeal and prosecute the same; and, in default, the appeal to be dismissed; and directed the respondents to serve the Official Assignee in India with such notice. No steps having been taken by the Official Assignee within the time limited for prosecution, their Lordships refused a further extension of time, and dismissed the appeal. GOOROOCHURN SEIN v. RADANAUTH SEIN, 7 M.I.A. 1=11 Moo. P.C. 76=1 Sar. 586.

Privy Council, Practice of*—continued.

——14.—Miscellaneous—continued.

(13)—Resumption of invalid lakhiraj, suit by Government for, under Reg. II of 1819—Intervention of Zemindar—Interlocutory orders, Appeal from—Application for review of judgment—Re-consideration by same Judge as distinguished from appeal--Causes explaining delay in applying for review—Review before another Judge, exceptional cases of.—In this suit for resumption of invalid lakhiraj brought by the Government, under Reg. II of 1819, the Zemindar, apprehending that his interest might be affected by the decision of the Collector declaring the lakhiraj lands to be more extensive than they really were, intervened by petition. It was held that, in any view of the case, he had an interest which justified him in so doing; for, even assuming it to be true that the Collector's report as to the extent of the land subject to revenue, was not binding on the Zemindar, and that he had a remedy against such a proceeding in another Court, still he had clearly an interest in averting an erroneous decree being made to his prejudice, the creation of prima facie evidence prejudicial to himself, and the necessity of resorting to the Civil Courts to remedy an evil already inflicted. There is no law or regulation prevailing in India which renders it imperative upon the suitor to appeal from every interlocutory order by which he may conceive himself aggrieved, under the penalty, if he does not do so, of forfeiting for ever the benefit of the consideration of the appellate Court. Nothing can be more detrimental to the expeditious administration of justice than the establishment of a rule which would impose upon the suitor the necessity of so appealing, whereby, on the one hand, he might be harassed with endless expense and delay, and, on the other inflict upon his opponent similar calamities. [F., 28 C. 324=5 C.W.N. 509; Appr., 11 W.R. P.C. 19; R., 7 B.H.C. 149, 11 A. 35, 14 B. 232, 23 C. 406, 29 C. 758=5 C.W.N. 617, 12 C.W.N. 590=6 C.L.J. 547; D., 23 C. 279.] An application for review is perfectly distinct from an appeal. From the regulations passed relative to the question of granting reviews, the primary intention of granting a review clearly appears to be to secure a re-consideration of the same subject by the same Judge as contra-distinguished from an appeal which is a hearing before another tribunal. There might no doubt be cases in which a review may be had before another Judge as where death or some unexpected cause has prevented the Judge from reviewing it; such exception, however, are allowable only ex necessitate. In all practicable cases, the same Judge ought to review and, for the attainment of such object, expeditious presentation of the petition for review is indispensable. The Regulations relating to review by the Sudder Court are applicable to the proceedings of the Special Commissioners granting a review of their own decrees. Also, the cause accounting for the delay and intended to justify the grant of a review ought always to be of grave importance. On a consideration of the

Res Judicata —continued.

—2.—Adjudications—continued.

1901. The Court was asked to admit it under the provisions of s. 5 of the Limitation Act, on the ground that the appellant had sufficient cause for not presenting it within time, inasmuch as, at the time when he preferred the appeal in suit No. 32, he consulted a pleader as to whether an appeal in that suit should only be preferred or appeals in both suits should be preferred; and, as he was advised by the pleader that it would suffice to prefer an appeal in suit No. 32 only, he preferred an appeal in that suit only. But on the 26th August 1901, the date fixed for the hearing of that appeal, he was told by another pleader that he should have preferred appeals in both. He had no personal knowledge as to whether one or two appeals should be preferred and in preferring only one he acted honestly and on the advice of the pleader first mentioned. The truth of this statement of the appellant (G.P.) was accepted by the Court. Held, that the circumstances that the appellant did not prefer the appeal within time in consequence of having been erroneously advised by a legal practitioner not to prefer the appeal was not a sufficient cause for not presenting it within time, and that his appeal in suit No. 33 should be dismissed. Held, further, that the decree in suit No. 33, which determined that K had a right of pre-emption, having become final, the Court was debarred from trying that question in the appeal in suit No. 32 by the principle of res judicata. GAJADHAR PERSHAD v. MUSSAMAT LACHMIN, 5 O.C. 384.

(41)—Case taken up and enquired into on verbal application—Irregularity.—In this case, the Settlement Officer called on the plaintiff, in the presence of the defendant's agent, seemingly on his verbal application, to state his claim to the village in question, which the plaintiff did. The Officer then passed a decree for proprietary rights in favour of the defendant, which was confirmed on appeal. In a suit to set aside these decisions, it was contended that they were not judicial ones, but were vitiated by the Settlement Officer having no jurisdiction inasmuch as he took up the case without any proper petition and did not carry out the proper procedure which should have prevailed in a judicial trial. Held that the suit did not lie as it was perfectly clear that both parties looked after their interest to the best of their power and that the Courts went thoroughly into the claims of both parties and gave well-considered judicial decisions. MULLIK SHER BAHADUR KHAN v. MULLICK FUTTEH SHUR KHAN, 60 P.R. 1870.

(42)—Prior suit for possession—Occupancy rights set up by defendants—Defendant referred to separate suit—Res judicata.—In a previous suit for possession, the present plaintiffs, then defendants, pleaded their right as occupancy tenants. The suit was decreed and the defendants therein were directed to bring a separate suit to establish their occupancy rights, and they accordingly instituted the present suit. Held that the decree for possession in the former suit, though erroneously ignoring the then defence of the present plaintiffs on the ground of occupancy and leaving the question of their status undetermined, was a bar to the present suit. The remedy of the plaintiffs was to have appealed from the decree passed against them. KALA v. WILAYAT, 45 P.R. 1879. [D., 25 P.R. 1884.]

Res Judicata—continued.

—2.—Adjudications—continued.

(43)— Suit relating to occupancy rights—Decree passed before passing of Tenancy Act, 1868 — Second suit relating to same matter after passing of Act—Res judicata—Compromise—Tenancy Act, s. 2, effect of.—In a suit tried by the Court of the Superintendent of Settlement, with the aid of assessors, the plaintiff A claimed proprietary rights in a certain land, and the Court, in accordance with the finding of the assessors which was accepted by both parties, passed an order that the defendant B should be allowed occupancy rights for 7 years. After the expiry of the 7 years, A served a notice of ejectment on B, and the latter brought the present suit claiming to hold the land as a tenant with rights of occupancy under s. 5 of the Tenancy Act, 1868, which was passed subsequent to the decision in the former suit. Held that the decision in the former suit barred the present suit. Per Plowden, J.—The order in the previous suit was a judgment of a competent Court in a contested suit and not merely an order giving effect to a compromise between the parties, and barred the plaintiff's claim, by the rule of res judicata; the claim was also barred by s. 2 of the Tenancy Act. If the order in the first suit be regarded as one merely based on compromise, so that it could have no effect as a judgment upon the matter in dispute, the compromise itself would furnish a complete answer to the second suit to establish the disputed claim. Per Fitzpatrick, J. The judgment in the first suit was passed by consent of parties and was based on a compromise of a doubtful and disputed claim and the present suit was barred by the general law relating to res judicata, according to which a decree by consent is regarded as an estoppel quasi of record. BAGGU KHAN v. SUJA, 77 P.R. 1877. [R., 22 P.R. 1879, 67 P.R. 1880, 104 P.R. 1884.]

(44)—Bombay Act, III of 1876, s. 13—Suit in Mamlatdar's Court—Dismissal for default—Suit under s. 9, Specific Relief Act.—A plaintiff, whose plaint has been rejected for default in the Mamlatdar's Court under Bombay Act III of 1876, would be barred by res judicata from bringing another possessory suit on the same cause of action in the Civil Court under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877. The rejection of a plaint for failure of appearance under s. 13 of the Bombay Act III of 1876 is a hearing and a final decision of the suit for the purpose of the rule of res judicata in s. 13 of the Civ. Pro. Code (Act X of 1877). RAMCHANDRA v. BHIKIBAI, 6 B. 477. [Diss., 24 B. 251; R., 21 B. 91, 25 B. 82, 28 B. 601=6 Bom. L.R. 612.]

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(45)—Act X of 1859, decision passed under, Civil Court bound by.—This case had been remanded to the Judge of the lower appellate Court because he had not considered the effect of a former decision in an Act X suit and he was directed to consider the legal effect of that decision alleged by the plaintiff to be a pre-adjudication in his favour, and he again dismissed the plaintiff's suit.—The High Court held that he was wrong in saying that a decision in an Act X case could not bind a Civil Court. An Act X Court is a regular Court. and all questions involving title are appealable to the Judge, and the present case had been so appealed to the Judge. WOOMESH CHUNDER SOOTE v. RAM CHUNDER MOWREE, 4 W.R. Act X, 40.

(46)—Act VIII of 1859, s. 2—Res judicata—Joint right declared in first suit—Separate share claimed in second suit—Mode of enjoyment—Ijmalee property.—Plaintiff sued for a declaration of his right to occupy one half of a chundee mundul for pooja purposes, to a joint right in which he had been previously declared to be entitled. Looking at it as an attempt to reverse a previous decision passed in a suit in which the plaintiff claimed a separate share of the chundee mundul but in which the Courts declared him entitled to joint possession of it, the suit was not maintainable under s. 2, Act VIII of 1859; but regarding it as a means of obtaining from the Court an order as to the mode in which an ijmalee right should be exercised, it was equally untenable. The mode of enjoyment of ijmalee property is a matter for private arrangement, and not for judicial determination. ROMESH CHUNDER BHUTTACHARJEE v. SOORJOO COOMAR BHUTTACHARJEE, 5 W.R. 90.

(47)—S. 13 (Civ. Pro. Code, 1882)—Res judicata—Selami and tehwari cesses agreed to be paid under kabuliyat—Previous decision disallowing the same.—Plaintiff sued a Mokuraridar for rent and, also, for certain illegal cesses known as selami and tehwari on the basis of a kabuliyat, under which the defendant-mokuraridar had agreed to pay the same. The defendant denied his liability to pay the cesses and relied, in his support, on a judgment between the same parties and in relation to the same property in a suit for a previous fasli. Held, the claim for the cesses was res judicata, the judgment in the previous suit having declared the non-liability of the defendant to pay the same. RAJAH PADMANAND SINGH BAHADUR v. RADHE SINGH, 9 C.W.N. 469.

(48)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 13—Suit for recovery of lands.—Where a prior suit for the recovery of lands, claimed as a portion of certain parcels situate in a mouza leased in putni, was dismissed on the ground of those parcels having been included in a putni lease of an adjoining mouza, granted prior to the plaintiff's lease, a subsequent suit for the recovery of certain other lands forming portion of the same parcels on the same title was held barred as res judicata. SUNDHYA MALA v. DABI CHURN DUTT, 6 C. 715. (1 M. H.C. 245, 13 W.R. 64, 2 C.L.R. 33, 3 C. 145, F.) [R., 12 C.W.N. 739=9 C.L.J. 597.]

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(49)—Act XIX of 1863, ss. 8 and 9—Adjudication of title—Res judicata.—An adjudication of title by a Collector under s. 8 of Act XIX of 1863, which, under s. 9, becomes final by not being appealed against, is res judicata and cannot be re-opened in a civil suit. HARSAHAI MAL v. MAHARAJA SINGH, 2 A. 294. [F., 5 A. 280= A.W.N. 1883, 20; D., 2 A. 839.]

(50)—Landholder and tenant—Ejectment of tenant by order of Revenue Court—Suit by tenant in Civil Court for declaration of title—Jurisdiction—Res judicata—Act XVIII of 1873 (N. W. P. Rent Act), ss. 34, 93 (b)—Civ. Pro. Code, *s.*13.—Where the question of a tenant's liability to ejectment in consequence of certain acts committed by him, being made exclusively cognisable by the Revenue Court, is decided by such Court, such decision, on becoming final, is res judicata, and bars a fresh suit in the Civil Court in respect of the same matter. RADHA PRASAD SINGH v. SALIK RAI, 5 A. 245=A. W.N. 1883, 10. (3 A. 85, D.)

(51)—Act II of 1901, (Agra Tenancy Act), s. 199—Suit for ejectment in Revenue Court—Omission on part of defendant to plead title in himself.—In a suit for ejectment under Act II of 1901, the defendants did not plead their own title to the plot in suit, and, in fact, did not oppose the suit for ejectment. Held that a subsequent suit, brought in a Civil Court by the then defendants, for proprietary possession of the same plot, was barred by the principle of res judicata. BIHARI v. SHEOBALAK, A.W.N. 1907, 189=4 A.L.J. 545=29 A. 601. (A.W.N. 1904, 109, 141, 27 A. 569, D.; A.W.N. 1907 1, 6, R.; 29 C. 707, Disc.) [R., 6 A.L.J. 259.]

(52)—Res judicata—Decision in rent suit—Ex-parte decree—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 13.—The rule of res judicata may be applied, although the decree in the former suit was passed ex parte. Where an issue was raised on the points now called in question, and the issue was heard and finally decided by the Court on the previous occasion in the rent suit, the rule of res-judicata applies, although the suit was decided ex-parte. HARA CHANDRA BAIRAGI v. BEPIN BEHARY DAS, 6 Ind. Cas. 860. (2 Ind. Cas. 11, Affirmed.)

(53)—Res judicata—Matter of record—Estoppel.—Where, in a previous suit for rent, the Court found that the defendant was not the plaintiff's tenant, the defendant is estopped by a matter of record from pleading in a subsequent suit for khas possession that he is plaintiff's tenant. FAYJ DHALI v. AFTABUDDIN SIRDAR, 6 C.W.N. 575. [F., 3 C.L.J. 201, 34 C. 922; Doubted & D., 9 C.W.N. 928=2 C.L.J. 389; D., 11 C.W.N. 100, N, 7 C.L.J. 483=35 C. 807.]

Res Judicata—continued.

—2.—Adjudications—continued.

(54)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 13—Suit for rent based on a lease deed—Subsequent suit for possession and rent based on same lease deed— Res judicata—Oaths Act (X of 1873)—Decree of appellate Court on strength of oath of party—Confirmation of first Court's decree—Final adjudication. — Plaintiff sued to recover a paramba with arrears of rent. A prior suit by the plaintiff for rent in respect of the same land and based upon the same lease deed had been dismissed. Plaintiff contended that as the former suit was cognizable by a Small Cause Court, the present suit was not barred by the decision in that suit. Held that the present suit was within the competency of the Court which tried the other suit, notwithstanding that in that other case there could have been no second appeal. The suit was, therefore, barred by s. 13, Civ. Pro. Code. (17 M. 273, R.; 28 C. 78, F.; 18 M. 189, R.) [Overruled, 29 M. 195=16 M.L.J. 41=1 M.L.T. 25, F.B.; F., 13 M.L.J. 23; R., 27 M. 63, 13 M.L.J. 134, 9 C.W.N. 656.] Where an appellate Court confirms the decree of the first Court on the strength of the oath of a party to the suit on a question of fact, the decree of the appellate Court is none the less a final adjudication. AHMED v. MOIDIN, 24 M. 444.

(55)—Suit for declaration of nature of rent payable by tenant and that plaint lands were nij-jote lands — Settlement proceeding fixing certain kind of rent, existence of, whether a bar to suit—Necessity for adjudication as to nij-jote or otherwise of land—Bengal Tenancy Act, ss. 104 (2) to 107 and Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13.—The plaintiff sued for a declaration that the land in dispute situated in Orissa, was held by the defendants under the plaintiffs on a produce-rent and not on a money-rent as shown in the settlement records and also for a declaration that the lands were the nij-jote lands of the plaintiffs and used to be cultivated before the plaintiffs and their ancestors. Both the lower Courts held that the first question was res judicata by virtue of a settlement proceeding and that there was no necessity for determining whether the lands were nij-jote or not. Held, the Settlement Officer had jurisdiction to deal with the question of fair rents arising between the parties, because a settlement of revenue was being made in the province of Orissa. That being so, the Settlement Officer had jurisdiction under sub-s. 2 of s. 104 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. He fixed a money-rent and not a produce-rent as payable by the defendants to the plaintiffs. No objection was preferred under s. 105 and no dispute was raised under 106 and, therefore, under the provision of 107, the decision of the Settlement Officer in the proceedings for settlement of rent under s. 104 had the force of a decree. Consequently, the plaintiff's claim for rent in kind was barred by rule of res judicata. Held, also, that it was quite unnecessary in this case to decide whether the lands were the nij-jote lands of the plaintiffs or not, for, in Orissa, occupancy-right can accrue in nij-jote and their accrual is not barred, as in Bengal, under s. 116 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. This section was not extended to Orissa. BRAHMANUNDA MAHAPATRA v. ARJUN RAUT, 1 C.L.J. 310.

Res Judicata—continued.

—2.—Adjudications—continued.

(56)—Legality of resumption by Zamindar—Question decided once—Subsequent suit between same parties in respect of same matter—Maintainability.—Where the question of the legality of a resumption made by a zemindar had become final by a decision, of the second appellate Court, it was not competent to the parties to litigate again in respect of the same matter. VENKATA NARASIMHA APPA ROW v. SOBHANADRI APPA ROW, 13 M.L.J. 134.

(57)— Enhancement — Res judicata—Fresh evidence, discovery of—Review of judgment.—The question of the right to enhance, having been decided in the plaintiff's favour in the former suit, it must be considered as res judicata in this suit for enhanced rent. The course for the defendant when he discovered fresh evidence not in his knowledge or power at the time of the first decision, is to apply for a review. BHUGGOBUTTY DABEA v. RAM KANNAYE LOHA, 1 W.R. 167.

(58)—Suit for enhancement—Dismissal—Re-assessment—Subsequent suit—Maintainability.—A suit for enhancement of rent was dismissed on the ground that the defendant held under an unexpired lease. Subsequently, Revenue authorities re-assessed the land. A second suit was then brought for enhancement. Held that the circumstances that the Government had increased the assessment will not alter the relative position of the parties and therefore the second claim was res judicata. MUHAMMAD GUL v. KARAM CHAND, 6 P.R. 1890, Rev.

(59)—Res judicata—Right of Brahmans of Mauza Sangal, Tahsil Kaithal to one-fourth of khudi kamini or hearth tax—Revision—S. 16 of Act XVII of 1887.—Held, that Brahmans of mauza Sangal, tahsil Kaithal, are entitled to get from the Lambardars of that place one-fourth of the khudi kamini or hearth tax collected by them, and their right to get it is res judicata by reason of a previous decision between the parties. Held, also that an order of a Revenue Court, which re-opens a res judicata question between the parties, is liable to be set aside on revision under s. 16 of Act XVII of 1887. BODHA RAM v. NET RAM, 4 P.W.R. 1911, Rev.=10 Ind. Cas. 299.

(60)—Suit to enforce award of, for partition—Alternative relief.—Where disputes as to partition of family properties had been submitted to arbitrators and an award had been made and some properties divided in pursuance thereof, but the partition was not completed on account of disputes, held, in a suit to enforce the award, that an alternative claim for partition cannot succeed, since there has been already a valid award. SUBBARAYA CHETTI v. SADASIVA CHETTI, 20 M. 490.

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(61)—Suit for partition—Award, effect of.—An award duly passed in accordance with a submission of the parties is equivalent to a final judgment. To give effect to it, the subsequent consent or approval of neither party is required. After an award made for a partition of joint property neither party can sue for partition, any more than he could, if a decree in a suit for partition had been passed. In order that the parties should be remitted to their previous rights, there must be positive evidence that both parties agreed that the former state of things should be restored. It is not enough that the award was not enforced or that even both the parties objected to it. KRISHNA PANDA v. BALARAM PANDA, 19 M. 290. [F., 20 M. 490, 33 C. 881=4 C.L.J. 162=11 Bom. L.R. 20=5 M.L.T. 220, 1 S.L.R. 236; R., U. B.R. 1906, 1st Quarter, Specific Relief, 30.]

(62)—Partition-proceedings — Determination of question of title—Res judicata—Act XIX of 1873 (N. W. P. Land Revenue Act), ss. 113, 114.—An adjudication of a question of title raised between parties to partition-proceedings under Act XIX of 1873, is a bar to a suit in the Civil Court between the same parties in respect of the same title, although, in some respects, such adjudication may have been defective or irregular. (2 A. 294 and S. A. No. 129 of 1881, decided on 27th July, 1881, F.) Such an adjudication, being one under s. 113 of the Act, can be questioned only in the manner provided by the subsequent sections, and not by separate suit. BATESHAR NATH v. FAIZUL-HASAM, 5 A. 280=A.W.N. 1883, 20.

(63)—Civ. Pro. Code (1882), s. 13— Decisions of questions of title in suits under s. 283, when operate as res judicata.—Where in his suit under s. 283 of the Code, the claimant-objector claims both in form and substance, against the judgment-debtor, a declaration of his title to the whole of the property, the title to which is in issue in the suit, a decree in such suit declaring the liability or non-liability of the property to attachment and sale in execution of the creditor's decree, must necessarily, unless the suit be decided on a ground not involving the question of title, decide and determine all questions of title on which the parties to the suit could rely, so that such decision would operate in any future suit between the parties as res judicata on those questions of title, though such subsequent suit might relate to property not in question in the prior suit under s. 283 of the Code. DWARKA DAS v. KAMESHAR PRASAD, 17 A. 69=A.W.N. 1895, 3. [R., 57 P.R. 1907=66 P.W.R. 1907.]

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(64)—Res judicata—Dismissal for default—Questions of title—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 13.—Where, in a former suit between the parties, issues had been fixed on the question of title, and the suit was dismissed, as the plaintiffs had failed to adduce evidence, which it was incumbent upon them to do, it must be held to have been dismissed on the merits, so that a subsequent suit for possession of the property on the same title would be barred as res judicata. KARTICK CHANDRAPAL v. SRIDHAR MANDAL, 12 C. 563. [R., 9 C.W.N. 679, 6 C.L.J. 362.]

(65)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 13 (=s. 11)—Dismissal of suit—Decree providing that fresh suit might be brought as to part of subject-matter—Res judicata.—Where a suit for possession of immoveable property was dismissed on the ground that plaintiff could not prove his title to the whole property, although he could to the extent of one-third, it was held that the decision was res judicata in regard to the one-third, although the decree declared that he could bring a second suit for it, and although this portion of the decree was not appealed against. SUKH LAL v. BHIKHI, 11 A. 187, F.B.=A.W.N. 1889, 13. (5 A. 595, 8 A. 282, 9 A. 155, A.W.N. 1885, 171, Expl.) [R., 6 Bom. L.R. 594; D., 17 C. 398.]

(66)—Decision in previous suit for possession, holding plaintiff's right barred by reason of an agreement — Whether res judicata in a subsequent suit, after bar of the agreement by time.—The present suit for possession was on a cause of action identical with that of, and between parties virtually the same as those in, a prior suit, in which, it had been held that the plaintiff was not entitled to possession, by reason of an agreemet to sell in favour of the defendant. The Subordinate Judge dismissed the present suit as res judicata by reason of the prior decision, but the District Judge held that the plea of res judicata was not sustainable. Setting aside the decree of the District Judge held the fact that the agreement to sell in favour of defendant was enforceable by him, at the time of the prior suit, but had become barred by time, at the time of the subsequent suit, could not prevent the operation of the bar by res judicata. ADAKKALAM CHETTIAR v. RAMALINGA CHETTIAR, 29 M. 320.

(67)—Civ. Pro. Code. s. 13—Suit for joint possession—Prior suit for same relief dismissed—Res judicata.—The plaintiffs had brought a suit against the defendants for exclusive possession, and, in the alternative, for joint possession of the plaint land. The questions raised in that suit having been brought into issue and evidence having been taken, the action was dismissed. The Court in dismissing the suit, though wrongly, did not reserve to the plaintiffs the right to bring a fresh action. The present suit was for joint possession of the same land. Held, that the dismissal of the former suit was a bar to the present suit. KUDRAT v. DINU, 9 A. 155=A.W.N. 1887, 5. (5 A. 595, 8 A. 282, 13 M.I.A. 160, R.) [F., 9 A. 690; Appr., 11 A. 187.]

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(68)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 13—Res judicata—Suit for declaration when plaintiff was entitled to possession—Passing of decree accordingly—Subsequent suit for possession—Mistake of law—Maintainability of suit.—There were two divided brothers. One of them, in conjunction with his senior wife and to the exclusion of the first defendant, his junior wife, took a son of the other brother in adoption. On the date of the adoption he made a settlement of some of his properties upon the first defendant for life and with remainder to his daughter by her. He died sometime after and was followed by his senior wife and the adopted son successively. Thereupon his brother, claiming as the reversionary heir of the deceased adopted son, sued for a declaration that he was entitled to succeed to the properties left by his brother, including the properties comprised in the deed of settlement made by him in favor of the first defendant and her daughter. The suit was dismissed as regards the properties comprised under the deed of settlement, and a decree was passed in respect of the other properties. On the death of the then plaintiff, his sons, the present plaintiffs, instituted the present suit for possession of the properties in respect of which a declaratory decree had been passed in the former suit. Plaintiffs contended that on the death of the adopted boy, the first defendant, being only in the position of adoptive step-mother, could not succeed to his properties and their father succeeded to those properties and on their father's death, the same devolved on them by descent as his heirs. They sought avoid the effect of the former decree on the ground that it proceeded on a mistake of law, namely, that the first defendant was entitled to succeed as adoptive mother and that their father was only presumptive reversioner on her death. Held, that the express adjudication in the former decree, that the plaintiff's father was entitled to succeed to the properties now sued for only on the death of the first defendant, necessarily implied that the first defendant and those claiming under her were entitled to the possession and enjoyment of the properties during her life-time. When such declaration was embodied in the decree itself, it was immaterial that no question or issue was actually raised and decided as to whether or not plaintiffs' father was entitled to succeed to the properties on the death of the adopted boy as his immediate heir, which was the claim on which the present suit was founded. The plaintiffs' claim could not be allowed and declared in the present suit and plaintiffs put into possession by ejecting defendants, without setting aside the prior decree. The present suit was therefore barred as res judicata, quite independently of explanation I or explanation II to s. 13, Civ. Pro. Code. KAVERI AMMAL v. SASTRI RAMIER, 26 M. 104=13 M.L.J. 58. [R., 13 M.L.J. 448, 9 O.C. 243, 30 M. 461=17 M.L.J. 250, 44 P.R. 1908, 26 M. 760.]

(69)—Decision as to point pleaded by one defendant and supported by another defendant to be res judicata between them.—The plaintiff, S, brought a suit against the defendant, C, for possession of a deceased Hindu's property on the ground that he became entitled to it by survivorship. The defendant, besides pleading adoption, custom, &c., also pleaded that, if his adoption was invalid, it was not the plaintiff but one R who was entitled to the property by right of inheritance. In consequence of this last plea, it would seem, R instituted a suit for possession of the property. The Subordinate Judge thereupon made R a defendant to the plaintiff, S's suit and S a defendant to her suit. In the suit of R, it was pleaded by the present defendant, C, that R had a better right than the present plaintiff, S. The Subordinate Judge held that R had no title as against the plaintiff, S, and accordingly decreed to claim of S and dismissed that of R who did not appeal. The defendant C appealed, making the plaintiff, S, alone a respondent. Held, that the question whether it was R or the plaintiff, S, who had a better title was res judicata between the plaintiff and R as well as between the plaintiff and the defendant, C. CHUNNI LAL v. SRIMANDIR DAS, 9 O.C. 125, B.

(70)—Civ. Pro. Code (1882), s. 13 (=s. 11, Present Code)—Res judicata—Suit by puisne mortgagee—Prior mortgagee's omission to plead his charge—Decree for sale—Subsequent suit on puisne mortgage, not maintainable.—If, in a suit by a subsequent mortgagee for sale of the mortgaged property, a prior mortgagee who is impleaded as defendant, fails to plead his prior mortgage and his right to have it redeemed, and a decree is passed for sale of the mortgaged property, but not subject to his prior charge, a subsequent suit by him on his prior mortgage will be barred by Expl. II to s. 13, Civ. Pro. Code. SRI GOPAL v. PIRTHI SINGH, 24 A. 429, P.C.=6 C.W.N 889=4 Bom. L.R. 827=29 I. A 118=8 Sar. 293. [F., 2 C.L.J 574; Rel. on, 31 C. 428; Expl., 1 C.L.J. 248, 1 C.L.J. 337; R., 7 O C. 152, U.B.R. 1906, 3rd Qr. C.P.C. 46, 36 C. 193=1 Ind. Cas. 913=5 C.L.J. 611, 12 C.W.N. 292=7 C.L.J. 504, 10 O.C. 146, 12 C.W.N. 862=8 C.L.J. 82=35 C. 979, 12 O.C 347, 9 C.L.J. 78=3 Ind. Cas. 686, 13 M.L.J. 448=26 M. 760; Appl., 17 M.L.J. 301=2 M.L.T. 330=30 M. 353.]

(71)—Dismissal of suit for possession—Second suit for redemption by same plaintiff—Res judicata—Act VIII of 1859, s. 2.—A suit for proprietary possession of a house having been dismissed on the ground that the defendant had been in adverse possession, the plaintiff brought a second suit for redemption against the same defendant, alleging that the house had been mortgaged to defendant by the plaintiff's father, and the defendant was in possession as mortgagee. Held, that, as the plaintiff had an opportunity of bringing the question of mortgage before the Court in the former suit and failed to do so, he could not rest a new suit on that ground, and that the second suit was barred by s. 2 of Act VIII of 1859. PARI MAL v. VASAND RAM, 33 P.R. 1877.

Res Judicata—continued.

——2 —Adjudications—continued.

(72)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, ss. 13, Expl. II, 42, 43—Dismissal of suit for redemption of mortgage—Subsequent suit for redemption of another mortgage.—Though the subject of res judicata was dealt with more comprehensively in Act XIV of 1882 than in the former Code, yet, ss. 13 and 43 of the Code of 1882 were not exhaustive of the law of res judicata. That law was the same under the Codes of 1877 and 1882 and was substantially the same as the English law. The expression "the subjects in dispute" in s. 42 signifies the jural relation between the parties to the suit, for the determination of which the suit was brought. The object of s. 42 was to require the plaintiff to bring forward his whole case as to the matter of litigation on the question of right involved in the suit and not to require him to unite all the causes of action which he may have against the defendant in respect of the corpus or object matter of the suit. Where several independent grounds of action are available, a party is not bound to unite them all in one suit though he is bound to bring before the Court all grounds of attack available to him with reference to the title which is made the ground of action. Plaintiff, claiming as the daughter's son and legal representative of the original owner of certain property, sued for redemption of an alleged usufructuary mortgage thereon. The defendants, while denying the plaintiff's relation to the owner as well as the mortgage sued upon, pleaded that a portion of the property had been usufructuarily mortgaged to them by the said owner and that the same had been sold to them subsequently. Without deciding the question of plaintiff's relation to the owner, the suit had been dismissed, on the ground that the mortgage sued upon was not proved. Thereupon, plaintiff brought the present suit substantially against the same defendants for redemption of the usufructuary mortgage admitted by the defendants in the previous suit. Held that neither of the decisions of the Privy Council in 11 B.L.R. 158 and 20 C. 79, nor Expl. II to s. 13, could be relied on as lending any support to the proposition that a plaintiff who sought to redeem a specific mortgage or to eject on a specific lease and failed in such suit, because the mortgage, or lease was not proved, was thereby precluded from seeking to redeem the same property or a portion thereof from another specific mortgage, or to eject, on the strength of his title, the person in possession. The real test was whether the cause of action, or the transaction on which the two suits were based, was the same, and not whether the transaction was sought to be established in different modes or by different means. Consequently, the present suit to redeem a mortgage other than that which formed the subject of the prior suit was not barred by s. 13, Expl II, or by s. 43 of the Code. RAMASWAMY AYYAR v. VAITHINATHA AYYAR, 26 M. 760 = 13 M.L. J. 448. (21 M 91, 22 M. 259, Disc.; 25 B. 189, Diss.) [Not F., 6 Bom. L.R. 594; F., 28 M. 406, 29 M. 153 = 16 M.L.J. 48, F.B.; Appr., 27 M, 102; 2 N.L.R., 94; R., 27 M. 380, 1 C.L.J. 337. 30 B. 395 = 8 Bom. L.R. 296, 55 P.R. 1907 = 96 P.W.R. 1907 = 65 P.L.R. 1908, 7 C.L.J. 504 = 12 C.W.N. 292, 31 M. 385, 12 O.C. 347.]

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(73)—S. 11, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908, Expl. IV—Suit on first mortgage—Order for unconditional sale—Non-disclosure of second mortgage—Subsequent suit on second mortgage — Bar.— Where a mortgagee holding two mortgages, under two separate deeds, of the same property, sued upon the first mortgage without disclosing the existence of the second mortgage, and obtained a decree for unconditional sale of the property, and where he subsequently sought, by a second suit, to enforce his second mortgage by sale of the same property, held that he was barred from suing a second time for sale of the property on his second mortgage, by s. 11, Expl. IV, Civ Pro. Code, 1908. DIWAN SAHIJRAM TAHILRAM v GAGUMAL DHARAMDAS, 4 S.L. R. 82 = 8 Ind. Cas. 216. (24 A. 429, P.C., 30 M. 353, F.)

(74)— S. 13, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Prior mortgage of entire share with possession—Second mortgage of two-third share—Suit for sale on second mortgage— Prior mortgagee party—No prayer for possession of one-third—Second suit for possession—Res judicata.—D, father of R K, R L and G, mortgaged his property to S with possession Subsequently R K and R L executed a simple mortgage of their two-third share to B. B brought a suit for sale upon his mortgage and offered to redeem S. He did not ask for possession of G's share after redemption. The Court gave him a decree ordering him to pay up S's mortgage. B applied for an order absolute praying for sale of G's share after redemption. The application was rejected. He then brought the present suit against G for possession of G's one-third share. Held that the suit was barred by the rule of res judicata inasmuch as the plaintiff in the first suit ought to have claimed possession of G's one third share, which could not be sold in execution of his decree against the other two-third. The cause of action for demanding possession had accrued when B brought the former suit. The right for the redemption of the entire mortgage, as then interpreted, had vested in B, and to demand possession was part and parcel of that right. BHURA v. GHURE, 8 A.L.J. 352. (26 B. 661, R.)

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(75)—Act IV of 1882 (Transfer of Property Act), ss. 90, 100—Suit to enforce vendor's lien by sale—Determination in that suit of vendee's personal liability—Application for decree over under s. 90.—In a suit for enforcemsnt of a vendor's lien by sale of the property, the Court further decided that " the defendants cannot, either personally or their other properties, be held liable for any part of the amount claimed. The property sold to them can alone be liable." Subsequently, the plaintiffs applied for a personal decree under s. 90 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. Held, that it was within the competence of the Court to determine the personal liability or otherwise of the defendants—if not, at that stage, to pass any decree under s. 90—and that the matter so determined was res judicata in respect of their subsequent application (14 A. 513, 11 A. 486, 13 A. 356, A.W.N. 1890, 142, R.) and it was none the less res judicata because the finding as to the personal liability of the defendants was not embodied in the decree. UTTAM ISHLOK RAI v. RAM NARAIN RAI, A.W.N. 1906, 44 = 3 A.L.J. 171 = 28 A. 365. (7 A. 606. R.)

(76)—S. 13, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, Res judicata—Suit for sale on a mortgage—Compromise by which mortgagee accepted a simple money decree—Second suit for sale barred.—A suit for sale on a mortgage was compromised on the terms that the mortgagee should accept a simple money decree for the amount of the mortgage-debt, and such a decree was accordingly passed. This decree not being satisfied, the mortgagee again sued for sale of the mortgaged property. Held that the suit was barred. PIARI LAL v. NAND RAM, A.W N. 1908. 265 = 5 A.LJ.. 732 = 31 A. 19 = 1 Ind. Cas. 561. (33 C. 849, F; 26 A. 223, A.W.N. 1905, 152, D.)

(77)—Consent decree—Effect.—A decree by compromise is as binding on the parties thereto and their privies as the decree obtained on contest. NICHOLAS V. ASPHAR, 24 C. 216. (In re South American and Mexican Co., L.R. 1895, 1 Ch. 37, The Bellcairn, L.R. 10 P.D. 161, 18 M. 1, 13 M.I.A. 497, R.)

(78)—Evidence Act, s. 13—Previous judgment inter partes determining question at issue—Res judicata—Act VIII of 1859, s 2.—Plaintiff in the present suit instituted in 1874, had sued the defendant in 1872 for alienating a piece of land alleged to belong to the gaddi of a Dhurmsala to which plaintiff claimed to be the apparent successor. A decree having been then made in favour of the plaintiff, he again sued the same defendant for making another alienation of a portion of the same land. It was held that the previous judgment of 1872 was a fact and a relevant fact (Indian Evidence Act, s. 13) on the issue between the parties whether the land belonged to the gaddi or not. The judgment therefore was relevant and cogent evidence that the property in question belonged to the gaddi and not to the defendant by acquisition. It was not therefore open to the defendant to again raise the defence that the land did not belong to the gaddi, the issue as to the ownership of the property having become res adjudicata between the parties. LACHMAN GIR v. LAHAR SINGH, 70 P.R. 1875.

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(79)—S. 13—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Res judicata—Manager of trust property must set out his title in an ejectment suit.—Plaintiff filed a suit to eject defendant in possession of a room used as a temple in a house belonging to the plaintiff. The plaintiff's title to the property was not set out in the plaint, and no question was raised whether the whole of the property was not the subject of a religious trust. He got a decree in the Court of first instance, but the Appellate Court came to the opinion that the house was impressed with a religious trust, and that the plaintiff's claim should have been based upon his right as manager. The plaintiff was offered an opportunity of altering his claim as manager under the will of the person who established the trust. That offer was not accepted and the Appellate Court dismissed the suit. The plaintiff subsequently brought another suit, as manager under the will of the owner of the house who established the trust, to eject the defendant from the room and to get an account of the profits and emoluments which the defendant had received as manager. Held, that the second suit was barred as res judicata, for the plaintiff in both the suits was asserting a purely personal right in his own personal interest, and it was a right which might and ought to have been put forward in the first suit. HARGOVAN RAMJI v. MULJI HARJIVAN, 11 Bom. L.R. 921 = 34 B. 416 = 4 Ind. Cas. 241.

(80)—Claim by a scheduled creditor against the insolvent after his discharge—Held, that a suit by the creditor of an insolvent in respect of debt entered in the schedule prepared in the insolvency proceedings of which he was well aware, was barred as res judicata. J.B. PENHEAROW v. PARTAB SINGH, 76 P.R. 1899 = 24 P.L.R. 1900, Notes of Judgments.

(81)—Procedure—Fresh suit for portion of claim disallowed--Extra-judicial advice—Small Cause Court — Jurisdiction — Chief Court—Powers of interference.—A portion of the plaintiff's claim having been decreed, and the remaining portion disallowed, the plaintiff on the advice of the Judge, brought a fresh suit for the disallowed portion. Held, on these facts (1) that defendant's answer of judgment recovered, would entitle him to a decree upon the production of the first record, for the cause of action was the same; (2) that the extra-judicial advice of the Judge had no effect whatever upon the right of the defendant. And with reference to the plaintiff's prayer for the exercise by the Chief Court of its discretionary powers under s. 28 of Act XI of 1865, held that the said discretion must be exercised on general principles in regard to established rules, and the Court had no power, upon a suggestion or a doubt of a possible failure of justice, to alter orders duly and formally made upon evidence heard. MOKURDAR MULL v. KHODABUX, 14 P.R. 1866, Civ. Ref.

Res Judicata*—continued.

—2.—Adjudications—continued.

(82)—Suit to set aside decree—Res judicata Review—Where a suit seeks the reversal of a former decree between the same parties on the allegation of the falseness of a fact which the former decree establishes as true, the suit cannot lie. The plaintiff's remedy is by way of review of judgment in the previous suit. MALAKSHAHBAZ v. MOWAZ, 31 P.R. 1868.

(83)—Suit to set aside a decree on the ground of fraud—Sole question raised in the suit already decided in proceedings under s. 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure—Res judicata.—In a suit to set aside a decree, as having been obtained against the plaintiff by fraud, substantially the only ground relied upon was that the suit had been improperly instituted against the plaintiff as of full age, when, in fact, he was a minor. This had been decided against the plaintiff in earlier proceedings between the parties under s. 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Held that the suit was not maintainable. NIDAR MAL v. RAUNAK HUSAIN, A.W.N. 1907, 191=4 A.L.J. 668=29 A. 608. (29 A. 212, F.; 21 C. 395, D.)

(84)—Suit to set aside deed of relinquishment —Dismissal of suit for default after partial enquiry—Subsequent suit by defendant to enforce the deed—Applicability of rule of—Civ. Pro. Code, ss. 13 and 372—Suit based upon registered deed of release—Limitation Act, arts. 49 and 116, applicability of.—The plaintiff in the suit alleged that he was desirous of publishing translations of certain Sanskrit religious books and that the defendant agreed to act as the Honorary Secretary in respect of the business of the publication. The publication became a lucrative business and was conducted entirely by the defendant as manager on behalf of the plaintiff. Subsequently, a deed of relinquishment was executed, by which the defendant acknowledged the plaintiff's title in the business and by which certain mutual agreements were entered into between them with regard to the accounts of the business. The defendant, however, declined to make over the stock of the business. Hence the present suit by plaintiff, for delivery to him of the books and publications in the possession of the defendant. The defendant contended that the deed of relinquishment was executed benamee and that the plaintiff's suit was barred by limitation. Prior to the institution of the plaintiff's suit, the defendant had brought a suit against the plaintiff for a declaration that the deed was benamee. The suit was, however, dismissed, after the examination of the present defendant as plaintiff in that suit in consequence of a report by his counsel that he had no instructions in the case, on a subsequent day to which it had been adjourned. The present plaintiff, therefore, contended that the defendant in consequence of the dismissal of the suit brought by him, was estopped from impugning the validity of the release deed. Held, the deed of relinquishment was in effect a contract and the acknowledgment that the property in the books and publications belonged to the plaintiff contained therein, implied that the property in suit was the property of the plaintiff. Hence the document fell under art. 116 and not under art. 49 and was not, therefore, barred. Held further, that the issue raised in the suit on behalf of the defendant had previously been an issue raised by him in the prior suit, i.e., as to whether the deed of relinquishment was or was not a benamee transaction. The matter in issue in this suit was directly and substantially in issue in the previous suit between the same parties. The question was heard and finally decided within the meaning of s. 13, Civ. Pro. Code, because the defendant having had an opportunity to prove his case failed to prove it. Consequently, the defendant was precluded from setting up the plea that the deed of relinquishment was not real but benamee and the provisions of s. 373, Civ. Pro. Code, availed him nothing (19 C. 159, 15 I.A. 186=16 C. 173, 2 C.W.N. 337=25 I.A. 102, D.; 6 B. 482, 8 A. 283, 23 W.R. 58, 10 M. 272, 13 M. I.A. 160, 12 C. 563, R.) But the Court having found, on the evidence in the case, that the plaintiff did not prove his case that the business was commenced by him with his funds, gave a decree for the plaintiff, for an account of the stock in trade of the business without costs. ROMA NATH DAS v. MOHESH CHUNDER PAL, 9 C.W.N. 679.

Res Judicata*—continued.

—2.—Adjudications—continued.

(85)—Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), decision as to person entitled to compensation in proceedings under, effect of.—The question, in this case, was with reference to the binding nature of a decision as to the rights of persons, who claimed compensation in a previous proceeding under the Land Acquisition Act, conducted on a reference made by the Collector owing to disputes between the said persons. Held, that an adjudication as to the right of persons claiming the compensation in accordance with the provisions of the Land Acqusition Act (X of 1870), concluded the question between the same parties was decided by the Judicial Committee and there is nothing in the present Act (I of 1894) to warrant its being held differently in regard to similar adjudications made under it. CHOWAKARAN MAKKI v. VAYAPPARATH KUNHI KUTTI ALI, 29 M. 173. (20 M. 69, D.)

(86)—Application under Administrator-General's Act, s. 63—Civ. Pro. Code, 1877, s. 13. —An application by petition under s. 63 of Act II of 1874 is a suit within the meaning of s. 13 of the Civ. Pro. Code (X of 1877) and is barred by the diposal of a similar former application in the same matter, though the order passed is capable of being reviewed. ELIZA SMITH v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE, 3 C. 340.

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(87)—Relief granted in former suit possible only upon certain findings—Subsequent suit, claim in, to be decided upon same findings —Applicability of rule of—Dismissal of suit for non-joinder after trial—Limitation Act, s. 14, applicability of—Dispossession caused by removal of decree, whether, would give fresh cause of action—Limitation Act, arts. 93, 142. —A, the purchaser of a three-fourths share in a certain village, sued to recover possession of the lands. P objected to the suit on the ground that he was the prior purchaser of the lands and that the suit was barred by limitation. The questions for decisions were, whether P was barred, by the rule of res judicata, from setting up his title to the lands and whether s. 14 of the Limitation Act could save the suit from limitation. Held, in a former suit between the parties concerning a portion of the same village the question of the genuineness of the sale deed to P was gone into by the Court of first instance and the Court of first appeal. Both the Courts found that the sale to P was antedated and a forgery and that the sale to A was true and supported by consideration. The High Court, on appeal, adopted these findings in granting a relief which was possible only on such findings. Therefore, it was not open for P in this suit to plead that his sale-deed was not antedated and not a forgery. Held, also, that the dismissal of a former suit between the parties about the same lands on the ground of non-joinder of parties was not for a cause of a like nature with defect of jurisdiction, under s. 14 of the Limitation Act. The dismissal of the suit was based on findings arrived at by the Court. The Courts were able to, and did, entertain the suit. Consequently, the finding of the former suit could not save the present suit from limitation. Further, art. 142 of the Limitation Act applied to the suit. The plaintiff could not treat his second dispossession, i. e., under the order of the Court in the first suit above referred to, restoring possession to P as giving him a fresh cause of action. Therefore, the suit was barred by limitation (5 B. 382, F.; 1864 W.R. 43, 8 W.R. 373, 22 B. 733, R.) Art. 93 of the Limitation Act would not apply to a suit for possession of immoveable property though the defendant pleads that the deed whereon the suit is based is a forgery. NARAYANAN CHETTY v. KANNAMMAL ACHI, 28 M. 338. (16 M. 311, 16 B. 186, F.) [R., 6 C.L.J. 621.]

(88)—Property sued for but excluded from decree for want of certificate under Pensions' Act —Subsequent suit for such property not barred by s. 43, Civ. Pro. Code—Intentional relinquishment or omission to sue.—In a previous suit by the plaintiffs, the present claim was expressly included by them, and after a decree in their favour by the Chief Court, the present defendant applied for and obtained a review on the ground that, under s. 4 of the Pensions' Act (XXIII of 1871), the Court was precluded from entertaining the suit which related to the property in the present suit, in the absence of a certificate under the Pensions' Act from the Deputy Commissioner authorising such suit being tried. On the authority of the certificate subsequently obtained, the present suit was instituted for the property excluded by the Chief Court from its decree. It was argued for the defendant that there was, in point of law, an omission to sue, because the plaintiffs had failed to obtain a certificate under s. 6 of the Pensions' Act, without which the Court was prohibited, by s. 4 of the Act, from entertaining a suit for the property claimed. The Commissioner proceeded upon the view that it was owing to want of ordinary diligence in complying with the law that the plaintiffs were not 'entitled to make' the present claim in the former suit, and that, therefore, they must be treated as having omitted to sue for it. But, the Chief Court was of opinion that, as they actually did sue for it, and as even if they had not done so, they were under no obligation either to postpone the claim which they were at the time entitled to make, or to relinquish what they might afterwards become entitled to sue for, and, as in the previous suit it was decided that the Court could not then entertain the claim, it was impossible to accept the proposition that, in the previous suit, the plaintiffs either omitted to sue for or intentionally relinquished the claim now made. MUHAMMAD RUSTAM ALI KHAN v. NAWAB MUHAMMAD AZMAT ALI KHAN, 64 P.R. 1882.

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(89)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13, Expl. IV—Res judicata—Suit for mesne profits by purchaser of equity of redemption, dismissal of—Subsequent suit by same person for same relief—Whether maintainable.—A suit brought by the purchaser of the equity of the redemption of a mortgage on the allegation that the mortgage-debt had been paid by the mortgagor before sale, against the mortgagee for mesne profits of the land for the harvest subsequent to the purchase, had been dismissed on the ground that no cause of action had arisen as redemption had not been effected. Held, in a subsequent suit by him against the mortgagee for the same relief after redemption, that the claim was res judicata under s. 13, Expl. IV of the Civ. Pro. Code, as the previous suit was between the same parties and for the same matter as in the subsequent suit, and the plaintiff was not allowed to withdraw his claim with permission to sue again, and as the former decision not having been appealed against, became final and barred the subsequent suit. PRABH DYAL v. DEVI DAS, 69 P.R. 1883.

(90)—Res judicata—Civ. Pro. Code (Act X of 1877), s. 13, Expl. IV—Previous suit between same parties, erroneous dismissal of—Subsequent suit for same relief barred.—It is equally opposed to the intention of s. 13 of the Civ. Pro. Code, to allow a decision that a suit is barred by a positive rule of law, to be treated in a subsequent suit as not binding the parties to that decision, as it is to allow a decision upon any question of fact which was directly and substantially in issue in a former suit to be so treated. Where a suit by landlords to recover possession of their lands from their tenants, has been dismissed by a Court of first instance on the erroneous ground that a previous decision has made the matter res judicata, the landlords are barred from bringing a fresh suit for the same relief, such dismissal being a final decision of matter directly and substantially in issue between the parties, within the meaning of s. 13 of the Civ. Pro. Code. Expl. IV, and the same question cannot be again tried between the parties otherwise than by an appeal from the first Court's decision. UMRA v. DITTA, 95 P.R. 1883.

Res Judicata—continued.

——2. —Adjudications—continued.

(91)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13, Expl. III, and s 373—Dismissal of suit "in present form," effect of.—A suit by an auction-purchaser of immoveable property in execution of a decree having been dismissed "in the present form" on account of the non-production of the sale certificate by the plaintiff, held that such dismissal was a decision of the suit in the sense of s. 13, Expl. III, that the use of the words "in the present form" did not amount to the permission to sue again contemplated by chap. XXII of the Civ. Pro. Code, and that such dismissal was a bar to a fresh suit. GANESH RAI v. KALKA PRASAD, 5 A. 595 = A.W.N. 1883, 140. [Diss., 8 A. 282; Expl., 11 A. 187, F.B.; R., 9 A. 155.]

(92)—Execution of decree—Decision of objections raised by judgment-debtor.—In answer to an application for execution of a simple money decree, obtained against her deceased husband, the widow objected that the property sought to be taken in execution was in her possession by consent of the heirs of her husband in lieu of dower; but this objection was not pressed, and was disallowed, and no appeal was preferred from the order disallowing it. Held, that the same objection could not be raised again at a subsequent stage of the execution of the same decree. ABADI BEGAM v. ABDUL GHAFFAR, A.W.N. 1906, 70 = 3 A.L.J. 198. (24 A. 282, F.; 12 A.W.N. 238, D.)

(93)—Plaintiff not paying into Court expenses of commission as ordered—Dismissal of suit—Nature of order of dismissal—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, Ch. VII—Fresh suit on the same cause of action—Res judicata—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 13.—Where a suit is dismissed because of the failure of the plaintiff to pay into Court, as ordered by it, the expenses of a commission which he had applied for, the order of dismissal is not one passed under any of the provisions of Ch. VII of the Civ. Pro. Code for want of attendance of the parties, but must be considered to be a decision of the suit on the merits, both parties being present. Such an order is only open to appeal in the regular course of procedure, and another suit on the same cause of action is barred by the rule of res judicata. RAM GULAM SINGH v. HARNANDAN SINGH, A.W.N. 1885, 168.

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(94)—Ss. 13, 258, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Application under s. 258, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, to have adjustment out of Court recorded—Dismissal on merits—Subsequent suit to recover money paid out of Court— Res judicata.—A judgment-debtor applied under s. 258, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, to have an adjustment out of Court recorded. The Court dismissed the application on its merits, and that order was upheld in appeal. The judgment-debtor thereafter brought the present suit, to recover the money alleged to have been paid by him by way of adjustment out of Court. Held, that the provisions of s. 11, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908 (=s. 13, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882) applied and that the suit was barred as res judicata. MANURATH SINGH v. RAJ KUMARI AND RAM SINGH, U.B.R. 1909, 2nd Quarter, Civil Procedure, 31. (11 I.A. 37, 13 W.R. F.B. 69, 21 C. 437, 5 M. 397, 18 M. 26, R.)

(95) — Purchase pendente lite — Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13 — Res judicata. — A purchaser, pendente lite, is bound by the decree passed against the persons through whom he claims, and cannot, in a fresh suit, claim to go behind the decree, on the ground, that it was wrong in so far as it included the property he had purchased. HUKM SINGH v. ZAUKI LAL, 6 A. 506 = A.W.N. 1884, 177.

(96)—Adjudications held to be no res judicata —"Former suit" —S. 13, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882. —The expression "former suit" in s. 13 of the Code means a previously instituted suit and cannot apply to a suit instituted subsequently to the suit in which the bar is pleaded. GHAMANDI LAL v. BHANA MAL, 57 P.R. 1895.

(97)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act X of 1877), ss. 10, 12—Res judicata Suit dismissed for default no bar to subsequent suit for same subject-matter.—A suit which was dismissed for default under s. 110 of Act VIII of 1859, was held to be no bar with reference to s. 12 or s. 13 of the Civ. Pro. Code, to the institution of a subsequent suit by the same plaintiff against the same defendants and relating to the same subject-matter. It was no bar with reference to s. 12 because it was not pending at the date of the institution of the second suit, nor was it a bar with reference to s. 13, as the matter in issue in it was not finally decided between the parties within the meaning of that section, inasmuch as the Court could, on the application of the plaintiff, have altered the decision than passed. GULABA v. RAI SINGH, 104 P.R. 1883.

Res Judicata—continued.

—2 —Adjudications —continued.

(98)—Refusal to consider a question.—Where the Court refused to consider a question at all, there is no adjudication of it, and so, the matter is not really res judicata. DROBOMOYI GUPTA v. C. T. DAVIS, 14 C. 323. [R., 3 O.C. 273.]

(99)—Matter substantially in issue in previous suit, refusal by Court to decide, whether amounts to final determination within s. 13, Civ Pro. Code.—This was a suit for declaration denying the right of occupancy of the defendant in certain land. Defendant contended that, as his right to an occupancy tenure was expressly challenged by the plaintiff in a former case, and was put in issue, it must be assumed to have been decided against plaintiff, notwithstanding that the Court expressly left the question undecided. Held that the contention was unsustainable inasmuch as, though the point was substantially in issue, it was never decided at all. BAGO v. DIWAN, 25 P.R. 1884. (45 P.R. 1879, 84 P R 1880, R.)

(100)—Refusal to consider issues—No res judicata.—Where the Court refused to consider a question at all, there is no adjudication of it, and so the matter is not really res judicata. KOKAN MAL v. MIR ALAM, 51 P.R. 1891.

(101)—Res judicata—Matter pleaded as constituting res judicata not "heard and finally decided" in the former suit—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13, Explanation II.—A plea of res judicata cannot be maintained where the issue pleaded as constituting res judicata, though raised in a former suit, were not adjudicated upon by the Court in that suit. YAKUB ALI v. DHANPAT, A.W.N. 1892, 238. [Dist., 3 A.L.J. 198=A.W.N. 1906, 70.]

(102)—Effect of appeal from judgment containing finding of lower Court—Finding not gone into by Appellate Court—Civ. Pro. Code, Act VIII of 1859, s. 2; Act X of 1877, s. 13, Expln. 4.—When the judgment of a Court of First Instance upon a particular issue is appealed against, that judgment ceases to be res judicata, and becomes res sub judice; and if the Appellate Court declines to decide that issue, and disposes of the case on other grounds, the judgment of the first Court upon that issue is no more a bar to a future suit than it would be if that judgment had been reversed by the Court of Appeal. NILVARU v. NILVARU, 6 B. 110. [F., 11 A. 148=A.W.N. 1889, 42, 5 C.L.J. 653, 1 S.L.R. 171; R., 9 B. 75, 15 B. 370; D., 4 N.L.R. 98.]

(103)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13—Res judicata—Finally decided.—N and U were brothers. N died first and his share of the property was enjoyed by his wife. After the death of U, his sons hypothecated their interest in the property to the defendant. The grandsons of U instituted a suit in 1865 against the defendant for a declaration that their shares of the property were not liable for the decree obtained by the defendant against their father. The suit was dismissed in 1866. In that suit, the grandsons of U, the plaintiffs stated that N's wife was in possession of her share of the joint property. N's wife died. Then the plaintiffs again instituted the present suit against the defendant claiming to be entitled to the whole of the estate of N as his heirs. The defendant pleaded that the suit was barred by res judicata and contended that N was joint with U and N's property also was affected by the decree of 1866. Held that the suit was not barred by res judicata inasmuch as the question whether the father of the plaintiffs (the judgment-debtor in the previous suit) had acquired then any interest in the property of N, was not heard and finally decided in that suit. NATHU SINGH v. BHUPAT RAM, A.W.N. 1883, 190.

Res Judicata—continued.

—2.—Adjudications—continued.

(104)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13—Res judicata—Question in issue but not heard and finally decided in a previous suit.—The appellants sued their vendor and the respondent for the possession of the property purchased by them under a sale deed. The respondent contested the suit on several grounds, one of which was his right of pre-emption. The Court framed an issue to the effect whether the respondent was a proprietor and could in that suit claim the right of pre-emption. The Court decided that the respondent should sue separately for pre-emption, as the matter could not be decided in that case. The respondent then brought a a suit for pre-emption against the appellants, who urged that this suit was barred by the provisions of s. 13 of the Code of Civil Procedure and was res judicata. Held, that the question whether the respondent had a right of pre-emption in respect of the property was not heard, and finally decided in the former suit and that, therefore, the present suit was not res judicata. SHAMBHU NATH v. AMBIKA PRASAD, 3 O. C. 273.

(105)—Erroneous decision of question of law—Re-trial of the same question.—The erroneous decision, by a competent tribunal, of a question of law directly and substantially in issue between the parties to a suit does not prevent a Court from deciding the same question in a subsequent suit according to law. (5 M. 304, 11 M. 396, 28 M. 517, 22 B. 669, 32 C. 749, R.) The Court cannot, of course, allow the correctness of the decree given in the former suit to be questioned in the latter suit, on the ground that the former suit was decided under a mistake of law; nor can it pass a decree, the effect of which would be to set at naught, in whole or in part, the decree in the former suit. MANGALATHAMMAL v. NARAYANASAWMY AIYAR, 17 M.L.J. 250=30 M. 461. (26 M. 104, 29 M. 235, 32 C. 749, R.) [F., 18 M.L.J. 548=4 M.L.T. 233; R., 20 M.L.J. 20=6 M.L.T. 313=3 Ind. Cas. 701.]

(106)—Alternative finding, whether operates as res judicata.—A sold to C 47 bighas of land. B sued to pre-empt 23 bighas on the allegation that A owned only that extent of land. In the course of inquiry, it was found that, even according to B's allegation, A's share was about 28 bighas. In the final judgment, the finding was:—"Whether B's allegation was true or C's allegtaion was true, the suit must fail:"—Held, that the finding could not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between B and C as to the extent of A's share. HARPAL SINGH v. SHEO MANGAL, 14 Ind. Cas. 161.

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(107)—"Res judicata"—Question of law.—An error committed by a competent tribunal in deciding on a question of law, which was directly and substantially in issue between the parties to a suit, does not compel the Court to repeat its error on every subsequent occasion when the same question arises between the parties. PARTHASARADI v. CHINNA KRISHNAN, 5 M. 304 [Diss., 15 A. 327, 1 C.W.N. 687, 28 C. 318, 8 O.C. 37; Not F., 14 C.P.L.R. 109; F., 22 B. 669, 28 M. 517=15 M.L.J. 466, 30 M. 461=17 M.L.J. 250; Appr., 11 M. 393; R., 31 B. 128, 32 C. 749=9 C.W.N. 466=1 C. L.J. 176, 22 B. 669, 14 M. 312, 2 O.C. 261, 26 B. 25=3 Bom. L. R. 450, 44 P.R. 1908; D., 15 M. 327, 29 M. 225=16 M.L.J. 136.]

(108)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 13—Ex parte judgment not final decision.—An ex parte judgment is not a final decision within the meaning of s. 13, Civ. Pro. Code. SELLATHAMMAL v. OLIVER, 9 M.L.J. 60. (18 M. 164, D.; 7 C. 23, 8 C. 23, 8 C. 275, F.)

(109)—Ex parte decree, Non-execution of—Effect—Admissibility in subsequent suit against defendant—Decree whether binding on question common to both suits—Res judicata—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13, Expl. IV.—If a defendant does not think it worth while to contest the suit but allows the plaintiff's evidence and the judgment passed upon it to go unquestioned, he has no right afterwards to dispute the correctness or the value of the judgment, merely because he chose to absent himself. An ex parte decree, if it was never executed, cannot be held to have become final within the meaning of Expl. IV to s. 13 of the Civ. Pro. Code, as it remained open to the defendant to have it set aside. But the decree is admissible in evidence against the defendant in a subsequent suit between the same parties on a question common to that and the former suit, and it is not enough for the defendant to say that he absented himself from the trial of that question. He must at least show grounds which would have justified the Court in setting aside the ex parte decree, had he applied for that, or that owing to some fraud, or some irregularity in the proceedings, it should not be treated as binding on him. MUSSAMMAT MEHARI v. GUNDA SINGH, 78 P.R. 1883.

(109-a)—Ex parte decree, Non-execution of—Whether bar to subsequent suit between same parties—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13, Expl. IV.—An ex parte decree which was never executed cannot bar a subsequent suit between the same parties, as the Court which passed the ex parte decree could have altered it. HASAN MUHAMMAD v. SHAH MUHAMMAD, 78 P.R. 1883, Note. [R., 78 P.R. 1883.]

(110)—Res judicata—Withdrawal of former suit—Permission of Court.—A suit is not barred by the principle of res judicata because, in a former case between the same parties, and on the same cause of action, the plaintiff, after the evidence had been recorded, obtained the Court's permission to withdraw the case, with permission to bring another suit. SREEMOTEE MONA BIBEE v. OOMED ALI, 16 W.R. 276. (12 W.R. P.C. 43, D.)

(111)—S. 13, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Mere filing of an appeal—Effect—Appeal dismissed on ground of limitation alone—Effect—Pendency of proceedings by way of appeal—English Law—Law in India.—The mere filing of an appeal does not vacate or annul the judgment appealed against. A judgment still liable to appeal, which has not yet been appealed from or an appeal which is actually pending, cannot operate as res judicata, during the interval preceding the appeal or while the appeal is actually pending. (5 C. 246, 11 A. 148, R.) Where an appellate Court dismisses an appeal on the ground of limitation alone, the appellant is not in a better position than one who is heard but fails on the merits. In such a case the decision of the lower Court on the points actually decided binds the parties to the suit. (6 B. 110, 7 C. 381, 8 C. 631, 22 B. 216, D.) In English Law even the pendency of proceedings by way of appeal is no answer to a pleading of estoppel by judgment, though it may be ground for applying for a stay of proceedings For India Explanation IV to s. 13, Civ. Pro. Code (1882), lays down a different rule. RAM CHANDRA NARAIN, 4 N.L.R. 98.

(112)—Remand—Appeal from order of remand—Effect of order in appeal—Res judicata.—An order of High Court, on appeal from an order of remand, setting aside the order of remand, being merely of an interlocutory kind, cannot have the effect of res judicata upon any point that may be urged in appeal on the merits. Any affirmance in such order, of the lower appellate Court's findings on the merits must be considered merely as an obiter dictum. DEOKISHEN v. BANSI, 8 A. 172, F.B.=A.W. N. 1886, 35. [R., 14 A. 348, 15 A. 413, 10 O.C. 350.]

(113)—S. 13, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Res judicata—Rival suits—Same judgment in both suits—One appeal sufficient.—When two suits are filed by two persons in respect of the same subject-matter (e.g.) for pre-emption, against the same defendant, and they are impleaded in each other's suit, and the same issues are fixed in each and the suits are heard together and disposed of by one judgment and decree, it is not necessary for the party, against whom the decree is passed, to file an appeal in each case. It is sufficient for enabling the Court of appeal to give a binding decision with respect to any matter common to the cases, if that party appeals in his own suit, though such matter has been decided adversely to him in the other suit also. The adverse decision, in the other suit not appealed against, does not preclude the Court of appeal from entering into the question in each party's appeal. JUGAL KISHORE v. CHAMMO, 151 P.L.R. 1905, F.B.=85 P.R. 1905. (83 P.R. 1888, 10 A. 123, 16 C. 233, 23 P.R. 1897, 31 P.R. 1898, 8 P.R. 1904=104 P.L.R 1903, R.) [R., 57 P.R. 1907, 88 P.R. 1908.]

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(114)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13 — Two suits decided by same judgment—Appeal in one suit, if barred by decision in the other suit—"Former suit," what is—Hearing two suits together —Irregularity.—A Mahomedan died leaving two widows. Each of them brought a suit, for the recovery of her dower, from the estate of the husband, making the other a party defendant. One of the widows, M, having claimed certain houses to be her exclusive property, and the other, J, denying it, an issue was raised in each of the suits as to whether those houses belonged to the estate of the husband, so as to be liable for the dowers claimed, or, were the separate property of M. The two suits were, with the consent of the parties, tried together and decided by one and the same judgment, though two separate decrees were made, the Court holding that the houses were M's property. J appealed only from the decree in her suit, and it was contended on behalf of M, that the judgment in her suit, not having been appealed from, became final, and was a bar to the trial of the issue as to the ownership of the houses in the appeal preferred by J, in her suit. Held, per Ghose, C.J., agreeing with Harington, J. (Rampini, J., contra). That there was no separate judgment in M's suit to operate as a bar by way of res judicata to the trial of the appeal in J's suit. (16 C. 233, Rel. on; 11 A. 148, 24 M. 350, R.) The two suits ought not to have been heard together. The proper procedure indicated. MARIAMNESSA BIBEE v. JOYNAB BIBEE, 10 C.W.N. 934=4 C.L.J. 149=33 C. 1101. [Diss., A.W.N. 1908, 211=4 M.L.T. 172; F., A.W.N. 1907, 245=4 A.L.J. 587=29 A. 730.]

(115)—Civ. Pro. Code, Act XIV of 1882, ss. 13, 158—Dismissal of previous suit for non-production of succession certificate.—The dismissal of a previous suit on the same cause of action, on the ground that no succession certificate was produced, is not a decree under s. 158 of the Civ. Pro. Code. The non-production is an omission which precludes the Court from entering into the merits at all. The dismissal therefore does not operate as res judicata. PETHAPERUMAL CHETTI v. MURUGANDI SERVAIGARAN, 18 M. 466=5 M.L.J. 189.

(116)—Suits between different parties—Nature same—Evidence same—Appeal to High Court in one suit and to District Court in others—Effect of decision in High Court—Mere guidance to Judge.—Three cases brought by three parties claiming shares in the same land as against a zemindar were tried together. In one, the amount being beyond the limit, the appeal lay to the High Court; in the two others, the appeal lay to the Judge. The two cases before the Judge were postponed to await the decision of the High Court. After such decision, the Judge on that "precedent" decided the other two cases. Held, that though the decision of one case was not a pre-adjudication binding in law on the other two claimants, yet it would go far to guide the Judge in his finding on the facts. G. GREGORY v. HURREE KISHORE ROY, 3 W.R. 2.

(117)—Adverse finding against party—Decree not based on such finding— In subsequent suit, such finding not res judicata.—Where, in a suit by a creditor against the debtor's brother, the latter pleaded, among other contentions, that he had become divided from his deceased brother and the Court held that that plea was not right, though it dismissed the suit as against him on the ground that he had not benefited by the loan, in a subsequent suit between the parties the decision in the prior suit on the question of partition was not res judicata. SURYABHAN v. ISHWAR, 7 C.P.L.R. 139. (11 C. 301, 13 C. 17, 18 C. 650, F.)

(118)—Res judicata — Non-suit.—This suit was brought at a time when the present defendant had been unsuccessful in the lower Court in a separate suit involving the whole of the property claimed, which suit had been decided in the Civil Court in the plaintiff-appellant's favour, and while the appeal was still pending in the High Court. By the decision of the High Court above alluded to, the position of the parties was reversed, and a decree was given in favour of the present defendants. Held, that the lower Court was wrong in non-suiting the plaintiff in this case, and that the case should have been allowed to proceed subject to the eventual decision of the separate appeal in the other case, as the present plaintiff's position (which he lost by the decision of the High Court) might be again restored to him by the Privy Council. With reference to the peculiar state of the parties, the case was, by consent ordered to be restored to the file of the lower Court pending the decision of the Privy Council. GUNPUT LOLL v. KHEDOO LOLL, 1 W.R. 365.

(119)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11 —Res judicata — Different subject-matter. — Two houses A and B were purchased under a sale deed, dated 15th June, 1881. There was a previous litigation between the same parties in respect of the house A, in which it was decided that the house A belonged beneficially to M and not to S. The present suit was brought in respect of the house B: Held, that the decision in the previous suit did not operate as res judicata, inasmuch as the question of title to the house B was never determined, nor was it in dispute in the previous litigation. KHALIK YAR KHAN v. MOBARIK BEGAM, 7 Ind. Cas. 388.

Res Judicata*—continued.

— 2.—Adjudications —continued.

(120)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, ss. 13 (=s. 11) 43 (=O. II, r. 2, new Code)—Res judicata.—Where a suit for setting aside an order made in one district, for sale of plaintiff's interest in property therein, was dismissed, held, that it did not bar another suit to obtain relief against an order in another district for the sale of property therein belonging to him, or of other property not included in the order of sale against which the former suit was directed. RADHA PRASAD SINGH v. LAL SAHAB RAI, 13 A. 53 =17 I.A. 150, P.C.=5 Sar. 600. [R., 15 A. 359, 16 A. 390, 24 B. 251, F.B., 10 C.W.N. 40.]

(121)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11—Res judicata—First suit between the parties deciding on merits, but failing on account of non-payment of deficiency in Court-fee—Second suit for trial on the same merits—Practice.—In a previous suit between the parties, there was a decision on the merits; but the suit failed on the ground that the plaint had been undervalued and the plaintiff had refused to pay the additional Court-fee. A subsequent suit having been brought between the parties for determining the same issues, the decision in the first case was pleaded as res judicata: Held, that, the failure of the first suit on non-payment of additional Court-fees was sufficient by itself for the dismissal of the previous suit; and that, therefore, the findings on the issues on the merits not having been necessary for the decision of the suit, could not have the force of res judicata. IRAWA LAXMANA MUGALI v. SATYAPPA SHIDDAPPA MUGALI, 12 Bom. L.R. 766.

(122)—Ss. 13 and 43, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Partners suing for specific sum of money—Previous partnership suit wherein adjustment of accounts effected by Amin.—Where some partners, parties in a previous partnership suit, brought a suit for the recovery of the amount due to them under an Amin's adjustment, in the previous suit, held, by Norris and Bannerjee, JJ. (Rampini, J., contra), that the suit was not barred. DHANI RAM SAHA v. BHAGIRATH SHAHA, 22 C. 692.

(123)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 13—Former suit—Res judicata—Proceeding under Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), does not bar subsequent suit.—A decision in a proceeding under the Land Acquisition Act, cannot be treated as a decision in a former suit, so as to operate as res judicata with reference to the property other than that to which the enquiry under that Act related. BASANT DEO v. KESHAL DEO, 2 Ind Cas. 853. (12 C. 484= 42 I.A. 188, 24 A. 112, D.; 34 C. 466, 20 M. 269, 7 C. 406=9 C.L.R. 117, R.)

(124)—Decree in prior suit allowing interest —Interest claimed in subsequent suit for arrears

Res Judicata*—continued.

— 2.—Adjudications —continued.

—Res judicata.—There was no decision in the previous litigation between the parties to this suit on the question of the plaintiffs' title as assignee of the Government Revenue. There was no previous adjudication of the defendant's liability to pay interest on the arrears and there was, therefore, no bar of conclusiveness such as res judicata precluding the agitation of that question in the present suit. (Per Bannerji, J., Aikman, J., dissenting.) CHANDI PRASAD v. MAHARAJAH MAHENDRA MAHENDRA SINGH, 23 A. 5=A.W.N. 1900, 177.

(125)—Claim for future mesne profits—Judgment silent thereon—Res judicata—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13—Interest—S. 211, Civ. Pro. Code.—Where in a suit for possession of immoveable property with past and future mesne pofits, possession is decreed with past profits, and the decree is silent as to future profits, the claim for the latter must be held to have been refused, but such constructive refusal applies only to profits accrued up to the date of the decree, and not to those which thereafter accrued before delivery of possession. A suit for such profits would not be barred under s. 13, Civ. Pro. Code. RAMABHADRA v. JAGANATHA, 14 M. 328=1 M.L.J. 171. [Overruled, 15 M.L.J. 462, F.B.; F., 32 C. 118; Diss., 21 A. 425, F.B.; R., 25 B. 115.]

(126)—S. 13—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 — Res judicata — Suit for possession not barred by previous suit by the same plaintiffs for mesne-profits.—A suit for possession is not barred, by a suit previously instituted by the same plaintiffs for mesne-profits. (31 M. 405 11 M. 151, F., 11 M. 210, R.) The right to mesne-profits may exist without any right to possession, and the cause of action need not necessarily be one and the same. MUTHUKARUPPA KOTHAN v. SITHA VEERAYYA CHETTY, 5 M. L.T. 220.

(127)—Finality of decision—Civ. Pro. Code, (Act X of 1877), s. 13.—Where, in a prior suit between the same parties, with respect to the same land, the lower Courts decided the suit on the question of title as well as possession, but the High Court, on appeal, decided the case on the question of possession alone, without entering into that of title, held, the question of title was still open between the parties and not barred under s. 13 of the Civ. Pro. Code, as the decision, in the previous suit, of the lower Courts, on the question of title, could not be said to be final. GUNGA BISHEN BHUGUT v. ROGHOONATH OJHA, 7 C. 381= 9 C.L.R. 34. [Appl., L.B.R. 1893—1900, 544; R., 3 O.C. 273, 25 B. 115, 5 C.L.J. 653; D., 4 N.L.R. 98.]

(128)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1877, ss. 331 and 332 —Specific Relief Act, s. 9—Res judicata.—The investigation, under s. 331 of Civ. Pro. Code, before its amendment, was to proceed as in a suit under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act; only there was an appeal from the decree under

Res Judicata—continued.

—2.—Adjudications—continued.

s. 332. The question tried in such a suit was only one of possession and, notwithstanding the decree, the parties may proceed to try the title in a subsequent suit. CHINNASAMI PILLAI v. KRISHNA PILLAI, 3 M. 104. [R., 14 B. 627.]

(129)—Decision in pre-emption suit that no real sale took place—Whether bars adjudication upon that point in subsequent suit by vendee for possession against vendor—Right of one of two or more defendants to appeal from a decree adversely affecting him, even in cases whether plaintiff's claim is unsuccessful.—The decision in the pre-emption suit that no real sale had taken place is no bar to an adjudication upon that point in a subsequent suit by the vendee for possession against the vendor, though both the latter were co-defendants in the pre-emption suit. (3 A. 152, F.) In certain cases it may be open to one of two or more defendants to appeal from a decree which adversely affects him, even in a case when the plaintiff's claim is unsuccessful. But the question 'who may appeal' is determinable by the commonsense consideration that there can be no appeal when there is nothing to appeal about. DHIAN SINGH v. MUSSAMMAT BELAS KAUR, 42 P R. 1912 = 123 P.W.R. 1912 = 154 P.L.R. 1912 = 16 Ind. Cas. 127. (9 C.W.N. 584, R.)

(130)—Mortgage — Decree for redemption—Fresh suit again for redemption if barred.—In this suit for redemption of a mortgage, the defendant pleaded that a previous suit in which redemption of the same mortgage had been decreed to the plaintiff was a bar to the present suit. Held that the second suit was not barred by reason of the previous suit. (86 P.R. 1877, F.) NATHU SINGH v. RURA, 14 P.R. 1881. (86 P.R. 1877, R.) [F., 93 P.R. 1908, F.B. = 164 P.L.R. 1908; R., 100 P.R. 1905 = 16 P.L.R. 1906; D., 43 P.R. 1907.]

(131)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 13—Res judicata—Redemption—Second suit for—Conditional decree in first suit not given effect to.—Where a mortgagor brings a suit for redemption and obtains a conditional decree, but, omits to fulfil the condition imposed upon him, he is not debarred from bringing a second suit for redemption, unless the decree lays down that, if he fails to fulfil these conditions, the property will be sold or he will be debarred of all his rights to redeem. NAKTA RAM v. CHIRANJI LAL, 7 A.L.J. 185 = 5 Ind. Cas. 269 = 32 A. 215.

(132)—Mortgage—First suit by second mortgagee for sale—Discharge of first mortgage by second mortgagee under his decree—Second suit by second mortgagee to sell property mortgaged to first mortgagee—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13, explanation II.—When a second mortgagee sued for sale of property mortgaged to him and offered, and was allowed by the decree, to redeem a prior mortgage, and realised his mortgage money by sale of the property mortgaged to him, held that a second suit by him, to sell the rest of the property under the first mortgage, which was discharged by him, was not barred by the rule of res judicata as laid down in explantion II of s. 13 of the Civ. Pro. Code. AJUDHIA PRASAD v. HAR DAYAL, 3 A.L.J. 541 = A.W.N. 1906, 249.

Res Judicata—continued.

—2.—Adjudications—continued.

(133)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13—Res judicata—Mortgage—Redemption suits—Held, by the Full Bench, following the principle of stare decisis, that it is open to a mortgagor who has brought a suit for redemption and obtained a decree to bring a second suit for redemption. DHANPAT MAL v JHAGGAR SINGH, 164 P. L.R. 1908, F.B = 93 P.R. 1908 = 133 P.W.R. 1908. [F., 100 P.R. 1909.]

(134)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 13—Res judicata—Suit for redemption of mortgage and also on title—Question of title excluded from consideration—Dismissal of suit—Subsequent suit on the strength of lease and title, whether sustainable.—A brought a suit for redemption of a mortgage and based his suit also on his title as Jenmi. The question of title was excluded by the Court from consideration, and the suit was dismissed, the Court having found that the property was held only under a lease. The present suit was then brought on the strength of the lease and also on title. The lease was not proved, and as to title the lower appellate Court found the claim was barred as res judicata. Held, the fact that A prayed for relief on title in the previous suit for redemption makes no difference, as the Court has excluded the question from consideration, and treated the suit solely as one for redemption of mortgage, and that the present claim based on title is not barred as res judicata. KUNDUR CHIRUKANDAN v. MANNATH KANDI CHATHU, 7 M.L.T. 354 = 5 Ind. Cas. 262.

(135)—Ss. 13, 43, Expl. II, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Res judicata—Dismissal of suit for redemption of a mortgage—Second suit for redemption of another mortgage of the same properties—Suit not barred.—The dismissal of a previous suit for redemption upon an alleged mortgage is no bar to another suit for redemption on another mortgage in respect of the same properties, under the provisions of ss. 13 and 43, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882. RAM SAHAI v. AHMADI BEGAM, 8 A.L.J. 47 = 9 Ind. Cas. 53. (29 M. 153, F.)

(136)—Suit for redemption—Dismissal for non-payment of mortgage-money before suit—Second suit for redemption on full payment not barred—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 92, 93.—A decree in a suit for the redemption of a usufructuary mortgage, not being a conditional decree for redemption under s. 92 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, but simply dismissing the suit on the ground that the mortgagor had not, prior to its institution, paid or tendered the whole of the mortgage-money at a time authorised by the deed, cannot have the effect of foreclosure or of res judicata so as to bar a second suit for redemption, where the deed has expressly authorised redemption on payment of the mortgage-money in a particular month in any future year after due date, and the mortgagor has tendered the whole of such money in that month between the dismissal of the first suit and the institution of the second. DONDH BAHADUR RAI v. TEK NARAIN RAI, 21 A. 251 = A.W.N. 1899, 50. [R., U.B.R. 1897—1901, Vol. II, 582, 3 O.C. 371, 24 A. 44 = A.W.N. 1901, 194, 7 A.L.J. 185; D., 25 M. 300.]

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(137)—Ex parte decree ordering repayment of money due under mortgage—Subsequent redemption suit.—An ex parte decree obtained by the mortgagee, for the recovery of the amount due under the mortgage, does not bar a subsequent suit by the mortgagor to redeem the property, on the ground that the mortgage amount has been paid off from the usufruct. LAKSHAMAYA v. APPADU, 7 M. 111.

(138)—Samudayam, uralers and tenants—Samudayam a mortgagee in possession.—In previous litigation between the samudayam, the uralers, and the tenants, the opinion was expressed in judgments of the High Court, that the position of the Samudayam was that of a mortgagee in possession. But, as it appeared that such opinion was not expressed as to the construction of the document, it was held not to be res judicata when the question of the proper construction of the document arose. KRISHNAN v. VELOO, 14 M. 301, F.B. [F., 14 M. 312.]

(139)—Res judicata—Civ. Pro. Code, 1877, s. 13—Sale subject to mortgage.—In execution of a decree against the purchaser of a certain property subject to a mortgage, such property was attached and sold, and the balance of the sale proceeds, after satisfaction of the decree, was paid over to him. In two suits brought by the mortgagees against the mortgagors, the purchaser above-mentioned, and the auction-purchaser, for the interest on the mortgage which was payable annually, it was decided that the purchaser was primarily and personally liable for the same, as he had received the balance of the sale proceeds. The purchaser having subsequently refunded the sale proceeds into Court, held in a subsequent suit by the mortgagees to recover the principal and interest by sale of the mortgaged property, that whatever might have been the rights and relations of the parties so long as the sale proceeds remained with the purchaser, they underwent a change when such proceeds were refunded, and the "ratio decidendi," of the previous decisions having ceased to exist, the mortgagee was not precluded, from claiming in the first instance the sale of the mortgaged properties, by the previous decision that the purchaser was primarily and personally liable. RATAN RAI v. HANUMAN DAS, 5 A. 118 = A.W.N. 1881, 139.

Res Judicata—continued.

——2.—Adjudications—continued.

(140)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 13—Finally decided—Res judicata.—Where, in a previous suit by the plaintiff for possession of certain mortgaged lands, the first Court found that there had been no default in payment of interest, a condition precedent to the plaintiff's right to possession, and that full consideration had not been paid, and, on appeal, the Divisional Judge held that there had been no default in payment of interest, and dismissed the appeal in limine, but also remarked in the judgment that the plea of consideration (want of consideration) for the mortgage did not seem sound—Held, that the trial of the question regarding the alleged failure to pay consideration was not barred by res judicata. SULTAN v. HAKIM RAI, 10 P.L.R. 1902.

(141)—Res judicata—Abatement of suit—Fresh suit—Civ. Pro. Code, 1859—Civ. Pro. Code, 1877, s. 371.—Property which had been previously mortgaged was sold in execution of a money decree against the mortgagor. The mortgagee, subsequent to this sale, brought a suit upon the mortgage, against the mortgagor and the auction-purchaser. The purchaser having died in the meanwhile, no steps were taken to make his heirs or representatives parties to the suit in his place. The decree was passed and the mortgagee purchased the property in execution. He sued now to recover possession of the property from the representative of the purchaser at the former execution sale. Held that the previous mortgage suit was not a bar to the present suit against the defendant, the representative of the purchaser in execution of the money decree, as the present suit was under the Procedure Code of 1859, which did not contain the express provision which is to be found in the Code of 1877, which provides that when a suit abated, as regards the defendants or one of the defendants, no fresh suit could be brought on the same cause of action. NISTARINI DEBI v. BROJO NATH MUKOPADHYA, 10 C.L.R. 229.

(142)—Partition suit — Incidental determination of question of partition in previous suit for possession—Res judicata.—Where the previous suit brought to establish the plaintiff's sole right to a certain land, which the defendant also claimed as his share obtained by partition, was dismissed, the Court holding that no partition had taken place, held that a second suit for partition of the field, including the land for which his former suit had been instituted, was not barred by the previous suit. SHIVRAM v. NARAYAN, 5 B. 27.

(143)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 13—Res judicata—Dismissal for want of cause of action—Partition of mahal—Refusal by Revenue Court to partition—Suit to establish right—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.—A applied to the Revenue Court for the partition of a village. B objected to it on the ground that he was entitled to the entire mauza by the right of primogeniture. A was therefore referred to the Civil Court for the

Probate—continued.

—8.—Revocation of Grant—continued.

Probate, at the last Will of the testator, so far as regards all property in respect of which a grant of probate is necessary, and it must also recognize the executor to whom probate has been granted by the Probate Court. A grant of probate is not in the nature of a summary proceeding, to be contested by a regular suit in the Civil Court. It must only be contested by a suit in the Court out of which the grant issued, and it must be contested before the Court sitting as a Court of Probate, and not in the exercise of its ordinary Civil jurisdiction. Under the Succession Act X of 1865, jurisdiction in matters of probate is given only to the District Court and the High Court. Therefore the former has jurisdiction to revoke probate, where it is proved that the making of the document propounded as a Will, or of any part of it, has been procured by fraud or coercion. Persons who seek to question a Will, must prove an interest to entitle them to a locus standi in Court, and the objection for want of interest should be taken at the earliest stage of the proceedings. MAYHO v. WILLIAMS, 2 N.W.P. 268. [Appr., 4 C. 360=4 C.L.R. 175; R., 6 C. 460, U.B R. 1897—1901, II, 533.]

(15)—Will—Validity—Right to oppose grant of probate--Recorder'sCourt--Errors of procedure —Jurisdiction—Revision.—A person who is not the next of kin, and who has no interest in the estate of a testator, has no right to oppose the grant of the probate, or dispute the validity of the will. [R., 6 C. 429.] The mere fact that there may be errors of procedure of a serious character in a trial before a Recorder does not justify the High Court in saying that in pronouncing against the validity of a will upon an investigation which actually took place, the Recorder did so otherwise than in the exercise of jurisdiction vested in him. The case is therefore not one in which the High Court has any power of interference. In the matter of MEE TSEE, 15 W.R. 351.

(16)—Party cognisant of proceedings in action for probate or letters of administration, and not objecting to grant, right of, to re-open whole matter—Withdrawal of caveat, after suit partly contested, order for grant of probate made on—Effect on party cognisant of proceedings.—If a party is cognisant of proceedings for probate or letters of administration and chooses to stand by and allow the proceedings to be concluded in his absence, he will not be allowed to come in afterwards and have the grant revoked or the proceedings re-opened. It is only in exceptional cases, under certain circumstances and upon certain conditions, such a party will be allowed to re-open the whole matter. (Newell v. Weeks, 2 Phil. 224 , Ratcliff v. Barns, 2 Sw. and Fr. 486, 5 B. 638, R.) An order for grant of probate, though made upon a withdrawal of the caveat filed in the proceedings after the case was partly contested, is binding on a party who is cognisant of the proceedings and chooses to stand by. (Wytcherley v. Andrews, L.R. 2 P. and D. 327, D.) In the goods of BHUGGOBUTTY DASI, 27 C. 927=4 C. W. N. 757.

(17)—Will—Probate—Revocation—Minor—Estoppel by conduct--Probate andAdministration Act (V of 1881), s. 50.—Though an infant has a right to apply, after he comes of age, for revocation of Probate, obtained by consent, where he was not cited in the Probate proceedings, yet he may be barred by acquiescence and delay for a long time, or, by subsequent ratification of the disposition of the Will, from putting the executor to the proof of the Will in solemn form, or from contesting its genuineness. If the Court thinks that Probate should be revoked, then it ought to give the executor an opportunity of proving the will in solemn form in the presence of the petitioner, without having fresh proceedings instituted in the matter of Probate. NALINISUNDARI GUPTA v. BIJOY KUMAR ROY CHOWDHURY, 11 Ind. Cas. 277.

(18)—Will of contested genuineness—Letters of administration with copy of Will, whether equivalent to probate.—There was no judicial finding by the lower Court that the Will, the genuineness of which was contested in this case, was a true and genuine one ; nor was there any proof, in solemn form as required by law. Even if it be admitted that the letters of administration with copy of the Will annexed, that had been granted in this case on the renunciation of the executors named in the Will, were equivalent to probate, it could not be deemed to be sufficient to prove the Will itself. The case was therefore sent back for the Judge to find as to the genuineness or otherwise of the Will. TEEN COWREE DOSSEE v. HUREEHUR MOOKERJEE, 8 W.R. 308. [R., 2 B.L.R. 11.]

(19)—Revocation of probate on the ground of grantee's immoral conduct—Succession Act, s. 234—Course to be adopted under such circumstances.—That the grantee of probate of a mahant's will, under which he became the head of the religious institution, had, since taking charge of the office, taken to an immoral course of conduct, resulting in his exclusion from the community of mahants, would be no ground for a revocation of the probate under s. 234 of the Succession Act. [R., 26 B. 792.] Obiter :—The proper course to take for depriving such a person of his office would be to bring a suit under the Religious Endowments Act, or any other suit, for a declaration that he had disqualified himself and if, in that suit, a decree was obtained and duly certified to the Court which granted probate, that Court would, no doubt, direct the revocation of the probate. In the matter of the petition of MOHUN DASS v. LUTCHMUN DASS, 6 C. 11=6 C.L.R. 265.

(20)—Revocation of probate—Procedure by Court—Burden of proof—Succession Act (X of 1865), s. 234.— Upon an application under

Probate—continued.

——8.—Revocation of Grant—continued.

s. 234, Succession Act, for revocation of probate of a will alleged to be made by the applicant's husband, upon the grounds that no citation was published, that the applicant was a minor living under the care of the grantee of the probate and having no opportunity of understanding his mala fides and improper acts, and that the will was spurious and forged, the Court ought to give her an opportunity of proving her ignorance of the prior proceedings, order a new trial as to the factum of the will, and not dismiss the petition after throwing the burden of proving the entire case on the applicant. DINTARINI DABI v. DOIBO CHUNDER ROY, 8 C. 880. [D., 2 P.L.R. 1902.]

(21)—Revocation of probate, proceedings for—Costs.—The costs in a proceeding for revocation of probate should be assessed as in a miscellaneous proceeding. GARABINI DASSI v. PRATAP CHANDRA SHAHA, 4 C.W.N. 602. (4 C.W.N. 600, R.)

(22)—Will contested—Probate—Proof—Notes of evidence—Inofficious Will—Onus of Proof—Will disinheriting heir.—Where there is contention about a will, the proceedings should take, as nearly as may be, the form of a regular suit as if brought by the person propounding the will; and where the Judge grants probate, he should take down the evidence of the witnesses in the language in ordinary use in proceedings before the Court, and not mere memoranda of the evidence. Where a will is inofficious in character disinheriting an heir, it is not merely incumbent upon the party propounding the will to prove it affirmatively, but the proof of it lies completely upon him. It is not enough in such cases to bring the testator on the stage with the will ready made and with pen and ink in hand to prove the attachment of his signature to it. There must be proof of circumstances that the testator not merely signed the will, but that he knew what he was doing, that he was making a will, and that he did all that he did, with his eyes open. SARODA SOONDEREE DOSSIA v. MUDDUN MOHUN SHAHA BHAJUN, 24 W.R. 162. [R., 6 C.L.R. 176.]

(23)—Probate—Waste by executor—Surety—Right of surety to be discharged—Revocation of probate—Appeal—Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), s. 86.—In probate cases a surety seeing the person for whom he is surety wasting the estate while he is powerless to interfere by suit, not being a beneficiary in the estate, should, upon general equitable principle, have the right of being discharged from his liability as regards future transactions. The surety is entitled to protection against the executor, if it be shown that the latter is wasting the estate, and thereby rendering the former liable on his surety-bond. The course to be adopted, on waste by the executor being established by the surety, is to call on the executor to furnish other security, and, on his doing so, to discharge the original surety in respect of future waste. Should the executor fail to furnish other security, the probate should be revoked and the surety discharged. (19 B. 245, 29 C. 68, R.) An order to revoke probate, if security is not furnished, is appealable. S. 86 of the Probate and Administration Act does not mean that only those orders which are appealable under s. 588 of the Code of Civil Procedure can be appealed. SHAHABUD-DIN v. FAZAL DIN, 89 P.L.R. 1902=52 P.R. 1902. (11 C.L.R 589, 17 C. 48, 21 C. 539, 29 C. 68, R.) [R., 8 P.R. 1906.]

Copy—Proof—Admissibility—Probate granted in Australia—Secondary evidence—See WILL—GENERAL, 11 Ind. Cas. 261.

——9.—Miscellaneous.

(1)—Order of Recorder of Rangoon—Final decree—Original civil jurisdiction.—An order of the Recorder of Rangoon rejecting an application for probate is a final decree passed by him in the exercise of original Civil jurisdiction. ESOOF HASSEM BOOPLY v. FATIMA BIBI, 24 C. 30=1 C.W.N. 8.

(2)—Court Fees Act(VII of 1870), sch. II, art. 1—Application for probate.—An application for probate of a Will comes under the provision made by law for common applications and petitions in sch. II, art. 1 of Act VII of 1870, and such an application does not require a stamp proportionate to the value of the property covered by the Will. In the matter of JUDDONATH SHADHOOKHAN, 15 W.R. 40.

(3)—Suit for probate—Caveators assailing whole of Will on ground of undue influence—Probate granted—Objection to particular clause of Will in subsequent suit.—In a suit for probate, on the caveators assailing the whole of the Will on the ground of undue influence, the Probate Court, overruling that objection, granted probate. It is not competent for the caveators, in a subsequent suit, to show that any particular clause in the Will has been inserted through undue influence. NUZHATUDDOWLA ABBAS HOSSEIN v. MIRZA KURRATULAIN, 31 C. 186. [Reversed, 33 C. 116, P.C.=32 I.A. 244=1 C.L.J. 594=9 C.W.N. 938=7 Bom. L.R. 876 =2 A.L.J. 758=15 M.L.J. 336.]

(4)—*S.*58, Succession Act (X of 1865)—Application for probate of will wherein pencil alterations made before execution — Photographic facsimile of will attached to probate — Practice.—On an application for probate of a will wherein the testator had made certain pencil alterations before execution, the Court directed that a photographic facsimile of the will, taken in the presence of the Registrar and of the executors, be attached to the probate, as the pencil alterations were likely to fade away in course of time. The provisions of s. 58, Act X of 1865, do not apply to this case. In the goods of BROUGHTON, 29 C. 311=6 C.W.N. 477.

(5)—Burden of proof.—Whenever circumstances exist, which excite the suspicion of the

Probate—continued.

——9.—Miscellaneous—continued.

Court, and whatever their nature may be, it is for those who propound the will to remove such suspicion and to prove affirmatively that the testator knew and approved of the contents of the document. SHAMA CHARN v. KHETROMANI, 2 Bom. L R. 568=27 C. 521=4 C. W.N. 501=7 Sar. 638.

(6)—Proof of will — Execution — Mental capacity of testator.—For the purpose of a valid will it is necessary that the testator should be of sound mind. Thus, he who propounds a will undertakes to satisfy the Court not only that the testator made it but also that he was of sound and disposing mind. Very slight proof of this mental capacity is ordinarily necessary where the proof of the factum is regular. But there is no presumption of law in favour of soundness of mind : and the Court, in each case on the evidence given by both sides, ought not to affirm that a document is the will of a competent testator. unless it believes that it really is so. NAWALMAL v. DHANU, 5 Bom. L.R. 327.

(7)—Revocation of—Summary proof of will—Proof in solemn form, when not grantable--Hindu widow—Locus standi—Probate and Administration Act, 1881, s. 50.—Though ordinarily upon summary proof of a will (proof in "common form" in England), the Judge ought, upon objection, to have the will regularly proved, proof in solemn form per testes will not be required on the application of one who had had notice, or had been aware of the previous proceedings before the grant of probate issued, and had then abstained from coming forward. (5 B. 638, R.) [Appr., 18 C. 45.] The widow of a Hindu testator, though there are sons living, has yet sufficient interest in the estate to entitle her to come in under s. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act and to call upon the executor to prove the will in solemn form per testes. BRINDA CHOWDHRAIN v. RADHICA CHOWDHRAIN, 11 C. 492. [D., 4 C.W.N. 602, 2 P.L.R. 1902; R., 10 C.L.J. 263, 12 C.W.N. 808=8 C.L.J. 489.]

(8)—Estoppel by probate.—Where the controversy is between the heirs claiming adversely to the will and a person who claims a beneficial interest under the will, the grant of probate does not create an estoppel. MIRZA KURRATULAIN v. NAWAB NUZHAT-UD-DOWLA, 7 Bom. L.R. 876=9 C.W.N. 938=1 C.L.J. 594, P.C.=33 C. 116=15 M.L J. 336=2 A.L J. 758 =32 I.A. 244=8 Sar. 855.

Application for by executor—Application for letters of administration by his legal representative.—See CIV.PRO. CODE. 1908, O. XXII, r. 1, 36 C. 799=3 Ind. Cas. 995.

Probate proceedings — Appeal— Court-fee.—See COURT FEES ACT. 1870, sch. II. arts. 1, 11, 9 M.L.T. 314=21 M.L.J. 481=9 Ind. Cas. 538.

Probate—concluded.

——9.—Miscellaneous—concluded.

Of whole will does not become ineffectual by degrees—See EXECUTOR, 1 Ind. Cas. 248.

Supersedes guardianship order—See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890, s. 17, cl. (2), 15 C.W.N. 558.

The devisee under the will of a deceased Hindu living in the United Provinces need not take out Probate before applying for Succession-Certificate— See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT, 1889, s. 1, cl. 4, 2 A.L.J. 126.

Grant of—for portion of a will—Application for probate — Will of an illiterate person — Insertion of provisions without testator's knowledge—See WILL (GENERAL), 1 C.L.J. 109.

See WILL (ATTESTATION), 3 N.W.P. 32.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881).

[REP., IN PT., ACT VII OF 1889. REP. IN PT. AND AM. ACT XII OF 1891. AM., ACT VI OF 1889, SS. 11 TO 17 ; AM., ACT II OF 1890, S. 16; AM., (IN LOWER BURMA), ACT VI OF 1900, Ss. 47, 59, 60, 62, 64, 69. AM., ACT VIII OF 1903, S. 3. S. 156. REP., ACT IX OF 1908. DECLARED IN FORCE—IN THE SONTHAL PARGANAS (S. 154). REG. III OF 1872, S. 3; AS AMENDED BY REG. III OF 1899, S. 3; IN BRITISH BALUCHISTAN, REG. I OF 1890, S. 3, IN UPPER BURMA (EXCEPT THE SHAN STATES), ACT XIII OF 1898, S. 4.]

See ADMINISTRATOR.

See EXECUTOR.

See LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION.

See PROBATE.

(1)—Provisions of Civ. Pro. Code inconsistent with those of Probate and Administration Act—Procedure.—If the provisions of Civ. Pro. Code are inconsistent with those of the Probate and Administration Act, those of the Code must prevail, as it is the later enactment. ESOOF HASSHIM BOOPLY v. FATIMA BIBI, 24 C. 30=1 C.W.N. 8.

(2)—Reference to English practice.—The provisions of Act V of 1881 differ very materially from the law in England. So reference to English practice is hardly a guide here. SURAT SUNDARI BARMANI v. UMA PROSAD ROY CHOWDHRY, 31 C. 628=8 C.W.N. 578.

(3)—Unsigned and undated will—Grant of Letters or Probate.—Probate or Letters of Administration may be granted even though the will is unsigned and undated. GOPALDAS v.MT. BANDAN, 15 C.P.L.R. 101. (24 B. 8, F.)

(4 and 5)—Scope of Act--Repeal.—The Probate and Administration Act, 1881, being a law made by an authority in India, is subject to the powers of repeal or amendment granted to the local legislature by s. 5 of the India Councils Act, 1892. LAXMI v. ABA, 10 Bom. L.R. 924 = 32 B. 364.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(6)—Will—Document by a shebait appointing another shebait.—Where the shebait of an endowed property executed a document appointing another person as a shebait for the purposes of carrying out the sheba and other rites after the death of the former: Held, that it was not a will and probate of such a document could not be applied for. CHAITANYA GOBINDA PUJARI ADHICARI v. DAYAL GOBINDA ADHICARI, 9 C. W.N. 1021 = 32 C. 1082. [R., 1 Ind. Cas. 216; D., 10 C.L.J. 644 = 3 Ind. Cas. 380.]

(7)—Suit by executor or donee under will—Probate of will not necessary condition precedent to filing of suit.—A donee or executor under a will to which Act V of 1881 applies is not precluded from filing a suit as such donee or executor by reason of his not having taken out probate of the will. THAKURAIN v. RAMCHARAN, A. W. N. 1895, 87. [F., 18 A. 260.]

(8)—Co-heir — Partition suit—Suit against administrator.—A co-heir cannot sue the administrator for partition of the estate when letters of administration have been obtained to the estate of an intestate—but must prosecute his claim in the manner provided by the Probate and Administration Act. MA HMYIN v. MA OHN GAING, U.B.R. 1902-1903, Vol. II, Civil, Probate and Administration, 1. [R., 2 U.B.R. 1902--1903, Probate and Administration, 3 U.B.R. 1910, 4th Quarter, Civil 61.]

(9)—Step-son—Rights of succession—Practice in granting Letters of Administration.—Step-son succeeds to the estate of the step-mother (save in the case of certain ancestral property of hers) in preference to the collateral blood relatives. Merits of parties to be considered in granting letters-of-administration. NGA SON v. MA NYO, U.B.R. 1897-1901, Vol. II, 531. (U.B.R. 1897—1901, 66, F.)

(10)—Ownership of property by married couples—Devolution—Letters of administration whether and when can be granted to any person other than survivor of married couple—Proper person to administer estate.—Under the Burmese Buddhist Law respecting the ownership of property by married couples, and the devolution of such property on the death of one of them, the widow or widower, as a general rule, is the proper person to administer the estate of the deceased. Though an absolute rule must not be laid down that in no circumstances should letters of administration be granted to any other person, as, for instance, a step-daughter of the widower, it would require very special reasons to justify such a grant. Where a widower is in possession of the estate as the natural and proper representative of the deceased widow, any person who claims a share of the estate can sue him for it, and the fact, that letters of administration have not been issued, is no obstacle to such a suit. NE WIN v. MA AUNG GALE, 4 L.B.R. 293.

(11) Locus standi of a legatee, having only a life interest in the income of fractional portion of the testator's estate, to apply for Probate or Letters of Administration with the will annexed--Amendment of application for Probate to one for grant of Letters of Administration.—A testator left by will the income of a portion of his immoveable property, for life, to his two widows. As to the rest of his property, he died intestate. One of the widows applied for Probate of the will, the execution of which was not in dispute. The applicant was not named as executrix in the will. Held, that (1) the applicant, being neither an executrix in the will nor by necessary implication, was not entitled to get Probate: (2) Under both Indian Law and English practice, universal legatees are entitled to Letters of Administration with the will annexed and not to Probate: (3) A legatee, who has bequeathed only a life interest in the income of a fractional part of the testator's property, is not, as such, entitled to ask either for Probate or for Letters of Administration with the will annexed and, under these circumstances a prayer for grant of Probate cannot be altered to one for obtaining Letters of Administration. (4) The grant of Probate does not give the grantee possession of the property to which it relates, but only the right to sue for its possession. MEHAR CHAND v. MUSSAMMAT LACHHMI, 15 P.W.R. 1907. (22 W.R. 874, and 7 B.L.R. 563, D.; 15 M. 360, 19 C. 582, R.)

(12) — Revocation of Probate — Omission of special citation — Burden of proof. — If the person, on whom a citation ought to have been served, had knowledge of an application for probate, mere omission to serve a special citation on him will not, in itself, be a sufficient ground for revoking the grant of a probate; the burden of proving the existence of such a knowledge lies on the person alleging it. The person applying for revocation of a probate need not prove that no notice was served on him and that he had no knowledge of the application for probate or of proceedings thereunder. Mere omission, on the part of a grantee of a probate to file an inventory or account is not a sufficient ground for revoking a probate, unless the omission was wilful or without reasonable cause. When a District Judge is satisfied that a summary grant of probate should be recalled for want of special citation, he should call upon the applicant for the grant to prove his right in solemn form but should not revoke the grant directly. PREMCHAND DAS v. SURENDRA NATH SAHA, 9 C.W.N. 190. [F. & R. 10 C.L.J. 263 = 3 Ind. Cas. 178.]

(13)—Act V of 1881—"Just cause for revocation of probate"—Absence of special citation—

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

Minority of the person complaining of absence of such citation.—In proceedings in which probate of a will is granted, the mere absence of a special citation, is not, when the person, to whom a citation has not been issued, is otherwise aware of the proceedings, "a just cause" for revocation of probate. The fact that the person, who complains of absence of such citation, is a minor, would not make any difference. NISTARINY DABYA v. BRAHMOMOYI DABYA, 18 C. 45. [D., 2 C.W.N. 100; R., 10 C.L.J. 263.]

(14) Appearance of signatures—Neither party applied to have originals transmitted or to have photographs taken of them—Evidence in favour of Will.—Where the genuineness of a will, alleged to have been executed by a deceased testator, two days before his death, was in question, the High Court, considering it to have been proved by the evidence that the alleged testator was incapable, by reason of illness, of signing the will as firmly as it purported to be signed, and finding that the signatures were not genuine, reversed the decree of the first Court, which had granted probate. Though on appeal, there was no view of the signatures, neither party having applied to have the originals transmitted or to have photographs taken of them, their Lordships found that the evidence did not warrant the conclusion that on the day on which the will purported to have been executed, the testator physically and mentally was unable to execute it; and that there was sufficient evidence to establish the genuineness of the will and the capacity of the testator to make it, and that the evidence for the defence was not sufficient to destroy the petitioner's case on neither of of these points. BAMA SUNDARI DEBI v. TARA SUNDARI DEBI, 19 C. 65=18 I.A. 132, P.C.=6 Sar. 66. [R., 27 B. 626, Rat. Un. Cr. C. 779.]

(14-a)—Person claiming under the will of Hindu, right of, to sue without taking probate.—From the fact that the Probate and Administration Act, 1881, contains no provision similar to those contained in s. 187 of the Indian Succession Act, which are to the effect that a right as executor or legatee under a will cannot be established in any Court without obtaining probate of the will, it must be presumed that, save where the Hindu Wills Act, 1870, extending the said s. 187 to Hindus, is in force, it is not obligatory on a person claiming under the will of a Hindu to obtain probate of the will before instituting his claim. KANHAIYA LAL v. MUNNI, 18 A. 260=A.W.N. 1896, 44. (17 C. 272, A.W.N. 1895, 87, F.) [F., 2 N.L.R. 123; R., 2 O.C. 33.]

(15)—See ACT II OF 1874, s. 31, 21 C. 732.

(16)—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s.50, 30 C. 1044.

(17)—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 16, sub-s. (3), 5 O.C. 307.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(18)—See ENGLISH LAW, 31 C. 628=8 C. W.N. 578.

(19)—See LETTERS PATENT, HIGH COURT, 1865—N.W.P., s. 10, 17 A. 475=A.W.N. 1895, 104.

(20)—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—WILL, 1 Bom. L.R. 715=24 B. 8.

(21)—Practice in testamentary matters before Act V of 1881—See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 5 B. 638.

(22)—Scale of costs for awarding pleader fees in proceedings under.—See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 10 Bom. L.R. 1197=33 B. 256.

(23)—Judgment of Court of Probate, a judgment in rem—Proceedings under—Previous decision under Guardians and Wards Act VIII of 1890, if res judicata—See RES JUDICATA—ADJUDICATIONS, 16 M. 380=3 M.L.J. 121.

(24)—See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT, 1889, ss. 4, 17, 17 M. 14.

(25)—S. 2—"Sikh," a "Hindu" — S. 331, Act X of 1865 — Brahmos whether Hindus — Unorthodox practice — Effect. —The meaning of the term "Hindu" in the old and new Acts discussed. A Sikh is included in the term Hindu as used in Act V of 1881. So probate of the Will of a deceased Sikh testator can, under that Act, be granted. (15 I.A. 87, 6 I.A. 15, 9 M.I.A. 195, 2 Morley's Digest, 22, R.) In s. 331, Act X of 1865, the term "Hindu" is used in the same wide sense as in the earlier enactments, and includes "Sikhs". A Sikh or Hindu by becoming a Brahmo does not necessarily cease to belong to the community in which he was born. Lapses from orthodox practice in matters of diet and ceremonial observances cannot have the effect of excluding from the category of "Hindu" in Act V of 1881, one who was born within it, and who never became otherwise separated from the religious communion in which he was born. BHAGWAN KOER v. BOSE, 31 C. 11, P.C.=30 I.A. 249=7 C.W.N. 895=5 Bom. L.R. 845=13 M.L.J. 381=184 P.R. 1903=135 P.L.R. 1903=8 Sar. 543.

(26)—S. 2—"Hindu" whether includes Sikhs —Alteration after execution of will—Right to question validity of trusts in a will by Probate Court.—On a comparison of the Acts passed by Legislature regarding intestate and testamentary succession and administration the term "Hindu" in this section must be meant to include "Sikhs." A person born a Sikh or a Hindu and so long as he does not renounce Hinduism or Sikhism, does not cease to be so because he indulges in practices as to eating and living reprobated by other Hindus or Sikhs or professes to be a Brahmo. An alteration in a will even if made after execution does not invalidate it if attested by the testator. The question of validity of trusts contained in a will cannot be decided by a Probate Court. BABU JAGENDRA CHANDRA BOSE v. RANI BHAGWAN KAUR, 63 P.R. 1900. [R., 39 P.R. 1903.]

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(27)—Ss. 2, 4 — Instrument purporting to be will, probate not grantable of, where no property passes under.—On an application by the executors under the will of a testator who was a member of an undivided Hindu family, the properties concerned having passed by survivorship to the other members of the joint family, held, having regard to the definition of a will in the Probate and Administration Act, s. 2, probate should not be granted of such a document in the form of a will which admittedly deals with no property of the testator and where, under s. 4 of that Act, nothing could pass to the executor. The mere fact of guardians having been appointed by such a document is not sufficient of itself to bring the document within the Act or to render probate necessary. BUKTHAWAR v. MULL SOWCAR, In re 23 M. 133.

(28)—S. 3—Probate—Will--Document intended to take effect partly in the life-time of the executant and partly after the executant's death. —There is no objection to one part of an instrument operating in praesenti as a deed and another in futuro as a will. SETH CHAND MAL v. LACHMI NARAIN, A.W.N. 1900, 1=22 A. 162.

(29)—S. 3—Grant of probate to trustees as executors according to tenor.—The mere circumstance that the property is left by the will to trustees, without words referring to them as executors, would not prevent those persons being granted probate as executors according to the tenor, if, among the duties to be discharged by them under the will, there are included such duties as executors have to perform; but that should appear from the will. N. APPACUTTY MUDALI v. MUTHUKUMARAPPA MUDALI, 16 M.L.J. 558=30 M. 191.

(30)—S. 3— Nuncupative will by Hindu—Probate.—It is more in accordance with the intention of the legislature and spirit of the law that probate should issue, although the Will is an oral Will by a Hindu. GOKUL CHAND v. MANGALSEN, 25 A. 313=A.W.N. 1903, 63. (24 B. 8, F.)

(31)—S. 3—Will—Probate—Tamliknama—Dedication of property for religious purposes.—Held, that a document to the following effect does not fall within the definition of "will" as given in s. 3 of Act V of 1881, and therefore its probate cannot be granted under that Act: (a) That it dedicates to the worship of Sri Thakurji certain houses: (b) That the executant states that he will himself manage the property and arrange for the worship during his life-time; (c) That after his death a Committee of three persons, of whom petitioner is one, will become managers in his stead. BHAGAT RAM v. SIDHU, 142 P.W.R. 1911=12 Ind. Cas. 595=55 P.L.R. 1911=5 P.R. 1912. (32 C. 1082, F.)

(32)—S. 3, Act V of 1881 (Probate and Administration)—S. 3, Act IX of 1875, (Indian Majority) —Proceedings of Residents of Native State in British Indian Courts.--The words "any other person" in s. 3 of Act V of 1881 when read with s. 3, Act IX of 1875, must mean any other person not domiciled in British India. The words in s. 3, Act V of 1881 are express, and the limit of the period of disability is for the purpose of the Act, fixed at 18 years, not merely for persons domiciled in this country (British India) but for any other persons whether they be aliens or not. Application of a person above 16, but below 18 years of age, and residing in a Native State (according to the law of which he would be a major), to a British Indian Court for Letters of Administration, is not allowable. In the goods of SRINARAIN MOHTA, 21 C. 911.

(33)—S. 3—See HINDU LAW—ADOPTION, 27 M. 30.

(34)—S. 3—See WILL—FORM OF WILL, 22 A. 162.

(35)—Ss. 3, 4, 23 and 77—Right of Hindu son to obtain Letters of Administration to the joint ancestral estate of his undivided father.—See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, s. 19 [1-(1)], 6 M. L.T. 286, F.B.=19 M.L.J. 591=4 Ind. Cas. 1064=33 M. 93.

(36)—Ss. 3, 5, 12—Executor who has obtained order for grant but not taken out probate if may represent estate in suit—Intermeddling with estate—Lunatic, not found—Representation—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 463. —An executor who obtained an order for the grant to him of probate but took no further steps to complete the grant and who in no way intermeddled with the estate cannot properly represent the estate in a suit brought against it. A decree purporting to have been passed against such an executor does not bind the estate. The provisions of the Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882) with respect to representation of lunatics not being exhaustive a guardian ad litem should be assigned to a defendant who is of unsound mind although not so found. LAKSHYA DAYA v. UMA KANTA CHAKERBUTTY, 14 C.W.N. 256=2 Ind. Cas. 818.

(37)—Ss. 3, 7—Will—Executor—Executor by appointment.—The Probate and Administration Act, 1881, does not prohibit the appointment of an executor to the will by an executor thereof. MOOSA HAJI v. HAJI ABDUL, 5 Bom. L.R. 639.

(38)—Ss. 3 and 7—Executor by implication —Bequest to an idol—Right of shebait to tak out probate.—Where a testator had bequeathe the bulk of his estate for the sheba of a thakur

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

and made certain other dispositions in regard to the rest of the property: held, on the construction of the will, that his wife, whom he had appointed shebait, having been confided with the execution of the will, was executor by implication, and as such entitled to take out probate of the will. KRIPAMOYEE DASSI v. MOHIM CHANDRA DUTT, 10 C.W.N. 232. (6 C.W.N. 310, R.) [D., 6 C.L.J. 453.]

(39)—S. 4—Person other than executor or administrator, when could sue for debts due to estate.—Collusion between the administrator and the debtor is one of the cases, in which parties interested in an estate are allowed to sue both the administrator and the debtors of the estate, for the recovery of a debt due to the estate, such a case being considered an exception to the general rule under s. 4 of the Act. MAUNG BWA v. MA THI, 3 L.B.R. 192. (10 C. 713, R.)

(40)—S. 4—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 11, 4 Ind. Cas. 483.

(41)—S. 4—Mahomedan will—Probate—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—WILL, 37 C. 839=8 Ind. Cas. 655.

(42)—S. 4—See PARTIES TO SUIT—GENERAL, 12 B. 621.

(43)—S. 4—See NOS. 27, 35, supra.

(44)—Ss. 4, 12, 59, 88 and 90—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—WILL, 9 C.W.N. 938, P.C.=1 C.L.J. 594=2 A.L.J. 758=15 M.L.J. 336=7 Bom.L.R. 876=33 C. 116=32 I.A. 244.

(45)—Ss. 4, 64, 71—Letters of administration to husband's estate, application by widow for—Hindu Joint family—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), sch. ii, art. 178—Limitation—Issues, omission to frame—Remand—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 566.—I and G were two brothers. I died on the 23rd June 1881, and his widow applied to the District Judge under s. 64, Act V of 1881, for letters of administration to the estate of her deceased husband. G's sons lodged a caveat under s. 71 of the Act, alleging that the family was joint and that under s. 4 of the Act letters of administration could not be granted to her in respect of I's estate. The District Judge did not frame any issues in the case and fixed a date for the reception of evidence and, after receiving the evidence on that date, dismissed the widow's application, holding that it was barred under art. 178, sch. ii of Act XV of 1877. Held, that art. 178, sch. ii, Act XV of 1877, has no reference to an application by which a miscellaneous proceeding (as opposed to a regular suit) is instituted, and which is not made under the Code of Civil Procedure. Held, therefore, that the widow's application was not time-barred. Held further, that the petitioner being the widow of the deceased, the devolution of whose estate was governed by the Mitakshara law, would be entitled to the whole of her husband's estate if he died in separation from his brethren, to his self-acquired property only if he died in union with them, and to no portion of his estate if he died in union with them and left no self-acquired property. Held, further, that, as no issues had been framed and the parties might have been prejudiced by this omission, the case should be remanded under s. 566, Civ. Pro. Code. BICHANA v. HIRA LAL, 4 O.C. 224.

(46)—S. 5—See NO. 36, supra.

(47)—Ss. 6 and 7—Application for probate by universal legatee—Executor by implication—Maintainability of application.—An application was made for probate of the will of the deceased by the universal legatee under a will. Under ss. 6 and 7 of the Act, probate could be granted only to an executor appointed by the will, expressly or by necessary implication, whereas this applicant was merely an universal legatee and there were no words in the will, from which it could be gathered that he was to do any acts, falling within the office of an executor, such as to pay the debts of deceased and generally to administer the estate. He was, therefore, not an executor, by necessary implication, usually known as an "executor according to the tenor" and so not entitled to probate. RADHAKISAN MARWARI v. MT. SONA BAI, 1 N.L.R. 164. (25 C. 65 and 26 B. 571, R.)

(48)—Ss. 6, 18, 19, 84—Probate only to executor—Universal legatee—Probate granted by mistake, effect of—S. 18—Mortgage by such a person—Permission of Court not obtained—Probate under forged will—Payment by person to whom probate of forged will was granted—Revocation of probate—Right to be re-imbursed out of estate.—Under s. 6 of the Probate and Administration Act, probate can be granted only to an executor appointed by the will, and an universal legatee is only entitled under s. 19 to a grant of letters of administration with the will annexed. Probate granted to an universal legatee by mistake is invalid from the first, and the person to whom such grant was made cannot be constituted an executor so as to be empowered to exercise any of the powers conferred on executors under the Act. A mortgage executed, without the Judge's permission, by a person to whom probate was granted by mistake, is bad. Where a Will was declared to be a forgery, and therefore void ab initio, any acts done by a person under any title created by that Will, must be held to be void in law. [R., 3 C.L.J. 422=10 C.W.N. 673=33 C. 713; D., 10 C.W.N. 422.] Any lawful payments made by a person to whom probate of a forged Will was granted but subsequently revoked, may be re-imbursed out of the estate of the deceased under s. 84 of the Probate and Administration Act. (3 Bingham, 20, R.) PUNDIT PRAYRAG RAJ v. GOUKARAN PERSHAD TEWARI, 6 C.W.N. 787. [D., 10 C.W.N. 422.]

(49)—S. 7—Will, construction of—Executor, appointment of, by implication.—Where the material portion of the Will of the deceased was as follows:—"After my demise, the shebait shall exercise all the powers which I possess. He shall manage, protect and improve the debutter estate. He shall be able, if necessary, to let on hire, taking agreement as a shebait. He shall be able to realise all money due to the idol by suit, amicable settlement or in any other safer way and, if it be necessary, shall sue for protecting the immoveable properties. In order to help the shebaits of the idol by giving them sound advice after my death, I appoint these gentlemen (naming them) as "osees." Held that the shebait was appointed executor of the will by necessary implication within the meaning of s. 7 of the Probate and Administration Act, and that the persons appointed as osees were merely co-adjutors or overseers. BROJO CHANDER GOSWAMI v. RAJ KUMAR ROY, 6 C.W.N. 310. [R., 10 C.W.N. 232 ; D., 6 C.L.J. 453.]

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(50)—S. 7—See NOS. 37, 38, 47, supra.

(51)—Ss. 7 and 19—Universal or residuary legatee—Grant of Probate or Letters of Administration.—Where a Hindu testator did not appoint any executor in his will but after bequeathing a portion of his estate to charitable purposes, bequeathed the rest to his wife, held that the widow is not entitled to probate as an executrix appointed by implication under s. 7 of the Act, but may be entitled to letters of administration with the will annexed under s. 19 as a universal or residuary legatee. A Probate Court is incompetent to enquire into the capacity of the testator to dispose of his property by will or the validity of the provisions contained in the will. SAIN DAS v. MUSSAMMAT SAHIB DEVI, 130 P.R. 1892.

(52)—Ss. 9, 85—Executor, application for probate by—Discretion of Court.—S. 9 of the Act provides that when several executors are appointed, probate may be granted to all simultaneously or at different times. If the applicant is an executor named by the Will and is under no legal incapacity to act, the Court has no option but to grant him probate. S. 85 of the Act enacts that it is within the discretion of the Court to refuse to grant an application for letters of administration, but no such discretion is given in regard to an application for probate by a person selected by a testator for the administration of his estate. PRAN NATH GHOSE v. JADO NATH BHATTACHARJI, 20 A. 189=A.W.N. 1898, 14. (21 C. 195, R.)

(53)—Ss. 11, 91, 102—Probate action—Successful objector if entitled to costs out of estate as of right -Executor or administrator purchasing property from legatee at auction-sale —Validity—Right to perform religious ceremonies given to executors, if survives in their heirs on death—Prospective trustee, purchase by —Validity--Administrator de bonis non, if bound to take account from predecessor—Liability to account on failure—Suit for accounts against executor—Limitation—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), s. 10, sch. II, art. 120—Delay—Acquiescence.—A beneficiary, who successfully resists an attempt by another beneficiary to prove a false will, is not as a matter of right entitled to be paid his costs out of the estate. The costs are in the discretion of the Court and may be directed to be paid out of the estate of the deceased in a suitable case. S. 102 of the Probate and Administration Act does not justify a contrary inference. An executor cannot, as a general rule, be allowed, either immediately or by means of a trustee, to be a purchaser from himself of any part of the assets. Such a purchase is treated as a breach of trust, without inquiry whether transaction was beneficial or not. The position, however, is somewhat different when the executor or administrator purchases from a legatee. Such a purchase may be a perfectly justifiable one, though, if challenged in proper time, a Court of Equity will enquire into it, ascertain the value that was paid by the trustee and threw upon him the onus of proving that he gave full value and that all information was laid before the cestui que trust when the property was sold. The purchase at an execution sale of a legatee's interest by the administratrix durante minoritate was in this case upheld as not made in contravention of s. 91 of the Probate and Administration Act. A sale is not to be avoided merely because, when entered upon, the purchaser had the power to become the trustee of the property purchased. It is immaterial whether the purchaser subsequently does in fact become the trustee or not. The true test to be applied in such cases is, has the purchaser used his position in such a way as to render it inequitable that the sale should be upheld. The right to perform certain religious ceremonies, conferred by the will exclusively on the executors passed on the death of one of them to the remaining executors, and was not transmitted to the heir of the deceased executor. Upon the death or termination of authority by operation of law of an administrator durante minoritate, it is the duty of the executor or other person who succeeds him in the administration to recover and take possession of the unadministered assets of the deceased, to call upon his predecessor or his personal representative to render account of the estate and to recover damages, if necessary, for waste and misappropriation by his predecessor, and if required, by the institution of appropriate judicial proceedings. If he fails to do so, he must be held liable to the extent to which the estate would have been benefited if he had faithfully performed his duty. In order to see whether s. 10 of the Limitation Act applies to a suit against an executor, it must be determined, first, whether, upon the terms of the will, there was a trust under which the property had become vested in the executors for a specific purpose, and, secondly, with reference to the frame and scope of the suit, whether its purpose was to follow in the hands of the trustee or his legal representative property which had become vested in trust for a specific purpose.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

An executor as such is not an express trustee for a legatee (25 B. 429, F.). A suit for accounts, pure and simple, against an executor, cannot be treated as a suit against a trustee for the purpose of following trust property. (5 C. 910, F.). Such a suit would be governed by art. 120 of sch. II of Act XV of 1877. How far delay on the part of the person interested, in instituting a suit, for accounts against an executor, may disentitle him to relief in equity, apart from the law of limitation, discussed. BARADA PROSHAD BANERJEE v. GAJENDRA NATH BANERJEE, 13 C.W.N. 557=9 C.L.J. 383=1 Ind. Cas. 289. [R., 7 M.L.T. 123.]

(54)—S. 12—Executor under Muhammadan's Will, bound to take out probate.—The provisions of the Probate and Administration Act imply that all classes of executors are to be placed on the same footing with regard to the necessity of taking out probate. S. 12 of the Act shows clearly that the idea at the bottom of the scheme of the Act was that a will was not to be considered established until probate had been taken out. The Act read as a whole clearly establishes that probate is necessary in all cases. Consequently, an executor under a Muhammadan's will cannot, since the coming into force of the said Act, claim to represent the estate until he has taken out probate. FATMA v. SHAIK ESSA, 7 B. 266. [R., 2 O.C. 33.]

(55)—S. 12—See NOS. 36, 44, supra.

(56)—Ss. 12, 59—See RES JUDICATA—ESTOPPEL BY JUDGMENT, 21 B. 563.

(57)—Ss. 13 and 33—Administration—Letters of administration granted to minors under the guardianship of their father.—Under Act V of 1881, Letters of Administration cannot be granted to minors under the guardianship of their father. JAI LAL SINGH v. HARI SINGH, A.W.N. 1908, 257=5 A L.J. 736.

(58)—Ss. 16, 50, 69—*Will—Revocation of probate—Just cause—Absence of citation—Compulsory citation—Discretionary citation—*Onus of proof.—Per Scott, C J., and Batchelor, J.—A purchaser from an heir of a portion of the property of a deceased person has a locus standi to come in and allege that the will of the deceased is a forgery and should be revoked. Under the Probate and Administration Act, there are compulsory citations and discretionary citations. A case of a compulsory citation is to be found in s. 16 of the Act, which provides that "when a person appointed an executor has not renounced the executorship, Letters of Administration shall not be granted to any other person until a citation has been issued calling upon the executor to accept or renounce his executorship." A case of a discretionary citation is to be found in s. 69 of the same Act, which says that it shall be lawful for the Judge, if he thinks fit, to issue citations calling upon all persons claiming to have any interest in the estate of the deceased to come and see the proceedings before the grant of probate or Letters of Administration. Where the compulsory citation has been omitted, the grant of letters of administration with the will annexed would be defective on the face of it, because the will is the act of the deceased himself and provides for the persons who shall administer the estate; in such a case, the grant being defective should be revoked as soon as the defect comes to the notice of the Court. Where, however, citation has been discretionary and a person who may be interested in disputing the genuineness of the will is not cited and probate is granted ex parte, the mere absence of citation does not invalidate the grant, because the will may be a perfectly genuine will and the opposition of the person who ought to have been cited might, if it had been put forward, have proved ineffective; in such a case, although the omission to cite is not in itself a sufficient cause for revocation of the probate, it affords a good reason for inquiring into the genuineness of the will alleged, and the Court ought to frame an issue whether the will propounded is the will of the deceased, and to come to a finding upon that issue. Per Batchelor and Rao, JJ.—The onus lies in every case upon the party propounding a will, and he must satisfy the conscience of the Court, that the instrument so propounded is the last will of a capable testator. If a party writes or prepares a will under which he takes a benefit, that is a circumstance that ought generally to excite the suspicion of the Court and call upon it to be vigilant and jealous in examining the evidence in support of the instrument, in favour of which it ought not to pronounce unless the suspicion is removed. Where a will is prepared and executed under circumstances which raise a suspicion of the Court, it ought not to be pronounced for, unless the party propounding it adduces evidence which removes such suspicion and satisfied the Court that the testator knew and approved of the contents of the instrument. The dicta in Tyrell v. Painton and Bary v. Butlin, do not lose any of their force by reason of the circumstance that the executors had, on a former occasion, in ex parte proceedings, obtained probate behind the back of persons vitally interested in disputing the will. DIGAMBAR KESHAVA SHROTRI v. NARAYAN VITAL ASHETEKAT, 13 Bom. L.R. 38=9 Ind. Cas. 354.

(59)—S. 17—Application for probate by official trustee—Intention to renounce expressed in a letter—Subsequent retraction—Effect.—Where the official trustee merely wrote a letter to a certain person intimating his intention of renouncing probate, but, subsequently, that intention was withdrawn before the matter came before the Court and no such renunciation was ever directly made before the Court, nor was any writing intimating such renunciation was filed in Court, it was held that there was no formal renunciation in that case, and that the official trustee was not precluded from applying for the probate. Held, also, there was nothing in the Official Trustees Act prohibiting the official trustee from being appointed as an executor and acting as such. In the goods of MANICK LAL SEAL, 35 C. 156

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(60)—S. 18—Hindu Wills Act—Indian Succession Act—Executor—Executorship, acceptance or renunciation of—Probate—Letters of Administration with Will annexed.—An executrix, in answer to a citation under s. 16 of Act V of 1881, calling upon her either to accept or renounce her executorship, stated that she was already acting as executrix and administering the estate, and that she did not consider it necessary at that stage to take out probate, having applied for a certificate under the Succession Certificate Act (VII of 1889). Held that this was not such an acceptance as was contemplated by s. 18 of Act V of 1881, the language of which is the same as that of s. 195 of the Indian Succession Act, and that, on the executrix declining to prove the will, the District Judge was right in granting Letters of Administration with the will annexed to the sole residuary legatee. MOTIBAI v. KARSANDAS NARAYANDAS, 19 B. 123.

(61)—S. 18—See No. 48, supra.

(62)—S. 19—Construction of document—Will —Residuary legatee.—Held that a bequest of future interest accruing on the testator's estate between the date of the will and the testator's death was a specific bequest, though the amount might be unascertained, and that neither such a bequest nor a provision that the furniture, metal utensils and "jumla asbab" contained in a certain house should, after the death of two ladies, become the joint property of certain persons named in the will, could place those legatees in the position of residuary legatees entitled, within the meaning of s. 19 of Act No. V of 1881, to ask for Letters of Administration to the estate of the testator. CHUNNI LAL v. MOTI LAL, A.W.N. 1901, 108.

(63)—S. 19—Will—Probate— Letters of Administration— Legatee's right to administer estate when some executors willing to act—Fitness of executors—Applications for Probate—Parties —Legatee impugning executor's good faith should be made party.—A legatee cannot be allowed to administer the estate of a testator, unless all the executors refuse to act. The Court should not consider whether the executors who are willing to act are fit and proper persons for the grant of Probate. (21 C. 195, Rel. upon.) Although a legatee has no title to administer the property, he should be brought on the record of a Probate case, as an interested person to safeguard his interests where he impugns the good faith of the executors. MUSSAMMAT KARIMAN v. MUSSAMMAT MASITI, 24 P.L.R. 1912=29 P W.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 171. (21 C. 539, F.)

(64)—S. 19, Act VI of 1889 is retrospective. —S. 19, Act VI of 1889 is retrospective in its operation. PREONATH KARAR v. SURJA COOMAR GOSWAMI, 19 C. 26.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(65)—S. 19—Universal legatee, entitled to Letters of Administration, and not to Probate. —Under the Probate and Administration Act, a universal or residuary legatee is entitled to Letters of Administration with the will annexed. The Legislature intended that they are to be excluded from Probate. In the goods of SHOSHEE BHUSAN BANNERJEE, 19 C. 582. (7 B.L.R. 563, Not F.) [F., 73 P.L.R. 1908= 15 P.W.R. 1907; R., 1 N.L.R. 164.]

(66)—S. 19—See NOS. 48, 51, supra.

(67)—Ss. 19, 59—See RES JUDICATA—ESTOPPEL BY JUDGMENT, 20 C. 838.

(68)—Ss. 21, 41—Legatee interested in only a portion of testator's property — Grant of Letters of Administration for the whole property—See WILL—CONSTRUCTION, 8 Ind. Cas. 695.

(69)—Ss. 22, 41, 50, 85—Application for probate by person appointed executor by will—Applicant not legally incapable — Discretion of Court—Just cause.—Ss. 22, 41 and 85, Act V of 1881, give the Court discretion to grant any one of the persons entitled to the estate of an intestate, or to a third party, Letters of Administration, or to make an order refusing to grant any application for Letters of Administration. But the Act nowhere provides for any such discretion being exercised in the case of an application for probate by an executor named in the will and considered qualified by the testator to act as such. A Court acting under the Probate and Administration Act has no discretion to refuse an application for probate by such executor (he not being legally incapable, and the genuineness of the will not being disputed), on the ground that, in its opinion, he is not a fit and proper person to be entrusted with that office. [F., 20 A. 189= 18 A.W.N. 14.] Under the Act, probate can only be revoked for "just cause" and unfitness or incompetency of an executor does not fall within the meaning of just cause as explained in s. 50; so that apparently an executor, however, unfit or incompetent he may be, cannot, be removed by the Court from his post, though he may be removed for certain specified reasons; e.g., his omission to exhibit an account of the assets which have come into his hands. But this refers expressly to the revocation of a probate after it has been granted, and can have no application to the conduct of the executor before the probate is granted, and much less to the conduct of a person occupying the position of a manager. HARA COOMAR SIRCAR v. DOORGAMONI DASI, 21 C. 195.

(70)—S. 23—Letters of Administration— Grant to deceased's admitted wife—Opposition by person claiming to have been married to deceased—Claim denied—Question of marriage should be fought out in a separate suit.—Letters of administration were granted in a case to A, who was admittedly a wife of the deceased and who was entitled to a portion of the deceased's estate. The grant was opposed by B, who also claimed to have been married to the deceased, but whose marriage was denied. There was not sufficient evidence on the record to prove the marriage of B with the deceased: Held, that the question of B's marriage with the deceased should be fought out in a regular suit, and that the Letters of administration were properly granted to A under s. 23 of the Probate and Administration Act. DENGETTI NARAINAMAH v. GUTHULA RAMANAH, 12 Ind. Cas. 883. (5 L.B.R. 78, 3 Ind. Cas. 719, F.)

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(71)—S. 23—Object of granting letters of administration—Right of younger daughter of deceased Burman Buddhist to letters of administration during the life-time of mother—Agreement of parties, whether can change personal law.—In the case of one of a Burmese Buddhist married couple dying, it can rarely, if ever, be necessary that letters of administration to the deceased's estate should be granted after the period of limitation for the recovery of debt owing to or by the deceased has expired. An younger daughter of a deceased Burman Buddhist is not, during the life-time of her mother, a proper person to be granted letters of administration to the estate of her deceased father, especially where the application was made 18 years after the death of the father. If a child of Burmese Buddhist parent has a right to prevent his or her surviving parent from wasting the one-half of the property in which the parent has only a life-interest, the proper method of enforcing such right is by a regular suit. Procedure under the Probate and Administration Act cannot be used for such purposes. If a person was not, in fact, governed by the Burmese Buddhist Law of inheritance, the agreement of the parties cannot make such law applicable. MA PE v. MA THEIN YIN, 4 L.B.R. 287=14 Bur. L. R. 280.

(72)—S. 23—Grant of Letters of Administration on intestacy—Gift for maintenance—Nature of gift.—Letters of Administration can be granted under s. 23 of the Act, only when there has been an intestacy. It cannot be said that a gift for maintenance is necessarily a gift of a life-estate, and that at the death of the donee there is an intestacy as regards the estate of the original devisor. MOHIM CHANDRA MOULIK v. SARAJUBALA GUPTA, 9 C.L.J. 576=1 Ind. Cas. 140.

(73)—S. 23—Questions to be determined by Court—Dispute as to heirship—Question whether property was left by deceased.—An application for letters of administration should not be refused on the ground that there is a dispute as to whether the petitioner is the heir of the deceased or not, and that it is not for the Probate Court to decide whether the property was left by the deceased or not. Those are the questions which the Court has to decide. KALIDAS MUKHERJEE v. NRITYA GOPAL MUKHERJEE, 7 Ind. Cas. 1.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(74)—S. 23—Letter of administration, Application for—Creditor of estate—Rule for the distribution of the estate of an intestate.—Rules for the distribution of an intestate's estate referred to in s. 23, Probate and Administration Act must be taken to mean the ordinary and obvious rights of succession and inheritance. MA PA v. MA PE, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 622. (21 C. 164, R.)

(75)—S. 23—Dispute as to heirship—Dispute as to title of deceased to property mentioned by petitioner—Court to decide questions.—In an application for letters of administration, question of title of the deceased to the properties mentioned by the petitioner is not a matter which is to be dealt with by Court at all. As regards the questions as to whether the petitioner is the nearest heir to the deceased, that is a matter which should be settled by the Court. DURGA DAS MISSER v. RADA RAMAN MISSER, 7 Ind. Cas. 1.

(76)—S. 23—See NO. 35, supra.

(77)—Ss. 23, 41—Court's power to direct that somebody else, having no present interest in the estate should be associated with applicant in the grant of Letters of Administration.—S. 41, Act V of 1881 applies to a case where, for some just cause, the person who is legally entitled to Letters of Administration ought to be superseded, and the grant made to another person. There is no authority for saying that it is in the power of the Court, acting under s. 41, to direct that somebody else, who has no present interest in the estate, should be associated with the person who under s. 23, is legally entitled to Letters of Administration. ANNAPURNA DASI v. KALLYANI DASI, 21 C. 164. [R., L.B.R. 1893—1900, 622.]

(78)—Ss. 23, 41—Letters of Administration —Rival claimants.—Under s. 23 of the Probate and Administration Act, administration of an estate of an intestate may be granted to any person who would be entitled to the whole or any part of the deceased's estate. In proceeding under this section the Court is bound to ascertain whether the person who asks for letters of administration is so entitled. But, under s. 23 of the Probate and Administration Act, it is incumbent on the Court, before granting letters of administration to find that the person to whom he grants the letters is entitled to the whole or part of the deceased's estate. Until this is ascertained, the Court has no power under that section to grant letters to a person who claims to be so entitled. It would have been not only lawful but expedient if the question of the relative rights of the contesting parties had been determined in these proceedings. In order to entitle a person to letters of administration under s. 23 of the Probate and Administration Act, he must be shown to have an interest in the estate. It is not sufficient that he may possibly have an interest. MA THI v. SHWE HLWA, 1 L.B.R. 284. (29 I.A. 17, 21 C. 697, Cited.)

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(79)—Ss. 23, 50, 98—Buddhist Law of Inheritance among Hindoo-Buddhist, of Arakan and Chittagong.—S. 23 of the Act prescribes to whom a grant is to be made of letters-of-administration of the estate of a deceased intestate. The person primarily entitled to the grant is the person who, according to the rules for the distribution of such estate, would be entitled to the whole or any part of such estate. S. 50 does not specify such failure to furnish security as one of the just causes for which a grant may be revoked or annulled, though the compulsory powers given by s. 98 might perhaps be so used as to bring the case within reach of the fifth clause of s. 50, prima facie, as a Buddhist, deceased who was a Hindu Buddhist would come under the Buddhist law of the country at large, and the burthen of proving any special custom or usage varying the ordinary Buddhist rules of inheritance would be on the person asserting the variance. Whether there is any foundation for alleging a difference of rules except on account of deceased's coming from India and his wearing Hindu dress and following possibly some Hindu habits, there is no distinct evidence to show. But as a Buddhist, the presumption no doubt is that there would be no legal impediment, as in the case of a Hindu, to his taking a Buddhist woman to wife. MA TIN v. DOOP RAJ BARNA, U.B.R. 1892—1893, Vol. II, 608.

(80)—Ss. 23, 64—Hindu, death of, leaving widow who survived over 30 years—Application for letters of administration, when no estate left to be administered.—It is, no doubt, not necessary for the Probate Court to decide what assets are likely to come to the hands of a petitioner for letters of administration, but it is also the duty of the Court in granting letters of administration to consider whether there is any estate whatever to be administered. (3 C.W.N. 635, 9 C.L.J. 116, Rel. on; 6 C.W.N. 345, D.) Where the object of the life not appeared to be, not to administer the estate of the deceased, a Hindu, who had died so long ago as 1875 and was survived by his widow in possession till 1907, but really to obtain a declaration of heirship so as to fortify the successful party in any regular suit that may be instituted, the High Court held that no grant should be made, although objection on this ground was taken for the first time upon appeal from the order of the District Court granting letters of administration. LALIT CHANDRA CHOWDHURY v. BAIKUNTHA NATH CHOWDHURY, 14 C.W.N. 463=5 Ind. Cas. 395=15 C.L.J. 305.

(81)—S. 24—See WILL—GENERAL, 31 C. 885=8 C.W.N. 821.

(82)—S. 25, Probate and Administration Act—Grant of probate of part of a will.—S. 25, Probate and Administration Act, is an enabling section. There is nothing in it to prevent a Court from following the rulings of the Courts in England as to the grant of probate of part of a will. Following the principles of English Law, probate can be granted of a portion of a will. Where the contents of a lost will are not completely proved, probate can be granted to the extent to which they are proved. (Sugden v. Lord St. Leonards, L.R. 1 P.D. 154, Woodward v. Goulstone, 11 App. Cas. 469, F.) KEDAR NATH MITTER v. SAROJINI DASI, 26 C. 634=3 C.W.N. 617. [R., 1 C.L.J. 109.]

(83)—Ss. 30, 34 and 53—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 499—Application for grant of Letters of Administration—Nazir ordered to take possession of property—Nazir administrator, pendente lite—Claim to property in the hands of administrator, dismissal of—Appeal, maintainability of.—A certain person, as guardian of a minor, made to a District Judge an application under s. 30 of the Act for Letters of Administration with the will of the testator annexed. The District Judge ordered the Nazir to take possession of the property after taking an inventory of the same. Accordingly the Nazir took possession of some of the movable property. Subsequently, under s. 34 of the Act, the Nazir was appointed administrator pendente lite and no complaint was made against this order by the appellants. The appellants made an application to the District Judge for restoration to them of some of the property in the hands of the administrator, which was refused. Held, the appellants might have appealed against, or applied for revision of, the order directing the Nazir to take possession of the property. If the Nazir was in wrongful possession of their property, they had their remedy against him according to law. Held, also, that, assuming that an appeal lay against the present order, which was doubtful, it was not one that could be interfered with on appeal. KASHI NATH SINGH v. SHEOSHANKAR PANDE, A.W.N. 1905, 127.

(84)—Ss. 31 and 32—Administrator-General's Act (II of 1874), s. 17—Administrator-General taking possession without prior order of Court—Conflict between Administrator-General and Court of Wards—Nominee of Court of Wards, if can be appointed Administrator—Zamindaries.—The Court of Wards, as such, cannot be appointed Administrator. There is nothing, however, to prevent this Court, in certain circumstances, e.g., in this case, where the testator wished the minor's estate to be entrusted to the Court of Wards, from appointing the nominee of the Court of Wards (in most instances the Manager) Administrator of the testator's estate, with the will annexed, under s. 31 of the Probate and Administration Act.—Held, on the facts of this case, that the Administrator-General's taking possession of the estate of the testator was illegal. NRITTYA GOPAL BISWAS v. ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF BENGAL, 10 C.W.N. 241.

(85)—S. 32—See NO. 84, supra.

(86)—S. 33—Minor wife—Letters of Administration for the use and benefit of—Husband

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

grant to.—The husband of a minor wife, before he applies for the grant of letters of administration to him, for the use and benefit of the minor, must get himself duly appointed guardian, for the purpose of applying for such grant as such assigned guardian. In the goods of SREEMUTTY NEROJINI DABI, 11 C.W.N. 697=34 C. 706.

(87)—S. 33—See NO. 57, supra.

(88)—Ss. 33, 34—Administrator pendente lite —Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 492—Procedure--Practice.—When an application is made under s. 33 of Probate and Administration Act, 1881, to grant letters of administration for the use and benefit of a minor, the appropriate provision of law which the Judge should follow is that contained in s. 34, which gives the special powers intended by the legislature in such cases and which may render immaterial the decision of such issues as would be entitled by an application under s. 492 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The special provisions of s. 34 of the Act indicates the intention of the legislature that the Act itself should be looked to for the powers necessary for the proper custody of property pending the progress of proceedings under that Act, instead of leaving the Court to the enforcement of provisions contained in the Code of Civil Procedure which were not enacted for such special purpose and which are not so indubitably applicable. MADHAVRAO v. MANEKLAL, 2 Bom. L. R., 797.

(89)—Ss. 33 and 64—Oral Will—Letters of administration—Application by wife— Contest by cousins.—Where one Mussammat H applied for administration as guardian of one M.L. in whose favour she alleged the deceased had left oral will, and the cousins of the deceased contested on the ground that the will was false, that M.L. was illegitimate, that Mussammat H was the concubine of the deceased and prayed that they should be granted letters of administration, held that even supposing the legitimacy of M.L., Mussammat H is not a fit person to be appointed a guardian of the minor M.L. or administratrix of the estate of the deceased. RAHIM BAKHSH v. GHULANI, 65 P.R. 1893. [R., 91 P.R. 1907; Obs., 28 P.R. 1909=182 P.L.R. 1908=170 P.W.R. 1908.]

(89-a)—S. 34—Mahomedan Law.—Where the plaintiffs as heirs-at-law had entered caveat in an application by the executor for the probate of an alleged will of the deceased, and the application was set down as a contentious cause and the executor appointed administrator pendente lite, held that the plaintiffs, who, as heirs under Mahomedan Law, were entitled to a two-third share in the property left by the deceased, even if the will was not established, had the right to maintain a suit for administration by the Court against the administrator pendente lite, even though the probate proceedings have not been determined. MEERZA KURATUL-AIN BAHADUR v. BROUGHTON, 1 C.W.N. 336.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(90)—S. 34—Administration pendente lite—Necessity for appointment.—An administrator pendente lite will be appointed under s. 34 of the Act, only when the Court is satisfied that such appointment is necessary to preserve and protect the estate, while the litigation is pending, and unless such necessity is made out, the estate should not be subjected to the cost and encumbrance of such an administration. BHUBAN MOHINI DEBI v. KIRAN BALA DEBI, 13 C.L.J. 46=9 Ind. Cas. 215. (10 C.L.J. 263, R.)

(91)—S. 34—See NO. 83, supra.

(92)—Ss. 35, 43, 62—Application by mother for probate of son's will—Mother not appointed executrix—Right of mother to probate—Letters of Administration —Proof of execution of will.—A mother applied for probate of her son's will. The mother was not appointed executrix. She was, however, given by the will some property for paying certain debts of the deceased. The application was opposed by the son's widow. The will was proved by the attesting witnesses. The District Judge granted probate to the petitioner. Held, that the direction to the petitioner that out of certain property she should pay certain debts was not enough to show any intention on the testator's part that for the general purpose of administration she should be executrix. The petitioner was not entitled to probate, but could apply for letters of administration with the will annexed. The petition had to state all the assets which were likely to come to the petitioner's hands, not merely such part of them as she chose to name. Held, also that before letters of administration with the will annexed were granted, there must be strict proof of the execution of the will. It is not enough for witnesses to say that they saw the testator sign the will and that he was in his senses. It must also be proved that the testator understood the contents of the paper to which he was putting his signature, and for this purpose, it should be shown that the will, if not written by himself, was read over to him. KUPPAYAMMAL v. AMMANI AMMAL, 22 M. 345. [R., 6 C.L.J. 453.]

(93)—S. 37—Mohunt of math—Death—Application by claimant to office for letters of administration — Trust estate — Beneficiary— Shebait and idol, relation of.—A mohunt is not the owner of the property of the math and on his death a person claiming to be his successor in office cannot apply under Act V of 1881 for letters of administration in respect of the math property. S. 37 of the Act is intended to apply only to property in which the deceased person had ownership, so as to constitute it a portion of his estate, although he held it in trust. MOHUNT JIB LAL GIR v. MOHUNT JAGA MOHAN GIR, 16 C.W.N. 798=16 Ind. Cas. 453. (12 C. 375, D.)

(94)—Ss. 37 and 45—Dedication of property by Will to idol—Trustee with power of appointing successor - Non-appointment by trustee—Grant of letters of administration — Administration in respect of debutter property—"Beneficiary." — Where an executrix, who was constituted shebait in respect of certain properties dedicated to an idol by the testatrix, died without appointing a successor in accordance with the power given in the Will, held, that, under s. 45 of the Probate and Administration Act, letters of administration might be granted to the sister's son of the testatrix, in respect of the debutter property, as some portion of the estate of the testatrix remained to be administered on account of the non-appointment of the shebait. It was held in the case that the sister's son of the testatrix was, in the absence of nearer heirs, entitled to the grant of letters inasmuch as the original grant in respect of the debutter property might have been made to him. Where property is dedicated to an idol, it would be a "beneficiary" in the sense in which the word is used in s. 37 of the Probate and Administration Act, and administration of the property could be granted to some person on behalf of the idol, as the management could not be undertaken by itself. RANJIT SINGH v. JAGANNATH PROSAD GUPTA, 12 C. 375.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(95)—Ss. 39 and 50—Will—Letters of Administration — Revocation—Locus standi—"Person having interest in estate of deceased."—A person, disputing the right of a deceased testator to deal with certain property as his own, cannot be properly regarded as having an interest in the estate of the deceased, and has no locus standi to apply for revocation of the Letters of Administration. SRI GOBIND PRASAD v. LALJHARI KUER, 2 Ind. Cas. 402=14 C.W.N. 119. (17 C. 48, F.)

(96)—S. 41—Application by executor's son—Discretion.—A testator bequeathed, by will, the whole of his property to an idol and appointed his wives and son executrics and executor, who, however, did not take out any probate, but the son mortgaged the property. After the property was sold in execution of a decree on the mortgage, the testator's grandsons, under the guardianship of their mother, applied for probate of the will. Held, they, being not executors, were not entitled to probate, and the case was not a fit one for grant of probate under s. 41 of the Probate and Administration Act; the mother being a pardanashin lady, the father, the defaulting executor, would manage the whole business. NARENDRA KUMAR PRAMANICK v. CHARU CHUNDER PRAMANICK, 7 C L. J. 558=12 C.W.N. 747.

(97)—S. 41, grants under.—Grants under s. 41, Probate and Administration Act, are made for the protection and preservation of the estate of deceased persons. These are made in the exercise of the discretionary powers of the Court, and not as recognising any legal interest of the grantees in the estate of the deceased persons. In the goods of KAMINEYMONEY BEWAH, 21 C. 697. [F., 10 C.W.N. 1085; Cited, 1 L.B.R. 284.]

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(98)—S. 41—See NOS. 68, 69, 77, 78, supra.

(98-a)—S. 43—See NO. 92, supra.

(99)—S. 45—Death of executor before entire administration—Administration de bonis non. —Under the will of a Hindu, duly proved, devising property to his adopted son, the estate of the testator vested in his wife appointed as executrix therein. On the executrix dying intestate and without having fully administered the trusts of the will, administration of another sort known as administration de bonis non was held to become necessary. (See s. 45 of Act V of 1881). So, where the son sued to recover rents due to the estate, neither as representing the executrix, nor as the administrator de bonis non of the testator, his suit failed on the ground that the estate of the testator was absolutely unrepresented. NARASIMMULU v. GULAM HUSSAIN SAIT, 16 M. 71.

(100)—S. 45—Grant of effects unadministered—Long lapse of time—Presumption that estate has been administered—Property held as shebait, if part of estate.—A testator died in 1884, leaving a will, whereby he appointed his widow executrix, and bequeathed the whole of his ancestral and self-acquired properties to her. The will contained a further direction that the widow shall perform the sheba of certain thakurs, of which the testator was a shebait and that, after her death, "he who may remain as my heir, as shebait, shall perform the sheba . . . . . from the income of the estates of the debsheba." The widow took out probate in 1885 and died in 1902. Upon an application by the reversioner for Letters of Administration, the District Judge held that, as the last-mentioned direction in the will contemplated some administration after the death of the widow, the petitioner was entitled to take out Letters of Administration; held, that the order of the District Judge was erroneous. The Court may properly presume, in the absence of anything to the contrary and after this long lapse of time, that the estate has been administered. The direction as to sheba, upon which the order was based, did not relate to the testator's own property. CHANDI CHARAN MANDAL v. BANKE BEHARI MANDAL, 10 C.W.N. 432.

(101)—S. 45—See NO. 94, supra.

(102)—S. 47—Letters of Administration de bonis non to widow of the deceased—Un-administered estate.—Where Letters of Administration to the deceased's estate were granted to the widow, limited during the minority of her infant son, and the son died before attaining majority, and before the estate was fully administered, Letters of Administration de bonis non to the estate of the deceased husband may be granted to the widow under s. 47 of the Probate and Administration Act, and her being the heir to the son's estate is no bar to such grant. In the goods of GIRIS CHANDRA MITTER, 6 C.W.N. 581.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(103)—S. 50—Revocation of probate—Proof in solemn form.—A will was proved by an executrix in common form, without issuing citation to the next reversioner. She was the sole legatee under the will. On her death, her heir took possession of the property as heir: Held, that the heir of the executrix may be ordered to prove the will in solemn form in the presence of the next reversioner. In default, the probate was revoked. In the goods of GOPI MOHUN BYSACK AND In the matter of the petition of NEMAI CHAND BYSACK, 5 C.L. J. 560.

(104)—S. 50—Oral will—Grant of Letters of Administration--Its revocation as regards a portion of the deceased property on the ground of an oral will.—P, a Saraugi, died after a short illness of plague, leaving a shop and haveli and other property, and a grant of Letters of Administration was made in favour of M. Afterwards, J and others, alleging themselves to be managers of a Saraugi temple, applied for revocation of the said grant, on the ground that P, before his death, had bequeathed the shop and haveli to said temple.—Held, that, as the oral will was established, the grant of Letters of Administration was rightly revoked under para. 3 of s. 50 of Act V of 1881 qua the shop and haveli. MANGTU v. JOWALA MAL, 8 P.W.R. 1908.

(105)—*S.*50—Revocation of Probate or Letters of Administration—Issues in such proceeding—Practice—Just cause—Hindu widow, order against, binds reversioner.—Where an application was made for revocation of Letters of Administration, with the will of the deceased annexed, and it was prayed that the will should be proved before the applicant: held, that, until the applicant made out a case for revocation, the question of the genuineness of the will could be gone into. English practice and practice of mofussil Courts in India distinguished; held, further, that a previous application for revocation by the widow of the deceased having failed, that decision bound a reversioner and the latter's application for revocation could not succeed except on proof that the previous proceeding had been collusive and fraudulent. DURGAGATI DEBI v. SOURABINI DEBI, 10 C. W. N. 955=33 C. 1001. (9 M.I.A. 539, 604, 11 C. 186, R.)

(106)—S. 50—Revocation of probate—Suit to set aside probate—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, sch. IV, part E, form 115—Invalidity of will—Irregularity in grant of probate—Motion on notice—Rule nisi.—When it is sought to revoke a grant of probate on the ground of the invalidity of a Will, the proceedings should be initiated by a regular suit, using the form of plaint given in the Civ. Pro. Code, sch. IV, part E., No. 115, and not by motion on notice. When it is sought to revoke the grant of probate of a valid Will on the ground of some irregularity in making the grant, the proceedings should be by motion on notice and not by a rule nisi. In the goods of HARENDRA KRISHNA MUKERJEE, 5 C.W.N. 383. (5 C.W.N. 377, R.)

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(107)—S. 50 — Revocation of letters of administration — Presumptive heir — Locus standi.—A presumptive reversioner is entitled to apply for revocation of letters of administration under s. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act. BEPIN BEHARI SHAHA v. MANODA DASI, 6 C.W.N. 912. (28 C. 441, R.; 8 C. 570, 21 C. 539, Rel. on.) [F., 3 Ind. Cas. 178.]

(108)—S. 50—Purchaser of properties from heir of deceased person—Locus standi.—If the heirs of a deceased person can make an application for revocation of the letters of administration of a will alleged to have been executed by the deceased, the purchaser of the estate of such person from his heirs has a locus standi to make an application for the same purpose. LALIT MOHAN BHUTTACHARJEE v. NAVADIP CHANDRA KAPARIA, 28 C. 587. (4 C. 360, 20 C. 37, R.)

(109)—S. 50— Citation on minor—Minor represented by applicant as guardian—Proceeding defective—Revocation, application for--Applicant acting in concert with another.—Where an applicant for probate of a will took out citation upon a minor, who was represented by the applicant herself has guardian. Held, that the proceedings to obtain the grant were defective in substance, and the grant should be revoked. The fact that the petitioner for revocation of probate was acting in concert with somebody else could not take away the right which she otherwise possessed of applying for revocation. SHOROSHIBALA DEBI v. ANANDAMOYEE DEBI, 12 C.W.N. 6. [R., 3 Ind. Cas. 178=10 C.L.J. 263.]

(110)—*S.*50—Probate--Revocation—Just cause —Useless or inoperative—Executors—Omission to submit accounts.—The grant of probate is decisive only of the genuineness of the will propounded, and the right of the executors thereby appointed to represent the estate of the testator. It in no respect decides any question as to the disposing power of the testator or to the existence of any disposable property. The words "become useless and inoperative" in Explanation 4 to s. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act, 1881, imply the discovery of something which if known at the date of the grant would have been a ground for refusing it. A mere omission on the part of the executors to submit accounts to the Court is no ground for revocation of grant of probate. B.G. TILAK v. SAKWARBAI; GANESH v. SAKWARBAI, 4 Bom. L.R. 637=26 B. 792.

(111)—S. 50—Probate — Revocation — Just cause--Failure to exhibit the inventory or account —Account false in material respects.—Under s. 50, sub-clause (5), of the Probate and Administration Act, 1881, mere failure to file the accounts within the specified time is not sufficient, but it must be established that the personto whom the grant was made has wilfully and without reasonable cause omitted to exhibit the inventory or account. Also, it is not sufficient that the inventory or account, should be incorrect, but it must be untrue in material respects. GOKULDAS v. PURSHOTTAM; 4 Bom. L.R. 979.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(112)—S. 50—Will—Delay in taking probate —Probate taken on necessity arising—Application for revocation of probate—" Just cause."— On an application for revocation of probate made twelve years after the grant of probate, the High Court held the terms of the will to be reasonable and the evidence sufficient to establish the will, considering the difficulty of establishing a will eighteen years after its execution, the persons competent to give the best evidence having died; it also held that the "just cause" had not been shown by the applicants, for revocation. The Judicial Committee, under the circumstances of the case affirmed that decision, and pointed out that the delay in taking out probate (application for probate having been made only six years after the testator's death) was accounted for by the fact that, until the date of application for probate, there was no very urgent necessity for relying upon the will. KALI DAS CHUCKERBUTTY v. ISHAN CHUNDER CHUCKERBUTTY, 31 C. 914, P.C.=9 C.W.N. 49.

(113)—S. 50—Just cause—Omission to cite proper party—Revocation of Letters.—Where an application was made by a person for grant of Letters of Administration and the petition made no mention of the existence of the brother of the deceased who was his partner in his business and no citation was issued to the brother before the grant of the Letters, held that they must be revoked on the ground that the proper citation was not issued. In the goods of GANGA BISSEN MUNDRA, 2 C.W.N. 607.

(114)—S. 50, application of—Revocation of probate where there has been no defect of jurisdiction.—The Official Trustee of Bengal applied to the High Court in its testamentary and intestate jurisdiction for grant of probate, as being a person appointed by the will of the testator. The Court had jurisdiction over the subject matter, and the only question then to be decided was, whether the Official Trustee was the person entitled to apply for such probate. It was decided that the Official Trustee could do so, and an order was accordingly made for the issue of probate. But upon an application under s. 50, the Probate was revoked, on the ground that the Court had wrongly decided that the Official Trustee was entitled to apply for probate. Held, since there has been no defect of jurisdiction, so as to bring the matter within the scope of s. 50, the probate is not capable of being revoked, even assuming the order of the Court was erroneous. OFFICIAL TRUSTEE OF BENGAL v. KUMUDINI DASI, 37 C. 387=6 Ind. Cas. 973. (35 C. 156, R.)

(115)—S. 50—Whether purchaser from widow can set aside probate—Right of appeal.—A transferee from the widow (who is the next heir of the deceased) may, where a will has been set up and proved at variance with his interest, apply for the revocation of the probate of the will, under s. 50 of the Act. An application under s. 50 of the Act is considered to be a suit, and an order dismissing such application on the ground that the applicant had no locus standi to bring the suit is appealable to the High Court. SHEIKH AZIM v. CHANDRA NATH NAMIDAS, 8 C.W.N. 748.

(116)—*S.*50—Execution of will by a person near death, evidence as to.—On a question of fact, raised in 1887, whether an alleged testator had or had not been able to duly execute his will, as he was said to have done during his last illness, the judgment of the District Court in the affirmative was restored. On a consideration of conflicting evidence as to the mental capacity of the testator, and as to the genuineness of a signature, the judgment of the High Court which would have revoked the probate granted in 1882, was reversed. ROMESH CHUNDER MURKERJI v. RAJANI KANT MUKERJI, 21 C. 1, P.C.=6 Sar. 340.

(117)—S. 50—Revocation of grant of letters of administration—Fresh application not barred.— Where a grant of letters of administration made by a District Judge had been revoked under s. 50 of the Act, it was held that the Judge had nevertheless jurisdiction to entertain a fresh application for the same purpose, when the cause of revocation was removed. BRIJ LAL v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 20 A. 109=A.W.N. 1897, 213.

(118)—S. 50—Limitation Act (1908), sch. II, art. 95—Relief not claimed distinctly on the ground of fraud—Executor—Suit without probate—Decree Limitation from the date of testator's death—Fraud in the performance of contract no ground for rescission—Partnership —Fresh arrangement—Novation—Suit for an account on the footing of continuance of original partnership—Suit not maintainable—Contract Act, s. 241—Probate—Revocation of grant.— Art. 95, Limitation Act (1908), has no application where, on the face of the plaint, no equitable relief is claimed on the ground of fraud (16 B. 186, 25 C. 49, R.). An executor is capable of instituting a suit without obtaining probate, although he may not be able to proceed as far as decree without taking probate. Fraud in the performance of a contract, apart from its making, is no ground for rescission and restoration of the parties to the position in which they were before the contract was entered into. Property left by a deceased partner and used in the business is a loan under s. 241, Contract Act. Where an order has been made that probate should issue to an executrix, but no probate has been taken out, the Court has no jurisdiction to revoke a grant which has never been issued. A testator appointed his widow as the guardian of his minor children and executrix (by tenor) of his will. On his death the widow consented to the retention of the testator's share in a partnership business by the surviving partners and subsequently to a transfer of the same to a joint stock company. In an action brought by one of the testator's sons as administrator against the surviving partners, for an account of all the assets of the testator at the time of his death retained and employed by the defendants in their business: Held, dismissing the suit, that the testator's widow was perfectly competent as his executrix to enter into the arrangement, which was a novation with the surviving partners, so as to bind the estate, and that the suit against the partners on the footing of a continuance of the partnership was not maintainable. JAMSETJI v. HIRJIBHAI, 15 Bom. L.R. 192=37 B. 158

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(119)—S. 50—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 41, 31 C. 357=8 C.W.N. 197.

(120)—S. 50, Expl. (4) — "Just cause," meaning of—Executor's mismanagement.—The words "just cause" as explained in s. 50, are exhaustive. They are not illustrative merely. Mismanagement by an executor does not come within the purview of cl. 4, s. 50 of the Act. ANNODA PROSAD CHATTERJEE v. KALIKRISHNA CHATTERJEE, 24 C. 95. [R., 26 B. 792=4 Bom. L.R. 637, 28 M. 161.]

(121)—S. 50, Expl. (4)—Revocation of grant — "Just cause," mal-administration if — Quarrels between co-administrators, making grant useless and inoperative, if ground, for annulment.—Mal-administration is not under s. 50, Expl. (4) of the Act a just cause of revoking probate (24 C. 95, F.). The words "become useless and inoperative" in s. 50, Expl. (4), of the Act imply the discovery of something which if known at the date of the grant would have been a ground for refusing it, e.g., the discovery of a later will or codicil or a subsequent discovery that the will was forged or that the alleged testator was still living (26 B. 792, Appr.). One of two joint administrators applied for the revocation of the grant to the other, on the ground that, in consequence of quarrels between them, it had become impossible to carry on the administration and the grant had in this way become inoperative and useless: Held, that this was no ground for revoking the grant. GOUR CHANDRA DAS v. SARAT SUNDURI DASSYA, 16 C.W.N. 880=15 Ind. Cas. 44=40 C. 50.

(122)—S. 50—See NOS. 58, 69, 79, 95, supra.

(123)—Ss. 50, 59—Effect of grant of probate —See WILL—CONSTRUCTION, 8 A.L.J. 1063.

(124)—Ss. 50, 64, 83—Need for care in issuing citations and scrutinizing claims for letters-of-administration— Grounds for revoking grant of letters.—In s. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act, which says that letters-of-administration may be revoked or annulled for just cause, the explanation is that "just cause" among other things is, first, that the proceedings to obtain the grant were defective in substance; and, second, that the grant was obtained fraudulently by making a false suggestion or by concealing from the Court something material to the case. The provisions of the Act are liable to be abused in Burma unless the Courts are careful to insist on satisfactory proof being given of the claims set up under it. MA THET v. MA MYIT, U.B.R. 1892—1896, Vol. II, 610.

(125)—Ss. 50, 69—Party's "interest" entitling her to apply for revocation—Claim for maintenance, no such interest.—Where the testator's adoptive father had died leaving two widows authorising both of them to adopt, and the testator was adopted by one of them, and died leaving an infant widow, held in an application for revocation of the probate of the Will, by the other widow who was entitled to maintenance from the husband's estate, that the right to maintenance could not be affected by the Will in question whatever its provisions might be; that the Court might look at the Will to see if it affected the claim to maintenance, that in this case the Will, on being looked at, was found not to affect the right in any way whatever, and that, therefore, the applicant had no such interest in the estate of the deceased as entitled her to make an application under s. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881). GARABINI DASSI v. PRATAP CHANDRA SHAHA, 4 C.W.N.602. (11 C. 492, D.; 17 C. 48, 17 M. 373, R. & F.) [R. 12 C.W.N. 808=8 C.L.J. 489.]

(126)—Ss. 50, 78—Competency of District Judge to call on executor to furnish security, after grant of probate.—It is only when a Judge grants probate, that he may direct that a person, to whom the grant is made, should give security under s. 78, Act V of 1881. If, upon an application made under s. 50 of the Act, for revocation of probate, the probate is revoked and a new executor or administrator is appointed, it is open to the Judge to direct that security should be given by such executor. After the grant of probate, a District Judge has no authority to call upon the executor to furnish security. GIRIBALA DASEE v. BIJOY KRISHNA HALDAR, 31 C. 688=8 C.W.N. 663.

(127)—Ss. 50, 83—Application for probate—Special citation, issue of —Ss. 443, 647, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882.—Where on the death of a testator, leaving him surviving a childless minor widow entitled to maintenance and residence under his will, an application was made for probate of the Will of the deceased, under ss. 50 and 83, Probate and Administration Act, by two of his brothers appointed executors, the Court ordered that a special citation should issue to the widow, and directed that it should be served personally on her and also on her father with whom she occasionally resided. In the goods of AMRITA LAL MULLICK, 27 C. 350.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(128)—Ss. 50, 83—Application or revocation of grant of letters-of-administration— Refusal of Court to grant revocation on preliminary ground that appellants were not prepared to take out administration themselves—Duty of Court to enquire into matters and to deal with the application on the merits.—S. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act specifies the grounds upon which a grant may be revoked, (4 C. 566, R.) The duty of the Court under s. 83 of the Act is to make enquiry into the questions before it, which have been properly raised under s. 50. Recourse to the provisions of the Act being optional, the Courts must not attempt to render it compulsory by indirect means. There is no reason whatever why, when administration is not compulsory and the interference of the Court is not obligatory, estates should not be left to be dealt with in the same fashion as they always have been in the past under the personal law of those interested in them if the latter, who alone are concerned, so please. MUSSAMMAT DROPTI v. MA THA DWE, U. B. R. 1897—1901 Vol. II, 533.

(129)—Ss. 50, 86—Grant, revocation of—Creditor's right to contest—Will propounded in fraud of creditors—Order holding applicant has right if appealable — Interlocutory order.—Where, 8 years after the death of B, one of his sons L obtained letters of administration with a copy annexed of an alleged will left by B, which, if genuine, would deprive another son S, who had meanwhile become heavily involved in debt, of a very large share of his inheritance: Held, that the creditors of S were entitled to apply for revocation of the will, their application being based on the ground that the probate had been obtained in fraud of creditors. (8 C.W.N. 748, 17 C. 48, 10 C. 19, 28 C. 441, R.)—Semble :—No appeal lay from an order of the Trial Judge holding that the creditors had locus standi to contest the will, the same being merely interlocutory. LAKHI NARAIN SHAW v. MULTAN CHAND DAGA, 16 C.W.N. 1099=15 Ind. Cas. 686=17 C.L.J. 230. (8 C.W.N. 748, 17 C. 48, 10 C. 19, 28 C. 441, R.)

(130)—Ss. 50, 87—Revocation of probate—Practice and Procedure—'High Court' meaning of—Jurisdiction—Motion on notice—Rule nisi—Forged Will.—To revoke a grant of probate on the ground of forgery, the proper course is to make an application under s. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act and not by suit (4 C. 360, F.) The 'High Court' in s. 87 of the Probate and Administration Act is not merely confined to the appellate jurisdiction of that Court, but includes its original jurisdiction, and under that section, the High Court exercising its original jurisdiction has concurrent jurisdiction with the District Judge for the purposes of exercising all powers provided by the Act. Proceedings for setting aside probates on the ground of forgery should be initiated by motion on notice and not by rule. The procedure by rule nisi should be confined to applications which are urgent and where relief in the shape of an injunction is required. In the goods of MOHENDRA NARAIN ROY, 5 C.W.N. 377.

(131)—Ss. 50, 98—Power of District Judge to commence revocation proceedings on his own motion—Scope of Judge's duties—Inventory and account.—A District Judge has no power to commence proceedings to revoke a probate under s. 50, Act V of 1881, on his own motion. To permit the District Judge to take action under s. 50 of the Act, of his own motion, would lead, in many cases, to unjust consequences, e.g., even if the action fails the cost must fall on the executor or administrator, i.e., on the estate, there being no ordinary plaintiff, who can be condemned in costs, if his case fails. Under s. 98, Act V of 1881, the District Judge has no power to institute a judicial enquiry by an audit of the inventory and account at the expense of the executor or administrator; nor can such an authority be implied from the provisions of the Civ. Pro. Code, as to the appointment of a Commissioner to examine accounts. All that the District Judge has to do under that section is to see that the inventory and account prima facie satisfy the requirements of the section, i.e., that the inventory appears on inspection to be a free true estimate of all the property, credits and debts, and that the account in inspection appears really to be a true one showing the assets and their disposal. To ascertain this, the inventory and account should be passed under some examination by the Judge's staff so as to detect manifest mistakes or omissions. If such were discussed the papers would not satisfy the section, and for this purpose, the section empowers the Judge to extend the time to the executor or administrator to amend the account. The fact that the testator enjoined on his executor to prepare accounts annually does not enlarge the Judge's power and empower him to exact an account annually, although it would authorise a person interested to take action against the executor. S. 98 does not give a Judge power to call for a revised account, if an account has already been exhibited as required by the section and has been accepted as prima facie true; but if it appears that the account is materially untrue, the Judge may take action under its fourth sub-section. When once an account has been fulfilled and accepted shortly after the expiry of a year from the grant of probate, the Judge has no power to call for further accounts of subsequent years. Surat Sundari Barmani v. Uma Prosad Roy Chowdhry, 31 C. 628=8 C. W.N. 578.

(132)—Ss. 51, 52, 86—Scope of Act—Repeal.—The probate Act being a law made by an authority in India is subject to the powers of repeal or amendment granted to local legislature by s. 5 of the Indian Councils Act, 1892. LAXIMI v. ABA, 10 Bom. L.R. 924=32 B. 634.

(133)—Ss. 51, 78—Jurisdiction of District Court—Surety.—A District Court, after once

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

having taken a bond with sureties, has jurisdiction to take a second bond, with fresh sureties, if necessary. RAJ NARAIN MOOKERJEE v. FULL KUMARI DEBI, 29 C. 68=6 C.W.N. 7. [Approved 52 P.R. 1902=89 P.L.R. 1902; Not F. 31 A. 56=6 A.L.J. 19=1908 A.W.N. 288.]

(134)—S. 52—See NO. 132, supra.

(135)—S. 53—See NO. 83, supra.

(136)—Ss. 53, 86—See APPEAL—MISCELLANEOUS, 21 C. 539.

(137)—Ss. 55, 83—Application for revocation of probate.—S. 55 and not s. 83 of the Probate and Administration Act is applicable to an application for revocation of probate. PRATAP CHANDRA SHAHA v. KALI BHANJAN SHAHA, 4 C.W.N. 600.

(138)—S. 56—Judgment-debt, no property.—The judgment debt of the deceased is not property moveable or immoveable within the meaning of s. 56 of Act V of 1881. In re KAUR HIRA SINGH, Deceased, 126 P.R. 1893.

(139) — Ss. 56, 57 — Testator subject to Baroda State—Will executed at Baroda—Disposition of immoveable property in British India—Jurisdiction of Court in British India—Discretion of Court under s. 57 when to be exercised—Will—Disposal of immoveable property in British India—Test of validity of will.—S. 56 of the Probate and Administration Act, 1881, gives jurisdiction to the District Judge to grant probate of a Will, if it appears from the petition of the applicant that the testator had, at the time of his death, any property, moveable or immoveable, within the jurisdiction of the Judge. This provision is general and is quite irrespective of the place where the will was executed, or of the nationality of the testator, or of the place of his domicile. Where, therefore, an application for probate was made to the District Judge of Belgaum, in respect of a will executed at Baroda by a person who was a subject of that State, but disposing of immoveable property situated in Belgaum in British India: Held, that the District Judge had jurisdiction to grant probate under this section. The discretion vested in the Judge under s. 57 of the Probate and Administration Act, can be exercised only when, between Courts of different districts in British India, there is a question as to which of such Courts can most justly or conveniently grant probate; and it cannot be exercised where there is no Court of concurrent jurisdiction in British India to which the applicant can apply for probate. The validity of a will which purports to dispose of immoveable property in British India must be tested by the rules applicable to the execution of wills in British India. BHAURAO v. LAKSHMIBAI, 20 B. 607.

(140)—Ss. 56, 57—Letters of Administration, grant of—Deceased dying outside the jurisdiction and leaving no property in the jurisdiction—Discretion of the District Judge.—The lower Court refused to grant letters of administration on the double ground that deceased died outside its jurisdiction and that he left no property at any place under its jurisdiction. The applicant contended that there was some property (e.g., earthen pots and such other articles) within its jurisdiction but the District Judge was led to suspect from the trifling nature of this property that the articles were advisedly kept there for the purpose of creating evidence: Held, that the District Judge had properly exercised his discretion, vested in him by ss. 56 and 57 of the Probate and Administration Act, 1881. BAI MANCHA v. BAI GANGA, 1 Bom. L.R. 666.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(141)—S. 57—See NOS. 139, 140, supra.

(142)—S. 59—Admissibility of prior unprobated will — See WILL—REVOCATION; 6 M. L.T. 116.

(143)—S. 59—See NOS. 44, 56, 67, 123, supra.

(144)—S. 62—See No. 92, supra.

(145)—S. 64—Letters of administration—Object of asking for letters—Practice—Procedure—Court Fees Act, s. 19.—When a caveator files a petition objecting to the grant of letters and concluding with a prayer that letters may be granted to him, this does not constitute a sufficient application for letters within the meaning of s. 64 of the Act. It may have been the practice in District Courts to grant Letters of Administration to objectors who asked for grants to themselves in preference to the claimant, but in view of the provisions of the s. 19 (1) of the Court Fees Act, as amended by Act XI of 1899, it seems clear that no order entitling a petitioner to letters should be made until the petitioner has filed in Court a valuation of the property in the form set forth in the 3rd Schedule and the Court is satisfied that the fee mentioned in No. 11 of the 1st Schedule has been paid on such valuation. It is clear therefore that when an objector asks for letters himself he should be required to put in a petition setting out the facts required in s. 64 of Act V of 1881 with a proper valuation of the estate. MAUNG PO v. MAUNG KYA ZAING, 1 L.B.R. 178. [R., 4 L.B. R. 291.]

(146)—S. 64 — See NOS. 45, 80, 89, 124, supra.

(147)—S. 66 — Probate—Application not subscribed by the applicant.—Where an application for probate was not subscribed by the applicant in the manner provided for by s. 66 of Act No. V of 1881, it was held that this defect was fatal to the application, and also that it was too late in appeal to return the application for amendment. MATHURA v. DHORANDHAR SINGH, A.W.N. 1894, 55. (A. W.N. 1893, 166, R.)

(148)—S. 67—Probate—Application for probate not verified by an attestor of the Will.—The provisions of s. 67 Act V of 1881, are imperative and an application for probate made under that

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

Act which is not verified in the manner prescribed by s. 67 must be treated in the same manner as a plaint which has not been verified in accordance with law BINDRABAN CHAND v. UMRAO CHAND, A.W.N. 1893, 166.

(149)—S. 69—"Interest" meaning of—Reversioner's right—Sister's right to object in the presence of widow and daughters—Letters of Administration, application for—Enquiry as to extent of estate.—A Christian died leaving a widow and two daughters. The widow applied for grant of Letters of Administration to herself in respect of the deceased's estate. The sisters of the deceased objected: Held, that the sisters had no right to object in the presence of the widow and daughters of the deceased. The word "interest" in s. 69 of the Probate and Administration Act cannot cover the case of a mere reversioner. An interest that has not arisen is properly not an interest, nor a right; it is nothing more than a bare expectation of a future right. (21 C. 539, 10 C.L.J. 263=3 Ind. Cas. 178, D.) In an application for Letters of Administration, it is quite outside the scope of inquiry to determine the limits of the estate. MRS. R. SHARKEY v. MRS. JERRY ALLARD, 70 P. L. R. 1912=78 P.W.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 433.

(150)—S. 69—"Interest in the estate of the deceased" meaning of—Right of judgment-creditor to oppose grant of probate arises when.—The words "claiming to have any interest in the estate of the deceased" in s.69, mean "claiming to have any interest in the property left by the deceased." A judgment creditor of a brother of the deceased whose natural heirs are his brothers, is a person claiming an interest in the estate of the deceased, and as such, has a locus standi in opposing the grant of probate of the will of the deceased, on the ground of fraud, for, but for the will, which has been set up, he, in execution of his decree, could have attached the share of his judgment-debtor in that property. KISHEN DEI v. SATYENDRA NATH DUTT, 28 C. 441. (6 C. 429, 10 C. 19, R.) [D., 6 C. W. N. 912; R., 10 C.L.J. 263=3 Ind. Cas. 178.]

(151—155)—S. 69—See NOS. 58, 125, supra.

(156)—Ss. 69 and 71—Application for probate of the will of a Hindu widow—Objections by husband's reversioners on the ground that widow had no power to dispose of husband's property by will, validity of.—An executor by implication applied for the probate of the will of a deceased Hindu widow. Certain persons, alleging themselves to be the reversionary heirs of her husband objected to the grant of the probate, mainly, on the ground that the widow had no power to make a will disposing of the property of her husband. Held, the objectors, not being persons claiming to have any interest in the estate of the testatrix, within the meaning of s. 69 of the Probate Act, had no right to intervene and challenge the will set up. Their claim, as reversionary heirs, of the husband of the testatrix, was outside, and independent of, the will. If the widow affected to dispose of the property by her will, and had no power to do so, the objectors were not hurt. If the property was theirs, they could bring a suit to recover it BAISTAB CHARAN SHAHA v. GANGA SAGAR SAHA ROY, 1 C.L.J. 258.

(157)—Ss. 69, 86—District Judge admitting person as caveator, order of—Appeal, s. 588, cl. 2, Civ. Pro. Code.—S. 86 of the Probate and Administration Act makes the Code of Civil Procedure applicable to orders passed under that Act. [F., 4 O.C. 84, 4 C.W.N. 602, 26 B. 792; R., 52 P.R. 1902, 14 C.W.N. 119.] So, an order of the District Judge admitting a person as a caveator under s. 69 of the Probate and Administration Act is appealable under s. 588, cl. 2, Civ. Pro. Code. ABHIRAM DASS v. GOPAL DASS, 17 C. 48. [F., 4 O.C. 84, 4 C.W.N. 602, 26 B. 792; R., 52 P.R. 1902.]

(158)—S. 71—Probate or Letters of Administration—Objection to application—Caveat—Form of caveat.—Under the Code of Civil Procedure opposition to the claim made in a plaint is made by a written statement on the part of a defendant; consequently opposition to an application for probate or Letters of Administration should be made in the form of a written statement framed, signed and verified in the manner laid down in Civ. Pro. Code. No caveat is necessary where an application for probate or letters of administration has already been made. The form of caveat provided for in s. 71 of the Probate and Administration Act is one which, as s. 70 of the Act shows, may be lodged at any time after the death of a person by any one who claims to be interested in the estate of the deceased. The object of the provision for such form of caveat is to enable such person to ensure that no grant of probate of any will of the deceased or of letters of administration to his estate, shall be granted without notice to him. MOOTHOO COOMARASAWMY PILLAY v. JANIKI AMMALL, 1 L.B. R. 212.

(159)—S. 71—See NOS. 45, 176, supra.

(160)—Ss. 76, 83—S. 375, Civ. Pro. Code., 1882 (=O XXII, r. 3, new Code)—Proof of will—Grant of probate merely on consent—Agreement or compromise re the issue of genuineness of will in probate proceedings.—In a proceeding for the probate of a will, the will must be proved either in common form or per testes; if the proceeding is contentious, it must be proved in solemn form.—Unless the will is proved in some form, no grant of probate can be made merely on the consent of parties. The only issue in a probate proceeding relates to the genuineness and due execution of the will. The Court must itself be satisfied by admissible evidence that a will propounded is the will of the testator. Though a contentious proceeding for a probate takes under s. 83, Act V of 1881 as nearly as may be, the form of a suit, an agreement or compromise, as regards the issue of genuineness of the will, if its effect is to exclude evidence in proof of the will, is not lawful within the meaning of s. 375, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 (Evans v. Saundery, 30 L.J.P.D.A. 184, D.; Norman v. Strains, 6 P.D. 219, Roadmight v. Carter, 3 Sw. and Tr. 421, R.) MONMOHINI GUHA v. BANGA CHANDRA DAS, 31 C. 357=8 C W N. 197. (9 B. 241, 21 B. 335, F.) [R., 6 C.L.J. 453.]

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(161)—S. 77—Letters of administration—Inventory of estate, Period allowed by law to administrator to furnish.—According to the form of grant of letters-of administration prescribed by s. 77 of the Act, the Administrator is bound to make and exhibit an inventory of the property and credits within six months from the date of the grant. The Administrator is allowed by the law six months from the date of grant of the letters-of-administration, within which period he is bound to make and exhibit in Court a full and true inventory. He may, if he pleases furnish the inventory at any time within six months but he is not bound to do so till the last day. The time may be extended by the Court but cannot be curtailed. If the legislature had intended to leave the time for furnishing an inventory entirely to the decision of the Court, it would have been unnecessary to mention the period of six months at all. M.S.M.M. SATHAPPA CHETTY v. RANGAMA, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 444.

(162)—S. 77—See NO. 35, supra.

(163)—S. 78—Act IX of 1872 (Indian Contract Act), s. 129—Administration—Surety--Continuing guarantee.—When a person becomes surety, that an administrator will duly get in and administer the estate of a deceased person, this is not a continuing guarantee within the meaning of s. 129 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. Such a surety cannot, of his own free will, withdraw from his suretyship. KANDHYA LAL v. MANKI, A.W.N. 1908, 288=6 A.L.J. 19=31 A. 56=1 Ind. Cas. 143. (28 M. 161, F.; 29 C. 68, Diss.)

(164)—S. 78—Administration-bond—Surety—Charges of mismanagement and waste against administratrix—Suit by sureties to be discharged from liability--Continuing guarantee, revocation of—Contract Act, s. 130.—First defendant was an administratrix of her husband's estate. Plaintiff stood surety under s. 78 of Act V of 1881. The plaintiff sued 1st defendant and the other co-sureties, for discharge of his obligation from suretyship, as to future transactions of 1st defendant, on the ground that the 1st defendant mismanaged and wasted the properties, or, in the alternative, that she might be ordered to discharge certain claims against the estate and complete the administration. Held, that the surety to an administration-bond is not entitled to the relief of discharge from his liability, either by way of an application in the Probate Proceedings or by a separate suit, since the granting of such relief might defeat the object, for which an administrator is required to find sureties to an administration-bond. Held, also, that the special contract of suretyship entered into by a surety to an administration-bond is not governed by s. 130 of the Contract Act. SUBROYA CHETTY v. RAGAMMAL, 28 M. 161=14 M.L.J. 482. (29 C. 68, Not F.; 19 B. 245, F. & Appr.) [F., 31 A. 56=6 A.L.J. 19=A.W.N. 1908, 288=5 A.L.J. 349.]

(165)—S. 78—Application for Probate of a Will—Executor may be called upon to furnish security before granting probate—Amount of security—Discretion of Judge.—The petitioner applied for Probate of a will executed by her husband appointing her the sole executrix. The District Judge granted Probate, but demanded security for Rs. 20,000 with two sureties in the same amount each. Held, that, under s. 78 of the Act, the District Judge has a discretion vested in him to demand security even from an executor. Security is only required to guard against malpractices; and security is enough if it affords reasonable protection against malpractices which require time to be carried out. Security for three or four months' income is a sufficient safeguard against serious or continuous mismanagement. MAHAMAYA DEBI CHOWDHURANI v. GANGAMOYI DEBI CHOWDHURANI, 1 C.L.J. 180. [R., 6 C.L.J. 453.]

(166)—S. 78—See NOS. 126, 133, supra.

(167)—Ss. 78 and 102—Expense in administering estate—Consideration to surety for the due administration is such expense within s. 102 and a first charge against the estate.—The point for decision in this case was whether the estate of a deceased person was liable for the amount agreed to be paid as consideration to a person for his standing as surety for the due administration of the estate. Held, the consideration for inducing compliance with the Court's order, demanding security, must be included in the expenses of obtaining Letters of Administration within the purview of s. 102 of the Probate and Administration Act and must, therefore, be regarded as a first charge against the estate. The result of holding otherwise would be that, where security cannot be obtained gratis, Letters of Administration would not be granted and the estate might be wasted. IMAM BAKSH v. PURAN MAL, 31 P. R. 1906=133 P. L. R. 1906. (1 P.R. 1889, F.B., 31 C. 253, D.)

(168)—Ss. 79, 86—Appeal—Order re-assigning bond—Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), ss. 79, 86—Revisional power exercised when no appeal lies.—No appeal lies from an order assigning a bond under s. 79 of the Probate and Administration Act. But if the order is passed without jurisdiction, it can be revised and set aside by the High Court of its own motion at the same hearing. There is no provision in the Probate and Administration Act, empowering a District Judge to re-assign a bond

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

while the first assignment is still in force. Semble :—If there had been a condition in the bond that the assignment should be void, if the assignee failed to comply with certain requirements, a re-assignment might be possible. SEIKH KALIMUDDIN v. MUSSAMMAT MAHURNI. 15 C.L.J. 382 = 16 C.W.N. 662 = 13 Ind. Cas. 690 = 39 C. 563. (2 C.L.R. 589, 17 C. 48, R.; 28 C. 149, Diss.)

(169)—S. 81—Interest of the caveator—See SUCCESSION ACT, 1865 s 250, 12 Bom. L.R. 366 = 6 Ind. Cas. 523 = 34 B. 459.

(170)—Ss. 82, 92—Effect of s. 92, so far as it relates to executors—One of several executors appointed in the will, taking out probate, act of —Effect.—The effect of s. 92, Act V of 1881, so far as it relates to executors, is this, that where several executors obtain probate, and the will directs them all to act together, none of them can act singly ; but the section is not intended to disqualify, by reason of any such direction in the will, one of several executors who alone has obtained probate, the others having either renounced or refused to accept office. Where out of several executors appointed in a will, and jointly authorised to alienate any property for payment of debts and to borrow money for improving and preserving the testator's estate, one only takes out probate, and then renews a settlement of accounts signed by the testator on the same terms as to interest, held, such executor may take out probate when the other co-executors have refused to do so. The act of the testator being valid, it is binding on his estate. SATYA PRASHAD PAL CHOWDHRY v. MOTILAL PAL CHOWDHRY, 27 C. 683. (19 I.A. 221, D.)

(171)—S. 83—Letters of administration—Form of proceedings in cases where there is contention—Effect of grant of probate or letters—Objectors' rights not prejudiced.—S. 83 of the Probate and Administration Act provides that in any case before the District Judge in which there is contention, the proceedings shall take, as nearly as may be, the form of a suit according to the provisions of Civ. Pro. Code; consequently District Courts should follow the procedure of Chapter XI of the Code in such cases. In a proceeding, the object of which is to determine whether the applicant has the first claim to be clothed with the right to represent the deceased, the question of what the estate consisted of, and whether the property which the applicant alleged to be the estate did in fact belong to the deceased at the time of his death, and the fact that the property was in the objector's possession are not matters which should be gone into. It is not the province of the Court to go into questions of titles, and the grant of probate or of letters of administration would not prejudice in any way the objector's rights if the property really belonged to him, and not to the deceased. (4 C. 1, 8 C.L.R. 287, F.) The grant of probate or letters of administration only perfects the representative character of the grantee to the property which did in fact belong to the deceased at the time of his death, and enables the grantee to sue in a regular suit for property which he alleges to have belonged to the deceased at his death, although others claim it as theirs. MAUNG YE GYAN v. MA HMI, 1 L.B.R. 155. [Expl., U.B.R. 1910, 4th Qr., 69.]

(172)—S. 83—Application for probate—Contentious proceeding—Rules governing.—Contentious proceedings in an application for probate under the Act are governed by the Code of Civil Procedure. SANT LAL v MOHER SINGH, 44 P.R. 1893.

(173)—S. 83—Letters of administration—Contested application—Procedure.—The only procedure recognized by law for obtaining letters of administration in the Court of a District Judge, as regards cases covered by the Probate and Administration Act V of 1881, is by application under Chapter V of the Act, and, when such application is contested, the procedure prescribed by s. 83 of the Act is to be followed. A District Judge refused to try issues laid down by his predecessor in the matter of a contested application for letters of administration, on the ground that to try the issues so fixed "would amount to trying the whole case as a regular suit." The High Court on appeal remanded the issues to the lower Court for disposal according to law with reference to s. 83 of Act V of 1881. Act V of 1881 provides that, in the matter of letters of administration to the estate of a deceased person, the person who desires to have such letters of administration granted to him shall make an application to the Court. It provides what that application shall contain, how it is to be signed and verified, and allows the District Judge, if necessary, to examine the application in person. It further provides for the issue of a citation calling on persons having interest to come in and see the proceedings, thus providing a method by which a person who opposes the grant of letters of administration may be heard. Finally, by s. 83, the Act provides that where there is any contention, the procedure shall take as nearly as may be the form of a suit according to the Civ. Pro. Code, the applicant for letters of administration being treated as the plaintiff and the party who opposes the grant being treated as the defendant. The meaning of these words clearly is, not that when there is any opposition the Judge should refuse to proceed further and should refer the parties to a regular suit, but that the procedure in all further proceedings on the application before the Court, shall be according to the form of a suit between the petitioner as plaintiff and the opposite party as defendant. Under Act V of 1881, the proceedings are not by suit, but are distinctly directed to be by application, and s. 83, as shown above, does not direct that a regular suit should be instituted, but that the procedure on the hearing of the opposed application should be after the manner prescribed by the Civ. Pro. Code, for the trial of a suit. CHIRANJI LAL v. BANSIDHAR, A.W.N. 1893, 162.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(174)—S. 83—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. IX, r. 9, 14 C.W.N. 924=7 Ind. Cas. 126=12 C.L.J. 185.

(175)—S. 83—See NOS. 124, 127, 128, 137, 160, supra.

(176)—S. 84—Ses NO. 48, supra.

(177)—S. 85—See SUCCESSION ACT, 1865, ss. 332, 190, 1 L.B.R. 193.

(178)—S. 85—See NOS. 52, 69, supra.

(179)—S. 86 — Letters of administration, application for—Order of District Judge in proceedings under Act V of 1881—Appeal.—The appellant applied for letters of administration in respect of the estate of her deceased husband. The District Judge ordered that the Court fees payable on such letters of administration in respect of the said estate must be fixed before any further proceedings on the application could be taken. The appellant appealed from this order. Held, that s. 86. Act V of 1881, only allows an appeal to the High Court in cases in which an appeal is allowable under the Code of Civil Procedure; that the order of the District Judge was not such an order, and that it was not appealable. KADIR JAHAN BEGAM v. UDIT NARAIN, 4 O.C. 84.

(180)—S. 86—Appeal—Revision—Order of a District Judge that he has jurisdiction to entertain an application for letters of administration under.—Held, that an order of a District Judge, deciding that he has jurisdiction to entertain an application made to him for letters of administration under Act V of 1881, is neither subject to an appeal under s. 86 of the Act inasmuch as it is not an order made by him by virtue of the powers expressly conferred upon him by the Act, nor to a revision under s. 70 (a) of Act XVIII of 1884. because no revision is competent from such an interlocutory decision of a subordinate Court. SHIB DIT SINGH v. DEVINDAR SINGH, 94 P.W.R. 1910=70 P.R. 1910=7 Ind. Cas 710=123 P.L.R. 1910. (51 P.R. 1899, F.; 20 C. 245, 20 C. 539, 27 C. 5, R.)

(181)—S. 86—District Judge—Remuneration—Nazir—Appeal.—An order passed by a District Judge granting remuneration for preparing a list of the property left by a deceased person to which the Court is moved to grant letters of administration falls with the provisions of s. 86 of Probate Act and is appealable. MADHAWRAO v. NAZIR, 2 Bom. L.R. 798.

(181-a)—S. 86—Order reducing security—Circumstances—Applicability. — An order under s. 86 of the Act reducing the amount of security taken from an administrator is appealable. The Court's power to reduce the amount of security required of an administrator should not be exercised in a case where letters of administration as originally granted are intact and have not been modified or revoked. SULTAN SINGH v. NIDHAN SINGH, 31 P.R. 1899.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(182)—S. 86—See APPEAL—MISCELLANEOUS, 27 C. 5.

(183)—S. 86—See NOS. 129, 132, 136, 157, 168, supra.

(184)—Ss. 86, 90 "hereby" meaning of—Order permitting disposal of immoveable property,—The word "hereby" in s. 86 means "by the whole Act." and not merely by the chapter in which the section appears. An order of a District Judge granting permission to the executor or administrator, for the disposal of immoveable property, under s. 90, is appealable. UMA CHARAN DAS v. MUKTAKESHI DASI, 28 C. 149=5 C.W.N. 443.

(185)—S. 87—High Court—Jurisdiction to grant probate and letters of administration—Original side—Property not situate within jurisdiction—"High Court" meaning of, in s. 87, Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881)—Practice—Rule 740 of High Court rules.—The High Court (of Calcutta) has jurisdiction to grant probate or letters of administration on the Original Side, in any case which could have been brought before any District Judge in either of the two Provinces of Bengal. Under s. 87 of the Probate and Administration Act, the High Court has jurisdiction to grant probate, though any portion of the property is not situate within the limits of its original jurisdiction; and r. 740 of the High Court does not override the express provisions of s. 87, giving the High Court concurrent jurisdiction. The expression "High Court" mentioned in s. 87 is not merely confined to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court, but includes original jurisdiction. NAGENDRA BALA DEBI v. KASHIPATI CHOWDHURY, 37 C. 224=5 Ind. Cas. 1003. (5 C.W.N. 377, F.)

(186)—S. 87—See NO. 130, supra

(187)—S. 88—See NO. 44, supra.

(188)—S. 89—Interpretation of—Malicious prosecution, suit for—Survival of cause of action.—It is unnecessary to go into English cases upon the question whether or not the cause of action survives to the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, for malicious prosecution. S. 89, Act V of 1881, governs suits for malicious prosecution. Such suits, on plaintiff's decease, survive to his legal representative. The exception to s. 89 of the Act ought to be construed strictly. "Personal injury not causing death to the party," in s. 89 refers only to physical injuries and does not include injury caused by malicious prosecution. KRISHNA BEHARI SEN v. THE CORPORATION OF CALCUTTA, 31 C. 993=8 C.W.N. 745.

(189)—S. 89—Pre-emption—Right survives to executors or administrators on pre-emptor's death — See MAHOMEDAN LAW—PRE-EMPTION—GENERAL, 13 Bom. L.R. 1040=36 B. 144=12 Ind. Cas. 720.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(190)—S. 89—See MALICIOUS PROSECUTION, 31 C. 406=8 C.W.N. 329.

(191) — S. 90 — Will giving power to sell, — Power to mortgage. — Where a Will gave the executor power to sell the property to pay off debts incurred by the testator or if the property was a losing concern, the executor had power under s. 90 of Act V of 1881 to mortgage the property in case of necessity. PURNA CHANDRA BAKSHI v. NOBIN CHANDRA GANGOPADHYA, 8 C.W.N. 362. (3 C.W.N. 515, D.: 23 C. 908, 3 C.W.N. 483, R.) [F., 3 C.L.J. 260.]

(192)—S. 90—Permission to administrator to alienate—Estate fully administered—Widow as executrix—Life estate—Maintenance.—S. 90 of the Act has no application where the estate has been fully administered, all the debts collected and all legacies paid It cannot be said, where the widow is herself the administratrix, that the estate is charged with her maintenance, and that, therefore, till her death, the estate is not fully administered. LAKSHMI NARAIN CHATTERJEE v. NANDA RAN DEBI, 9 C.L.J. 116=3 Ind. Cas. 287. (3 C.W.N. 635, F.) [F., 14 C.W.N. 463.]

(193)—S. 90—Amendment Act (VI of 1889), s. 14—Powers of sale of executor under. nature of.—Under s. 90 of the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), as amended by the Amending Act (VI of 1889), s. 14, an executor has merely the ordinary powers of sale that an owner would have in so far as they are not limited by the Will and such powers are therefore subject to the usual rules of equity. SHRI BEHARILALJI v. BAI RAJBAI, 23 B. 342. [D., 37 C. 362.]

(194)—S. 90—Lease for more than 5 years.—A lease by an administrator for more than five years is not void but only voidable at the instance of any person interested in the property. As between the lessor and the lessee, it is good. SHUBADRA DASSYA v. CHANDRA KUMAR NAG, 8 C.W.N. 54. [R., 3 C.L J. 260]

(195)—S. 90—Executor — Restrictions imposed by will—Mortgage—Void—Voidable—Restitution—Beneficiaries, consent of.—R died in 1888, having previously executed a will, by which he directed that "if it became necessary to borrow more than Rs. 1,000 or to alienate any property of a greater value, to grant any pattah for any greater amount, then it might be done with the consent of N, or failing him with the consent of D and the widows of the testator." During the time the widows were in possession as executrixes, they executed a mortgage for Rs. 35,000 in favour of the plaintiffs, without the assent of N and without the leave of the Court. The probate granted to the widows, which was to last during the minority of one of the sons of the testator, was subsequently revoked and a fresh probate granted to that son. The mortgagees thereupon, instituted the present suit, which was dismissed by the Subordinate Judge, on the ground that the mortgage was not valid and binding on the estate, because it was not assented to by N, whose consent was, under the direction of the will, essential to the validity of the transaction. The plaintiffs, thereupon, appealed to the High Court. Held, that N was neither an executor by implication nor a mere overseer, but was a person, whose assent, the testator intended, should be obtained to validate certain classes of transactions, as the testator had confidence in his judgment and integrity. It was open to the testator to impose restrictions upon the powers and discretion of an executor and if, in practice, such restrictions proved injurious to the actual administration of the estate, it was equally open to the executor to apply for suitable directions to the Court. Held, also, upon a proper construction of s. 90 of the Probate and Administration Act, that the phrase "power to dispose" included any disposition by way of sale, mortgage, charge, exchange or lease and might also include a gift. As the executrixes executed the mortgage in spite of the restriction in the will without the assent of N and without the leave of the Court, their act must be taken to be one in contravention of the provisions of cl. 2, S. 90 of the said Act. An executor has power to mortgage the property of the testator, unless prohibited by the terms of the will. (23 C. 908, 3 C.W.N. 483, 8 C.W.N, 362, F.; 3 C W.N. 515, Expl.) An alienation by an executor or administrator without leave of the Court, where such leave is necessary under s. 90 of the Probate and Administration Act, is not void but merely voidable (8 C.W.N. 54, F.). No person, who is entitled to void a transaction ought to be allowed to do so, in such a manner as to enable him to recover property, which would otherwise be lost to him, and at the same to keep the money or other advantages which he has obtained under it. (22 M. 289, 25 A. 59, 15 B.L.R. 350, 9 A. 340, 24 C. 668, 18 A 373, 29 C. 473, 30 C. 539, 26 A. 342, 9 W.R. 108, 11 B.L.R. 460, 8 M. 92, 5 B. 450, 2 C. 341, R.) The maxim that "he who seeks equity must do equity" is applicable to a defendant as well as to a plaintiff; and a party, who seeks to avail himself of an equitable defence, must stand the test as well as one who appears as plaintiff in a case. If a mortgage is effected by an executor with the written consent of every beneficiary, it may fairly be regarded as in substance a mortgage by the beneficiaries themselves. THE EASTERN MORTGAGE AND AGENCY CO. LD. v. REBATI KUMAR RAY, 3 C L.J. 260. [R., 14 C.W.N. 451, 6 C.L.J. 490, 13 C.W.N. 557=9 C.L.J. 83=1 Ind. Cas. 289.]

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(196)—S. 90—Declaratory suit — Mortgage executed by the mother as administratrix to the estate of her father, if binding on her sons—Reversionary heirs, if and when bound by acts of their mother in regard to the property of their maternal grandfather—Mortgage created without permission of the Court, if voidable—Benefit to the estate—Debt of the owner of the property, repayment of—Avoidance of mortgage transaction, except upon equitable terms, if allowed.—An alienation by an administrator, without leave of the Court, where such leave is necessary under s. 90 of the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), is not void but merely voidable, and consequently no person who is entitled to avoid the transaction ought to be allowed to do so in such a manner as to enable him to recover property which would otherwise be lost to him and at the same time to keep the money or other advantages which he has obtained under it (3 C.L.J. 260, F.) Where plaintiffs seek for a declaration that a mortgage executed by their mother as administratrix to the estate of their maternal grandfather in order to repay a loan taken by the maternal grandfather is not binding upon them as reversioners, but do not offer to pay up the mortgagee, they are not entitled to avoid the transaction unconditionally, although the mortgage may be voidable by them under s. 90 of the Probate and Administration Act. CHARU CHANDRA PAL v. KALIDAS CHANDRA, 13 C. L.J. 447.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(197)—S. 90—Application by administratrix for leave to mortgage—Estate fully administered —Leave unnecessary.—An application by the widow and administratrix for leave to mortgage certain properties left by the deceased after the estate had been fully administered and when there were no debts or legacies of the deceased to be paid, should not be granted. Such applications could be granted only for the purpose of administration, and not after the estate has been fully administered. After the administration is at an end, the widow who had obtained letters of administration ceases to be administratrix, and remains in possession of the properties not as administratrix but as widow and heiress. She can sell or mortgage the properties without the leave of the Court, for purposes for which a widow can sell or mortgage. The idea that 'once an administrator always an administrator' is wrong and is opposed to practice. In the goods of NURSING CHUNDER BYSACK, 3 C.W.N. 635. [F., 9 C.L.J. 116.]

(198)—S. 90—Order under s. 90, Act V of 1881—Alienation by Hindu widow with the permission of Judge — Effect — Limitation.—An alienation of immoveable property by a Hindu widow, who has obtained letters of administration in respect of the estate, with the Judge's sanction, is valid as an absolute alienation irrespective of the existence of legal necessity, by virtue of the provisions of s. 90, Probate and Administration Act. A suit to set aside an alienation by a Hindu widow, will be governed by art. 13, Limitation Act, even though, without necessity, if the same were made under an order of the District Judge under s. 90, Act V of 1881. KANIKHYA NATH MUKERJEE v. HARI CHURN SEN, 26 C. 607.

(199)—S. 90—Scope—Order of High Court Judge on an application under s. 90, Act V of 1881—Letters Patent, cl. 15—Appeal.—S. 90 does not give the Court power to intervene in the administration of the estate in the hands of the executor, save so far as to judge whether, under the circumstances brought before it, it may seem right that he should have power under the Court's order to act in contravention of a restriction imposed in the will by disposing of any immoveable property specified in the order, in a manner permitted by the order. S. 90 is not intended to be invoked on the application of persons other than an executor or administrator. The permission is to be granted to him to assist him, if he needs such an assistance, in carrying out the administration of the estate. An order, on an application under s. 90, Probate and Administration Act, passed by a single Judge at the instance of the beneficiary, in a case in which there is no restriction on the power of the executor to sell, is without jurisdiction. Such an order is appealable under s. 15, Letters Patent. In the goods of INDRA CHANDRA SINGH, 23 C. 580. (9 C. 482, P.C., Appl.)

(200)—S. 90—Deed of transfer by executors of a will under s. 31, Act II of 1874—Effect—Executor's power of disposition.—A transfer of the interest of the executors of a will in the estate of the deceased, by them, to the Administrator-General, under the provisions of s. 31, Act II of 1874, confers on the Administrator-General only such powers of disposition as the executors themselves possessed. An executor's power of disposition is controlled by the testator. S. 90, Probate and Administration Act, does not make an executor's power to dispose of property of the deceased dependent upon the permission of the Court, except where such restriction is imposed by the will. In the goods of NUNDO LALL MULLICK, 23 C. 908. [F., 3 C.L.J. 260 ; R., 8 C.W.N. 362.]

(201)—S. 90—'Person interested' —Mahomedan reversioner—See CUSTOMS - PUNJAB —WILL, 14 P.R. 1912=96 P.W.R. 1912.

(202)—S. 90—See HINDU LAW — JOINT FAMILY, 9 C.W.N. 923.

(203)—S. 90, cl. 2—Restriction—Power of executor to dispose of immoveable property—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 21—Contract to perform which permission of Court is necessary, cannot be specifically enforced.—S. 90, cl. (2) of the Probate Act does not provide that the restriction, to be imposed on the power of an executor to dispose of immoveable property by the will, should be an express restriction in so many words. Restriction may be either express or implied. Where a will contained these provisions: "The executors shall be competent, in order to pay off my debts, to contract other debts, or to mortgage any property left by me; and on taking into consideration the state of the debts and of the properties, if they think the best means to pay off the debt would be to sell any property or to grant a patni lease or to settle it on permanent rent, in that case, they shall be competent to pay off the debt by selling Tappa H. and Tappa K : " Held, that, although there is no express restriction, there is a very strong implication that the testator never intended to give authority to the executor to grant any permanent lease of property other than the two Tappas mentioned in the will, and that the testator intended to restrict the power of the executor, so far as sale and lease were concerned, by confining it to the two specified Tappas. Where the defendant had agreed to grant a permanent lease to the plaintiff, but it appears that she the defendant has no power to execute the deed, without the permission of the District Judge: Held, that the contract as it stands is, from its nature, such that the Court cannot enforce its specific performance, to quote s. 21 of the Specific Relief Act. SATIS CHANDRA CHATURDHURIN v. JNANADA SUNDARI CHAWDHURANI, 1 Ind. Cas. 364.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(204)—S. 90, cls. (3) and (4)—Administrator acting in excess of his powers in entering into compromise - Effect—See COMPROMISE—MISCELLANEOUS. 14 C.W.N. 451=5 Ind. Cas. 236=11 C.L.J. 346.

(205)—S. 90 (4)—Act VI of 1889—Meaning of "any other person interested in the property." —The words "any other person interested in property" in s. 90 (4), must mean any person interested in the property independently of the executor whose alienation he seeks to avoid. JOGOBANDHU DEY PODDAR v. DWARIKA NATH ADDYA, 23 C. 446.

(206)—S. 90—See NOS. 44, 184, supra.

(207)—S. 91—See NO. 53, supra.

(208)—S. 92—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 231—Execution of decree—One of several joint decree-holders not competent to give a full discharge for the amount of the decree—Executors.—Held, that one out of several joint decree-holders is not competent to give a valid discharge for the amount of the joint decree, and his position in this respect is not affected by the fact that he and his fellow decree-holders are co-executors. LACHMAN DAS v. CHATURBHUJ DAS, A.W.N. 1906, 16=3 A L J. 49=28 A. 252. (26 A. 318, 334, F.)

(209)—S. 92—See NO. 170, supra.

(210)—S. 98—S. 15, Act VI of 1889—Meaning of certain expressions.—The Court cannot, under s. 98, Probate and Administration Act, go on from time to time directing executors to deliver accounts. The power given under that section can be exercised only once. The words in the section "from time to time appoint" relate to an extension of the period within which the inventory is to be exhibited. The words "from time to time appoint," cannot mean, in the earlier part of the section, that the Court can go on again, and again, calling on executors to furnish an inventory. The words in the latter part of the section "from time to time appoint," relate to an extension of time for putting in the account, and does not authorise the Court to go on calling upon the executors to exhibit accounts from time to time, as often as the Court thinks fit. The words "an account" mean one account, and not a series of accounts. MOHESH CHANDRA BHUTTACHARJEE v. BISWA NATH BHUTTACHARJEE, 25 C. 250=1 C.W.N. 646. [R., 8 C.W.N. 578=31 C. 628.]

(211)—S. 98—Sanction to prosecute—No finding if omission to file account intentional or accounts intentionally false.—The executor to an estate did not file any accounts while he continued as executor. After the probate was revoked, the Judge called upon him to produce his accounts within a certain time given. As he failed to comply with this order, his prosecution was sanctioned under s. 98 of Act V of 1881 for an offence under s. 176, I.P.C. The sanction was kept in abeyance on his then filing the accounts, and was subsequently restored when the Judge, on examining the accounts, suspected their genuineness. Held that the sanction was not good in law, and that the Judge was not right in making the order depend on the examination of the accounts themselves. The Judge ought not to have made the order sanctioning the prosecution under s. 176, I.P.C., without an enquiry whether the omission to produce the accounts was intentional or the accounts filed were intentionally false. Quære:—Whether the District Judge had no authority in law to call upon the executor, after his functions as an executor had ceased, to file the accounts which he might have been compelled to produce during his executorship, as enjoined by s. 98 of the Probate Act, and whether therefore the order calling for the accounts after the Probate had been revoked, and the order sanctioning the prosecution by reason of accounts not having been produced within the proper time were unauthorised. NABA CHUNDRA CHOWDHURY v. TRIPURA CHARAN CHOWDHURY, 2 C.W.N. 597.

(212)—S. 98—Succession Certificate Act, VII of 1889.—The procedure under Probate and Administration Act relates to the granting and revocation of probates and letters of administration and matters connected therewith; the administration of an estate is not provided for under the Act, and this can only be done in a regular suit brought for the purpose. The object of procedure under the Act is merely in the first place to have a representative of the deceased appointed in whom the rights to the property of the deceased shall be vested, and next to give power to revoke an appointment under certain circumstances. If the holder of a probate or letter is misappropriating the estate, the only remedy is to bring a regular suit for its administration by or under the orders of the Court. The fact that s. 98 of the Act gives an executor and an administrator six months within which to file an inventory, and one year within which to file an account, is no bar to any person having an interest or claim to the deceased's property bringing such a suit against the executor or administrator before such times expire. Probates and letters of administration are not the same as certificates under the Succession Certificate Act. In a certificate under the latter Act the particular debt must be set out in order to entitle the holder to sue for such debt, but in a probate and in letters of administration debts are not set out, and the production of one or the other is sufficient and is, under s. 59 of the Probate and Administration Act, conclusive that the holder at the time represents the deceased, and is entitled to his estate in the province in which the grant was made. If a person applying for probate or letters of administration fails to include any property of the deceased in his valuation, Chapter III-A of the Court Fees Act, contains provisions showing the consequences which may happen, and the courses open. KARIM BUX v. KING-EMPEROR, 2 L.B.R 161. [Expl., U.B.R. 1910, 4th Qr., 69].

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —continued.

(213)—S. 98—See NOS. 79, 131, supra.

(214)—S. 102—See NO. 53, supra.

(215)—S. 104—Scope of—Applicability to the case of creditor holding decree against the estate—His rights under s. 52, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908.—S. 104 of the Probate and Administration Act merely lays down a rule of procedure that must be followed by an executor or administrator, and is not applicable where a creditor, who has obtained a decree against the estate of a deceased person, applies for the execution of such decree. (22 M. 194, F.; 12 B.L.R. 287, 10 C. 929, R.). S. 52, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908, lays down the rights of such a creditor. MIN DWE v. C.A.P.C. SHUNMUGAM CHETTY, 6 L.B.R. 158=18 Ind. Cas. 510.

(216)—S. 104—See ACT II OF 1874, s. 35, 25 C. 54.

(217)—S. 104—See EXECUTION OF DECREE —EXECUTION BY OR AGAINST REPRESENTATIVES, 22 M. 194.

(218)—Ss. 105, 108—Direction in will for payment of debts—Specific legacy, mortgage by holder of—Decree against heirs for debts of the testator—Charge on property given in legacy. —A decree in favour of a creditor to the estate of a deceased testator is a mere money-decree, and has not the effect of creating a charge upon the property (9 C. 406, R.); a direction in the will for the payment of the testator's debt is only a general direction to pay up all his debts out of the estate, and does not create any charge thereupon. A purchaser in execution of such a decree cannot claim a valid charge upon the property as against a mortgagee from the specific legatee. A mortgage created by a specific legatee before the debts of the deceased testator are paid off, is not altogether invalid in law. AMBIKA CHARAN DUTT v. MUKTA KISHORI, 2 C.L.J. 138=10 C.W.N. 38.

(219)—S. 108—See NO. 218, supra.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) —concluded.

(220)—S. 113—Effect of dealing with bequeathed property—Assent to bequests—Divesting of executor's interest—Mortgage by guardian —Necessity.—An executrix, appointed under her husband's will, mortgaged the properties bequeathed to her sons, describing herself as the guardian of the minors. Held that her dealing with the property showed that she, as an executrix, assented to the bequests, and the effect of her so assenting was to divest her of all interest therein as executrix. Held also that there was no sufficient proof in that case to warrant the Court to hold that the mortgagee advanced the money to the guardian of the minor, believing honestly in the existence of a reasonably credited necessity. VIJAYARANGAM PILLAI v. DEVAKIAMMAL, 2 M.L.T. 343. (6 M.I.A. 393, Appl.)

(221)—S. 114—Sale of Government securities effected by administrators not qua administrators, but as heirs of a Hindu widow—See ADMINISTRATOR, 19 C. 26.

(222)—Ss. 128, 130, 131—Demonstrative legacies, interest whether allowable on.—S. 128 of the Act provides that the legatee is entitled to the produce of a specific legacy and ss. 130 and 131 entitle legatees to interest on general legacies. The absence, however, of a distinct provision in regard to payment of interest on demonstrative legacies, does not imply an intention to disallow interest in such cases. As regards the matter of interest, demonstrative legacies are to be viewed as of the nature of the general legacies, and, therefore, as carrying interest at 6 p.c. per annum from the expiry of one year from the death of the testator, such interest being payable out of the income or profits from which the principal amount of the legacies has been made payable. CHINNAM RAJAMANNAR v. TADIKONDA RAMACHUNDRA RAO, 29 M.155.

(223)—S. 130—See NO. 222, supra.

(224)—S. 131—See NO. 222, supra.

Probate & Administration Act (VI of 1889.)

[REP. IN PT., ACT XII OF 1891; (AS TO BURMA), ACT XIII OF 1898, S. 18; ACT II OF 1899; ACT XI OF 1899; S. 4; ACT V OF 1902, S. 9; S. 8 SUPERSEDED BY ACT VIII OF 1903, S. 2; (1) DECLARED IN FORCE IN THE SONTHAL PARGANAS, REG III OF 1872, S. 3, AS AMENDED BY REG. III OF 1899, S. 3; IN UPPER BURMA, EXCEPT THE SHAN STATES (EXCEPT s. 21), ACT XIII OF 1898, S. 4.]

(1)—See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT, 1881, s. 90 (4), 23 C. 446.

(2)—S 15—See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT, 1881, s. 98, 25 C. 250=1 C.W.N. 646.

(3)—S. 19—Retrospective effect of.—Between 1881 and 1889, neither an executor nor an administrator had power to sell real property without the sanction of the Court; but s. 19 of Act VI of 1889 made valid all invalid alienations that had been effected from 1881 onwards. RAJANI NATH MUKHOPADHYAYA v. RAMANATH MUKERJEE, 3 C.W.N. 483.

Probate Duty.

See COURT FEES ACT, s. 19-d, 23 C. 980=1 C.W.N. 31.

Probate Proceedings.

Costs and expenses of—Primary liability of the residuary estate—See COSTS—COSTS OUT OF ESTATE, 21 B. 75.

Procedure.

See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

See U. P. ACT XVII OF 1876, s. 74, 2 O C. 359.

No one has a vested right in—See EXECUTION OF DECREE — EXECUTION BY OR AGAINST REPRESENTATIVES, 9 Ind. Cas. 800.

Procedure, Chota Nagpur Landlord and Tenant Act.

See BEN. ACT I OF 1879.

Procedure Codes, Construction of.

See STATUTES, CONSTRUCTION OF.

(1)—Procedure Codes — Construction.—The widest possible construction should be put upon Codes of Procedure as distinguished from substantive law. GOBINDA RAM MONDAL v. BHOLANATH BHATTA, 16 C. 432.

Procedure, Landlord and Tenant Act.

See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1869.

Proceedings.

(1)—Act I of 1868 (General Clauses), s. 6—Meaning of "proceedings."—The word "proceedings" in s. 6, as applied to a suit, means the suit as an entirety, that is to say, down to the final decree. SATGHURI v. MIJIDAN, 15 C. 107. [R., 16 C. 267, F.B.]

(2) — The word "proceedings" is a very general one; it is not limited to proceedings connected with civil suits; but includes proceedings other than the civil proceedings, and civil proceedings other than suits. When applied to suits, it may be used to mean the suit as a whole, or it may be used, and often is used, to express the separate steps taken in the course of a suit the aggregate of which makes up the suit. DEB NARAIN DUTT v. NARENDRA KRISHNA, 16 C. 267, F.B.

(3)—Act X of 1877 (Civ. Pro. Code), s. 3.—"Procedure" —"Proceedings" meaning of.—The word "procedure" in the Civ. Pro. Code of 1877, s. 3, has not the same meaning as "proceedings" in s. 6 of Act I of 1868. "Procedure" implies the machinery by which proceedings are conducted; and this, after decree, is provided by the New Code, although the proceedings may have been instituted under the Old Code. Per Garth C. J. RUNJIT SINGH v. MEHERBAN KOER, 3 C. 662=2 C.L.R 391, F.B. [R., 4 C. 825=3 C.L.R. 593.]

Proceedings include appeals from decrees—See ACT I OF 1868, s. 6, 13 C. 86.

Proceedings of Legislative Council.

See STATUTES, CONSTRUCTION OF, 31 C. 628=8 C.W.N. 578, 22 C. 1017, F.B.

Proceeds of Sale.

See SALE—SALE FOR ARREARS OF REVENUE AND CESS—PROCEEDS OF SALE, RIGHT TO.

Process.

See RESISTANCE TO CIVIL PROCESS.

See SUMMONS.

(1)—"Process" meaning of the term—Commission, cl. 1, s. 20—Court Fees Act, VII of 1870.—A commission issued to an Amin to make a local investigation is not a "process" within the meaning of s. 20 of the Court Fees Act. Process has a well-understood meaning within which such a commission cannot be included. JAGAT KISHORE ACHARJEA CHOWDHRY v. DINA NATH CHUCKERBUTTY CHOWDHRY, 17 C. 281.

(2)—Respondent being a Hindu woman of rank—Service on her Dewan.—Where, by the custom in India, the respondent (being a Hindoo woman of rank) could not be personally served with an Order of Revivor, the Judicial Committee allowed service to be substituted on her Dewan, or chief servant. CLARK v. MULLICK, 2 M.I.A. 263 and 268=3 Moo.P.C. 252=Morton, 430=1 Sar. P.C.J. 188.

(3)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1859—Summons to party as witness—Service on pleader.—A summons under s. 165, Civ. Pro. Code, 1859, requiring a party to a suit to give evidence in it may be served on his pleader. SHIVRUDRAPPA v. KASHINATH VISHNU, 6 B H.C. A.C. 141.

(4)—Appeal—Notice—Service on pleaders.—Service upon pleaders would be good service on their employers, so far as notice of appeal is concerned. ISHUR DUTT MUNDUL v. SHIB PERSHAD THAKOOR, 15 W.R. 290.

(5)—Service of notice of appeal—Respondent residing in Foreign territory—Service by post.—If a respondent resides at a place in Foreign territory, notice of appeal should be forwarded to him by post under a registered cover; and if the respondent does not appeal, a verified statement should be put in to show that the said respondent is at present residing at that place in the Foreign territory, or has been living there recently. SONATUN BUKSHEE v. GOPAL CHUNDER SHAMUNTO, 15 W.R. 31.

(6)—Appeal — Appellant's inability to trace respondent — Notice of appeal not served—Procedure—Analogy of s. 57, Civ. Pro. Code.—Where a defendant special appellant was unable to serve notice of appeal on the plaintiff respondent within the time allowed by the Court, because he could not trace him (respondent) in the place given as his place of residence when he commenced the suit and in his petition of appeal to the Zillah Court, held that the appeal should not fail by reason of the plaintiff having given a wrong address, and that the case ought to be dealt with by analogy to the procedure in the case of summons under s. 57, Civ. Pro. Code. In the matter of BEDHOO KOOLANEE v. BONOMALEE GURAIN, 11 W.R 496.

Process—continued.

(7)—Nazir's report—Service of process—Evidence—Admissibility.—Where the report of a Nazir in the matter of service of a process is admitted as evidence in both the Courts below without any objection, held, that no objection could be taken for the first time in special appeal before the High Court in respect of its admissibility as evidence on the ground that it is no legal evidence. MOKOONDONATH BHADOORY v. SHIB CHUNDER BHADOORY, 19 W. R. 102.

(8)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, *ss.*79, 80, 82—Notice of appeal—Refusal to receive—Copy not affixed—No service—Ex parte decree—Effect.—When the respondent refuses to sign the acknowledgment of service endorsed on the original notice, it is the duty of the bailiff, under s. 80, Civ. Pro. Code, to affix a copy of the notice on the outer door of the house in which the respondent ordinarily resides and then return the original to the Court with a return endorsed thereon or annexed thereto stating that he has so affixed the copy and the circumstances under which he did so. When no such return is made, there is no due service. A decree passed ex parte under such circumstances is not legal and must be set aside. MARUTI VALAN UMAJI v. VITHU, 16 B. 117.

(9)—Rent suit—Application for re-hearing after attachment in execution—Limitation—Where in execution of a decree in a rent suit, the judgment-debtor's property is attached, and he applies for a re-hearing on the ground that notice was not served in the first instance when the suit was commenced, the Court should not enter into the question of service of notice without first determining whether the application for re-hearing was made within proper time. In the matter of PEAREE MOHUN DUTT v. PRANKRISTO ROY, 11 W.R. 310.

(10)—Act VIII of 1859, ss. 235, 239, 240—Attachment—Alienation—Service of process.—Where an attachment of land is made by a written order under s. 235, Act VIII of 1859, the three conditions in s. 239 must be fulfilled, viz. (1) the written order must be read aloud at some place on or adjacent to such land, (2) it must be fixed up in some conspicuous part of the Court house, and (3) it must be fixed up in the office of the Collector of the Zillah in which the land is situated, in order to render any private alienation of the property attached null and void under s. 240. INDRA CHANDRA BABU v. THE AGRA AND MASTERMAN'S BANK, 1 B.L.R. S.N. 20 (a)=10 W.R. 264. [Not F., 83 P.R. 1898.]

(11)—Talabana—Act XXIII of 1861, s. 2.—The omission by a plaintiff to deposit talabana required by the Court in a case pending for some time was held not to warrant the dismissal of the suit, inasmuch as the Court had not fixed a period for the deposit as it was bound to do under s. 2, Act XXIII of 1861. LALA PARSADI LAL v. LALA AMBIKA PARSAD, 3 B.L.R. App. 25=11 W.R. 290.

Process—concluded.

(12)—Act VIII of 1859, s. 273—Right of judgment-debtor to claim discharge from arrest—Evasion of process—Concealment of property.—Mere evasion of process by the judgment-debtor cannot, unless it could be connected with concealment of property, afford a valid ground for withholding the protection of the Court. So, the mere fact of a judgment-debtor having for a long period wilfully evaded service of process by flight into foreign territory, cannot empower the Court to refuse to grant the protection order which it can grant under s. 8 of Act XXIII of 1861. FRAMJI RUSTAMJI v. YOUNG, 49 P. R. 1875.

This circular requests that processes forwarded by the Calcutta Court of Small Causes be served in accordance with the instructions which accompany the processes. Civ. Cir. No. 24 dated 23rd August 1870, 14 W.R. Civ. Cir. 11.

This circular draws attention to Rule of the High Court, Original Jurisdiction, regarding charge for serving processes of other Courts. Civ. Cir. No. 25, 23 W.R. Rules and Ors. of H.C., p. 2.

Duty of serving officer towards personal service of—Substituted service, when proper—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. V, rr. 17, 19, 20 (1), 21 M. 419.

See PENAL CODE, s. 186, 2 B.L.R.F.B. 21=10 W.R. Cr. 43.

Process, Execution in Presidency towns of Mufassal Act.

See ACT XXIII OF 1840.

Process Fees.

(1)—Pauper—Process fee not leviable.—Process fees are not chargeable in pauper proceedings. Anonymous, 4 P.R. 1873.

(2)—Appeal—Notice to respondent—No period fixed for payment of process fees—Dismissal of appeal—Civ. Pro. Code (Act X of 1877), s. 557.—Where the Lower appellate Court had not fixed a period within which the Appellant was to deposit process fees for issuing notice to the respondent, it was not competent to that Court to dismiss the appeal under s. 557, Civ. Pro. Code, (Act X of 1877). PARSRAM v. KHARATI, 13 P.R. 1880.

For summoning witnesses—See ADJOURNMENT, A.W.N. 1886, 220.

Procession.

(1)—Processions—Public streets — Right of every member of public to conduct processions.—The right to conduct religious processions in the public streets is a right inherent in every person, provided he does not thereby invade the rights of property enjoyed by others, or cause a public nuisance or interfere with the ordinary use of the streets by the public, and subject to such directions or prohibitions as may be issued by the Magistrate to prevent obstructions to the thoroughfare or breaches of the public peace. Every member of the public, and every sect, has a right to use the public streets in a lawful manner, and it lies on those who would restrain the exercise of such right to show some law or custom having the force of law depriving him of the privilege SADAGOPACHARIAR v. RAMA RAO, 26 M. 376. [Affirmed, 30 M. 185=17 M.L.J. 240=4 A.L.J. 333=9 Bom. L.R. 663=11 C.W.N. 585=5 C.L.J. 566=34 I.A. 93, P.C.; F., 6 M.L.T. 285; R., 26 M. 554, F.B., 1 Ind. Cas. 716=32 M. 478, 32 M. 527=19 M.L.J. 467, 19 M.L.J. 617.]

Procession—continued.

(2)—Right to conduct religious procession along public road—Suit to enforce right—Maintainability—Special damage.—A Civil action to enforce a right to conduct a religious procession along a public road cannot be maintained without the plaintiff alleging any personal loss or damage caused to him. KAZI SUJAUDIN v. MADHAVDAS, 18 B. 693. [Appl., 34 B. 571; R., 11 Bom. L.R. 372=2 Ind. Cas. 494, 19 M.L.J. 617=32 M. 478=1 Ind. Cas. 478.]

(3)—Procession, right to go in—Public street—Magisterial order prohibiting procession, whether gives a cause of action.—Where the orders of the Magistrate prohibited procession in a public street, held, that the Magisterial orders furnished a good cause of action for a suit by a member of the public for declaration and injunction regarding his right to go in procession. MUTHAYYA REDDI v. SUDALAIMUTHU NADAR, 20 M.L.J. 119=5 Ind. Cas. 902=8 M.L.T. 114.

(4)—Public highway—Religious processions—Right of public to use highway for processions—Customary right of a particular sect to use a highway in derogation of the rights of another sect—Special damage—Maintainability of suit—Performance of ceremonies entitling one sect to use highway to the exclusion of another sect.—The right to go in procession through streets attended with music, &c., is a natural right inherent in every subject of the state, and no user is necessary to the creation of such right. The adherents of any particular religious sect cannot prevent the adherents of another religious sect from carrying on a religious procession, or from assembling for public worship in public streets, on the ground that such worship had not hitherto been carried on, or that it was opposed to religious feelings (26 M. 554, D.; 2 M. 140, 5 M. 304, 6 M. 203, 26 M. 376, 30 M. 185, R.) The performance of any religious rites or ceremonies by any sect or class of persons does not entitle them to appropriate a public street or any portion thereof for their religious processions or worship. Though no action lies for the obstruction of a religious procession along a highway in the absence of special damage, yet where an order has been passed by a Magistrate, restraining such procession from passing through a public street, at the instance of one party, the other party is entitled to bring a suit for declaration of their rights. KANDASAWMY MUDALI v. SUBRAYA MUDALI, 1 Ind. Cas. 716=19 M.L.J. 617. (2 B. 457, 18 B. 693, D.; 30 M. 15, R.)

(5)—Dharmakarta's discretion to arrange for procession—Omission of street in procession.—In a suit by certain persons against the Dharmakartas of a temple where the plaintiffs claimed that the procession of an idol should be carried through their street according to custom and contended that the Dharmakartas had no discretion in the matter, and the defendants pleaded that they had a discretion in the matter and that they acted in good faith in accordance with the wishes of a majority of the worshippers, held, per Sir Arnold White, C.J.—that the plaintiffs had to prove that there was a special custom excluding discretion on the part of the defendants, and that they had not proved such a custom. Per Davies, J.—The defendants had not shown that they had any authority to divert the idol's procession from its ordinary route, that they could take the idol to new places, only so long as they took it to the old ones. NAGALINGAM PILLAI v. RAMACHANDRA TEVAR, 11 M.L.J. 215.

Rival religious sects—Marching in procession with music on highway—Presumption of dedication—See HIGHWAY, 8 Ind. Cas. 175=20 M.L.J. 879.

Right to take idol in—See RES JUDICATA—PARTIES, 4 A.L.J. 333, P.C.=30 M. 185=17 M.L.J. 240=1 M.L.T. 204=11 C.W.N. 585=5 C.L.J. 566=9 Bom. L.R. 663.

Order of District Magistrate fixing route for—During the Moharram—See REVISION—GENERAL, A.W.N. 1891, 178.

Along public highway—Right of private persons to stop procession—Liability for damages for obstruction—See RIGHT OF SUIT—OBSTRUCTION TO PUBLIC HIGHWAY, SUITS CONCERNING, 1 M.H.C. 50.

Suit to enforce right to conduct religious procession, maintainability of—See RIGHT OF SUIT—OBSTRUCTION TO PUBLIC HIGHWAY, SUITS CONCERNING, 2 B. 457.

Right to carry—Through a public way—See RIGHT OF WAY, 19 M.L.J. 467=32 M. 527=4 Ind. Cas. 870=6 M.L.T. 285.

Suit, right of—Obstruction to procession—Worshipper—Special damage—See TORT, 20 M.L.J. 367=6 Ind. Cas. 780=8 M.L.T. 131.

Process-Servers Act.

See BEN. ACT V OF 1863.

Proclamation.

Queen's, of 1st November 1858—See BURDEN OF PROOF—GENERAL, A.W.N. 1897, 129.

Proclamation—concluded.

Proclamation No. 2833 of 1905—See JURISDICTION—GENERAL, 5 C.L.J. 550=34 C. 636, on review from, 34 C. 223=5 C. L J. 192.

Proclamation, irrescindable by subsequent proclamation—See KHOT, 1 Bom. L.R. 19=23 B. 518.

Proclamation of Sale.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, rr. 54, 66, 67, 90.

See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE.

(1)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, ss. 244, 287—Appeal.—In course of execution of a decree, it became necessary for the Court to ascertain the incumbrances to which the property of the judgment-debtor ordered to be sold was liable. The Court held these to amount to a sum of Rs. 4,600, and entered the same in the sale proclamation. The judgment-debtor appealed to the District Judge on this question who disallowed the appeal as not maintainable. Held that the appeal was valid, as undoubtedly the matter was one relating to the execution of the decree, and between the parties to the suit, under s. 244, Civ. Pro. Code, from which an appeal lay to the Judge. MOHAN LAL v. IBU HASAN, A.W.N. 1886, 167.

Of sale under Act XI of 1859—Irregularity in the description of the share of the estate to be sold—Inadequacy of price in consequence, evidence regarding—See BEN. ACT XI OF 1859, ss. 5, 6, 33, 9 C.W.N. 343, F.B.=1 C.L J. 14 =32 C. 502.

Revenue sale—Non-specification of share in, when a material irregularity—Proof of inadequacy of price as result of non-specification of shares in—See BEN. ACT XI OF 1859, ss. 6, 33, 9 C.W.N. 487=32 C. 542.

Adjournment of sale without fresh proclamation with consent of judgment-debtor—Objection to sale by another attaching creditor for want of proclamation—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 90, 24 M. 311.

Non-compliance of provisions under ss. 87, 88, and 89, Crim. Pro. Code—Suit for restitution of property sold—Maintainability of—See CRIM. PRO. CODE, ss. 87, 88 and 89, A.W.N. 1905, 102=2 A.L.J. 348=2 Cr. L.J. 247.

See EXECUTION OF DECREE—MISCELLANEOUS, A.W.N. 1888, 151.

See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 6 O.C. 76.

Execution sale—Material irregularity in proclamation of sale—Substantial injury—Presumption—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—MISCELLANEOUS, 7 C. 730=9 C.L.R. 341.

Objection by judgment-debtor to contents of, after sale—Witness, resummoning of—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE, MISCELLANEOUS, 4 O.C. 379.

Produce of Land.

(1)—N.W.P. Rent Act (XII of 1881), s. 56—Trees, if "produce of land."—Trees are not "the produce of the land" within the meaning of s. 56 of the N.W.P. Rent Act XII of 1881. BECHAI LAL v. TIKA, A.W.N. 1884, 135; KHAMAN SINGH v. BALA BAKSH, A.W.N. 1884, 152.

Suit for share of—See PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT, 1887, sch. II, art. 31, 7 Ind. Cas. 390=8 M.L.T. 281.

Suit for share in produce of immoveable property—Jurisdiction—See SMALL CAUSE COURT, MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF—GENERAL, 11 Bom. L.R. 1330=34 B. 171=4 Ind. Cas. 830.

Production of Documents.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XI.

(1)—Summons—Requiring party to suit to produce documents—Nature of summons.—A summons to a party to produce documents must be a written one describing the nature of the documents; a verbal order to the pleader is insufficient and is not such a summons as is contemplated by law. DOORGAMONEE DOSSEE v. BENODE MONEE DOSSEE, W.R. 1864, 164.

(2)—Production of documents with plaint—Ground for non-production.—Plaintiffs must, on the presentation of their plaints, produce in Court the originals of the document relied on by them in support of their claim. When a plaintiff can satisfy the Court at the hearing that some document on which he desires to rely was not presented with the plaint, because he was ignorant of its existence at the time, the Court will probably allow it to be received as evidence. CAMPBELL v. KEITH, 1 Hyde 287= S.C. RITCHIE STEWART & CO. v. GLADSTONE, WYLLIE & CO., 1 Ind. Jur. O.S. 125.

(3)—Documents not filed with plaint—Acceptance by lower Court—Rejection by Appellate Court—Duty of Appellate Court.—An Appellate Court must not reject those documents of the plaintiff in a suit which had been accepted by, and formed the basis of the decree of the lower Court, solely on the ground of their not having been filed with the plaint. MOHABEER DOSS v. LALLA ROY, 1 W.R. 12.

(4)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1859, s. 39.—Under s. 39 of the Civ. Pro. Code, 1859, the plaintiff was bound to produce, at the time the plaint is filed, all the documents on which he relied. PREMSOOKH CHUNDER v. RAJ KISTO MITTER, 1 Hyde 145=Anonymous, 1 Ind. Jur. O.S. 14.

(5)—Suit for confirmation of title—Possession—Evidence—Onus of proof.—In a suit for confirmation of title by a person, asserting possession without evidence of title, against a bona fide purchaser for value and without notice from one who is the ostensible owner of the property and in whose name the property stands, it is for the plaintiff to make out his title and not for the defendant to prove his. LEKHRAJ ROY v. MUTTY MADHUB SEN, 14 W.R. 95

Production of Documents—continued.

(6)—Civ. Pro. Code, Act VIII of 1859, s. 39—Script to refresh memory of witness—Necessity for being filed with plaint.—Where a memorandum or script is presented to a witness by the plaintiff in a case for the purpose of refreshing his memory and not as evidence in itself, it need not have been filed along with the plaint. RAMJI MADAUJI v. RANGAYYA CHETTI, 1 M. H.C 168.

(7)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1859, s. 39.—The plaintiff sued to recover certain jewels, and one of her witnesses being examined by her counsel with a reference to a list of the jewels which was in his possession the defendant's counsel objected to the document being referred to at all, as it had not been filed with the plaint in compliance with s. 39 of Act VIII of 1859: Held that s. 39 of Act VIII of 1859 referred only to promissory notes, bills of exchange, and such documents as are in their nature the very essence of the case. KAMENEE DOSSEE v. HURROMONEY DOSSEE, Bourke O.C. 91 = Cor. 151. MANOORAM SHAW v. HURRYPERSAUD ROY, Bourke, O.C. 162.

(8)—Reception of document after presentation of plaint—Court's discretion.—Under Act VIII of 1859, the Court has a discretion to receive, in evidence, documents not filed with the plaint. Mr. F. A. LOPEZ v. Mr. J. H. DRIBERG, W.R. 1864, Act X. 67.

(9)—Document not filed with plaint—Receipt in evidence subsequently—Receipt of document without stamp.—A Court can receive a document in evidence from the plaintiff, not filed with the plaint, on being thoroughly satisfied that the document is, in every respect, bona fide and worthy to be relied on. The pottah, being on plain paper, does not render it invalid. ATTA OOLLAH MUNDLE v. SUKEEOODDUN TIRUPDAR, W.R. 1864, 271.

(10)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1859, s. 39—Production of document at time of filing plaint—Non-production of copy of document—Dismissal of suit—Restoration.—In a suit on a promissory note, the note was produced when the plaint was filed, and marked by the Officer of the Court, but the Judge refused to admit it in evidence at the trial, because a copy of the note was not in the Court papers, and the plaintiff's counsel was not able to explain the omission. In the result he dismissed the suit, as there was no application to withdraw. Held that (i) that the Judge was wrong in not having received the note in evidence, as it was "produced in Court by the plaintiff, when the plaint was presented:" (ii) that there is nothing in s. 39 of the Code which would justify the Judge in refusing to receive the note in evidence, because he "examined the record and found no copy of the note was filed with the papers," and because the plaintiff's counsel was unable to explain the omission; and (iii) that the plaintiff was not bound to withdraw from the suit under the circumstances; as he was entitled to put the note in evidence the Judge ought to have received it, and (iv) that the suit should therefore be restored for trial on the merits. THOMPSON v. JEHANGIR HORMASJI, 3 B.H.C. O.C. 66.

Production of Documents—continued.

(11)—Lower Court's omission to hear witnesses—High Court to consider evidence and form independent opinion—Documents, when to be filed.—The Additional Principal Sudder Ameen before whom this case came on after a number of witnesses had been examined by his predecessor, allowed, at a late stage, after most of the witnesses had been examined, a very great quantity of documents to be filed and placed on the record, without any explanation of their being tendered at that late stage, and also without any enquiry whether they were relevant or otherwise. On the whole, the suit had not been in any respect tried or dealt with in conformity with the directions of the Civ. Pro. Code, and the High Court thought it fit and competent to them to come to a conclusion upon the evidence observing that the Court below had also seen the most part of it only in paper and the case had been protracted through a period of about two years. OPENDRO NARAIN GHOSE v. BAJPAYEE RAJAH-KESHUP CHUNDER DEB, 6 W.R. 25.

(12)—Civ. Pro. Code, ss. 59, 63, 138, 139—Rejection by Appellate Court of documents admitted by lower Court.—Where certain documents were allowed by the District Munsiff, during the trial of a suit, to be filed by the plaintiff, and the District Judge, on appeal, refused to consider them, on the ground that they were not filed with the plaint, nor entered in a list annexed to the plaint, and that the Munsiff had not given any reasons for admitting them, held, that the Judge was bound to consider them, once they had been admitted in evidence by the Court of first instance. MEENAKSHI v. VELU, 8 M. 373 [F., 22 B. 173, 8 C.L.J. 147 = 12 C.W.N. 312; R., 6 C.L.J. 621, 13 C.W.N. 797 = 10 C.L.J. 33.]

(13)—Single auction-sale of lands in several lots—Certificates of sale to be regarded as several certificates for purposes of registration, Civ. Pro. Code, ss. 59, 63—Production of certificate.—The lands that were purchased by the plaintiff in this case at an auction-sale were put up for sale in four lots although they were included in a single certificate of sale. For the purposes of the registration of the certificate, it was held that, though it was one instrument in form, it should be regarded as four separate instruments of certificate of the four several lots, each of which was admittedly the subject of a distinct contract of sale, and of a less value than Rs. 100. Held also with regard to the plaintiff not having produced the registered certificate when the plaint was presented, as required by s. 59 because there was no doubt of its existence at the time of the institution of the suit, that the lower Courts should not have refused their consent to its being given in evidence as required by s. 63. DEVIDAS JAGJIVAN v. PIRJADA BEGUM, 8 B. 377. [F., 12 C.W.N. 312 = 8 C.L.J. 147; R., 6 C.P.L.R. 55, 13 C.W.N. 797 = 10 C.L.J. 33 = 2 Ind. Cas. 946].

S. N. Das
Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar

Production of Documents—concluded.

Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 174—Witness attending on summons but refusing to produce document not punishable under—Scope of section—Punishment for refusal to produce document provided by the s. 175. I.P.C.—See WITNESS—DEFAULTING WITNESSES, 12 B. 63.

Professional Misconduct.

Solicitor—What amounts to—Right to be heard on matters relating to—See CONTEMPT OF COURT, 16 C.W.N. 386, P.C.

Professional Tax.

(1)—Municipal tax—District Municipalities Act IV of 1884). ss. 49, 50, 53, 101—Wrongful assessment—Suit to recover money illegally levied — Small Cause Court—Jurisdiction.—When professional tax has once been paid in one Municipality and subsequently for the same period, the tax is collected under protest a second time by another Municipality, the taxpayer is entitled to sue the latter Municipality for a refund of the money wrongfully collected from him. The suit will lie in the Civil Courts, and if the amount is within the pecuniary limits of a Small Cause Court, such a suit will lie in the Small Cause Court. TUTICORIN MUNICIPALITY v. SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY, 13 M. 78. [R., 24 M. 205; D., 19 M. 10.]

See MAD. ACT I OF 1884, s. 103, 8 M.L.J. 164.

Officer on tour—Liability to profession tax—See MAD. ACT I OF 1884, s. 190, 22 M. 145.

District Court situated outside Municipality—Pleader practising in it—See MAD. ACT IV OF 1884, 18 M. 183.

See MAD. ACT IV OF 1884, 21 M. 5.

See MAD. ACT IV OF 1884, ss. 3 and 60, 4 M.L.T. 477.

Income less than Rs. 30 a month —Legality of levying profession tax—See MAD. ACT IV OF 1884, s. 53, sch. A, Proviso 4, 24 M. 644.

What amounts to an exercise of profession—See MAD. ACT IV OF 1884, s. 55, 17 M. 453.

See MAD. ACT IV OF 1884, ss. 55, 56, 60, 262, 15 M. 153.

Profits.

Attachment of—Of vatan, removal of, on Collector's certificate—See BOM. ACT III OF 1874, s. 10, 4 B. 426.

See ATTACHMENT—SUBJECTS OF ATTACHMENT, 28 C. 483.

Profits a prendre.

(1)—Distinguished from license.—A profit a prendre is a right to remove and appropriate any part of the soil belonging to another, or anything growing upon or attached to the soil for the purpose of the profit to be gained from the property thereby acquired, i.e., for example, a right to take gravel, stone, trees, and so forth. A right to collect fees from pedlars and others who come to sell their wares and to bury their dead, by way of remuneration for the claimant's services as takiadar of a grave-yard, and a permission given to him to take any fruit that he could find on the trees therein, is not a profit a prendre, but is merely a license. SAIYAD WAJID ALI SHAH v. MUSAMMAT UMRAI BIBI, 1 A.L J. 621.

Profits a prendre—concluded.

What are—See U.P. ACT II OF 1901, s. 4, 6 A.L.J. 400=31 A. 342=2 Ind. Cas. 223.

See INAMDAR, 1 Bom. L.R. 499.

Provisions of statutes, the Crown how far affected by—S. 26 of the Limitation Act is not applicable to the Crown—Rights of pasturage claimed as against Government—Profits a prendre, rule of English law regarding—Acquisition by custom or prescription—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 26, 14 B. 213.

Profits, Suit for.

(1)—Mortgagor and mortgagee—Mortgagor failing to put mortgagee in possession—Claim for profits—Lambardar.—Where a mortgagor, also lambardar, failing to put the mortgagee in possession, realizes the profits of the mortgaged share, he cannot, on suit by the mortgagee for profits, plead want of actual possession in the latter; to allow this plea would be to allow the mortgagor to take the benefit of his own wrong. If the profits sought in the suit were profits arising from a share of a co-sharer, to whom the lambardar had before suit and in good faith paid them away, the suit against him for such profits might be met by the plea that payment had been made to the person in possession. NEEL KUNTH v. MUSSUMAT ROUSHUN, 2 Agra Rev. 6.

(2)—Suit by putteedar against lumbardar—Suit for share of profits—Limitation—Act XIV of 1863, s. 2.—A suit by the putteedars against the lumbardar to recover their share of the profits of the estate, in which the plaintiffs state various acts of the lumbardar in taking the land and the profits of the land, and appropriating them to his own use, withholding from the plaintiffs their due share, is a suit by co-sharers for their share of the profits, and the limitation applicable to such a suit is three years and not one year. SHEIK KHOJAYE v. MAHOMED TAQUEE, 2 Agra Rev. 11.

(3)—Partnership—Participation in profits.—It is a fallacious argument that, because a man is interested in the profits of a partnership, he is therefore a partner. Participation in profits does not of itself constitute a partnership. The true question is not whether the person sought to be made liable participated in the profits, but whether the trade has been carried on by persons acting on his behalf. There is no rule of law which imposes partnership liability on a person who advances money to others for carrying on their business and in return secures to himself a share of the profits which may arise from the employment in the business of the Profits, Suit for—continued.

money so advanced by him. RAJA PRATAP CHANDRA SINGH BAHADUR v. MOLLWO, MARCH AND CO. 3 B.L.R.A.C. 238=12 W.R. 56 [Affirmed, 10 B.L.R. 312, P.C.=18 W.R. 384.]

(4)—Profits, suit for, against co-sharer—Co-sharer in undivided patti, responsibility of, for share of profits to another co-sharer.—The defendant was the proprietor of half of a 5 biswa patti and the plaintiff was the mortgagee from him of the other half of the patti. There had been no division of tenants between the parties and either of them could have collected the whole of the rent due from tenants. The plaintiff sued to recover a certain sum alleged to be due from the defendant on account of her share of the profits for three years. The defendant pleaded that he had not collected more than his share and that he was not responsible for the rent which the plaintiff had failed to collect. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to half the total profits of the 5 biswas calculated on the amount realized. The fact that the defendant did not obstruct or prevent her collecting was no reason for holding that he was entitled to retain the whole of the amount he had collected, inasmuch as it did not exceed half the total rental of the patti for the three years. PARBATI v. KUAR BODHI SINGH, 4 O.C. 363.

(5)—Profits, suit for share of—Account, suit for—Small Cause Court, jurisdiction of—Act IX of 1887, sch. II, art. 31—Appeal—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 586.—Held, that a suit for a share of the profits of an estate against the co-sharers is one for an account and is excepted from the cognizance of a Court of Small Causes under art. 31, sch. II, Act IX of 1887, in which the words "for an account" include a suit in which an account is expressly asked for as well as suits in which there must be an account, like suits in which a share of profits is claimed. GOVINDE v. MATHURA, 5 O.C. 130.

(6)—Profits, suit for a share of—Rendition of accounts, suit for — Rent Act (Oudh), 1886, s. 108, cl. (15).—In a suit under cl. (15), s. 108 of the Oudh Rent Act, 1886, the main question was whether the suit was for "a share in the profits" or for "the rendering and settlement of accounts in respect of those profits." The parties were the co-sharers in a patti and collected the rents separately and paid the revenue separately. The plaintiff claimed for arrears of rent and profits, and the settlement of accounts for the years running from 1306 to 1309 Fasli. He gave details showing the gross rental, his own share, what he had realized and the balance due to him. He prayed for the following reliefs:—(a) that an order be passed for the rendition of accounts and (b) that on the accounts being made up his claim may be decreed. Held, that if a plaintiff claims a share of the profits, whether he asks for a settlement of accounts or not, as a necessary preliminary to ascertaining what his share really is, that is a suit for a share of the profits, and that the only case for a settlement of accounts would be where the plaintiff asked for a settlement of accounts pure and simple, and did not claim a money decree as the result. Held therefore, that the plaintiff's suit was a suit for his share of the profits. BHAIYA BRIJ RAJ SINGH v. RAM PARGHAT, 7 O.C. 84.

(7)—Suit for profits and for such relief as the Court might deem proper—Small Cause—Remand — S. 562, Civ. Pro. Code—Order carried out by original Court—Right of appeal, s. 588 (28), Civ. Pro. Code—Power of Chief Court on appeal.—Held, that a claim for six years' profits and for such other relief as the Court might deem proper is a Small Cause; and appeal against the decree lies to the District Judge and not to the Divisional Court. The District Judge on appeal remanded the suit under s. 562, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882. On appeal against this order in the Chief Court under s. 588 (28) it was objected that inasmuch as the appellant had submitted to the remand order and allowed the Court below to pass a decree which had become final before the appeal was filed in the Chief Court his appeal could not be heard. Held, following P. R. 89 of 1891 F.B and 17 of 1899 that the objection was untenable. Held, further, that the order remanding the case under s. 562 Civ. Pro. Code was wrong on the ground that the original Court had not decided the case on a preliminary point. Held, also, that on appeal under s. 562, Civ. Pro. Code, the Chief Court has the power to go into the merits upon which a preliminary point is decided but where the original Court has disposed of the suit upon a point other than preliminary and the appellate Court disagrees with it and remands the case under s. 562 the Chief Court can set aside the order and direct the lower Appellate Court to try the appeal. MEHR KHAN v. RAM NATH, P.L.R. 1900, p. 314.

Sir land not included in Rent-roll—Suit for profits of such land—See U.P. ACT XVIII OF 1873, s. 14, 1 A. 656.

See U.P. ACT XVIII OF 1873, s. 93 (h), A.W.N. 1881, 107.

Suit by co-sharer for profits—Limitation—See U.P. ACT XVIII OF 1873, ss. 93 (h) and 94, A.W.N. 1881, 71.

See U.P. ACT XVIII OF 1873, ss. 93 (h), 206, A.W.N. 1881, 27.

See U.P. ACT XVIII OF 1873, s. 209, 2 A. 239.

See U.P. ACT XII OF 1881, s. 93, A.W.N. 1882, 208.

See U.P. ACT XII OF 1881, s. 93 (h), A.W.N. 1884, 349, A.W.N. 1899, 62.

See U.P. ACT XII OF 1881, ss. 93 (h), 189, A.W.N. 1884, 45.

See U.P. ACT XII OF 1881, ss. 93, 207, 208, A.W.N. 1888, 74.

Profits, Suit for—concluded.

Suit for profits—Conduct of lambardar—Burden of proof—See U.P. ACT XII OF 1881, s. 209, 8 A. 61=A.W.N. 1886, 1.

By co-sharers against lambardar—See U.P. ACT XXII OF 1886, s. 108, cl. (15), 4 O.C. 1.

Jurisdiction—See U.P. ACT II OF 1901, ss. 164, 197, 9 Ind. Cas. 848.

See CO-SHARERS—GENERAL, 20 A. 73=A.W.N. 1897, 197.

Suit for—By one sharer against co-sharer who has mortgaged his share—Joinder of co-sharer and his mortgagee as parties—See CO-SHARERS—SUIT BY CO-SHARERS, 9 O.C. 142.

Lambardar and co-sharer—Suit for profits—See CO-SHARERS—SUIT BY CO-SHARERS, 3 A. 186.

See CO-SHARERS—SUIT BY CO-SHARERS, 17 A. 423=7 A.W.N. 1895, 18, 16 A. 28, F.B.=A.W.N. 1893, 214.

Suit for—See HINDU LAW—JOINT FAMILY, A.W.N. 1899, 206.

U. P. ACT XVIII OF 1873, s. 93, cl. (h)—Suit for profits—Interest—See INTEREST—SPECIAL CASES, 1 A. 261.

See JURISDICTION—CAUSES OF JURISDICTION, 6 N.W.P. 47.

See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, A.W.N. 1881, 56.

See JURISDICTION OF REVENUE COURT, 2 Agra 302, 3 N.W.P. 112, 1 Agra Rev. 52.

Suit by co-sharer for recovery of his recorded share of profits from lambardar—Limitation—See LAMBARDAR, A.W.N. 1892, 45.

See PRE-EMPTION — MISCELLANEOUS, 19 A. 261, F.B.=A.W.N. 1897, 44.

Suit for, of immoveable property—Jurisdiction—See PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS' ACT, 1877, sch. II, cl. 31, 8 Ind. Cas. 270.

See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL—SMALL CAUSE COURT SUITS, 21 B. 248.

Presumption arising from receipt of, as between tenants-in-common—See TENANCY-IN-COMMON, 7 Bom. L.R. 252=29 B. 300.

Pro forma* Defendant.

Execution of decree—Mesne profits—Not liable for—See EXECUTION OF DECREE—APPLICATION FOR EXECUTION AND POWER OF COURT, 5 C.L.R. 305.

Joined as plaintiff—Added plaintiff—"New plaintiff"—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 22, 8 C.L.J. 286=13 C.W.N. 186=35 C. 1065=5 M.L.T. 91.

See RES JUDICATA—PARTIES, 12 C. 580, F.B.

Prohibited Degrees.

See ACT IV OF 1869, s. 19, 12 C. 706.

Projection.

(1)—Indian Easements Act, 1882—Projection for purpose of ornamentation.—There can be no prescriptive right to projection, which has been erected merely for the purpose of ornamentation. NRITTA KUMARI DASSI v. PUDDOMONI BEWAH, 30 C. 503=7 C.W.N. 649. (3 B.L.R. O.C. 18, 47, R.) [R., 29 M. 511=16 M.L.J. 281.]

Projection, of a balcony, into a private street and construction in defiance of the orders of the Municipality, can be removed by the Municipality—See BOM. ACT VI OF 1873, s.33, 5 Bom. L.R. 48=27 B. 221.

Of a beam, over the land of another, construction can be made over the land which overhangs the beam—See EASEMENT, 6 Bom. L.R. 356=28 B. 428.

Promise.

A promise to pay a time-barred debt is valid. The same principle applies to pay such a debt with interest. GANESH v. VISHNU, 9 Bom. L. R. 1164=32 B. 37.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 19, 1 B. 590=P.J. 1877, 74.

Promisee.

Who are included under—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, ss. 2 (c), 37, 38 and 67, 4 M.L.T. 335.

Promises de futuro.

Representations relating to promises de futuro are binding as a contract and not as an estoppel—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 115, 6 Bom. L. R. 428=28 B. 399.

Promissory Notes.

See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS — PROMISSORY NOTES.

(1)—Promissory note—Maker managing member of a joint Hindu family—Endorsement—Whether negotiation or assignment—Other members of the joint family not liable to the endorsee even though consideration for the pro-note binding on family—S.130—Transfer of Property Act.—The endorsement of a promissory-note entitles the endorsee to sue only the maker and after his death his legal representatives. The endorsement cannot avail as a transfer of an actionable claim under s. 130 of the Transfer of Property Act. SEETHARAMA CHETTY v. SESHIAH CHETTY, M.W.N. (1912) 1011=17 Ind. Cas. 417.

(2)—Promissory note—Execution in favour of minor— Minor subjecting himself to no detriment—Validity.—A promissory note payable on demand executed in plaintiff's favour when he was a minor is not void so as to disentitle him to institute a suit on it, when he did not subject himself to any detriment by accepting it. SATHRURAZU v. BASAPPA, 24 M.L.J. 363 = M.W.N. 1913, 415 = 18 Ind Cas. 968 = 13 M.L.T. 325. (30 C. 539, D.; 33 M. 312, 24 M.L.J. 352, R.)

Promissory Notes—concluded.

(3)—Promissory-note, suit on— Execution admitted—Undue influence of plaintiff and immorality of defendant pleaded—Burden of proof—Consideration—Contract Act, s. 16—Interest up to date fixed for payment—Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), s. 79.—In a suit on a promissory-note, the defendant—a young man of 25 or 26—admitted the execution of the pro-note but contended that (1) the plaintiff had obtained the note by the exercise of undue influence (2) a major portion of the consideration had not been paid by plaintiff, and (3) whatever consideration was paid by plaintiff was paid for animmoral purpose: Held, that, as there was nothing on the face of the pro-note or in the evidence to indicate that the bargain was an unconscionable one, or to show that the plaintiff was in a position to dominate the will of the defendant, the onus lay upon the defendant to prove the pleas of undue influence and immorality. Under s. 79 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, a plaintiff is entitled to interest at the stipulated rate from the date of the institution of the suit till the date fixed for payment. GHAZAFFAR HUSSAIN v. MAHABIR PRASAD, 17 Ind. Cas. 309.

Proof.

See BURDEN OF PROOF.

See EVIDENCE.

(1)—Daughter's son, adoption of—Custom among Jats.—According to the general custom in the Punjab, an adoption of a daughter's son is valid among the Jat caste, and the mere circumstance that no instance of such an adoption amongst Jats of a certain got in a particular district could be adduced, was not sufficient to establish affirmatively that the custom of that got differed from the general custom. BHUPA v. UTAM SINGH, 61 P.R. 1880. [Appl., 33 P.R. 1886, 43 P.R. 1886, 159 P.R. 1890; R., 34 P.R. 1883, 172 P.R. 1883, 107 P.R. 1891, 50 P.R. 1893, F.B., 19 P.R. 1895, 47 P.R. 1910 = 116 P.L.R. 1910; D., 69 P.W.R. 1910.]

Verbal admission of sum due on account—See ACCOUNTS—MISCELLANEOUS, 13 C.L.R. 266, P.C = 10 I.A. 74.

See BUDDHIST LAW—ADOPTION, 1 L.B.R. 273.

Statement in written statement not proof—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XVI, r. 20, 9 B. L.R. 215 = 17 W.R. 550.

See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS, 1 C.W. N. 682.

Ancient documents—Of—Custody—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 90, 9 C.L.R. 425.

Lunacy—Degree of proof—See LUNATIC, 18 M. 472.

Proof—concluded.

Person not bound to keep proof of matters which the law says he need not prove—See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS—HUNDIS—GENERAL, 25 P.W.R. 1910 = 24 P.L.R. 1910 = 5 Ind. Cas. 891.

Of purchase with notice—See NOTICE, 1 L.B.R. 160.

Pleading and proof — Variance—Practice—See PLEADINGS, 25 A. 256, F.B. = A.W.N. 1903, 18.

To correspond with allegations in the pleadings—See PLEADINGS, 4 C.L.J. 370 = 11 C.W.N. 85.

Proof of Age.

Age of assured—Onus of proof—See INSURANCE, 20 B. 99.

Property.

(1)—Rent—Property — Moveable property—Bengal Act, VIII of 1859—Bengal Act X of 1859.—For the purposes of Acts VIII and X of 1859, rent comes within the terms "property" and "moveable property." MAHESCHANDRA CHATTAPADHYA v. GURUPRASAD ROY, 5 B.L. R. 155 = 13 W.R. 401. (1 B.L.R.A.C. 177, D.)

(2)—Actionable claim—Transfer of Property Act, s. 6.—Under the Transfer of Property Act, property includes an actionable claim. RUDRA PERKASH MISSER v. KRISHNA MOHAN GHATUCK, 14 C. 241.

(3)—Certificate - Act XXVII of 1860—Magistrate taking property under s. 404—Act XXV of 1861—Custody of property—Reg. V of 1799—Delivery of property to holder of certificate on security.—Where a Magistrate, on a representation from H, who alleged himself to be a cousin of the deceased, refused to deliver the latter's property to his widow who held a certificate under Act XXVII of 1860, and she, having had her appeal to the Sessions Judge dismissed, moved the High Court under s. 404 of the Crim. Pro. Code, held (1) that the High Court had no jurisdiction to deal with the matter under s. 404 of the Crim. Pro. Code, (Act XXV of 1861) or otherwise, (2) that the property which was taken by the Magistrate ought to have found its way into the care or custody of the Civil Court in the manner contemplated by s. 7, Reg. V of 1799; (3) that the Civil Court ought to treat the property as being practically in its temporary care, and (4) that the property might be delivered to the widow on her furnishing proper security for the purpose of indemnifying H. CAZEE ABID HOSSEIN v. MUSSUMAT REAZUN, 15 W.R. 302.

(4)—Produced at criminal trial—Order for disposal of—Property as to which no offence appears to have been committed—Crim. Pro. Code, s. 517.—An order altering the possession of property which has been produced at a criminal trial or enquiry can only be made under s 517 of Crim. Pro. Code. Such an order can only be passed as to property regarding which an offence appears to have been committed. When, however, the order does not distinguish between property as to which an offence appears to have been committed, and property as to which no offence appears to have been committed, the order must be treated as a nullity. The Civil Court has no power to revise an order made by a Criminal Court, but if the Civil Court finds such an order to have been made without any legal authority, it may treat the order as of no binding force. RUSSEL BUX v. PARAAG, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 318.

Property—concluded.

See ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT, 17 A. 82=A.W.N. 1895, 14.

Power of appointment given to testatrix by will of her husband if "property" within the meaning of Court Fees Act—See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, sch. I, item II, 25 M. 515.

Property, meaning of the term—See HINDU LAW- WILL, 10 C.L.J. 355=3 Ind. Cas. 642 =37 C. 128=14 C.W.N. 18.

Possession under decree since reversed—Restitution of property with mesne profits, order for—See MESNE PROFITS—SUITS FOR MESNE PROFITS AND ASSESSMENT IN EXECUTION, 14 C. 484.

Mercantile—Whether pre-emption obtains in case of sales of—See PRE-EMPTION—RIGHT TO PRE-EMPT, 111 P.R. 1906.

Right of every person to use his property as he thinks fit, irrespective of others' susceptibilities, without infringing the law of the land and rights of others—See PUBLIC NUISANCE, A.W.N. 1908, 64=5 A.L.J. 147=7 Cr. L.J. 381=30 A. 181.

Right to, and right to rent, insepara ble—See RIGHT OF SUIT — LANDLORD AND TENANT, SUITS CONCERNING, 6 M.H.C. 363.

Propinquity.

Texts or precedents absent under the Dayabhaga Law—Theory of, and natural love and affection as propounded by Vignaneswara and writers of orthodox school of Hindu law to be resorted to.—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 12 C.W.N. 511=35 C. 721.

Proprietary Dues.

Suit for—Inamdar—Small Cause Court—See SMALL CAUSE COURT, MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF—GENERAL, 2 M. 146.

Proprietary Estates' Village Service Act.

See MAD. ACT II OF 1894.

Proprietary Right.

(1)—Proprietary rights, dispute as to—Settlement — Possession without title — Ancestral property.—Where the Revenue authorities have made a settlement with the parties whose proprietary rights are in dispute on the ground of possession without title, it is still necessary for the Court to see how that possession was obtained ; if that possession had devolved upon the parties with whom the settlement was made from their ancestors, their respective rights in the property in dispute must be determined with reference to the status of the family at the time of the settlement. TARINEE DOSSEE v. CHUNDER NATH DUTT, 9 W.R. 376.

Proprietary Right—concluded.

(2)—Landlord and Tenant—Denial of landlord's title—Title found unquestionable—Rent —Proprietary title.—Where plaintiff's cause of action is the denial by defendants of his proprietary title, and both Courts have found that title, to be unquestionable, he need not be sent back to the first Court on a technical ground. To tell the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit for a kubooleut would be simply to promote litigation unnecessarily between the parties. MOULA BUKSH KHULIFA v. KENA MUNDUL 20 W.R. 261.

(3)—Dakhilee and uslee village—Proprietorship.—The proprietorship of a dakhilee village may remain in the hands of one or two or more parties, whereas the proprietorship of an uslee village may remain in the hands of different proprietors altogether with separate rights and interests. SYUD ABDUL ALI v. MULLICK SUDDEROODEEN AHMED, 14 W.R. 493.

(4)—Proprietary rights, claim to—Enjoyment of Kan and Kumki rights — Admission of— Absence of assertion of proprietary title by predecessor-in-title — Acts of enjoyment not referable to kumki rights — No proprietary right.— Where the predecessors-in-title of the plaintiff never asserted any claim of proprietary rights over the suit lands, but, on the other hand, admitted, that they possessed only kan and kumki rights over them. Held, that the plaintiff could not sustain his claim to proprietary right, even though he might be able to prove certain acts of enjoyment not ordinarily referable to kumki rights. CHERA SHANKARANARANAPPAYA v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 9 M.L.T. 218=9 Ind. Cas. 329.

See ABSENTEE, 34 P.R. 1874.

Relief on the ground of, claimable in the alternative, with a claim under a prescriptive right—See ALTERNATIVE CLAIM, 4 C.L.J. 367.

Suit for declaration of—Cause of action—Limitation—See DECLARATORY DECREE, SUIT FOR—MISCELLANEOUS, 12 O.C. 320= 4 Ind. Cas. 159.

See DECLARATORY DECREE, SUIT FOR—MISCELLANEOUS, 9 W.R. 426.

Prosecution.

Order to prosecute for offence not committed —Material irregularity — Revision—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 115, 8 A.L.J. 537.

An agreement to stifle a, is void in law—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 23, 6 Bom. L.R. 73 =28 B. 326.

Prosecution—concluded.

Stifling of—What is—See HINDU LAW—DEBTS, 3 A.L.J. 506=A.W.N. 1906, 212=28 A. 718.

Dismissal of complaint without issue of process if amounts to—See MALICIOUS PROSECUTION, 15 C.W.N. 917.

When commences—Complaint made, but no process issued—Effect—See MALICIOUS PROSECUTION, 37 C. 358=6 Ind. Cas 877.

Stifling of— Non-compoundable offence — Consideration for agreement—Void—See PUBLIC POLICY, 6 N.L.R. 148.

Prospectus.

See COMPANY — ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION AND LIABILITY OF SHARE-HOLDERS, 1 B. 320.

Prostitute.

(1)—Landlord and tenant—Lodgings let to a prostitute.—A landlord cannot recover the rent of lodging knowingly let to a prostitute who carries on her vocation there. GAURINATH MOOKERJEE v. MADHUMANI PESHAKAR, 9 B.L.R. App. 37=18 W.R. 445.

(2)—Succession — Prostitutes of Lahore — Muhammadan Law.—In matters of succession the parties are governed by Muhammadan Law. MUSSAMMAT JIWAN v. MUSSAMMAT KAREM-UN-NISSA, 148 P.R. 1889.

(3)—Prostitute — Succession to her property —Stridhan - Outcaste, status of—Hindu prostitute, by what law governed.—The stridhan property of a Hindu woman who has adopted the life of a prostitute passes upon her death, in the absence of nearer heirs, to her brother's son as an heir under the Bengal School of Hindu Law. The term stridhan under the Bengal School of Hindu Law, has no technical meaning; "that alone is stridhan which a woman has power to give, sell or use independently of her husband's control." (5 I.A. 1, 1 C. L.R. 318, R.) When a person becomes an outcaste, he is not, in the contemplation of Hindu law, civilly dead for all purposes, and the tie of relationship which connected him with his kindred by blood is not completely severed. The rites which are directed to be performed by his kindred when he becomes an outcaste, are intended to emphasise the complete exclusion of the outcaste from all social and religious performances. A woman, by the mere fact of lapse into prostitution, does not cease to be a Hindu or to be subject to the rule of Hindu Law. HARI LAL SINGH v. TRIPURA CHARAN RAY, 17 C.L.J. 438, F.B. =17 C.W.N. 679=19 Ind. Cas. 129=40 C. 650.

Application by mother of illegitimate child to have the child removed from the custody of the father and placed under her custody—Mother being a—See ACT IX OF 1861, A.W.N. 1887, 239.

See ACT IV OF 1869, s. 11, 3 B.L.R. App. 9.

Prostitute—concluded.

Public policy—Landlord and tenant—House let to—Rent, suit for—See CONTRACT—ILLEGAL CONTRACTS, 102 P.L.R. 1904.

Lease of house to prostitute—Public policy contravened — Agreement immoral—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 23, A. W. N. 1908, 285= 6 A.L.J. 7=5 M.L.T. 55=31 A. 58=1 Ind. Cas. 52.

Letting house for — Suit for rent—When recoverable—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 23, 2 P.R. 1898.

Of Lahore—Succession—No special custom —See CUSTOMS — PUNJAB—INHERITANCE, 22 P.R. 1891.

See CUSTOMS — PUNJAB—INHERITANCE, 52 P.R. 1893.

Adoption by—See HINDU LAW—ADOPTION, 36 C. 824=3 Ind. Cas. 996.

Prostitute, adoption by, of a girl—See HINDU LAW—ADOPTION, 4 Bom. L.R. 116=26 B. 491.

Property of — Stridhan—Succession—Sons, chaste and unchaste daughters—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 9 Ind. Cas. 657.

Hindu Law — Succession to property of a prostitute—Her prostitute sister, preferential heir—See HINDU LAW — INHERITANCE, 12 M. 277.

Succession to properties of — See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 3 Ind. Cas. 374=11 C. L J. 124.

Succession to the estate of a Hindu—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 10 C.W.N. 1085.

Ramjini prostitutes—Adoption of dancing girl—Custom—Training up a girl as a—Meaning of "Nochi,"—See HINDU LAW—INHERITANCE, 6 Ind. Cas. 210.

Rent—Suit for rent of houses let to prostitute—Immoral contract—Contract Act, 1872, s. 23—See RENT, SUIT FOR, 65 P.R. 1904.

Prostitution.

(1)—Hindus—Practices of prostitution.—In the case of Hindus, there are strong grounds for maintaining that practices of prostitution are related to worship in the temples, and meet with countenance from the law. But even in the case of Hindus great difficulties have been felt by Courts of Justice in admitting the validityof transactions for furtherance of prostitution. GHASITI v. UMRAO JAN, 21 C. 149, P. C.=20 I. A. 193=6 Sar. 370. (4 B. 545, R.) [R., 26 M. 176=12 M.L.J. 264.]

Guardianship of minor—Prostitution a disqualification to custody—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—GUARDIANSHIP, 1 A. 598.

Protection of Judicial Officer's Act.

See ACT XVIII OF 1850.

Protection Order.

(1)—Insolvency—Protection order—Receipt of dividends — Cancellation of protection order by Bankruptcy Court—Suit by creditor for balance of debt—Limitation.—In November 1864, S. filed a petition in the Bankruptcy Court of Ludianah praying that a composition might be effected with his creditors on his making over half the amount of his pension of Rs. 600 per mensem for the liquidation of his debts. His property was accordingly attached and prior to its sale, all the creditors with the exception of three, whose claims, in the aggregate, amounted only to a small sum, had agreed to allow S. to retain the possession and the use of his property and were willing to accept whatever sum was fixed upon by Court for the liquidation of their claims. Treating the application as one under s. 36 of the Bankruptcy rules, the Court passed a decree fixing the monthly instalments payable by the bankrupt in order to give effect to the arrangement come to between him and his creditors, and directing that Rs. 350 per mensem out of the petitioner's pension be vested in the hands of the Official Assignee to be rateably distributed among his creditors according to the schedule of debts filed with the case. The bankrupt having executed an agreement not to alienate his property, the Court gave him an order of protection stating the conditions of his discharge to be that he should not alienate property hypothecated to the Court. The agreement and protection order were both silent as to the pension. The bankrupt's property was then sold and dividends paid rateably to the creditors, including the plaintiff. On the Pensions Act coming into force, the Judge, of his own motion, raised the question as to the validity of the attachment of the bankrupt's pension. On the Judge summoning and examining the bankrupt, he stated that he was desirous of availing himself of the provisions of s 12, Act XXIII of 1871, and said that he would pay his creditors the amount he had heretofore allowed them through the Court and refused to pay into Court regularly a fixed portion of his pension. The Judge of the Ludianah Court on 7th August 1872 passed an order said to amount to one revoking the discharge. In 1873, one of the creditors, the present plaintiff petitioned the Bankruptcy Court to cancel the protection order. The Judge considered his order of 1872 sufficiently indicative of his intent that the bankrupt's certificate and protection order should be thereby cancelled, but, being of opinion that he had omitted to distinctly specify such cancellation in the order, summoned the bankrupt to appear, and, overthrowing his objections, he recorded an order expressly to the effect that the bankrupt was no longer under the protection of the Court and that the certificate of protection should be considered as cancelled. The present suit brought by the above creditor for the balance due on his bond of 1862 was opposed as barred by the fact that the defendant was adjudicated insolvent in 1869, the debt having been inserted in the schedule, but it was held that the defendant's adjudication as an insolvent and the acceptance by the plaintiff of his dividend would not preclude him from suing for the balance of the debt, and his suit would therefore be maintainable in the Civil Court. Held also that the period during which the claim was under the consideration of the Insolvent Estates Court did not run against the plaintiff. LALU MAL v. SULTAN SIKANDER, 36 P.R. 1875, F.B.

Protection Order—concluded.

Protection, Private Fisheries.

See BEN. ACT II OF 1889.

Provident Fund.

See ATTACHMENT—SUBJECTS OF ATTACHMENT, A.W.N. 1897, 88.

Deduction from pay for Provident Fund and Mutual Assurance Fund—Personal estate—Right of Official Assignee—See INSOLVENCY—MISCELLANEOUS, 10 B. 313.

Provident Funds Act.

See ACT IX OF 1897.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907).

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1882, ss. 336 TO 359.

(1)—Order appointing a receiver—Obstructing a Receiver—Contempt—Remedy of person claiming property as his own.—Obstructing a Receiver in taking possession of the property of a person, against whom insolvency proceedings are pending, under the orders of the Court, is a contempt of the Court. The Receiver should not be resisted, and the person claiming the property as his by purchase may move the Court against the action of the Receiver. E. D. SASSON AND CO. v. MOOSAJI ESMAILJI LOTIA, 9 Ind. Cas. 485.

(1-a)—Right of Receiver to apply to Court for instructions for his guidance.—A receiver appointed under Act III of 1907 is entitled to apply for and obtain directions from the Court whenever necessary. Re TIRATH DAS NATHUMAL, 6 S.L R. 286 = 19 Ind. Cas. 920. (19 B. 660, R.)

(2)—Ss. 2 (e), 13 (2), 16 (3)—Goods in possession of insolvent as commission agent—Receiver—Reputed ownership — Restoration of goods to true owner.—As a commission agent has a disposing power, which he may exercise for his own benefit, over goods entrusted to him for sale, such goods are his property for the purposes of the Insolvency Act, and an interim receiver can take possession of them as his property in insolvency proceedings against him. (35 W.R. 2, Rel. upon.) But where the circumstances clearly indicate that the commission agent is not the "reputed owner" of the goods, his principal is entitled to a restoration of the goods. (27 W.R. 385, R.) The doctrine of reputed ownership implies that the owner has unconsciously allowed goods to remain in possession of the insolvent and so enabled him to get more credit in his business than he is entitled to. But where this is not the case, the goods will be restored to owner. In re MESSRS. KADIBHOY ISMAILJI LOTIA, 11 Ind. Cas. 14.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

(3)—Ss. 2, sub-s. 1, cl. (g), 47, 46, 16 (6), 13, 18—High Court if may grant interim protection and appoint receiver pending appeal—Inherent jurisdiction—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), s. 151.—Where an appeal has been preferred against an order refusing the appellant's application to be declared an Insolvent, the High Court has power, in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction as a Court of appeal, to make an ad interim order for protection of the appellant, and for the appointment of a receiver of his assets during the pendency of the appeal (3 A.L.J. 29, 3 C.L.J. 67, R.) As there appeared to be substantial points in controversy in the case, which required consideration, the High Court granted ad interim protection pending appeal to the appellant, and also appointed a receiver of his assets. ABDUL RAZAH v. BASIRUDDIN AHMED, 14 C.W.N. 586 =11 C.L.J. 435=6 Ind. Cas. 95.

(4)—S. 3, cl. (1)—Jurisdiction conferred on Small Cause Court after notice issued to objectors—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 360—Notification conferring jurisdiction after repealing the section—Effect of.—A petition in insolvency, addressed to a District Judge, was presented to a Judge of the Court of Small Causes, who ordered notices to be issued, and subsequently adjudicated the petitioner to be insolvent. The District Judge on appeal affirmed the order of the Judge of Small Cause Court. In neither Court was any plea as to jurisdiction taken. It was objected, before the High Court in revision, against the order adjudicating the petitioner insolvent, that, on the date on which the petition was presented to the Judge of Small Causes, no jurisdiction under s. 3, cl. (1) of the Insolvency Act III of 1907, had been conferred on him. Such jurisdiction was, however, conferred upon him a few days after the presentation of the petition, so that he possessed it on the date on which he directed notices to be issued and gave his final decision. Having regard to the very late stage of the case at which the objection was raised, and also to the fact that the petition was addressed to the District Judge who had jurisdiction, and that, at any moment after the jurisdiction had been conferred upon the Judge of Small Causes, the case could have been transferred to his Court, held, that the case had been properly entertained and decided by the Judge of Small Causes. DEBI PRASAD v. STANLEY RAY, 6 A.L.J. 483=2 Ind. Cas. 223.

(5)—Ss. 3, 43, 46—Bengal, N. W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), ss. 8, 20—Additional District Judge, Jurisdiction of—Insolvency petition—Appeal.—Where an additional Judge had, under s. 43 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, sentenced an applicant for insolvency to one month's simple imprisonment, the said officer having exercised the powers of a District Judge by virtue of an assignment of one of his functions by the latter officer under s. 8 of the Bengal N.W.P. and Assam Civil Courts Act, held that an appeal lay to the High Court, the Additional Judge not being, in this matter, subordinate to the District Court as contemplated in ss. 3 and 46 of the Insolvency Act. MAKHAN LAL v. SRI LAL, 9 A.L.J. 371=14 Ind. Cas. 162=34 A. 382.

(5-a)—S. 4 (c)—Fraudulent preference—Freedom of choice and free will—On an application made by G, he was declared an insolvent. One of the creditors, T stated that another creditor M, had been given perference fraudulently and the lower Court ordered the amount paid to M to be made over to the receiver. It appeared that G used to supply certain provisions to a certain mess and was paid for them. On the complaint of certain creditors of his, especially M, it was arranged that the mess president should make payments directly to M out of the money due to G. Certain payments were thus made by the mess president to M about a month prior to the proceedings, and it was contended that it amounted to a fraudulent preference. Held, that the word 'preference' implied freedom of choice and a free will, and, in the present case, the power of payment had been taken out of the hands of the debtor and he had no choice in the matter, and there was no fraudulent preference within the meaning of s. 4 (c) of the Act. MAULA BAKHSH v. TEJA MAL, 11 A.L.J. 545.

(6)—Ss. 4, 5, 6—Matters to be decided by Court before order of adjudication—Ss. 12, 14 to 16—Procedure thereon—S. 14—Object is to obtain early information about the property and conduct of parties—The policy of the Act—Enquiry into the judgment-debtor's conduct and indebtedness not to be conducted at one and the same time.—Where a petition is presented either by the debtor or a creditor, the Court has, under s. 15 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, to be satisfied with petitioner's right to present the petition. Ss. 4, 5, 6, lay down the matters to be decided by a Court before an order of adjudication is passed, and the further procedure is laid down in ss. 12 and 14 to 16 Matters of which strict proof is explicitly required by the Act are only those set out in s. 4 (1). The object of the provision is to obtain information, at as early a stage as possible, of the property and the whole conduct of the debtor in their relations to the insolvency proceedings. The policy of the Provincial Insolvency Act is not to enquire into the whole conduct of the judgment-debtor and the questions relating to his indebtedness at one and the same time. The matters to be decided at the time of adjudication are stated in the above sections, but besides those the Court can refuse to pass an order of adjudication on other grounds. Whether all the debts are real or not and whether property has been concealed or not are not questions that need be inquired into at the time of adjudication. BAVA JEER CHETTY v. BAVA RANGASAMI CHETTY, 2 M.W.N. 1911, 480=10 M.L.T. 433=22 M.L.J. 52=12 Ind. Cas. 618. (15 C.W.N. 313, 32 A. 645, R.)

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

(7)—Ss. 4, 15—Debtor's application for adjudication—Inability to pay debts, if must be proved.—A debtor's application to be adjudicated an insolvent cannot be dismissed on the ground that he could not satisfy the Judge that he was unable to pay his debts. KALI KUMAR DAS v. GOPI KRISHNA RAY, 15 C.W.N. 990=12 Ind. Cas. 48.

(7-a)—S. 5—See NO. 6, supra.

(8)—Ss. 5, 6, 13, 14, 15, 43, 44—Petition in insolvency—Act of bad faith by petitioner—No ground for dismissing petition at preliminary stage—Distinction between Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 and Provincial Insolvency Act, pointed out.—The question whether a petitioner in insolvency has or has not committed acts of bad faith is to be determined by the Court, not at the preliminary stage when the order of adjudication has to be made under ss. 15 and 16 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, but at the final stage when application is made for an order of discharge under s. 44. Therefore, a petition in insolvency cannot be dismissed under s. 15 of the Act on the ground that the conduct of the petitioner has not been satisfactory and that he has made a false statement in his petition, inasmuch as he has mentioned the name of a certain person as creditor in whose favour he had created a fictitious debt. The fundamental distinction between the provisions of the Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, and the Insolvency Act of 1907 is this: whereas, under the former law, before the petitioner could be adjudged an insolvent, his conduct in respect of his creditors and in relation to the disposal of his own properties had to be taken into account, under the latter Act, the order of adjudication follows almost as a matter of course upon the presentation of the insolvency application, and the question of the conduct of the petitioner becomes material only when he asks for an order of discharge. UDAI CHAND MAITY v. RAM KUMAR KHARA, 7 Ind. Cas. 394=12 C.L.J. 400.

(9)—S. 6—See NOS. 6, 8, supra, and NO. 28, infra.

(9-a)—S. 6—'Or'—Meaning — Judgment-debtor arrested or imprisoned—Application for insolvency—Place of arrest—Presentation not restricted to Court having jurisdiction over.—Where a debtor has been arrested or imprisoned, he is not limited in the presentation of his insolvency petition to a Court having jurisdiction in the local area where he is in custody. The word 'or' in s. 6 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is used in the sense of giving an alternative choice. CHANSHAMDAS NEBHANDAS v. MUSSAMMAT VISHINDEVI, 5 S.L.R. 259=15 Ind. Cas. 830.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

(10)—Ss. 6, 15—Arrest in execution — Right to present application—Accounts not kept regularly—Relevancy of accounts to the order of adjudication—Right to be adjudged insolvent.—The right of a debtor, who has been arrested in execution of decrees, to present a petition for insolvency, arises not under s. 6 (3) (a) but under s 6 (3) (b) by reason of his arrest in execution. The fact that an applicant asking to be adjudged an insolvent has not kept his accounts regularly is a matter which may be considered when he applies for his discharge. It is not relevant to the order of his adjudication. The words "for any other sufficient reason" in s. 15 (1) of the Provincial Insolvency Act only apply to the case of an insolvency petition presented by a creditor. (32 A. 645, 7 A.L.J. 835, 7 Ind. Cas. 39, App. & F.) When the Court finds that a person has a right to present a petition under s. (6) (3) (b), that he has committed an act of insolvency under s. 4 (f) in presenting it, and that he is unable to pay his debts, an order of adjudication should be made. In the matter of VITHALDAS KALIDAS, 9 Ind. Cas. 632.

(11)—Ss. 6, 15, 16, 44 — Petition of insolvency—Preliminary stage—Bad faith, act of—Dismissal of petition—Appeal—Party — Non-opposing creditor not to be made respondent—Right to apply in insolvency.—It is not necessary for an appellant, who was a petitioner in insolvency, to add, as a party respondent to his appeal, a creditor mentioned in his petition, who did not appear in the Court below to oppose the application. At the preliminary stage contemplated by s. 15 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, it is not open to the Court to dismiss the petition on the ground that the petitioner had improperly alienated a portion of his property in lieu of dower. The question of bad faith or improper dealing with the property of an insolvent arises for consideration at a much latter stage of the proceedings. If the debtor applies for an order of discharge, it becomes obligatory upon the Court under s. 44 of the Provincial Insolvency Act to investigate whether or not he has been guilty of acts of bad faith. The contingencies mentioned in sub-s (3) of s. 6 of the Act are to be taken in the alternative, and if any one of them happens, the debtor becomes entitled to present an insolvency petition. SHEIKH SAMIR-UD-DIN v. KADAR MOYEE DASSI, 7 Ind. Cas. 691=12 C.L.J. 445. (7 Ind. Cas. 394, 7 Ind. Cas. 39, 7 A.L.J. 835; F. 7 A.L.J. 602, 6 Ind. Cas. 870, Not F.)

(12)—Ss. 6 (1), 15, 16, 44, 45—Insolvency petition, presentation, and admission of—Order of adjudication—Order of discharge—Fraud or other acts of bad faith by debtor, consideration of.—Held, that, where an insolvency petition has been put before a Court by a debtor under Act III of 1907, the Court is entitled to dismiss the application, only when it is satisfied that the debtor had no right to present the petition under s. 6 (3) of the Act. Held, further, that the provisions about proof of the service of notice on the debtor, or of the alleged act of insolvency, or of the debtor's ability to pay his debts or of any other sufficient cause contained in s. 15 (1) of Act III of 1907, refer to cases where the insolvency petition is put in by the creditor. Held, also that, where a debtor has a right to present the petition, the Court is bound under s. 16 (1) to make an order of adjudication. Questions relating to alleged bad faith or fraud, etc., on the part of the debtor arise for decision only when the debtor applies for an order of discharge. HAMID ALI v. M. IHTISHAM ALI, 13 O.C. 94=6 Ind. Cas. 748.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

(13)—S. 6, sub-s. (2)—Residence—Acts of bad faith.—Under s. 6, sub-s. (2) of the Act, it is not necessary for the petitioner to reside for a long time at a place within the jurisdiction of the Court. The procedure laid down in the Provincial Insolvency Act is materially different from that laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure of 1882. ABDUL RAZAK v. BASIRUDDIN AHMED, 15 C.L.J. 457=14 Ind. Cas. 980=17 C.W.N. 405.

(14)—S. 6, sub-s. 3 and s. 15 — Debtor's petition—Grounds of refusal—Right to present when exists.—The only ground recognised by s. 15, Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907, on which a debtor's application can be refused, is that the Court is not satisfied with the proof of the right to present the petition; and his right to present the petition depends on his being able to show the existence of one of the three alternative conditions prescribed by sub-s. 3 of s. 6 of the Act. DAULAT v. SAHEBLAL, 6 N.L.R. 145.

(15)—Ss. 6 (3), 15 (1)—Bad faith or misconduct on the petitioner's part—Prospects of paying the money borrowed.—Where a large portion of the debts incurred by an insolvent was spent in litigation undertaken by his wife to recover a share of the estate left by her former husband, and where the creditors lent their money with their eyes open, expecting indemnification at the end of the litigation: Held, under the circumstances, that it could not be said the petitioner had no reasonable prospect of being able to re-pay the loans. Quære:—In opposing an insolvent's petition for adjudication under s. 16, is it open to a creditor to show merely that the debtor has not proved his right to petition under s. 6 (3) or can he allege and prove bad faith or misconduct to prevent the Court from granting such adjudication? V. C. T. A. R. SUBBIAH PILLAI v. ABDUL RASHID, 9 Ind. Cas. 462.

(16)—Ss. 10, 16 — Death of the insolvent, effect of—Order of adjudication—Vesting of assets—Distribution of dividends—The death of an insolvent does not exempt the assets in the hands of a Receiver from distribution. By virtue of an order of adjudication, the whole property of the insolvent, viz, that which is in existence at the date of the order, and that which might be acquired subsequently, vests in the Receiver, and this transfer of interest to the receiver is not affected by the death of the insolvent. The legal aspect of the matter is that the natural existence of the insolvent is, for the purpose of dealing with and realizing his estate artificially continued in the Official Assignee, who can after such death deal with the estate as he could have dealt with, while the insolvent was alive. In re KHOJA IBRAHIM LALJI, 9 Ind. Cas. 633. (7 B. 438, F.)

(17)—S. 13—Insolvency—Execution of decree—Judgment-debtor in jail—Power of Insolvency Court to release him.—When a judgment-debtor is arrested in execution of a decree and confined in jail, the Insolvency Court has no jurisdiction under s. 13, Act III of 1907, to order his release. E. D. SASSOON & CO., BOMBAY v. KISHEN CHAND, 30 P.L.R. 1910. (8 M. 503, R.)

(18)—S. 13—See NOS. 2, 3, 8, supra.

(19)—Ss. 13 and 16—Application for insolvency presented from jail—Effect of—Release of prisoner before adjudication.—If a prisoner under arrest omits to express his intention to apply to be declared an insolvent and is then committed to prison under s. 55 of the Code of Civil Procedure, he cannot obtain his release from prison upon the mere admission of his subsequent petition of insolvency under s 13 of the Provincial Insolvency Act but, only upon the order or adjudication thereon under s. 16 (2) (b) of the Act. In re HAJI UMAR, 4 S.L.R. 47=7 Ind. Cas. 606.

(20)—S. 14—Examination of debtor necessary, even if witnesses are or are not present.—Whether the witnesses are or are not present, it is incumbent on the Court to examine a debtor, having regard to the provisions of s. 14, cls. (2) and (3) of the Provincial Insolvency Act. After the Court has examined the debtor in the presence of the creditor, then it is for the Court to consider whether sufficient cause has been shown to grant time to the debtor to produce further evidence. BANARSI DAS v. BANARSI DAS, 9 A.L.J. 233=14 Ind. Cas. 416.

(21)—S. 14—See NO. 8, supra.

(22)—Ss. 14 (3), 15 (1)—Creditor alleging solvency of petitioner—Inquiry by Court—Sufficient cause for dismissing petition.—If a creditor alleges that his debtor's petition is a mere sham and that the petitioner has ample means wherewith to pay his debts, the Court should allow the creditor to substantiate his allegations, and if he succeed in doing so, this would be "sufficient cause" to justify dismissal of the petition. What would be "sufficient cause" must depend on the circumstances of each case. P.L.T.A.L. ARUNACHELAM CHETTY v. MAUNG PO THIN, 9 Ind. Cas. 461.

(23)—S. 15—Proof of arrest in execution of money-decree—Courts bound to order adjudication—Acts of bad faith—When to be gone into.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

Where a person states that he had been arrested in execution of a money-decree, the Judge is bound to make an order of adjudication and cannot go into questions concerning his bad faith, which could properly arise only when he applies for discharge. NGA NAIN v. MI BU, U.B.R. 1911, 1st Quarter, 86=11 Ind. Cas. 745. (15 C.W.N. 213, 12 C.L.J. 456, 32 A. 547, 645, R.)

(24)—S. 15—Order of adjudication—Whether bars consideration of the question of final discharge.—An order of adjudication under the Provincial Insolvency Act is no bar to a consideration of the question, whether the petitioner in insolvency should have his final discharge. GOPALAKRISTNA CHETTIAR v. MUTHUSAMI CHETTIAR, 12 Ind. Cas. 403. (32 A. 645, 7 Ind. Cas. 39, 7 A.L.J. 835, 12 C. 400, 7 Ind. Cas. 394, 12 C.L.J. 445, 7 Ind. Cas. 691, R.)

(25)—S. 15—Mother of the applicant possessed of property to which applicant is sole heir—Whether sufficient ground for dismissing the application.—The fact that a person who applies to be adjudged an insolvent is the only son of his mother, who is possessed of a large property, is not a sufficient reason to dismiss the application. KHADIM HUSSAIN v. BABU BISHEN SINGH, 9 Ind. Cas. 633.

(25-a)—S. 15—Power to dismiss—Judge's duty—Adjudication, object of—Assets, distribution of.—A Judge, before he dismisses an insolvency petition under s. 15, should indicate one of the grounds there set forth as that on which he purports to act. An adjudication ensures the distribution of the assets, if there are any, according to the equitable arrangement for which provision is made in the Act. If there are considerable assets, it would be most disadvantageous to the general body of creditors that there should not be an adjudication. PREONATH ROY v. NIBARAN CHANDRA SARKAR, 15 C.L.J. 631=15 Ind. Cas. 870.

(25-b)—S. 15—Debtor's application for insolvency not made bona fide—Adjudication, if may be refused.—Quære:—Whether, if, upon the facts before the Court, it is clear to the Judge that the debtor applying for insolvency is not an insolvent, he is bound to adjudicate him an insolvent. SHEIKH GOLAM RAHMAN v. SHAIKH WAHED ALI, 16 C.W.N. 853=16 Ind. Cas. 470. (32 A. 645, 15 C.W.N. 213, 15 C.W.N. 244, 15 C.W.N. 990, R.)

(26)—S. 15 (1)—Grounds for dismissing petition—Acts of bad faith—Whether section exhaustive—Any sufficient cause.—The last words of s. 15, sub-s. (1), refer only to cases of insolvency petition presented by a creditor. The words "that for any sufficient cause" are governed by the words "satisfied by the debtor"—that is to say, the cause referred to is cause to be shown by the debtor. Under the Insolvency Act of 1907, transfer of property by the debtor with intent to defraud his creditors, or reckless contracting of debts or giving unfair preference to any of his creditors or committing any other act of bad faith, are grounds for refusing an order of discharge, but not grounds for refusing to make an order of adjudication. Where, therefore, a petitioner for declaration of insolvency feigned ignorance about the existence of his account books and prevaricated about other matters, held that his petition could not be dismissed on these grounds, the object of the Legislature, by enacting the Insolvency Act, being to make it easier to obtain an order of adjudication. GIRWARDHARI v. JAI NARAIN, 7 A.L.J. 835=7 Ind. Cas. 39=32 A. 645. [F., 7 Ind. Cas. 691=12 C.L.J. 445.]

(27)—S. 15 (1)—"Any other sufficient cause"—Applicant "able to pay his debts"—Court's power to dismiss petition.—S. 15 of the Insolvency Act confers very wide powers upon Court, and authorizes it for "any sufficient cause" to dismiss the petition for a declaration of insolvency. The fact that the applicant is able to pay off his debts is a sufficient cause for the dismissal of his petition. RAM NIHORA MISIR v. RAM RUP MISIR, 4 Ind. Cas. 408.

(27-a)—S. 15 (1)—Grounds for dismissing petitions for insolvency.—A person, who petitions to be declared insolvent, not unfrequently at some stage or another of the proceedings, endeavours to keep back a portion of his property or pretends that property which belongs to him does not belong to him. Action of this kind on the part of a debtor or the suspicion or belief that such action is contemplated by a debtor is not a good ground for dismissing a debtor's petition in insolvency. Such cases are distinguished from the cases in which the petitions are dismissed as having been presented for inequitable or collateral purposes. MUHAMMAD HUSAIN v. ILAHI BAKHSH, 10 A.L.J. 188=17 Ind. Cas. 92. (32 A. 645, 15 C.W.N. 990, R.)

(27-b)—S. 15 (1)—The words 'that for any sufficient cause' in sub-s. 1, whether governed by the words 'satisfied by the debtor'—Abuse of process of Court—Power of Court to dismiss petition on the ground of—What constitutes 'abuse of process of Court.'—Held, that the words 'that for any sufficient cause' in sub-s. (1) of s. 15 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, are governed by the words 'satisfied by the debtor' in the same sub-section. (32 A. 547, 4 Bur. L. R. 17, Diss.; 32 A. 645, 15 C.W.N. 212, R.) A Court exercising jurisdiction under the Provincial Insolvency Act has power to reject or dismiss a petition by a debtor for his adjudication as an insolvent, if it considers that such petition is an abuse of the process of the Court. It is impossible to lay down any rule or general statement as to what is an abuse of process of Court. Nothing short of obvious fraud on the part of a debtor would render him liable to have his petition dismissed or rejected on the ground of its being an abuse of the process of Court. TIN VA v. SUBYA PILLAY, 6 L.B.R. 146, F.B.=18 Ind. Cas. 500.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

(27-c)—S. 15—See NOS. 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 14, 15, 22, supra.

(28)—Ss. 15, 6 (3) (a) (b) (c)—"For any other sufficient reason" in s. 15—Creditor's petition —Acts of bad faith—When to be considered—Courts when bound to order adjudication.—The words, "for any other sufficient reason" in s. 15, Act III of 1907, have reference to petitions presented by creditors. The Court is bound to make an order of adjudication, if the application is presented by the debtor and the Court is satisfied that he is insolvent and of the matters referred to in s. 6 (3) (a) (b) and (c). (15 C.W.N. 213, Rel on.; 32 A. 547, Not appl.; 21 B. 297, R.) The question whether a debtor has or has not committed acts of bad faith has to be determined by the Court, not at the preliminary stage when the order of adjudication has to be made, but at the final stage when, after the order of adjudication, an application is made for the order of discharge. MI EU v. NGA PO SAUNGH, U.B.R. 1911, 1st Quarter, 84.

(29)—Ss. 15, 16, cl. (2), (b), 36—Adjudicating order—Opposition on the ground of fraudulent transfer—Grant of order—Remedies open to creditor.—Where, in an appeal against an adjudicating order, it was contended that the result of the order was to prevent appellants from realizing their debt out of certain immoveable properties which, it was alleged, the insolvent fraudulently transferred to a relation a few days after his failure, and that the order should be set aside: Held, that the contention could not prevail. There is nothing in s. 36, Provincial Insolvency Act, which prevents an Official Receiver from seeking to recover any immoveable property which there is reason to suppose has been collusively transferred for the sole purpose of protecting it on behalf of the insolvent against his creditors. Under s. 16 (2) (b) of the Act, it is still open to the creditors to apply to the Court exercising jurisdiction in the matter for leave to commence a suit against the insolvent. ISMAILJI MOOSAJI v. MANGHANMAL WATOOMAL, 5 S. L.R. 80=12 Ind. Cas. 622.

(29-a)—Ss 15, 46, 47—Privy Council, leave to appeal to—Letters Patent, s. 39—Civ. Pro. Code, 1908, s. 109—Order of District Judge refusing to adjudicate debtor insolvent—Appeal to High Court, summary dismissal of, without considering evidence under O. XLI, r. 11, Civ. Pro. Code—Application for leave to appeal to Privy Council—Substantial question of law.—By the provisions of ss. 46 and 47 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, it was not intended to interfere with any right of appeal to the Privy Council that might otherwise exist. Where a District Judge rejected a debtor's application for adjudication as an insolvent on the ground that there was an abuse by him of the process of the Court, and an appeal to the High Court was dismissed under O. XLI, r. 11, by a Divisional Bench without considering the evidence but upon a consideration of the judgment only of the District Judge. Held, that there was no concurrent finding of the Courts that there was an abuse of the process of the Court. That the question whether it was within the competence of the District Judge to dismiss the application on the ground stated, having regard to the provisions of s. 15 of the Insolvency Act, was a substantial question of law, and the case was one which ought to be certified as a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council under s. 109 (c), Civ. Pro. Code. CHATTRAPUT DUGER v. KHARAJ SINGH LUCHMIRAM, 17 C W.N. 752=17 C.L.J. 547 =40 C. 685.

(30)—S. 16—Insolvency of defendant—Receiver a party—Procedure—English precedents when to be referred to—When the sole defendant to a suit for the recovery of a debt is adjudicated an insolvent, the proper course is to stay the suit and leave the plaintiff to prove his debt in the insolvency proceedings. When there is an action against two defendants and one becomes a bankrupt, it being a claim against both, the one who does not become bankrupt cannot be made liable unless the action goes on and the trustee in bankruptcy may be made a party. Judgment is not given against the trustee that he pay out of the estate, but judgment being against the other defendant, the plaintiff is at liberty to prove in the bankruptcy the amount of the claim established, and there the trustee is a party because it is necessary both as against the bankrupt's estate and the other defendant that the action should go on. Many of the provisions of the Indian Insolvent Act including s. 16 are taken from the English Bankruptcy Act, and where the provisions correspond, the decisions of the English Courts may properly be referred to as guides to the construction of the Indian Act. A decree under O. XXXIV, r. 6, is plainly a remedy within the meaning of s. 16 of the Indian Insolvency Act. MAMRAJ v. BRIJ LAL, 8 A.L.J. 1241=12 Ind. Cas. 587.

(31)—S. 16—Secured creditor—Landlord—Suit for arrears of rent--Declaration of insolvency in force at date of suit.—A suit for arrears of rent against a tenant declared an insolvent and as against whom such declaration was in full force and effect at the date of the suit is not maintainable. So far as an ordinary suit for rent is concerned, a landlord is in exactly the same position as any other creditor, but he will have the right to distrain, notwithstanding the declaration of insolvency. RAGHUBIR SINGH v. RAM CHANDAR, 8 A.L.J. 1287=12 Ind. Cas. 927=34 A. 121.

(31-a)--S. 16—Concealment of property or the debtor-applicant's inability to satisfy the Court as regards inability to pay his debts—Not sufficient grounds for refusing adjudication.—The facts that an applicant for insolvency has failed to satisfy the Judge that he is unable to pay his debts and that he has concealed some of his

G. N. Das
Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

properties are not sufficient for the rejection of his application. BIDHATA DIN v. JAGANNATH, 9 A.L.J. 699=14 Ind. Cas. 570.

(32)—S. 16 (2)—Creditor's right to sue the surety of his debtor—Rights of surety.—S. 16 (2) of the Act does not preclude a creditor from suing the surety of his debtor, even if the creditor deliberately refrained from proving his debt in the insolvency proceedings. Even the contingent liability of a surety who has not been called upon to pay, or has not in fact paid, forms a debt provable in the bankruptcy of the principal debtor. GOPAL v. GANPAT, 7 N.L.R. 122=11 Ind. Cas. 911.

(33)—S. 16 (2)—Arrest—Judgment-debtor—Competency of executing Court to imprison a judgment-debtor after he has applied to be declared insolvent—S. 55 (3) and (4) of Act V of 1908.—Held, that, the pendency of insolvency proceedings neither takes away from the executing Court the power of committing the judgment-debtor to civil jail, nor is he entitled to get time to apply to be declared insolvent. The object of the provisions in cl. (3) of s. 55, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908, is to give the debtor time to apply, but if he has already done so and proceedings are going on, there would be no sense in giving further time. KISHAN CHAND v. E. D. SASSOON & CO., 83 P.W.R. 1910=7 Ind. Cas. 351=81 P.L.R. 1910.

(34)—S. 16 (2)—Release of judgment-debtor from prison — Whether can be ordered prior to adjudication—Creditor's right.—Under s. 16, Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907, the Insolvency Court has no jurisdiction to direct the release, prior to an order of adjudication, of a judgment debtor who has been imprisoned, rightly or wrongly, in execution of decree by an executing Court. Prior to adjudication, the creditor's right against the person and property of the judgment-debtor remains unaffected. KISHEN CHAND v. E. D. SASSON & CO, 95 P R. 1910 =133 P.W.R. 1910=8 Ind. Cas. 319=190 P. L.R. 1910. (8 M. 503, R.)

(35)—S. 16 (3)—'Goods'—Heavy oil press—Whether covered by the term.—A heavy oil press, worked by a kerosine oil engine, whose shafts and pulleys are bolted on to the posts of the house, though capable of removal by unscrewing the bolts, does not fall within the scope of the word 'goods' in s. 16 (3) of the Act. ON PE v. KUN TI, 6 L.B.R. 44=14 Ind. Cas. 447. (3 Bom. L. R. 426, F.)

(35-a)—S. 16 (3) (5) — Doctrine of reputed ownership—Applicability—Future goods—Contract to assign present goods and future goods in the place of present goods after sale—Equitable mortgage.—Under the Provincial Insolvency Act, a secured creditor cannot lose his security under the doctrine of reputed ownership. (Vide s. 16, cls. 3 and 5.) Where, according to the terms of a deed, there was an assignment of present goods as a security for Rs. 9,000 and then a covenant to always keep in the shop tock to the extent of Rs. 9,000 re-placing sold goods by goods of equal value. Held (i) that the future goods were in substitution of the previously existing goods and that a covenant to assign them was clearly implied and (ii) that the case fell within the rule of Holroyd v. Marshall (10 H.L.R. 191), and that the contract to assign having become a complete assignment, the transaction amounted to an equitable mortgage and not a mere license. WYSE v. CHOWKSEY, 6 S L.R. 97. (34 L.J. Ex. 212, 20 Ch. D. 758, 13 A.C. 523, L.R. 7 Q.B. 527, R.)

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

(36)—S. 16 (4)—Property—Whether includes personal earnings—Earnings after adjudication and before discharge—Court's power to make order.—The word 'property" in s. 16 (4), Act III of 1907, does not exclude personal earnings, over and above what is necessary for the debtor's adequate support. (19 B. 232, R.) The Court has power to make an order as to earnings after adjudication but before discharge. JAMNADAS v. VINAYAK, 7 N L.R. 19.

(37)—S. 16—See NOS. 2, 3, 11, 12, 16, 19, 29, supra.

(37-a)—Ss. 16, cls. (2) & 34 (1)—Execution of decree against the insolvent during pendency of insolvency proceedings — Exclusive right of the decree-holder to property attached and to money attached and sold before order of adjudication—Right of the decree-holder.—S held a decree against M. Proceedings to have M declared insolvent were pending from February 21st 1911, to February 1st, 1912. S had notice of these proceedings. While the insolvency proceedings were going on, S. executed the decree and attached M's immoveable property which he put up to sale in January, 1912. He also attached in November, 1911, a sum of money which had been deposited in Court to the credit of M. The sale-proceeds were also deposited in Court. Held, (1) that S was entitled to get the sale-proceeds which were assets realised in the course of execution within the meaning of s. 34 of the Provincial Insolvency Act and were not the property of the judgment-debtor which could vest in the Receiver; (2) that the money attached in November 1911, remained the property of the insolvent, and S was not entitled to get it in preference to the Receiver. SRI CHAND v. MURARI LAL, 10 A.L.J. 252= 34 A. 628=16 Ind. Cas. 183.

(38)—S. 16, cl. 6 and ss. 36, 46 (2) and (3)—S. 36 governed by s. 16, cl. 6—Two years calculation from date of presentation of insolvency petition — Refusal to act under s. 36 — Not appealable under s. 46 (2)—Appealability under s. 46, cl. 3 — Transfer made less than two years before petition—Transferee not party to insolvency proceedings — Power of Court to interfere.—S. 16, cl. 6, Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907, is applicable to s. 36 of the said Act, and the two years mentioned in s. 36 mean the two years before the date of the presentation of the insolvency petition. It is doubtful whether a refusal to act under s. 36 can be called an order under s. 36, within the meaning of s. 46 (2). The order, therefore, is not appealable as a matter of right, but may be appealed against under s. 46, cl. 3. A transfer made less than two years before the insolvency petition, prima facie, comes within the purview of s. 36, and there is no warrant for the view that, because the transferee is not a party to the insolvency proceedings, the Court should not enquire whether the transfer is one which should be avoided or annulled or not, or that the creditors should be referred to a suit for a declaration that the transfer is not binding upon them. BHAGWANT v. MUNIM KHAN, 6 N.L.R. 146.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

(39)—S. 18—See NO. 3, supra.

(39-a)—Ss. 18, 19, 20, 22 and 52—Official Receiver—Order dismissing insolvency petition —Appeal against— Whether lies to the High Court—District Court, proper appellate forum —High Court—Power to treat appeal as revision —Refusal to exercise—Powers of Official Receiver—Same as those of District Court.—Held that an appeal does not lie against an order passed by the Official Receiver appointed under the Provincial Insolvency Act, directly to the High Court. An appeal lies to the District Court under s. 22, Provincial Insolvency Act, against an order passed by the Official Receiver appointed under that Act. The right of appeal under s. 22 is not confined to orders comprised in ss. 18, 19 and 20, but extends to all orders of the Official Receiver. Cl. (2) of s. 52 also shows that the appellate power given to the Court extends to all orders of the Receiver. Held, also, that an appeal presented to the High Court directly cannot be treated as a petition for revision, because there was other adequate remedy open to the appellant. When empowered by the High Court under s. 52 of the Act, an Official Receiver has the same powers as the District Court, as regards the dismissal of petitions and adjudications of insolvency. CHIDAMBARAM CHETTY v. NAGAPPA CHETTY, 24 M.L.J. 73=16 Ind. Cas. 820.

(39-b)—S. 19—See NO. 39-a, supra.

(39-c)—S. 20—Receiver entering into arrangement without leave of the Court—Sale by officers of Court—Contract Act not applicable. —The purchaser of property belonging to an insolvent cannot impugn the sale on the ground that the Receiver, who sold the property, entered into an arrangement with the purchaser for deferred payment of the purchase money without the leave of the Court. The Contract Act has no application to sales by officers of Court. SHWE WA v. SULLIVAN, 15 Ind. Cas. 368. (5 L.B.R. 25, 6 A.L.J. 34, 13 C.W.N. 249, 5 M.L.T. 126, 9 C.L.J. 165, 11 Bom. L.R. 227, 36 C. 323, 19 M.L.J. 115, 1 Ind. Cas. 122, 36 I.A. 32, R.)

(39-d)—S. 20—See NO. 39-a, supra.

(39-e)—S. 22—See NO. 39-a, supra.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

(39-f)—Ss. 22, 46 and 52 (2)—Limitation Act (1908), s. 5—Appeal to Court against act of receiver—No extension of time allowed—Appeal and review of judgment—Application against an act of receiver.—S. 5 of the Limitation Act allows an extension of time only in cases of appeals, or applications for a review of judgment or for leave to appeal or any other application to which that section might be made applicable by any enactment or rule for the time being in force, and the application mentioned in s. 22 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is not such an application nor is it an appeal in the strict sense of the term. Time cannot, therefore, be extended for making an application to the Court against an act of the receiver, even when there is a sufficient cause for the delay. THAKUR PRASAD v. PUNNO LAL, 11 A.L.J. 603. (34 A. 496, D.)

(39-g)—S. 24—See NO. 45-a, infra.

(40)—Ss. 24, 25, 27—Application for approval of composition, before adjudication—Premature. —Where, after the filing of an insolvency petition and before the order of adjudication, the debtors having arrived at a settlement with the creditors, a majority of the creditors signed a composition-deed vesting the whole of the estate of the debtors in trustees empowered to liquidate the debts and providing for the ad interim stay of the petition, and sought for the approval of Court under s. 27 of Act III of 1907. Held, that the application was premature, because the approval of Court is made dependent on the acceptance of the proposals by a majority in number and three-fourth in value of the creditors whose debts are proved, which can only mean proved after adjudication under ss. 24 and 25 Re application of ASSOMAL VERSIMAL, 4 S.L.R. 222.

(41)—Ss. 24 and 26—Application by a creditor to have his name entered in the schedule of creditors—Right of the scheduled creditors to make objections—Revision.—Creditors, whose names are already in the schedule, are entitled to be heard, before the debt of a creditor, who comes in at the last minute under s. 24 (3) of the Act, is entered in the schedule. THE ALLAHABAD BANK, LIMITED, CAWNPORE v. MURLI DHAR AND OTHERS, 9 A.L.J. 577=34 A. 442=14 Ind. Cas. 589.

(41-a)—Ss. 24, 33 to 39, 44 (2) (c) and 45 (2) —Insolvent — Creditor holding two claims— Proof of one claim—Intention to deprive insolvent of benefits of the Act—Power of Court to refuse rateable distribution—Absence of such power.—Where a creditor, holding two claims against an insolvent, proves only one of them and reserves the other for settlement after the discharge of the insolvent, with the result that the insolvent is deprived of the benefits intended to be given to him by the Act, and the lower Court excluded the creditor so far as concerned his decree for the proved item from the benefits of the conditions imposed on the discharge of the insolvent under s. 44 (2) (c):

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

Held that it was not open to the Court so to penalise the creditor in view of the provisions for equal division of assets contained in ss. 33 to 39 of the Act. DESHMANAY v. TAYLOR, 6 S.L.R. 163.

(41-b)—Ss. 24, 36—Dower-debt—Transfer by a Mahomedan insolvent to his wife in lieu of dower debt—Proceeding to set it aside—The amount of dower-debt claimed, not proved—Application by wife to be entered in the schedule of creditors—She can prove true amount of dower. —Within 2 years of his application for insolvency, the insolvent had made a transfer in favour of his wife ostensibly for Rs. 25,000, in lieu of her dower-debt. The receiver applied to have the transfer set aside, and in course of that proceeding it was held that the dower-debt of Rs. 25,000 was not proved. The wife then applied to be entered in the schedule of creditors claiming Rs. 25,000 as her dower-debt. Held, that it was not open to her to prove that her dower was Rs. 25,000, but it was open to her to prove the true amount due to her. UMRAO BEGAM v. AHMAD ALI KHAN, 11 A.L.J. 614.

(42)—S. 25—See NO. 40, supra.

(43)—S. 26—See NO. 41, supra.

(44)—S. 27—Not applicable to the Punjab Laws Act, IV of 1872, s. 28—General Clauses Act (X of 1897), s. 6, cls. (c), (d) and (e).—Held that, as the provisions of s. 27 of the Punjab Laws Act, 1872, under which the Court was bound to give effect to a composition, is materially different from s. 28 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907, under which the Court can impose conditions before accepting such a composition, and as the latter Act makes important alterations in the substantive rights of the parties; orders in connection with a composition deed, filed before Act III of 1907 came into force, should be made under the old law. (See s. 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897.) SETH RADHA KISHEN v. BINJ RAJ AND OTHERS, 12 P.R. 1910=5 Ind. Cas. 806=162 P.L.R. 1910. (11 P.R. 1910, F.)

(45)—S. 27—See NO. 40, supra.

(45-a)—Ss. 28 (2) 24 (1)—Forward contracts —Claims under—Provable as contingent debts—Affidavits by several creditors—Duty of official receiver.—The claims of the firms who held forward contracts were demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising out of contract and the Act admits such claims (s. 28 (2).) They are also provable as contingent debts subject only to the proviso to s. 24 (1) (13 A.C. 358, R.) Where affidavits in proof of such debts are filed by different creditors, the Official Receiver, instead of accepting the affidavits of the other creditors without question, should have applied his mind to the matter and on the basis of these affidavits should have determined a uniform rate for the purpose of making a fair estimate or valuation of the contingent debts. In re MOSSAJI E. LOTIA, 5 S.L.R. 249=15 Ind. Cas. 825. (25 Q.B.D. 529, R.)

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

(45-b)—S. 33—See NO. 41-a, supra.

(46)—S. 34—Execution of decree—Realization of assets by sale before adjudication of judgment-debtor as insolvent—Right of execution creditor to the money—Priority.—Where an execution has proceeded further than attachment and the judgment creditor has realized assets by sale or otherwise, and the proceeds of the sale have been paid into Court before any adjudication order has been passed on the insolvency application of the judgment-debtor, the execution-creditor is entitled to the money in preference, to the interim receiver. BASARMAL AUATMAL v KHEMCHAND DARYANOMAL, 11 Ind. Cas. 433. (29 B. 405, 7 Bom. L.R. 488. 17 Ch. D. 653, 50 L.J. Ch. D. 691, 44 L T. 691, 29 W.R. 575, Rel. on.)

(46-a)—S. 34—'Realised,' meaning of.—In order that money, attached in execution of a decree may be 'realized' under s. 34 of the Act, it must reach the Court which passed the decree and not when the Treasury officer retained it for transmission to the Court. DEBI PRASAD v. O.M. CHIENE, 9 A.L.J. 707=16 Ind.Cas. 84.

(46-b)—S. 34—See NOS. 37-a, 41-a, 41-b, supra.

(46-c)—S. 35—See NO. 41-a, supra.

(47)—S. 36—See NOS. 29, 38, 41-a, supra.

(48)—Ss. 36, 46, sub-s. (2), 50—"Aggrieved person," who is—Appeal, right of—Transferee's right of appeal when transfer annulled—Jurisdiction of Court under s. 36 in respect of property situate outside jurisdiction — Auxiliary Court.—An aggrieved person is a person who has suffered a legal grievance, a man against whom a decision has been pronounced which has wrongfully deprived him of something or wrongfully refused him something or wrongfully affected his title to something. Therefore, a person who claims to be the transferee of a property for valuable consideration and alleges that he has acquired title in good faith, is an aggrieved person within the meaning of sub-s. 2 of s. 46 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, if the Court has annulled the transfer made in his favour under s. 36, and is entitled to appeal from the order; and in such appeal the Receiver of the insolvent property is a proper party. A proceeding under s. 36 is not in the nature of a suit, and a Court can deal with the question of the validity of the transfer in respect of property situated outside its jurisdiction. A Court which has no jurisdiction cannot act as auxiliary to a Court which has jurisdiction. To make the provisions of s. 50 applicable, the Court in which the proceedings have been initiated as well as the Court which is invited to assist it, must both have jurisdiction in insolvency matters. Where a proceeding was instituted at Dacca under s. 36 in respect of property situated in Bhagalpore : held, that the Dacca Court should take action under s. 50 and transmit the petition to the Court at Bhagalpore to take evidence and transmit its finding to Dacca Court which will deal with the proceeding. LALIJI SAHAY SINGH v. ABDUL GANI, 7 Ind. Cas. 765=12 C.L.J. 452.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

(49)—S. 37—Transfer to give preference—Mortgage in favour of a creditor discharging his debts—Debtor unable to pay his debts at the time—Annulment of transfer—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 53.—A debtor, who was clearly unable to pay his debts, executed a mortgage of what appeared to be his whole valuable assets in favour of some of his creditors by which their own debts were discharged, some of these debts being on account of hundis which had not then become due. A portion of the mortgage-money was to be paid in cash to the debtor before the Sub-Registrar. Within three months from the date of the alienation, the other creditors applied that the debtor, be declared an insolvent Eventually, the debtor was declared an insolvent on this application: Held that the transfer was made with a view to give preference to some creditors over the others and should be annulled under s. 37 of the Insolvency Act. The terms of s. 53 of the Transfer of Property Act and the terms of s. 37 of the Insolvency Act are not identical. There is this material difference, that, in the case of transfers to be set aside under the provisions of s. 53 of the Transfer of Property Act actual fraud must be proved; whereas, under s. 37 of Insolvency Act, it is only necessary to show that a transfer has been made with a view to show preference to one creditor, to whom a debt may be validly due, over another creditor. BALMOKAND v. AYA SINGH, 18 P.W.R. 1912 =26 P.L.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 68.

(49-a)—S. 37—See NO. 41-a, supra.

(49-b)—S. 38—See NO 41-a, supra.

(49-c)—S. 39—See NO. 41-a, supra.

(50)—S. 43 not applicable to proceedings under s. 25, the Punjab Laws Act, IV of 1872 —Alteration of law involving change in the nature of punishment—Acts of procedure—General Clauses Act, X of 1897, s. 6, cls. (c), (d) and (e).—Where proceedings were begun against an insolvent under s. 25 of the Punjab Laws Act IV of 1872, under which certain acts of the insolvent rendered him liable to detention in the civil prison, and where, pending proceedings, the Punjab Laws Act was repealed by the Provincial Insolvency Act, III of 1907, and s. 25 of the former Act was substituted by s. 43 of the latter Act, under which the same acts of the insolvent rendered him liable to simple imprisonment in the criminal jail, held, that the proceedings should be continued, and punishment should be inflicted, if necessary, under the old Act, as if the new Act had not been passed. Whatever view may be taken of the general practice of the Courts to treat s. 6 of the General Clauses Act as not applying to Acts of Procedure, and whatever interpretation may be put upon he word 'procedure,' it is not capable of serious argument that a repealing Act, which substitutes imprisonment on the criminal side for the imprisonment on the civil side, is not calculated to affect the punishment. GANPAT RAI AND ANOTHER v. MALLA MAL AND ANOTHER, 11 P.R. 1910= 24 P.W.R. 1910=5 Ind. Cas. 804=163 P.L.R. 1910. [F., 12 P.R. 1910.]

(51)—S. 43 (ii)—Imprisonment of insolvent—Offence committed on specific occasion—Evidence, nature of.—An insolvent cannot be convicted for an offence under s. 43 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, unless he is shown by legal evidence to have committed an offence on some specific occasion. (17 C. 209, R.) An insolvent cannot be punished on the evidence given on behalf of the creditors when they were opposing his application for adjudication of insolvency, but that evidence ought to be recorded de novo after the charges are framed. NATHU MAL v. THE DISTRICT JUDGE OF BENARES, 7 A.L.J. 732=6 Ind. Cas. 870=32 A. 347.

(52)—S. 43—See NOS. 5, 8, supra.

(53)—S. 44—See NOS. 8, 11, 12, 41-a, supra.

(54)—S. 44 (3)—Points to be considered in granting discharge to insolvent—Reckless conduct of borrower—Effect.—S. 44, sub-s. 3, is imperative and obliges the Court to refuse to grant an absolute order of discharge on proof of certain facts. A discharge cannot be granted, unless the insolvent satisfies the Court that the fact that the assets are not of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities has arisen from circumstances for which he cannot justly be held responsible. If a person enters into trade possessing no property and relying entirely on making a profit in order to repay what he borrows for the trade and interest on that, as well as to provide for himself and the family, it cannot be said that he is not justly responsible for his debts, if a loss instead of a profit is the result of the trading. If a man borrows money, he is responsible for the payment of it, whether the man who lends him money is foolish or otherwise in lending it. No one is justified in incurring debts when he has no reasonable prospect of being able to discharge them. Under the Provincial Insolvency Act, the Court is enabled to confer on debtors the benefit of release from their debts, but this benefit was intended for the honest debtor, who by reason of misfortune is unable to pay his debts. It is not and could not have been intended for the reckless and careless borrower or the dishonest trader. The conduct of the seeker for the benefit of the Act, not the conduct of the creditors, is what has to be considered. R. M. P. KALLEAPPA CHETTY v. MAUNG KYWE, 5 L.B.R. 189=8 Ind. Cas. 950.

(55)—S. 45—See NOS. 12, 41-a, supra.

(56)—S. 46—Order made by District Court—Appeal—Divisional Court in the Punjab deemed to be the District Court—Punjab Government

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —continued.

Notification No. 889, dated 18*th November*, 1908.—By virtue of the Punjab Government Notification No. 889, dated 18th November 1908, for the purposes of s. 46 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, the Divisional Court in the Punjab is deemed to be the District Court. Therefore, an order made in the exercise of insolvency jurisdiction by an ordinary District Court is appealable to the Divisional Judge. The above notification mistakenly refers only to sub-s. (1) of s. 46, but it is intended to refer to and cover the whole section. MANSA v. NATHUMAL, 8 Ind. Cas. 485.

(57)—S. 46—Right of appeal taken away—Appeal allowed under s. 353, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Proceedings started prior to 1907—Whether right of appeal subsists—Remand order —Not set aside by review—Binding nature.—Where certain insolvency proceedings commenced before the passing of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907, at a time when a right of appeal was given under s. 353, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, and where such right was taken away subsequently by s. 46 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907. Held, that, the right of appeal was not destroyed by the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907. A right of appeal is not a mere matter of procedure and must be governed by law in force at the time when the proceedings in the original Court commenced. An order of remand, even though erroneous, continues to be in force until it is set aside by review or otherwise. SALIMMAMMA v. VALLI HUSSANABHA BEARI, 10 M.L T. 78. (M.W.N. 1911, 143, 32 B. 337, F.)

8 (58)—S. 46 (4)—Appeal—Exclusion of time for copy—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), ss. 12, 29.—The Provincial Insolvency Act was intended to be and is, so far as matters governed by it are concerned, a complete Code in itself and retains its own limitation law. Held, that, in computing the period of ninety days prescribed for presenting an appeal to the High Court under the said Act, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the order complained of cannot be excluded, and therefore an appeal from an order passed on 13th August 1909, and presented on 1st December 1909, is barred by time. JUGAL KISHORE v. GUR NARAIN, 8 A.L.J. 833.

(59)—S. 46—See NOS. 29-a, 39-f, supra.

(60)—Ss. 46 (4), 47—Appeal—Extension of time for copy—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), ss. 12, 29—Special law.—The Provincial Insolvency Act, though it applies to a large part of British India, is a special law within the meaning of s. 29 of the Limitation Act, as it creates a special jurisdiction and deals with a very special branch of the law. The general provisions of the Limitation Act are applicable to suits and other proceedings under other Acts which prescribe special periods of limitation, but which are not intended to be complete Codes in themselves, and the words "affect or alter" relate only to the period prescribed and not to the way in which that period is to be computed. The general provisions of the Limitation Act are founded mainly upon equitable considerations which apply as much to periods of limitation prescribed by special Acts as to periods of limitation prescribed by the Limitation Act itself. The Provincial Insolvency Act is not a complete Code in itself. In order to ascertain the procedure to be followed in original, appellate, or revisional proceedings, one has to refer to the Code of Civil Procedure. The object of s. 47 appears to be to attract the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure. There are several Acts, for example, the Succession Act, the Probate and Administration Act, and the Land Acquisition Act, which make the Code of Civil Procedure applicable to proceedings under those Acts and give a right of appeal to the High Court, but do not prescribe any period of limitation for the appeal. It has always been assumed that such appeals are appeals under the Code of Civil Procedure, governed by Art. 156, sch. I of the Limitation Act, 1908. S. 46 (4) of the Insolvency Act does not seem to have been required, but whether required or not, it does not render the general provisions of the Limitation Act inapplicable. DROPADI v. HIRA LAL, 10 A.L.J. 3, F.B.=34 A. 496=16 Ind. Cas. 149.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) —concluded.

(61)—S. 47—See NOS. 3, 29-a, 60, supra.

(62)—S. 50—See NO. 48, supra.

(63)—S. 52—See NOS. 39-a, 39-f, supra.

Provincial Public Works Act.

See BEN. ACT II OF 1877.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Acts.

See REVISION — SMALL CAUSE COURT CASES.

See SMALL CAUSE COURT—MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF.

See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL—SMALL CAUSE COURT CASES.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (XLII of 1860).

[REP., ACT XI OF 1865.]

(1)—Suit for amount not exceeding Rs. 50—Defendant not residing within Court's jurisdiction—Power of District Munsif to take cognizance of suit—See JURISDICTION OF MUNSIF'S COURT, 2 M.H.C. 82.

(2)—S. 3—Term "suit" applied to suit before Collector.—The word "suit" in the proviso of s. 3 of Act XLII of 1860 referred to regular suits before a Collector under Act X of 1859, and not to summary proceedings under Regulation XXVIII of 1802 and s. 2 of Regulation V of 1822. ADIMULAM PILLAI v. KOVIL CHINNA PILLAI, 2 M.H.C. 22.

(3)—S. 6—Effect on jurisdiction of Military Courts of Requests.—S. 6 of Act XLII of 1860 had not the effect of altering or interfering with the jurisdiction of the Military Courts of Requests constituted by the Statute 20 and 21 Vic., Chap. 66, s. 67. The Military Courts had concurrent jurisdiction in such matters. SHANMUGA v. MEDDLETON, 1 M.H.C. 443.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (XLII of 1860)—concluded.

(4)—S. 11—Execution against person of debtor not necessary preliminary to proceeding against immoveable property.— Execution against the person of a judgment-debtor is not a preliminary step necessary to entitle the judgment-creditor to proceed against the debtor's immoveable property under s. 11, Act XLII of 1860. The party obtaining the decree could have execution in the first instance either against the person or against the personal property of the judgment-debtor, but the proceeding under s. 11 was made conditional only upon the debtor's moveable property having been realized by a sale in execution. VENKATASAMY NAIK v. VATTAMALAY GOUNDAN, 2 M.H.C. 339.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (XI of 1865).

[REP., IX OF 1887.]

(1)—District Munsif, Small Cause Court Judge—Madras Act IV of 1863—Act XI of 1865.—A District Munsif is a Small Cause Court Judge under Madras Act IV of 1863 within Act XI of 1865. WUMADAI RAJAH HARAJAI KUMARA VENKATA PERUMALRAJ BAHADUR, ZEMINDAR OF KARVATINUGGAR v. KANNIAPPAH, 4 M.H.C. 149.

(2)—See EXECUTION OF DECREE—TRANSFER OF DECREE FOR EXECUTION—EXECUTION OUT OF COURT'S JURISDICTION, 8 B. 230, 4 M.H.C. 331.

(3)—See HINDU LAW—MAINTENANCE, 2 B. 624, 2 B. 632, F.B.

(4)—See SUPERINTENDENCE OF HIGH COURT, 19 W.R. 306.

(5)—S. 3—See RANGOON SMALL CAUSE COURT, 6 B.L.R. 196=14 W.R. 331.

(6)—Ss. 5, 21—See APPEAL—ORDERS, 10 B. 370.

(7)—S. 6—Suit for road and public works cess, nature of—Res judicata.—A suit to recover road cess and public work cess, not being a claim for money on bond or other contract, but being one recoverable under a special enactment, does not fall under s. 6 of the Mofussil Small Cause Courts Act. The decision of a District Judge, in a suit for road cess, which was final on account of there having lain no second appeal to the High Court, inasmuch as the amount claimed was less than Rs. 100, would bar a second suit in which the amount claimed is more than Rs. 100. DAVID v. GRISH CHUNDER GUHA, 9 C. 183=11 C.L.R. 305. [R., 25 C. 571.]

(8)—S. 6—Suit to refund money realised in execution of decree—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 295 (=s. 73, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, ss. 13, 43 (=s. 11, O. II, r. 2, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908)—Res judicata—Splitting claims—Causes of action.—A suit under s. 295 of the Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, to compel the defendant to refund monies received by him which should have been paid by the plaintiff, was not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes under Act XI of 1865. (9 M. 250, 7 A. 896, 7 A. 378, R.) Where the plaintiff in the above suit had previously brought a suit in which he sought to follow the property which had been sold under the defendant's decree, held that the present suit was not barred by ss. 13 and 43 of the Civ. Pro. Code, on the ground that the relief now sought might have been asked for in the former suit, because the nature of the suits on the causes of action are different. DOST MUHAMMAD v. AJUDHIA PRASAD, A.W.N. 1890, 21.

(9)—S. 6—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 63, 7 A. 152, F.B.=A.W.N. 1884, 349.

(10)—S. 6—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 72, 2 A. 671.

(11)—S. 6—See CONTRIBUTION, SUITS FOR—GENERAL, 5 M.H.C. 200.

(12)—S. 6—See GUARDIAN—MISCELLANEOUS, 37 P.R. 1889.

(13)—S. 6—See HINDU LAW—RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENT, 3 B.H.C.A.C. 75.

(14)—S. 6 (3)—Malicious prosecution—Jurisdiction—Construction.—The phrase "actual pecuniary damage" as used in cl. 3, s. 6, Act XI of 1865, has reference to pecuniary loss to the plaintiff's property or estate. Therefore a suit for damages on account of alleged personal injury solely, without reference to actual pecuniary loss, cannot be entertained in a Small Cause Court. BHAIRAB CHANDRA CHUCKERBUTTY v. MAHENDRA CHANDRA CHUCKERBUTTY, 4 B.L.R. App. 59=13 W.R. 118.

(15)—S. 6, cl. 3—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 6 B.L.R App. 99=16 W.R. 84, Note.

(16)—Ss. 6 (3), 12—Suit of a nature cognisable by a Small Cause Court—Compensation for personal injury—Actual pecuniary damage.—Where part of the claim in a suit for compensation for malicious prosecution was in respect of a personal injury from which actual and ascertained pecuniary damage had resulted, the whole suit was, with reference to s. 6 (3) of Act XI of 1865, one of a nature cognisable by a Small Cause Court, and should have been instituted in such Court having local jurisdiction. DEBI SINGH v. HANUMAN UPADHYA, 3 A. 747. (13 W.R. 434, 15 W.R. 171, F.) [R., 10 A. 49.]

(17)—S. 8—See MAD. ACT III OF 1873, s. 27, 8 M.H.C. App. 10.

(18)—Ss. 8, 12—See CANTONMENT MAGISTRATE, 9 B. 454.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (XI of 1865)—continued.

(19)—S. 9—See MUNSIF, 11 W.R. 233.

(20)—S. 12—See NOS 16, 18, supra.

(21)—S. 18—See ARREST, 4 M.H.C. 145.

(22)—Ss. 19, 20—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, rr. 6, 7, B.L.R. Sup. Vol. 886=9 W. R. 175.

(22-a)—Art. 20, sch. II—Suit by unsuccessful claimant for value of his property sold in execution is a suit exempted from the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, rr. 58, 63, 8 O.C. 281.

(23)—S. 20—Decree of Small Cause Court sent for execution to Subordinate Court—Latter not competent to question validity of decree—See EXECUTION OF DECREE—TRANSFER OF DECREE FOR EXECUTION—EXECUTION OUT OF COURT'S JURISDICTION, 10 B. 65.

(24)—S. 20—See EXECUTION OF DECREE—TRANSFER OF DECREE FOR EXECUTION—EXECUTION OUT OF COURT'S JURISDICTION, 24 W.R. 151, 3 C.L.R. 30, 3 C.L.R. 558.

(25)—S. 20—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—SALE OF, 6 N.W.P. 129.

(26)—S. 20—See NO. 22, supra.

(27)—Ss. 20, 21—See DISTRICT JUDGE, JURISDICTION OF, 11 M. 130.

(28)—S. 21—Review of a Small Cause Court judgment.—Act XI of 1865 does not give to a Judge of a Small Cause Court any power to review his judgment except as provided by s. 21 of that Act. In the matter of the petition of TADIR HOSSEIN KHONDKAR, 6 B.L.R. 388.

(29)—S. 21—Practice—Notice of application—Review.—An application for a review of judgment of a Mofussil Small Cause Court cannot be entertained where one of the provisions of s. 21 of Act XI of 1865 is not complied with, as, for instance, where the notice of an intention to apply at the next sitting of the Court for a new trial was not given. In the matter of the petition of PITAMBAR SADHU KHAN, 6 B. L.R. 390, Note. [R., 6 B L.R. 388.]

(30)—S. 21—Application by decree-holder for payment of money deposited in Court by judgment debtor—"Process for enforcing decree"—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 17, Expl. II—Jurisdiction—Suit for money paid by mistake or coercion—Contract Act, ss. 72 and 28—Agreement limiting time for enforcement of legal rights—Validity of.—In a suit for refund of certain over-charges paid to the defendant Company, an ex parte decree was passed. The defendant Company deposited the decree-amount in Court and applied through a pleader, not properly authorized, to set aside the decree. Plaintiffs applied for the payment of money so deposited, but, within 30 days of this application, the defendants, whose first application to set aside the decree was rejected as not properly authorized, put in a fresh application for the same purchase. On the Court granting this application and setting aside the decree, the plaintiffs objected in a revision petition to the High Court against this order on the ground that it was barred by the prior application. Held, that the prior application could be no bar as it was rejected on the ground that it was not the application of the defendants or their agent and that the application by the plaintiffs for payment of money deposited was of the nature of a process for the enforcement of the decree within s. 21 of the Mofussil Small Cause Courts Act so as to entitle the defendants to apply within 30 days of such application for retrial. In the above case, the overcharges having been paid at the defendant Company's head-office at Bombay, it was held, that the Small Cause Court at Agra in which the suit was brought had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit. In the above case, the receipt granted by the defendant Company for goods despatched contained a stipulation that no claim for overcharges would be entertained unless made in writing within 6 months of the date of delivery of the goods for transmission. Held that the stipulation was of the nature referred to in the Contract Act, s. 28, and that it could not be construed as postponing the accrual of the cause of action or limiting the time within which proceedings could be taken upon it. AMOLAK RAM v. THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY, A.W.N. 1888, 59.

(31)—Fresh plaint not to be required when new trial granted by Small Cause Courts, under s. 21, Act XI of 1865, Civ. Cir. No. 3, dated 19th December, 1865, 17 W.R.H.C. Rule and O. 2.

(32)—S. 21—See PLAINT—AMENDMENT OF PLAINT, 110 P.R. 1882.

(33)—S. 21—See REVIEW—GENERAL, 60 P. R. 1881.

(34)—S 21—See REVISION—GENERAL, 102 P.R. 1886.

(35)—S. 21—See NOS. 6, 27, supra.

(36)—S. 22—See REFERENCE TO HIGH COURT, B.L.R. Sup. Vol. 457=5 W.R. S.C.C. 19.

(37)—S. 22—See REFERENCE TO HIGH COURT, 5 W.R. S.C.C. Ref. 19.

(38)—S. 22—See SUPERINTENDENCE OF HIGH COURT, 6 W.R. Mis. 26.

(39)—S. 23—No second appeal lies from decisions under—See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 102, 3 Bom. L.R. 239=25 B. 625.

(40)—S. 25—See SALE—SALE FOR ARREARS OF RENT—SETTING ASIDE SALE AND ITS EFFECT, 3 B.L.R. App. 144=12 W.R. 311.

(41)—S. 32—See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 396=12 W.R. 432.

(42)—S. 53—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—EJECTMENT, 5 C. 195.

[REP., IN PT., ACT X OF 1888; ACT XII OF 1891, REP., IN PT., (IN AGRA), U.P. ACT

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887).

XII OF 1901, S. 36. REP., ACT IX OF 1908, DECLARED IN FORCE—IN BRITISH BALUCHISTAN, REG. I OF 1890, S. 3; IN UPPER BURMA (EXCEPT THE SHAN STATES), ACT XIII OF 1898, S. 4.]

(1)—Judgment—What it ought to contain.—The law requires that a Judge of the Small Cause Court should set out in his judgment the points for determination. MUKKHATTUM PRATH POOVATHAM KANDI UMMACHA v. PURUSHOTHAMA DAS PRAJJI DASS SAIT, 7 M. L. T. 306=6 Ind. Cas. 682.

(2)—Suit against Secretary of State for damages for non-realization of the amount due for an insured value-payable parcel—See ACT VI OF 1898, s. 34, 15 M.L.J. 226=28 M. 213.

(3)—S. 11, arts. 20, 35 (j)—Wrongful attachment of crops—Objection to attachment disallowed without adjudication—Suit for recovery of price—Civ. Pro. Code (V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 63.—Where, in execution of a decree, certain crops are attached, and the attachment is objected to by the plaintiff, but during the pendency of the objections the crops are sold, and the objections are subsequently dismissed without adjudication: Held, that a suit for recovery of the price of the crops cannot be entertained by a Court of Small Causes, inasmuch as the Court cannot give a decree without deciding whether the attachment is legal or illegal. The mere fact that the suit is limited to a claim for the price or value of the crops, which was handed to the decree-holders by the Court executing the decree, does not make the suit any the less a suit for illegal attachment within the meaning of art. 35, cl. (j) of sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. Where objections to an attachment are disallowed without adjudication, art. 20 of the Act does not apply to a suit for the price of the crops attached. RUP KISHEN v. SOBHI, 8 A. L.J. 187=9 Ind. Cas. 537.

(4)—S. 15—Suit for share in the offerings of temple—Cognizable by Small Cause Court—Suit under Rs. 1,000—No appeal—Punjab Courts Act, XVIII of 1884, s. 70 (1) (a) and (b) —Civ. Pro. Code, 1908, (=Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 584).—A suit for a share in the offerings and the profits of the Jagir attached to the Darbar Sahib, constituting the income thereof, is a suit of a Small Cause nature. (188 P.R. 1888, 81 P.R. 1889, 204 P.R. 1889, 84 P.R. 1892, R.; 21 B. 248, D.) Where the suit related to a sum of Rs. 657-6-10 only, held, that no appeal lay under s. 70 (1) (b) Punjab Courts Act, 1884. The fact that the pecuniary limit for interference under s. 70 (1) (b) in Small Causes is Rs. 1,000, while under the Code of Civil Procedure the pecuniary limit for second appeal in Small Causes is Rs. 500 only, does not extend the power to interfere under s. 70 (1) (a) beyond the limits prescribed by that sub-section. SARDAR ARUR SINGH v. DAYAL SINGH, 20 P.R. 1911=93 P.L.R. 1911=54 P. W.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 579.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(5)—Ss. 15, 23, 25, sch. II, arts. 11, 15, 16—Suit for recovery of money—Question of title—Jurisdiction.—A suit for the recovery of money was brought in a Mofussil Small Cause Court alleging that the defendant, a Hindu widow, agreed to execute a sale-deed to plaintiff getting it attested by the reversioners, that, upon such draft sale-deed, she received a sum of Rs. 100 as earnest money, that she failed to obtain the signature of the reversioners and have the sale deed registered, and claiming for these reasons the earnest-money and other expenses for stamp paper etc. Upon the Court decreeing for plaintiff, a revision petition was presented contending that the money claim of the plaintiff involved a question and determination of title to immoveable property and that the Court should have, under s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, returned the plaint to be presented to a Court having jurisdiction to determine title and that the suit also fell under cls. (11), (15) and (16) of sch. II to the Act. Held, that s. 23 is distinctly framed in optional terms giving discretion to the Court to act in the matter or not, that the suit as brought did not come under any of the arts. (11), 15 or (16) and that the Court could not, in revision, enter into the findings of fact by the lower Court. JAI DEVI v. MATHURA DAS, A.W.N. 1888, 193. [R., 14 A. 413=A.W.N. 1892, 79.]

(6)—Ss. 15 and 32 and art. 8—Suit for agricultural rent—Small Cause Court, jurisdiction of, not invested with authority to entertain such suits—Appealability of decree in such suits.—A suit was instituted in the Township Court of Tavoy for Rs. 20, rent of paddy land. The only question for decision was whether an appeal lay from the decree of the Township Court. The following reference was made to a Bench of the Chief Court, Lower Burma. "Is a suit for rent of paddy land a suit of a nature cognisable by a Court of Small Causes in Lower Burma, outside Rangoon?" Held, though the Township Court had jurisdiction, as a Court of Small Causes, the effect of ss. 15 and 32 and art. 8 of the Act is that any Court constituted under the Act, and any Court invested with the jurisdiction of Courts under the Act, is precluded from exercising jurisdiction in suits for the recovery of rent, other than house-rent, unless the Judge of the Court has been expressly invested by the Local Government with the authority to exercise jurisdiction with respect thereto. The Judge of the Tavoy Township Court, not having been so invested and the suit not having been one for rent, could not take cognizance of the suit under its Small Cause jurisdiction. Consequently, an appeal lay against the decree in the suit. SEIN THAUNG v. SHWE KUN, 3 L.B.R. 47. [R., 3 L.B.R. 90.]

(7)—S. 15, art. 3, sch. II—Suit against State Railways.—A suit for damages for non-delivery of goods against a Government Railway Company does not fall within art. 3 and is not exempted from the cognizance of a

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

Small Cause Court. PUNJAB RAILWAY CO. v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA, 97 P.R. 1894. (17 C. 290, Cited.)

(8)—S. 15, sch. II, art. 8—Landlord and tenant—Suit for rent and for sale of value of improvements made by tenant for rent due—Jurisdiction.—Plaintiff as jenmi, alleging that the defendants held under a verumpattam tenure, sued to recover arrears of rent. He also prayed to have the improvements belonging to the defendants sold for such arrears. Held that if arrears are due on the one side and the value of improvements on the other the two items should ordinarily be dealt with as cross-demands arising under the same contract but giving rise to no ground for treating the suit otherwise than as a suit for rent. The suit was, therefore, triable by a Court of Small Causes. KARUNAKARA KURUP v. MUNIPERNAN, 24 M. 356.

(8-a)—S. 15, art. 15—Specific performance, suit for —Claim to recover money on fulfilment of a stipulated condition—Suit of a Small Cause nature.—A suit to recover a sum of money on the fulfilment of a condition on which it was stipulated to be paid is not a suit for the specific performance of a contract so as to except it from the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court. KONDUGARI SUBBIAH v. KAVUPATI VENKATASUBBIAH, 15 Ind. Cas. 352. (19 M.L.J. 220, 5 M.L.T. 296, 1 Ind. Cas. 552, D.)

(9)—S. 15, art. 31—Court of Small Causes, suit of nature cognizable by—Profits of bazaar, suit for share of—Second appeal—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 586.—The plaintiff in his plaint described the suit as one to recover Rs. 30, "mesne profits" from April 1894 to March 1897 on account of a bazaar. He further alleged that, under a decree obtained by him against the defendant, his share in the profits was to the extent of two-thirds, that though he obtained possession of the bazaar under the decree, yet the defendant went on collecting the whole of the profits of the bazaar and never gave him his share of the same. The relief sought was " a decree for Rs. 30 on account of the income (munufa) of the bazaar from April 1894 to March 1897 at the rate of Rs. 10 a year." The subject-matter of the suit being less than Rs. 500, the question was, whether it was one of the nature cognizable in a Court of Small Causes, and as such, one in which under s. 586, Civ. Pro. Code, a second appeal would not lie. Held, that the suit being founded on the allegations that the parties to the suit were co-sharers in the profits of the bazaar, that the defendant had collected the entire profits and had not paid the plaintiff his share of the same, the suit was not one for profits wrongfully received by the defendant within the meaning of art. (31), sch. II, Act IX of 1887, but one for money had and received for the plaintiff, and was therefore one of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, in which no second appeal lay. ANRUDH SINGH v. AMARDAT SINGH, 4 O.C. 89.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(10)—S. 15 and art. (35) (1) second schedule—Watercourse—Encroachment on land—Damages—Suit for.—Where the plaintiff's claim for damages does not relate to any injury to his right in water but only for an encroachment on land over which a watercourse runs, it does not fall within the article and is, consequently, cognizable by a Small Cause Court. COLLINS v. TENBROKE, 71 P.R. 1896. [R., 134 P.R. 1906.]

(11)—S. 16—Small Cause suit instituted and tried on the original side—Appeal—Reversal of decree—Jurisdiction of appellate Court—Civ. Pro. Code (XIV of 1882), ss. 646-A, 646-B.—Held, that, where a Small Cause suit is tried by the Munsiff on the Original Side and his decision is reversed by the appellate Court, the High Court is bound to set aside the decree in appeal as having been passed without jurisdiction. (27 M. 478, Dissented from; 26 M. 176, 25 B. 417, Appr.) Held, also, that consent cannot give jurisdiction. COLLIPARA SEETAPATY v. KANKIPATI SUBBAYYA, 6 M.L.T. 121, F B.=33 M. 323=20 M.L J. 718. (9 A. 191, P.C., 11 M. 26, P.C., F.)

(12)—S. 16—Small Cause suit tried as ordinary suit by both the lower Courts, effect of—High Court's powers of interference—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 646-B.—Where both the lower Courts tried a Small Cause suit as an ordinary suit, and the lower Appellate Court directed the plaintiff to pay the defendant's costs, the decree of the District Judge must, notwithstanding s. 16 of Act IX of 1887, be treated as effective, so as to enable the defendant to recover the amount of costs; and the High Court, in the exercise of its discretion, will decline to interfere in revision. S. 646-B of the Code is an enabling section and does not cut down the jurisdiction of the appellate tribunal. SRI RAJA SIMHADRI APPA RAO BAHADUR, MINOR, BY HIS GUARDIAN SRI RAJA RAMACHANDRA APPA RAO BAHADUR v. CHELASANE BHADRAYYA, 1 M.L.T. 414=30 M. 41. (21 M. 239, 27 M. 479, 25 A. 135, R.)

(13)—S. 16 — See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 20, 19 M. 477.

(14)—S. 16—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XLVI, r. 7, 27 M. 478.

(15)—S. 16—See REFERENCE TO HIGH COURT, 21. C. 249.

(16)—Ss. 16, 23—Discretionary power of Court under, to return plaint to be presented to proper Court—Competency of latter Court to try suit.—Under s. 23 of the Act, a Small Cause Court has discretionary power to decline to exercise jurisdiction in matters involving questions of title, which such Court cannot finally determine. The effect of the exercise of such discretion and the consequent return of the plaint to be presented to a Court having jurisdiction to determine such title, is, to give the latter Court jurisdiction to try the Small Cause suit, so returned, as an original suit, notwithstanding anything in s. 16 of the Act. SUBBAROYADU v. GANGAYYA, 29 M. 329.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(17)—Ss. 16, 23—Effect of order under s. 23—Suit for recovery of price of land sold—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court.—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 16, 9 M.L T. 372.

(18)—Ss. 16, 32 (2)—Extension of Small Cause jurisdiction—Subsequent transfer of suits filed on Original Side.—On the extension of the Small Cause jurisdiction of a District Munsiff, certain suits filed on the Original Side of his Court before the extension, were transferred to the Small Cause side and disposed of as Small Cause suits. Held, that the effect of s. 32 (2) of the Act is that none of its provisions apply to a suit commenced in a Court before that Court has been invested with Small Cause jurisdiction. The consequence of the transfer of a regular suit into a Small Cause suit would be to deprive a party of a right of appeal which he had at the time he instituted his suit. In the Presidency of Madras, the investment of jurisdiction, in cases like the present, is the investment of an individual Judge with particular powers. Consequently, the transformation of the suits into Small Cause suits was not in accordance with law. HARI KAMAYYA v. HARI VENKAYYA, 26 M. 212, F.B. [F., 5 Bom. L R. 1008=28 B. 244, 29 M. 124=15 M.L.J. 491, 12 C.W.N. 167.]

(19)—Ss. 16, 32 (2)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 646-B—Institution of a suit before a Munsif exercising Small Cause Court powers up to a certain value—Trial by his successor invested with higher powers.—Where a suit for recovery of a sum of Rs. 70 was instituted in the Court of a Munsif exercising Small Cause Court powers up to Rs. 50, and subsequently during the pendency of the suit the Munsif was transferred and the substantive Munsif who succeeded him had powers of a Small Cause Court up to Rs. 100. Held, that the suit should not be tried as if the powers of the Court remained the same as they were when the suit was instituted. MAHIMA CHANDRA SIRDAR v. KALI MANDOL, 12 C.W.N. 167.

(20)—Ss. 16 and 33—Suit of Small Cause nature tried as regular suit by Judge having Small Cause powers—Effect of such procedure.—Where a Judge presiding over a Small Cause Court and also over a Court of ordinary jurisdiction tried a suit of Small Cause nature, by mistake, as a regular one, held, that the mistake did not alter the character of the suit. An appeal, therefore, would not lie from a decree in that suit, under s. 540 of the Civ. Pro. Code. NGA SHWE THA v. NGA PO, U.B.R. (1907). Provincial Small Cause Courts' Act, 1. (12 B. 486, 25 B. 417, R.)

(21)—S. 17—Failure to deposit security—Application not maintainable under s. 17—

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

Notice under s. 248, Civ. Pro Code, 1882—Process in execution—Limitation.—An application under s. 17, Provincial Small Cause Courts' Act, 1887, cannot be heard before the security required by the section is furnished. (13 M. 178, R.) Notice under s. 248, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, is a process for enforcing the decree, and the process is executed when the notice is served (22 W.R. 5, Appr.), and, in consequence, the present application is barred. CHATURVEDULA SURYANARAYANA v. CHATURVEDULA RAMAMMA, 7 M.L T. 308=6 Ind. Cas. 400.

(22)—S. 17—Application for review—Deposit in Court—Security for performance.—In the proviso to s. 17 of the Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, 1887, the words "at the time of presenting his application" govern and refer to both "the deposit of the amount in Court" and "the giving of security, etc.;" therefore, "deposit" or "security" is a condition precedent to the granting of the review. SOMABHAI v. WADI LAL, 9 Bom. L.R. 883.

(23)—S. 17—Application to set aside an ex parte decree—Provisions as to depositing decree amount or furnishing security whether mandatory or merely directory—Petitioner had presented an application to set aside an ex parte decree against him, which was rejected on the ground that he had not complied with the provisions of s. 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts' Act, 1887, as to either depositing the decree amount in Court or giving security for the performance of the decree. It was to revise that order of rejection that the present petition was put in, on the ground that the provisions of the section should be regarded as directory and not mandatory. Held, the provisions contained in the section form a condition precedent and are to be strictly construed. Enactments regulating the procedure in Courts seem usually to be imperative and not merely directory. S. 21 of the Repealed Act of 1865 contained somewhat similar provisions to those in question and they were always regarded as mandatory. (5 B. H. C. 70, 14 W. R 42, R.) The contention for the petitioner may appear to find support in the decision of the Madras High Court in Ramasawmi v. Kurisu, (13 M. 178, Doubted); but that decision has been rightly dissented from by the Calcutta High Court in Jogiahir v. Bishen Dayal Singh. UMRAO JIWAN PATEL v. MUNNUMIAN MUSALMAN, 2 N.L.R. 23. (18 C. 83, F.)

(24)—S. 17—Ex parte decree, transfer of, for execution—Payment of decree amount into executing Court—Application to set aside—Ex parte decree made in Court passing decree, before entering satisfaction of decree, whether proper.—An ex parte decree was passed by the Small Cause Court at X and transferred for execution to Court Z. The judgment-debtor paid the decree amount into Court Z on 3rd June, 1908, and applied to the Court at X on the 16th June, 1908, for setting aside the decree against him. The application was neglected on the ground, apparently that the decree had been satisfied and had ceased to exist, possibly on the ground that the deposit ought to have been made in Court X. The decree-holder took the money out of the Court on the 17th June, and the decree was then recorded as satisfied. Held, (1) the application for setting aside the ex parte decree was made when the decree was alive;—(2) the payment into the Court Z was no bar to the application made to the Court X, and must be treated as a compliance with the rule laid down in s. 17, Act IX of 1887;—(3) a deposit of the decree amount may be made even before the application is presented The words "at the time of presenting his application" are merely discretionary and not mandatory, the period being extendible at the discretion of the Court. RUGH NATH DAS v. DOCTOR PANNA LAL, 54 P.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas 945=141 P.L.R. 1910. (108 P.R. 1894, R.)

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(25)—S. 17—Review application—Deposit of decree amount—Condition precedent.—Deposit of the decretal amount or tender of sufficient security for payment thereof is a condition precedent to the grant of a new trial. GOBIND v. MOHAN, 5 P.R. 1894.

(26)—S. 17—Deposit of decree amount—Provisions directory.—The provisions of this section are directory and not mandatory. The time may be extended by the Court at its discretion. MUHAMMAD FAZAL ALI v. KARIM KHAN, 108 P.R. 1894. [R., 54 P.R. 1910.]

(27)—S. 17—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 108—'Decree passed ex parte,' meaning of.—S. 17 of Act IX of 1887 must be read with s. 108 of the Civ. Pro. Code. The term 'a decree passed ex parte' referred to in s. 17 of Act IX of 1887 can only mean a decree passed ex parte, against a defendant, within the meaning of s. 108 of the Civ. Pro. Code and does not include cases dismissed for default. MUSSUMMAT JAMINA BIBI v. SERI CHAND BHAGAT, 2 C.W.N. 693. [R., 4 L.B.R 17.]

(28)—S. 17—Small Cause Court decree, application to set aside—Deposit of decretal amount, when to be made.— In a Small Cause suit an ex parte decree was passed against the applicant. She applied to have it set aside, at the time of presenting her application she applied also for permission to deposit the amount of the decree, but as the record of the case had been sent to another district, the Court refused to receive the money and sent for the record. Sometime after the record was received, the applicant deposited the amount of the decree. The Court dismissed the application, because the amount of the decree was not deposited with the application. Held that if an applicant makes the deposit or gives the security when permitted or directed to do so, although the deposit is not made or the security is not given at the time of making the application, the provisions of s. 17, Act IX of 1887, are sufficiently complied with, and the deposit made by the applicant should have been accepted. A Court having accepted an application should either permit the applicant to make the deposit or give security at once, or, allow a reasonable time for doing so. RAGHUNANDAN v. BADAL, 3 O C. 296.

(29)—S. 17, application to set aside an ex parte decree—Subsequent deposit of decretal amount—Defect not cured.—The deposit of the decretal amount or the furnishing of the security under s. 17 of the Act is a condition precedent to the entertaining of the application to set aside an ex parte decree. The defect is not cured by subsequently depositing the decretal amount. JAGANNATH v. CHET RAM, 3 A.L.J. 318=A.W.N. 1906, 93=28 A. 470. [F., 9 Bom. L R. 883, 5 A.L.J. 295=A.W.N. 1908, 141; R., 6 Ind. Cas. 154.]

(29-a)—S. 17—Ex parte decree—Application to set aside—Deposit of amount due under the decree—Amount of costs not deposited with the application—Compliance with the requirements of the section.—A Court of Small Causes passed an ex parte decree for Rs. 190 and for costs amounting to Rs. 20-8. The decree-holder applied for execution of the decree and a notice was issued to the judgment-debtor to show cause why the decree should not be executed. In this notice, the amount due under the decree was shown as Rs. 190. The judgment-debtor then applied to set aside the ex parte decree and deposited Rs. 190 only along with his application. Rs. 20-8, the amount due for costs, however, was deposited later on: Held, that the provisions of s. 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act had been substantially complied with. LOCHI LAL v. MEWA RAM, 14 Ind. Cas. 242. (28 A. 470, 3 A.L.J. 318, A.W.N. 1906, 93, D.)

(30)—S. 17—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. IX, r. 13, O. XXI, r. 89, 8 C.W.N. 355.

(31)—S. 17— Deposit or security imperative —Deposit made one year after ex parte decree —Limitation— See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, ss. 14, 18, 6 Ind. Cas. 154.

(32)—S. 17, sub-s. 1—Application to set aside ex parte decree—Security not furnished with application but furnished within time limited by art. 164 of the Limitation Act for the application —Validity of the application.—In execution of an ex parte small cause decree, some moveable of the judgment-debtor were attached. Within the time prescribed by art. 164 of the Limitation Act, the judgment-debtor applied to the Court, under s. 17, sub-s. 1 of Act IX of 1887, to set aside the ex parte decree, but the security mentioned in the proviso to that section was not deposited along with the application. The security was furnished, subsequently, and within the time limited for making an application under s. 17, sub-s. 1. Held, under the circumstances, the application might rightly be regarded as satisfying substantially the requirements of the law and ought to be acted upon by the Court. For, to hold otherwise would lead to the conclusion that the defendant ought to be punished for his diligence in presenting the application earlier than he need have done under the law. JEUN MUCHI v. BUDHIRAM MUCHI, 1 C.L.J. 43=32 C. 339. (18 C. 83, D.)

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(33)—S. 17, sub-s. (1)—Order of dismissal for default under s. 102, Civ. Pro. Code—Whether ex parte decree—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 2, O. IX, r. 8, 4 L.B.R. 17, F.B.

(34)—S. 23, Finality of order.—An order under s. 23 returning a plaint to be presented to the regular Courts, is final, and confers jurisdiction on the latter. MAHAMAYA DASAYA v. NITYA HARI DAS BAIRAGI, 23 C. 425. [F., 10 M.L.J. 313, 29 M. 329; R., 35 P.L.R. 1902.]

(35)—S. 23—Question of title—Return of plaint—Declaration of title—S. 586, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 (=s. 102, present Code)—Appeal.—Where a plaint, having been returned by the Small Cause Court under s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, was presented to the Munsiff's Court together with a petition asking the Court to come to a decision on the question of title, but there was no prayer for declaration of title to the land, nor did the plaintiff offer to pay any further Court-fee: Held, that the question of title could not be decided finally in such a suit and that the lower appellate Court had no jurisdiction to make a declaratory decree for title. In such cases, a second appeal is precluded by s. 586, Civ. Pro. Code. RASH BEHARI PAL CHOWDHRY v. SRIDHAR BELAL, 6 C.W.N. 687. (24 C. 557, F.)

(36)—S. 23—Return of plaint by Small Cause Court for presentation to Court of original jurisdiction—Effect of order in conferring jurisdiction on latter Court.—Where an order is passed by a Court of Small Causes returning a plaint under s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act for presentation to the Court having ordinary jurisdiction, the order is final and has the effect of giving jurisdiction to the said Court of ordinary jurisdiction. SHAMSHUDIN ROWTHEN v. ASA BIVI AMMAL, 10 M.L.J. 313.

(37)—S. 23—Second appeal—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 586.—A suit for contribution for less than Rs. 50 was presented to the District Munsif's Court as an original suit and the Munsif returned the plaint and directed it to be presented as a Small Cause suit. Accordingly, it was presented as a Small Cause suit; and the District Munsif, acting under s. 23 of Act IX of 1887, directed the plaint to be presented on the original side of the Court as a question of title, which arose in the suit, had to be determined. The suit was then tried as an original suit. Held, that the High Court was precluded by the terms of s. 586, Civ. Pro. Code, from entertaining a second appeal. THE SECRETARY OF STATE v. R. FISCHER, 1 M.L.J. 166.

(38)—S. 23—Suit for rent—Question of title—Return of plaint—Jurisdiction of Court to try question of title—Appeal, Remand—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 562, 566 and 568—Decision on a preliminary point.—When in a suit for rent a Court of Small Causes returns a plaint under s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act to be presented to a Court having jurisdiction to decide the question of title in respect of property for the rent of which claim is made, the Court to whom the case is sent for disposal has simply to try the claim for rent, and decide whether the plaintiff was entitled to the relief sought or not. If the nature of the defence renders it necessary to decide a question of title the Court has to draw issues of fact on that point as may be necessary, and decide them incidentally. The jurisdiction of the Court is not barred, because the defence set up makes it necessary incidentally to decide a question of title as to the property the value of which exceeds the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court. The decree passed by the Court is subject to procedure and appeal as in an ordinary suit. (23 C. 425, R.) When the Munsif decreed the claim for rent without deciding the question of title and the District Judge remanded the case to the Munsif under s. 562 of the Civ. Pro. Code without reversing the judgment of the lower Court on the issues decided by it as to the defendants' taking the house on rent from the plaintiff and the amount of rent due. Held, that the order of remand was illegal; the Munsif had not decided the suit upon a preliminary point but on the main issues, and the decision of the Munsif upon those issues had not been reversed. If in such cases the Appellate Court considers it necessary to try the question of title in order to decide the claim in dispute it can take action under s. 566 or s. 568 of the Civ. Pro. Code. MIRAJ-UD-DIN v. KARIM BAKSH, 35 P.L.R. 1902=43 P.R. 1902. [R., 2 P.R. 1908, 76 P.R. 1909.]

(39)—S. 23—Question of "title"—"May"—Small Cause Court suit.—A suit was brought in a Court of Small Causes upon a bond in which Rs. 501 was made payable by instalments, to recover Rs. 300 representing three unpaid instalments. The Court dismissed the claim on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to prove the execution of the bond. Held that the suit involved no question of "title" within the meaning of s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887) and that the Court was therefore not bound by the provisions of that section to return the plaint. Semble.—The word "may" in s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Court's Act is not mandatory. FATMA v. BANDHU LAL, A.W.N. 1889, 4. (A.W.N. 1888, 193, R.)

(40)—S. 23—Suit of nature cognisable by Small Cause Court.—A cause is none the less a cause cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, because that Court exercised the discretion conferred on it by s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Court's Act No. IX of 1887, and returned the plaint to be presented to a Court having jurisdiction to determine the question of title raised therein. SADA SHANKAR v. BRIJ MOHAN DAS, 20 A. 480 = A.W.N. 1898, 129. (24 C. 557, F.)

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(41)—S. 23, (1)—Question of title—Practice.—Where in a suit heard by a Court of Small Causes any complicated question as to title to immoveable property is involved, it would be the wiser course to act under s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Court's Act (IX of 1887)—A Court of Small Causes cannot dismiss a suit otherwise within its jurisdiction merely because a question of title as to immoveable property incidentally arises. It can either return the plaint, under s. 23, to be presented to a Court having jurisdiction to determine title, or dispose of the suit on the merits. LALA SINGH v. MAHIPAL SINGH, A.W.N. 1889, 149.

(42)—S. 23—Suit for rent—Determination of question of title—Plaint returned under s. 23 for presentation to proper Court for—No second appeal—Civ. Pro. Code (1882), s. 586.—Where a suit for rent, in which the claim was below Rs. 500, was at first returned under s. 23, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, for presentation to the Court having power to determine the question of title, and where it was presented to the District Munsif's Court and tried as a regular suit and an appeal was presented to the Sub-Court, held, that no second appeal lay. (6 C.L.J. 218, R.) The suit is of a Small Cause nature, the claim being one for rent. The fact that the suit was tried as a regular suit is immaterial, and the fact that a question of title was involved or decided is equally immaterial. MAPPILAKANDI AMAD KOYAN'S SON ENADIN v. KUNHIKUTTI'S SON KUNHIPERI, 10 M.L.T. 500 = 12 Ind. Cas. 957.

(43)—S. 23—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 102, 15 M. 98.

(44)—S. 23—See NOS. 5, 16, 17, supra and NO. 190-a, infra.

(45)—Ss. 23 and 25—Jurisdiction—Suit for sacrificial goat based on plaintiff's title as shebait to a temple, if may be decided by Small Cause Court.—Where the plaintiff claiming to be the shebait of a goddess sued the defendant for damages for unlawfully taking away a goat sacrificed at the altar of the goddess. Held—that the question could be properly tried in a Small Cause Court, without any elaborate investigation into the general question of the title of the plaintiff as shebait. The plaint having been returned by the Small Cause Court for presentation to the proper Court, under s. 23 of the Small Cause Courts Act: Held—that the High Court had jurisdiction to revise that order, either under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Caurts Act or under s. 15 of the Charter

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

Act. Quære—Whether 'decide' in s. 25 means 'finally adjudicate'. UMESH CHANDRA PALODHI v. RAKHAL CHANDRA CHATTERJEE, 15 C.W.N. 666 = 10 Ind. Cas. 8.

(46)—Ss. 23 and 25—Order returning a plaint under s. 23, whether falls within s. 25.—The order of a Court of Small Causes, under s. 23 of Act IX of 1887, returning a plaint, is not an order, made in a case decided by the Court of Small Causes, within the meaning of s. 25 of the Act, and therefore cannot be interfered with by the High Court, under the powers conferred upon it by that section. SUBAL RAM DUTT v. JAGADANUNDA MAZUMDAR, 13 C.W.N. 403 = 1 Ind. Cas. 288.

(46-a)—Ss. 23, 25—Question of title—Revision.—Where, in a suit brought in a Small Cause Court, the defendant raises a question of title, it is expedient for the Court to return the plaint for presentation to a Court competent to decide such a question. Where the Judge of a Small Cause Court has decided a suit in a summary way, without determining the question of title one way or the other, his decision ought to be set aside by the High Court in revision. HIRA LAL v. MOHAMMAD SHARFAT ULLAH, 14 Ind. Cas. 2.

(47)—S. 25—Discretion of High Court—Circumstances empowering revision under s. 622, Civ Pro. Code.—In enacting s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), the Legislature could not have intended to practically give an appeal on law and on facts from the decisions of Courts of Small Causes, which were final, subject only to the power given by that. Section 622, Civ. Pro. Code, should be taken as indicating the line of discretion to be exercised by the Judge in considering whether he should or should not apply s. 25 of the Act. SARMAN LAL v. KHUBAN, 16 A. 476 = A. W. N. 1894, 183, F. B. (13 A. 277, 15 A. 139, R.) [Diss. 11 C.P.L.R. 91, 66 P.R. 1904 = 138 P.L.R. 1903; R., 21 A. 89, 5 C.L.J. 413, 19 P.R. 1901 = 68 P.L.R. 1901, 113 P.L.R. 1903, 27 A. 192 = A.W.N. 1904, 227 = 1 A.L.J. 697, 6 A.L.J. 944 = 3 Ind. Cas. 817.]

(48)—S. 25—Revision—Error of procedure—Substantial justice—Practice—Arbitration—Refusing to give evidence meaning of—Code of Civil Procedure (V of 1908), sch. II, s. 7 (2).—It is not the practice of the High Court, under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, to interfere merely for the purpose of correcting procedure, where substantial justice has been done. The words "refusing to give their evidence" in sch. II, paragraph 7 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure, are intended to refer to the case of a person who refuses to give evidence when placed on oath and required to answer questions put to him. A person, therefore, who elects not to produce any evidence, cannot be said to refuse to give evidence within the meaning of the enactment. JANAN v. NARAIN DAS, 8 A.L.J. 929.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(49)—S. 25—Power of High Court in revision to disturb a finding of fact—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 622.—Under s. 25, the High Court, in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction, has got a wider power than that conferred by s. 622, Civ. Pro. Code, and can even disturb a finding of fact of the lower Court on substantial grounds. LT. COL. J. G. TURNER v. JAGMOHAN SINGH, A.W.N. 1905, 77=2 A. L. J. 297= 27 A. 331.

(50)—S. 25—Construction of statutes—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), construction of—Summons in Small Cause Court—Fresh summons not issued—Mere irregularity—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss 69, 70—Suit by co-sharer for share of expenses of repair of joint property.—S. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), must not be construed in a sense which would virtually give a right of appeal in every Small Cause Court case, and which would be inconsistent with the finality which the Legislature intended to attach to the judgments of Courts of Small Causes. The language of the above section is somewhat broadly expressed, a result which usually arises when the Legislature happens to employ a few words to express a meaning greater than those words can contain. [R., 12 A. 277 F.B., =11 A.W.N. 81.] Where a witness was summoned on behalf of the defendant in a suit tried before a Court of Small Causes but service of the summons was not effected, held (1) that as the defendant had not applied for the issue of a fresh summons or of a warrant, the action of the Court in deciding the case without the evidence of that witness could not be regarded as a refusal to receive his evidence; and that, even if the Court erred in not issuing a fresh summons, the omission would only be an irregularity not questionable in revision without proof of substantial injustice affecting the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court, within the meaning of s. 578 of the Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 (=s. 99, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908). One of two joint owners who chooses without the permission of his co-sharer to spend money on the joint property has no right to inflict the payment of any share of such expenses upon such joint owner, unless they fell within the purview of ss. 69 and 70 of the Contract Act. MUHAMMAD NIZAM-UD-DIN KHAN v. HIRA LAL, A.W.N. 1890, 121.

(51)—S. 25—Interlocutory order of a Court of Small Causes not open to revision.—Where a defendant pleaded limitation in a suit tried by a Court of Small Causes and asked the Court to dismiss the suit on that preliminary point, which the Court refused to do after hearing the parties: Held, that interference by revision under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act was not allowable at that stage, as the words of the section refer to cases decided by a Court of Small Causes, and that such interference would be contrary to the object of the Act. MAUNG BA KYAW v. ME SAW, 9 Ind. Cas. 467. (13 C.W.N. 403, 1 Ind. Cas. 288, R.)

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(52)—S. 25—Revision—Civil cases—Hundi, suit on—Interest—Costs against unsuccessful party—Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), s. 80.—Under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, the Chief Court allowed interest to the plaintiff on a suit on a hundi at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from the date of hundi to the date of realization, and also costs of the suit which the Small Cause Court had refused. THAKAR SINGH v. ISHAR SINGH, 113 P.L.R. 1911.

(53)—S. 25—Revision.—The Chief Court declined to interfere under s. 25, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, where there was no reason to think that injustice had been done. Held, that it was not contemplated to allow appeals on points of law under s. 25. FAQUIR CHAND v. MUSSAMMAT BALKAUR, 68 P.L.R. 1901=19 P.R. 1901. (79 P.R. 1888, 20 B. 250, 16 A. 476, R.) [Cited, 66 P.R. 1904.]

(54)—S. 25—Revision—Mistake of law—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), sch. II, art. 75—Bond payable by instalments.—In the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction, under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, the Chief Court is not bound to interfere when a Small Cause Court has erred on a point of law, but it would interfere when a wrong decision on a question of law, e.g., question of limitation, has resulted in a failure of justice. The Chief Court cannot decline to decide a law point raised merely because it is intricate and difficult, if the case itself is such that the Court's revisional action is necessary in the ends of justice. (19 P.R. 1901, 68 P.L.R. 1901, Cons.; 21 B. 250, 16 A. 476, 7 B. 342, 21 A. 89, R.) When a suit on a bond payable by instalments providing that the whole amount will become payable at once in case of default in payment of any instalment was dismissed by the Small Cause Court as barred by limitation under art. 75 of the Limitation Act and the plaintiff applied under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act for revision of the order of dismissal and contended that art. 75 was not applicable to the case and there was waiver as regards the default of the first instalment. Held, that the Chief Court was competent to consider the legality or otherwise of the order. Held, also, that the order of the Small Cause Court was not contrary to law. (188 P.R. 1883, F.B., F.; 8 B. 561, R.) Per Robertson, J.—The Chief Court should not interfere in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act except where a clear case of injustice resulting from a decree or order clearly not according to law has been made out. Per Chatterji, J.—It is not allowable in construing an Act to refer to the report of the Select Committee and the debates in the Legislative Council on the Bill which subsequently is passed into the Act. In an appeal it is the right of the appellant to obtain an adjudication, and one in his favour,

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

If his grounds are made out, irrespective of the question whether substantial justice is or is not thereby dispensed in the case. A point of law or procedure may, in a particular case, work a great hardship, but in an appeal the Court is bound to give effect to it, without regard to the consequences. In cases of revision, it is quite otherwise. No party has the right to obtain an adjudication, and it is entirely within the discretion of the Court to interfere or not, as it thinks fit. It will not interfere to perpetrate an injustice, but only to promote the ends of justice. S. 622 of the Civ. Pro. Code is not a safe guide for the exercise of the revisional powers under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. SAYAD MIR SHAH v. ATAR SINGH, 138 P.L R. 1903.

(55)—S. 25—Revision.—The Chief Court declined to exercise its powers under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, when there was no reason to think that injustice had been done. Held, that it was not contemplated to allow appeals on points of law under s. 25. HARDIAL v. KANSHI RAM, 113 P.L.R. 1903.

(56)—S. 25 — Appeal—District Judge.— A Subordinate Judge holding Small Causes Court powers decided a suit under that jurisdiction. An appeal, against the decree, was preferred to the District Court, which set aside the said decree of the Subordinate Judge and remanded the case for a fresh trial in his ordinary regular jurisdiction: Held, setting aside the order of the District Court, that the proper course for the party aggrieved by the decree was to apply to the High Court, under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, 1887. DIWALIBAI v. SADASHIVDAS, 1 Bom. L.R. 836 = 24 B. 310.

(57)—S. 25 — Petition for revision—Three years after order—Bar of limitation—Limitation Act, IX of 1908, sch. II, art. 181.—An application for revision under s. 25, Provincial Small Causes Court Act, 1887, presented more than three years after the date of the order complained against, is barred under art. 181, Limitation Act, 1908. BEHARI LAL v. KALU, 92 P.R. 1910 = 126 P.W.R. 1910 = 187 P.L.R. 1910 = 8 Ind. Cas. 318.

(58)—S. 25—Finding of fact—High Court's power of revision.—Held, that a Provincial Small Cause Court's finding of fact can be set aside on revision under s. 25 of Act IX of 1887, if it is based upon ostensibly unreliable or no evidence, especially where it ignores the testimony of a witness of high social position. M. NAZIR AHMAD v. ABDUL HAMID KHAN, 89 P.W.R. 1910 = 7 Ind. Cas. 530.

(59)—S. 25—Suit cognizable by Small Cause Court, filed as original suit—Revisability under s. 25—Petition for revision unnecessary—Work done against defendant's will—Suit for contribution—Maintainability—S. 70, Contract Act (IX of 1872).—Where a suit cognizable by a Small Cause Court was instituted as an original suit; the High Court has power to interfere with the decree in that suit under s. 25, Act IX of 1887, and no appeal lies against that decree. S. 25, Act IX of 1887, does not require an application before action is taken. A natural stream cannot be the joint property of the various riparian owners. Where a defendant did not want any work done for him and said so, and where the work (in this case, a work of irrigation on a natural stream of which the plaintiff and the defendant were riparian owners), was not done on his property or to save his property from destruction, the plaintiff would not be justified in doing the work, unless he intended to do it gratuitously. No suit for contribution can be brought against the defendant. s. 70, Contract Act not being applicable to such a case. MR. ROBERT FISCHER AND ANOTHER v. S. KANAKASABAPATHY MUDALIAR. 7 M L.T. 74 = 5 Ind. Cas. 742 = 33 M. 258 = 20 M.L.J. 722. (18 M. 88, D. & Expl.).

(60)—S. 25—Power of High Court to question whether application for review of judgment was rightly admitted.—The High Court is not a Small Cause Court and is empowered by s.25, Act IX of 1887, to satisfy itself whether a decree of Small Cause Court is in accordance with law. In doing so, under that section, the High Court is entitled to go into the question whether an application for review of judgment was rightly admitted. NALLOO KOLLATTIRIAN v. GANAPATHY SETHURAYAN, 5 M.L.T. 73 = 19 M.L. J. 56 = 2 Ind. Cas. 488.

(61)—*S.*25 -Revision.--Where a Munsif invested with the powers of a Small Cause Court tried a case not cognizable by such Court and passed a judgment in which he described himself as Judge, Small Cause Court and an application for revision against the judgment was filed under s.25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. Held, that the judgment was appealable and application for revision did not lie. SARMUKH SINGH v. HARDIT SINGH, 98 P.L.R. 1904. (36 P.R. 1900, P.L.R. 1900 p. 400, 17 B. 43, R.)

(62)—S. 25—Revision—Cause of action--Company—Suit by heir for dividends due on shares standing in the name of his ancestor—Succession certificate.— Necessity of, in case of survivorship.—The plaintiff's father held certain shares in a registered company. On the death of his father he applied to the company for the shares to be transferred to his name. The company refused to do so unless the plaintiff obtained a succession certificate or letters of administration. The plaintiff filed a suit in the Small Cause Court for the dividends due on the shares. The Court decreed the claim and held that the plaintiff being the sole heir by survivorship under Hindu Law was not bound to take out letters of administration or a succession certificate. Against application for revision filed by the company it was contended that the judgment was correct and revision did not lie. Held, that the case was of general interest and the judgment should be revised. Held, also, that as under its Articles of Association the company was only bound to pay dividends to its registered share-holders the plaintiff had no cause of action entitling him to sue the company for dividends, the plaintiff's proper course, being to sue the company to have himself registered as a share-holder, if he elected not to produce a succession certificate or letters of administration. Quære:—Whether the plaintiff was bound to produce certificate of succession? DELHI AND LONDON BANK v. KULWANT SINGH, 46 P.L.R. 1904.=16 P.R. 1904.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(63)—S. 25—Small Cause Court decree wrong in law—High Court's power to interfere.—Where the decree of a Small Cause Court (which includes the judgment) involves a substantial error of law, which, in the opinion of the High Court, has occasioned a failure of justice, the High Court has power to interfere under s. 25 of the Act. NILMANI MAITRA v. MATHURA NATH JOARDAR, 5 C.L.J. 413. (21 A. 89, 16 A. 176, 23 B. 334, R.) [R., 6 C.L.J. 527.]

(64)—S. 25—Revision under—Plea of delay in presentation of an application for—, whether can be urged at the hearing and after the admission of the petition.—An application, under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, to set aside a decree of the Small Cause Court might be dismissed on the ground of great delay in making it, even after it had been once admitted in the High Court. Inordinate delay can be brought to notice at the hearing and the Court can be asked not to interfere in consequence. ENG-KEAT v. THE BURMA RAILWAYS CO. LTD., 4 L.B.R. 361.

(65)—S. 25—Civ. Pro. Code., s. 622—Powers of revision of the High Court.—In this case, a Small Cause Court governed by Act IX of 1887 had a summons served on the defendant fixing the very next day for final disposal. The defendant did not appear and the suit was decreed ex parte. The defendant's application for setting aside the ex parte decree proving fruitless, she applied to the High Court, under s. 25 of the Act, for revision. The preliminary objection taken was that the application was not entertainable, the powers of revision possessed by the High Court being governed by s. 622, Civ. Pro. Code. Held, the powers possessed by the High Court, under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, are wider than those under s. 622, Civ. Pro. Code (16 A. 476, F.B., F.) and that, under the circumstances of the case, the decree of the Small Cause Court was liable to be set aside. MCCARRON v. F. WELTI, 27 A. 192 =A.W.N. 1904, 227=1 A.L J. 697. [R., 5 A.L. J. 295=A.W.N. 1908, 141.]

(66)—S. 25—Revision—Powers of High Court—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 108 and 622—Setting aside ex parte decree—Condition precedent.—The powers of revision given to the High Court by s. 25, Small Cause Court Act are more extensive than those exercised by that Court under s. 622, Civ. Pro. Code. (A.W.N. 1907, 227, 21 A. 89, R.) The deposit of the decretal amount or the furnishing of the security is a condition precedent to the setting aside of an ex parte decree. Where none of these essentials has been complied with, the Court is bound to dismiss the application. The defect is not cured by subsequently depositing the decretal amount. NANHE MAL v. HAJAS, 5 A.L.J. 295=A.W.N. 1908, 141. (3 A.L.J. 318, F.)

(67)—S. 25, Act IX of 1887 (Provincial Small Causes Court Act)--S. 622, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882--s. 15, Letters Patent.--When a Judge of the Small Cause Court has jurisdiction to determine a matter, the High Court cannot interfere either under s. 25, Act IX of 1887, or under s. 622, Civ. Pro. Code, or under s. 15. Letters Patent. CORPORATION OF CALCUTTA v. BHUPATI ROY CHOWDHRY, 26 C. 74=3 C.W.N. 70. [F., 16 C.W.N. 480.]

(68)—S. 25—Jurisdiction of High Court—Revision—Refusing leave to amend plaint.—In an action for the price of goods sold in the Court of Small Causes, the plaint was signed and verified on behalf of the plaintiffs by one Mumtaz Ahmad who held a power of attorney bearing a German stamp. In consequence of the invalidity of his power at the hearing, Mumtaz Ahmad asked leave to amend the plaint by changing the description into "Mumtaz Ahmad, agent of Messrs. Heydorn & Co." Leave was not granted and the suit was dismissed: Held, that, by refusing permission to amend the plaint, the Court had acted with such irregularity as called for the interference of the High Court in revision. HEYDORN AND CO. v. MUHAMMAD SHAFI, 9 A.L.J. 294=34 A. 348=14 Ind. Cas. 507.

(69)—S. 25—Finding opposed to evidence—Power of High Court to interfere in revision—Acknowledgment of payment by one trustee without actual receipt of money—Such acknowledgment not binding on the institution.—Even if a finding of fact arrived at by the Lower Court is entirely opposed to the evidence, the High Court has no power to interfere in revision under s. 25 of Act IX of 1887. A mere acknowledgment of payment by one of the trustees who did not really receive the money cannot biud the institution. In re GANAPATHI PILLAI, 1 M. W. N. 1912, 181=15 Ind. Cas. 186.

(69-a)—S. 25—Power of interference—Discretionary—Joint family—Pronote in name of deceased member—Suit by surviving members.—The power of interference by the High Court under s. 25 of Act IX of 1887 is only a discretionary power. where it appears that the decision of the Lower Court has done substantial justice between the parties, the High Court is not bound to interfere. Where a promissory note is taken in the name of one member of a Hindu family, on the death of that member, the survivor can bring a suit on the promissory note, though not on the principles of a family corporation, but of a partnership. GOPALA IYENGAR v. VENKATAKRISHNA IYENGAR, M.W.N. 1912, 1227.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(69-b)—S. 25—Revision against decree of Small Cause Court—Grounds for discretion of High Court.—Held, that s. 25 of the Small Cause Courts Act does not give any right of appeal on law or fact, and the powers conferred by the section are purely discretionary and not to be exercised, unless it appears that some substantial injustice has resulted from the decree of the Court of Small Causes. Held, further, that an error by a Small Cause Court on a question of limitation does not justify the interference of the High Court under the section. RAGHURAJ SINGH (RAJA) v. SAHIB DIN, 15 O.C. 319.

(69-c)—S. 25 — Limitation — Whether a good ground for revision.—The question of limitation is one which may be entertained in revision under s. 25 of Act IX of 1887. SHEORAM v. BADRI DAS BEHARI LAL, 11 A. L. J. 295. (16 A. 476, 17 A. 422, 6 A. L. J. 944, R.)

(69-d)—S. 25—Revision—Civil cases—Small Cause Court judgment—Finding of fact.—The plaintiff's suit was based on a document which was not a pro-note and did not purport to be an acknowledgment of debt. It was merely a receipt. A decree was passed on the mere statement of the plaintiff that the receipt was for money advanced as a loan. It appeared that the parties were at one time partners in a business, and it was impossible to make out whether the money was or was not really paid in the course of some transaction arising out of the firm's business. Held, that the suit must be dismissed, the case being a fit one for interference on revision. FAZAL HUSSAIN v. MRS. HOLMES, 133 P.L.R. 1913=139 P.W.R. 1913.

(70)—S. 25 — See APPEAL — LETTERS PATENT, 27 M. 340.

(71)—S. 25—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 114, O. XLVII, rr. 1, 2, 4, 8, 38 P.L.R. 1904.

(72)—S. 25—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s.115, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 61.

(73)—S. 25—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XX, r. 4, 57 P.R. 1901.

(74)—S. 25—Power of High Court to exonerate defendant against whom decree has been passed and pass a fresh decree against another —See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XLI, r. 22, s. 141, 17 M.L.J. 62.

(75)—S. 25—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 65, 66 P.R. 1895.

(76)—S. 25—Lower Court refusing costs to successful party on insufficient grounds—Interference in revision - See COSTS—GENERAL, (1912) M.W.N. 366.

(77)—S. 25—Revision by High Court—Suit on accounts—Decree without best evidence, bad—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 34, 63 P.R. 1897.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(78)—S. 25—See HIGH COURT, JURISDICTION OF—N.W.P., A.W.N. 1892, 160.

(79)—S. 25—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 5 O.C. 332.

(80)—S. 25—Order of a single Judge of High Court dismissing revision petition — Whether appeal lies—See LETTERS PATENT, HIGH COURT, 1865—MADRAS, s. 15, 6 M.L.T. 345 =3 Ind. Cas. 953.

(81)—S. 25—See LETTERS PATENT, HIGH COURT, 1865—MADRAS, art. 15, 23 M. 169, 27 M. 432.

(82)—S. 25—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, arts. 61, 81, A.W.N. 1891, 102.

(83)—S. 25—Question of limitation erroneously decided by Small Causes Court—Interference of High Court—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 182, 6 A.L.J. 944=3 Ind. Cas. 817.

(84)—S. 25—Technical legal error—Substantial justice done by lower Court — Interference by High Court—See REVISION—GENERAL, 59 P.W.R. 1912.

(85)—S. 25—See REVISION—GENERAL, 15 A. 373=A.W.N. 1893, 122, 66 P.R. 1904.

(86)—S. 25—Suit filed on Original Side—Subsequent investment with Small Cause powers—Power to transfer suit to Small Cause side—See TRANSFER OF CIVIL CASES, 13 M. L.J. 438.

(87)—S. 25—See NOS. 5, 45, 46, 46 (a), supra.

(88)—Ss. 25, 27—See LETTERS PATENT—HIGH COURT, 1865—MADRAS, cl. 15, 17 M. 100 =3 M.L.J. 259.

(89)—S. 25, sch. II, art. 29 — Review—Grounds—Erroneous decision as to jurisdiction —Discovery of important document—Revision —Power of High Court to interfere with an order rejecting petition for review—Small Cause suit—Claim to recover ascertained sum found due on taking partnership accounts.—Although, in the case of a review by an ordinary Court, the High Court would very rarely interfere with an order rejecting an application for review, yet the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court is very much wider when the lower Court exercises Small Cause Court jurisdiction. It is sufficient ground for review that the Small Cause Court has erroneously held that a claim is not in the nature of a Small Cause. The fact that an important document, containing an admission of liability by the defendant, came to plaintiff's knowledge subsequently to the decision of the case, is a sufficient ground for review. Where a partnership has been already dissolved and accounts taken, and a book entry has been made for an ascertained sum of money found to be due by one partner to another, a claim to recover this sum is a Small Cause suit. FAIZ MUHAMMAD v. MUHAMMAD ZAKRIA, 195 P.L.R. 1911.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887) —continued.

(90)—S. 26—Revision—Pleadings disclosing no cause of action.—The plaintiff sued in a Court of Small Causes for damages for non-acceptance of a dog, which he alleged the defendant had purchased from him. Neither in the plaint nor in his evidence did the plaintiff state what were the terms agreed upon as to delivery of the dog. Held, that inasmuch as the conditions of delivery were an essential part of the contract of sale no cause of action was disclosed by the plaintiff's pleadings, and that this was a good ground for an application in revision under s. 25 of Act No. IX of 1887. F. WILSON v. R. SAINT, A.W.N. 1897, 138.

(91)—S. 27—Transfer by Small Cause Court of a decree to the regular side—Transfer suo motu—Appealability of order passed by the executing Court after the transfer.—A Munsif exercising powers of a Small Cause Court cannot suo motu transfer an execution case to himself as Munsif exercising jurisdiction on the regular side. Under s. 223, an application by the decree-holder is required, and the Judge of the Small Cause Court cannot act without one. Once the transfer is made, an appeal follows in the ordinary course, notwithstanding s. 27 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. JIWAN v. MUNSHI RAM, 3 P.L.R. 1905.

(92)—S. 27—Small Cause Court suit, trial of, as regular suit without returning of plaint for presentation to proper Court—Appeal from Munsif's decree in suit instituted as Small Cause Court suit and tried as regular suit.—A suit was instituted in the Munsif's Court as a Court of Small Causes. The Munsif before delivering judgment formed the opinion that the suit was one excluded from the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes and directed that it be removed from the register of Small Cause suits and entered in the register of regular suits. He then tried the case as a regular suit and decreed the claim. Held, that the suit was tried, as a Small Cause Court suit and under s. 27 of Act IX of 1877, no appeal lay from the decree of the Munsif. KANDHAI GIR v. BHAGWANT GIR, 7 O. C. 144.

(93)—S. 27—See No. 88, supra.

(94)—Ss. 27 and 35—Order passed in execution of decree of Court of Small Causes, by Court not invested with such powers—Jurisdiction—Proceedings in suit instituted in Court having jurisdiction of Small Cause Court and continued when Court has ceased to have that jurisdiction.—Held that an order, passed by a Court not invested with the powers of a Court of Small Causes in the execution of a decree passed by a Court invested with such powers, was not final under s. 27 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. The object of the Legislature in enacting s. 35 of that Act was only to decide what Court should in a certain event dispose of a suit pending in a Court of Small Causes or a suit of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes pending in a Court invested with the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes. There is nothing in that section which indicates an intention to confer the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes upon officers who have not been invested with that jurisdiction by the Local Government, or upon officers from whom that jurisdiction has been withdrawn. KAMTA PARSHAD v. MAHABAL SINGH, 6 O.C. 81. (13 A. 324, 2 O.C. 143, Diss.)

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(95)—Ss. 27 and 35—Decree passed by Small Cause Courts—Attachment and sale of immoveable property—Decree sent for execution to Munsif—Appeal—Case where s. 27, Small Cause Courts Act, does not apply—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 38, 39, 41, O. XXI, rr. 4, 5, s. 113, O. XLVI, r. 1, s. 24, 5 A.L.J. 612 = A.W.N. 1908, 254 = 31 A. 1 = 1 Ind. Cas. 553.

(96)—S. 31—Suit for a share of mesne profits, whether cognizable by Court of Small Causes.—Under s. 31, of sch. II of Act IX of 1887, a suit for the profits of immoveable property belonging to a person, which have been wrongfully received by another, is exempted from the cognizance of a Court of Small Causes. Thus, where a plaintiff alleges that the defendant had wrongfully received the plaintiff's share of the profits of immoveable property, the suit falls under art. 31, sch. II of Act IX of 1887, and as such is not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. VENKOBA RAO v. MUTHU AIYAR, 18 M.L J. 88. (17 B. 40, R.) [D., 7 Ind. Cas. 390 = 1 M.W.N. 399 = 8 M.L.T. 281.]

(97)—S. 31—Ejectment decree—Claim for mesne profits after decree—Form of action—Damages for trespass—Limitation—See MESNE PROFITS — MISCELLANEOUS, 8 Ind. Cas. 162.

(98)—S. 32—See NOS. 6, 18, 19, supra.

(99)—S. 32 (1) (2)—Small Cause suit instituted in Court of Munsif without Small Cause powers—Subsequent investment with Small cause powers—Trial of suit—Ordinary suit.—The terms of s. 32 (2) of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act are imperative and provide that nothing in the previous sub-section applies to suits instituted or proceedings commenced in Small Cause Courts before the date on which they were invested with that jurisdiction. Therefore, where a Small Cause suit was instituted in the Court of a Munsif without Small Cause powers, but such powers were subsequently conferred upon him; held, that the suit ought to be tried as an ordinary suit by the Munsif. DUNGAR v. NANHA, 227 P.L.R. 1911. (5 A. 274, 13 A. 324, D.)

(100)—S. 32 (2)—Jurisdiction — Pecuniary limit—Appeal.—A suit in the nature of Small Causes Court suit was instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge who was invested with the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes to the extent of Rs. 50. The amount in dispute was Rs. 81-4-0; and therefore the suit was tried as a regular suit. Later, the jurisdiction of the Judge as a Court of Small Causes was raised to Rs. 100 ; and subsequently to this the suit was decided by him as a regular suit. The defendant appealed to the District Court but it held that no appeal lay on the ground that the suit was triable and must be taken to have been tried in the extended jurisdiction vested in the Subordinate Judge. Held, that the appeal lay to the District Court, since under s. 32 (2) of the Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, it was necessary that the Judge should, before the institution of the suit be vested with a Small Causes Court jurisdiction entitling him to hear the particular suit. SAMBHU v. RAM VITHU, 5 Bom. L.R. 1008 = 28 B. 244.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(101)—S. 32 (2)—Small Cause suit instituted in Court not having Small Cause Court powers —Suit registered and tried as a regular suit—Trial as a regular suit by Court having Small Cause Court powers—Appeal.—A Small Cause suit was instituted in the Court of an officiating Munsif who had no Small Cause Court powers The suit was registered as a regular suit. But, that Munsif being transferred, it came on for hearing and was tried as a regular suit by the permanent Munsif, who, however, had the powers of a Small Cause Court. Held, that, the suit having been originally instituted in the Court of a Munsif, who had no Small Cause Court powers, it could not have been tried as a Small Cause suit by the permanent Munsif, unless it had been transferred to the Small Cause Court side by a formal order, and that, as it was tried as a regular suit, an appeal against the decree lay to the District Judge. JAGMOHAN LAL v. LAKHA, 9 Ind. Cas. 264.

(102)—S. 33 — Bombay Civil Courts Act (XIV of 1869), s. 28 — Jurisdiction — Pecuniary limit— Small Causes Court—Appeal—Practice.—On the 24th October 1899, plaintiff filed a suit, to recover Rs. 49 as damages for breach of a contract, in the Court of Small Causes of the Subordinate Judge of Yeola, then presided over by a Subordinate Judge who was invested with Small Causes Court powers up to Rs. 50. On the 22nd November 1899, the defendant filed his set-off claiming Rs. 120 as damages under the same contract. In December 1899, the Subordinate Judge was succeeded by another Subordinate Judge who also had Small Causes Court powers up to Rs.50. The claim and the set-off were tried by him as one suit, it was registered as a regular suit : and the evidence was recorded as in a regular suit. The Subordinate Judge was, in the meanwhile, invested with Small Causes Court jurisdiction up to Rs. 200. He then decided the suit on the 5th April 1902, by a judgment which was written as in a regular suit: Held, (1) that the plaintiff's suit which was a suit, cognisable by a Court of Small Causes, and instituted at a time when the Court of the Subordinate Judge had already become invested with the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes, did not cease to be a suit cognizable by the Court of Small Causes or ceased to be so tried merely because the Subordinate Judge at a later stage dealt with it as if he were trying it under his ordinary jurisdiction :—(2) that the plaintiff's suit did not cease to be a suit cognizable by a Small Causes Court by reason of the defendant having by way of set-off made a counter claim for Rs. 120, when the pecuniary limit of the jurisdiction of the Court invested with the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes was Rs. 50 : (3) that the suit and counter-claim must be treated as decided under the Small Causes jurisdiction of the Subordinate Judge's Court invested with the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes, subject to the bar of a right to appeal from the decree of such a Court. BALCHAND v. BALARAM, 5 Bom. L.R. 398.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(103)—S. 33—See NO. 20, supra.

(104)—S. 35—S. 25, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 (=s. 24, new Code)—" Court of Small Causes " —S. 17, Act XII of 1887 (B.C.)—Exercise of jurisdiction.—The expression "Court of Small Causes," in s. 25, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, must be held to be a Court of Small Causes constituted under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, and not to include a Court vested with the powers of a Court of Small Causes under another Act (23 B 352, F.; 5 A. 274, 13 A. 324, Diss.) Where a Munsiff, vested with small cause powers, is transferred and is succeeded by a Munsiff not vested with such powers and the Court of Small Causes is in consequence abolished, the successor may try all small cause suits, pending on the file at the date of his accession to office, as regular suits, without the necessity for a transfer, under s. 25, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 (13 A. 324, Diss.). The successor can try such suits only in his ordinary civil jurisdiction, and his decision in such case is not final. DULAL CHANDRA DEB v. RAM NARAIN DEB, 31 C. 1057.

(105)—S 35—Abolition of Small Cause Court after a decree—Application for execution, where to be made—Jurisdiction how determined.—Where, after a decree in a Small Cause suit the Court of Small Cause is abolished, the decree-holder, wishing to execute the decree against the defendant, must apply for execution, under s. 35 of the Act, to that Court in which the suit, if instituted at the time of the application, should be instituted. Where, in such a case, the jurisdiction is to be determined by considering the place of residence of the defendant, his residence at the time of application for execution is to be considered as his place of residence. KURELLA CHENCHAYYA v. POLISETTI SEETHARAMASWAMI, 30 M. 217.

(106)—S. 35—See NOS. 94, 95, supra.

(107)—S. 35 (1), Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 25—Small Cause —Transfer of case—Appeal —A small cause was instituted in the Court of a Munsif having Small Cause Court powers sufficient to try it. The Munsif died and his successor on a date when he had been conferred similar powers dismissed the suit against one of the defendants and passed an ex-parte decree against the other. On appeal, the District Judge set aside the judgment and remanded the case for re-trial. On re-trial, the suit was dismissed by the Munsif in default. The District Judge, on appeal, set aside this order and remanded the case again for re-trial. The Munsif passed a decree against one of the defendants. On appeal, the District Judge declined to interfere on the ground that the suit had been throughout a small cause, and no appeal lay to him. Held, that all the proceedings after the ex parte decree were ultra vires and the view of the law taken by the District Judge was correct. BIHARI LAL v. RADHA RAM, 127 P.L.R. 1903. (21 C. 249, R.)

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(108)—S. 35, cl. 1—See TRANSFER OF CIVIL CASES, 13 A. 324=A.W.N. 1891, 96.

(109)—Sch. II, art. 3—Official Act—Order by Commissariat Officer confiscating security tendered by contractor.—Held, that an order given by a Commissariat Officer forfeiting a contractor's earnest-money is not an Official Act such as is contemplated by art. 3 of sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. A claim for recovery of earnest-money against Government being in the nature of a small cause, appeal in a case of value not exceeding five hundred rupees lies to the District Judge and not to the Divisional Judge. BABU GOPAL SAHAI v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE, 91 P.L.R. 1902.

(110)—Sch. II, art. 3—Suit for damages for breach of contract against Secretary of State for India—Government officer, suit in consequence of some act done by one in capacity of—Small Cause Court suit, suit in nature of—Second appeal—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 586—The station staff officer of Sitapur, as an officer of Government, leased 1,132 bighas, 4 biswas of land to the plaintiff for grazing purposes for five years. In the 9th clause of the lease it was provided that the whole or any portion of it might be resumed for the whole term of the lease or for lessor period on payment of a proportionate compensation. In June 1898, 451 bighas 4 biswas were taken from the plaintiff for the purpose of establishing a Government-grass-farm and compensation was paid to the plaintiff under the term of c. 9 of the lease. In January 1899 the land which had been taken from the plaintiff was let to others for grazing purposes. The plaintiff sued the Secretary of State to recover Rs. 450 as damages for the loss the plaintiff sustained by the land, which was taken from him, being let to others and used for grazing purposes. The first Court dismissed the suit, the District Judge decreed it. In second appeal before the Judicial Commissioner a preliminary objection was taken to the effect that the appeal was barred by the provisions of s. 586, Civ. Pro. Code, inasmuch as the suit was of the nature of a Small Cause Court suit, and its value was under Rs. 500. Held, that the suit fell within art. 3, sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, and the appeal was not barred by s. 586 of the Code of Civil Procedure. SECRETARY of STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL v. MUNISHI NIAZ AHMAD, 5 O.C. 403.

(110-a)—Art. 3—'Act purporting to be done', meaning of — Failure by defendant —(Government) to carry out a contract—Suit by plaintiff for money due under contract—Whether of Small Cause nature—Second appeal.—The suit in this case was for recovering the amount of Rs. 500 due to the plaintiff under a contract entered into by him with the Government, whereby he undertook to repair a tank and to build a pipe sluice. The plaintiff's case was that the plaintiff had performed his part of the contract and was entitled to the amount due to him under it. Held, in second appeal by the Government, that the amount being Rs. 500, the suit is of a Small Cause nature, and that no second appeal lies. Art. 3 of Act IX of 1887 applies to a suit relating to some distinct act done by an officer of Government. A mere failure to carry out a contract cannot be regarded as such an act. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. AYLAVAJJULA RAMABRAHMAM, 12 M.L.T. 299=M.W.N. (1912) 954=23 M.L.J. 732. (20 B. 697, 35 B. 42, 17 C. 290, 28 M. 213, R.)

(111)—Art. 3—See NO. 7, supra.

(112)—Sch. II, art. 4—Jurisdiction—Claim for the price of building materials and for possession of a small plot of building land—Unclassed suit—Appeal.—This was a suit to recover Rs. 200, the price of materials of a house, and to obtain possession of a small plot of building land valued at Rs. 25, or for such other relief as the Court might think proper. Held, that the suit was neither a "land suit" nor a "Small Cause" but an "unclassed suit" and the appeal from the decree of the Munsif lay to the Divisional Judge and not to the District Judge. JAWAHIR MAL v. FATTU MAL, P.L.R. 1900, p. 345 =60 P.R. 1900.

(113)—Sch. II, art. 7—Rent of house.—A suit for rent of house including rent at an enhanced rate as agreed up is cognizable by a Small Cause Court. HAJI AHMAD HUSAIN v. SUNDAR LAL, 80 P.R. 1893. [D., 63 P.R. 1901=101 P.L.R. 1901; R., 37 P.R. 1903.]

(114)—Sch, II, art. 7—See ENHANCEMENT OF RENT—ENHANCEMENT, LIABILITY TO, 6 O.C. 190.

(115)—Arts. 7 and 13—Claim for poruppu and kulavettu.—A claim for poruppu does not fall within the prohibition in art. 7 of the Act as a claim for apportionment of rent. It is not also clear that the claim for kulavettu falls within the prohibition enacted in art. 13. SEETHARAMA IYER v. FISCHER, 17 M.L.J. 487. (27 M. 478, R.)

(116) — Sch. II, art. 8 — Ground rent of of a shop—Suit for —Nature of.— A suit for recovery of ground rent of a shop i.e., rent of the site on which the shop stands does not lie

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

in a Small Cause Court. MULLA BAKHSH v. MIRZA ANWAR ALI, 1 P.R. 1894. (17 C. 541, D.)

(117)—Sch. II, art. 8—Landlord and tenant—Suit by assignee of rent—Suit for rent.—A suit brought by an assignee of rent against the tenant, where it appears that the money was due as rent at the time of the assignment, is a suit to recover rent within the meaning of art. 8 of sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. SHEIKH MUNSAR v. LOKE NATH ROY, 4 C.W.N. 10. (14 W. R. 456, Marsh 199, 15 W. R. 344, F.; 19 W. R. 431, D.)

(118)—Sch. II, art. 8—Rent of a ferry, suit for, if cognizable by a Small Cause Court.—To determine whether an amount payable under a contract is rent or not, each case must be judged by its own circumstances. In a suit to recover sums due under a contract for the defendant plying boats in a private ferry: Held that, in the circumstances of the case, the sum payable was in no sense a rent. PROHLAD PATNI v. SASHADHAR RAI, 14 C.W.N. 994=7 Ind. Cas. 553.

(119) — Sch. II, art. 8 — Rent of a masonry outlet—Not cognizable by Small Cause Court.—A suit for rent of a masonry outlet or mogu belonging to the plaintiff and used by the defendant for the irrigation of his land is one for rent other than house-rent and as such is not cognizable by a Small Cause Court. MAHARAJA OF KASHMIR v. FATTEH DIN, 164 P. R. 1888.

(120)—Sch. II, art. 8—Compensation for rent wrongfully taken by a trespasser—Suit for mesne profits.—Where a suit is for compensation for rent wrongfully taken by a trespasser, art. 8 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act does not apply. GANGA RAM v. ABADAN, 3 P.L.R 1903. (23 C. 885, F. B., 12 M. 196, 80 P.R. 1896, 94 P. R. 1900 =39 P.L.R. 1901, R.)

(121)—Sch. II, art. 8—Failure of tenant to raise crop—Suit by landlord for recovery of value of his share, 'if lies in Small Cause Court—"Rent"—"Damages for use and occupation."—Where a landlord brought a suit against his tenant claiming damages for wilfully omitting to raise crops, whereby the plaintiff was deprived of his share thereof: Held that, inasmuch as the share of the produce to be received by the landlord was ascertained before the commencement of the suit, and the term for which the land was let out had not terminated, the claim was in substance one for recovery of rent and the suit would not lie in the Small Cause Court. LALJI PANDAY v. BARHOMDEO PANDAY, 16 C.W.N. 89=13 Ind. Cas. 29.

(122)—Art. 8, sch. II—Jurisdiction—Suit for rent.—A suit against the defendants who had executed a bond in favour of the plaintiff, undertaking to pay a debt due from their landlord, is not a suit for rent and is therefore cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. HRIDOY NATH PODDAR v. JOYRAM MAHTO, 4 C.L.J. 402. (27 C. 827, F.B., D.)

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(123)—Sch. II, cl. 8—'Judge of the Court of Small Causes,' meaning of, if it means and includes Munsifs and other Judicial Officers vested with Small Cause Court powers.—The expression, "the Judge of the Court of Small Causes" in cl. (8), sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, must be taken to apply either to the Judge of the Court of Small Causes constituted under the Act or of a Court invested with the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes. Where, therefore, the Local Government purporting to act under cl. (8), sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, by a notification in the Official Gazette, invested in general terms the Munsifs of a certain place, with authority to exercise jurisdiction with respect to suits for recovery of rent of homestead lands up to a certain value, and empowered such Munsifs to try such suits under the Small Cause Court Procedure, such Munsifs, if invested with the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes, are competent to entertain and try such suits as Court of Small Causes. AKSHAYA KUMAR SAHA v. HIRA LAL DOSADH, 7 C.L. J. 407=35 C. 677.

(124)—Sch. II, cl. 8—Suit for burga rent—Maintainability—See BURGADAR, 14 C.W.N. 639=6 Ind. Cas. 594.

(125)—Art. 8—Land given in lieu of service—Non-performance—Suit for damages—Jurisdiction—See DAMAGES — DAMAGES, SUITS FOR, 12 C.L.J. 480=8 Ind. Cas. 96.

(126)—Art. 8—See NOS. 6, 8, supra.

(126-a)—Arts. 8, 11—Small Cause Court—General Clauses Act (X of 1897), s. 3—Lease to collect rent—Immoveable property—Suit not cognisable by.—A suit to recover the rent of certain shops in a bazaar under an oral lease is not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, being a suit either for recovery of rent other than house rent within the meaning of art. 8, sch. II, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, or for the enforcement of some other rights to or interest in immoveable property within art. 11. A right to collect rents of shops or houses from persons actually occupying them is "immoveable property" by virtue of the definition in art. 25, s. 3 of the General Clauses Act, which definition applies to the Transfer of Property Act by reason of s. 4 of the General Clauses Act, in so far as it is not inconsistent with the special provisions of s. 3 of the Transfer of Property Act. BABU LAL v. BHAWANI DAS, 9 A.L.J. 776=15 Ind. Cas. 32.

(127)—Art. 11, sch. II—Maintainability of suit.—Art. 11 of sch. II to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act does not cover a suit by a vendee to recover from the vendor the purchase money which he has paid for the land bought, from which he has been ejected by order of a Civil Court at the instance of a third person. GOOL KHAN v. TETAR GOALA, 4 C.W.N. 63.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887) - continued.

(128)—Sch. II, cl. (11)—Suit for damages for the cutting of plaintiff's trees by defendant—Defendant not claiming trees as his own but alleging non-existence of trees—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court—Plea of jurisdiction—Duty of Court—High Court's power to interfere—Revision—Practice.—A suit for damages for the cutting of plaintiff's trees by the defendant, who did not claim that the trees were his own property, but alleged that there were no trees and none cut down, does not involve the determination of any right to immoveable property, within the meaning of the cl. 11 of sch. II to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, and is, therefore, cognizable by a Small Cause Court. High Court is not bound to interfere in every case in revision from the decree of a Court of Small Causes. CHINGAN GIR v. BABU LAL, 5 Ind. Cas. 322.

(129)—Art. 11—See NOS. 5, 126-a, supra.

(130)—Sch. II, arts. 11 and 13, suit for arrears of jodi not exempted under.—A suit to recover arrears of jodi is cognizable by the Small Cause Court. Jodi is not a cess or due of the kind referred to in art. 13 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. The word "dues" in that article must be taken to comprise only dues similar in kind to those specifically mentioned therein. VENKATAGIRI RAJAH v. VENKAT RAU, 21 M. 243.

(131)—Arts. 11, 14—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 88, 20 M. 155.

(132)—Sch. II, arts. 11, 21—Suit cognizable by Court of Small Causes—Execution purchaser—Suit to recover refund of purchase money—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 315.—A suit brought by an execution purchaser of immoveable property, under s. 315 of the Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, for recovery of his purchase money on the ground that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest therein, is one cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. ABDULBHAI v. NASHIA, 8 Bom. L. R. 369.

(133)—Sch. II, arts. 11 and 31— Wrongful carrying away of crops — Small Cause.—A suit for damages for defendant's wrongfully cutting and carrying away produce of immoveable property belonging to plaintiff. ISHAR SINGH v. WASAWA SINGH. 94 P.R. 1900 = 39 P.L.R. 1901. [Disappr., 35 P.R. 1902 = 84 P.L.R. 1902, F.B.]

(134)—Sch. II, arts. 11, 31 and 35—Wrongful ouster from land — Suit for damages—Question of title involved.—The fact that in a suit for damages for wrongful ouster from land, the question of the plaintiff's title is involved cannot oust the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court. DAL SINGH v. BHUPA, 80 P.R. 1896. [Disappr., 35 P.R. 1902 = 84 P.L.R. 1902, F.B.; R. & Cons., 94 P.R. 1900.]

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(135)—Art. 13—Land cess--Zemindar's suit to recover from Inamdar—Whether of Small Cause nature--Second appeal.—A suit to recover land-cess by the zemindar from the inamdar is one of a small cause nature, and no second appeal lies in such a suit. The cesses and dues contemplated in art. 13 of the Act are payments which a person is entitled to as representing his interest in certain immoveable property, and not because he possesses some interest in immoveable property. SRI MAHARAJA OF VIZIANAGARAM v. KOTTA VEERANNA, 10 M. L.T. 167 = 21 M.L.J. 819 = 2 M.W.N. 1911, 139 = 11 Ind. Cas. 760.

(136)—Sch. II, art. 13 — Suit for recovery of ferry tolls.—A suit by the lessee of a Government ferry for recovery of tolls falls under this article. GOKAL CHAND v. LAL CHAND = 48 P.R. 1897. See also DESA SINGH v. NARAIN DAS, 80 P.R. 1898.

(137)—Art. 13, sch. II — Suit for dues wrongfully paid.—This article must be limited to suits by the person entitled to the dues against those by whom they are payable ; and cannot be extended to suits to recover the dues from persons to whom they have been wrongfully paid. HARNAM v. GANDU, 81 P.R. 1889. [R., 28 P.R. 1894.]

(138)—Art. 13, sch. II—Suit to recover share of voluntary payments made to a religious association — Not cognizable on the Small Cause side being 'dues to which a person is entitled by reason of his interest in a religious institution'—'Dues,' meaning of—Law prior to the present Act.—A suit by member of a religious association to recover his share of 'voluntary payments' made to the association is on the same footing as the right to share in the income from the landed endowments thereof and as such, it is a suit to recover 'dues to which a person is entitled by reason of his interest in a religious institution' within the meaning of sch. II, art. 13 and consequently excepted from the cognizance of a Court of Small Causes. The word 'dues' applies to shares in even what has been paid voluntarily. Even prior to the enactment of the present Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, suits relating to participation in voluntary offerings made at shrines had been held to be not cognizable by Courts of Small Causes. BHAVADASON v. NARAYANA SOMAYAJIPAD, 28 M. 202. (26 A. 360, commented on.)

(139)—S. 13—See NOS. 115, 130, supra.

(139-a)—Art. 13—Amount not falling under it—Of a Small Cause nature—No second appeal.—Where money is payable annually to the plaintiff, he must make out that the suit came within one of the articles of the second schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. Otherwise it will be treated as a suit of a Small Cause nature ; and no second appeal would lie. RAMANATHA KALKURA v. DARAMMA SHEHITHI, M.W.N. 1912, 537 = 16 Ind. Cas. 107.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(139-b)—Sch. II, cl. 13—General Clauses Act (X of 1897)—S. 3 (25)—Right to a ferry—Immoveable property—Jurisdiction of Provincial Small Cause Court.—The right to a ferry is a benefit which arises out of land and comes within the definition of 'immoveable property' under s. 3 (52) of the General Clauses Act, and a suit by a lessee of a ferry to levy a toll falls under cl. 13, sch. II, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, and is therefore not cognizable by that Court. ABDUL HAMID KHAN v. BABU LAL, 11 A.L.J. 133=35 A. 156=18 Ind. Cas. 282. (48 P.R. 1897, 80 P.R. 1898, F.)

(140)—Arts. 13, 15 and 18—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 102, 27 A. 200=A.W.N. 1904, 227.

(141)—Arts. 13, 18—Pujaris claim neivedhanam along with other emoluments—Triable as regular suit.—Where the plaintiff sues for neivedhanam or rice allowance, along with the emolument pertaining to his office of pujari of a temple, the whole suit is triable as a regular suit by the District Munsiff. The claim would fall within the wording of art. 13, and, apparently also of art. 18 of the schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. RENGASAMI PILLAI v. MUTHU CHIDAMBARA KURUKAL, 2 M.W.N. 1911, 589.

(142)—Arts. 13 and 31—Suit for money had and received—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 586—Cesses and dues.—A compromise decree provided for the maintenance of a temple, situated in the market, which was partitioned between the parties, and indicated the sources of income arising from the market which were to be devoted to the maintenance of the temple. One of these sources was certain weighment charges. The plaintiff sued for recovery of Rs. 150 which the defendant was alleged to have collected from his share of the market, and which according to the plaintiff the defendant ought to have handed over to him for the benefit of the temple. The suit was instituted in the Court of a District Munsiff. Held that the suit was one for money had and received, and was not covered by art. 11 of Act IX of 1887, not by art. 31, and that s. 586, Civ. Pro. Code, was applicable to the case and barred a second appeal. [Diss., 28 M. 202.] The cesses and dues referred to in art. 13 are cesses and dues which are claimed qua cesses or dues and apparently from the person who is liable to pay them. MAHADEO v. BUDHAI RAM, 26 A. 358.

(142-a)—Art. 14—See NO. 131, supra.

(143)—Sch. II, art. 15—Specific performance—Suit on a bond for supply of articles or value—Specific Relief Act I of 1877, s. 21 (a), Illustration (2)—Jurisdiction.—A sued B for the recovery of 380 baskets of paddy or their value, Rs. 302 as due upon a bond. Held, that a contract for the supply of specific articles is not one which could be specifically enforced by the Courts, for compensation in money is clearly an adequate relief, see Specific Relief Act, 1877, s. 21 (a), Illustration (2), and therefore does not fall under Provincial S.C. Courts Act, 1887, sch. II, art. 15. Held, also, that the jurisdiction of Small Cause Courts cannot be ousted merely by asking for an alternative relief to which the plaintiff is not entitled. NGA HLA GYI v. NSA AUNG YA, U.B.R. 1908, Third Quarter, Provincial S.C. Courts Act, 3 (1 B. L.R. 91, 21 B. 248, R.)

(144)—Sch. II, art. 15 — See FRAUD — GENERAL, 49 P.R. 1904.

(145)—Art 15 — See LEASE—ZURPESHGI LEASE, 6 Ind. Cas. 704.

(146)—Art. 15 — See NOS. 5, 8-a, 140, supra.

(147)—Art. 16—See NO. 5, supra.

(148)—Sch. II, art. 18—Suit by dismissed guardian against minor for money spent by him for minor's use.—When the plaintiff sued for the recovery of money spent in connection with the guardianship of the person and property of minor defendant, over and above the income realized from the minor's estate, plaintiff having been appointed his guardian and subsequently removed. Held, that the suit was one relating to a trust under art 18 of sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. JAGAN NATH v. NIRANJAN DAS, 141 P.L.R. 1903=58 P.R. 1903. (25 W.R. 25, R.)

(149)—Sch. II, art. 18—Suit for damages against previous manager of temple.—A suit brought by the manager of a temple against the defendant, who was the late manager, for recovering a sum of money being the amount of damages which the Devastanam had sustained by the defendant's negligence in the discharge of his duties as manager, i.e., by reason of his failure to prosecute certain suits which he had instituted on behalf of the Devastanam, was held to be a suit relating to a trust exempted from the cognizance of a Court of Small Causes by art. 18 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. KRISHNAYYAR v. SOUNDARARAJA AYYANGAR, 21 M. 245.

(150)—Sch. II, art. 18 — Suit to recover moveable property or its value deposited for safe custody—Suit relating to trust—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court.—A suit for the recovery of moveable property alleged to have been deposited for safe custody with the defendants, or its value, is not one "relating to a trust" within the meaning of art. 18 of sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act; and such a suit is cognizable by a Small Cause Court. KARTAR DEVI v. SURASTI, 9 P.R. 1908=28 P.W.R. 1908=98 P.L.R. 1908. [R., 142 P.R. 1908.]

(151)—Art. 18—Suit relating to trust—Appointment of plaintiff by deed of trust—Suit for salary—Small Cause suit.—A printing press was vested in trustees for the conduct of a newspaper. Plaintiff was appointed editor and manager on a salary by the author of the trust. Plaintiff acted for some time and resigned. He then sued to recover the arrears of pay due to him and filed the suit on the Small Cause side of the Court. Held that the suit fell under art. 18 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts act, as it related to a trust. By the deed of trust, the settlor had appointed plaintiff as editor and manager. The suit was against trustees to carry out the direction in the instrument of trust and pay plaintiff his salary therein provided. If the plaintiff had any cause of action, it was to enforce performance of the trust in so far as it related to him. The plaint was accordingly ordered to be returned for presentation to the proper Court. SUBRAMANIAYYAR v. PANDI DORAISAMI TAVER, 26 M. 368.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(152)—Art. 18 — Suit relating to a trust—Whether a suit for subscription against a trust is a.—Suit by a limited liability company, for subscriptions due to the company alternatively against the first defendant, the trust, or against defendants 2 to 4, trustees, either in their personal capacity or as trustees, the subscriptions being due by defendants 2 to 4 as members of the company under its articles of association and rules.—Held per C.J. and Sankaran Nair, J. (Benson, J. Diss.), that the suit is not one relating to a trust within the meaning of art. 18, Act IX of 1887, as the defendants are sued, not because they are trustees, but because they, as members, are liable for the subscriptions, and the suit is cognizable by the Small Cause Courts. SRI VENKATACHELLAPATHY SAHAYA VYAVASAYA CO. v. KANAKASABAPATHY PILLAI, 20 M.L.J. 146=5 Ind. Cas. 912=8 M.L.T. 67=33 M. 494. (26 M. 200, 21 M. 245, 26 M. 368, R.)

(153)—Sch. II, cl. (18)—Jurisdiction—Suit to recover money paid to legal practitioner, for legal expenses but not so spent.—A suit wherein the plaintiff claimed from the defendant, a legal practitioner, the refund of certain moneys alleged by the former to have been paid to the latter for the purpose of instituting certain suits, but not to have been so spent, was held to be cognizable by a Small Cause Court, and was not a suit relating to a trust within the meaning of cl. 18 of second schedule to Act IX of 1887. NORTH WESTERN COMMERCIAL BANKING CORPORATION, &C. v. MUHAMMAD ISMAIL KHAN, 24 A. 208=A.W.N. 1902, 15.

(153-a)—Sch. II, art. 18—Suit by trustee—Claim based on agreement by defendant to pay a specified sum to plaintiff.—A suit by a trustee for the recovery of a specified amount agreed to be paid to him by the defendant for being used as a trust is not a suit relating to a trust within the meaning of art. 18 of the Act, and is triable by a Small Cause Court, if the amount of the claim falls within its pecuniary jurisdiction. AYYA PILLAI v. VRITHACHELLAM PILLAI, 15 Ind. Cas. 273. (26 M. 200, 20 M.L.J. 146, 5 Ind. Cas. 912, 8 M.L.T. 67, R.)

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(154)—Art. 18—See HINDU LAW—GIFT, 18 M. 252.

(155)—Art. 18—See NOS. 140, 141, supra.

(156)—Art. 19 — Jurisdiction — Suit for balance due on a partnership account—Addition of prayer for declaration of dissolution of partnership—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 646 B.—Where a plaint asked in effect for the recovery of a balance alleged to have been struck on the winding up of a partnership: Held, that the fact that a prayer for a declaration that the partnership had been dissolved was added did not oust the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes. Held, also, that, when a reference is made to the High Court under s. 646-B of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Court, which makes it, should state its reasons for considering the opinion of the Subordinate Court with respect to the nature of the suit to be erroneous. CHHOTU v. JAWAHIR, A.W.N. 1906, 29=3 A. L.J. 23=28 A. 293.

(157)—Sch. II, art. 20—Attachment of moveable property—Suit by unsuccessful claimant.—A suit by a defeated claimant to attached moveable property for recovery of the same or its value is not cognizable by a Small Cause Court. DYAL v. SUNDER SINGH, 51 P.R. 1890.

(158)—Sch. II. art. 20—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 47, 63 P.R. 1889.

(159)—Art. 20—See NO. 3, supra.

(160)—Art. 21—See NO. 132, supra.

(160-a)—Sch. II, art. 24—Award—Question regarding validity of award — Incidentally arising—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court to decide.—The Small Cause Court has jurisdiction to adjudicate on the validity of an award, when that question arises incidentally in a suit that was within its cognizance. CHIMANDAS v. MANGHOOMAL, 6 S.L.R. 85. (17 B. 42, 21 B. 248, 10 Bom. L.R. 733, R.)

(161)—Art. 28, sch. II—Suit for recovery of ornaments or their value—Right of inheritance—Not a suit for a share in the property of an intestate.—A suit for recovery of ornaments or their value by right of inheritance is not a suit for the whole or a share of the property of an intestate and is not excluded from cognisance of the Court of Small Causes. CHEDI v. GULABO, 2 A.L.J. 388=A.W.N. 1905, 134=27 A. 622. (11 W.R. 93, 7 C.L.R. 71, F.)

(161-a)—Art. 28—Suit for the return of marriage presents—Death of bride and bridegroom—Property of intestate.—Plaintiff made certain presents to her son-in-law on the occasion of the marriage of her daughter and the son-in-law. Both the son-in-law and the daughter died subsequently. The daughter died after her husband. Plaintiff now claimed the return of the jewels presented by her. She based the claim, not on her right to inherit, but on a certain custom of her caste. Held, that such a claim is not a claim for any property of the intestate, and art. 28 of the Act does not therefore apply. BONDA CHINNAYYA v. POTTULA ACHAMMAH, 23 M.L.J. 282 = M.W.N. 1912, 887 = 12 M.L.T. 308 = 16 Ind. Cas. 542.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(162) — Sch. II, art. 29 — Agricultural transaction — Profits of partnership — Suit for.—A suit for profits out of a partnership business in connection with an agricultural transaction is governed by this article. BHUP SINGH v. FATTA, 92 P.R. 1889.

(163) — Sch. II, art. 29 (c) — Scope and meaning of sub-article.—The words "unless the balance has been struck by the parties or their agents" indicate a final adjustment of the whole partnership account, no portion thereof remaining for future adjustment and the result being stated in the form of a balance struck. SRI RAM v. BANSI DHAR, 64 P.R. 1895.

(164) — Sch II, art. 29 (g) — "Compensation, meaning of."—The word "compensation" in this article has the same meaning as it has in s. 73 of the Contract Act. So a suit by a person for return of a sum of money alleged to have been taken from him by the defendant under a promise to give the latter's daughter in marriage to the former falls under this article. NURA v. ALA DITTA, 132 P.R. 1889. [R., 125 P.R. 1907 = 80 P.W.R. 1907.]

(165)—Sch. II, art. 31—Suit for account, what is—Account between silk merchant and dyer and dresser of silk.—If, in order to grant relief to the plaintiff, it is necessary to take accounts, the suit is one for accounts within the meaning of art. 31 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, although the plaintiff may have chosen to put a definite money value upon his claim. The plaintiff, a silk merchant, advanced money to the defendant from time to time. Out of the money so advanced, the defendant purchased materials for dyeing and dressing, and retained the balance as remuneration for work done. The plaintiff kept an account book. The accounts have not been adjusted. The plaintiff brings this suit for recovery of Rs. 307 on the allegation that upon settlement of accounts that sum would be found due from the defendant: Held that the suit was one for account within the meaning of art. 31 and that the Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction. KAILAS CHANDRA MANDAL v. KIRANENDA GHOSH, 10 Ind. Cas. 883.

(166)—Art. 31—Suit of Small Causes Court nature — Second appeal — High Court.—The plaintiff sued to recover from the defendants Rs. 120 as the value of his share in the produce of certain lands alleged to belong jointly to him and the defendants. This right was denied in the written statement. The lower Court dismissed the suit. On second appeal, a preliminary objection was taken that no second appeal lay, as the suit was of a Small Causes Court nature: Held, upholding the objection, that no second appeal lay. The question of title arose incidentally and did not therefore remove the suit from the cognizance of the Court of Small Causes. KESRISANG v. NARANSANG, 10 Bom. L.R. 733 = 32 B. 560.

(167)—Art. 31—Jurisdiction—Mesne profits.—A claim by the plaintiff for mesne profits of certain lands based on the allegation that he had been dispossessed therefrom by the defendant falls within cl. 31 of sch. II of the Provincial Small Causes Courts Act, 1887; and is, therefore, not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. ANTONE v. MAHADEV, 2 Bom. L. R. 683 = 25 B. 85.

(168)—Art. 31—Suit cognizable by Court of Small Causes—Practice and procedure—Appeal.—A suit to recover his share of profits of immoveable property which the plaintiff alleges the defendant to have wrongfully received but as to which the plaintiff claims a definite sum is a suit falling within the cognizance of the Court of Small Causes. GIRJABAI v. RAGHUNATH, 7 Bom. L.R. 741 = 30 B. 147.

(169)—Art. 31—Suit for an account.—Plaintiff sued the defendant on small cause side to recover a sum alleged to be due under a settlement of accounts. The Munsiff gave a decree for the sum found due to the plaintiff on examination of the accounts of the parties. On revision, the High Court held, that the suit fell under art. 31 of the Act and was not cognizable by a Small Cause Court. Held, on Letters Patent appeal, from the said order on revision, that a suit like the present one is not a suit for an account within art. 31 merely because it involves a certain amount of investigation of the accounts of the parties. A suit for an account is a special form of suit. A special process is required to take an account in such a suit. KANDURU RUNGA REDDI v. SUBBIAH SETTY, 28 M. 394.

(170)—Art. 31—Suit for damages—Cognizability by the Small Cause Court.—Where the defendants cut and carried away crops standing on the land, and the suit was by the landlord to recover the value of such crops, such a suit was cognizable by the Court of small causes and it did not fall within the purview of art. 31 of the said Act. RAMAIYAR v. P. S. SAMINATHA AIYAR, 2 M.W.N. 1191, 189 = 11 Ind. Cas. 31 = 35 M. 726. (15 M. 298, F.)

(171)—Art. 31, sch. II—Specific performance—Agreement to convey immoveable property to plaintiff—Conveyance executed by Court—Suit for money due under terms of conveyance whether lies in Small Cause Court—Mesne profits—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), s. 47.—A suit for recovery of money due to the plaintiff, under the terms of a conveyance of immoveable property executed in his favour by the defendant, is not a suit for recovery of profits of immoveable property wrongfully received by the defendant, within the meaning of the art. 31 of sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, and is cognizable by the

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

Small Cause Court. The plaintiff agreed to purchase certain immoveable properties from the defendant who, in breach of that agreement, sold the properties to other persons. The plaintiff brought a suit for specific performance, and obtained a decree; the conveyance was not executed by the defendant and the Court executed it on behalf of the vendor. The plaintiff then sought to recover from the defendant the profits collected by him, between the date of the execution of the agreement for sale and the date of the execution of the conveyance, under the terms of the conveyance: Held that the suit was not barred under s. 47 of the Civ.Pro.Code, for, as soon as the conveyance was executed by the Court, nothing further remained to be done in the execution proceedings, and a separate suit was maintainable to enforce the rights of the plaintiff under the conveyance. KALI NARAIN v. HARI NATH, 7 Ind. Cas. 484 = 12 C.L.J. 599

(172)—Applicability of art. 31, sch. II—Suit for rent by a divided co-parcener against his co-parcener and the tenant, cognisable by Small Cause Court.—First defendant was a tenant of the joint family composed of second defendant and the plaintiffs. On partition between the plaintiffs and second defendant, a certain proportion of the family lands fell to the share of the former, who instituted the present suit for the rent due on that proportion making the second defendant also a party, because the lease deed stood solely in his name and because he was alleged to be bound to pay plaintiffs their share of the rent in case the first defendant be not found liable. Held, that the suit was substantially one for rent and so cognizable by a Small Cause Court and did not fall within art. 31 of the Second Schedule, as "a suit for the profits of immoveable property belonging to plaintiff, which have been wrongfully received by the defendant." SRINIVASA RAGHAVA AYYANGAR v. PICHAIKARAN, 29 M. 184.

(173)—Sch. II, cl. 31, suit exempted und r.—Where a person claiming as land-owner to be entitled to receive the rents or fees paid by shopkeepers for the temporary occupation, during a fair, of a piece of land belonging to his mahal, sued the defendant on the allegation that he had wrongly received those dues or rents, the suit, though it did not come within the purview of cl. 13 of the second schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, as contended by the defendant, because it was a suit by the plaintiff to recover from the defendant money paid to, and received by, the defendant to the plaintiff's use, and wrongly retained by defendant, was yet held to be one excluded from the cognizance of the Court of Small Causes on the ground of its being covered by the latter portion of cl. 31 of the Act as being "a suit for the profits of immoveable property belonging to the plaintiff which have been wrongfully received by the defendant." RAMESHAR SINGH v. DURGA DAS, 23 A. 437 = A.W.N. 1901, 128. (17 B. 42, R.) [F., 16 C.P.L.R. 1.]

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(174)—Sch. II, cl. 31—Profits of immoveable property, suit for, not cognizable by Small Cause Court—Jurisdiction.—A suit for a definite sum of profits of immoveable property is not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, although it involves no rendition of accounts. SRIMATI NAND RANI v. SWASHWA NESWAR, 8 Ind. Cas. 270. (23 A. 437, 26 A. 321, F.; 23 C. 88, 35 P.R. 1902, 84 P.L.R. 1902, 24 M. 118, 25 M. 103, 29 M. 184, 13 M.L.J. 136, 25 B. 87, 10 Bom. L.R. 733, R.)

(175)—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), sch. II, cl. 31—Suit for profits of land—Civ Pro Code, s. 586.—A suit brought to recover the value of crops alleged to have been illegally carried away by defendant while plaintiff was in possession, is not exempted from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Courts Act by cl. 31, Act IX of 1887, and it makes no difference that, in the course of investigation, it appears the defendant is acting under color of some claim of title to the land. No second appeal lies under s. 586, Code of Civil Procedure, when the value of such a suit is less than Rs. 500 ANNAMALAI v. SUBRAMANYAN, 15 M. 298. [R., 119 P.R. 1894, 23 C. 884, 94 P.R. 1900 = 39 P.L.R. 1901.]

(176)—Sch. II, cl. 31—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 586—Suit of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes—Suit for damages for eviction from land—Jurisdiction.—A suit to recover damages on account of the alleged wrongful eviction of the plaintiff from immoveable property is not a suit falling within cl. 31 of the second schedule to Act No. IX of 1887, though the profits of the property may be a measure of the damages claimed. PRASADI LAL v. IMDAD HUSEN, A.W.N. 1898, 10. (23 C. 884, F.) [R., 2 O.C. 256; Cited, 7 O.C. 202.]

(177)—Sch. II, art. 31—Damages for forcible cutting and carrying away of grass.—The Provincial Small Cause Courts Act of 1887 has altered in no way the cognisability, by Small Cause Courts, of suits for trespass on land and the wrongful appropriation of produce. So, a suit for damages for the forcible cutting and carrying away of grass is cognizable by the Court of Small Causes. KRISHNA PROSAD NAG v. MAIZUDDIN BISWAS, 17 C. 707. (2 N.W.P. 18, 3 N.W.P. 101, 2 M. 118, 3 M. 192, R.) [Overruled, 23 C. 884, F. B.; F., 18 C. 316, 15 M. 298, 2 O.C. 256; Cited, 119 P.R. 1894; R. & Commented on, 94 P.R. 1900, 39 P.L.R. 1901; D., 22 C. 877.]

(178)—Sch. II, art. 31—Small Cause—Mesne profits.—Claim for—Appeal. Held, by the Full Bench, that a suit for mesne profits for the plaintiff being kept out of possession of property to which he was entitled is not a suit for accounts, and does not fall within the purview of article 31, schedule II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. The suit being in the nature of a Small Cause, the appeal against the decree passed in it lies to the District Court and not to the Divisional Court

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

under s. 39 of the Punjab Courts Act, when the value of the suit does not exceed Rs. 500. MUSSAMMAT KISHEN KAUR v. SARDAR TULSA SINGH, 84 P.L.R. 1902, F.B.=35 P.R. 1902. (23 C. 884, 22 M. 196, 80 P.R. 1896, 94 P.R. 1900, 39 P.L.R. 1901, F.; 119 P.R. 1894, Disappr.)

(179)—Sch. II, art. 31—Suit for account—Nature of—Distinguishing feature—Cognisability by Small Cause Court.—A 'suit for an account' is a special form of suit and does not include every case in which accounts have to be looked into in order to ascertain whether the amount claimed by the plaintiff is correct or not. Therefore every case in which it is necessary to go into the plaintiff's account cannot, on that ground alone, be said to fall within art. 31, Provincial Small Causes Court Act, and therefore to have been exempted from the cognisance of a Court of Small Causes. (23 C. 884, 27 A. 200, 28 M. 394, R.) The distinguishing feature of a 'suit for an account' seems to be the defendant's possession of or duty to furnish detailed accounts, the plaintiff being more or less precluded, by reason of the nature of the relations between the parties, from putting the precise pecuniary outcome of those relations before the Court. MAROTI v. BALAJI, 8 N.L.R. 36=14 Ind. Cas. 786.

(180)—Sch. II, art. 31 — Suit for mesne profits—Value less than Rs. 500—Second appeal.—No second appeal lies from a suit for mesne profits, where the value of the subject-matter is less than Rs. 500. (Ghose and Bannerjee, JJ., Diss.) KUNJO BEHARY SINGH v. MADHUB CHUNDRA GHOSE, 23 C. 884, F. B. (18 C. 316, Overruled.) [F., 18 A.W.N. 10, 22 M. 196, 2 O.C. 256, 24 M 118, 84 P.L.R. 1902, F.B.; R. Commented upon, 94 P. R. 1900; R., 4 O.C. 89, 6 Bom. L.R. 370, 30 B. 147=7 Bom. L.R. 741; Cited, 7 O.C. 202; Not F., 25 B. 85, 16 C.P.L.R. 1; Disappr., 39 P.L.R. 1901, 35 P. R. 1902, F.B; Diss., 3 P.L.R. 1903.]

(181)—Sch. II. art. 31 —Jurisdiction—Property common to plaintiff and defendant—Suit for recovery of plaintiff's share of produce taken by defendant.—A suit by the plaintiff for his share of the value of the produce realised by defendant, from property common to both plaintiff and defendant, is cognizable by a Provincial Small Cause Court, and is not excepted by art. 31 of sch. II of Act IX of 1887. SUBBU REDDI v. VEERA REDDI, 7 Ind. Cas. 390=8 M.L.T. 281. (25 M. 103, 11 M.L.J. 428, 13 M.L.J. 136, 18 M.L.J. 88, D.; 21 B. 248, F.)

(182)—Sch. II, art. 31—Suit for mesne profits—Jurisdiction.—A suit for mesne profits is not a suit for an account, but a suit for damages, and is not exempted from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Courts under art. 31 of the second schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. SUBBA RAO v. SITARAMAYYA, 24 M. 118. [R., 16 C.P.L.R. 1.]

(183)—Sch. II, art. 31—Landlord and tenant—Suit by landlord for damages for breach of covenant not to cut and carry away trees—Waiver of jurisdiction.—A landlord instituted a suit to recover Rs. 20, the value of trees cut and carried away by his tenants in violation of the terms of an agreement between them. Held, that the suit was one for damages for breach of covenant and cognisable by a Court of Small Causes. An objection as to jurisdiction cannot be given up by consent nor can be waived. RAMASAMY CHETTIAR v. R. G. ORR, 26 M. 176=12 M.L.J. 264.

(184)—Sch. II, art. 31—Claim for the value of crops cut and carried by a person in wrongful possession.—Plaint stated that plaintiffs are tenants of a third person on certain land from which defendant illegally ousted them, that they got back possession under s. 9, Specific Relief Act, that defendant took the crop during the period of his illegal possession and plaintiffs claim Rs. 42-8 the value of that crop. Held, that the suit was cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. ISHAR SINGH v. WASAWA SINGH, 39 P.L.R. 1901=94 P R. 1900. [Disappr., 35 P.R. 1902=84 P.L.R. 1902, F. B.]

(185)—Sch II, art. 31—No suit for accounts—If one party not bound to render accounts to the other.—Where the plaint does not call upon any of the defendants to render accounts, the suit is not one for an account. CHIDRIE KRISTAPPA v. SIDDAMSETTI ZAMANAPPA, M.W.N. 1912, 36=11 M.L.T. 13=13 Ind. Cas. 159. (28 M. 394, F.)

(185-a)—Sch. II, art. 31—No allegation of accountability — Cognizability — Jurisdiction determined by allegations in plaint—Scope of art. 31—Principal and agent—Suit against agent—Small Cause Court—Maintainability.—Where the plaint did not state that the defendants were agents bound to render accounts, but simply averred that the defendants were purchasers of cloths from the plaintiffs and had other dealings with them, and where on such footing a sum of money was claimed from the defendants. Held, that, according to the averments in the plaint, the relationship between the parties was not one which made the plaintiff's primary right against the defendant one to have an account rendered by him, and that the suit was cognizable by a Small Cause Court. The Court which has jurisdiction to try the suit must be determined by the allegations contained in the plaint. It is not every suit by principal against an agent that is shut out from the cognizance of a Small Cause Court. A suit to recover a specific sum of money against an agent would often be entertainable by a Small Cause Court. (27 A. 200, 19 M.L.J. 113, R.) Scope of art. 31, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, considered. Art. 31, Act IX of 1887 applies to cases where the relationship of parties is such that one of them is bound to render accounts to the other. VARADARAJULU CHETTIAR v. PATTRA NARAYANASAMI CHETTY, 24 M.L.J. 693=14 M.L.T. 46. (23 C. 884, 10 Ind. Cas. 883, 13 Ind. Cas. 159, R.)

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(186)—Art. 31—Suit by principal against agent for specific items of money credited to himself by the agent is cognisable by the Small Cause Court—See ACCOUNTS — SUIT FOR ACCOUNTS, 19 M.L.J. 113.

(187)—Sch. II, art. 31—See JAGIR, 7 P.L.R. 1900. p. 127.

(188)—Sch. II, art. 31—See MORTGAGE—REDEMPTION, 6 Ind. Cas. 336=14 C.W.N. 1001.

(189)—Sch. II, art. 31—See PROFITS, SUIT FOR, 5 O.C. 130.

(190)—Art. 31—See NOS. 9, 133, 134, 142, supra.

(190-a)—Sch. II, art. 31, s. 23—Suit for damages.—Where a suit was brought in a Court of Small Causes for damages, on the allegation that the plaintiff had been kept out of possession even after depositing the mortgage-money in compliance with the decree for redemption of a mortgage, held, that it was in effect a suit for the profits of immoveable property belonging to the plaintiff which had been wrongfully received by the defendant and was, therefore, not cognisable by the Court of Small Causes under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, sch. II, art. 31, but the Court should not have dismissed the suit, but should have returned the plaint for presentation to the proper Court under O. VII, r. 10, Code of Civil Procedure. Held further that s. 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, was no bar to its doing so, as it only sets out a special case. SHEO BODH v. SURJAN, 11 A.L.J. 238=19 Ind. Cas. 427. (14 C.W.N. 1001, Not Appr.)

(191)—Sch. II, arts. 31, 38—Compromise between widow and husband's brothers—Suit for maintenance provided for—Chastity if a condition.—Where in compromise of a dispute between a widow and her husband's brothers in respect of her husband's properties, it was agreed that some lands should be left in her possession for her life and that she should have the right to collect the rents therefrom for her maintenance, and the widow sued her brother-in-law who nevertheless remained in possession and collected the rents, for the rent of a particular period collected by him and not paid to her, held that the suit was not cognisable by a Small Cause Court by reason of cls. 31, 38 of sch. II to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. Where the agreement did not provide a condition that the widow should continue to be chaste, unchastity on her part subsequent to the agreement was no bar to her recovering the rent on the basis of her claim to immoveable property. BHUP SINGH v. LACHMAN KUNWAR, 26 A. 321. [R., A.W.N. 1908, 149.]

(192)—Sch. II, art. 35—Suit by tenant to recover excess money paid under distraint, not exempted under art. 35.—Where, on the landlord having distrained the tenant's cattle, the latter was forced to pay money in excess of the amount of rent actually due to the former, a suit by such tenant to recover back the excess so paid by him, under pressure, would be a suit cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. Such a suit could not be regarded as a suit to recover compensation exempted under art. 35, cl. (j), of the second schedule to Act IX of 1887, which has been held to apply only to suits brought to recover damages as for a tort. KARUPPANAN AMBALAM v. RAMASAMI CHETTI, 21 M. 239=8 M.L.J. 165. (24 C. 163 at p. 165, R.) [R., 30 M. 41=1 M.L.T. 414.]

(193)—Art. 35—See NOS. 3, 10, 134, supra.

(193-a)—Art. 35—Contract to marry plaintiff's girl to defendant's minor son—Breach—Waste of provisions and articles purchased—Loss—Suit for compensation—Not cognizable by Small Cause Court.—A suit by the father of a Muhammadan girl against the father of a minor boy for breach of a contract agreeing to marry the boy to the plaintiff's daughter falls within art. 35, cl. (g), of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (15 C. 833, 14 Ind. Cas. 837, F.), and therefore a claim for compensation for loss sustained by the plaintiff, in consequence of the articles and provisions got ready for the marriage having become wasted, is not cognizable by a Small Cause Court. P. K. MOHIDEEN KUTTI v. C. PARKER, 13 M.L.T. 497=M.W.N. 1913, 637=19 Ind. Cas. 700.

(194)—Sch. II, art. 35, cl. (1)—Injury to the person—Assault—A suit to recover damages from the defendant who ran after the plaintiff with a shoe in hand threatening to beat him and using abusive language, but did not actually touch his person, is a suit for "injury to the person" within cl. 1 of art. 35, sch. II, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, and is exempted from the cognizance of the Court of Small Causes. GOVIND v. PANDURANG, 14 Bom. L.R. 323=36 B. 443=15 Ind. Cas. 505.

(195)—Sch. II, art. 35, cl. (1)—Maliciously causing house to be searched by police—Suit for compensation on account of—Cognizability by Small Cause Court—Meaning of "injury to the person," in art. 35, cl. (1).—A suit for compensation for maliciously causing the plaintiff's house to be searched by the police is not excluded from the cognizance of a Small Cause Court. Meaning of the phrase "injury to the person" in art. 35, cl. (1), sch. II, Act IX of 1887 discussed. KODA BUKSH v. LOKEMAN, U.B.R. 1910, 40=8 Ind. Cas. 1168.

(196)—Sch. II, art. 35 (c)—Damages for injured feelings or actual expense.—A suit for damages for malicious prosecution, whether the claim is for money as a salve to injured feelings or as a payment for actual loss caused to the plaintiff, falls under this clause. WAZIRA v. GANGA RAM, 30 P.R. 1889.

(197)—Sch. II, art. 35, cl. (g)—Suit for recovery of money advanced, on a breach of contract of marriage.—A suit to recover money and ornaments which have been given to the defendant to expend on his daughter, after a breach of a betrothal contract, falls within sch. II, art. 35, cl. (g). ABDULLAH v. LADHA, 2 S.L.R. 31.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(198)—Sch. II, art. 35, cl. (g)—Suit for compensation for breach of contract of betrothal —Jurisdiction of Small Cause Courts—"Unclassed" suit, under s. 3 of the Punjab Courts Act —Appeal—Defect of jurisdiction—Interference of Chief Court.—A suit for compensation for breach of betrothal contract falls under art. 35, cl. (g) of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. (132 P.R. 1889, F.; 24 M. 652, R.) Such a suit is an "unclassed" suit, as defined in s. 3 of the Punjab Courts Act, and, if the value exceeds Rs. 100, a District Judge has no jurisdiction to hear and decide an appeal. Where the inferior Court hears an appeal entertainable by a superior Court, the Chief Court will not interfere, unless the defect of jurisdiction has actually prejudiced the party who complains of the want of jurisdiction. HAKIM v. RALYA, 125 P.R. 1907=80 P.W.R. 1907. (36 P.R. 1902, F.B., R.)

(199)—Art. 35 (i), sch. II—Compensation for diversion of water-course, suit for, whether cognizable by a Small Cause Court—Appeal from suit lies to Divisional Court and not to District Judge—S. 39 (a), Punjab Courts Act, 1884.—This was a suit instituted for compensation for diversion of a water-course, which, but for the forcible obstruction thereof caused by the defendant, would have flowed over to the plaintiff's land. Upholding the contention raised in revision, it was held that the claim was one covered by art. 34 (i) of the Act and was, therefore, not cognizable by a Small Cause Court. Held also, that, the suit being an unclassed suit of more than Rs. 100 in value, an appeal in the case would lie not to the District Judge but to the Division Court under s. 39 (a) of the Punjab Courts Act, 1884. LEHNA SINGH v. HIRA SINGH, 134 P.R. 1906 =18 P.L.R. 1907. (18 M. 28, F.; 71 P.R. 1896, R.)

(200)—Art. 35 (j)—Second appeal—Suit for recovery of money paid.—Where a suit is merely for the recovery of money paid, but not for compensation for illegal, improper or excessive distress or attachment, the suit is one of a small cause nature and there is no second appeal therefrom; such a suit does not come under art. 35 (j) of the Act. SENTHIVELU MUDALIAR v. VARADACHARIAR, 16 M.L.J. 353.

(200-a)—Art. 35 (j)—Suit for damages for illegal attachment.—An ekka and pony belonging to the plaintiff were seized in execution of a decree against a third person. She brought a suit for damages for illegal attachment. Held that the suit was a suit for compensation for illegal, improper or excessive attachment, and was excepted from the cognizance of the Small Cause Court by the provisions of art. 35 (j), Act IX of 1887. MUZAFFAR HUSAIN v. BIBAN, 11 A.L.J. 91=18 Ind. Cas. 695.

(201)—Sch. II, cl. 35 (c)—See RIGHT OF SUIT—COSTS, 14 B. 100.

(202)—Sch. II, cl. 35 (j)—Second appeal—See BEN. ACT III OF 1884, ss. 6 (18), 9 (e), 44, 65, 66, 85 and 114, 1 Ind. Cas. 388.

(203)—Art. 35 (j), sch. II—Wrongful seizure of goods by creditor—Suit for damages—Jurisdiction—See TORT, 8 A.L.J. 92=9 Ind. Cas. 317.

(204)—Sch. II, s. 35 (k)—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 95, 26 M. 504.

(205)—Sch. II, art. 37—Suit by lambardar to recover additional rates not cognisable by Small Cause Court.—A suit by a Lambardar for recovery of additional rates is a suit of the kind mentioned in this article and is not of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. RANI UMED KOWAR v. JAWAHIR LAL KAYATH, 3 C.P.L.R. 177.

(206)—Art. 38, sch. II—Small Cause Court —Jurisdiction—Suit relating to maintenance.—Art. 38 refers to a suit which, both in form and in substance, is a suit for maintenance. Hence, when, in settlement of a family dispute as to the possession of Zemindari property, a compromise was entered into by which the defendant agreed to pay to the plaintiff's mother a certain sum annually, but this was not stated to be by way of maintenance, it was held that a suit by the son of the annuitant to recover arrears of the annuity, on the ground that the same was payable to him also, was not excluded from the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes. MAHADEO RAI v. DEO NARAIN RAI, A.W.N. 1905, 137=2 A.L.J. 697.

(207)—Sch. II, cl. (38)—Suit for arrears of maintenance—Acts XVIII of 1884 and XIII of 1888 (Punjab)—Jurisdiction.—Under sch. II, cl. 38 of the Small Cause Courts Act a suit for arrears of maintenance not being cognizable by a Small Cause Court, a District Judge was, under Act XVIII of 1884, incompetent to hear an appeal from such suit. But as, according to Act XIII of 1888, such a suit is an "unclassed suit", an appeal may be preferred to the District Judge, subject to the other provisions of the Act. DHIRTA v. NIHAL DEVI, 123 P.R. 1889.

(208)—Art. 38—See NO. 191, supra.

(209)—Arts. 38, 41—Suit for contribution—Payment by one of several judgment-debtors to decree-holder — Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court—Second appeal.—A Small Cause Court has jurisdiction to hear a suit for contribution in respect of sums paid by the representative of a judgment-debtor to satisfy a decree passed against the latter and his three brothers for maintenance which, however, was not made charge on property. Neither art. 38 nor the first part of art. 41 has any bearing on the case. No second appeal lies in such a case under s. 586, Civ. Pro. Code. The anterior liability which led to such a maintenance decree being passed cannot affect the question of jurisdiction. RAMASAMY PANTULU v. NARAYANAMOORTHY PANTULU, 14 M L J. 480.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—continued.

(210)—Sch. II, art. 39—Suit for "Arhat" wrongfully received—Cognizability by Small Cause Court—A suit by the Chandhris of a village for "Arhat" against the zemindars alleged to have been wrongfully received by the latter is cognizable by a Small Cause Court. HAYAT SHAH v. JAWAYA, 204 P.R. 1889.

(211)—Art. 41—Contribution, Suit for—Joint decree—Payment by one.—Where one of several judgment-debtors discharged a decree for costs passed jointly against him and other judgment debtors, and brought a suit for contribution, held, that the suit was a suit cognisable by the Court of Small Causes and was not excluded by reason of art. 41 of the second schedule. ROSHAN LAL v. RAM LAL, 4 A.L.J. 543=A. W.N. 1907, 230.

(212)—Art. 41—Scope of—Suit for contribution—Debt due only by virtue of payment by the sharer—Whether of small cause nature—S. 586, Civ. Pro. Code—Second appeal lies where subject-matter of suit exceeds Rs. 500—Test.—Art. 41 of the Act applies only to a suit for contribution in respect of payment made by a sharer of money due from a co-sharer, and such a suit is exempt from the jurisdiction of Small Cause Courts. But it does not apply to a suit for contribution claimed in respect of a debt which becomes due only by virtue of such payment by the plaintiff, there having been no debt due from the defendant, the co-sharer, at the time the plaintiff made the payment. In the latter case, as the suit is of the nature cognizable in a Court of Small Causes, no second appeal will lie under s. 586 of the Code, when the amount of the subject-matter of the suit does not exceed Rs. 500. In deciding whether second appeal lies from an order in execution in a suit of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, the test is not the amount claimed in the execution proceedings but the amount of the subject-matter of the suit. MAVULA AMMAL v. MAVULA MARACOIR, 30 M. 212=17 M.L.J. 376. (11 C. 169, F)

(213)—Art. 41, sch. II—Small Cause Court—Jurisdiction—Suit for contribution arising out of satisfaction of a joint decree for costs.—Held, that a suit by one of several joint judgment-debtors, who had satisfied a joint decree for costs, for contribution against the other joint judgment-debtors was not a suit exempted from the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes. BHAIRON v. RAM BARAM, A.W.N. 1906, 6=3 A.L.J. 6=28 A. 292. (15 C. 713, F.)

(213-a)—Sch. II, art. 41—Contribution, Suit for—Decree for rent against registered tenant who is not interested in land in suit—Money paid by him under decree—Suit by him against real tenants—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court—Second appeal.—The plaintiff was sued for rent of certain lands of which he was the registered tenant, but he had not any interest in the land at the time of the suit. An ex parte decree was passed against the plaintiff, in consequence of which he paid a certain sum of money. He then sued the persons, who were in fact interested in the land, to recover the sum paid by him. The amount in suit was less than Rs. 500. Held, that, as the plaintiff didnot sue as a co-sharer, the suit was one which might be brought in a Small Cause Court, not being excluded by art. 41 the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, and that, therefore, a second appeal did not lie. GAGAN CHANDRA DAS v. RAM DHAN DHAR, 14 Ind. Cas 735.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887)—concluded.

(214)—Sch. II, cl. 41—See CONTRIBUTION, SUITS FOR—MISCELLANEOUS, 23 C. 189.

(215)—Art. 41—See NO. 209, supra.

(216)—Sch. II, art. 44—Ejectmentof tenant—Suit for refund of rent—Punjab Tenancy Act, s. 77.—A suit by a tenant against his landlord for refund of the rent paid by him in advance for land rented by him for a fixed term, on the ground of his ejectment therefrom before such term is cognizable by a Small Cause Court, the same not being barred by any of the clauses of s. 77 of Punjab Tenancy Act. MEHR DIN v. KARM ILAHI, 172 P.R. 1888.

(217)—Exceptions 2 and 3, sch. II—Tort by Judicial Officer—Suit for damages—Suit of a Small Cause nature—Second appeal.—A Judicial Officer (a Magistrate) committed a tort. The person affected thereby sued for damages, the amount claimed being less than Rs. 500. The question for decision was whether a second appeal lies in such a case or whether the suit is of a Small Cause nature so as to preclude a second appeal. Held, that the act does not fall within the third exception of sch. II of this Act, because that exception only aims at the acts of some Officer of Government other than a Judicial Officer; here the act is that of a Judicial Officer; the act does not fall within third exception because that exception relates to an act purporting to be done by some person in pursuance of an order of a Judicial Officer; here the act was not done by any person in pursuance of the 'order' of a Judicial Officer but it was done by the Judicial Officer himself. There being no other exception applying to the case, the suit is of a Small Cause nature and no second appeal lies. MOTI LAL GHOSE v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 9 C.W.N. 495=1 C.L. J. 355.

(218)—Sch. II, Exceps. 2 and 3—See TORT, 9 C.W.N. 495=1 C.L.J. 355.

Proxy, Vote by.

Right to vote by proxy—See COMPANY—MEETINGS AND VOTINGS, 7 Bom. L.R. 99=29 B. 126.

Puberty.

And discretion, evidence of—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—MARRIAGE, 2 O.C. 90.

Public Agent, Contract by.

See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT—GENERAL, 4 Bom. L.R. 706=26 B. 80.

Publication.

See DAMAGES—DAMAGES, SUITS FOR, 33 P.R. 1874.

Communication made to complainant only —I.P.C., s. 499—See DEFAMATION, 7 A. 205, F.B=A.W.N. 1884, 340.

Letter given by manager of firm to clerk to copy—See LIBEL, Cor. 134=2 Hyde, 274.

Public Charitable Property.

Public charitable property, mortgage of—See MORTGAGE — GENERAL, 7 Bom.L.R. 772.

Public Charity.

(1)—Jurisdiction—Public charity—Scheme, alteration of—Committee, appointment of.—Where, in a suit for administration of a public charity, a scheme has been framed by the District Judge and confirmed by the High Court, the High Court alone can alter the scheme, but the District Judge can give directions to secure compliance with the scheme. Method of control of the High Priest of a public temple explained. UMESHANANDA DUT JHA v. SIR RAVANESHWAR PROSAD SINGH, 16 C.L.J. 431.

Public Conveyances (Bombay Town Suburbs and Harbour) Act.

See BOM. ACT VI OF 1863.

Public Demands Recovery Act.

See BEN. ACT VII OF 1880.

See BEN. ACT I OF 1895.

Public Demands Recovery Amendment Act.

See BEN. ACT I OF 1897.

Public Documents.

See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, S. 74.

(1)—Board of Trade certificate—"Public document," not a.—A certificate granted by the Board of Trade is not a "public document" under s. 74 of the Evidence Act; though the duplicate kept by the Registrar General of seamen may be one. In the matter of a collusion between the "AVA" AND THE "BRENHILDA," 5 C. 568=5 C.L.R. 331.

(2) — Jummabundi — Public document.—Quære.—Whether a jummabundi is a public document? AKSHYA KUMAR DUTT v. SHAMA CHURN PATITANDA, 16 C. 586. [R., 3 O. C. 205.]

(3)—Anumatipatra—Public documents—Evidence Act, ss. 74, 76.—An anumatipatra is not a public document under s. 74, Evidence Act, Public Documents—concluded.

nor, if it were, would its being on the record constitute a copy certified as required by s. 76 of the Act. KRISHNA KISHORI CHAUDHRANI v. KISHORI LAL ROY, 14 C. 486=14 I. A. 71, P.C=5 Sar. 13.

Entry in the register of inventions—Documents recorded in that register—See ACT V OF 1888, ss. 14 and 29, 4 A.L.J. 11=A.W.N. 1907, 23.

See U.P. ACT I OF 1869, ss. 2, 3, 7, 8, 10, 14, 22, 1 O.C. Sup. Vol. 36.

Collectorate registers whether—See CONTRIBUTION, SUIT FOR—GENERAL, 15 C.L.J. 191.

See EVIDENCE—SECONDARY EVIDENCE, 27 C. 639, P.C.=27 I.A. 1=4 C.W.N. 429.

Record of rights of latter date — Effect of omission of entry—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 35, 25 A. 90=A.W N. 1902, 207.

Teiskhana Register prepared by patwari, not a public document—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, ss. 35, 74, 18 C. 534.

A census register is not a—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 74, 6 Bom. L.R. 535.

See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 74, 7 C. 76.

Public Ferries and Canals.

See MAD. ACT II OF 1890.

Public Highway.

See PUBLIC WAY.

(1)—Public highway—Suit for declaration—Special damage.—A suit for declaration of a right of way by a public road is not maintainable unless there is an allegation of any special injury or inconvenience to the plaintiff. RAMTARAK KARATI v. DINANATH MANDAL, 7 B. L.R. 184=24 W.R. 414, Note. [R., 24 W.R. 413, 1 A. 249, 2 B. 370.]

(2)—Suit for removal of obstruction to public road—Special damage—Remedy under Ch. XXXIX, Cr. P. C.—A suit for the demolition of a wall built by the defendant on the ground that it encroached upon and obstructed a public thoroughfare, where no special inconvenience to the plaintiff was alleged, was held not maintainable, though the road might be one which the plaintiff himself had dedicated to the public The most efficacious remedy for any private individual who is incommoded in common with others by an obstruction of a public thoroughfare, is that provided by Ch. XXXIX, Cr. P.C., and he can gain his end by resorting to the Magistrate. LALU MYA BHOWANI AND LATCHMAN v. JAMIYAT RAI, 72 P. R. 1877. [R., 134 P.R. 1882, 4 P. R. 1895.]

Powers of Municipality—See BEN. ACT III OF 1864, 2 C. 425.

User of; for religious purposes—See PENAL CODE, ss. 153 and 296, 26 M. 554, F.B.=13 M.L.J. 171.

Public Market.

Public market—Ownership vested in Municipality—Power of Municipality to refuse permission to use public market—Necessity for license—See MAD. ACT IV OF 1884, ss. 191, 192, 194 and 195, 2 M.L.J. 206.

Public nuisance — See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 91.

(1)—Right to sue—Private individual—Particular damage—Damage must be direct and substantial.—To entitle a private individual to sue for a public nuisance, it must be shown that he seeks some particular damage beyond that suffered by the public, and the particular damage must be both direct and substantial. SADU v. SUKA, 5 Bom. L.R. 116.

(2)—Public thoroughfare—Nuisance—Private action in respect of—Damage in common with others—No special damage—Mandatory injunction—Suit for—Maintainability of.—A private action cannot be maintained in respect of a public nuisance, save by a person who suffers particular damage beyond what is suffered by him in common with all other persons affected by the nuisance. BHAWAN SINGH v. NAROTTAM SINGH, 6 A.L.J. 499=2 Ind. Cas. 365=31 A. 444. [R., 8 Ind. Cas. 808.]

(3)—Public nuisance—Right to sue—Special damage—District Police Act (Bombay Act IV of 1890), s. 44—Orders by District Magistrate—Religious assemblies, orders at—Music, right to play.—No individual or class of individuals can sue in respect of a public right unless the obstruction caused has resulted in special damage. (2 B. 457, 18 B. 693, F.) The Bombay District Police Act (IV of 1890) is not intended to confer any right upon any individual or class of His Majesty's subjects, which had not been given by the common law. The Act was passed in the interests of public peace. All that s. 44 of the Act contemplates is that, where a District Magistrate has passed an order in the interests of peace, it is open to any party to go to a Civil Court and get an adjudication in favour of his right, if any. The Legislature merely assumes that there is a right, which the District Magistrate's order has opposed and which can be vindicated in a Court of law. VIRUPAXAPPA FAKIRAPPA v. SHERIFF SAB MULLA MASUD SAD, 11 Bom. L.R. 372=2 Ind. Cas. 494.

(4) — Noise — Legitimate trade—Malice. — Though a legitimate calling or trade may involve a serious nuisance by noise, it does not render that noise non-actionable, in other words, noise does not necessarily become non-actionable merely because it is an incident of a legitimate trade. In determining whether an actionable wrong has been committed and what measure of relief should be granted, the existence or non-existence of malice is a material consideration. HARI v. VITHAL, 8 Bom. L.R. 89.

(5)—Killing of cows by Muhammadans—Custom.—Acts calculated to offend the sentiments of a class do not necessarily amount to a public nuisance. Under certain limitations, the slaughtering of kine by Muhammadans is not illegal. It is the legal right of every person to make such use of his own property, as he may think fit, provided that, in so doing, he does not cause real injury to others, or offend against the law, even though he may thereby hurt the susceptibilities of others. The right of Muhammadans to slaughter kine is one to which they are legally entitled irrespective of custom, and it is only when they abuse the right that its exercise can be interfered with. SHAHBAZ KHAN v. UMRAO PURI, A.W.N. 1908, 64=5 A.L.J. 147=7 Cr. L.J. 381=30 A. 181. (7 M. 590, 12 B. 430, 10 A. 44, 150, 17 C. 852, 25 W.R. 72, R.)

Public Market—concluded.

Powers of Advocate General to interfere in cases of—Mandatory injunction when will be granted—See BOM. ACT III OF 1888, ss. 349-A, 249-B, 12 Bom. L.R. 274=5 Ind. Cas. 213.

See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, A. W.N. 1884, 74.

Public Officer.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, S. 80.

See PUBLIC SERVANT.

(1)—Surveyor employed by Collector managing khas mehal—"Public officer."—A surveyor employed by the Collector in the khas mehal department is a public officer. BAJOO SINGH v. QUEEN-EMPRESS, 26 C. 158=3 C.W.N. 115.

(2)—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 42—Suit for decree declaratory of title without prayer for consequential relief—Relief by way of injunction not sought—Effect—Civ. Pro Code, 1882, s. 424, notice under.—This suit was in relation to the succession to a talukdari estate brought under the operation of Act XXI of 1881, and plaintiff merely prayed for a declaration of his right to succeed to the estate on the death of his father in preference to defendant No 1. Defendant No. 1 pleaded that the suit was not sustainable, that the plaint had not been properly stamped and the suit was bad under s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act by reason of the omission to ask for consequential relief; and the second defendant, the talukdari settlement officer, stated that the suit could not be maintained in the absence of any notice to him as required by s. 424 of the Civ. Pro. Code. The Assistant Judge found that the suit could be maintained without any notice given, under s. 424 of Code, to the settlement officer; but he rejected the claim on the grounds that, as plaintiff was suing to establish title by inheritance, he could not get relief on a stamp of only Rs. 10, and that, as he could seek for other relief than a mere declaration of title (e.g., a suit for an account), the suit was barred under the provisions of s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act. Jardine, J., upheld the finding of the Assistant Judge with reference to s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act, on the ground that plaintiff had omitted to seek the relief of an injunction against the first defendant restraining him from receiving future payment of maintenance (Candy, J. doubting). Plaintiff was permitted to amend his plaint by adding prayers asking for reliefs by way of injunction restraining the first defendant from receiving and the second defendant from making payments towards future maintenance of the former. SABDARSINGJI v. GANPATSINGJI, 14 B. 395. [R., 25 C. 49=2 C.W.N. 76, 23 B. 486.]

Public Officer—concluded.

See ATTACHMENT—SUBJECTS OF ATTACHMENT, 24 C. 102=1 C.W.N. 138.

Public policy—Trafficking in—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 23, 86 P.R. 1893.

Manager of an estate under Court of Wards—See COURT OF WARDS, 28 C. 344.

Illegal arrest when actinig bona fide—Liability of—See JUDICIAL OFFICERS, LIABILITY OF, 3 Agra 409.

Suit against Collector—Act done in official capacity—See JURISDICTION OF SUBORDINATE JUDGE, 15 B. 441.

Official trustee—"Public Officer"—See OFFICIAL TRUSTEE, 7 C. 499.

Practice—Summoning of—As witnesses—See WITNESS—SUMMONS TO AND ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES, 6 M.H.C. App. 6.

Public Place.

(1)—What is a.—"The goods yard of a railway station" is a public place. CAWASJI v. G.I.P. RAILWAY, 4 Bom. L.R. 290.

(2)—What is not a.—"A machhwa (boat) chartered by the accused for gambling" is not a public place. EMPEROR v. JUSUBALLY, 7 Bom. L.R. 333=29 B. 386.

Public Policy.

See CHAMPERTY.

See CONTRACT—ILLEGAL CONTRACTS.

See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, S. 23.

(1)—Contract to stifle prosecution.—A contract to stifle a prosecution is void as being against public policy. DALSUKHRAM v. DE BRITTON, 6 Bom. L.R. 73=28 B. 326.

(2)—Agreement—Consideration—Stifling of prosecution — Non-compoundable offence—Ultimate finding of compoundable offence or no offence— Void—Public policy—Facts not full pleaded—Void as opposed to public policy—Inference—Court's power.—Where part of the consideration for an agreement was the stifling of a prosecution, which at the time was proceeding as a prosecution of a non-compoundable offence, held, that the agreement was void as opposed to public policy, even though the Criminal Courts might ultimately have found that a compoundable offence, or no offence, at all, had been committed. (28 B. 326, 19 M. 189, R.) Even where the facts have not been fully pleaded by the parties, the Courts will deduce them from the evidence and apply the doctrine of public policy. CHHATRAPAL v. FUNDILAL, 6 N.L.R. 148 (27 A. 266, R.).

Public Policy—continued.

(3)—Agreement for reward to procure wife.—An agreement by a hireling or stranger to assist a Hindu for reward in procuring a wife is void as being contrary to public policy. SARJU PARSHAD v. NARAIN PARSHAD, 2 O. C. 365. (17 M. 9, F.)

(4)—Contract to avoid marriage on breach of a specified condition.—It is contrary to the policy of the law as administered by British Courts to allow parties to a contract to avoid a marriage on the breach of a condition embodied in the agreement. CHAIT RAM v. MUSAMMAT NATHI, P.L.R. 1900, p. 193.

Contract against—Undue influence — Unconscionable bargain—Voidable contract, power of Court in respect of—Contract Act, 1872, ss. 16, 19-A. 23—Act VI of 1899, s. 2—Ratification of contract caused by undue influence, proof of—See U. P. ACT XVII OF 1876, ss. 173, 174, 5 C. O. 256.

Office of Khatib—Appointment of deputy during minority—Consideration—Public policy—See AGREEMENT, 8 Ind. Cas. 745=9 M.L.T. 159.

Compromise decree giving mortgage-decree for debt not secured by mortgage, validity of—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXIII, r. 3=17 M.L.J. 200.

Hindu law—Mirasi right in temple—Suit against office-holder—Compromise for sale of office and emoluments—Public policy—Execution of decree passed in terms of compromise—Power of executing Court to refuse to execute decree—See COMPROMISE—GENERAL, 26 M. 31.

Marriage—Agreement to pay money in consideration of giving child in marriage—Void as against public policy—See CONTRACT—ILLEGAL CONTRACTS, 22 B. 658.

Sub-overseer obtaining lease in the names of his brother and brother-in-law—Public policy—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 23, 11 Ind. Cas. 2.

See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 27, 2 M. 44.

Contract of marriage—Agreement to pay money—Legality of contract—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 65, 1 C.L.J. 261.

See COSTS—TAXATION OF COSTS, 17 M. 162.

See CUSTOMS—PUNJAB—GENERAL, P.L.R. 1900, p. 534.

Public policy—Payment of dustoori or commission—See DUSTOORI, 91 P.R. 1910=129 P.W.R. 1910=189 P.L.R. 1910=8 Ind. Cas. 317.

Office of dancing girl attached to temple, Courts bound to recognise endowments connected with—Custom—See HINDU LAW—CUSTOM, 14 B. 90.

Public Policy—concluded.

See HINDU LAW—CUSTOM, 1 M. 168.

See HINDU LAW—MARRIAGE, 28 C. 751=5 C.W.N. 673.

Exclusion of murderer and his descendants from inheriting to the property of the deceased their succession being opposed to—See INHERITANCE, 41 P.R. 1906=95 P.L.R. 1906.

See INHERITANCE, 74 P.R. 1900.

Insolvent—Private settlement with creditor, validity of—Absence of notice to Official Assignee and other creditors — See INSOLVENCY — GENERAL, 20 B. 636.

See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS—PLEADER—REMUNERATION, 5 P.R. 1878, F.B., 26 P.R. 1874.

A Judge to have regard to, in cases of discovery - See LETTERS PATENT, 1865, HIGH COURT—BOMBAY, s. 15, 4 Bom. L.R. 342.

Agreement in adjustment of decree of Court —Agreement opposed to—Estoppel—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, ART. 182—GENERAL, 5 O.C. 217.

Succession—Slayers right to inherit--Muhammadan Law—Public policy — See MUHAMMADAN LAW—INHERITANCE, P.L.R. 1900, p. 455.

Gambling in litigation—Failure of consideration—See RIGHT OF SUIT—MISCELLANEOUS, 9 C.W.N. 477, P.C.=8 O.C. 155=27 A. 271=32 I.A. 113=15 M.L.J. 197.

Agreement with Inspector of Land Records to purchase land in name of another—Public policy—See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE, 8 Ind. Cas. 441.

Public Purposes, Acquisition of Land for.

See ACT VI OF 1857.

Public Record.

Ancient documents—Presumption as to their genuineness—Production from proper custody —Mortgage—Acknowledgment of liability—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, ss. 35, 74, 80, 90, 59 P.R. 1901.

Public Right.

(1)—Public right—Special damage—Right to sue.—When the plaintiff is, as a raiyat of a certain village, entitled to graze his cattle on the tank-bed, the fact that the other raiyats of the village have similar rights does not make his right a public right in the sense, that no action can be brought upon it unless special damage is proved. VENKATACHALA v. KUPPUSAMI, 11 M. 42. [R., 5 Bom L.R. 116, 8 C.W.N. 425, P.C.]

See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 305=12 W.R. 199.

Public Road.

See PUBLIC WAY.

See ROAD.

Public Road—concluded.

Right of person to sub-soil of road—Land when not used as —Owner's right to claim possession of—See BEN. ACT III OF 1664, s. 10, 20 C. 732.

Encroachment on—Powers of Municipal Commissioner—See BOM. ACT III OF 1872, s. 195, 12 B. 474.

Encroachment on a—See BOM. ACT V OF 1879, S. 214, 1 Bom. L. R. 161.

What is—Passage of cattle of adjoining owners—Effect—See MAD ACT V OF 1884, 8 Ind. Cas. 682.

Suit for possession of a part of public road —See APPEAL—MISCELLANEONS, P.L.R. 1900, p. 440.

See APPELLATE COURT — OBJECTIONS FIRST TAKEN IN APPEAL, 6 B.L.R. App. 73.

See EASEMENT, 62 P.R. 1898.

Suit to set aside order of Magistrate—Public road—Civil Court—Jurisdiction—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 3 B.L.R. App. 43=11 W.R. 434=12 W.R. 199=3 B.L.R. 305.

See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 103 P.L.R. 1901.

Public Servants.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, S. 80.

See PUBLIC OFFICER.

(1)—Poddar of the Bank of Bengal, not a public servant.—A poddar of the Bank of Bengal is not a public servant, under cl. 9, s. 21 of the Penal Code. In re MODUN MOHUN, 4 C. 376.

(2)—Act XXVI of 1850—Municipal Commissioners—Public servants — Reg. II of 1827, s. 43—Suit against Municipal Commissioner—Jurisdiction.—A Municipal Commissioner appointed under Act XXVI of 1850 is a public servant within the meaning of Reg. II of 1827, s. 43. [Appl., 1 B. 628; D., 14 B. 286.] A Munsif has no jurisdiction to try a suit brought against a Municipal Commissioner for acts done by him in his public capacity. GREAVES v. BHAGVAN TULSI, 4 B.H.C.A.C. 93. [Appl., 1 B. 628; D., 14 B. 286.]

(3)—Bombay Act I of 1865, s. 11—Power of surveyor to enter private houses.—Whether s. 11 of Bombay Act I of 1865 justifies surveyors in entering private houses for the purpose of measuring them. REG v. BHAGTI DAS BHAGWANDAS, 5 B.H.C. Cr. 51. [R., Rat. Un. Crim. Cases, 850.]

(4 & 5)—Censure of— Libel by a public servant.—The power to dismiss a public servant includes the power to reduce him, or to censure and reprimand him. A charge of libel against a public officer must fail if it is contained in a document which is privileged, because that document cannot be produced and so is incapable of being produced in a Court. JEHANGIR v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 5 Bom. L. R. 30=27 B. 189.

Public Servants—continued.

(6)—Public servant, dismissal of—Board's Rules, 1902, s. 14—Dismissal in contravention of Rules— Declaration — Jurisdiction — Civil Court—Specific Relief Act, s. 42—Notification, if justifiable.—The plaintiff, who was a public servant, was prosecuted for certain offences under the Penal Code but was acquitted. The Collector in whose office he was employed, however, dismissed him in consequence of facts or circumstances brought to his notice, but not elicited at the judicial trial, without giving him opportunity to explain them. Held (per Mookerjee, J.) that the Collector was bound to hear him before he was dismissed. The exception mentioned in Board's Rules, 1902, page 70, s. 14 contemplates cases where the public servant has been convicted at a judicial trial. Per Curiam.—Except when it is otherwise provided by statute, all public officers and servants of the Crown hold their appointments at the pleasure of the Crown; and all in general, are subject to dismissal at any time without cause assigned. What the Crown can do independently of any enquiry and without the assignment of any reason, cannot be questioned in a Court of law on the ground that the enquiry has not been satisfactory or in proper form, or that the reason assigned is unsound and open to criticism. A suit for damages for wrongful dismissal cannot be maintained against the Secretary of State. S. 42 of the Specific Relief Act does not sanction every form of declaration but only a declaration that the plaintiff is entitled to a specific legal character or right as to property. The plaintiff was not entitled to a declaration that the dismissal had been in contravention of the Rules, because it did not fall within the scope of s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act, nor could it lead up to any consequential relief against the Crown which the Court was competent to grant. The Government acted within its rights when it notified the fact of the dismissal of the plaintiff, solely with a view to prevent his re-employment in Government service in any capacity. The publication of the notification did not entitle the plaintiff to any relief against the Secretary of State. RAMDAS HAJRA v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 17 C.L.J. 75=16 Ind. Cas. 922.

Sanitary Inspector of Union whether a—under the Act—See MAD. ACT V OF 1884, s. 43, 21 M. 428.

Photedar appointed by District Treasurer, whether a—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 23, 5 P.W.R. 1912 (N.W.F.P.)

Contract with public servant—Conflict with public duties—Contract void—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 24, 13 C.W.N. 59=1 Ind. Cas. 351.

See DAMAGES—DAMAGES, SUITS FOR, 8 B.H.C.A.C. 202.

Public Servants—concluded.

Assistant Collector's report to the Collector—Admissibility in evidence — See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 35, 2 S.L.R. 82.

See JURISDICTION OF MUNSIFF'S COURT, 1 B.H.C. 144.

Act of, in closing irrigation canal—Authorised by statute—Tortious eviction—Suit against—Right to withhold rent—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—GENERAL, 1 S.L.R. 244.

See SMALL CAUSE COURT, MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF—GENERAL, 18 M. 395.

Order against, for enforcing the performance of duty by, by an order of High Court—See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, s. 45, 7 Bom. L. R. 161.

Public Street.

See PUBLIC WAY.

(1)—Public street—What constitutes.—Where the lane in dispute was shown, besides its user as a public lane, to be (1) named by the Municipality; (2) bearing a name in Laughton's plan; and (3) described as a public lane in the documents of title, the lane was held to be a public lane. OOSMAN v. ESMAILJEE, 2 Bom. L R. 952.

(2)—What constitutes a.— The mere facts that Municipal sweepers are employed in sweeping a street and that the Municipality keeps up lamps in that street, are not sufficient by themselves to establish that the street is a public one. ANKLESHWAR MUNICIPALITY v. RIKHAVCHAND, 2 Bom. L.R. 1076=25 B. 315.

Construction of—See BOM. ACT VI OF 1873, s. 17, 20 B. 146.

See BOM. ACT VI OF 1873, ss. 42 (1), 48, 75, 19 B. 212.

See NUISANCE, 4 P.R. 1895.

Right of every member of public to conduct procession—See PROCESSIONS, 26 M. 376.

Public Thoroughfare, Obstruction to.

See RIGHT OF SUIT—OBSTRUCTION TO PUBLIC THOROUGHFARE, SUITS CONCERNING.

(1)—Public street — Obstruction — Special damage.—The appellant sued the respondent for removal of a certain obstruction from a public thoroughfare, alleging that such obstruction had narrowed the way, and such narrowing had resulted in cattle driven along it straying on his land. Held that, there being a sufficiency of road along which cattle could be driven the damage which had resulted to the appellant from such obstruction was not a natural or necessary consequence of the respondent's act, or such special damage as could give the appellant a right to sue. KNADHI v. KAMTA, A.W.N. 1881, 98.

(2)—Public thoroughfare — Obstruction — Removal—Special damage.—Where no special damage is caused to the plaintiff by an obstruction in a thoroughfare, a suit for its removal instituted by the plaintiff is not maintainable. TAFFUZUL HUSAIN v. FAZAL IMAM, A.W.N. 1881, 103.

Public Thoroughfare, Obstruction to—concld.

Removal of obstruction from public thoroughfare—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 11 B.L.R. 9=19 W.R. 345.

Public thoroughfare, obstruction to—Special damage essential for right of suit in Civil Court—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 10 A. 498=A.W.N. 1888, 205.

Public thoroughfare—Suit to remove encroachment—Maintainability—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 1 A. 249.

See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 3 C. 20, F.B., 27 C. 793.

Public Way.

See PUBLIC STREET.

(1)—Public road—User of road by public—Acquiescence by owner—Intention—Effect.—In order to prove that a road is a public road, it is sufficient if acts of user by the public are shown to have been acquiesced in by the owner of the land over which the road passes and if those acts are of such a character as to warrant the inference that the owner intended to make over to the public the right to use the land as a public highway. J. ANDERSON v. JUGGODUMBA DABI, 6 C.L.R. 282.

(2)—Public road—Extent.—A public road includes also a fair margin which may be used for various purposes in connection with that road. When the proprietor of certain lands through which a public road passed, sued for the removal of certain trees planted on the margin of the road, held that the plaintiff was not entitled to remove those trees so long as the land on which they grew formed a portion of the public road. But, the plaintiff would not lose all rights that he had as owner of the lands used as a public road. The lands would still continue to be subject to the right of easement. When they ceased to be used as a public road, the land would revert to the plaintiff or to any other person who might establish his right as proprietor thereof. HARRENDRO COOMAR CHOWDHRY v. TARAMONEE CHOWDHRAIN, 7 C.L.R. 272.

(3)—Public road—Dedication—Presumption of dedication—Length of user by public sufficient to give rise to a presumption of dedication to public use.—Where a certain piece of land was found to have been used by the public continuously and without interruption as a passage for more than twenty years under such circumstances as to indicate an intention on the part of the proprietor to leave the public in undisturbed enjoyment of the land. Held, that this was more than sufficient to show dedication or an intention to dedicate the land to public use by the proprietor. BACHCHU v. THE MUNICIPAL BOARD OF BENARES, A.W.N. 1900, 128.

Public Way—continued.

(4)—Right of dedicator of road to public—Such dedicator responsible for keeping road in order—Right to sue for damages and injunction—Proof of special damage not necessary.—The owner of the soil who dedicates a way to the public for paths with no other rights than a right of passage, may exercise any right not inconsistent with the exercise of the right of way by the public. If such owner is bound to keep the road in repair and in order, for the use of the public, he is entitled to bring a suit for damages and injunction against the person who destroys the improvements effected by him, here, special damage need not be proved. MAHARAJ BAHADUR SINGH v. PARASH NATH SINGH, 31 C. 839.

(5)—Public highway—Obstruction—Nuisance—Suit by private individual—Special damage—Inconvenience and loss of time—Detour.—In the case of a public road, a private action cannot be maintained in respect of an obstruction to it by a person, unless he suffers particular damage beyond what is suffered by him in common with all other persons affected by the nuisance. (31 A. 444, 6 A.L.J. 499, 2 Ind. Cas. 365, 2 B. 469, R.) The stopping of a public road and thereby rendering it necessary for a person to make a detour is such special damage as justifies him in instituting a suit for the removal of the obstruction. RAMA CHANDRA v. JOTI PRASAD, 8 Ind. Cas. 808.

(6)—Public way—Obstruction—Right to sue—Special damage.—The defendants obstructed the plaintiff from carrying his taboot on a public road during the Mohurrum on the ground that they did not receive from the plaintiff certain Man-pans which they were entitled to receive: Held, that the fact that the defendants had the right to receive certain Man-pans from the plaintiff would not entitle them to cause obstruction to the plaintiff's taboot and to his right to use the public road; since if the defendants had any right to any Man-pans, they ought to have asserted it in a Court of law and that could give them no right to prevent the plaintiff from using a public road. In a suit in respect of obstruction caused to a person's right to use a public road, he must prove either that there has been an interference with his public right which involves interference with some private right of his or that if no private right of his has been interfered with, he has suffered some damage peculiar to himself from the interference with his public right. KASHIM SAHEB v. AYAPPA, 5 Bom. L.R. 646.

(7)—Public way—Right of public—Procession—Marching a procession on a public road—Public nuisance—Special damage.—The plaintiffs sued, on behalf of themselves and of other members of a religious community, in a village, to have a declaration of their right of marching in procession with a car along a particular public road to certain temples, and for an injunction restraining the defendants (members of another religious community of the village)

Public Way—continued.

from interfering with the plaintiffs. The defendants (who occupied land abutting upon a portion of the road) contended that the plaintiffs had no right to march along the road. The lower Courts dismissed the suit on the ground that, as the road was public, the plaintiffs could not sue unless special damage were shown and proved. On appeal: Held, that the suit lay, since it was not for the removal of a public nuisance, but for a declaration of the right of an individual community to use the public road. Every member of the public and every sect has a right to use the public street in a lawful manner, and it lies on those who would restrain him or it to show some law or custom having the force of law abrogating the privilege. BASLINGAPPA PARAPPA CHEDACHAL v. DHARMAPPA BASAPPA CHEDACHAL, 12 Bom. L.R. 586=7 Ind. Cas. 663=34 B. 571. (26 M. 376, F.)

(8)—Adverse user by individual—No bar to assertion by public.—Adverse user by an individual of a public high-way, or any part thereof, for more than twenty years, is no bar to the assertion by the public of their right over the high-way or the portion thereof, so adversely used. GOVIND GANGADHAR v. PRESIDENT, MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, BHANDARA, 2 C.P. L.R. 50.

(9)—Public highway—Diversion of road—Rights of adjoining landholders—Grant by Municipality of abandoned road—Act XV of 1873 (N.W.P. and Oudh Municipalities Act), s. 38.—A highway or waste land adjoining it, must be presumed to belong to the owners of the adjoining land, and when it is abandoned as a road, it reverts to such owners jointly. S. 38 of the N.W.P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, was not intended to deprive persons of any private right of property they might have in land used as a public highway, or to confer such right on the Municipality, nor has the section any such effect. NIHAL CHAND v. AZMAT ALI KHAN, 7 A. 362=A.W.N. 1885, 56. [R., 10 A. 553, 20 C. 732, 25 M. 635, 30 M. 185, P.C., 6 A.L.J. 539=5 M.L.J. 391=2 Ind. Cas. 468.]

(10)—Plaint—Alternative reliefs—Rights of one of the residents of a mohalla in regard to land belonging to all the residents—Right of suit—Injunction—Public thoroughfare.—The plaintiffs, residents of a mohalla, sued the defendants for possession of the land in suit, or an injunction restraining them from building thereon and thereby interfering with the easement of the plaintiffs. It was contended by the defendants that (i) the alternative relief sought by the plaintiff was bad in law, (ii) the plaintiffs could not sue the right alleged to have been invaded being a public right of way and all the co-sharers in the mohalla or in the land in suit should have been made parties to the suit or should have been formally represented by the plaintiffs, under s. 30 of the Code of Civil Procedure, (iii) an injunction should not be granted, the injury to the plaintiffs, being insignificant and a pakka chaupal proved to exist in the mohalla, rendering the use of the land in suit for public purposes unnecessary. Held, that (i) the plaintiffs were at liberty to claim, in the alternative, exclusive possession or an injunction to restrain the defendants from interfering with their rights as co-sharers in the land in suit; (ii) the plaintiffs' suit lay as they claimed to establish rights vested only in them or in them and a limited number of persons residing in the mohalla and they were entitled to sue in their own right for a relief common to themselves and others in respect of the land which was not a public thoroughfare or public in the sense that persons other than the inhabitants of the mohalla had rights in it; (iii) the plaintiffs were entitled to the injunction claimed by them. The fact that land in a mohalla is not Nazul does not prevent its being the property of the residents of the mohalla jointly. One of the residents of a mohalla cannot use exclusively to the detriment of other members of the community land belonging to all of them, nor can he transfer his rights in it. Such land differs from public land or a public thoroughfare in that a limited number of co-sharers can combine and do what they choose with it. GUJAR MAL v. RAM RICHPAL, 113 P.L.R. 1901=91 P.R. 1901.

Public Way—concluded.

Obstruction to—See BUILDING, 9 C.W.N. 72=31 C. 979.

Public way--Right of — Implied grant—Remission of revenue on land used as public way—Right of owner to claim compensation —See ESTOPPEL—ESTOPPEL BY CONDUCT, 125 P.L.R. 1902.

Public way dedicated by zemindar—Suit by him for removal of obstruction—Special injury need not be proved—See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 10 A. 553=A.W.N. 1888, 213.

Public Work Cess.

Road Cess—See BEN. ACT X OF 1871, s. 3, 7 C.L.R. 373.

Public Works, 'Provincial,' Act.

See BEN. ACT II OF 1877.

Public Worship.

Mahomedan Law—Custom—Public worship in mosque—Injunction restraining the defendants from interrupting religious ceremonies in a musjid—Interest of Imam or matwali to be protected—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—CUSTOM, 18 C. 448, P.C.=18 I.A. 59.

Puchotra.

(1)—Lumberdars — Payment of Government revenue — Claim for Puchotra — Recurring claim.—Plaintiff and defendant were lumberdars of two bodies of cultivators of different castes. Plaintiff's caste through plaintiff used to pay ⅔ of the Government revenue. Defendant's caste through defendant used to pay the remaining one-third. Plaintiff claimed puchotra in proportion to the revenue for which he was responsible. At one time, plaintiff had allowed defendant's father to draw more than his share of the allowance. Held, that plaintiff was entitled to puchotra in proportion to the Government revenue which he represented as lumberdar, and that the claim was a recurring one which may be taken up at any time, and though plaintiff might have allowed the defendant's father to go on drawing more than his share, he was entitled to come in and demand his share of an allowance given by Government for work and responsibility which he fulfilled. BUDHA v. GULSHER, 14 P. R. 1873.

Puchotra—concluded.

(2)—Suit between lumbardars relating to amount of puchotra—Jurisdiction—Civil Courts.—A claim for puchotra between lumbardars is a claim connected with the land revenue and therefore not cognizable by the Civil Courts. It is money collected with the Government revenue and taken by certain persons by order of Government as remuneration for the trouble of collecting the revenue and the performance of other duties, and the Civil Courts cannot therefore have jurisdiction to settle the amount of puchotra to be taken by each of the contending lumbardars. When, however, that question has been determined by a properly constituted authority, any infringement of such order could probably be made the subject of a civil suit. NURA, SON OF LAKHERA v. NURA, SON OF SAMANDA, 27 P.R. 1875.

(3)—Puchotra—Agreement—Circular order of Punjab Government No. 536 of 16*th April* 1872.—Under Rule 9 of the Rules framed by the Punjab Government under s. 6 and s. 65 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act, 1871, a village headman is alone entitled to take Puchotra notwithstanding an agreement to the contrary. (Vide Circular Order of the Punjab Government No. 536 of 16th April 1872). MALIK OULIA KHAN v. MALIK FUTTEH KHAN, 73 P.R. 1873.

See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 27 P. R. 1876.

Pudukottah.

Suit for land situated within—Civil Court of Trichinopoly—See JURISDICTION—SUITS FOR LAND, 2 M.H.C. 437.

Puffing.

(1) Agreement--Fraud--Rule respecting puffing.—Plaintiff sued for the recovery of commission on account of certain sales of pictures made by defendant to a third person through the exercise of the personal influence of plaintiff with that person. There was an oral agreement between plaintiff and defendant respecting the terms about the payment of commission, and plaintiff sued on such agreement. Held that he was not entitled to recover, as the whole transaction was fraudulent, since it was clear from the evidence that plaintiff was the active agent in getting the third person to buy the goods, that he made an improper use of his influence and friendship to secure a profit for himself and thereby committed a fraud on the purchaser who was ignorant of the agreement whereby the plaintiff was to make a profit at his expense. Held also that the case came under the ordinary rule respecting puffing, that no action would lie against an employer where the customer, in ignorance of a secret agreement between the employer and the person employed to puff, was led to suppose that the recommendation was made not in consequence of the pecuniary reward that the puffer is to get for recommending his employer's wares, but is founded on the known character and reputation of the employer. KHUAJA BUDURUDDIN v. MAHOMED FAZUL, 40 P.R. 1873.

Puffing—concluded.

Puffing Statements.

If fraudulent—See COPYRIGHT. 12 C.W.N. 753=35 C. 463.

Puisne Judge.

Power of Lieutenant Governor, N.W.P.—Appointment of acting Puisne Judge of High Court—Time restriction—See ST. 24 AND 25 VIC., C. 104, s. 7, 20 A. 267, P.C.=25 I.A. 54 =2 C.W.N. 273.

Puisne Mortgage.

See MORTGAGE.

Non-joinder of—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 85, 17 M. 17.

Punchayet.

See CONTRACT—BREACH OF CONTRACT, 6 M.H.C. 40.

See CONTRACT—WAGERING CONTRACT, 135 P.R. 1883.

See HINDU LAW—PARTITION, A.W.N. 1884, 217.

Punctuation.

(1)—Construction of Acts--Punctuation.—It is an error to rely on punctuation in construing Acts of the Legislature. THE MAHARANI OF BURDWAN v. KRISHNA KAMINI DASI, 14 C. 365, P.C.=14 I.A. 30=4 Sar. 772.

Pundits, Opinion of.

(1)—Reference to—Of legal questions—Frame of the questions.—Where a reference is made by the Court to the Native Law Officers for an opinion upon a question which arises in a suit before the Court, the answer to which may bind a right, the question submitted should embrace all the important facts proved or admitted in the suit, which may affect the conclusion; and it is the duty of the Court itself so to frame the question, that the Court may elicit an opinion upon the very facts upon which the legal title depends. If the facts be not ascertained, but stated and disputed, then the question should embrace either view of the facts. When the opinion given is apparently irreconcilable with the opinions of approved text writers on the Hindoo Law, those who give opinion should be asked to explain that which appears, prima facie, irreconcilable: so that, they may show on what ground an apparent exemption from the general law is inferred —whether on general custom modifying texts, on local usage, family customs, or other exceptional matter. MYNA BOYEE v. OOTARAM, 2 W.R. 4, P.C = 8 M.I.A. 400 = 2 M.H.C. 196 = 1 Suth. 452 = 1 Sar. 797.

Pundits, Opinion of—concluded.

(2)—Pundits, Opinion of—Value of.—The rule laid down in the case of Myna Boyee v. Ootaram, 8 M.I.A. 400, that an opinion of the Pundits apparently discordant from works of current and established authority upon Hindu Law, given in the absence of authorities or of local usage, is not to be received as conclusive upon the question at issue, approved of. THE COLLECTOR OF MASULIPATAM v. CAVALY VENCATA NARRAINAPAH, 2 W.R. 61, P.C., 8 M.I.A. 529.

Punishment Act (Corporal).

See ACT XI OF 1858.

Punjab.

Applicability of the Indian Easements Act, to Punjab—See EASEMENTS ACT, 1882, 85 P.R. 1902.

Punjab Acts.

See ACTS—PUNJAB ACTS.

Punjab Alienation of Land Act.

See PUN. ACT XIII OF 1900.

Punjab Appeals Act.

See PUN. ACT VII OF 1868.
See PUN. ACT IX OF 1873.

Punjab Chief Court Act.

See PUN. ACT IV OF 1866.

Punjab Civil Code.

(1)—Punjab Civil Code, whether has force of law.—The Punjab Civil Code has not received the force of law from the Indian Councils Act, owing to its never having been sanctioned by the Governor-General in Council. MUSSUMAT UTTER KOUR v. ATMA SINGH, 47 P R. 1870. (125 P.R. 1867, Diss.) [R., 149 P.R. 1888, 90 P.R. 1909 = 147 P.L.R. 1909.]

(2)—Punjab Civil Code has legal force in bankruptcy matters.—The Punjab Civil Code acquired the force of law with regard to proceedings in bankruptcy. The rules of the Judicial Commissioner of February 1863 have legal force so far as they are consistent with the Code. In re BICK, 64 P R. 1867 and RAM CHAND v. GUNGA BISHEN, 37 P.R. 1871.

(3)—See PARTNERSHIP—SUITS RELATING TO PARTNERSHIP, 32 P.R. 1870.

(4)—S. 4, para 4, Act XXVII of 1860, grant of certificate under—Punjab Civil Code, legal force of—Proved custom recognised by Punjab

Punjab Civil Code—continued.

Code.—On this summary application under Act XXVII of 1860, a certificate was granted by the Deputy Commissioner to the sister of the deceased upon the words of s. IV, para 4 of the Punjab Civil Code. On an appeal preferred to the Chief Court against the above order by the nearest surviving collateral male relation of the deceased, asserting himself to be the heir-at-law of the deceased, the Chief Court held that, no question of custom having been raised, the only question was between the rule of the Mitakshara School of Hindu law and the Civil Code and the Deputy Commissioner was right in having acted under its provisions. The general scope and effect of the Code was not to alter the law. But the language of the section above referred to, taken by itself, is clear, and taken alone, clearly alters the law. The question, therefore, whether the Code altered the law or not is not free from doubt. SIRDAR ATMA SINGH v. MUSSUMAT ATAR KOUR, 69 P.R. 1869. (7 P.R. 1869, R.) [R., 36 P.R. 1878.]

(5)—S. 4, para 9—Mahomedan Law—Inheritance—Punjab Civil Code, s. IV, para. 9, the word 'children' in, referring only to male children.—The words relied on by the appellant in this case were contained in para. 9, s. IV, Part I of the Punjab Civil Code and they were:—"If the parents are surviving, the grandfather and grand-mother have no claim to a share nor have brothers and sisters any claim when there are children." The question turned on the precise meaning to be attached to the word 'children' in the above passage. If the word could be taken to mean male children, the instance given in the Code would be in consonance with the rules of inheritance according to Mahomedan Law. From the language of several of the paras in s. IV, Part I of the Code, the intention clearly appears to be to give an abstract of the principles of inheritance under the Mahomedan Law. The Chief Court was, therefore, of opinion that it is the duty of the Courts to reconcile, as far as possible, the rules of inheritance laid down in s. IV of the Code with those contained in the recognised authorities on Mahomedan Law, and, on the above principle, decided that the word 'children' in the said section should be construed as having exclusive reference to male children. MUSST. HAFIZAN v. MUSST. MENDHOO, 7 P. R. 1869. [R., 69 P.R. 1869.]

(6)—S. 13, para. 11—Pre-emption—Contract of sale—Rule of Mahomedan law inapplicable.—In a case where the right of pre-emption is founded not on the Mahomedan law but on local custom and agreement as evidenced by the settlement ikrarnamah, strict compliance with Mahomedan formalities is not necessary. The intending vendor should offer an opportunity of pre-emption to certain classes of persons. If they disagree as to price, reference is to be made to the revenue authorities, and if no such opportunity is offered, the sale may be set aside. The offer of purchase need not, as under Mahomedan law, be made after the contract of sale has been concluded. Where an offer has distinctly been made, and as distinctly refused, the right of pre-emption is put an end to, even though the offer may have been made upon the final contract for sale was struck. MEHUR CHUND v. HURDEO, 30 P.R. 1870. [R., 90 P.R. 1909=147 P.L.R. 1909.]

Punjab Civil Code—concluded.

(7)—S. 13, para 11—Power of co-sharer to alienate his share.—The Hindu law allows a sharer to compel a partition of his share and it prevents him from alienating that share against the will and without the consent of the co-sharers. The Hindu law is overruled by the Punjab Civil Code, according to which a co-sharer in any kind of tenure has the right to sell his share without the consent of co-sharers but he must give them the option of purchasing it. A co-sharer in joint undivided property can, therefore, without the consent of his co-sharers, temporarily alienate his share. GOORDIT SINGH v. OOTUM SINGH, 31 P.R. 1870. [Appr., 78 P.R. 1879, 21 P.R. 1879.]

(8)—S. 19, cls. 9-15—Bankruptcy jurisdiction—Bankruptcy rules, legal force of.—The bankruptcy jurisdiction given by the Punjab Civil Code, s. 19, cls. 9-15, has not been taken away from the Courts by Act VIII of 1859. A bankruptcy jurisdiction could exist alongside of the Code. The very terms of s. 106 of Act VIII of 1859 show the framers of that Act contemplated such a state of things. If a creditor attach the property of his debtor, subsequently obtain a decree against him, and if in the meantime the debtor becomes a bankrupt, the judgment-creditor can bring his judgment-debtor's interests to sale, notwithstanding the property of the bankrupt has vested in the Official Assignee, for the Official Assignee merely takes the place of the bankrupt. The rule is, "that the Assignee takes the property subject to the rights and equities which affected it at the time of the bankruptcy or insolvency" of the owner, and if there be an attachment before or after decree, and prior to the Assignee taking possession, the judgment-creditor has the right to have the property sold in satisfaction of his decree. RAM CHUND v. GUNGA BISHEN, 37 P.R. 1871. [R., 93 P. R. 1882.]

(9)—S. 22, para 6—See RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS, 73 P.R. 1869.

Punjab Civil Courts Act.

See PUN. ACT XIX OF 1865.

Punjab Courts Act.

See PUN. ACT XVII OF 1877.
See PUN. ACT XVIII OF 1884.
See PUN. ACT XIII OF 1888.
See PUN. ACT XXV OF 1899.

Punjab Court of Wards Act.

See PUN. ACT II OF 1903.

Punjab Descent of Jaghirs Act.

See PUN. ACT IV OF 1900.

Punjab General Clauses Act.

See PUN. ACT I OF 1898.

Punjab Government Tenants.

See PUN. ACT III OF 1893.

Punjab Land Alienation Amending Act.

See PUN. ACT I OF 1907.

Punjab Land Revenue Act.

See PUN. ACT XXXIII OF 1871.
See PUN. ACT XVII OF 1887.

Punjab Laws Act.

See PUN. ACT IV OF 1872.

Punjab Laws Amendment Act.

See PUN. ACT XII OF 1878.

Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act.

See PUN. ACT I OF 1900.

Punjab Loans Limitation Act.

See PUN. ACT I OF 1904.

Punjab Municipal Act.

See PUN. ACT XIII OF 1884.
See PUN. ACT XX OF 1891.

Punjab Municipality.

See PUN. ACT IV OF 1873.

Punjab Pre-emption Act.

See PUN. ACT II OF 1905.

"Punjab Record."

Urudu Translation— Copyright — Infringement—See COPYRIGHT, 15 P. R. 1893.

Punjab Rules.

Mortgage of lands in Oudh—Application to Oudh of Punjab Rules—See MORTGAGE—REDEMPTION, 8 M. J. 69.

Punjab Ruling Chiefs.

See NAWAB OF TANK, 30 C. 843, P.C.=67 P.R. 1903=112 P.L.R. 1903.

Punjab Tenancy Act.

See PUN. ACT XXVIII of 1868.
See PUN. ACT XVI OF 1887.

Purakudies.

Free occupation of Manaikats belonging to Mirasdars—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—MISCELLANEOUS, 27 M. 517.

Purbia Kurmis.

Adoption of grandson of father's sister among—Validity thereof—See HINDU LAW—ADOPTION, A.W.N. 1905, 235=28 A. 170.

Purchase.

Proof of, with notice—See NOTICE, 1 L.B.R. 160.

See PARTITION—RIGHT TO PARTITION, 15 P.R. 1878.

See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 41, 1 L.B.R. 196.

Purchase-money.

See BENAMI TRANSACTIONS.

See PRE-EMPTION—PURCHASE-MONEY.

See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—PURCHASE-MONEY AND OTHER PAYMENTS BY PURCHASER.

See AUCTION SALE, 1 Bom. L.R. 446.

Suit for refund of—Where execution-sale was set aside, maintainability of—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 47, O. XXI, r. 90, 32 C. 332.

See DECREE—DECREE, FORM OF, 1 B.L.R. A.C. 50.

Right of decree-holder to take, when accrues—See EXECUTION OF DECREE—MISCELLANEOUS, 5 Ind. Cas. 139.

See GUARDIAN—DUTIES AND POWERS OF GUARDIANS, 7 N.W.P. 201.

Hindu Law—Alienation—Son's share not affected by father's sale—Right of purchaser to refund of purchase money—See HINDU LAW—ALIENATION, 22 M. 312.

See HINDU LAW—ALIENATION, 4 B.L.R. A.C. 15=12 W.R. 446.

Suit to recover—On failure of consideration—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 62, 15 C. 51.

Suit by vendor to enforce payment of purchase money by sale of purchased property, nature of—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, arts. 111, 132, A.W.N. 1908, 71=3 M L T. 374=5 A.L.J. 243=30 A. 172.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 181, 11 A. 372=A.W.N. 1889, 113.

Mortgage for balance of unpaid purchase money—Dismissal of suit on mortgage—Subsequent suit to enforce lien for balance of unpaid purchase money—Maintainability—See RES JUDICATA—CAUSE OF ACTION, 26 M. 615.

Charge—Unpaid purchase-money is a, upon land—See SALE—GENERAL, 5 N.L.R. 66=2 Ind. Cas. 243.

Suit to recover purchase-money — Auction purchase—Not of Small Cause nature—Order not final — See SMALL CAUSE COURT MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF, GENERAL, 11 M. 266.

Contract to sell immoveable property—Decree for specific performance and payment of purchase money—Passing of ownership—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—COMPLETION OF TRANSFER, 5 B. 554.

See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—COMPLETION OF TRANSFER, 3 A. 77.

Purchase-money—concluded.

Non-payment of, in a contract of sale—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER — VENDOR, RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF, 1 Bom. L.R. 5 =23 B. 525.

Purchasers.

See BENAMI TRANSACTIONS.

See LIS PENDENS.

See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY.

See SALE.

See VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

See BURDEN OF PROOF—HINDU LAW, 3 N.W.P. 188.

Purchaser at Court sale—"Party" and "representative of party"—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 47, 15 B. 290.

Of attached property after attachment in execution of decree, whether a person 'whose immoveable property has been sold' within the meaning of s. 310-A, Civ. Pro. Code—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O XXI, r. 89, 8 O.C. 189.

At execution sale—Purchase with knowledge of defective title—Right to refund of purchase-money—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 93, 3 A.L.J. 819=A.W.N. 1906, 310.

See EQUITY OF REDEMPTION, 5 B.L.R. 460 Note.

See HINDU LAW—DEBTS, 4 N.W.P. 110.

Of joint family property from the Manager must prove necessity for the sale—See HINDU LAW—JOINT FAMILY, 3 Bom. L.R. 243.

Purchase of undivided share of specific family property—Right of purchaser to sue for partition—See HINDU LAW—PARTITION, 15 C.P.L.R. 156.

See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 3 N.W.P. 207.

No saleable interest in judgment-debtor at time of sale—Right of purchaser to sue for purchase money—See RIGHT OF SUIT—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE, 12 C.P.L.R. 49.

Purchase without notice.

(1)—The plea of purchase without notice though it may be good against an equitable claim is no defence against a legal claim. AMIRBIBI v. ABDUL, 3 Bom. L.R. 658.

Purdanashin Lady.

See PARDANASHIN WOMAN.

Purdanashin Woman.

See PARDANASHIN WOMAN.

Purohit.

See JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS, 7 M. 424.

Suit to establish exclusive right to receive fees paid to—Necessity for proof of contract or usage—See RIGHT OF SUIT—OFFICE OR EMOLUMENT, SUITS RELATING TO, 2 M.H.C. 330.

Putni.

(1)—Putni tenure—Purchase at sale for arrears of rent—Notice to darpatnidar annulling darpatni—Darpatnidar a Hindu lady—Her refusal to give up darpatni—Suit by purchaser for possession and mesne profits—Lady's death during litigation—Substitution of her sons as defendants—Mesne profits Son's liability to what extent limited to assets received from lady up to lady's death—Personal liability for subsequent mesne profits—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 167.- The plaintiff purchased a patni tenure at a sale for arrears of rent and served a notice under s. 167 of the Bengal Tenancy Act on one R, the daughter and heir of the original darpatnidar, annulling the darpatni tenure and requesting her to give up possession. She refused to give up possession and the plaintiff brought this suit for recovery of possession and mesne profits. R died during the litigation and her sons were made defendants in the suit:—Held, that R's failure to deliver possession to the plaintiff was a personal tortious act on her part, which rendered her personally liable to an action for mesne profits or damages, and not an act which can be regarded as one done in the interests of the family estate, and that, therefore, her sons would be liable for mesne profits which had accrued prior to her death, to the extent only of her assets which had come into their hands at her death, and that, for the mesne profits subsequent to her death, they would be liable personally. NAFAR CHANDRA PAL v. KAMINI KUMAR LAHIRI, 16 Ind. Cas. 205.

Putnidar.

See PUTNIDAR.

Putni Taluk.

See PUTNI TALUK.

Putni Tenure.

See PUTNI TENURE.

"Putra Poutradi Krame,"

See HINDU LAW—WILL, 7 C. 304=8 I. A. 46=10 C.L.R. 349.

Malik—Meaning of—See HINDU LAW—WILL, 24 C. 834, P. C.=24 I. A. 76=1 C.W.N. 387, 20 C. 906.

"Putra Poutradi Santan."

Meaning of—See DEED—CONSTRUCTION OF DEEDS, 7 C.L.J. 291.

"Putra Poutra Paryantam."

See HINDU LAW—WIDOW, 7 M. 387.

Putteedaree Village.

(1)-Imperfect putteedaree village, full rights of proprietor in his dwelling house in—Malik kubza, residence of, following tenure of land.—A proprietor in an imperfect puttidaree village, who possesses a residence in it, has a full right of property in that dwelling house although some of the village lands and the unoccupied parts of the abadi and the portions of the abadi in which the cultivators reside remain joint. In this respect, he is in no different position from that of a malik kubza whose dwelling house always follows the tenure of his land. KIRPAL SINGH v. KESREE, 67 P R. 1869. [R., 11 P. R. 1879.]

Putteedaree Village—concluded.

Pyatpaing.

(1)—Certificate of report of transfer of interest in a revenue holding—Revenue Register IX, foil and counterfoil.—The foil commonly known as pyatpaing is not admissible in evidence to prove the report. It is merely a statement in writing made by the thugyi that a report of sale had been made to him by the parties. It is not direct evidence that a report had been made. It can only prove that the thugyi stated that a report had been made, and the fact that the thugyi made such a statement out of Court is not admissible. The counterfoil of Revenue Register IX ought to be signed by the parties or at least by the seller. If so signed it is itself the report, and is admissible in evidence. MAUNG CHEIK v. MAUNG THA HMAT, 1 L.B R. 260. [R., 4 L.B.R. 231, 5 L.B R. 40, L.B.R. 1905—1906, 250.]

Admissibility of, in evidence—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, ss. 157, 159, and 160, 3 L.B.R. 250.

Meaning of—See GIFT, 14 Bur. L.R. 30.

Pykes.

Occupancy right in Assam — Pykes, their rights and privileges—See RIGHT OF OCCUPANCY—GENERAL, 15 C. 100.

Quarrel.

Defamation — Use of abusive words in a quarrel—No intention to injure reputation or character—Not actionable—See DEFAMATION, 10 M.L.J. 83.

Quarry.

(1)—Slate quarries, grant of—Quarrying for building materials, whether infringement of grant.—A peculiar lease of slate quarries granted by the Raja of C to W.M. which was subsequently assigned to T by the lessee was as follows. "...I...Raja of C...do hereby make over to W.M. on lease the good will, i.e., to have and to hold all the slate quarries within my territory at any place within a distance of 15 miles from the station of D that may now exist or may hereafter exist or be discovered within the abovementioned distance of the station." Held, (a) that the lease deed did not purport to grant the soil over that vast extent of territory, not did it even purport to grant all the slate which might be found under the soil. (b) That the effect of such grant was merely to grant the right of working such quarries (which then existed or which might be afterwards discovered) as produced sel (roofing slate of the best description) and chokka (heavier than cel but used for roofing purposes), and that the right conferred upon the grantees was of this kind, that if any person should open a quarry for the purpose of working slates of the above description, it was open to them to come to the Courts and restrain him, such person being also liable to damages if he went on after notice. (c) That such lease did not prevent any person from quarrying bona fide for the purpose of extracting building materials (like nila-pather) i.e., blue clay stone as to which there might be very considerable doubt whether any of the materials extracted were capable of being converted into slabs. TURTON v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 1 P.R. 1874, P.C. on appeal from, 21 P.R. 1872.

Quarry—continued.

(2)—Lessee of quarries under independent State—Subsequent cession of territory—Reservation of lessee's rights—Construction of lease—Estoppel—Injunction.—Suit against the Secretary of State for India in Council for damages, upon a cause of action to the effect that the defendant, without leave and license of the plaintiff, took away and converted to his own use, in and during the years 1865 to 1866, slate from the quarries within a radius of 15 miles from the station of Dalhousie, which quarries had been leased to plaintiff by the proprietor, the Rajah of Chumba, under a lease by which, in consideration of Rs. 1,000 per annum the Rajah made over to plaintiff, for a term of years, the right to have and hold all the slate quarries within his territory at any place within a distance of 15 miles from Dalhousie. Defendant contended that he had taken nothing that was "slate" within the meaning of the plaintiff's lease, that what had been taken was blue-clay slate, while the terms as used in the lease comprehended only the right to quarry roofing slate and slab slate. It was also contended that, as the land where the alleged wrongful act had been done, i.e., the Balum Hill, had been ceded to the British Government in 1847 by the separate and independent State of Chumba, the defendant was not responsible for any act done directly in pursuance of the terms of the cession of territory. From the correspondence which preceded the cession of territory, it appeared that, while on the one hand, the lease to the plaintiff was notified to Government, the latter had also left to them the right to quarry slate within the area ceded. Held, as to the question of jurisdiction, that the transferring State having only made the broad proposition that the purchasing State was to be allowed to take slate of some kind from Balum without accurately separating what was intended from the material referred to in the lease to the plaintiff which the transferring state required to be recognised, the purchasing Government was liable to be sued in a Civil Court upon alleged breach of the rights, secured or intended so to be. Held on the construction of the lease, that the vernacular term for slate referred to therein meant only roofing and slab slate and that the plaintiff had no exclusive right to the blue clay slate, which was the sort taken by Government. It appeared that whilst the blue clay slate was being excavated under the orders of Government for building, road-making and other purposes, the plaintiff did not raise any objection or make any complaint of which official notice could be taken. Held, that this circumstance estopped him from claiming compensation. Held also that, inasmuch as the Government were entitled to take blue-clay slate, the incidental extraction of roofing slates and slab slates in the course of quarrying for blue clay slate would not, under the circumstances, render Government liable to compensation. An assignee of the plaintiff's rights had also sued the Government in respect of a similar infringement and obtained an injunction against them. Held that the injunction should be maintained, as any further excavation by Government would, as they went further down, interfere with the right of the assignee to quarry roofing and slab slates. MCGUFFIN v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 21 P.R. 1872. [Affirmed on appeal, 1 P.R. 1874, P.C.]

Quarry—concluded.

Proper methods of assessment of compensation under Land Acquisition Act—Workmen employed on the land, not persons interested therein—See ACT X OF 1870, s. 42, 16 M. 369, P.C.=20 I.A. 80.

Permission to quarry—Agreement—License—Renewal—Payment of rent—Construction of agreement—See CONTRACT—CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACTS, 13 B. 630.

Lease by widow—Quarries worked by State Railway—See HINDU LAW—REVERSIONERS, 22 M. 126=9 M.L.J. 19.

Lease for quarrying lime stone—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, ss. 17 and 49, 7 O.C. 251.

Suit for rent of stone quarry—See RENT, SUIT FOR, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 61=11 W.R. 400.

Quarterly Returns.

This circular requests Judges to take care that cases in which judgment has not been delivered are not included in returns by the inferior Courts as decided. Civ. Cir. No. 13, 20 W.R. Civ. Cir. Rules and Ords. of the H.C.p. 5.

Records of Subordinate Courts to be sent to Judges quarterly, except in contested cases which are to be forwarded monthly. Civ. Cir. No. 16, 20 W.R. Rules and Ords. of the H. C., p. 8.

This circular again enjoins on District Judges the necessity of showing in Quarterly Returns the number of days devoted to civil work during quarter. Civ. Cir, O. No. 19, 20 W.R. Rules and Ors. of the H C. p. 25.

This circular directs that the Civil and Criminal Statements for the quarter from April to June 1870 be not submitted till new forms of returns are supplied. Civ. Cir. No. 15, dated 13th June, 1870 13 W.R. Civ. Cir. 18.

Quarterly Returns—concluded.

This circular lays down new forms of Quarterly Returns of Civil and Criminal business, and prescribes rules for their preparation. Civ. Cir No. 31 dated 4th November, 1870, 14 W R Civ. Cir. 16.

This circular circulates letter to the Superintendent of Stationery regarding the supply of slip forms for Quarterly Returns prescribed by Circular No 31, dated 4th November last. Civ Cir. No. 3816 dated 17th December, 1870, 14 W R. Civ. Cir. 43.

This circular gives further instruction in respect to the Forms A, B, and C of the quarterly returns of Civil Work Civ. Cir. No. 28 dated 12th October, 1871, 16 W.R. Civ. Cir. 11.

This circular gives instructions as to the preparation of Statements A, B, and C, prescribed by Circular No. 31, dated 4th November 1870, laying down new quarterly returns Civ. Cir. No. 25 dated 12th August 1871, 16 W.R. Civ. Cir. 8.

Cases struck off on plaintiff's default entered as "otherwise disposed of" in quarterly review. 25 W.R.H.C. Rules General letter No. 4, dated 17th February 1876, p.6.

This circular deals with Amended Quarterly Return No. X. Rev. Cir. No 2. 25 W.R. Rev. Cir. 21.

This circular explains how cols. 16 and 18 of Return No. XVI are to be filled up. Rev. Cir No. 7, 23 W.R. Rev. Cir. p. 17.

This circular directs discontinuance of Quarterly Returns prescribed by Circular Order No. 12, dated 8th April, 1872, but extends the instructions of that Circular Order to the Annual Statements Civ. Cir. Memo. No. 2, 23 W R. Rules and Ords. of the H.C p. 3.

This circular directs that Sessions Judges and Magistrates are to submit their Quarterly Criminal Returns D and E in duplicate. Crim. Cir. Memo No. 4, 20 W R. Rules and Ors. of the H C. p. 3.

Quarterly Statements.

This circular gives instructions as to the preparation of revised forms of Quarterly Statements D and E. Crim. Cir. Or. No. 11, 20 W R. Rules and Ors. of the H.C. p. 18.

This circular gives instructions to obviate discrepancies between the Quarterly Statements of Land Revenue Receipts and Return No. 10. Rev. Cir No. 5, 20 W R. Rev. Cir. p. 5.

This circular issues instructions for the preparation of the Quarterly Statements A and B, and the Annual Statement No. 6. Civ. Cir. No. 25 of 30 December 1873, 21 W.R.H. C. Rul. & Or. 2.

This circular cancels paras. 1 to 6 of Circular No. 31 of 4th November 1870, and prescribes revised forms of Quarterly Statements A. B. and C. Civ Cir. No. 2 of 26th January 1874, 21 W. R. H. C. Rules and Ors. 5.

Quarterly Statements—concluded.

This circular circulates letter regarding the filling-up of columns "on trial" and "otherwise" under the head "suits disposed of" in Quarterly Statement A. Civ Cir. Memo. No. 10 dated 5th May 1874, 21 W. R. H. C. Rules & Ors. 24.

This circular cancels Circular Order No. 15, dated 13th June 1870, and requests that the Civil Statements for the 2nd Quarter of 1870 be submitted in the old forms. Civ. Cir. No. 22, dated 4th August 1870, 14 W. R. Civ. Cir .9.

This circular deals with discrepancies as to cases transferred in Quarterly Statements A and B. Civ. Cir. Or. No. 10, 24 W.R. Rules & Ors. of the H.C. p. 12.

This Circular directs that Judges and Magistrates are to submit Quarterly Statements D and E separately to High Court. 25 W.R.H.C. Rules. General letter No. 2 dated 25th March 1876, p 7.

This rule deals with the change in Quarterly Statement D. Part II. 25 W. R. H. C. Rules General letter, No. 1, dated 9th March, 1876, p. 7.

This circular calls for statement showing the number of days given to Civil and Criminal work and the number of Sessions trials and appeals heard by the Judge and Additional Judge in 1873. Civ. and Criminal Memo. No. 19 dated 21st August 1874, 22 W. R. Civ. and Criminal 10.

This circular forwards copy of letter to Superintendent of Stationery regarding alteration in last column of Quarterly Statements A, B and C, Civ. Cir Memo. No. 17 dated 14th July 1874, 22 W R. Civ. Cir. 7.

This circular circulates letter showing how columns 2 and 3, Part II of Quarterly Statement D, should be filled up. Crim. Cir. Memo, No 3 dated 3rd June 1874, 22 W. R. Civ. Cir. p. 1.

Queen.

Queen's proclamation of 1st November 1858 —See BURDEN OF PROOF—GENERAL, A.W. N. 1897, 129.

Queen in Council, Appeals to.

See ACT II OF 1863.

See APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL.

See PRIVY COUNCIL, PRACTICE OF.

Question of Fact.

See APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL.

See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

See PRIVY COUNCIL, PRACTICE OF.

See REVISION.

See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL.

(1)—Family custom—Question of fact.—The Question whether a plaintiff, as a female, is excluded from inheriting by the custom of the family, is substantially one of fact. BURJORE AND BHAWANI PERSHAD v. BHAGANA, 10 C. 557, P.C.=11 I.A. 7=4 Sar. 498.

Question of Fact—concluded.

(2)—Construction of document.—The construction of the document is a mixed question of law and fact. YUSAF v. LEKH RAM, P.L.R. 1900, p. 462.

The question whether a stipulation to pay compound interest can be regarded as a penalty is a—rather than of law—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 74, 1 N.L.R. 9.

Question of fact, implied prohibition to adopt is not a—See HINDU LAW—ADOPTION, 1 Bom. L.R. 420=23 B. 789.

Acquiescence is not—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—NATURE OF TENANCY, 1 Bom. L.R. 400.

Findings of Lower Courts on—See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 9 M. I.A. 456.

See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT—AUTHORITY OF AGENTS, 3 B.L.R.A.C. 273=12 W.R. 130.

See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL—GROUNDS OF APPEAL, 8 W.R 311.

See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL—PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE IN SPECIAL APPEAL, A.W.N. 1887, 183.

Question of Law.

See APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL.

See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

See PRIVY COUNCIL, PRACTICE OF.

See REFERENCE.

See REVISION.

See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL.

(1)—Construction of document.—The construction of the document is a mixed question of law and fact. YUSAF v. LEKH RAM, P.L.R. 1900, p. 462.

(2)—Inference to be drawn from documents, question of law.—The inference to be drawn from the construction of a document is a question of law, and the High Court in second appeal can interfere with the construction put upon it by the lower Courts. CHOCKALINGAM PILLAI v. MAYANDI CHETTIAR, 19 M 485=6 M.L J. 247. [Reversed on appeal to the Privy Council, 27 M. 291, P.C.]

(3)—Construction—Pottah—Practice of High Court.—The construction of a pottah is according to the practice of the High Court, a question of Law. In construing a pottah, the Court would however look to the surrounding circumstances, one of the surrounding circumstances being the nature of the possession given by the grantor and accepted by the grantee. JANOKEE NATH DUTT v. MOULVIE MAHOMED ISRAIL, 22 W.R. 285.

(4)—Special appeal—Question of law.—An objection on a question of law might properly be taken at any time, and for the first time even in special appeal. BYJNATH PERSHAD v. KOPILMON SINGH, 24 W.R. 95.

Question of Law—concluded.

(5)—Question of law—Decision of High Court—Authority.—The decision of the High Court on a question of law is clearly conclusive as regards that particular question, so far as any subordinate Court is concerned. GREEDHAREE SINGH v. MUSSAMUT FOOLGHUREE KOOER, 24 W. R. 173.

(6)—Second appeal—Sufficiency of evidence to support given conclusion of fact—Question of law.—It is a question of law for the High Court to determine on second appeal, whether there is evidence before it, on which a Court could properly arrive at any given conclusion of fact. BIDHUMUKHI DABIA CHOWDHRAIN v. KEFYUTULLAH, 12 C. 93. [F., L B. R. 1893—1900, 543.]

Whether services are towage or salvage is a, —See ADMIRALTY, 1 Bom. L. R. 570.

See APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL—CASES WHERE APPEALS LIE OR NOT, 11 C. 740.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 113, O. XLVI, r. 1, 93 P.L.R. 1902.

See CUSTOMS—PUNJAB—ALIENATION, 61 P.L.R. 1901.

See PRE-EMPTION—RIGHT TO PRE-EMPT, 36 P.R. 1889.

See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT—AUTHORITY OF AGENTS, 3 B.L.R.A.C. 273=12 W.R 130.

See SMALL CAUSE COURT, PRESIDENCY TOWNS, JURISDICTION OF—PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 4 B.H.C. O.C. 129.

See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL—GROUNDS OF APPEAL 21 B. 91.

Quia timet action.

(1)—Quia timet action—Necessary ingredients.—There are two necessary ingredients for a quia timet action. There must, if no actual damage is proved, be proof of imminent danger and there must also be proof that the apprehended damage will be very substantial or irreparable. GANGABAI v. PURSHOTUM, 9 Bom. L.R. 912=32 B. 146.

Rabid Animal.

(1)—Animal—Dog—Knowledge of master that his dog has become mad—Proof of such knowledge necessary—Negligence.—If the owner of a dog knows that it is mad and omits to tie up or destroy it, and the dog bites another man's cow and the cow dies of hydrophobia in consequence, the owner of the dog would probably be held liable for the damage done. It is essential in cases of this kind for the plaintiff to show that the damage done was caused or rendered possible by the defendant's negligence. U KYAW MYA v. MI WIN THANDA, 8 Ind. Cas. 984. (U.B. R. 1902—1903, Tort 1, F.)

Rack Rent.

And net produce, relation between—See MESNE PROFITS—MODE OF ASSESSMENT, 12 C.W.N. 650=35 C. 1000.

Raffle.

(1)—Act XXI of 1848, s. 3—A promissory note to pay money to the highest winner.—S. 3 of Act XXI of 1848, which must be deemed to be in force in the Punjab by virtue of the Rules for the administration of justice in the Punjab, ran as follows:—"An agreement to deliver goods on an event or contingency relative or applicable to the drawing of a number or figure is void." The question was whether a raffle comes within this definition. A raffle is conducted in the following manner. The value of the property raffled is divided into a number of shares and a number of persons purchase one or more of the shares. For every share, certain throws with the dice are allowed and the person throwing highest number is declared the owner of the property. Held (1) that, as the effect of the contract was that the property should go to some one whose right to the property was contingent on his throwing the highest number, it comes within s. 3 of the above Act, and is therefore illegal, and a suit to recover money due under a contract tainted with such illegality cannot lie. ORAM v. HAWKES, 16 P.R. 1868.

Railway.

See RAILWAY COMPANY.

Railway Act (Amendment Act).

See ACT XXV OF 1871.

Railway Company.

See ACT IX OF 1890.

(1)—No obligation to carry passenger safely—Suit for damages against Railway Company—Onus—Not bound to examine every Parcel - Not common carriers of passengers.—There is no obligation on a Railway Company to carry a passenger safely. They are only legally bound to carry him with reasonable care and diligence. [Collet v. London and North-Western Railway Company, 16 Q B. 985 (1851), Expl.]. In a claim for damages, for loss of a son who helped his father and whose death was caused by an explosion in a railway carriage, the burden of proving, that the accident was due to a want of reasonable care and diligence on the part of the Railway Company, is on the plaintiff. Railway servants are not bound to examine every parcel carried by a passenger. Railway Companies are not common carriers of passengers, and it is not for them to prove, beyond doubt, that they are not responsible for the accident. THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY v. KALI DAS MUKERJEE, 28 C. 401, P.C. = 28 I A. 144 = 5 C.W.N. 449 = 3 Bom.L R. 293 = 11 M.L J. 156 = 8 Sar. 33.

(2)—Negligence—Railway Company liable for negligence if the door of a carriage is open—Breach of statutory duty—Railway Company bound to carry passengers inside the carriage—Putting an arm on the widow sill of a carriage amounts to contributory negligence.—If the door of a carriage of the railway company is open, it is evidence of negligence on the part of the Company, but not conclusive proof of it.

Railway Company—continued.

Where there is a statutory obligation, any breach of that which causes an accident is conclusive against the defendant, apart from special proof of negligence But the breach of the duty must in itself be the cause of the accident, and the rule does not extend so far as to exclude the defence of contributory negligence. A Railway Company contracts to carry passengers inside and not outside their carriages. A passenger, who puts any part of his person outside the carriage of a Railway Company in which he is travelling and receives an injury to the part so extruded, is guilty not only of negligence by putting himself outside the carriage, but of contributory negligence which disentitles him to recover against the Company, provided that, no matter what negligence the Company has been guilty of, that could not have caused the passenger any injury so long as he remained inside the carriage. DULLABHJI S. SANGHANI v. G. I. P. RY. CO. AND ANNA RAMA v. THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULAR RAILWAY COMPANY, 12 Bom. L. R. 73 = 5 Ind. Cas. 676.

(3)—Death from accident caused by negligence of fellow servant—Company's liability.—Per Stuart, C. J.—Where an injury is occasioned to any one by the negligence of another, if the person injured seeks to charge with its consequences any other than him who actually caused the damage, it lies on the person injured to shew that the circumstances were such as to make some other person responsible. In general, it is sufficient for this purpose to show that the person whose neglect caused injury was, at the time when it was occasioned, acting not on his own account, but in the course of his employment as a servant in the business of a master, and that the damage resulted from the servant so employed not having conducted his master's business with due care. In such a case, the maxims respondeat superior and qui facit per alium facit per se apply, and the master is responsible But the same principles do not apply to the case of a workman injured by the want of care of a fellow workman engaged together in the same work. Per Turner, J.—It is an established principle of construction that contracts are not to be extended beyond the intention of the parties. A free pass which entitles the holder, "to pass free by any of the Company's trains subject to the same rules and regulations as other passengers" cannot be construed as an undertaking on the part of the Railway Company to carry the holder on the same terms and conditions as other passengers. It is intended to impose an obligation on the passenger and not on the carrier. In the absence of evidence to show that the master has failed to discharge his duty to provide competent workmen and fit tackle and machinery, the doctrine of common employment as established by the English and American Courts may be applied to restrict the employer's liability as a rule of 'justice,' equity and good conscience. Where a platelayer employed by a Railway Company, after finishing his work for the day, was returning to his headquarters on a free service pass, and was killed by an accident due to the negligence of one of the engine drivers, held, per Curiam, that if the deceased was not engaged in duty at the time of the accident, but was being conveyed gratuitously, gross negligence on the part of the company's servants would render it liable for the injury which caused the death of the passenger. Per Turner, J.—The engine-driver was a fellow-servant engaged in a common work and the deceased at the time of the accident was a servant of the Company: otherwise, the deceased would be a mere trespasser, and no claim could be brought against the Company by the heir or executor. Per Stuart, C.J.—As the deceased, at the time of the accident, was neither engaged in any kind of actual work on the line which brought him into operative contract with the engine-driver nor travelling under any engagement, the maxim respondeat superior applied whether the Company was acting per alium or per se. There must be some limit to the expression "common work of the Company." MARY ANNE TURNER v. SCINDE PUNJAB AND DELHI RAILWAY COMPANY, 1 A.L.J. 653.

Railway Company—continued.

(4)—Carriers—Breach of contract to convey passengers—Damages — Obligation of railway company regarding safe carriage of passengers —Fire in a train—Presumption—Onus.—A carrier, though he does not warrant the safety of his passengers, impliedly undertakes to provide for the safe conveyance, so far as human care and foresight can go. Failure to exercise the same is a breach of the implied contract. In such a case, the carrier will be liable for damages for such failure. In providing for the safety of their passengers, it is the duty of a Railway Company to show, at the very least, such a degree of care, as may reasonably be required from them, considering all the circumstances of the case. The Company must show that the accident (if any), was one not preventible by any care or skill. (Scott v. London Dock Co., 3 H. and C. 596 (1865), Kerney v. London, Brighton and South Coast Railway, 6 Q.B. 759 (1871), Daniel v. Metropolitan Railway Co., 5 E. and I. Ap. 45 (1871), R.; Welfare v. London and Brighton Railway Company, 4 Q.B. 693 (1869), D.) A fire in a train is not an ordinary circumstance. When it is the result of an explosion of a large quantity of fire-works, it raises a presumption of possible negligence on the part of the Company. If from explosion of fire-works in a passenger's compartment, loss of life and damages have resulted, it is incumbent on the Railway Company to show that they exercised every reasonable care and precaution to prevent the conveyance of fire-works in such a way, and not upon the plaintiff to show that they did not. (Byrne v. Boadle, 2 H. and C. 772 (1863), Daniel v. Metropolitan Company, 5 E. and I. Ap. 45 (1871), Cotton v. Wood, 8 C.B N.S. 568 (1860), Foulkes v. Metropolitan Railway Co., 5 C.P.D. 157 (1880), R.) THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY CO. v. KALLY DASS MOOKERJEE, 26 C. 465=3 C. W. N. 781.

Railway Company—continued.

[Affirmed on appeal, 28 C. 401, P C.=28 I.A. 144=5 C.W N. 449=11 M.L.J 156=3 Bom. L.R. 293; R., U.B R. 1897—1901, Vol. II, 337.]

(5)—Railway Company—Statutory powers—Fire caused by sparks from engine—Suit for damages—Proof of negligence—Liability of the Company—Damage caused by spark from engine —Negligence what amounts to—Liability for negligence.—Plaintiff was the owner of a bungalow and dwelling house, with stables and outhouses thereto adjoining at Kharmatta, and the defendant, the East Indian Railway Company, were possessed, and had the care and management of, a line of railway, called the Chord line, running near the said bungalow and premises, with banks belonging thereto and forming part of the said railway. The defendant Company were incorporated under 12 and 13 Vic. Ch. XCIII, for the purpose of making, constructing, working and maintaining the East Indian Company, "including all necessary accessory or convenient extensions, branches, stocks and works as might be agreed upon by the Railway Company and the East India Company, and also of doing and performing all such matters and things necessary or convenient for carrying into effect the object and purpose aforesaid;" and by an agreement of 17th August, 1849 entered into under that Statute between the East Indian Company and the Railway Company, the Railway Company were authorized and directed to make and maintain such stations, offices, machinery and other works or conveniences (connected with the making, maintaining and working the railways) as might be deemed necessary and expedient by the East India Company and "to provide a good and sufficient working stock of engines, carriages and other plant and machinery for working the said railway." The plaintiff sued the Railway Company for damages occasioned by a fire caused by a spark from one of the engines of the Company and in the plaint be alleged that by the negligence and improper conduct of the defendant and want of due care and management of the said line of railway, banks and engines, the dry grass which was allowed and permitted to be and remain upon the railway and bank became and was ignited by sparks of fire emitted from a locomotive engine of the defendant which was driven along the line of railway near to the plaintiff's bungalow and premises without proper precautions being taken to prevent the expulsion of such sparks and fire from the engine. Held that, as the defendant Company were empowered by statute to run locomotive engines on the line of the railway in question, they were not responsible for the consequences of the fire, unless they were proved to have been guilty of negligence. When the Legislature has sanctioned the use of a particular means for a given purpose, the sanction carries with it this consequence, that the use of the means itself for that purpose (provided every precaution which the nature of the case suggests has been observed) is not an act for which an action lies, independent of negligence. [R., 2 Bom.

Railway Company—continued.

L R. 357.] The Railway Company, in the construction of their engines are not only bound to employ all due care, and all due skill, for the prevention of mischief accruing to the property of others, by the emission of sparks or any other cause, but they are bound to avail themselves of all the discoveries which science had put within their reach for that purpose, provided they are such as under the circumstances, it is reasonable to require the Company to adopt But they are not bound to use every possible precaution which the highest scientific skill (according to speculative evidence) might have suggested. The omission of means to prevent the emission of sparks from the engines is no negligence on the part of the Company where the means suggested are such as would impede the engines and would not be effectual for the object. The Company are also bound to use due care in keeping the line of railway and the land belonging to them on each side of it in a proper state. HALFORD v. THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY, 14 B.L. R. 1.

(6)—Negligence—Liability for injury—Act XVIII of 1854, s. 11.—A railway company is liable for injury sustained by goods committed to their care, if they have been guilty of gross negligence. ASSAM TEA COMPANY v. EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY, Bourke O.C. 39.

(7)—Railway Company's control over passenger's luggage.—A Railway Company cannot plead that they have no control over the luggage carried by their passengers. THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY CO v. KALLY DASS MOOKERJEE, 26 C. 465=3 C.W.N. 781. [Affirmed on appeal, 28 C. 401=5 C.W.N. 449, P.C.=11 M.L.J. 156 =3 Bom. L.R. 293.]

(8)—Railway Company—Negligence—Duty of the Company towards the goods consigned—Duty to take all care of the goods—Duty to protect goods when the risks occur — Railways Act, ss. 72, 76—Carriers Act (III of 1865), s 9—Contract Act, ss. 151, 152, 161—Burden of proof.—The plaintiff consigned 90 bales of cotton at Malkapur, a station on the defendant company's line of railway, for carriage to Bombay. Those bales were put by the defendant company's men in a waggon which was attached to a goods train. At Varangaum, an intermediate station, the waggon was found to be on fire. It was detached and put on a siding, where the doors were opened, and 39 bales were extracted from it. The remaining 72 bales in the waggon continued burning for some hours till they were completely destroyed. The goods train proceeded on its onward journey to Bhusawal. In the meanwhile, the Varangaum Station Master telegraphed to the Bhusawal Station Master (whose station was eight miles ahead) for a 'fire pipe' but he inquired in reply whether any water was available near the waggon. The Varangaum Station Master wired back saying that there was a well about 250 yards from the waggon and that the water was 30 or 40 feet deep. The Bhusawal Station Master replied that it was useless to send the fire engine as it would not draw water at that depth. It was proved that there were at Bhusawal at the time duplicate engines with steam up and a hose 250 feet in length. It also appeared that at Varangaum there was a well only 53 feet from the nearest railway siding; so that if the engine and the hose had been sent from Bhusawal, the fire would have been put out. The Bhusawal Station Master never considered the question of sending an engine for the burning waggon and did not consult the engine driver of the goods train about it. In a suit by the plaintiff to recover the value of the cotton-bales: Held, that the defendant company was liable to pay damages which ensued owing to its negligence, for it failed to establish that it took the care a reasonable man would have taken in trying to save his own goods, inasmuch as (1) the Varangaum Station Master misled the Bhusawal Station Master as to the distance and so caused that officer to refuse his request for the appliances, and (2) the Bhusawal Station Master was himself negligent and but for his negligence an engine and appliance might have beed gone at Varangaum with the help of which much of the loss would have been avoided. The obligation of a railway company towards the consignor of goods includes not only the duty of taking all reasonable precautions to obviate risks, but the duty of taking all proper measures for the protection of the goods when the risk has actually occurred. S. 76, Railways Act, does not increase the onus of proof laid upon the railway company by s. 151, Contract Act. LAKHICHAND v. GREAT INDIAN PENINSULAR RAILWAY, 14 Bom. L.R. 165=14 Ind. Cas. 793=37 B 1.

Railway Company—continued.

(9)—Railway Company—Carrier—Bailee—Transport of goods—Delivery—Loss—Damage—Acceptance, whether precludes claim for damages.—When goods have been sent for carriage by railway, the mere fact that the consignee has accepted delivery and granted a clear receipt does not extinguish his right to compensation, if he proves that the goods were lost in part or damaged while in the custody of the Company. EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY v. SISPAL LAL, 14 C L.J. 472=16 C.W N. 329=12 Ind. Cas. 596=39 C. 311.

(10) Railway Act—Loss of silver bars in transmission—Declaration, nature of—Liability of Company—Railway Companies—Their liability.—If a person transmitting valuable goods by Railway, desires to fix the Company with liability for loss or injury to the goods, he must make the declaration in such a manner that it may be understood that he invited the Company to an engagement to take the special risk and is willing to pay the increased charge. It is not sufficient that the consignor gives an account to the Company of the quantity and description of the goods he delivers for carriage. If other circumstances entitling the sender to recover were proved, the waiver on the part of the Company to demand the extra charge would not disentitle him. [F., 19 B. 165.]

Railway Company—continued.

Railway companies in respect of their liability as carriers are placed on a different footing from other common carriers. VENKATACHALA v. SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY CO., 5 M. 208.

(11)—Consignee's claim—Carrier—Liability.—Where the consignees refused to take delivery of two bundles of cow-hides carried by the Railway Company on the ground of shortness in the number of pieces, and there was no evidence that the bundles had been broken, or the hides counted by pieces, the Railway Company was declared not to be liable. MESSRS. F. SCHLAEPFER PUTZ AND CO. v THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY, 21 W.R 380.

(12)—Consignment—Consignor's agent changing the condition in which the consignment was originally agreed to be sent—Consignee, ignorant of the changed condition, refusing to take delivery of the consignment as his—Right of suit.—Plaintiff's agent A handed in a consignment of 250 bags of cocoanuts at Delta Gaunavaram to be forwarded to the plaintiff at Sholapur. When the cocoanuts were loaded in the railway waggon, N, the agent of A, removed the gunny-bags and loaded the cocoanuts loose in one waggon. The railway receipt as well as the label on the waggon described the consignment as 250 bags of cocoanuts. When the consignment reached its destination, plaintiffs declined to take its delivery on the ground that the consignment was not theirs since it was not contained in 250 bags as described in the receipt. The Railway Company then sold the cocoanuts to meet wharfage, freight, etc. Plaintiffs thereupon sued the Railway Company for recovering the damages sustained by them on account of the non-delivery of the consignment. Held, (1) that the contract was between N and the Company, and assuming that it was a term of it that the goods should be carried in bags and delivered to the plaintiffs, N himself by his action modified that term, and as between him and the Company, he cannot hold the latter liable for a breach of it: (2) that so far as the plaintiffs were concerned the Company never entered into any contract with them, and the plaintiffs could not sue them, whatever cause of action they might have against their agent. GREAT INDIAN PENINSULAR RAILWAY v. SAHEBRAM, 5 Bom. L.R. 953.

(13)—Consignment—Diversion of consignment while en route—Delivery to the original consignee—Liability of the Company.—At Sakrigali Ghat station on the East India Railway, G booked a consignment addressed to R, at Kamti on the Bengal Nagpur Railway. While the consignment was en route to Kamti, G requested the railway servants at Sakrigali Ghat station to direct the consignment to plaintiff at Nargaon station. This diversion was duly communicated to the station-master at Kamti, who in spite of the instructions delivered the consignment to R. The plaintiff sued the East India

Railway Company—continued.

Railway for damages consequent upon non-delivery of consignment to him: Held, (1) that the Railway Company was liable in damages: the case was a simple case of breach of contract—the defendant Company contracted to carry the goods and deliver them at Nargaon and failed to give such delivery to the plaintiff: (2) that the liability of the Railway Company was not affected by the fact that the station-master at Kamti acted wrongly in disregarding the instructions which he received from Sakrigali Ghat station. CHHAGANLAL v. EAST INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY, 5 Bom. L.R. 531=27 B. 595.

(14) Contract with Railway Company—Delivery, at a station on another Railway—Agency.—A contract by a Railway Company to take a consignment of goods and deliver them at a station on some other Railway does not in itself constitute the former company an agent for the latter. KALU RAM MAIGRAJ v. THE MADRAS RAILWAY COMPANY, 3 M. 240. [F., 29 A. 228=4 A.L.J. 80=A.W.N. 1907, 21=2 M.L.T. 42; R, 3 Bom. L.R. 260.]

(15)—Contract—Railway receipt—Carrier—Jus tertii.—Suit against a Railway Company for the value of goods consigned to plaintiff, which defendants had received for delivery to plaintiff, according to a railway receipt, but which they had delivered to T and Co. Held that the handing over by the consignors of the railway receipt to plaintiff passed the right of possession and property to plaintiff who had a substantial interest in the consignment, and that the authority given to him by the consignor was coupled with an interest which neither they nor the defendants could revoke; and as defendants had no notice of T and Co.'s equitable title, they were not justified in delivering to them and were liable for the wrongful delivery. EAGLETON v. THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY, 8 B.L.R. 581=17 W.R. 532.

(16)—Receipt note by company—Conditions—Non-compliance — Ignorance no excuse.—The receipt note given by a railway company is a contract between the company and the consignor and contains the conditions on which the goods are to be delivered to and accepted by the Railway for carriage. Where a person delivers the goods for carriage under the terms of the note, he could not claim exemption from those terms on the ground that he omitted to inform himself of the same or that he did not sign the note. BEAN v. SANDYS, 99 P.R. 1885. (94 P. R. 1883, Cited.)

(17)—Railway Company—Risk note—Loss or non-delivery of goods—Liability of Company.—The Railway Company are responsible for the safe carriage of goods except so far as they have protected themselves from responsibility by the terms of the "risk note." Although the Company are protected from certain risks by the risk note, it does not absolve them from all liability or enable them to impose on the consignor the burthen of proving that the loss or non-delivery of the goods was caused by some default (not covered by the Risk Note) for which the Company are liable. SUNTOKH RAI v. EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY. 2 Agra 200. [D., 18 A. 42=A.W.N. 1895, 150]

Railway Company—continued.

(18)—Contract to carry goods—Risk note by consignor, meaning of the words "before, during and after transit"—Damage beyond place for which consigned.—Plaintiff's consignor consigned cotton to be carried from Erode to Kallai by the defendant Railway Company. The goods were carried in a covered waggon, but to a station beyond its destination, where the cotton was damaged by water being poured over it to quench a fire which broke out in the waggon. The plaintiff's consignor, in a risk note which he executed to the Company, agreed to hold them free from all liability to damage to the consignment "from any cause, whatever, before, during and after transit, over the Railway." The plaintiff sued the company for compensation for the damage done to the goods Held, that the company were not liable for any damage, because the words "before, during and after transit" covered the whole period, from the time the goods were delivered to the defendants at Erode, up to the time they were delivered to the plaintiffs at Kallai. Every customer dealing with a Railway Company, whether he enquires or not, is bound not only by the ordinary route, but also by the ordinary train arrangements and hours of arrival according to which they profess to carry. ARUNACHALLAM CHETTIAR v. THE MADRAS RAILWAY COMPANY, 6 M.L.T. 292=33 M. 120=3 Ind. Cas. 931.

(19)—Terminal charges—Right to levy—Sanction—Statutes 12 and 13, Vict. Chap. LXXXIII.—S. 5 of the Act of Incorporation of the G.I.P. Railway Company (Stat. 12, 13. Vict. Chap. 83) enacts "that it shall be lawful for the Company, from time to time to enter into and conclude with the East India Company, on account of the Government of India, such contracts, etc., as the respective parties may think fit and agree upon, for making any railway, and for maintaining and working the same, and for the other objects and purposes aforesaid" (which, as shown by s. 1, include doing and performing all matters and things "necessary or convenient for carrying into effect the making, maintaining and working of the railway," and also "including any provision as to the tolls, receipts and profits thereof." In virtue of this section, the defendant Company and the East India Company entered into an agreement by which the former was empowered to make certain charges called "terminal charges." The plaintiffs objected to these charges as not within the scope of the powers conferred by the Act of Incorporation of the defendant Company. Held that the objection was ill-founded. The terminal charges in question were levied on account of carrying goods to and from the waggons, loading and unloading them on and from the waggons and for the use of the Company's premises, where the goods frequently remained for some time before they were taken away. Such charges, if not strictly perhaps "tolls" are certainly charges for performing of services, if not "necessary" at any rate "convenient for the working of the railway;" and payment for such services might be properly regarded as a source of "profit" to the Company for which the Act expressly provides. LALJIBHAI SHAMJI v. THE G. I. P. RY COMPANY, 16 B. 434, on appeal from, 15 B. 557.

Railway Company—continued.

(20) — Railway Company — "Terminal charges," meaning of—Right of G.I.P. Railway Company to levy terminal charges—Statutes 12 and 13, Vic. ch. 83—Act IX of 1890 ss. 41, 45, 46. Jurisdiction of High Court.—The expression "terminal charges" means charges for the use of goods station and for the various duties which the Railway Company, as common carriers, perform in connection with the goods consigned to them for carriage [R., 17 B. 723.] The question raised in the suit was as to the right of the defendant (the G.I.P. Railway Company) to claim what are called "terminal charges" in respect of goods carried by them upon their Railway. The plaintiffs having paid over a lakh of Rupees as such charges, now sued to recover the same from the defendants, contending that the defendants were not legally entitled to charge them, and even if they were entitled the charges were excessive. Held, dismissing the suit, that the defendants were entitled to levy such charges, subject only, as to the rates and amounts thereof, to the sanction of Government; and that the rates charged by them in the present case were not higher than the sanctioned charges. Under s. 5 of Stat. 12 and 13 Vic., Cap. 83, under which the defendant Company was incorporated, the right to take tolls, receipts and profits by the Company were made subject only to such provisions as the Company and the Government of India may agree to from time to time in reference thereto. An agreement, accordingly, was entered into by the defendant Company on the 17th August 1849, with the Government of India, by which it was agreed that, subject to the approval of the Government of India, the Company could impose upon the public using the railway such terms and levy from them such tolls and fares as their own interest or the necessity of the case should dictate. The rates originally sanctioned for the carriage of goods upon the defendant's railway having proved inadequate, the defendants approached the Government of Bombay and obtained their sanction for a certain scale of maximum tolls, terminal charges, etc. The sanction of the Local Government was sufficient, because under s. 43 of Act XVIII of 1854, the Local Government is the proper authority to sanction a tariff of charges to be made by Railway Companies within their area. Semble:—Under ss. 41, 45 and 46 of Act IX of 1890, the High Court has no jurisdiction to consider or entertain a claim relating to terminals charged by the defendants subsequently to the time at which that Acts came into operation. LALJIBHAI SHAMJI v. THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY COMPANY, 15 B. 537. [Affirmed, 16 B. 434.]

Railway Company—continued.

(21)—State Railway, suit for damages against, by servant, if may be brought against the Secretary of State for India in Council - Jurisdiction, High Court, Calcutta—Cl. 12, Letters Patent, Calcutta High Court (1865), leave to file plaint under, if defendant may question propriety when once granted—Secretary of State for India in Council, if a Body Corporate and if represents Government of India in all suits maintainable against Government—S. 65 of 21 and 22, Vict., c. 106—Government carrying on business for State purposes, where may be sued—Railway Company, if a person carrying on business and where suit may be brought against it—Decision of a Bench of two Judges sitting on Original Side, if binding on a single Judge.—A servant of the Eastern Bengal State Railway was prosecuted at Rungpur on a charge of criminal breach of trust which resulted in his acquittal. He thereupon filed a plaint claiming damages for false and malicious prosecution against the Secretary of State for India in Council in the Calcutta High Court in which he craved leave under cl. 12 of the Letters Patent of the High Court (1865) for the institution of the suit in the said Court and the Court granted such leave: Held—That, as the cause of action had arisen wholly outside the jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court, the leave was not properly granted, and that the fact of the leave having been granted did not preclude the defendant from questioning the jurisdiction of the Court at the trial. Under s. 65 of 21 and 22 Vict., cl. 106, the Secretary of State in Council is a Body Corporate for purposes of a suit, and as such represents the Government of India in such suits as may be maintained against the Government. By 21 and 22 Vict., c. 106, such right of suit as individuals had against the East India Company were continued as against the Secretary of State. A Railway Company is a "person" "carrying on business" within the meaning of s. 12 of the Letters Patent, and it may be sued at the place of its principal office where the directors meet and the general business of the company is transacted or the brain power of the business is A Government may be presumed to dwell in its own capital, and a Government engaged in trades, though it may be for purpose of the State, carry on business there. (14 C. 256, Diss.; 14 C. 262, Appr.) Held—That the decision in 14 C. 256 being the decision of two Judges sitting on the Original Side presumably upon a reference by one of the Judges sitting singly on the Original Side, the decision is binding on a single Judge so sitting. B. E. M. RODRICKS v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL, 16 C.W.N. 747=15 Ind. Cas. 955=40 C. 308.

(22)—Railway Company—Goods consigned for carriage—Risk note, Form B—Company

Railway Company—continued.

absolved from liability in all cases except negligence or dishonesty of its servants—Onus.—Where goods were consigned to a Railway Company for carriage, the contract being embodied in a risk note, Form B, under which, in consideration of the Railway Company accepting a lower freight, the consignor absolved the Railway Company from all liability for loss or damage to the goods, subject, however, to the proviso that the Company would be liable for loss due to wilful negligence on the part of their servants or due to thefts by its servants or agents: Held—That the onus lay on the person, seeking to charge the Railway Company with damages for loss of goods, to show that the case came within the proviso. SHEOBARUT RAM v. THE BENGAL NORTH WESTERN RY. CO., 16 C.W.N. 766=15 Ind. Cas. 56.

This circular states in effect that ministerial officers drawing less than Rs. 50 per mensem are to travel in "intermediate" class Railway Carriages. Cir No. I, dated 8th Feb. 1865, 2 W.R. Civ. Cir. Order, p. 1.

This circular deals with the sale-proceeds of railway lands. Rev. Cir. No. 6. 25 W.R. Rev, Cir. 22.

See ACT XVIII OF 1854, s. 10, 2 M. 310.

Erroneous description of goods consigned—Loss of goods by fire—Liability of Railway Company—Burden of proof—See ACT III OF 1865, s. 9, 3 B. 120.

See ACT XXV OF 1871, s. 2, 1 B. 52.

Deposit by servant of Railway Company—Rights of attaching creditor—See ATTACHMENT—SUEJECTS OF ATTACHMENT, 9 M. 203.

Liability of—Risk Note—Contract to contrary—See BURDEN OF PROOF—MISCELLANEOUS, 14 M.L.J. 396.

See CARRIERS, 18 C. 427.

Contract between—and passengers—Obligation for safe carriage—Due care—See CARRIERS, 2 C.W.N. 609.

Secretary of State to be sued as defendant in suit against State Railway—Railway administration, meaning of—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 80, 79, O. XXVII, rr. 1, 6, 4 O.C. 133.

Consignment of goods—Suit against Railway Company for damages for non-delivery of goods consigned — See CONTRACT — MISCELLANEOUS, 4 Bom. L.R. 890=27 B. 126.

See COSTS—SPECIAL CASES, 26 C. 465=3 C.W.N. 781.

Government — Suit for compensation for lands taken for Railway — See COSTS — SPECIAL CASES, Marsh, 91=1 Hay 157.

Lease by widow—Quarries worked by State Railway—See HINDU LAW—REVERSIONERS, 22 M. 126=9 M L.J. 19.

Railway Company—concluded.

See INJUNCTION—SPECIAL CASES, 10 B. 390.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 30, 7 B. 478.

A suit against a—for the loss of goods—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 30, 3 M. 240.

Suit by consignee against Railway Company for loss of goods—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, arts. 30, 115, 5 M. 388.

Non-delivery of goods, by suit for compensation for, applicability of art. 31 of the Limitation Act to—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 31, 108 P. R. 1906=2 P.L.R. 1907=30 P.W.R. 1907.

See MASTER AND SERVANT, 13 M. 34.

Damages to a passenger from a train overshooting the platform—See NEGLIGENCE, 6 Bom. L.R. 673.

See NEGLIGENCE, 6 M.H.C. 180.

Agreement for interchange of traffic—Liability for loss of goods—Agency — See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT—DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF PRINCIPAL, 5 B. 371.

See STAMP ACT, 1899, arts. 5, 34, 5 B. 478, F.B.

Service on—See SUMMONS, 1 Hyde 197.

Purchased goods consigned through—Goods receipt note issued by Railway authorities, not an instrument of title within s. 103 of the Contract Act—Endorsee of Railway receipt, extent of rights of — See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—VENDOR, RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF, 14 B. 57.

Railways Act.

See ACT XVIII OF 1854.

See ACT IV OF 1879.

See ACT IX OF 1890.

Railway Fare.

Fare, excess of, recoverable as fine—See ACT IX OF 1890, s. 113, 1 Bom. L.R. 166.

Railway Servant.

Power of S. C. Court to attach salary of—not fallen due—Salary disbursable outside jurisdiction of Court—See ATTACHMENT—GENERAL, 30 C. 713=7 C.W.N. 821.

Attachment of the salary of—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 46, 5 Bom. L.R. 803 =28 B. 198.

Railway Station.

Goods yard of a, is a public place—See ACT XI OF 1890, s. 3 (b), 4 Bom. L.R. 290.

Rain Water.

Passing surplus — Defined channel — See EASEMENT, 8 C.W.N. 244.

Right to use water-way for—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 26, 68 P.R. 1880.

Raiyat.

See RYOT.

Raiyati Holding.

(1)—Burden of proof—Transferability of raiyati holding—Doctrine of caveat emptor.—It is for the person alleging transferability of raiyati holding to show that the custom of transferability exists. The doctrine of caveat emptor applies with the greatest force to persons who undertake to purchase raiyati holdings from tenants. GOBINDA CHANDRA JANA v. SRIMANTA CHARAN JANA, 6 Ind. Cas. 761.

Zamindar's right to eject ryot from ryoti land and recover possession thereof — See EJECTMENT, SUIT FOR, 7 M.L.T. 366.

Raiyati Interest.

Test of—See BENGAL ACT VIII OF 1885, s. 5 (5), 2 Ind. Cas. 72.

Test of—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—NATURE OF TENANCY, 14 C.L.J. 38.

Raiyati Land.

See MESNE PROFITS—SUITS FOR MESNE PROFITS AND ASSESSMENT IN EXECUTION, 6 C.W.N. 732.

Raiyatwari Estates.

Raiyatwari estates—Partition—See PARTITION—RIGHT TO PARTITION, 7 M. 382, F.B.

Raj.

Assignment of a—by the Rajah in possession by a deed to his eldest son—See HINDU LAW —CUSTOM, 6 M.I.A. 164.

Rajkot.

Courts in Kathiawar and—whether British Courts—See BRITISH COURTS, 5 B. 249.

Rajput.

(1)—Naru Rajputs—Gift to son by wife of inferior caste—Validity.—A gift of ⅓ of his property accompanied by possession made by Naru Rajput to a son by an inferior wife held to be valid though the donor had an infant son by a Rajput wife. HAIDAR ALI v. SONDHA, 102 P R. 1880. [F., 113 P.R. 1883; R., 145 P.R. 1894, 92 P.R. 1904=12 P.L.R. 1905, 65 P.R. 1911; D., 110 P.R. 1894.]

Khatris—Soodras—See CASTE, 4 W.R. 132, P.C.=7 M.I.A. 18.

Of Agra, family custom of primogeniture—Evidence establishing impartibility — See HINDU LAW—CUSTOM, 19 A. 1, P.C.=23 I. A. 147.

Raj, Succession to.

(1)—Raj—Succession to—Impartibility.—A suit having been instituted by some of the descendants of a deceased Rajah for possession of his property, to which the defendant laid claim, under an alleged Wusseeyut-namah, or deed of gift, proclamation was made, by order of the Provincial Court, for all persons pretending to have any claim to the property in question to come in and prosecute the same; in pursuance of which, the present, with another, suit was instituted. The Provincial Court, being of opinion that the Wusseeyut-namah was not authentic, passed a decree, declaring the right of succession and inheritance to be among the several claimants, and pursuant to Regulation III, 1793, s. 13, specified the shares to which they were respectively entitled. An appeal was interposed to the Sudder Court, by one of the co-sharers, on the ground that the property was a Raj, and indivisible, and ought to have been decreed to him, as nearest in descent from the Rajah, but no fresh evidence, respecting the nature of the property, or the claim of the entirety, as permitted by the practice of the Sudder Court, was produced. The decree of the Provincial Court was affirmed by the Sudder Court, and, on appeal to Her Majesty in Council, the Judicial Committee upheld the decision of both Courts below, being of opinion that all parties knew and acted on the knowledge that the suits were not only to decide upon the claim under the Wusseeyut-namah, but to determine also what parties were entitled to the property, the subject of the suit; and dismissed the appeal with costs. GHIRDHAREE SING v. KOOLAHUL SING, 6 W.R.P.C. 1=2 M.I.A. 344.

Raja, Succession to—concluded.

(2)—Raja—Rule of descent — Private and public property.—There is a distinction between the public and private property of a Hindu Sovereign, as upon his death, his private property goes to one set of heirs, and the Raj and the public property to the succeeding Rajah. The general rule of the Hindu Law of inheritance is partibility. The succession of a single heir, as in the case of a Raj, is the exception. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL v. KAMACHEE BOYE SAHABA, 7 M.I.A. 476.

See HINDU LAW—CUSTOM, 29 C. 343, P.C. =29 I.A. 62=6 C.W.N. 459.

See HINDU LAW—JOINT FAMILY, 3 B.L.R. P.C. 13=12 W.R. P.C. 21=13 M.I.A. 523.

Ramnad Zamindary.

(1)—Ramnad—Zamindary—Impartibility.—The history of the Ramnad Zamindary discussed in detail. Held on a survey of the whole history, that the Zamindary was impartible. DINAKARASAMI SETUPATI v. BHASKARASAMI SETUPATI, 11 M.L.J. 29.

Rampur Stamp Law.

(1)—S. 52, proviso (c)—See STAMP, 8 A.L.J. 566.

Rangoon Small Cause Court.

(1)—Recorder's Court in British Burma—Act XXI of 1863—Small Cause Court at Rangoon—Act XI of 1865—Jurisdiction.—In 1863, Act XXI of 1863 was passed to constitute Recorder's Court for three towns including Rangoon, in Burma, and to establish Courts of Small Causes in the said towns. By s. 10 of that Act it was declared that the Recorders to be appointed under the Act should exercise Civil Jurisdiction within their territorial limits, and that, save as in this Act provided, no Court other than the Recorder's Court shall have or exercise any Civil Jurisdiction whatever within the said limits.—By Act XI of 1865, after reciting that it was expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Courts of Small Causes beyond the local limits of the ordinary original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Courts, and declaring that, in every part of British India in which the Act operates, the words "Local Government" should denote "the person authorized to administer the executive Government in such part," it was enacted (s. 3) that the Local Government might, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General of India in Council, constitute for the trial of suits under that Act, Courts of Small Causes at any places within the territories under such Government, with power to fix the territorial limits of such Courts. By s. 13, the Judge was to be appointed by the Local Government. This Act did not repeal s. 10 of the Recorder's Act XXI of 1863. By a notification of the Home Government dated 1st September 1869, the Governor-General in Council extended the provisions of Act III of 1864 to the province of British Burma and invested the Chief Commissioner of British Burma with the powers conferred upon a Local Government by the said Act. By another notification, dated 2nd October 1869, the Governor-General in Council, under s. 3 of Act XI of 1865, sanctioned the establishment of a Court of Small Causes in the city of Rangoon for the hearing of suits cognizable by such Courts under the provisions of the said Act. Under s. 7, the jurisdiction of the said Court was extended to an amount not exceeding Rs. 1,000. The territorial jurisdiction of the Court was made co-extensive with that of the existing Small Cause Court jurisdiction of the Recorder's Court at Rangoon. In 1870, a plaint was presented in the Recorder's Court for Rs. 600, though the nature of the suit was such as a Small Cause Court, duly constituted under Act XI of 1865, with jurisdiction up to Rs. 1,000, would have had power to entertain. Held that there was nothing in the case as stated or in the Recorder's Act (XXI of 1863), to justify the conclusion that the Small Cause Court at Rangoon was not properly constituted. There is nothing in Act XI of 1865 to show that the words "Local Government," as used in that Act, were intended to include a Chief Commissioner. KO SHOAY DOON v. SHOAY GAN, 6 B.L.R. 196=14 W.R. 331.

(2)—Foreigner defendant residing only for a temporary purpose — Jurisdiction—Act XI of Rangoon Small Cause Court—concluded.

1865, s. 8 (Mofussil Small Cause Courts).—Where, in suit by a sailor for wages against the Captain of a foreign ship, the plaintiff's cause of action was complete on arrival of the ship in Rangoon, held the Small Cause Court at Rangoon had jurisdiction, though the defendant was dwelling there for a temporary purpose only. FRITZ OLNER v. LAVEZZO, 10 C. 878.

Rateable Distribution.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, S. 73.

(1)—Rateable distribution — Several decree-holders—Payment into Court to prevent execution of one decree—Claim to rateable distribution by another decree-holder.—A obtained a decree against B, C and D, and in execution of the said decree brought to sale the properties belonging to B. On the day of sale, B paid the amount in Court. Subsequently E, another decree-holder against C alone, applied for an attachment of the same properties, and claimed a rateable distribution of the amount paid into Court. The question is whether the claim was legal. It was contended that he could not claim rateable distribution, for the money having been paid into Court by B voluntarily of her own accord on the day of auction, it cannot be said to have been realized in execution of the decree, and having been so paid to satisfy the decree of A, other decree-holders against another debtor cannot claim rateable distribution. Held that as the amount was paid into Court by B specially to satisfy the decree of A, other decree-holders, against C, alone cannot claim rateable distribution. VILAYUTEE BEGUM v. BANKEE RAI, 1 P.R. 1866.

(2)—S. 270, Act VIII of 1859 and s. 295, Act XIV of 1882, distinction between.—Under s. 270, Act VIII of 1859, a creditor obtaining an attachment, was entitled to be first paid out of the proceeds of the sale, notwithstanding a subsequent attachment of the same property by any party in execution of his decree, but s. 295, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, points to a rateable distribution of the proceeds of sale under a decree in certain events and under certain circumstances. FREDERICK PEACOCK v. MADAN GOPAL, 29 C. 428, F.B.=6 C.W.N. 577. (25 C. 179, R.) [F., 29 B. 405=7 Bom. L.R. 488; R., 32 M. 429=19 M.L.J. 401, 26 M. 673=13 M.L.J. 278, 7 O C. 314, 5 C L.J. 80=11 C.W.N. 163, 5 P.W.R. 1909=6 P.L.R. 1909 ; D., 30 M. 413=17 M.L.J. 334=2 M. L.T. 365.]

(3)—Rateable distribution of assets—Principle of distribution.—Where certain creditors brought the whole of the property of their debtor to sale, in execution of their decree upon a mortgage of only a share therein, and themselves purchased it, and were allowed a set-off of a part of the purchase-money against their debt, held, in a suit for rateable distribution of the assets by another creditor, that the creditors were not entitled to deduct the sum, which was paid by them subsequently to clear off a mortgage held by the plaintiff in a share of the property, from the amount of the purchase money, before the Court could determine the amount rateably distributable among the parties concerned. Quære :—Whether the creditors (defendants) could even reckon the sum so paid by them for paying off the plaintiff's mortgage as one of the claims for rateable distribution. TAPONIDI HORDANUND BHARATI v. MATHURA LALL BHAGAT, 12 C. 499.

Rateable Distribution—continued.

See ACT XXIV OF 1867, s. 33, 6 M.H.C. 346.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 47, 144 (1), 115, 8 M. 494.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 60, 73, 4 B. 429.

Execution-sale—Transfer of execution—Proceedings to superior Court—Principle of—Among attaching creditors—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 63, 73, 21 C. 200.

Discharge of debt due to attaching creditor, effect of, on the attachment—Absence of subsisting attachment claim for—Affected—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 64, 23 M. 478=10 M.L.J. 98.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 64, 73, O. XXXIX, r. 1, 25 A. 431=A.W.N. 1903, 93.

Decree-holder applying for execution before realisation—Right of his representatives to rateable distribution—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 115, O. XXI, r. 90, 3 M.L.T. 249.

Application for rateable distribution by transferee to Court to which decree transferred —Res judicata—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 16, ss. 73, 47, 25 A. 443=A.W.N. 1903, 99.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 22 and ss. 73 and 115, 9 M. 508.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 72, s. 73, 5 M. 123, 11 M. 356.

Application for — Application to be paid money distributed—Whether step-in-aid—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, ART. 182—STEP IN AID OF EXECUTION, 8 C.W.N. 382.

Mortgagee, general right of, to keep mortgage unsplit — Purchase of portion of mortgaged property by mortgagee—Splitting up of mortgage and — Of mortgage debt — See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 21 B. 619.

Execution of decree—Of proceeds of decree—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 295, bona fides of decree-holders—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE — PROCEEDS OF SALE, RIGHT TO, 13 B. 154.

Decree against estate of deceased person—Purchase of decree by legal representative—Realisation of amount under decree—Right of purchaser to—under s. 295, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—PROCEEDS OF SALE, RIGHT TO, 13 B. 171.

Advocate High Cou
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar.

Rateable Distribution—concluded.

See SALE — SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—SETTING ASIDE SALE, 1 C.W.N. 195, 21 M. 51.

Ratification.

See GUARDIAN.

See MINOR.

See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

(1)—Contract—Repudiation not in reasonable time—Ratification.—Where a party to a contract seeks to get released from its obligations, on the ground that, for some reason or another, he is entitled to repudiate it, he must assert this right to repudiate as soon after becoming aware of it as he reasonably can. Long inaction entirely unaccounted for may be considered to be a ratification of the contract. ISHAN CHUNDER MOJOOMDAR v. SREEKANT NATH, 9 W.R. 110.

(2)—Act done by agent of Government—Ratification—Effect.—An act done by an agent of the Government, though in excess of his authority, being ratified and adopted by the Government, held to be equivalent to previous authority. THE SECRETARY OF STATE IN COUNCIL OF INDIA v. KAMACHEE BOYE SAHABA, 7 M.I.A. 476.

(3)—To be entire.—There can be no ratification of a part of the agent's act except in the sense that it is a ratification of the whole. MADRAS CONSOLIDATED SUGAR AND SPIRIT FACTORIES, LTD. v. WILLIAM SISSMORE SHAW, 14 M. L. J. 443.

(4)—Void transaction—Ratification.—A void transaction cannot be ratified. RANGANAIKULU v. SATTAMMA, 9 M.L.J. 104.

(5)—Lease by agent not authorised by proprietor--Notice--proprietor how far bound—Ratification.—Where an agent, in spite of the refusal of the proprietors, gave an applicant an amuldustuck to enter on the property of the proprietors as lessee, and did not immediately inform them of it, held that the proprietors were under no legal obligation to take early steps to disavow the act. The proprietors had not parted with their right either by any act of their own, or by any act of their duly authorised agent, or by any act of a person not authorised to act for them, but which they had subsequently ratified. MUSSAMUT MUHBOOL BUKHSH v. MUSSAMUT SHUHEEDUN, 14 W. R. 378.

See ACT OF STATE, 9 B.H.C. 314.

Contract against public policy—Undue influence — Unconscionable bargain — Voidable contract, power of Court in respect of—Contract Act, 1872, ss. 16, 19-A, 23—Act VI of 1899, s. 2 —Of contract caused by undue influence, proof of—See U.P. ACT XVII OF 1876, ss. 173, 174, 5 O.C. 256.

Of contract entered into before formation of company, effect of—See COMPANY—ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION AND LIABILITIES OF SHAREHOLDERS, 2 P.R. 1905.

Ratification—concluded.

Applicability of term only to acts done on ratifier's behalf—Recognition of this rule in Contract Act, s. 196—See HINDU LAW—ALIENATION, 12 C.W.N. 393, P.C.=35 C. 420=35 I.A. 48=14 Bur. L.R. 49=3 M.L.T. 344=18 M.L.J. 100=5 A.L.J. 184=10 Bom. L.R. 230 =7 C.L.J. 335.

Conditions under which doctrine of ratification is applicable—See HINDU LAW—REVERSIONERS, 8 C.L.J. 458=13 C.W.N. 201=4 Ind. Cas. 513.

See LEASE—GENERAL, P.L.R. 1900, p. 303.

Where transfer is void ab initio, whether subsequent ratification can validate it—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—GUARDIANSHIP, 11 O.C. 1.

See MASTER AND SERVANT, 2 B.L.R.O.C. 140.

See MINOR—CONTRACTS BY MINORS, 10 B. L.R. 326, Note=13 W.R. 166, 10 B.L.R. 327, Note=13 W.R. 172.

Ratification by Government of contract by its servants—See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT — GENERAL, 4 Bom. L.R. 706=26 B. 801.

Gomashta employed to collect rents—Power to distrain—See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT—AUTHORITY OF AGENTS, Marsh 282.

Razinamah.

See COMPROMISE.

(1)—Private rights of parties not to be affected by Government system of accounts—Razinamah. —By a razinamah executed in the year 1824, a compromise of a suit was entered into, whereby the respective rights of A and B in their father's (C's) real and personal estate were declared. C was entitled to a tax levied on pilgrims resorting to a temple situate on his estate. This tax was abolished by Government in the year 1840, and a perpetual annual money-payment awarded by the Government to C as compensation. On the death of C, a partition of his estate was made between A and B, by assigning to each certain mehals according to their supposed value, in respect of their proportions of the shares provided by the razinamah of 1824. This partition did not include the compensation for the pilgrim-tax. Government, in dealing with the annual compensation-money, deducted the amount from the jumma paid by A and B for the mehals, which led to disputes as to the value of the mehals so taxed and apportioned between A and B. Held that the mode of remission by Government from the jumma, in respect of the mehals, by the appropriation of the compensation-money, did not affect the rights of the parties. MAHARANEE INDERJEET KOOER v. ISMUDH KOOWAR, 5 W.R.P.C. 14=10 M.I.A.329.

Re-admission of Appeal.

(1)—Appeal—Dismissal for default—Application for re-admission, rejection of—Appeal from order of rejection.—When, after the dismissal of an appeal for default, a lower appellate Court rejects an application for its re-admission, there is no appeal against such order of rejection. MUSSUMAT MAHAR BUKSH v. GHAUSI KHAN, 87 P.R. 1876.

Re-admission of Appeal—concluded.

(2)—Appeal struck off for default—Application for re-admission—Order rejecting application—Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order rejecting an application for the re-admission, under s. 347 of Act VIII of 1859, of an appeal struck off for default. SOOLTAN MAHMOOD v. OOJUL KHAN, 23 P.R. 1871. [R., 52 P.R. 1873.]

Re-Admission of Appeals, Bengal and Madras.

See ACT XVI OF 1845.

Realisation.

What constitutes—Within the meaning of s. 295—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 73, 21 C. 809.

Re-arrest.

(1)—Exemption from re-arrest--Civ.Pro.Code—In this case, the judgment-debtor was discharged from arrest on the application of the decree-holder, on the ground that an arrangement had been made for the liquidation of the debt which was satisfactory. Held that the Civ. Pro. Code, does not prevent the re-arrest of the debtor so discharged if he failed to perform the agreement he had made with his creditor. MUSSUMAT SUBHANI v. SADHO RAM, 37 P.R. 1873.

Reasonable and probable cause.

See MALICIOUS PROSECUTION.

See DEFAMATION, 2 Agra 87.

See MALICE, 2 N.W.P. 352, 4 N.W.P. 42.

Reasonable Care.

See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 41, 1 L B.R. 196.

Reasonable Time.

For appointment of legal representative—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872. ss. 2 (c), 37, 38 and 67, 4 M.L.T. 335.

'Reasonable time'—What is—Question of fact—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, ss. 46, 49, 10 M.L.T. 496.

Rebel.

Attachment of rebel's property—See LIMITATION—MISCELLANEOUS, 1 Agra 46.

Confiscation and sale of—Property—Right of co-sharers—See PRE-EMPTION—SUBJECTS OF PRE-EMPTION, 1 Agra 88.

Rebellion, Confiscation, etc., for.

See ACT X OF 1858.

Recalling Certificate.

(1)—Act XL of 1858, ss. 12, 21—Certificate recalled—Estate placed under Collector.—The District Judge granted a certificate under Act XL of 1858 to a Hindu widow, and, on a reference from the Collector to the effect that she did not desire to take out the certificate and that the certificate ought to be given to a first cousin on the paternal side of the deceased, the Judge recalled his order granting the certificate to the widow and directed the Collector to take charge of the estate. Held that the order was made under s. 21, which empowered the Civil Court for any sufficient reason to recall a certificate and direct the Collector to take charge, or grant a certificate to the public curator, or any other. and that s. 12 did not apply to the case. Held also that the widow was not entitled to appeal, inasmuch as she had expressed her unwillingness to take charge and the first cousin was not competent to prefer the appeal as there were the widow and a half-brother and an uncle of the deceased, who were nearer relations. BUSSUNT COOMAREE DOSSEE v. THE COLLECTOR OF JESSORE, 13 W.R. 243.

For recalling certificates granted, what does not amount to—See ACT XL OF, 1858, ss. 7, 21, A.W.N. 1881, 4.

Receipt.

(1)—Stamp Act, I of 1879, s. 3 (17)—Receipt.—To constitute a "receipt" within the meaning of s. 3 (17) of the Stamp Act (I of 1879), there must be an acknowledgment, either express or signified or imported, of the receipt and not a mere statement that money was received. In re JAMNADAS HARI NARAN, 23 B. 54.

Rent—By landlord or agent—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, s. 88, 25 C. 531=2 C.W.N. 375, F.B.

Rent—signed by landlord's gumashta, containing certain recital, effect of—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, s. 88, 25 C. 533, Note.

Evidentiary value of rent—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 153, 88, 16 C. 155.

Given by Bank for amount of loan deposited—Terms of contract of loan contained in—Production of—Whether could be insisted on before payment by Bank—See CONTRACT—CONDITIONS PRECEDENT, 14 B. 498.

Unregistered receipt for earnest money comprising terms of conveyance—Admissibility in proof of contract of sale—See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, 10 C.P L.R. 107.

Miscellaneous documents—Document receipt—book—Book kept by attorney—Receipt given by defendant for documents of title—Admission—See EVIDENCE, MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, Cor. 148.

Unregistered—For payment of mortgage debt produced by mortgagee, inadmissibility of, in evidence—See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, 7 B. 123.

Receipt—continued.

See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, 12 W.R. 34, 29 C. 187, P.C.=29 I.A. 24=6 C.W.N. 386.

Pre-emption—Unregistered receipt for purchase money — Evidence, admissibility of—See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS, A.W.N. 1881, 2.

For rent—No writing necessary—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 91, 1 C.P.L.R. 16.

See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 92, Proviso 4, 26 M. 195.

Containing declaration of title as to immoveable property when admissible without registration—See REGISTRATION, 4 B. 590.

Unregistered receipt, proof of payment recited in—Admissibility of receipt—Extinction of mortgage right—See REGISTRATION, 23 M. 92 =9 M.L.J. 124.

For payment of mortgage money—Oral evidence—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17, A.W.N. 1887, 188.

For payment of mortgage-money—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17, 91 P.L.R. 1904=39 P.R. 1904.

Extinguishing interest of one only of several mortgagees, admissible without registration—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17, 18 A. 338 =A.W.N. 1896, 92.

Passed by mortgagees, whether compulsorily registrable — See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17, 4 B. 235.

Mortgage—For payment of mortgage money —See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17, 6 A. 335=A.W.N. 1884, 107.

By vendee to vendor for money paid for repurchase—Covenant to execute stamped document for re-sale—Document creating right to immoveable property — See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17, 21 B. 533.

For money paid, registration of—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17 (c), 3 M. 53.

Unstamped and unregistered, is evidence of payment—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17 (n), 2 Bom. L.R. 422=24 B. 609.

Receipt relating to mortgage, if admissible without registration — See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 49, 2 B. 489.

For rent—See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL — GROUNDS OF APPEAL, Marsh 381 = 2 Hay 419.

For rent—Comparison of signatures—Credibility of evidence—See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL — GROUNDS OF APPEAL, Marsh 322=2 Hay 421.

Receipt, whether an instrument within the meaning of s. 39, Specific Relief Act — See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, s. 39, 7 M.L.T. 270=5 Ind. Cas. 240.

See STAMP ACT, 1879, s. 3 (17), 6 A. 253= A.W.N. 1884, 72.

Receipt—concluded.

Barrister's fees—Stamp duty on receipt—See STAMP ACT, 1879, s. 3 (17), sch. II, 15 (b), 9 M. 140, F.B.

By barrister—Stamp duty—See STAMP ACT, 1879, s. 54, 85 P.R. 1885.

Proof of demand of stamped receipt—See STAMP ACT, 1879, ss. 58, 61, 64, 27 C. 324.

Acknowledgment by letter—See STAMP ACT, 1879, ss. 61 and 64, 8 M. 11, F.B.

Passed by counsel for fees not chargeable with stamp duty—See STAMP ACT, 1879, art. 15, 16 A. 132, F.B.=A.W.N. 1894, 12.

For money paid for agreed future sale of shares in Company—Undertaking to execute a formal document of sale—Receipt liable to stamp duty—See STAMP ACT, 1879, sch. I, art. 5, 14 B. 316.

Granted by Municipality for tax paid exceeding rupees twenty—Stamp duty—See STAMP ACT, 1879, sch. I, art. 52, 12 B. 103.

Receipt—Endorsement of payment on mortgage bond—See STAMP ACT, 1879, sch. II, art. 15 (a), 10 M. 64, F.B.

Given by Secretary of Club to member for Club bill — See STAMP ACT, 1879, sch. II, art. 15 (b), 10 M. 85, F.B.

Meaning of the term—Certificate to the effect that premium on an insurance policy has been paid, issued for the purpose of supporting a claim to exemption from income-tax not a receipt —See STAMP ACT, 1899, s. 2 (23), 2 L.B.R. 307.

Not stamped—If master liable—See STAMP ACT, 1899, s. 62, cl. (b), 8 C.W.N. 378.

Transfer from Provincial to Local Funds by adjustments in Collector's accounts—Receipts by Presidents, Dt. Boards—Stamp duty—See STAMP ACT, 1899, sch. I, art. 53, Exemption (4), 9 Ind. Cas. 342, F.B.=9 M.L.T. 355.

Receipt Stamps.

Stamps, cancellation of—See STAMP ACT, 1899, s. 12 (3), 6 Bom. L.R. 436=28 B. 432.

Receiver.

See APPEAL—RECEIVERS.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1882, ss. 503, 505.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XL.

See MANAGER.

(1)—Principles relating to the appointment of —Proof of mismanagement necessary—S. 503. Civ. Pro. Code—Suit against a tenant for life. —The appointment of a Receiver under s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, is not a matter of course. Though s. 503, gives a wide power to the Court, that power must be exercised with a sound discretion on a view of the whole of the circumstances of the case, not merely the circumstances which might make the appointment expedient for the protection of the property, but all the circumstances connected with the right which is asserted and has to be established. Unless there is proof of violent and wholesale charges of waste and malversation against a defendant in possession of property as the tenant for life, a Receiver will not be appointed. JIWANI v. LABHU RAM, 107 P.R. 1908=12 P.L.R. 1909 =4 Ind. Cas. 694. (5 A. 561, 15 C. 818, 73 P.R. 1902, Relied on).

Receiver—continued.

(2)—Duration of receivership—Discretion of Court.- It is within the discretion of a Court appointing a receiver in a suit to order that the office should continue permanently after the decree when such continuance is necessary, or for so long as it may be so. MATHUSRI UMAMBA BOYI SAIBA v. MATHUSRI DIPAMBA BOYI SAIBA, 19 M. 120, P.C.=23 I.A. 28=6 Sar. 684.

(3)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 503—Appointment of receiver by High Court pending appeal —Power of subordinate Court to give directions as supplementary to those given by the High Court.—Where a person was appointed receiver by the High Court, pending an appeal, no other Court has power to make an order or give any directions as supplementary to those given by the High Court, or without authority given by that Court. JANAKI AMMAL v. NARAYANASAWMI IYER, 4 M.L.T. 268. (27 M. 602, R.)

(4)—Jurisdiction — Appointment — Property outside jurisdiction —Quære. —Whether the High Court at Calcutta can appoint a Receiver for property which is within the jurisdiction of the Bombay High Court? HADJEE ISMEIL HADJEE HUBBEEB v. HADJEE MAHOMED HADJEE JOOSUB AND RAHIMA BYE v. HADJEE MAHOMED HADJEE JOOSUB, 13 B.L.R. 91=21 W.R. 303.

(5)—Jurisdiction—Suits for land—Land in possession of Receiver.—The High Court cannot exercise jurisdiction in respect to land which is situate out of its local limits, even though it be in possession of the Receiver. DENONAUTH SREEMONY v. HOGG, 1 Hyde 141.

(6)—Application for appointment of Receiver to be made in Court or Chambers —Practice and Procedure.—An application, for the appointment of a Receiver, in place of the retiring Receiver, is not an application which should be made before the Judge sitting in Chambers, but should be made in Court. STALKARTT v. STALKARTT, 28 C. 250.

(7) —Receiver and administrator pendente lite. —The Receiver appointed in an ordinary civil suit does not represent the estate nor the parties. He only holds the estate for the benefit of the successful litigant. Although the position of an administrator pendente lite is similar to that of a Receiver, there is a distinction, inasmuch as an administrator pendente lite represents the estate for all purposes except distribution. MEERZA KEERATUL AIN BAHADUR v. BROUGHTON, 1 C.W.N. 336.

(8) —"Equitable execution"—Appointment of Receiver.—The appointment of a Receiver at the instance of a judgment-debtor is "equitable execution," FINK v. MAHARAJA BAHADOOR SINGH, 26 C. 772=4 C.W.N. 27. [R., 10 O.C. 268.

Receiver—continued.

(9)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 505—Appointment of receiver—Power of District Court.—When a Subordinate Judge submits to the District Court the name of a person fit to be appointed as a receiver, stating the ground for such nomination, it is open to the District Judge, under s. 505 of the Civ. Pro. Code, to authorise the Subordinate Judge to appoint such person or "pass such other order as the District Court thinks fit." These latter words, however, cannot be construed as empowering the District Judge to himself nominate some person and appoint him as receiver. These general words should be read as qualified by the more specific words standing in collation with them, and the expression used in s. 505 is not that the District Court may appoint, but that it may only authorise the Subordinate Judge to appoint. AMAR NATH v. RAJNATH, 18 A. 453=A.W.N. 1896, 141. [R., 31 C. 495.]

(10)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, ss. 503, 505, 622—Nomination of receiver by Subordinate Court— Ex-parte order by District Judge, appointing such receiver—Power of District Judge to review.—The power given to Civil Courts to appoint a receiver under s. 503 of the Civ. Pro. Code, is a power which Subordinate Courts are forbidden by s. 505 to exercise without sanction. Such Courts can only make a nomination with the grounds for the nomination, and thereupon, the District Judge can authorize the Subordinate Judge to appoint the person so nominated, or pass such order as he thinks fit. In other words, nomination in s. 505 is equivalent to the conditional appointment of a receiver which the District Court can accept, reject or modify. In this case, the order of the District Judge appointing the receiver having been passed by him ex parte he clearly had the power to review it, whether or not an appeal would lie from such order to the High Court. CHUNI LAL v. SONIBAI, 21 B. 328. [R., 24 B. 38.]

(11)—Power of removal of a Receiver inherent in Court—Refusal to hand over property to a Receiver—Practice—Enquiry as to the possession of such property—Temporary injunction ordering the handing over of the property under s. 492, Civ. Pro. Code after notice under s. 494, and enforcement thereof under s. 493, para. 3—Ex parte order appointing a Receiver, whether an application to cancel it can be admitted under s. 108, Civ. Pro. Code.—The power of removal of a Receiver is inherent in the Court, which may at any time hold an inquiry as to whether an order appointing a Receiver should remain in force or not, and may, if it thinks fit, cancel the order that has been made. When a Receiver is appointed, if any person refuses to hand over certain properties to him, an inquiry should ordinarily be held as to the possession of such property and as to whether it is the property which should be handed over to the Receiver, after giving notice of the application for such enquiry under s. 494, Civ. Pro. Code; and then, an injunction can be issued under s. 492, Civ. Pro. Code, ordering the property to be handed over to the Receiver, disobedience to which can be enforced under the third para of s. 493, Civ. Pro. Code. Such an inquiry before issuing the injunction, should not, however, be held where the object of granting it, would be defeated by the delay. Where a Receiver was appointed ex parte, and an application to cancel such appointment was admitted under s. 108 Civ. Pro. Code, and an order for the removal of the Receiver was made by the Court held, the Judge has power to do so, and the matter is quite outside the consideration as to whether the order of appointment comes within the meaning of the word "decree" as used in s. 108, Civ. Pro. Code. RANGANAYAGAMMAL v. MAHALI PILLAI, 4 L. B. R. 356.

Receiver—continued.

(12)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 503—Appointment of receiver—Discretion of Court.—S. 503 gives a wide discretion to the Court. The power of appointing a receiver under s. 503, however, is not greater than that exercised by the Courts in England, and must be exercised with a sound discretion on a view of the whole circumstances of the case, not merely the circumstances which might make the appointment expedient for the protection of the property, but all the circumstances connected with the right which is asserted and has to be established. Where a right is asserted to property in the possession of the defendant claiming to hold under a legal title, the Courts will not interfere by appointing a receiver, unless a very strong cases is made out. SIDHESWARI DABI v. ABHOYESWARI DABI, 15 C. 818. [Appr., 22 C. 459; R., 5 C.W.N. 362=27 C. 279, 59 P.L.R. 1902=73 P.R. 1902, 2 L.B.R. 222, 1 S.L.R. 121.]

(13)—S. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Receiver, appointment of—Waste—Discretion of Court.—In an application for the appointment of a Receiver in a suit in which the title to certain properties in the possession of the defendant is in question, it is not necessary that a strong case should be made out; enough, if a fair prima facie case is made out. (15 C. 818, 22 C. 459, R.) The mere circumstance that a large amount of property was removed, (under circumstances which might fairly give rise to suspicion), during the pendency of a suit in which the question of title to that property would be determined, is in itself a sufficient ground for the appointment of a Receiver. SIA RAM DAS v. MOHABIR DAS, 27 C. 279=5 C.W.N. 362. (15 C. 818, 22 C. 459, R.) [R., 32 C. 741.]

(14)—Appointment of a receiver—Not to be made without special reasons—Bona fide possessor with legal title.—The appointment of a receiver is entirely in the discretion of the Court. But the power of appointment is not to be exercised as a matter of course, but should be used with the greatest care and caution. A good prima facie title has to be made out before an order for the appointment of a receiver can be granted. (5 A. 556, 22 C. 459, F.) The step of appointing a receiver should not be taken without special reasons, particularly in the case of a bona fide possessor with legal title. Parties who have acquiesced in property being enjoyed against their own alleged rights cannot come to Court for this form of relief. NGA KYI MAUNG v. MI SIN, U.B.R. 1908, 2nd Quarter, Civil Procedure p. 17. (6 C.L.R. 467, F.)

Receiver—continued.

(15)—Receiver, appointment of—Title to property—Removal of property.—In an application for the appointment of a Receiver, it is sufficient if a prima facie title to the property, over which the Receiver is sought to be appointed, is made out. The fact that a large amount of property is removed by the defendant under circumstances which may fairly give rise to suspicion, during the pendency of a suit in which the question of title to that property is to be determined, is in itself a sufficient ground for the appointment of a Receiver. SHAM CHAND GIRI v. BHAYA RAM PANDAY, 5 C.W.N. 365. [R., 5 C.W.N. 362=27 C. 279.]

(16)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 503—Receivers—Waste or misappropriation of property.—An application for the appointment of a Receiver cannot be refused because the acts complained of amounted to misappropriation and not waste, and a criminal complaint can be filed in respect of it. HANUMAYYA v. VENKATASUBBAYA, 18 M. 23.

(17)—Discretionary refusal to remove a Receiver and Manager of the estate of Hindu widows.—Rights and proceedings rendering a Court's order, refusing to remove an appointed Receiver and Manager of the estate, of which the widowed Ranis of the late Maharaja of Tanjore had become possessed by grant from the Government, are entirely a matter of discretion of the Court, which had exercised its discretion soundly. JIJAI AMBA Ex parte, 13 M. 39, P.C.=5 Sar. 584.

(18)—Step-in-aid of execution—Application for appointment of receiver after decree, whether a—Receiver, whether can be appointed after sale and pending confirmation.—An application for the appointment of a receiver after sale, and pending confirmation thereof, is a step-in-aid of execution. A receiver can be appointed for the preservation of the property, after sale and while the sale was pending confirmation. SAMBASIVA MUDALI v. KRISHNAN, 7 M.L.T. 86=5 Ind. Cas. 758.

(19)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 503—Receiver—Appointment of receiver to realize amounts of decrees under attachment.—Where a decree-holder had in execution of his decree attached two decrees held by the judgment-debtor against third parties, it was held that s. 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure gave power to the Court to appoint a receiver to realize the amounts of the attached decrees where it appeared that by so doing the interests of both decree-holder and judgment-debtor would be better protected. PARTAP SINGH v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LD., A.W.N. 1908, 164=5 A.L.J. 583=30 A. 393.

Receiver—continued.

(20)—Suit for recovery of property—Appointment of—During pendency of suit—Discussion on the merits at that stage of suit, desirability of.—The plaintiff sued as Mohunt by right of election of a certain asthan to recover moveable and immoveable properties belonging to the asthan from the defendant, who alleged that he was Mohunt by right of appointment. Pending this suit, the Court appointed a Receiver for the properties in dispute on the ground that a sufficiently strong prima facie case was made out to justify such appointment. Held, that, where the appointment of a Receiver is under consideration, a discussion of the documents filed in the suit and on the merits of the case is always regarded as undesirable and as tending to prejudice the case and prejudice the parties. The lower Courts being in a far better position to judge as to whether it was desirable in this case to appoint a Receiver or not, the High Court declined to interfere with the order appointing a Receiver. RAM SUNDAR DASS v. KAMAL JHA alias KAMAL DAS, 32 C. 741.

(21)—Bengal Act, VIII of 1869, suit for arrears of rent and ejectment under—Receiver, appointment of, under s. 503 of the Civ. Pro. Code — Possession of receiver, nature of. — Though, if the suit, under Bengal Act VIII of 1869, were merely for arrears of rent, s. 503 of the Civ. Pro. Code might not apply, the Bengal Act does not exclude the operation of the section, when the suit is for recovery of the tenure itself; so that a receiver of the rents and profits of the tenure was held properly appointed, under s. 503 of the Civ. Pro. Code, in a suit brought for arrears of rent and for ejectment. The possession of the receiver is not adverse to the lease-holder, and could not be pleaded against him in any question of limitation. The possession of the receiver is for the benefit of the parties in the suit. KARTIC NATH PANDY v. PADMANUND SINGH, 11 C. 496. [Appl., 2 C.L.J. 602.]

(22)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 503 and 588—Receiver, Appointment of — Appeal.—The plaintiff and the defendant were widows of a Hindu Brahmin of Lahore city. The property in dispute was of a considerable value. By custom and Hindu law, both were entitled to a life interest in the property as Hindu widows. In the revenue records, names of both were entered as owners of the lands of their deceased husband. Certificate of collection of debts due to the deceased was also obtained by them jointly. On a dispute between them, the defendant denied the plaintiff's title altogether, and set up her sole right under an oral will of the deceased. The plaintiff applied for and obtained the appointment of a Receiver of the whole property of the deceased in the suit filed by her against the defendant. It was found as proved that the plaintiff's rights were being set at naught, and her share of the income was being made away with without reference to her wishes. The defendant did not offer to keep intact, until the decision of the case, the share of the income to which the plaintiff would be entitled, if the alleged oral will was not proved. On appeal against the order appointing a Receiver, held, that the plaintiff's title being prima facie clear and the danger to her interest being immediate and certain, it would be wrong to refuse the appointment of a Receiver. The plaintiff was not disentitled to the prayer merely because she had contracted debts on onerous conditions as this was the direct result of the defendant's acts. Held, also, that the Court in the exercise of its discretion was competent to place the whole property left by the deceased in the hands of the Receiver. In a suit only for a declaration of title, where the plaint alleges the property in dispute to be in the possession of the plaintiff, a Receiver may be appointed on proof of the fact that the plaintiff was in possession at the date of the suit. MUST. BUDHWANTI v. MUST. BISHEN KOUR, 59 P.L.R. 1902=73 P.R. 1902. [R., 36 P.R. 1910 =53 P.W.R. 1910; Obs., 107 P.R. 1908.]

Receiver—continued.

(23)—Appointment of permanent Receiver—Suit by next reversioner—Gross mismanagement and malversation by widow—Surplus income paid to widow for her life.—Where a suit was brought by the next reversioner to remove the widow from the management of the estate, and to appoint a Receiver on account of gross mismanagement and malversation by her, and it was proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the estate which was worth over a lakh of rupees has shrunk to a little over Rs. 20,000, that the widow never concerned herself with the management of the estate, and never enquired whether the expenditure was out of the capital or out of the income of the estate, that the management of the estate was left entirely in the hands of strangers who were misappropriating the monies, and that the widow was contracting debts not valid, and binding on the reversioners, held, that under the circumstances of the case, it is unsafe to leave the estate in the hands of the widow, that it is necessary in the interests of the reversioner that a Receiver should be appointed for the proper management of the estate, and that, the widow not having been proved they have acted with any intention to defraud, was entitled to be paid the surplus income for her life. GARUVA CHETTY v. RAGAMMAL, 8 M.L.T. 189=7 Ind. Cas. 534.

(24)—O. XL, r. 1, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908—Receiver, appointment of—"Convenient and just," meaning of — Appeal—Indiscretion—Onus.—A large impartible estate was bequeathed by the widow of the last male owner for some religious and charitable purposes. The trustees were put in possession of the property and they remained so for over ten years, when a suit to set aside the bequest was brought by one of the claimants of the estate. The profits of the estate were large and the expenses necessary for the purposes of the trust were small. The trustees, moreover, in making the expenses, paid no due regard to any method of account: Held, that, under the circumstances, it was convenient to appoint a receiver of the property pending the decision of the suit. Where the lower Court, in the exercise of its discretion, after considering all the facts and evidence, has come to a conclusion, it is for the appellants to show that the Court exercised its discretion improperly. RAJA RAM v. THAKURAIN SHEORANI KUER, 7 Ind. Cas. 344.

Receiver—continued.

(25)—Mortgage—Suit by mortgagee—Appointment of receiver on application by mortgagee—High Court, powers of, with regard to appointing receivers.—In a suit for foreclosure or sale of mortgaged property, a receiver can be appointed upon an interlocutory application for the purpose made by the mortgagee. The High Court possesses the same powers with regard to the appointment of a receiver as are possessed and exercised by the Courts in England under the Judicature Act. S. 25 of the Judicature Act of 1873 enables the Court of equity to depart from its former practice and to grant a receiver, not only where there is no power to take possession at law, but where there is power to interfere, if it is just or convenient that an order for a receiver should be made. In the present case, there were exceptional circumstances rendering the appointment of a receiver "just and convenient." The Court of appeal which had granted a receiver until the appeal filed by the plaintiff against so much of the decree as refused to appoint a receiver came on for hearing, varied the decree itself after hearing the appeal by appointing a receiver of the rents and profits of the mortgaged property as from the date of the filing of the suit. JAIKISSONDAS GANGADAS v. ZENABAI AND KASI MAHOMED MIYA DADA MIYA, 14 B. 431.

(26)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 503—Receiver, appointment of—Suit to enforce a mortgage.—A Receiver can be appointed under s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, in a suit to enforce a mortgage. CHANASHYAM MISSER v. GOBINDA MONI DASI, 7 C.W.N. 452. (3 C. 335, Expl.) [R., 6 M.L.T. 238.]

(27)—Receiver, Appointment of—Mortgage suit—Sale, appointment after—Receiver, if may be appointed of property in hand of common manager—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), O. XL, r. 1, sub-r. (2)—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 95.—A mortgage suit does not necessarily terminate with the sale and a Receiver may be appointed after the sale, pending application to set it aside. A receiver may very well be appointed under O. XL, r. 1 sub-r. (2), Civ. Pro. Code, in respect of property in the hands of a common manager appointed under s. 95 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. MADANESWAR SINGH v. MAHAMAYA PROSAD SINGH, 15 C.W.N. 672=13 C.L.J. 487.

(28)—Mortgage—Mortgagee restrained by injunction from selling the property in execution of his decree—Civ. Pro. Code (XIV of 1882), s. 503—Receiver, if can be appointed.—Where the appellant, a mortgagee decree-holder, who had been restrained by an injunction from selling the mortgaged property in execution of his decree, applied for the appointment of a Receiver: Held it is just to appoint a Receiver to collect the income and place it in charge of the Court. The fact that the decree is one in a mortgaged suit is no bar to such an appointment. ARUNACHELLAM CHETTIAR v. MANICKA VASAGA DESIKAR, 6 M.L.T. 238=3 Ind. Cas. 437. (7 C.W.N. 152, F.)

(29)—Receiver — Partition suit — Mortgage suit—Receivers how to act—Decree for sale—Decree for foreclosure.—In a partition suit between co-owners, a consent decree was made. To give effect to that decree, a Receiver was appointed. Certain properties, which included not merely the properties under the charge of the Receiver, but also two other properties, were mortgaged. After an ex parte decree was obtained by the mortgagee, an application was made for the appointment of a Receiver in the mortgage suit. Held, that a Receiver might be appointed in the mortgage suit, although a Receiver was appointed in the partition suit. The same person who was appointed Receiver in the partition suit might be appointed Receiver in the mortgage suit or different persons might be appointed. If different persons were appointed as Receivers, the collection might be made by one of the Receivers only (for instance, by the Receiver in the partition suit), but the sums collected by him and payable to the mortgagor should be placed in the hands of the Receiver in the mortgage suit to be applied for the benefit of the mortgagee under the direction of the Judge. (13 C.L.J. 487, 15 C.W.N. 672, R.) Where the mortgage decree was for sale, and it was established that the security was not sufficient to satisfy the judgment-debt, a Receiver would be appointed almost as a matter of course, specially if there had been default in the payment of interest. But where the mortgagee had obtained a decree for foreclosure, and no personal decree had been made, a Receiver need not be appointed before the expiry of the period of grace, as the mortgagee was not entitled at that stage to the profits of the property, and did not allege that the property was in danger of being lost or wasted. KHUBSURAT KOER v. SARODA CHARAN GUHA, 14 C.L.J. 526=12 Ind. Cas. 165=16 C.W.N. 126.

(30)—Trust deed for liquidation of mortgage debt—Mortgagee assenting party—Receiver, if can be appointed—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), O. XL, r. 1, cl. (2).—The appointment of a Receiver is a matter entirely within the discretion of the Court, in the exercise of which it will be guided by a consideration of the circumstances of the particular case. The appointment of a Receiver will be made almost as a matter of course in the case of an English mortgage, on the application of a mortgagee if the interest payable under the security is in arrear. Moreover, if the property mortgaged would be in danger if left in the possession of the mortgagors, a Receiver should be appointed.

Receiver - continued.

Where, under a trust deed, the mortgaged properties were vested in trustees, but the estate they took was subject to mortgages, the trustees to continue in possession and manage the properties with a view to the liquidation of the mortgage-debt by periodical payments, and one of the trustees died and the surviving trustee was absent for a long period from the country, and the stipulations in the trust-deed were not carried out: Held, that the mortgagees were entitled to ask for the appointment of a Receiver. Although the trust-deed was assented to by the mortgagees, it did not in any way abridge their statutory right to ask for the interference of the Court. The provisions of O. XL, r. 1, cl. (2) did not stand in the way of the mortgagees, who were not bound to allow the arrangement to continue when its purpose had wholly failed. WEATHERALL v. EASTERN MORTGAGEE AGENCY CO., 13 C. L. J. 495.

(31)—O. XL, r. 1, Civ. Pro Code, 1908—Receiver, appointment of—Court's discretion—Partition suit—Exclusion of co-owner if ground for appointment, when no waste established—Change of law.—Under O. XL, r. 1 of the Code, the Court has been given precisely the same discretion in questions of appointment of a receiver that the Courts in England have. The condition in the old Code that, to justify such appointment in any case, it should be found necessary to preserve property from waste and alienation having been removed, there has been a substantial widening of the Court's discretion. Where, therefore, in a suit for partition of joint family property, it was proved that a co-owner admittedly entitled to a half share in a considerable portion of the properties in suit was being kept out of possession by the co-owner, with the result that all supplies were cut off from his branch of the family. Held—that, although no case of waste might have been established against the co-owner in possession, the case was eminently one for the appointment of a receiver. RAMJI RAM v. SALIGRAM, 14 C.W.N. 248 = 5 Ind. Cas. 96. (22 C. 459, 17 C. 614, Not F.)

(32)—Suit for partition of joint estate—S. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, meaning of certain expressions in—Receiver of whole estate.—The words "property the subject of a suit," in s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, when the suit is one for the partition of a joint estate, mean the whole joint estate. It follows then, that the words "the owner," in s. 503 (d), must mean the whole body of owners to whom the joint estate belongs. In a suit for partition the Court may place the whole of the joint estate, of which partition is claimed, under a Receiver. Such a Receiver may raise money on the security of the whole of such estate. PARESHNATH MOOKERJEE v. OMERTH NAUTH MITTER, 17 C. 614. [R., 6 C.L.J. 404 = 11 C.W.N. 489.]

(33)—Testamentary suit—Appointment of Receiver by High Court.—There is nothing in the law relating to procedure to prevent the High Court from appointing a Receiver in a testamentary suit. YESHWANT BHAGWANT PHATARPAKAR v. SHANKAR RAMACHANDRA PHATARPAKAR, 17 B. 388. [R., 18 B. 237.]

(34)—Court of Chancery, rule of—Will of Mahomedan testator—Appointment of receiver against executor in possession—Parties—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—S. 433.—The rule of the Court of Chancery that a receiver will not be appointed as against an executor unless gross misconduct on his part was shown, is not applicable to the case of an executor of the Will of a Mahomedan. Where a Mahomedan testator by his Will appointed three executors, only one of whom had acted and got possession of the estate, a suit by the testator's widow for administration of the estate was held sufficiently well constituted for the purpose of a motion for a ereciver, although only the executor who had intermeddled with the estate was made a defendant hereto, the other two executors not being parties to the suit. Quære:—Whether it would not be necessary, or at any rate advisable, to add the other two executors as defendants before the suit came on for hearing? HAFIZABAI v. KAZI ABDUL KARIM, 19 B. 83.

(35)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 503—Receiver, appointment of, after decree.—There is nothing in the Civ. Pro. Code, to limit the power of the Court to appoint a receiver after decree, where this course is necessary or proper. SHANMUGAM v. MOIDIN, 8 M. 229.

(36)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 503—Appointment of Receiver.—The powers conferred on Courts by s. 503 of the Civ. Pro. Code, cannot be exercised as a matter of course, and simply because it could do no harm to appoint a Receiver. The discretion given by that section is one that should be used with the greatest care and caution. Because a plaintiff in his plaint makes violent and wholesale charges of waste and malversation against a defendant in possession of property as executrix under a will, or as tenant for life, and upon this basis applies for a Receiver to be appointed, it is not a necessary consequence that such appointment should be made. SRIMATI PRASONOMOYI DEVI v. BENI MADHAB RAI, 5 A. 556 = A.W.N. 1883. 136. [F., U.B.R. 1908, 2nd Qr., Civ. Pro. Code. 503, 107 P.R. 1908; R., 2 L.B.R. 222; D., 73 P.R. 1902.]

(37)—O. XL. r. 1, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908—Receiver, appointment of—Judicial discretion of Court—"Just and convenient," what is—Defendant in possession not to be disturbed except on strong grounds—Waste—Delay in instituting a suit, effect of, on receivership application by plaintiff.—The words "just and convenient" in O. XL, r. 1, are derived from the English Judicature Act, which greatly enlarged the powers which the Court of Chancery formerly exercised, and the Courts in India have the fullest jurisdiction to appoint as well, as to remove a Receiver in the exercise of a sound judicial discretion. A Receiver should not be appointed in supersession of a bona fide possessor of the property in controversy unless there is some substantial ground for interference. (15 C. 818, F.; 5 C.W.N. 365, 5 C.W.N. 62, R.) Held, on the facts, that the charge of waste against the defendant in possession had not been established, and that plaintiff's delay in instituting the suit was such as to disentitle him to relief by appointment of a Receiver. SRIMATI MUTHURIA DEBYA v. SHIBDAYAL SINGH HAJARI, 14 C.W.N. 252=5 Ind. Cas. 27.

Receiver—continued.

(38)—Appeal—Receiver appointed by the District Judge on the direction of the Deputy Commissioner — Civ. Pro. Code, r. 1 (s) of O. XLIII.—Held that very strong grounds have to be adduced before a Court can interfere with private rights by the appointment of a receiver. Where, in a suit for obtaining a declaration to the effect that certain widows were entitled to maintenance only and not to possession for life of their husband's estate, the Deputy Commissioner suo moto moved the District Judge to appoint a receiver of the estate pendente lite, and the latter officer did so, the order of the appointment was set aside as illegal and improper, and the District Judge was directed to restore the property to the parties at once BAKHT BHARI v ISA SHAH, 62 P.W.R 1911. (136 P.R. 1890, 73 P.R. 1902, 36 P.R. 1910=53 P.W.R 1910, F.)

(39)—O. XL, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908—Receiver, appointment of—Declaratory suit—Jurisdiction—Parties to suit, without succession certificate—Receiver over estate of deceased in suit between them—Effect.— Where an adopted son brought a suit against the widow of his adoptive father, for a declaration that he was entitled to the property left by the deceased, subject to the widow's right of residence and maintenance, and, pending the suit, obtained an order appointing a receiver of the property, and where neither of the parties had obtained either probate, letters of administration or succession certificate under s. 4, Succession Certificate Act VII of 1889. Held, that, in spite of the general terms of O. XL, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908, a Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver over property not the subject of litigation, and that, in this suit, the outstandings due to the deceased are not the subject of litigation, but the subject of litigation is merely the right to recover them. The only person legally entitled to recover outstandings due to the deceased is one to whom probate of letters of administration, or a certificate has been granted (see Act VII of 1889, s. 4), and a receiver appointed in this suit would have no more power to grant a valid receipt than the parties themselves. MUSAMAT POUNCHABAI v. LEKHRAJ DAYARAM, 3 S.L.R. 118=4 Ind. Cas 605.

(40)—Receiver, appointment of—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), O. XL, r. 1, O. XLV, r. 13 (d)—Privy Council appeal—Application for the appointment of Receiver after leave to appeal to Privy Council is granted.—O. XLV, r. 13, applies where an application for appointment of a Receiver is made after leave is granted to appeal to the Privy Council. The principles, however, on which a Receiver would be appointed, must and shall be the same as mentioned in O. XL. A Receiver ought not to be appointed, where no risk of loss is shown by the applicant. MI SHWE MA v. MI MI, 12 Ind. Cas. 198.

(41)—District Judge's powers—Appointment of Receiver—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 503—Receiver, who can appoint—Ground for appointment of Receiver not very strong.—A District Judge has no power to appoint a Receiver in respect of property, the subject of a suit or attachment in other Courts, even though such Courts may be subordinate to his Court. S. 503 clearly gives the power to appoint a Receiver only to the Court wherein a suit is brought or by which the property has been attached. There is no doubt that a Court cannot appoint a Receiver, except it has seisin of the property, either by a suit being pending or by proceedings in execution of decree made in a suit being pending and attachment having been made. Also, it is only the Court in which a proceeding is pending, and which has thereby the property under its control that can appoint a Receiver. A Receiver cannot be appointed in respect of the mortgaged property on the mere ground that the property would not fetch so much by forced sale as it would by sale under a private contract. LATAFUT HOSSEIN v. ANUNT CHOWDHRY, 23 C. 517.

(42)—Common property belonging to community—Decree appointing receiver till a proper trustee is appointed by a community, whether proper—Decree awarding possession to plaintiffs on behalf of whole community.—In a suit brought by certain members of a community, for a declaration that the defendants were not trustees of a rest-house, and for the appointment of a receiver for the management of the rest-house until a proper trustee is appointed by the community, it was held, that a decree, directing the appointment of a receiver for the proper management of the rest-house belonging in common to the members of the community until a proper trustee is appointed by the community, is bad: but a decree awarding possession to plaintiffs, on behalf of the whole community including the defendants on the suit, will be proper. NARAYANAN CHETTY v. RAMASAMI CHETTIAR, 19 M.L.J. 669=4 Ind. Cas. 1069.

(43)—Appointment of, in testamentary suit—Validity of will for dharmarth.—A receiver should not be appointed in a testamentary suit to take charge of property in the hands of a defendant unless—(a) there is a fair probability of the suit succeeding; and (b) there is an allegation that the defendant is wasting, or about to waste, the property or is incapable of managing it; and (c) there is some proof of this allegation by affidavit or otherwise. Where the bulk of the property is to be used for dharmarth, it is doubtful whether such provisions in a will are capable of being carried out, inasmuch as dharmarth covers an infinity of purposes. KESAR DEVI v. PARTAB SINGH, 39 P.R. 1908=91 P.W.R. 1908=185 P.L.R. 1908.

Receiver—continued.

(44)—Appeal—Order appointing Receiver—Final order—Interlocutory order—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLIII, r. 1, cl. (s).—A final and not an interlocutory order appointing a Receiver is appealable under O. XLIII, r. 1, cl. (s) of the Code. UPENDRA NATH NAG CHOWDHRY v. BHUPENDRA NATH CHOWDHRY, 13 C.L.J. 157=9 Ind. Cas. 582.

(45)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 503—Appointment of Receiver—Appeal.—Held, that when a Subordinate Court proceeds to make an appointment of a Receiver under s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, an appeal lies from that order. SARDAR HUSAIN KHAN v. NOWROJI & CO., 1 O.C. 168.

(46)—Appeal—Order refusing to remove Receiver.—An order refusing to remove a Receiver appointed by a decree in an administration suit is appealable, being an order made in respect of a question arising between the parties to a suit relating to the execution of the decree. MITHIBAI v. LIMJI NOWROJI BANAJI; HARRIVULLBHDAS CALLIANDAS v. ARDASAR FRAMJI MOOS, 5 B. 45.

(47)—Refusal to appoint—Appealable order—Civ. Pro. Code, ss. 503, 588.—An order refusing to appoint a receiver is an order under s. 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure and is appealable under s. 588, cl. (24). VENKATASAMI v. STRIDAVAMMA, 10 M. 179, F.B. (6 M. 355, Overruled.) [F., 17 C. 680; R., 24 B. 38, 31 C. 495.]

(48)—Order refusing to appoint a Receiver—Appeal—Order on appeal—Ss 503 and 588, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882.—An order rejecting an application for the appointment of a Receiver under s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, is appealable. The order in appeal being final, no further appeal lies from it under s. 588, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882. RAMCHANDRA GHOSE v. BALLY MUNICIPALITY, 17 C. 680. (6 C.L.R. 467, F.) [R., 31 C. 495.]

(49)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act X of 1877), ss. 503, 505—Receiver—Appeal.—An order dismissing an application for the appointment of a receiver is an order under s. 503 and not under s. 505, and is therefore appealable under s. 588 of the Code. A Subordinate Judge may, if he has sufficient grounds, decline to appoint a receiver even though he might have received the necessary authority from the District Judge under s 505 to do so. GOSSAIN DULMIR PURI v. TEKAIT HETNARAIN, 6 C.L.R. 467. [F., 10 M. 179, 17 C. 680, 24 B. 38, 31 C. 495, 53 P.W.R. 1910=36 P.R. 1910; R., U.B.R. 1908, 2nd Qr., C.P.C., 17.]

(50)—O. XL, r. 1, and O. XLIII (1), Civ. Pro. Code, 1908—Appointment of Receiver when allowed—Appeal from order refusing to appoint Receiver—Hindu Law—Position of eldest brother.—Held that—(1) An order refusing to appoint a Receiver is appealable. (24 B. 38, 31 C. 495, 6 C.L.R. 467, 10 M. 179, F.B., F.) (2) The exercise of the jurisdiction to appoint a Receiver under O. XL, r. 1, is not a matter ex debito justitiæ, and the Code leaves it to the Court to decide whether to make the appointment would, in its opinion, be "just and convenient." But in all such cases the opinion of the first Court is entitled to great weight and is liable to be set aside only if it is either arbitrary, vague and fanciful. (10 C. 713, F.) (3) The appointment of a Receiver should only be granted where some specific act of misappropriation, malversation or mismanagement is shown, but not on a mere apprehension of future waste; and this principle is particularly to be applied in case of partition of Hindus' joint property in the hands of the eldest brother, who, according to Hindu Law, is in the position of manager of that property. SANT RAM v. RAM CHAND, 53 P.W.R. 1910=36 P.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 659=72 P.L.R. 1910. (73 P.R. 1902, 17 C. 614, 18 M. 23, D.)

(51)—S. 503 (b), Civ. Pro. Code (1882)—Receiver, appointment of—Stranger, removal of Court's discretion—Receiver's appointment, when takes effect—Possessory lien of agent of mortgagor, if paramount to right of Receiver appointed in the suit of the mortgagee.—An order, authorising a Receiver appointed by the Court to remove any person in possession of the property, is appealable under s. 588, cl. 24, Civ. Pro. Code (1882), at the instance of the person sought to be dispossessed. The mere assertion, by a stranger in possession, of a paramount title against the Receiver, does not compel the Court to withhold its hands. The title must be proved. The Court has a discretion, which it will exercise judicially in determining whether or not it will direct the removal of a stranger upon a proceeding under s. 103. The test which the Court will apply in such a case is whether the parties to the suit or some or one of them have or has a present right to remove the stranger. The possessory lien of an agent is subject to all the rights and equities available against the principal at the time such lien attaches. The appointment of a Receiver does not take effect or date back by relation to a period prior to his appointment. The appointment of a Receiver is complete on the entry of an order of appointment, although he may not be able to take actual possession of the property until the security is approved. ROWLAND HUDSON v. JOHN PIERPONT MORGAN, 13 C.W.N. 654=9 C.L.J. 563=36 C. 713=1 Ind. Cas. 356.

(52)—Appointment of receiver—Order nominating person—Order of confirmation by District Court—Appeal—Nomination for office of receiver—Duty of Judge confirming nomination.—Neither a preliminary order under s. 505 of the Civ. Pro. Code, nominating a person for appointment as a Receiver for approval by a District Judge, nor the order confirming such nomination, is appealable. [R., 10 M. 179 F.B., 1 O.C. Sup. 21, 1 O.C. 168, 24 B. 38,

Receiver—continued.

31 C. 495, 34 C. 305=5 C.L.J. 270; Appr., 21 B. 328, 33 B. 104=10 Bom. L. R. 1037.] When a nomination is made for the office of receiver, the District Judge must, in addition to deciding upon the fitness of the person nominated for the office, also decide on the necessity for the appointment of a receiver itself. BIRAJAN KOOER v. RAM CHURN LALL MAHTA, 7 C. 719=9 C.L.R. 203.

(53)—Appeal—Receiver - Order that Receiver should be appointed—Not appealable.—An order that a receiver should be appointed, which is not an order appointing a Receiver, is not appealable. SRIMATI MATHURIA DEBI v. SHIB DYAL SINGH HAZARI, 3 Ind. Cas. 430. (7 C. 719, 9 C.L.R. 203, F.)

(54)—Civ. Pro. Code, Act VIII of 1859, s. 92 —Refusal to appoint receiver—Order not appealable.—An order refusing to appoint a receiver under Act VIII of 1859, s. 92, was not appealable. Ex parte IMBICHI PATAMA, 1 M.H.C. 129.

(55)—Civ. Pro. Code, ss. 503, 508 (24)—Refusal to appoint a receiver—Appeal.—An order refusing to appoint a receiver under s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, is not appealable. SUBRAMANYA v. APPASAMI, 6 M. 355. [Overruled, 10 M. 179; R., 24 B. 38.]

(56)—Order refusing to sanction appointment of Receiver, passed by District Judge—Execution of decree—Appeal—Civ. Pro. Code, ss. 503, 505 and 588.—Held, that the order of the District Judge, refusing to sanction the appointment of a Receiver on the nomination of the Subordinate Judge in proceedings in execution of a decree, was passed under s. 505 and not under s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, and as such was not appealable under s. 588, Civ. Pro. Code. SANKATA DIN v. SHANKAR BAKHSH, 1 O.C. Supp. 21.

(57)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882. ss. 503 and 588, cl. (24)—Receiver's accounts, orders in passing—Appeal.—The directions which a Court gives in passing a Receiver's accounts are not appeallable under cl. (24) of s. 588 of the Civ. Pro. Code. RANI KESHABATI KUMARI v. W. O. MACGREGOR, 12 C.W.N. 648=35 C. 568. [R., 18 M.L.J. 589=4 M L.T. 268.]

(58)—Receiver, position and function of.—The receiver appointed in a particular suit is nothing more than the hand of the Court, so to speak, for the purpose of holding the property of the litigants whenever it is necessary that it should be kept in the grasp of the Court in order to preserve the subject-matter of the suit pendente lite; and the possession of the receiver is simply the possession of the Court. Any attempt to disturb that possession, without the leave of the Court, is a contempt of Court. The receiver has no personal rights in the property, and he cannot take any steps even for the purpose of defending his possession, without the sanction of the Court. As a rule, so little personal interest of any kind has he in the matter, that he is not justified in making any application whatever to the Court. If it is necessary that he should take action of any sort, it is for the parties to the suit, or one of them, to come to the Court to put him in motion; and whatever the receiver rightly does, with regard to the property, he does it simply in the character of agent for the owners of the property, or the persons interested in it. WILKINSON v. GANGADHAR SIRKAR, 6 B L.R. 486. [R., 31 C. 572.]

(59)—Powers and duties of Receiver—Act II of 1874 (Administrator-General's Act)—Private agreement with one of the parties.—A Receiver is a servant of the Court and not of the parties to the suit, and has only such power and authority as the Court may choose to give him. Any interference with his management by a secret agreement, whether come to before or after the appointment, is nothing short of an interference with the Court in the management of the estate. He ought not, without the special leave of the Court and without giving notice to it, enter into any private agreement with any of the parties. The party so interfering renders himself liable to the penalties of contempt. MANICK LALL SEAL v. SURRET COOMAREE DASSEE, 22 C. 648. [R., 61 P.L. R. 1902, 30 C. 696.]

(60)—Receiver appointed, pending appeal, rights of—Contempt proceedings by Receiver himself—Court, jurisdiction of.—A Receiver of property appointed by an Appellate Court pending an appeal to that Court, even when the appeal is no longer pending, must, until he is finally discharged, be regarded as the Receiver of the property, of which he has been put in possession. He has the right to take proceedings against a party for contempt, of his own motion and till the time of his discharge. The Appellate Court has ample jurisdiction, until the Receiver has had his accounts passed by it, to deal with matters relating to him, including contempt proceedings. GREY v. WOOGRAMOHUN THAKUR, 28 C. 790.

(61)—Defendant realising sums after Receiver's appointment—Powers of Court.—In a partition suit, the District Judge appointed a Receiver for the property in dispute, and the defendants, while their case was under appeal, realized certain sums, which the Receiver might have realized, and the District Judge directed them to pay in at once the sums realized by them to the Receiver or into the Court. Held that the property vested in the Receiver directly the order appointing him had been passed, and no one had the right to assume his functions without reference to the Court, and the order passed by the District Judge was proper and within his powers. PALA MAL v. TEK CHAND, 61 P.L.R. 1902.

(62)—Receiver—Loss—Who should bear it—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 503.—The appointment of a Receiver is an act of Court and once made, he is an officer or representative of the Court, and subject to its orders. His possession is the possession of the Court by its Receiver and enures for the benefit of all the parties to the proceeding according to their title. If a loss arises from the default of the Receiver, the estate must bear the loss as between the parties to the suit or proceeding. ORR v. MUTHIA CHETTY, 17 M. 501. [Affirmed by the Full Bench, 20 M. 224; Appl., 2 C.L.J. 602.]

Receiver—continued.

(63)—Duties and liability of Receiver—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 503 (=O. XL rr. 1 to 3, new Code).—A Receiver appointed under s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, to collect the rents of an estate, is bound to make good a loss caused to it by a breach of his duties. A Receiver is not justified in delegating or entrusting to another a duty entrusted to him by the Court as its selected and trusted officer. In all important matters, the Receiver should apply for and obtain the direction of the Judge who appoints him. A Receiver is entitled to his costs, charges and the expenses properly incurred in the discharge of his duties. BALAJI NARAYAN PATVARDHAN v. RAMACHANDRA GOVIND KANADE, 19 B. 660. [R., 5 C.W.N. 223, 61 P.L.R. 1902.]

(64)—Liability of Receiver, executor and trustee, contrasted—Debt on behalf of estate—Right of Receiver to indemnity—Parties—Creditor's right to proceed against representative of estate for debts contracted by Receiver as manager.—A Receiver occupies a position towards the estate in his hands different from that of an executor or trustee. A Receiver acts through the Court. His acts are virtually the acts of the Court. Executors or trustees, not acting through or under directions of the Court, do not and cannot, under ordinary circumstances, create obligations binding on the estate in favour of creditors. In the event of a Receiver being sued for acts done by him as such, he would doubtless be entitled to rely on his right to indemnity, as against the estate; and in order to try this question of indemnity, it would be necessary to secure the presence of the beneficiaries or others as parties to the suit, who are interested in questioning the authority of the Receiver. A creditor has the right to proceed against the representative of an estate for the debt incurred by the Receiver during his management of the estate. The right to maintain such a suit is founded on the fact and equitable principle that as the acts of a Receiver, so long as they fall within his authority, are the acts of the Court, the estate cannot be permitted to enjoy the benefit of those acts without being held responsible for the obligations arising out of them. (Burt Boulton and Haywar v. Bull, (1895), 1 Q.B. 276, Expl.) MOHARI BIBI v. SHYANA BIBI, 30 C. 937=7 C.W.N. 799.

(65)—Dismissal of suit in which Receiver was appointed—Effect on Receiver's powers.—Although, where a Receiver has been appointed in a suit, the Court usually directs, at the instance of the parties or of some of them, that the Receiver should pass his final accounts and then be discharged, the Court has no power, after the suit has been dismissed, to give the Receiver any fresh power, such as liberty to sell. RABEHOLME v. SMITH, 34 C. 336.

Receiver—continued.

(66)—Receiver—Execution sale of property in hands of—Illegality—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 244, 248—Non-service of notice on judgment debtor, if ground for setting aside the sale—Confirmation of sale, effect.—Where the receiver appointed by the Court was directed to take possession of moveable properties and of the rents and profits of the immoveable properties, and was further authorised to get in and collect all debts and claims due to the estate. Held, that he must be taken to have been appointed Receiver in respect of the whole estate, and had authority to apply for an order absolute on a decree nisi for foreclosure. A sale of the foreclosure decree, while the estate was in the possession of the receiver in execution of a decree for money, without leave of the Court previously obtained, was illegal and liable to be avoided; and punishment by the procedure for contempt was not the only remedy against such unauthorised sales. The provisions of s. 248 are not mandatory. A sale held without issue of notice under s. 248, Civ. Pro. Code (1882) is therefore not a nullity, but such an omission is a serious irregularity, sufficient to vacate the sale upon an application made by the judgment-debtor under s. 244 of the Code. (5 C.W.N. 10, 25 B. 337, 27 I.A. 216, 32 B. 572, 21 B. 424, 9 C.L.J. 271, 36 C. 543, R.) Such an irregularity is a ground for setting aside the sale even after it has been confirmed. (11 C.W.N. 1011, 35 C. 61, R.) A purchaser of property at an execution sale is not protected, when grounds for setting aside the sale under s. 244 or s. 311 are established, merely because he is a stranger. MRS. LEVINA ASHTON v. MADHABMONI DASI, 14 C.W.N. 560=5 Ind. Cas. 390=11 C. L. J. 489. (13 C.W.N. 710, R.)

(67)—Order appointing Receiver, powers of Receiver under—Suit to eject tenant, right of—Monthly tenant—Notice to quit—Holding over.—A Receiver appointed with power "to let and set the immoveable property in dispute or any part thereof as he shall think fit and to take and use all such lawful and equitable means and remedies for recovering, realising and obtaining payment of the rents and profits thereof, and of the outstandings, debts and claims, by action, suit or otherwise, as shall be expedient," had sufficient power to bring a suit to eject a monthly tenant, whose tenancy was determinable by a notice to quit, without obtaining special leave of the Court. HURIDAS KUNDU v. MACGREGOR, 18 C. 477. [R., 31 C. 304=5 C.L.J. 270.]

(68)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 503—Powers of receiver.—The provisions of s. 503 of the Civ. Pro. Code, were intended to declare that the receiver had, in respect of all property which was or could be attached, the powers of the owner, as they existed at the time the property was brought under the orders of the Court, provided they have not ceased by operation of law. Therefore, where the lease of a portion of a Zemindari for a term was, after attachment of the Zemindari in execution of a decree, renewed for a lesser rent and in perpetuity a receiver subsequently appointed with full powers could claim the higher rate of rent from the lessees, ignoring the lease executed subsequent to the attachment. GOPALSAMI v. SANKARA, 8 M. 418. [R., 34 C. 305=5 C.L.J. 270.]

Receiver—continued.

(69)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 503—Powers.—Where a receiver is appointed with full powers under s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, to a Zemindari, the whole of which was placed under attachment in execution, the receiver is entitled to maintain a suit against the inamdars of the village, who with the Zemindar are jointly interested in the up-keep of a tank, for the sums which the Zemindar had spent before attachment towards its repairs, and which the inamdars should have contributed for that object. SUNDARAM v. SANKARA, 9 M. 334. [Appr., 34 C. 305=5 C.L.J. 270.]

(70)—Power of—Suit to eject tenant claiming permanent tenure without leave of Court—Maintainability—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 503.—Where the order appointing a receiver to a certain estate authorized him to take possession of the property (moveable and immoveable) of the estate, and, amongst other things, authorized him to let and set the said immoveable property or any part thereof as he should think fit, and the Court did not give him full powers under the provisions of s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, under which he was appointed, and where the receiver served a notice to quit on certain tenants of the estate claiming to hold a permanent lease, and afterwards instituted a suit to eject them, both without special leave of the Court, held, that the receiver's acts were unauthorized without leave of Court, and that the suit should be dismissed. DROBOMOYI GUPTA v. C. T. DAVIS, 14 C 323. [D., 18 C. 477; R., 5 C.L.J. 270=34 C. 305.]

(71)—Sale by, by order of Court—Right of a party to suit to challenge validity of sale in a separate suit Shebait of Thakur, a party—Right of succeeding shebait to recover property sold—Representation of Thakur by Shebait—Continuing representation—Application in suit to set aside sale.—Maintainability.—A sale of properties, the subject-matter of a suit, by the Receiver, under the order of the Court, cannot, in the absence of fraud, be attacked collaterally by persons, who were parties thereto, or their representatives (6 B.L.R. 486, R.) Where one member of a joint Hindu family, sued for partition of certain properties, on the allegation that they were secular properties of the family, and another resisted it on the ground that the properties were the absolute debutter properties of the family, idol of which he was the shebait, and a receiver was appointed in that suit, and he, under the direction of the Court, sold certain portions of the properties to meet the costs of the suit, held, in a suit brought to recover the properties sold, by persons claiming to be successors in office of the shebait, that the substantial question raised in the former suit was as to the real character of the properties sold and the

Receiver—continued.

Thakur was represented in it in the only manner possible, viz., by the shebait. The succeeding shebaits, forming a continuing representation of the Thakur's property, were bound by the order for sale, which it was not open to them to challenge in an independent action. (2 I.A. 145, 8 C.W.N. 809=31 I.A. 203, 13 M.I.A. 270, 9 C.W.N. 961=32 I.A. 193, 2 C.L.J. 189, Rel. on.) Quære—Whether, having regard to the purpose for which the properties were sold, an application in the former suit to set aside the order would have succeeded. GORA CHAND LURKI v. MAKHAN LAL CHAKRAVARTTY, 11 C.W.N. 489=6 C.L.J. 404. [F., 6 M.L.T. 363=12 C.W.N. 739=9 C.L.J. 597; R., 6 C.L.J. 621.]

(72)—Receiver appointed in execution of decree—Payment to receiver by tenants of judgment-debtor—Effect on liability of judgment-debtor—In execution of a decree, a receiver was appointed to superintend the harvest and collect the rents payable to the judgment debtor. No security was demanded from the receiver. Instead of paying the moneys collected by him into Court, the receiver misappropriated them and absconded. The question was whether the judgment-debtor could claim credit for the moneys so collected but not paid into Court. Held per Shephard, J., that the moneys paid by the tenants to the receiver did not pro tanto relieve the judgment-debtor from liability under the decree. Held per Davies, J., that the payments made to the receiver were good and valid discharges pro tanto of the decree debt. MUTHIA CHETTI v. ORR, 20 M 224, F.B.

(73)—Receiver—Mortgage suit—Mortgagor taking money from Receiver as accommodation loan—Refusal to pay—Power of Court to compel payment.—A Receiver was appointed in a mortgage suit from whose officer the judgment-debtor took a sum of money as accommodation loan out of the funds of the Receiver in his hands. The officer was dead and the judgment-debtor refused to re-pay the amount: Held, that the Court had power to direct the judgment-debtor to deposit the money in Court within a fixed time; and that in default of such deposit the Receiver was entitled to execute the order of the Court as a decree. CHANDRA SEKHAR PROSAD SINGH v. HARI HARENDRA SAHAI, 10 Ind. Cas. 893=15 C.L.J. 254.

(74)—Appointment of Receiver in a suit for partition of joint family property—Execution of decree, against certain members of the family—Inability of the Receiver to raise the decretal amount—Direction to the decree-holder to proceed against the property—Effect of.—In a suit for partition of joint family property, a Receiver was appointed. While the suit was pending, the respondent, a decree-holder against certain members of the family, made an application for execution of his decree, and the executing Court made an order that the decree should be made over to the Receiver with the direction that he should raise the decretal amount from the usufruct of the property. Upon the Receiver reporting his inability to raise the amount without selling the family property, the Court ordered the respondent to proceed against the property, and, accordingly, he applied for sale of the property. The appellants, the judgment-debtors, contended that the order appointing the Receiver was a bar to the application for the execution of the decree. Held, that the order of the Court directing the respondent to proceed against the property of the appellants had the effect of discharging the Receiver. Consequently, there was no bar to the present application for execution. RAGHUNATH NAIK v. GOPINATH NAIK, A.W.N. 1905, 110.

Receiver—continued.

(75)—Attorney on the record—Right of plaintiff to consent in person—Application for payment of money by Receiver—Receiver, application for payment — Of money by—Attachment and claim on funds' in Receiver's hands—Receiver to appear and inform Court.—Where the plaintiff has an attorney on the record, he has no right to appear in person to consent to an application for payment of money by the Receiver. In all applications for payment of money by a Receiver, the Receiver ought to appear and give information to the Court about funds in his hands and whether there are any attachments or claims on the same. CHAITAN CHARUN MULLICK v. GOCOOL CHANDRA MULLICK, 1 C.W.N. 303.

(76)—Money in his hands—Pressing debts — Power of Court to order him topay. — Plaintiff obtained a decree for his half share of an estate and a Receiver was appointed to ascertain and divide the said estate. In the meanwhile, two creditors whose debts were running at considerable interest threatened to attach the property of the estate. The plaintiff applied to the Court for an order to the Receiver to pay those two debts out of the plaintiff's half share of the moneys in his hands, leaving the question whether they ought to be paid out of the whole estate to be determined in the office of the Commissioner, when the proper time for ascertaining that fact arises. Held that the Court had undoubted jurisdiction to make an order for payment of these sums out of the plaintiff's share. From early times, it was the practice of the Court of Chancery in England to make such orders; but the Court seems to have exercised the power very sparingly and only in very special cases and under special conditions. MOTIVAHU v. PREMVAHU, 16 B. 511. [R., 13 M.L.J. 501=27 M. 168.]

(77)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 503—Management by receiver—Claim for wages of servants.—Where the properties of a firm have been placed by the Court under the management of receiver, a servant of such firm has no preferential right over the creditors of the firm, to his wages accrued due befor the appointment of the receiver. SHORT v. PICKERING, 6 M. 138.

(78)—Receiver with power to borrow for certain purposes—Death of Receiver—Repayment of money borrowed by Receiver, out of funds in Court.—A Receiver who was appointed to the charge of certain property in dispute was instructed by the Court to receive from the decree-holder such sums as might from time to time be necessary, by reason of the current receipts of a certain temple being insufficient to carry on the current expenditure of it. Under these instructions advances were made by the decree-holder, but the Receiver instead of repaying those amounts, and entering them in his accounts, remitted the whole amount of collections to the Court. Held that, though strictly and technically speaking the decree-holder's remedy would be against the receiver personally who, under the order of the Court was authorised to repay and ought to have repaid the advances to the decree-holder, still, as the Receiver was dead and as there was a fund in Court out of which those advances might properly have been repaid, the Court could deal with the matter so as to enquire how far the sums alleged were advanced, in conformity with the order of the Court, bona fide for the purpose of carrying on the worship of the idol, and whether the decree-holder was not fairly entitled to be repaid. CHUNDER MOHUN DUTT v. ISSUREE NUND DUTT, 11 W.R. 224.

(79)—Receiver in insolvency, purchase by—Sanction to purchase.—The purchase by a Receiver in insolvency of property belonging to the insolvent's estate is irregular, and the Court ought not to sanction such a purchase. RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKAYAB, 5 C.W.N. 91.

(80)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 356—Receiver — Commission.—A Receiver appointed in insolvency proceedings under the Civ. Pro. Code is entitled to the remuneration at the scale fixed by the Court, but for the amount of that fee, he is only entitled to a lien to the extent of five per cent., upon the sum remaining as net assets after the charges specified in cls. (b), (c) and (d) of s. 356, Code of Civil Procedure, have been paid. MAHADEVA v. KUPPUSAMI, 15 M. 233.

(81)—S. 503 Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 (=O. XL, rr. 1 to 3, new Code), position of Receiver under —Promise to pay salary of Receiver without permission of Court, effect of.—A Receiver is an officer of the Court. Under s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, the Court is to determine what fee or commission a Receiver is entitled by way of remuneration The parties cannot to by any act of their's add to or derogate from the function of the Court, without authority from the Court itself. An agreement to pay the remuneration of a Receiver without any leave from the Court, even if it is not conditional, is not binding on the persons promising, as it is made in contravention of the law. A suit cannot be brought on such an agreement. PROKASH CHANDRA SARKAR v. ADLAM, 30 C. 696. (22 C. 648, R.) discharged by the dismissal of the suit in which he was appointed, is entitled to a lien on the estate for all his just claims and allowances. PREMLALL MULLICK v. SUMBHOONATH ROY, 22 C. 960.

(82)—Receiver's lien on estate—Receiver discharged by dismissal of suit.—A Receiver though

Receiver—continued.

(83)—Appointment of Receiver in administration suit—Preservation of property from possible danger.—The mere fact that the appointment of a receiver would, in an administration suit filed by a next friend on behalf of his minor wife which was found to be under the circumstances unnecessary and uncalled for, preserve the fund from a possible danger in the future, cannot bring it within the ordinary rule as to the solicitor's lien, even if it could, which is very much a matter of doubt, by the existence of the word "preserved," which is introduced into the English Statute 23 and 24 Vic., cap. 127. DEVKABAI v. BHAISHANKAR AND DINSHA, 10 B. 248. [R., 30 B. 27=6 Bom. L. R. 879, 7 Bom. L.R. 547.]

(84)—Receiver's liability to account.—A Court, having appointed a Receiver in a suit, has authority incidental to its jurisdiction, to order him to account, although the suit may be no longer pending. The estate is in its hands, and the Receiver is its officer, and the dismissal of the suit by an appellate Court does not alter that state of things. The original Court in such a case may permit parties to intervene on questions as to the accounts, and may deal with costs and other matters. ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF BENGAL v. PREM LALL MULLICK, 22 C. 1011, P.C.=5 M.L.J. 157=22 I.A. 203=6 Sar. 660.

(85)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act V of 1908), O. XL, r. 3—Receiver, duty of—Accounts, examination of—Parties interested, right to object—Notice—Receiver, if can incur expenses without leave of Court—Transaction, beneficial—Receiver, when can charge for legal assistance—Receiver if can retain counsel of either party—Pleader's authority to represent his client, when terminates—Receiver, if can be charged with interest for money improperly kept — Order authorizing expenditure, when conclusive—Receiver's account, when can be re-opened—Appeal—Discretion in passing accounts.—It is not compliance with the letter or the spirit of r. 3, O. XL of the Code, merely to examine the accounts submitted by the Receiver, and ascertain whether the alleged payments made are supported by vouchers. The Receiver is but an officer of the Court appointing him, and is, therefore, bound to account to that Court for all property which he has received. It is his duty to keep his accounts and vouchers in such condition that they will be ready for examination at any time. Whenever property or funds come into the hands of a Receiver pending litigation, the Court may require him to report his acts and doings and to render an account in order to ascertain the condition of the property, and to enable the Court to settle the rights of, and do justice to, all the litigant parties; when the accounts of the Receiver come up for adjustment, he is a party in interest, entitled to be heard, and it is the duty of the Court to see that his rights are protected; but so, also, all other interested parties are entitled to notice and an opportunity to attend and be heard. All persons, having an interest in the estate which the Receiver represents, have the right to be present, and be examined on any subject pertinent to the enquiry which springs out of the proceedings itself, and to take exception to the Receiver's accounts. Courts are disposed to hold Receivers to great strictness in rendering their accounts: and a thorough investigation of the accounts and vouchers is proper where the rights of infants are involved. A Receiver is bound to exercise the same degree of diligence in keeping down expenses and in caring for the estate in his possession, that a prudent man would observe in connection with his own property under similar circumstances. A Receiver, therefore, will not ordinarily be permitted, without the sanction and authority of the Court, to incur any expenditure which will seriously diminish the funds entrusted to his charge, and it is his duty, if he wishes to protect himself, to apply to the Court for instructions as to expenditure, and to keep regular accounts of all items of receipts and expenditures. Where a Receiver has laid out money without a previous order of Court, and the transaction is proved by him to have been beneficial to the parties in interest, he is entitled to be allowed credit in his accounts for the amount thus expended. A Receiver is entitled to legal assistance in proper cases, and will be allowed reasonable and proper fees in his behalf out of the funds, not only when the employment has been previously sanctioned by the Court, but also when it was not previously authorised, if the expense has been incurred in the exercise of a sound discretion. Such allowance will be made only for services requiring legal skill, but not for services which were not rendered to the Receiver or for services which were not in behalf of the interests represented by the Receiver, or what were rendered in matters with which the estate in the Receiver's hand had no concern, or in which the interest only of the Receiver personally may be involved, or for services, the necessity for which had been caused by the Receiver. Such allowances are to be carefully scrutinised, and if they are unnecessary or extravagant, they should be reduced or disallowed altogether. Such allowances are in substance to be governed by the reasonable necessities in that regard, if the Receiver has properly discharged the duties which belong to him to perform, by the time necessarily spent in the administration, the grade of service required, the efficiency of that rendered, the benefit to the trust property, the fidelity displayed and by all other circumstances throwing light on the question. A Receiver should not employ the Counsel of either of the parties to the litigation in which he was appointed; since their duty is to protect the interests of their respective clients and to watch the Receiver's proceedings, to the end that a favourable performance of the duties may be insured, they are not regarded as competent to act as Counsel for the Receiver, and their undertaking to act in such a capacity might frequently cast upon them inconsistent and conflicting duties which could not be properly discharged by one and the same person. The rule prohibiting a Receiver from employing the Counsel of either party in the cause, is limited in its application to cases where the Receiver is acting adversely to one of the parties to the litigation. The authority of a Solicitor to represent his client does not necessarily terminate with the judgment in the suit. In general, a Receiver will not be allowed to make interest for his own benefit upon funds in his hands, and will be answerable for interest upon the balance. A Receiver may, therefore, be charged with interest on moneys improperly kept in his hands, although he has passed his accounts, and all parties have expressed themselves satisfied; and for this purpose, an enquiry may be directed as to what money he has received from time to time, and how long he has kept it in his hands. If an order has been made authorising expenditure, after notice to all parties interested, and has remained unimpeached, it is conclusive, and the expenditure cannot be questioned on the Receiver's final accounting. But if an order authorising expenditure is made upon the ex parte application of the Receiver, without notice to the interested parties, they are at liberty to contest its correctness upon the Receiver's final accounting, and the Court may investigate and determine the correctness of all the Receiver's accounts, notwithstanding that a partial report has been previously approved. A Receiver's accounts, which have been filed and vouched before an examiner, can be reopened on the discovery of errors in them, notwithstanding that the Judge's certificate is attached, and a Receiver may be surcharged on his accounts, notwithstanding that he has been discharged. No appeal lies from directionsgiven by the Court in passing a Receiver's account. MOHINI MOHAN PATRA v. RAM NARAIN PATRA AND BARADA KANTA SIRCAR, 14 C.L.J. 445=12 Ind. Cas. 780. (35 C. 568, F.)

Receiver—continued.

Receiver—continued.

(86)—Receiver—Order for discharge of receiver and rendition of accounts—Appeal—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 588.—A suit during the pendency of which a Receiver had been appointed, was compromised, and the compromise was embodied in a decree of the High Court. Subsequently, one of the parties applied to the Subordinate Judge, asking for the discharge of the Receiver and for rendition of accounts, and it was ordered that "the Receiver be dismissed, and account be rendered to the decree-holder according to the compromise accepted by the Hon'ble High Court, and possession also be given." Held that no appeal would lie against such order. SANT SARAN DAS v. GULAB DAS, A.W.N. 1903, 67.

(87)—S. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882 (O. XL, rr. 1 to 3, present Code)—Receiver, liability of—

Receiver—continued.

Extent—Accounts—Receiver's accounts—Application by receiver to pass his accounts—Practice and procedure.—A Receiver is responsible for all properties which come into his custody or management, and he is responsible, not only for actual sums received by him, but for those which might have been received by him but for his wilful neglect and default. (19 B. 660, R.) A Receiver's liability is not restricted to matters shown upon his accounts. The only question which properly arises on an application by a Receiver to pass his accounts is as to the items of that particular account, and involves the enquiry whether all his collections made on behalf of the property of which he is the Receiver, are duly entered in the accounts, and next, whether all his disbursements are payments properly made in respect of that estate. If there is any liability attaching to the Receiver, other than that which appears on the face of the accounts, the proper course is to sue the Receiver for the purpose of establishing that liability. Even where a prima facie case of the responsibility of the receiver for malpractices of his servants is made out, an inquiry into such mal-practices is foreign to an application to pass the Receiver's accounts. The objection that a Receiver has not included in his accounts collections made in the mofussil cannot be dealt with upon an application to pass his accounts. If a prima facie ground is made out of the accountability of the Receiver for the mofussil collections, the proper course is to either postpone the passing of the accounts, until the question of the Receiver's liability is established by suit, or to pass the accounts, reserving the rights of the parties to establish any claim they may make against the Receiver in a suit properly framed for the purpose. Questions with regard to the soundness or prudence of the system of management adopted by a Receiver, or charges of wilful default or neglect, are not matters that can be disposed of in the shape of exception to accounts. COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR GHOSAL v. RANEE GOLAPMONEE DEBEE, 5 C.W.N. 223.

(88)—Lease—Application to set aside—Summary jurisdiction—Pro interessie suo—Receiver's account—Action — Practice.—No summary order can be passed to set aside a lease already executed and granted by a Receiver. The proper remedy of the aggrieved parties is to institute a regular suit to set aside the lease against the Receiver and also the lessee, if it is alleged that the lease was obtained by collusion. (15 C. 253, D.) No order can be made against a lessee from a Receiver for arrears of rent or interest in an application in a suit. A regular suit ought to be instituted to recover them. The claims against a Receiver for giving up arrears of rent or interest due under a lease granted by him, are matters which cannot be dealt with in an interlocutory application in the suit. Quære.—Whether the Court can go into such matters on the passing of the Receiver's accounts, or the parties must file a suit in respect of them against the Receiver. KRISTA CHANDRA GHOSE v. KRISTA SAKHA GHOSE, 12 C.W.N. 1023=36 C. 52=1 Ind. Cas. 470.

Receiver—continued.

(89)—Receiver's application for leave to sue—Meaning and consequences—Suit by receiver for specific performance—Leave to sue.—An application that the receiver in a suit should have leave to sue simply means this, that he should use the names of the owners of the property, and come into Court on their behalf, whether they consent to his doing so or not; and the consequence of such an order would be that the Court would compel the parties to the suit to abide by the result of the suit which the receiver was about to institute in their names, and would authorize the receiver to reimburse himself for the expenses of the proceedings in that suit out of the property of the owners. [R., 11 C.W.N. 489 =6 C.L.J. 404; D., 5 C.L.J. 270=34 C. 305.] Where a contract of sale of certain land in the possession of a receiver in a suit was made by the receiver in his own name and there was an order of the Court in the suit for the sale of the property, and the defendant who became the purchaser of a portion of it refused to take the land, alleging that it did not correspond in quality with the specification of it, and the Court gave the receiver leave to sue, a plaint, in a suit for specific performance of the contract of purchase, presented with the name of the receiver as co-plaintiff was admitted. WILKINSON v. GANGADHAR SIRKAR, 6 B.L. R. 486. [D., 5 C.L.J. 270=34 C. 305.]

(90)—Receiver appointed by Court—Receiver's possession—Suits by and against Receiver.—When a Receiver is appointed by the Court, his possession is the possession of the Court, and he cannot be interfered with, except with the leave of the Court (Ex parte Cochrane, L.R. 20 Eq. 282; Russell v. East Anglian Railway Co., 3 Mac. & G 104; Ames v. Trustees of Birkenhead Docks, 20 Beav. 332, R.). Semble.—The Receiver can neither sue nor be sued without the leave of the Court. A. M. DUNNE v. KUMAR CHUNDRA KISOR, 7 C.W.N. 390=30 C. 593. (10 C. 1014, R.)

(91)—Leave to sue—Party to suit.—When a Receiver has been appointed to a property, the leave of the Court should be taken to bring a suit in respect of it. But in a suit for declaration of title when the beneficial owner has been made a party, it is not necessary to join the Receiver. RODGER v. ASHUTOSH MUKERJI, 6 C.W.N. 829. (5 C.W.N. xv, Expl. & D.)

(92)—Suit by or against Receiver—Sanction of Court.—The receiver of the High Court does not represent the owner of an estate. He is an officer of the Court, and as such cannot sue or be sued except with the permission of the Court. A.B. MILLER v. RAM RANJAN CHAKRAVARTI, 10 C. 1014. [F., 26 M. 492; R., 14 C. 323, 30 C. 593; D., 18 C. 477.]

(93)—Calcutta Municipal Act (III of 1899, B.C.), ss. 320, 574—Receiver appointed by Court, whether owner of "premises" he is holding—Receiver—Leave of Court necessary before making him party to proceedings or suit.—A Receiver appointed by the High Court is not the owner of the premises he holds as Receiver, with in the definition of the term "owner" in the Municipal Act. If he receives rent for such premises, he does not do so on his own account, or as agent or trustee for any person or society, or for any religious or charitable purpose, but as an officer of the Court and as manager of the property on its behalf. A Receiver appointed by Court cannot be made a party to any suit or proceedings without the leave of the Court appointing him. W. R. FINK v. THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL CORPORATION, 7 C. W. N. 706=30 C. 721.

(94)—Suit against—Leave to sue when to be granted.—The consent of the Court to an action against a Receiver appointed by it is a condition precedent to the right of the party to sue. The mistake, in wrongly bringing a suit without such sanction, cannot be rectified by an application for permission to continue the suit. Where a suit has been instituted without such permission, leave to bring a fresh action against the Receiver in respect of the same cause of action cannot be granted, until the pending suit has either been dismissed or withdrawn. PROMOTHA NATH GANGULI v. KHETTRA NATH BANERJEE, 9 C.W.N. 247=32 C. 270.

(95)—Leave to sue the Receiver—When necessary.—It is neither necessary nor desirable in every case to allow the Receiver to be sued as Receiver. But where any right is established by a decree in the suit to the property in the hands of the Receiver, then the person, in whose favour the right is declared, may apply to the Court, when it will make such order as is proper and direct the Receiver to satisfy the decree. ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL v. DASAI GOUNDAN, 9 M.L.T. 300.

(96)—S. 503, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882—Right of receiver, to sue in his own name—Practice.—The Court has power to allow a receiver to sue in his own name, and if the order appointing the Receiver gives him such power in express terms, he may institute suits in his own name. The authority to give that power is conferred on the Court by s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code. WILLIAM ROBERT FINK v. MOHARAJ BAHADUR SINGH, 25 C 642=2 C.W.N. 469. [Rel. on, 34 C. 305=5 C.L.J. 270.]

(97)—Receiver's failure to collect amount—Negligence—Right of party aggrieved to sue—Receiver—Leave of Court.—Plaintiff sued to recover a sum of money from a Receiver for failure to collect the amount by instituting suits within the period of limitation. Held that as a Receiver is but an officer of the Court, acting within the limits of the authority assigned to him and on behalf of the Court, the party feeling aggrieved by his conduct as Receiver should seek redress against him in the very proceeding in which he was appointed as

Receiver—continued.

Receiver, and any separate proceedings taken against him either in that Court or elsewhere should be with the leave of the Court under whose authority the Receiver was acting. No such leave having been obtained, the suit failed. KAMATCHI AMMAL v. SUNDARAM AYYAR, 26 M. 492.

(98)—Receiver—Funds in Receiver's hands—Attachment by one of several creditors—Priority—Leave of Court—Duty of Court.—Where certain partnership funds are in the hands of a Court through its officer, the Receiver, a Court of equity will not allow one out of a whole body of creditors to gain priority over the remainder by the simple expedient of attaching the moneys in the Court's hands. Before any one can interfere with the possession of the Receiver by such attachment, the leave of the Court must first be obtained. That leave would never be given but on equitable terms, i.e., such terms as would ensure equality between the creditors. No Court of equity would render any assistance to a creditor seeking by a side-wind, such as this, to gain an advantage over his fellow-creditors. J. KHAN v. ALLI MAHOMED HAJI UMER, 16 B. 577. [F., 21 C. 85; R., 61 P.L.R. 1902, 27 B. 556=5 Bom. L.R. 529.]

(99)—Party to suit, not compellable to give up possession to Receiver of High Court, in absence of order to such effect—Practice—Original side of High Court—Order of Court to party in possession to pay fixed occupation rent.—In a suit instituted in the Supreme Court by K against B and others, the defendants were ordered by the Court to give up the portion of the real estate of one R to the Receiver appointed by the Court to the estate of R. The Receiver having subsequently brought a suit in his own name to recover certain property which he alleged to be part of the estate of the deceased R, the High Court held that, as the Receiver whose nomination had been continued by it, he was not entitled to seek immediate possession of the property and to sue in another Court by himself to receive possession of the property. It is a rule in the original side of the Court, which is taken from the practice of the English Court of Chancery, not to compel a party to a suit to give up to the Receiver possession of property unless an order of Court to that effect had previously been made upon him. In such cases the course is by proper proceedings taken in Court to fix an occupation-rent, and to order the party in possession to pay the occupation rent from the date of the order to that effect. RAM LOCHUN SIRCAR v. HOGG, RECEIVER OF THE ESTATE OF RAM CHUNDER HOLDAR, 10 W.R. 430. [D., 34 C. 305=5 C.L.J. 270.]

(100)—Attachment—Collector retaining property as Receiver—Motion to get rid of attachment.—The acts of a Collector done by him in his capacity of Receiver, in seizing and retaining certain property under his care, cannot be disputed by way of motion to discharge or get rid of the attachment. BISSESSUREE DEBIA v. SOOKRAM DOSS MOHUNT, 15 W.R. 347.

(101)—Party—When Receiver is a necessary party—Suit against Receiver—Permission of Court, whether condition precedent.—Where property in the hands of a Receiver is intended to be affected by the result of the litigation, the Receiver is a proper and necessary party to the suit. (6 Ind. Cas. 214, 14 C.W.N. 653, F.; 10 C. 1014, 5 C.W.N. 15, 27, D.) The consent of the Court to an action against a Receiver appointed by the Court is not a condition precedent to the right of the party to sue, and the omission can be rectified by a subsequent application for leave to continue an action brought without such permission. (32 C. 270, 9 C.W.N. 247, Diss.) Where, therefore, a suit has been brought against a Receiver without the permission of the Court appointing him, it is open to the Court in which the suit has been brought to allow the plaintiff an opportunity to obtain the necessary leave and then to continue the suit. BANKU BEHARY DEY v. HARENDRA NATH MUKERJEE, 8 Ind. Cas. 1.

(102)—Receiver, if a necessary party to rent suit—Appointment of Receiver, if bars suit by creditor—Receiver how sued—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 32—Receiver appointed by another Court, if may be added as party by Court of its own motion.—Where, during the pendency of a suit for rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act, a Receiver was appointed in respect of the entire property of the defendants by another Court, and the property for which the rent was claimed vested in him. Held, that the Receiver was a necessary party to the suit, and if he was not added with the permission of the Court which appointed him, the suit was liable to be dismissed. The appointment of a Receiver does not of itself debar a creditor of the person, over whose estate the Receiver has been appointed, from suing for his claim, provided that such suit does not in any way interfere with the possession or jurisdiction of the Court appointing the Receiver. But where property in the hand of the Receiver is intended to be affected by the result of the litigation, the Receiver is a proper and necessary party to such suit, by way of addition to and not in substitution for the parties primarily responsible. (10 C. 1014, 11 C.L.J. 489, 1 C. 403, 26 C. 157=3 C.W.N. 90, 10 C.L.J. 23, 31 C. 305=5 C.L.J. 270, R.) Where the plaintiffs refused to add the Receiver as a party with leave of the Court appointing him, although they had notice of such appointment. Held, that the Court was not bound, nor was it competent to it, to add the Receiver as a party, of its own motion, under s. 32, Civ. Pro. Code, as the leave of the Court appointing the Receiver was essential. But, as the point raised was of some novelty, and as a fresh suit by the plaintiffs might be barred by limitation, the High Court allowed the plaintiffs an opportunity of continuing the suit by taking steps to make the Receive a party, upon their paying all costs. JOTINDRA NATH CHOWDHURY v. SARFARAJ MIA, 14 C.W.N. 653=6 Ind. Cas. 24.

Receiver—continued.

(103)—Suit in ejectment by Receiver under authority from Court—Decree binding upon the real party ascertained.—When a Court appoints a Receiver in a suit and empowers him to sue in ejectment a person who is not a party to the suit, the necessary implication is that the Receiver as an official representative or trustee is to bring the suit for the benefit of the party who may ultimately appear to be entitled to the property and when the party entitled to the property has been ascertained the Receiver will be considered his Receiver. Where the official representative of an estate sues to recover possession of an estate while the true owner of it is being ascertained by proceedings duly instituted in a Court, any decree passed in favour of the official representative would be for the true owner when ascertained, though he was not a party to it and bind the other party to the decree. The same principle applies, if before the suit ends in a decree, the Receiver's office has come to an end; and the party ascertained has a right to step into the Receiver's place and to continue the proceedings. Where a suit in ejectment is instituted by the Receiver appointed by the Court, and the person beneficially interested in the suit is also a co-plaintiff, and the Receiver is at a subsequent stage of the proceedings discharged, the beneficially interested co-plaintiff can continue the proceedings: the joinder of the plaintiffs though not, strictly speaking, legal, does not constitute mis-joinder. MACLEOD v. KISSON, 6 Bom. L. R. 995=30 B. 250.

(104)—Sale by receiver—Party to conveyance—Sale by Court—Application to complete purchase.—When a receiver in a suit sells certain property under an order of Court, inasmuch as he is in possession of the property, it is practically necessary that he should join in the conveyance. When, however, the sale is by the Court, the parties alone convey, and the officer of the Court does not join. [Expl., 6 B.L.R. 448.] When the sale is by the Court, if the purchaser fails to complete, and the interference of the Court becomes necessary, one of the parties to the suit is the proper person to apply to the Court and put the Court in motion. The Registrar or officer conducting the sale on behalf of the Court never applies and is not entitled to apply. CHANDRANATH BISWAS v. BISWANATH BISWAS, 6 B.L.R. 492, Note. [R., 21 C. 479.]

(105)—Receiver, leave to sue — Suit for possession.—The receiver is not a necessary party to a suit for possession of immoveable property in his possession. KUMAR SUTTYA SUTTYA GHOSAL v. RANI GOLAP MONI DEBI, 5 C.W.N. 27.

(106)—Receiver, Application to sue—Suit for possession.—If there is any question between the parties entitled to the property in the hands of a receiver, a decree in a suit between the parties can always be carried out against such property or any share therein, without making the receiver a party to the suit. SM. SARLA DASSI v. BHUBAN MOHAN NEOGI, 5 C.W.N. 27, Note.

(107)—Receiver—Appointment by Court—His rights and duties—Properties in the possession of third parties whose rights date prior to his appointment—No right to recover—Institution of suit—Permission of Court—Necessity—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 503—T. P. Act, s. 53.—A receiver appointed by Court has no power to maintain a suit against the defendant for the value of goods which have been sold away prior to his appointment, by the judgment-debtor, on the ground that, under s. 53, T. P. Act, the sale is not binding on the creditors of the judgment-debtor. Under s. 503, Civ. Pro. Code (1882), when a person is appointed receiver of any moveable or immoveable property, he is entitled to take possession of it from the parties to the suit, to manage it, to realise its incomes and to continue in custody until discharged by the Court. His rights arise only on the date of his appointment and not before. He is not entitled to recover possession from a third party, stranger to the suit, whose rights date prior to his appointment. Nor does his appointment affect any rights previously acquired by third persons. (10 W.R. 430, 34 L.J. Ch. 607, 6 Ch. D. 291, R.) The ordinary rule is that the permission of the Court is necessary to entitle the receiver to institute suits. MAHAMAD KASIM SAHIB v. PANCHAPAKESA CHETTI, 35 M. 578=17 Ind. Cas. 233.

(108)—Receiver—Power to discharge and remove—No rules—Prayer to be put in possession of properties after discharging receiver—Rule of practice.—There is no specific provision made in the Civ. Pro. Code for the discharge or removal of a receiver, and no provision to allow appeals in respect of orders of discharge and removal of receivers. The power to discharge and remove or to give directions to a receiver has been taken to be inherent in the Court which appointed the receiver, and the appellate Court has got all the powers of the original Court. A prayer for execution cannot be made to the appellate Court direct. The prayer in the petition to discharge the receiver and put the parties in possession has been treated as a prayer for appointment of the petitioners as receivers of the properties they claim possession of and was granted. SUBRAMANIA IYER v. MUTHULAKSHMIAMMAL, M. W.N. 1912, 1208=17 Ind. Cas. 583.

(109)—Sanction of Court—Prosecution of receiver for ordinary criminal offence.—The sanction of the Court appointing a receiver is not necessary in order to proceed against him for a breach of the ordinary Criminal law of the country, e.g., defamation. NAGENDRA NATH v. JOGENDRA NATH, 15 Ind. Cas. 491.

(110)—Receiver—Leave to sue—Ex parte decree without such leave—Application to set aside.—A Receiver is an officer of the Court appointing him and can only be sued with the leave of that Court. Any party proceeding against him without leave is in contempt of Court. A decree obtained against a Receiver sued without permission must be set aside. (10 C. 1014, F.) The fact that a Receiver, against whom an ex parte decree without obtaining the leave of the Court to sue him was passed, previously applied to have the ex parte decree set aside and for permission to defend the suit, does not debar him from attacking the decree as passed without leave of Court. BALTHAZAR AND SONS v. THE BURMA ENGINEERING AND TRADING CO., 17 Ind. Cas. 916.

Receiver—continued.

See ACT XX OF 1863, ss. 5, 14, 8 C.W.N. 404.

See BEN. ACT VII OF 1876, ss. 42, 78, 2 C. W.N. 493.

Rent suit by—Maintainability—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 15, 16, 17, 7 Ind. Cas. 761.

Suit against receiver—Leave to sue whether necessary—See MAD. ACT VIII OF 1865, s. 85, 17 M.L.J. 483=30 M. 505=3 M.L.T. 7.

Mortgage by residuary legatee—Administration, subsequent, of testator's estate—Receiver of testator's estate pending administration—Sale by receiver before completion of administration—See ADMINISTRATION SUIT, 5 C.W. N. 408.

Administration suit—Discharge of receiver before completion of administration decree—See ADMINISTRATION SUIT, 5 C.W.N. 417.

Accretions to property if vest in — See ALLUVION — MISCELLANEOUS, 14 C.W.N. 681=6 Ind. Cas. 177=11 Cr. L.J. 288.

Appointment of—See APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL—GENERAL, 13 C.L.J. 507.

Application to appoint — Powers of High Court — See APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL—PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 10 C.L.J. 326 =7 Ind. Cas. 452.

See APPELLATE COURT—OBJECTION FIRST TAKEN IN APPEAL, 12 W.R. 117.

Attachment — Of High Court, property in hands of—See ATTACHMENT—SUBJECTS OF ATTACHMENT, 1 C. 403.

Appointment of, for execution of decree—Appointment when effective—Appeal—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 47, 51, O. XL, r. 1, 14 C. L.J. 489.

Application for execution against—Leave of Court subsequent to application—Validation—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 73, 115, 14 C.L. J. 50.

Suit for a scheme of management of a temple and for appointment in the meanwhile of a receiver—Power of Court to appoint receiver—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, ss. 92, 93, O. I, r. 8 (1), O. XL, rr. 1, 2, 3, 4 M.L.T. 88.

Receiver—continued.

Possession of—Effect of — See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. II, rr 3,6,7, 2 C.L.J. 602.

Suit by receiver for debt due to a person—Right to set up defence of set-off—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. VIII, r. 6, 17 M.L.J. 481.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 46, 2 B. 553.

Injunction, temporary—Procedure in respect of application for injunction—Appointment of—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXXIX, r. 1, 5 O.C. 65.

See CLAIM TO PROPERTY ATTACHED, 9 A. 232=A.W.N. 1887, 20.

See DECREE—DECREE, FORM OF, 26 C. 441=3 C.W.N. 139, 20 M. 313.

See EXECUTION OF DECREE—MODE OF EXECUTION, 7 C. 61.

Mortgage decree—Execution—Properties in the hands of the—See EXECUTION OF DECREE—MODE OF EXECUTION, 26 C. 127= 3 C.W.N. 90.

See EXECUTION OF DECREE—PRIVY COUNCIL, EXECUTION OF ORDERS AND DECREES OF, 15 M. 203=2 M.L.J. 1.

See INJUNCTION — INJUNCTION UNDER CIV. PRO. CODE, 6 W.R. Mis. 1.

Distinction between grant of temporary injunction and of appointment of receiver—See INJUNCTION—INJUNCTION UNDER CIV. PRO. CODE, 22 C. 459.

Appointment of, when to be made—Injunction when to be granted—See INJUNCTION, SPECIAL CASES, 13 C.L.J. 394.

Duty of, to pay off mortgage—Secured and unsecured creditors — See INSOLVENCY — INSOLVENCY UNDER CIV. PRO. CODE, 7 B. 455.

See LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION, 3 C. W.N. 186=23 B. 549, P.C.

See LETERS PATENT, HIGH COURT, 1865 —CALCUTTA, s. 15, 5 C.W.N. 781.

See LETTERS PATENT, HIGH COURT, 1865 —MADRAS, s. 15, 24 M. 511.

Appointment of receiver—Injunction against defendant—Partner collecting partnership debts —See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 15, 8 M. 229.

Acknowledgment by—Effect of, on limitation —See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, ss. 19, 14, 10 C.W.N. 959.

Payment out of Court of money collected by Receiver—Step-in-aid of execution—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, ART. 182—STEP-IN-AID OF EXECUTION, 22 M. 448.

Agreement interfering with work of—Enforceability—Public policy—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—WAKF, 16 C.W.N. 114.

See MANAGER—OF ATTACHED PROPERTY, 19 W.R. 37.

Receiver—concluded.

Appointed in mortgage suit — Decree for mesne profits against mortgagor—Execution of decree —Receiver, when a necessary party—See MESNE PROFITS—MODE OF ASSESSMENT, 9 C.L.J. 23=2 Ind. Cas. 958.

Examination of account of—Interlocutory order—Appeal—Duties of mortgagee as— See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 6 Ind. Cas. 323.

Mortgage of joint-property executed by, attaching creditors of the property, if entitled to priority over—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 33 C. 1175.

Application for order absolute—Appointment of, in mortgage suits—Examination of accounts of—Interlocutory order—Appeal—See MORTGAGE-GENERAL, 13 C.L.J. 459.

Insolvency of mortgagor — Appointment of receiver — Foreclosure proceedings without notice to receiver, validity of—See MORTGAGE —FORECLOSURE, 2 C.P.L.R. 90.

Property of insolvent subject to mortgage—Purchase of property at sale by—Mortgagee's rights when and how far affected—See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 12 B. 272.

See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 21 C. 479.

Persons not parties to suit, wherein a—is appointed. application of—Practice of Court—See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 17 C. 285.

Sale by—Right of pre-emption — See PRE-EMPTION—SUBJECT OF PRE-EMPTION, 46 P. R. 1909=72 P.L.R. 1909=41 P.W.R. 1909=1 Ind. Cas. 474.

Appointment of — Powers of—Subsequent rent decree obtained by owner—Application by, for review—Powers of Court—See REVIEW—GENERAL, 11 Ind. Cas. 102.

See RIGHT OF SUIT—CONTRACTS, SUITS ON, 30 C. 696.

Duly appointed by Court—Right to maintain suits for rent due—Interest—See RIGHT OF SUIT—LANDLORD AND TENANT, SUITS CONCERNING, 6 M.H.C. 363.

See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE, 9 B.L.R. 128.

Appointed to take possession—Whether bound to take out certificate—See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT, 1889, s. 4, 6 Ind. Cas. 416=12 C.L.J. 52=37 C. 754.

Court's power to appoint—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, ss. 6 and 67, 2 M. L.T. 167=17 M.L.J. 201=30 M. 255.

Receiving Appeal.

(1)—Act VII of 1868, ss. 5, 7—"Receiving," meaning of.—An appeal was received by the clerk of the Court and sent to the Commissioner, who rejected the appeal without calling the appellant, and without fixing a time for hearing the appeal. Held that the Commissioner was bound to proceed under s. 7 of Act VII of 1868 and fix a day for hearing the appellant as the appeal must be held to have been received by the Commissioner under s. 5, inasmuch as it had been received by the clerk of the Court, registered and sent to the Commissioner. BULUB DASS v. SOOLTAN MOHOMED, 3 P.R. 1871.

Receiving Appeal—concluded.

Receiving Officer.

Receiving officer, declining to accept the nomination paper of a candidate for counsellorship of a Municipality—Suit against the Municipality for declaration that he was entitled to come forward as a candidate and for injunction to prevent the Municipality from carrying on the election without accepting plaintiff as a candidate—See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, ss. 42, 45, 8 Bom. L.R. 209=30 B. 409.

Recitals.

(1)—In mortgage-deeds—Effect of.—Recitals in mortgage-deeds and in petitions sent to officials that certain property has been transferred, could not effect a transfer of such property. IMMADIPATTAM THIRUGNANA v. PERIYA DORASAMI, 5 C.W.N. 217=28 I.A. 46=24 M. 377, P.C.=7 Sar. 811. [R., 26 M. 339, 2 Ind. Cas. 18.]

In document—See ADMISSION — MISCELLANEOUS, 6 C.L.R. 12, P.C.=6 I.A. 110.

Bond—Recital as to receipt of consideration —Onus—See BURDEN OF PROOF — DOCUMENTS RELATING TO LOANS, SUITS RELATING TO, 4 B.L.R. F.B. 54=12 W.R. 25.

See BURDEN OF PROOF — DOCUMENTS RELATING TO LOANS AND SUITS, RELATING TO, 1 B.L.R. A.C. 92=10 W.R. 132, 10 W.R. 407.

See CONSIDERATION, 99 P.R, 1867, 31 P.R. 1868, 41 P.R. 1868.

Value of—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 25, cl. (3), 7 M.L.T. 81=5 Ind. Cas. 754=33 B. 159.

Of sale—Conveyance—Stamp duty—See CONVEYANCE, 23 C. 283.

See DEED—CONSTRUCTION OF DEEDS, 2 M. 239, P.C.

See ENHANCEMENT OF RENT—ENHANCEMENT. EXEMPTION FROM, 1 B.L.R.S.N. 18-a =10 W.R. 246.

See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS, 6 C. 268=7 C.L.R. 6.

In a deed no evidence of contents—See GUARDIAN—DUTIES AND POWERS OF GUARDIANS, 9 Ind. Cas. 56.

Perpetuities—Recital in will indicating intention to create perpetuity—Valid trusts—See HINDU LAW—WILL, 7 C.L.R. 241.

See INSOLVENCY—GENERAL, 20 B. 636.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 19, 9 P. R. 1897.

Recitals—concluded.

See MESNE PROFITS—RIGHT TO MESNE PROFITS, 6 W.R. 297.

In deed—Pardah lady—Strangers not affected by recital—See PARDANASHIN WOMAN, A.W.N. 1887, 69.

Evidence—Recital in decree between other parties—See POSSESSION—EVIDENCE OF POSSESSION AND TITLE, 2 B L.R. App. 8=10 W.R 477.

In deed of payment of consideration, effect of—See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, s. 21, 8 O.C. 5.

Reciting Texts.

Exclusive right of—See INJUNCTION—GENERAL, 7 Ind. Cas. 558=8 M.L.T. 379.

Reclamation.

(1)—Reclamation of Khar lands.—Reclamation means, in the case of submerged or overflowed land, the rescuing of it from being submerged. The rendering it fit for cultivation is not the original meaning in regard to the submerged land. That would be its meaning in regard to the reclamation of unarable land. SHAMRAO v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 2 Bom. L.R. 499=25 B. 32.

Reclamation lease.

Partial eviction—Applicability of doctrine of suspension of entire rent to case of—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—MISCELLANEOUS, 11 C.L.J. 591=6 Ind. Cas. 478.

Recognized Agent.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. III.

(1)—Person duly empowered as agent to be regarded by Courts as recognised agents.—A person, who has been duly empowered to represent another in all Courts, must be regarded by the Courts as the recognised agent of that other, unless it is shown that he is an unfit person. SRAWAN KURMI v. MT. RUKMA, 4 C.P.L.R. 38.

(2)—Want of education no bar to recognition as agent.—Want of education is not a ground for refusing to admit a person as a recognised agent. The agent is not required to argue the case as a lawyer. His function is to appear for his principal and do such acts as his principal is authorised to do. MT. BARI BAYA v. MT. GOURA KALARIN, 4 C.P.L.R. 45.

(3)—Recognised agent—Act VIII of 1859, s. 17, cl. 2.—All that a recognised agent can do under the section is to file applications or to enter appearance on behalf of the principal, but there is nothing in either of these two privileges which would entitle him to institute or defend a suit, as plaintiff in the one case or as defendant in the other. The professed gomashta of a firm, which is no longer in existence, cannot be regarded as the recognised agent of the firm. That the members of the firm have still to collect their dues or to pay their liabilities, does not alter the fact of the non-existence of the firm. MOKHA HURRUCKHRAJ JOSHEE v. BISSESSUR DOSS, 13 W. R. 344.

Recognized Agent—concluded.

(4)—Recognized agent—Suit by or against, in his own name.—A recognised agent cannot prosecute or defend a suit in his own name. An objection on this ground is not a mere technical one. ABDUL KARIM v. PANA MUSTAN, 1 L.B.R. 191. (5 B.L.R. App. 11, F.) [D., L. B.R. 1907—1908, 95; R., L.B.R. 1907—1908, 284.]

(5)—Notice, Service of—Recognized agent—Duty of Court—Mooktear.—It is the duty of the Court to see that notice is served on the right person, and it ought not to be satisfied with the mere return of service. So, it was held that a mere mooktear was not the recognised agent of a judgment-debtor on whom notice can be rightly served under the Civil Procedure Code. KRISTO CHUNDER GOOPTO v. FUZUL ALI KHAN, 17 W.R. 389.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. III, r. 1, s. 85, O. III, rr. 2, 3, O. XXVII, r. 2, 5 B. L.R. App. 11=13 W.R. 345.

Recognised agent conducting suit and appeal without objection—Right as agent, to execute decree—Objection to agent's authority raised for first time in execution proceedings—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. III, r. 2, 12 B. 68.

Suit by or against a prince—Recognised agent—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. VI, rr. 14 and 15 (1), s. 85, 54 P.L.R. 1902=41 P.R. 1902.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, ss. 4, 5, 4 O.C. 303.

Record.

(1)—Papers without mark of authenticity—Courts to decline to accept.—Courts are not to accept papers as authenticated papers of the record where they bear no sort of marks of authenticity about them, no signature, no seal and so on. Otherwise a wide door will be opened to fraud and the interests of no one would be safe, because an order alleged to have been an order of a Judge of the Court may at any time be produced unsigned and not authenticated, relying on the custom of the Court as showing that the orders of the Judge were habitually left unsigned. ROSSOOL MAHOMED v. BASSOO BEWAH, 8 W.R. 163.

(2)—Entire records not come up before High Court—Procedure—Direction to lower Court to take further evidence—Final disposal by High Court.—In this case, the entire records required for the appeal were not forthcoming, and the High Court, desiring not to delay the case any longer, ordered that whatever papers had been sent up to the High Court from the Collectorate should be returned along with the papers that the parties had filed in the High Court, with a direction to the Collector to summon both parties, and to take such further evidence as either of the parties may adduce in support of the case and to return such evidence with his opinion in order to enable the High Court to finally deal with and dispose of the case. BUNWARRY LALL v. MR. JAMES FURLONG, 8 W.R. 38.

Record—concluded.

(3)—Act VIII of 1859, s. 138—Act X of 1877 s. 137—Records sent for—Discretion of Court — A Court has no discretion to refuse to send records which have been sent for by another Civil Court under s. 138 of Act VIII of 1859. In re GOLAP COOMARY DOSSEE v. RAJAH SOONDUR NARAIN DEO, 4 C L.R. 36.

See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, 7 B L.R. App. 61.

Lost—Burnt—Re-construction of lost record —Execution of decree—See EXECUTION OF DECREE—MISCELLANEOUS, 11 C.L.J. 243 = 5 Ind. Cas. 660.

See POSSESSION—EVIDENCE OF POSSESSION AND TITLE, 4 B.L.R. App. 21.

Appeal to Privy Council—Preparation of—Practice—See PRIVY COUNCIL, PRACTICE OF —MISCELLANEOUS, 20 M. 395, P.C. = 24 I.A. 194.

See REMAND, A.W.N. 1888, 117.

Translation of—See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL—PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE IN SPECIAL APPEAL, A.W.N. 1886, 167.

Records, Destruction of.

(1) Appeal—Records destroyed—New trial.—The mere fact that the the record was accidentally destroyed in the interval between the original hearing of a case and the appeal cannot give the appellant a right of re-trial. It is open to a Court of Appeal to try the case upon any materials proved to have been used at the hearing in the first Court, but it is for the appellant to put those materials before the Court. HAR KUMAR PAL CHOWDRY v. SHEIKH ASIATULLAH, 3 C.W.N. 150.

Recorders' Courts' Burma Act.

See BUR. ACT XXI OF 1863.

Recorder's Court in British Burma.

See RANGOON SMALL CAUSE COURT, 6 B.L.R. 196 = 14 W.R. 331.

Recorder of Moulmein.

(1)—Decree of Assistant Commissioner—Execution—Recorder's Court at Moulmein.—The Court of the Recorder of Moulmein has no jurisdiction to issue execution upon a decree made by the late Court of the Town Assistant Commissioner. In the matter of KYANPETTEE OF MOULMEIN v. NGA SHA LAW, 14 W. R. 386.

(2)—Charter Act, 24 and 25 Vict., c. 104, s. 15 — Superintendence of High Court over Recorder of Moulmein—Act XXI of 1863—

Recorder of Moulmein—concluded.

Power of Recorder to license advocates —The Charter Act, 24 and 25 Vict., c. 104, s. 15, has distinctly made the Court of the Recorder of Moulmein established under Act XXI of 1863, subject to the superintendence of the High Court, and so has rendered it incumbent on the High Court and given it power to take care that all the acts of the Recorder of Moulmein done in his capacity of Recorder be done regularly and according to law. The fact that the High Court does not possess appellate jurisdiction over all classes of cases tried in the Recorder's Court, and that the Privy Council shares with the High Court appellate jurisdiction over the Recorder's Court does not remove the Recorder's Court from the operation of s. 15 of the Charter Act. [F., 27 B. 575 = 5 Bom. L.R. 562 ; R., 20 B. 480, F. B.] The granting or withdrawing of a license to practice as a pleader in the Small Cause Court of Moulmein in such an exercise of the power and authority possessed by the Recorder as will come under the superintendence of the High Court. The authority thus given to the Recorder is part of his authority as Judge of the Recorder's Court and it is bestowed upon him simply with the view to enable him the more effectively to administer justice in the Court over which he presides. In the matter of JOHN THOMPSON, 6 B L R. 180 = 14 W.R. 257.

See BUR. ACT XXI OF 1863, 6 B.L.R. App. 15.

Reference to High Court by Recorder of Moulmein—Questions in execution of decree—See BUR. ACT XXI OF 1863, ss. 22, 23, 25, 4 B. L R. A. C. 50.

See PARTIES TO SUIT—ADDING PARTIES TO SUITS, 10 W.R. 86.

Recorder of Rangoon.

(1)—Jurisdiction—Cause of action—Dwelling place of defendant.—The Court of the Recorder of Rangoon has no jurisdiction in cases in which the cause of action has arisen within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, but the defendant does not, at the time of the commencement of the suit, dwell within those limits. ANONYMOUS, 18 W.R 397.

(2)—Order of Recorder of Rangoon — Final decree—Original civil jurisdiction.—An order of the Recorder of Rangoon rejecting an application for probate is a final decree passed by him in the exercise of original civil jurisdiction. ESOOF HASSHIM BOOPLY v. FATIMA BIBI, 24 C 30 = 1 C W.N. 8.

Appeal from—See BUR. ACT XVII OF 1875, s. 49, 14 C. 351.

Decision of various High Courts conflicting — Position of the Recorder—See BUR. ACT XI OF 1889, s. 42, 25 C. 488 = 1 C.W.N. 172.

Final decree passed by Recorder of Rangoon in exercise of original civil jurisdiction, appeal from—Subject matter exceeding appealable amount—See APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL—CASES WHERE APPEALS LIE OR NOT, 24 C. 30 = 1 C.W.N. 8.

Recorder of Rangoon—concluded.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 16, 20 C. 689.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 156, 13 C. 221.

Record-of-Rights.

(1)—Entry in record-of-rights — Whether amounts to trust—Purchaser without notice.—An entry in a village record-of-rights, caused by the recorded proprietors of a share to be made therein, to the effect that a certain person claimed a portion of such share, and that they were willing to admit his right, whenever he paid them a certain amount of money, does not amount to a declaration of trust in favour of such person, and cannot be regarded as evidence of any such trust. Even if it could be held to be a trust, the property cannot be followed in the hands of a purchaser for value without notice. KAMAL SINGH v. BATUL FATIMA, 2 A. 460. [R., 9 A. 97=A.W.N. 1886, 303.]

(2)—Entry in, effect of—Possession, suit for —Limitation.—The only effect which can be attributed to an entry in the Record of Rights is that it is to be presumed correct till the contrary is proved. The Bengal Tenancy Act does not lay down that the entry is to be taken as conclusive upon the question of title, till a contrary decision has been given by the Civil Court. Hence the plaintiff is not bound to bring a suit for possession within one year from the date on which the entry of the defendant's name was made in the Record of Rights. RAM SAHAWAN MISSER v. BACHU MISSER, 6 C L.J. 670. (11 C W.N. 48, 30 C. 20, R.; 25 B. 337=27 I.A. 215, Expl.)

(3)—Maurasi right, meaning of — Suit for ejectment of tenant-at-will—Correcting entry in Record-of-Rights—Limitation—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), sch. II, art. 120—Presumption—Correctness of Record of-Rights—Whether presumption becomes final—Homestead land—Right of occupancy.—A maurasi right is not necessarily anything more than an ordinary occupancy right. A suit for ejectment, on the ground that the defendant was a tenant-at will, cannot be regarded as a suit for correcting the Record-of-Rights, and may be brought after six years of the final publication of the record. Under the Bengal Tenancy Act, an entry in the Record of-Rights must be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown. But it is not the law that this rebuttable presumption becomes final and conclusive after six years. Obiter dicta :—A raiyat cannot acquire rights of occupancy in homestead land if it was originally taken for the purpose of constituting his homestead. But if originally he had taken a large holding for agricultural purposes and had merely devoted a particular portion to the building of his homestead, he would be entitled to acquire rights of occupancy in that portion as well as in the rest of his holding. MINAI NAIK v. BANCHANIDHI SAHU, 9 Ind. Cas. 804. (8 W.R. 250, 24 W. R. 402, R.)

Record-of-Rights—continued.

Entry in—Effect of—See BEN. ACT XVI OF 1869, 4 C.W.N. 257.

Suit to correct entry—Presumption—Onus —Enhancement of rent—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 29 (b), 103-B, 13 C.W.N. 181=4 Ind. Cas. 577.

Suit for correction or alteration of—Maintainability—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 50, 111, 111-A, 5 Ind. Cas. 266.

See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 55 105, 106, 108, 21 C. 521.

Application to settle rent of land—Application by party concerned and not by Government—Settlement officer, jurisdiction of—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 101 to 107, 9 C.W. N. 504=1 C.L.J. 239=32 C. 518.

Preparation of—Under Ben. Act VIII of 1885 —Revenue officer, power of—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, s. 102, 21 C. 38, F.B.

Final publication of—Under s. 103-A (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, effect of — See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 103-A., 104-E, 104-H, 111-A, 3 C.L.J. 133.

Entry in — Presumption—Entry based on chitti bandobasti, if to be proved—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, s. 103-B, 9 C.L.J. 284=4 Ind. Cas. 54.

Suit to correct or alter entries in—Not maintainable—Recourse to be had to special remedy provided in Ch. X, Bengal Tenancy Act—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885 (BENGAL TENANCY), ss. 103 (b), 105, 106, 108, 12 C.W.N. 1032=8 C.L.J. 322=35 C. 1013.

See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 103, 111, 28 C. 28.

Power of Revenue officer to make survey and prepare—Without order of Government—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 104 to 108, 117 118, 119, 145, 158, 189, 30 C. 339=7 C.W.N. 33.

See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 105, 106, 28 C. 471=5 C.W.N. 798.

Application to correct entry made before amending Act of 1898 of Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885—Reference to Civil Court under amending Act valid, though proceedings commenced prior to passing of amending Act — See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, s. 106, 12 C.W.N. 987.

See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 106, 108-B, 24 C. 462, F.B=1 C.W.N. 294.

See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 106 and 108 (3), ch. X, 22 C. 477.

Effect of entry in—as to rate of rent on question of res judicata, where rate of rent had been determined in a rent-suit—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 107, 109, 32 C. 336=9 C.W. N. 610=1 C.L.J. 134.

See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ch. X, 6 C.W. N. 914.

Record-of-Rights—concluded.

Entry in—Presumption as to correctness of entry—See C. P. ACT XVI OF 1889, s. 72, 10 C.P.L.R. 33.

See C.P. ACT XVI OF 1889, s. 83, 10 C.P. L.R. 33.

Entries in—Annual records—See PUN. ACT XVII OF 1887, 11 P.R. 1901, Rev.

See PUN. ACT XVII OF 1887, ss. 36, 3 (2) and 32, 7 P.R. 1895, Rev.

An entry in the—with regard to payment of rent cannot be altered during mutation proceedings — See PUN. ACT XVII OF 1887, s. 37, 4 P.R. 1905 (Rev.) = 58 P.L.R. 1906.

Presumption as to correctness of entries in record of rights—Rebuttable presumption—See PUN. ACT XVII OF 1887, s. 44, 13 P.L.R. 1903.

Entry in—of a certain person as tenant—Such person not precluded from proving he is a proprietor—See ATTESTATION, 2 N.L.R. 65.

See CUSTOMS—PUNJAB—GENERAL, 8 P. R. 1892.

See ENHANCEMENT OF RENT—ENHANCEMENT, RIGHT OF, 9 P.R. 1888, Rev.

Of later date—Public document—Effect of omission of entry—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 35, 25 A. 90 = A.W.N. 1902, 207.

See JAGHIR, 4 P.R. 1888, Rev.

Stipulations in Record-of-rights — See MAHOMEDAN LAW — PRE-EMPTION, NATURE AND EXTENT OF RIGHT, 1 A. 207.

See PRE-EMPTION — CONSTRUCTION OF WAJIB-UL-ARZ, 2 A. 631.

See PRE-EMPTION—RIGHT TO PRE-EMPT, 20 A. 92 = A.W.N. 1897, 202.

Record of Suit.

What—ought to contain, when one party to a suit agrees to abide by the oath of his opponent—See OATH, 8 O.C. 11.

Record Room Contingencies.

This circular declares that annual bills of record-room contingencies were superseded by detailed monthly bills. Rev. Cir. No. 1, 25 W. R. Rev. Cir. 6.

Recovery of Debt.

(1)—Suit to recover debt, nature of right.—The right to sue to recover a debt is in the nature of a common law right, and, unless it is taken away either expressly or by necessary implication, it must be treated as subsisting. KOTHANDAPANI v. SOMASUNDRAM, 15 M. 97.

Recovery of Money.

(1)—Paid in consideration of marriage which had not been performed, suit for.—Held, that an action would lie for recovery of money paid in consideration of a marriage which had not been performed. RAMAI v. CHEDI, 3 O.C. 241.

Recovery, Public Demands Act.

See BEN ACT VII OF 1880.

Rectification of Instrument.

Mistake when ground for—See CONTRACT—GENERAL, 16 C.W.N. 225.

Mortgage-bond — Mistake unilateral, suit for—Not maintainable—See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, s. 31, 8 O.C. 1.

By insertion of a clause deliberately agreed to be omitted—See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, s. 31, 2 N L R. 49.

Recusant Witnesses Act.

See ACT XIX OF 1853.

Reddi.

Hindu Law—Succession—Custom of—Caste—Legality of practice of constituting son-in-law heir to property of father-in-law—Right to disinherit heir in favour of son-in-law—See HINDU LAW—CUSTOM, 1 M.H.C. 51.

Custom of—Caste—See HINDU LAW—CUSTOM, 4 M. 272.

Redemption.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, ART. 148.

See MORTGAGE—REDEMPTION.

(1)—Conditional sale--Absolute sale--Evidence.—The evidence to show that a sale of land was not intended to operate as a sale or to show that there was a separate agreement that redemption should be allowed must be clear. Burmans in most parts of Lower Burma are well aware, of the difference between a sale outright and a mortgage or conditional sale. MAUNG SHWE KYAW v. MAUNG PYU, L. B. R. 1893—1900, 499.

(2)—Of land, suit for—Rent—Sale—Mortgage—Res judicata.—Where one of the issues framed in a rent suit was whether there was a mortgage, and the Judge without deciding the point found merely that the defendant did not agree to pay rent such finding is no bar to a subsequent suit for redemption. MAUNG SHWE VA v. MA TAIR, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 544.

(3)—Buddhist law—House and land acquired during marriage with first wife and redeemed by second wife with her separate money—Separate property—Property acquired during second marriage—Shares, respective, between children of the first and second marriage—Attachable interest of children.—Where a house with its site was acquired during the marriage with a first wife held,—that redemption of the same by the second wife with her separate money did not justify the conclusion that it become the separate property of the second wife so as to constitute it as property acquired during the second marriage, it never lost its original character, but continued to be property acquired during the first marriage. On the death of the second wife it was divisible into four shares, of which the children by the first wife will take three and the children by the second wife will take one. The interest of the children in the house and ground was attachable. MAUNG MYAT KAUNG v. MA CYAING, L.B.R 1893—1900, 534. [Cited, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 548; R., 4 L.B.R. 110.]

Redemption—concluded.

Right of—See BUDDHIST LAW—GENERAL, L.B.R. 1872—1892. 78.

See BURDEN OF PROOF — MORTGAGE, 1 L.B.R. 215.

Decree for redemption of mortgage conditional on payment of certain sum—Appeal by mortgagor—Court-fee on memo of appeal—See COURT FEES ACT, s. 7 (IX), 13 A. 94 = A.W.N. 1890, 231.

Claim for rent in suit for—Distinct causes of action—Court-fee on appeal—See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, s. 17, 16 M. 415.

Suit in ejectment—Court's power to pass decree for—See DECREE—DECREE, FORM OF, 20 B. 196.

See EXECUTION OF DECREE—APPLICATION FOR EXECUTION AND POWERS OF COURT, 23 M. 521 = 10 M.L.J. 145.

See MORTGAGE—FORM OF MORTGAGES, L. B. R. 1872—1892, 549.

Mortgagor's right to redeem—Right of—Of auction-purchaser at revenue sale—Mortgagee—Purchaser's right on failure to redeem—See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY. 15 C. 546.

References by Mufassil Small Cause Courts Act.

See ACT X OF 1867.

Reference to Arbitration.

See ARBITRATION.

See AWARD.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, sch. II.

(1)—Reference to arbitration—Agreement in writing—Civ. Pro. Code, 1877, s. 523—Where an agreement executed by the plaintiff and one of three defendants empowering an arbitrator to settle certain accounts relating to the dealings between the plaintiff and the other two defendants who were no parties to the agreement was sought to be filed in Court by the plaintiff under s. 523, Civ. Pro. Code, 1877, held that, since the agreement was only between the plaintiff and one of the defendants, neither of whom professed to make or execute the agreement on behalf of any person other than himself, it cannot be said that the person who made the application under s. 523, Civ. Pro.

Reference to Arbitration—continued.

Code, 1877, and the person against whom it was sought to enforce the agreement, had "agreed in writing" within the meaning of that section. JAI SINGH v. KISHEN SINGH, 17 P.R. 1880.

(2 & 3) -Reference to arbitrators--Award--Power of Court to vary arbitrator's order.—Where, in a suit brought in forma pauperis the points in issue were referred to arbitrators who, in their award, directed that each party should bear its own costs, and the Court varied the arbitrators' order by making an additional order that the defendant and the plaintiff should, as regards the Government, each pay half the amount of the Court-fees, held that the order of the Court making the defendants liable was in conflict with the award of arbitrators and was made in excess of the Court's jurisdiction. MIR MAHOMED v. MUSSAMMAT KHAIR-UL-NISSA, 19 P.R. 1880. [R., 91 P.R 1888.]

(4)—Civ. Pro. Code (Act X of 1877), s. 506—Arbitration, reference to—Co plaintiff not being party to reference—Application by or in presence of co plaintiff—Effect.—An application purporting to be made on behalf of both the plaintiffs and of the defendant, for an order of reference to arbitration in a case, is an application in writing within the meaning of s. 506 of the Civ. Pro. Code, although it is not subscribed by a co-plaintiff; and if such application is presented by the other parties in his presence or by himself, he cannot afterwards question the decree based on the award of arbitrators appointed under the above order of reference. NEK MAHOMED v. AHMAD ALI, 53 P.R. 1880. [F., 33 P R. 1881; R., 109 P.R. 1883.]

(5)—Award of arbitrators — Judgment in terms of award of majority—Appeal—Civ. Pro. Code (Act X of 1877), s. 522.—An order in appeal based on the award of the majority of the arbitrators, and reversing the finding of the first Court upon the misconduct imputed to the umpire, is appealable. The provisions in the last sentence of s. 522 of Act X of 1877 apply only to a decree which follows upon a judgment passed according to an award upon a reference made by the Court which passed the judgment. MUSSAMMAT BANO v. NASAR, 5 P.R. 1880. (5 B L.R. App. 77, R.)

(6)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, ss. 506, 508—Reference of the whole matter in difference in a particular case — Award of two out of three arbitrators—Non-consultation with third before making award.—A reference of the whole matter in difference in a particular case may be a reference of a particular matter within the meaning of ss. 506, 508 of the Civ. Pro. Code An award of two out of three persons is not a nullity merely because the two have not consulted with the third before making it. Their conduct is probably misconduct, but it ought to be alleged accordingly, and if found to be misconduct, it is a ground for avoiding the award. KHILU RAM v. JIWAN SINGH, 55 P.R. 1889.

Reference to Arbitration—concluded.

(7)—Arbitration award—Act VIII of 1859, s. 325.—Applying the principle that every judicial act which is done by several Judges ought to be completed in the presence of the whole of them, it may be said that an award of arbitrators to be legal must be completed and signed by each in the presence of the whole of them. An arbitration award is not legal, if not signed by the arbitrators sitting together at one place and at the same time. In the petition of MAHARAJA SRI JAI MANGAL SINGH BAHADUR, 3 B L.R.A.C. 82=11 W.R. 433. (9 W.R. 29, Appl.)

Reference to Full Bench.

(1)—Value of subject-matter in dispute not exceeding Rs. 50—Reference to Full Bench by single Judge sitting alone, Validity of.— A reference to the Full Bench cannot be made by a single Judge of the High Court sitting alone to hear cases in which the value of the subject-matter in dispute does not exceed Rs. 50. NABU MONDAL v. CHOLIM MULLIK, 25 C. 896, F.B.

(2)—Judge sitting alone—Division Court—Competency to make reference to Full Bench—Rules of High Court, Appellate Side, r. 1, Ch. 5.- It is not competent to a Judge sitting alone to make a reference to a Full Bench, as he does not constitute a "Division Court" within the meaning of r. 1, Ch. 5 of the Rules of the High Court, Appellate Side. NATU MANDAL v. BADAL MULLICK, 2 C.W.N. 405, F.B.

(3)—Principle of.—Questions arising from a difference of opinion between individual Judges should not, generally, be the subject of reference to a Full Bench. RAJKOOMAR SINGH v. SAHEBZADA ROY, 3 C. 20, F.B.

(4)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 575—Delivery of dissentient judgments—No reservation—Reference to Full Bench—Legality of reference.—Where the Judges of the High Court differed and delivered dissentient judgments as judgments and without any reservation, they could not make an order of reference to the Full Bench under s. 575, Civ. Pro. Code, and the order of reference so made was ultra vires. LAL SINGH v. GHANSHAM SINGH, 9 A. 625, F.B.=A.W N. 1887, 154. (6 A. 468, R.) [D., 6 Bom. L R. 131.]

(5)—Reference to Full Bench—Junior Judge whether can make reference.—A judgment of the senior Judge of a Division Bench of the High Court is final within the meaning of s. 36 of the new Letters Patent, even when the junior Judge entertains doubts, and expresses no final opinion. The junior Judge cannot refer a question for the decision of the Full Bench without the concurrence of the senior Judge. In the matter of the petition of CHUNDER KANT BHUTTACHARJEE, B.L.R. Sup. App. 43=7 W.R. 277.

Reference to High Court.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, S. 113.

See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XLVI.

(1)—Reference—Review—Act XXIII of 1861, s. 28—Applicability.—S. 28 of Act XXIII of 1861 authorises the reference to the High Court of such questions as may arise in the trial of the suit, and not of questions arising on an application for a review of judgment, which cannot, in any sense, be considered as the trial of a suit. BONOMALLY DEO v. RAM SADOY CHUCKERBUTTY, 17 W.R. 95.

(2)—Application for review of judgment—Reference.—No reference can be made upon an application for a review of judgment. TALIM MUNDAL v. MESSRS. R. WATSON & CO., 17 W.R. 94.

(3)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1877, s. 617—Reference to High Court.—It is only when a matter cannot come before the High Court as a Court of appeal that a reference can be made under s. 617, Civ. Pro. Code. KRISHNA NATH SARCAR v. RAM KUMAR DE, 7 C.L.R. 144.

(4)—Reference to High Court—"Final" decree or order—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 617.—A reference to the High Court under s. 617 of the Civ. Pro. Code can only be made when there is a suit or an appeal before the Court making the reference, in which the decree is final. RAMPHUL v. DURGA, 7 A. 815=A.W.N. 1885, 245. [F., 16 C.P.L.R. 17.]

(5)—Decree—Execution—Reference to High Court—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 617—Practice.—S. 617 of the Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, allows of a reference for the decision of the High Court in respect of a question arising in execution of a decree, only when the decree is final. ORIENTAL LOAN ASSOCIATION, LTD. v. GEORGE PELHAM HATCH, 17 B. 735.

(6)—Civ. Pro. Code, Act X of 1877, s. 617—Reference in suit instituted before Code came into force.—Reference under s. 617 of Act X of 1877, made to the Chief Court by an Extra Assistant Commissioner in a suit instituted before the Code came into force. Held that the reference was not authorised by s. 617 of the Code, as the suit was instituted before the said Code came into force and any decree made in it by the Extra-Assistant Commissioner would not be final but open to appeal in the ordinary course. ALADIN v. JOWAYA, 40 P.R. 1878.

(7)—Act X of 1877, s. 617—Reference under, when to be made.—S. 617 of the Civ. Pro. Code, 1877, clearly contemplates that the question in dispute should be raised before or on the hearing of the suit and that the Court should then draw up a statement of the facts of the case and the point on which doubt is entertained and refer such statement for the decision of the Chief Court. In the present case, however, although the question was raised during the course of the trial, the parties did not ask for a reference to the Chief Court, nor did the Court consider it necessary to make the reference of its own motion. The decree passed was not made contingent in any way upon the result of a reference to the Chief Court. That being so, it was not competent to the defendant to now ask for a reference to the Chief Court on the question which arose at the hearing of the suit and did not arise in execution of the decree. F. H. DRUMMOND v. J. W. LOWRIE, 31 P.R. 1879.

Reference to High Court—continued.

(8)—S. 617, Civ. Pro. Code. 1882—Reference—High Court.—Ss. 617 and 647, Civ. Pro. Code, apply when doubts arise in the hearing of a suit or appeal or execution or other proceeding. S. 617 was not intended to provide for suppositious cases which do not actually arise in a proper proceeding before the Court. MAHAMAD v. AHMEDBHAI, 3 Bom. L.R. 368=25 B. 327.

(9)—Reference—High Court.—A reference under Ch. 46 of the Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, can only be made when the Judge of the lower Court entertain a reasonable doubt. And he cannot ordinarily entertain a reasonable doubt on a point clearly decided by the rulings of the High Court of his Presidency, unless the authority of the decision can be questioned by virtue of anything said or decided in the Privy Council. BHANAJI v. DE BRITTO, 7 Bom. L.R. 995=30 B. 226.

(10)—Reference under s. 617, Civ. Pro. Code, Act X of 1877—Decree, finality of—Application to sell house in execution of decree—Reference on question whether sanction necessary.—According to s. 617 of the Civ. Pro. Code (Act X of 1877), the power of referring questions to the High Court (or the Chief Court) is confined to questions of law or usage having the force of law, or relating to the construction of a document affecting the merits arising "before or on the hearing of a suit or appeal in which the decree is final, or, in the execution of any such decree." A reference on the question whether, in the case of an application to sell houses or other buildings in execution of decrees, the sanction of the Commissioner or of the Chief Court is necessary, under s. 327 of the Civ. Pro. Code, and the notification published thereunder by the Punjab Government, No. 3859, dated 3rd October 1877, before the sale can take place, does not lie under s. 617, if the decree concerned in such reference is not a final one. Although an order directing the sale of attached property under s. 284 of the Civ. Pro. Code, is not expressly made appealable, and the question whether a Court executing a decree is itself competent to sell houses or other buildings can scarcely be said to be a question arising "between the parties to the suit," so as to fall under s. 244 and became appealable under the amended definition of "decree" (Act XII of 1879, s. 2), still, the finality which permits a reference to be made under s. 617 relates distinctly to the decree itself which is sought to be executed, and not to the order passed in execution. LAKHU MAL v. TULLA, 100 P.R. 1880.

(11)—Action by a third person not a party to the suit.—A reference to the High Court under s. 617 of the Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, is not bad merely because it arises out of the action taken by a third person not a party to the suit. PURSHOTTAM NARAYAN v. BALVANT BABAJI, 10 Bom. L.R. 13=32 B. 157.

(12)—Probate order—Reference to High Court—Concurrency of jurisdiction of High Court—Succession Act, 1865, s. 264.—A District Judge's order on a probate application is not final and cannot be referred to the High Court under s. 617 of the Civ. Pro. Code. But the High Court may, as a Court of concurrent jurisdiction, entertain, such an application under s. 264 of the Indian Succession Act. In the matter of MONOHUR MOOKERJEE, 5 C. 756=7 C L.R. 223.

(13)—Reference to Sudder Dewanni Court—No adjudication made—Order of reference varied.—Under an order of reference, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, upon an appeal coming before them, remitted the case, by reason of the rejection of certain evidence, to the Court below, with directions to take the evidence rejected. The Court in India, upon the remit, examined such of the witnesses before tendered as were produced, but made no adjudication in the cause, and transmitted the further evidence to England. No fresh order of reference was made to the Judicial Committee. Upon the appeal, with the further evidence coming before them, their Lordships, under the circumstances, were of opinion that they had no jurisdiction to entertain the case, the original order of reference having been exhausted by the remit. But, upon a special petition for such purpose (all parties consenting), the Order in Council directing the remit to India was varied and amended, by being made a mere reference to the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, to take evidence, without throwing any duty upon that Court to re-consider or adjudicate upon the cause, but to remit the same for the consideration of the Lords of the Committee. JESWUNT SINGJEE UBBY SINGJEE v. JET SINGJEE UBBY SINGJEE, 6 W.R. 46, P.C., 3 M.I.A. 245.

(14)—Act XXI of 1863, ss. 22 to 26—Question of law arising in execution—Reference to High Court—Act X of 1867—Recorder's Court.—Under Act XXI of 1863, a case cannot be stated for the opinion of the High Court with reference to a point of law arising out of proceedings in execution of a decree. Act X of 1867 does not apply to the Record's Court at Rangoon. In the matter of R. SUTHERLAND, 9 W.R. 478.

(15)—Act XI of 1865, s. 22—Reference to High Court—Question arising out of execution of decree.—Only questions which arise in the trial of a suit and not such as arise on applications for execution of decree, can be referred, under s. 22, Act XI of 1865, for the opinion of the High Court. ANAND CHANDRA MAJUMDAR v. GOBARDHAN KHAN, B.L.R. Sup. Vol. 457=5 W.R.S. C.C.Ref. 19. [Cons., 15 W.R. 542=14 B.L.R. 288, Note.]

(16)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 617—Fine levied on pleader for refusing to act for client—Appeal by pleader—Reference by appellate Court to High Court—Dispute between litigant parties in suit essential to justify reference.—Where a pleader prefers an appeal from an order imposing a fine upon him for having declined to appear and act for his client, it is not competent to the Court hearing such appeal to make a reference to the High Court, as, under s. 617 of the Civ. Pro. Code. An enquiry of the kind is not of a litigious nature but rather one of a disciplinary character. A reference under the above section could properly be made only in respect of a matter in litigation. No such reference will lie under the Code except in some matter within dispute between the parties in a suit or appeal, or in a matter in which the Court is required to adjudicate on the rival claims of the contending parties in the litigation. YASHVANT NARAYAN ADARKAR v. XAVIER, JJ. 12 B. 78.

Reference to High Court—continued.

(17)—Reference by Division Bench to third Judge—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 575—Scope of appeal.—Where an appeal is referred to a third Judge by a Bench of two Judges under s. 575 of the Civ. Pro. Code, the whole appeal is open for argument before him, and not simply the point or points on which the Judges differed. SESHADRI AYYANGAR v. NATARAJA AYYAR, 21 M. 179. [R., 6 Bom. L.R. 230, 14 Bur. L. R. 59.]

(18)—Reference by one of two Judges differing—Act X of 1877, s. 575.—When, during the hearing of an appeal there is a difference of opinion between the two Judges composing a Bench on a point of law, a reference lies to a third Judge under s. 575 of the Civ. Pro. Code, and it is competent to one of the two differing Judges to make the reference. TELU MAL v. SUBHA SINGH, 90 P.R. 1880.

(19)—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 643-B (=O. XLVI, r. 7, new Code), when reference can be under—"Shall."—Before a District Court can make a reference under the section, it must be of opinion that the subordinate Court has erroneously held upon the point of jurisdiction in regard to the particular suit before it, and that, therefore, the matter is one in which the interference of the High Court should be sought. The references under the section do not apply to a case where a Judge has not exercised his mind to consider whether or not the Court below had or had not jurisdiction. The word "shall" in cl. (1) of the section has only a directory sense, and is not mandatory. MADAN GOPAL v. BHAGWAN DAS, 11 A. 304 = A.W.N. 1889, 75.

(20)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 646 B—Reference by the District Court to the High Court.—The District Court is bound to make a reference to the High Court under s. 646-B, Code of Civil Procedure, when one of the parties requires it to do so, and the fact that an appeal lay to it from the order made by the Munsiff's Court does not preclude it from making the reference. SIMSON v. MCMASTER, 13 M. 344. [R., 3 O.C. 20.]

Reference to High Court—continued.

(21)—S. 16, Act IX of 1887 (Provincial Small Cause Courts Act)—Ss. 586, 646-B, Act XIV of 1882, Civ. Pro. Code—Suit under s. 646-B, Civ. Pro. Code—High Court's power to consider matter of jurisdiction—S. 46 (b) of Act XIV of 1882—Jurisdiction.—Where a case has been submitted to the High Court under s. 646-B, Civ. Pro. Code, held, that the High Court has full power to consider the matter of jurisdiction or to deal with the case on the merits, so as to do substantial justice without necessarily putting the parties to the expense of a fresh trial (notwithstanding the provisions of s. 16, Act IX of 1887). [F., 27 M. 478; R., 3 O.C. 20, 127 P L.R. 1903 11 Bom. L.R. 1330.] S. 646-B of the Civ. Pro. Code must be read with s. 16 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, so as to modify its full effect in a case wrongly tried by an ordinary Civil Court and taken on appeal to the District Court; the parties having in both the lower Courts submitted to the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts, all the time, it is not competent to either of them on second appeal to plead the want of jurisdiction in those Courts so as to render all proceedings taken in the suit void. SURESH CHUNDER MAITRA v. KRISTO RANGINI DASI. 21 C. 249. [F., 27 M. 478; R., 3 O.C. 20, 127 P.L R. 1903, 11 Bom. L.R. 1330.]

(22)—Reference from Presidency Small Cause Court to High Court — Practice—Ss. 69, 70, Presidency Small Cause Courts Act—Effect of failure to deposit costs of reference.—In the case of a reference from the Presidency Small Cause Court to the High Court, the provisions of the Statute which governs the matter should be strictly complied with. Where a judgment is given contingent on the opinion of the High Court on a point to be referred to the latter, and the party, at whose instance the contingent judgment is given and the reference made, fails to deposit the security "at once," the reference will be liable to dismissal. JUGAL KISHORE v. SEWMICK ROY, 28 C. 260. (14 B.L.R. 180, D.)

(23)—Act XI of 1865, s. 22—Reference by Small Cause Court to High Court—Procedure.—When the Judge of a Small Cause Court refers a case for the opinion of the High Court, he shall, as s. 22 of Act XI of 1865 directs, draw up a statement of the case and refer it with his own opinion. In the present case, however, there was neither any statement of the case, nor any detail as to how the question arose on the trial of the suit, nor any expression of the referring Court's own opinion. The High Court found it impossible to answer the question set forth in the abstract and accordingly sent the case back for amendment. DINONATH ADDY v. PAY SERGEANT W. WELLER, 7 W.R. 165.

(24)—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Courts—Appellate Court having small cause jurisdiction—Suit tried by first Court as original suit—Reference to High Court.—Where the only point in dispute in a suit was whether the defendant had paid to the plaintiff the sum of money which the former had admittedly received on her behalf and as her agent, held that, if the defendant acted as agent of the plaintiff, there was a true contract implied between them that the defendant would recover the sums due to the plaintiff and pay them over or account for them to her, and that the suit therefore was within the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes. Where a Small Cause suit was tried as an original suit and came before the Subordinate Judge in appeal, who was also the Judge of the Small Cause Court competent to try the case as a Small Cause case, held that it was competent to the Judge to deal with the case on the merits, and that there was no necessity for a reference to the High Court. SHUMBOONATH MOZOOMDAR v. KASHESSUREE DEBEE, 13 W. R. 100.

Reference to High Court—continued.

(25)—Ajmere Courts Regulation (I of 1877), s. 18, powers of High Court, on reference made under.—When, under the provisions of s. 18 of Reg. No. I of 1877, the Commissioner and District Judge of Ajmere makes a reference to the High Court asking for a ruling upon a question of law, or, amongst other things, upon the construction of any document, arising out of an appeal which has been heard by him, and upon which he has expressed his own opinion, the power of the High Court is limited to expressing its opinion on the specific point referred to it and it is not competent to the High Court to go into the question whether such point has really arisen in the case or to enter upon the merits of the case in any other respect. KALIAN MAL v. RAM KISHEN, 21 A. 163 = A.W.N. 1899, 4.

(26) —Reference by Settlement officer.—Whether a valid reference can be made in a settlement case in the Sonthal Pergunnahs by a Settlement Officer. TARINI PROSAD MISSER v. MAHAMMED CHOWDHRY, 6 C.L.R. 555. [R., 8 C.L.R. 548, 18 C. 133.]

(27) —Application for trial on suit de novo—New point—Reference to High Court.—A point arising upon the application for a new trial may be referred to the High Court. NOBO COOMAR CHUCKERBUTTY v. KOYLASH CHUNDER BAROOREE, 17 W.R. 518.

Proceedings in case decided by Mamlatdar under Bom. Act III of 1876—Collector not competent to make—, party aggrieved by Mamlatdar's decree, remedies open to—See BOM. ACT III OF 1876, 14 B. 371.

Reference to High Court by Recorder of Moulmein—Questions in execution of decree—See BUR. ACT XXI OF 1863, ss. 22, 23, 25, 4 B.L.R.A.C. 50.

To High Court—See MAD. ACT III OF 1873, s. 27, 8 M.H.C. App. 10.

Proceeding in Revenue Court having jurisdiction—Commissioner on appeal holding the case not proved, but suggesting registration of Revenue Court's decree as that of Civil Court—Commissioner's power of reference—Chief Court's powers—See PUN. ACT XVI OF 1887, s. 100, 45 P.R. 1907.

Reference to High Court—concluded.

See U P. ACT II OF 1901. s. 195, 1 A.L.J. 37.

Stay of execution of decree — Amount of security required—Question relating to execution—Reference to High Court under s. 617, whether can be made in such proceedings—See APPEAL — DECREES AND EXECUTION OF DECREES, 12 B. 30.

Of appeal to other Judges—Composition of Bench hearing referred appeal—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 98, 6 A. 468.

See CIV PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 141 (1), 13 W. R. 27.

See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 178, 23 P.L R. 1902 = 34 P.R 1902.

By Small Cause Court at request of party—Non-appearance of party before High Court—Costs—See COSTS—SPECIAL CASES, 11 B. L.R. 415 = 20 W.R. 349.

See DISTRICT JUDGE, JURISDICTION OF, 3 O.C. 20.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 19, 25 P.R. 1886.

Case stated for opinion of High Court—Reference to be only on precise point of law or usage Practice — See PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT, s. 69, 15 B. 376.

By Presidency Court of Small Causes, to the High Court at Bombay — See PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT, 1882, s. 69, 2 Bom. L.R. 460.

To Judge of one High Court—Establishment of another High Court Practice—See BEN. REG. VI OF 1831, 6 B.L.R. 283, P. C. = 13 M. I.A. 585 = 15 W R. P.C. 16.

See REVIEW - REVIEW WHEN LIES, 10 B. 68.

Decision by Mamlatdar — Reference by Collector to High Court—Revision—See REVISION - GENERAL, 21 B. 806.

See SMALL CAUSE COURT, MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF - GENERAL, 35 P.R. 1886.

See SMALL CAUSE COURT, PRESIDENCY TOWNS. JURISDICTION OF - PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 1 C.W.N. 143.

Ajmere case Question of fact—Reference to High Court—See SPECIAL OR SECOND APPEAL—GENERAL, 11 Ind Cas 671.

Certificate by Head Quarters Deputy Collector that documents are exempt from duty—Reference by Revenue Board to High Court—See STAMP ACT, 1899, s. 57, 25 M. 752.

Reformatory.

There being no Reformatory then in Bengal this circular suggested that sentences of confinement in a Reformatory under s. 318, Act X of 1872, should not be passed. Criminal Cir. Memo No 2, dated 20th May 1874, 22 W.R. Civ. Cir. 1.

Refund.

Of shares in company consequent on repudiation of agreement—No purchase within meaning of s. 249, Companies Act, 1882—See ACT VI OF 1882, s. 242, 10 P.R. 1905=100 P.L.R. 1905.

Suit for—See BOM. ACT VII OF 1863, s. 352, 17 B. 407.

Of purchase-money when sale is set aside, suit for, maintainability of—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 47, O. XXI, r. 90, 32 C. 332.

Essentials for obtaining—Of purchase-money paid to judgment-creditor in execution sales—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 93, 3 A.L.J. 819=A.W.N. 1906, 310.

First lessee delivering possession of land to subsequent lessee on payment of compensation—Such lessee afterwards becoming entitled to restitution of land by decree of Court—Refund of compensation money by such lessee whether a condition precedent to his obtaining relief by way of restitution—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XLI, r. 4, 18 M.L.J. 39.

Stamp duty—Of excess—Power of High Court—See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, 11 B.L.R. 370=20 W.R. 106.

Stamp duty—See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, s. 15, 11 B.L.R. 372, Note.

Of Court-fees on Letters of Administration—See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, s. 19-d, 4 Bom. L.R. 974=27 B. 140, the effect of this decision is negatived at 6 Bom. L. R. 652.

See ESTOPPEL—ESTOPPEL BY CONDUCT, 3 B. 42.

Of money realised in execution of a decree afterwards reversed on appeal—Remedy whether by suit or application—See EXECUTION OF DECREE—MISCELLANEOUS, A.W.N. 1908, 206=5 A.L.J. 527.

Application for—of amount of an ex parte decree, subsequently set aside—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 181, 28 C. 113.

Suit by auction-purchaser for, of purchase money on failure of consideration—Maintainability—See SALE—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE—MISCELLANEOUS, 12 Bom. L. R. 723=7 Ind. Cas. 955.

Of cancelled stamps used for mortgage deed in favour of another—See STAMP ACT, 1879, ss. 51 (d), 6, 16 M. 459, F.B.=2 M.L.J. 181.

Refund of Fees.

This circular declares that no refund is to be made of the minimum fee prescribed by Circular Order of 6th August 1873, when no sale takes place. Civ. Cir. Memo No. 11 of 6th May 1874, 21 W.R.H.C Rules & Ors. 24.

Refund of Purchase-money.

(1)—Refund of purchase money—No separate suit for.—The purchaser is entitled to recover the purchase-money that he paid at the sale, and he should not be driven to a separate suit for the same. RAM SARAN PODDAR v. MAHOMED LATIF, 3 C.W.N. 62.

Refund of Stamp-duty.

See STAMP DUTY, 4 B.L.R. App. 96, 4 B.L.R. App. 96, Note.

Refusal of registered packet.

See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 114, 3 Bom. L. R. 420.

Register.

Correction of entry in—See BEN. ACT VII OF 1876, s. 7, 17 C. 304.

Of baptism, statement of date of birth in a, how far evidence of age—Attestation of sale-deed, when operates as estoppel—See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, 2 N.L.R. 34.

Entry in Mahomedan marriage—Of amount of dower, admissible in evidence to prove amount fixed—See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 32, 19 C. 689.

Entries in Collectors—Kept under Bengal Act VII of 1876, whether admissible in evidence—See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 35, 2 O.C. 940.

Municipal—Of deaths—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, ss. 35, 74, 59 P.R. 1901.

Teiskhana Register prepared by patwari, not a public document—See EVIDENCE ACT, ss. 35, 74, 18 C. 534.

Entries in a chowkidar's register — See LEGITIMACY, P.L.R. 1900, p. 412.

Registered Deed.

Extinguishment of—See DEED—MISCELLANEOUS, 1 Bom. L.R. 91.

Gift by Mahomedan under registered instrument—Applicability of Mahomedan Law—Delivery of possession, whether necessary—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—GIFT, 17 M.L.J. 562=30 M. 519.

Agreement for sale of ship whether creates any equitable title—Completion of sale of ship's necessity of—Sale deed for—See ST. 17 AND 18 Vic. Ch. 104, 21 M. 395.

Registered Letter.

Refusal of—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 114, 3 Bom. L. R. 420.

Service of notice through post by— Whether sufficient— See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 106, 28 C. 118=4 C.W.N. 790.

Register of Suits.

(1) —Act VIII of 1869 (B.C.)—Separate register of suits—Object — Jurisdiction.—The Bengal Legislature, when it passed Act VIII of 1869, restoring to the Civil Courts the jurisdiction of which they had been for a time deprived, and empowering them to try suits for rents and others of a kindred nature, thought fit to direct that the suits instituted under the provisions of the act should be entered in a separate register. This provision, however, was introduced obviously for statistical purposes, and not for the purpose of separating into parts the jurisdiction exercised by one Court. JALLALOODEEN v. J. BURNE, 15 B.L.R. 261, Note = 18 W R. 99. [R., 18 W.R. 343, 22 W. R. 478, 24 W.R. 154 = 15 B.L.R. 238.

Register of Suits—concluded.

Registrar.

(1)—Registrar, Duty of.—When an attorney enters appearance for a defendant before the expiry of the time mentioned in the summons it is the duty of the Registrar to put it down immediately in the cause list or at all events he ought to ask the Judge whether he should do so or not. Cumming v. Green, 4 B L.R. App. 75.

Appeal to Privy Council, leave to—Order refusing to vary or discharge report of Registrar—See APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL—GENERAL, 5 C.W.N. 41.

District Registrar not a Court—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, s. 115, 17 M.L.J. 313 = 2 M.L.T. 267 = 30 M. 326.

Mortgage-deed, when said to be properly attested—Signatures of Sub-Registrar and identifier on the back of the bond not sufficient to render mortgage valid—See DEED—ATTESTATION OF DEEDS, 26 C. 246 = 3 C.W.N. 84.

Acknowledgment before—See DEED—ATTESTATION OF DEEDS, 26 C. 78.

Execution of deed—Admission of signature before Registrar—Denial of execution—Jurisdiction of, to register—Certificate of registration—See DEED—EXECUTION OF DEEDS, 6 C.W.N. 329.

Reference pending before—Filing statement of facts after appointed time right of party—See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 26 C. 585.

Registrar, Duty of—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, ss. 34, 35, 1 B.L.R.O.C. 47.

O. XI, r. 21, Civ. Pro. Code, 1908—Power of Registrar (Original Side) to dismiss suit under, for want of prosecution—See RULES OF HIGH COURTS AND SUPREME COURTS—CALCUTTA, 6 C.L.J. 374.

Dwelling house—Mis-statement in abstract of title—Payment into Court—Subsequent discovery of mis-statement—Recession of sale—See SALE—GENERAL, 5 C.W.N. 593.

Registrar—Registration of document when execution admitted—Necessity for sanction for prosecution for forgery—See SANCTION TO PROSECUTE, 2 M.L.J. 286.

Jurisdiction of—Presidency Small Cause Court to set aside ex parte decree—See SMALL CAUSE COURT, PRESIDENCY TOWNS, JURISDICTION OF—GENERAL, 30 C. 588 = 7 C.W.N. 547.

Registrar-General.

Refusal of—to register—Endorsement of refusal—See REGISTRATION ACT, 1866, ss. 31, 82, 84, 6 B.L.R. 576.

Registrars, Marriage by Act.

See ACT V OF 1852.

Registrar of High Court.

(1)—Registrar of High Court—Power of, to execute conveyance and enter into covenants on behalf of infants and parties refusing to execute.—When the High Court so directs, the Registrar has statutory authority to execute a conveyance on behalf of a party refusing to do so, so as to pass his estate, if any, but cannot bind him by entering into any covenants on his behalf. The Registrar in such a case cannot be in a higher position than the guardian of an infant ward. RAM CHUNDER DUTT v. DWARKANATH BYSACK, 16 C. 330. [R., 2 N.L.R. 25.]

Power of guardian to submit matters to arbitration on behalf of Minor—Reference to Registrar — Practice — See GUARDIAN, DUTIES AND POWERS OF—GUARDIAN, 19 C. 334.

Of High Court whether empowered to grant leave to institute suit under cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, 1865—See LETTERS PATENT, CALCUTTA, 1865, 7 C.L.J. 441 = 35 C. 394 = 12 C. W.N. 705.

Of Sudder Dewani Adawlt or High Court, right of—to impose trust on Secretary of State—Whether—trustee of owner of Govt. Pro-notes deposited with him for benefit of such owner—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 10, art. 48, 9 C.W.N. 443 = 32 C. 799.

See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 24 C. 437 = 2 C.W.N. 57, 21 C. 566.

Registrar's Sale.

(1)—Registrar's sale—Deficiency in area—Compensation or annulment of sale—Purchaser's right to re-payment of purchase-money, interests and costs.—Where there is a substantial deficiency in the area of property sold at a Registrar's sale, so that the purchaser would not have offered the price that he did if he had been aware of such deficiency, the Court will not compel him to take the property with compensation, but will discharge him from the sale. (1 C.W.N. 106, D.) The purchaser at a Registrar's sale, who is discharged from the sale on account of the deficiency in area, is entitled to repayment of the purchase-money with interest from the date of payment into Court and the costs, charges and expenses, incurred by reason of his bidding for and being declared the purchaser of the property, and of an incidental to the application to be discharged from his purchase. Quære:—Whether he is entitled to the costs of survey made by him to ascertain the area of the property? BANK OF BENGAL v. AKHOY KUMAR MUKERJEE, 6 C.W.N. 365.

(2)—Registrar's sale—Deficiency in quantity of land—Compensation.—Where, at a Registrar's sale, the property sold was stated in the particulars to contain 8 cottahs, and one of the conditions of sale was, that the purchaser would not be entitled to any compensation, and the property was found to contain 5 cottahs, 13 chittaks and 38 sq. ft. only, it was held, (the purchase-money being still in the hands of the Court at the time of the application by the purchaser for compensation in respect of the deficiency), that the proviso in the condition of sale applied only to small or unimportant errors and misstatements, and not to a deficiency in measurement of a substantial character, and that, in respect of the latter, the purchaser was entitled to compensation out of the purchase money in the hands of the Court, although he had obtained an order for confirmation. (Whitemore v. Whitemore, L. R. 8 Eq. 603, F.) KISSORY MOHAN ROY v. KALI CHARAN GHOSE, 1 C.W.N. 106. [D., 29 C. 370, 6 C.W.N. 365.]

Registrar's Sale—concluded.

Registrar's sale—What is purchased—Sale notification—Rectification of boundaries—Annulment of sale—See SALE—GENERAL, 4 C. W.N. 504.

Sheriff's sale and Registrar's sale—Difference —See SALE—GENERAL, 27 C. 264=4 C.W.N. 13.

Registration.

See REGISTRATION ACTS.

(1)—Act XVI of 1864, s. 15—Refusal to register sale-deed—Suit to establish right to register. —S. 15 of Act XVI of 1864 allows a person to institute a regular suit to establish his right to have an instrument registered, if its registration was refused by the Registrar. SHEIKH INAYUT ALI v. SYUD FURZUND ALI, 2 Agra 21.

(2)—Suit to contest fact of execution.—The mere registration of a document does not prevent a party from bringing a suit to contest the fact of its execution. PRASANNA KUMAR SANDYAL v. MATHURNATH BANERJEE, 8 B.L R. App. 26=15 W.R. 487.

(3)—Suit for decree directing document to be registered.—In Upper Burma a suit lies for a decree directing that a document shall be registered. MAUNG TUNG AUNG v. MAUNG MAUNG LAT, U.B R. 1902—1903, Vol. II, Civil, Registration, 1.

(4)—Unregistered conveyance — Covenant to pay—Maintainability of suit.—Where a transaction was entered into, which was not a mortgage in the strict sense of that word, but a sale for a term of years for a sum of money, evidenced by an unregistered bond, wherein a condition was incorporated that, if the grantor failed to observe the stipulations of the deed, he would pay the principal after deducting the profit received and interest from the date of the bond, a suit to enforce the covenant to pay on default being made, cannot be maintained, as the covenant was a contract depending upon the principal contract, which again failed for want of registration of the bond. VENKATRAYUDU v. PAPI, 8 M. 182. [R., 13 M. 308, U. B.R. 1904, IV Quarter, Registration, 1.]

Registration—continued.

(5)—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 54—Optional registration.—S. 54 virtually abolishes optional registration. Per Garth, C. J. NARAIN CHUNDER CHUCKERBUTTY v. DATARAM ROY, 8 C. 597, F.B.=10 C.L.R. 241. [F., 17 M. 146; Diss., 16 C. 622; R., A.W.N. 1885, 201, 19 C. 623, F.B., 16 M. 148, F.B., 2 O.C. 74.]

(6)—Certificate of — Power of Court to go behind certificate and reject document as registered in wrong office.—Where a certificate of due registration is granted by a Sub-Registrar, a Civil Court cannot go behind the certificate, and reject the deed, when offered in evidence, on the ground that it has been registered in a wrong Sub-Registrar's office. RAM COOMAR SEN v. KHODA NAWAY, 7 C.L.R. 223. [R., 14 C. 449, 29 C. 654, 16 C.P.L R. 141, 9 Bom. L.R. 401.]

(7)—Mortgage—Certificate of sale.—An endorsement made and signed by a Judge on a deed of mortgage of immoveable property, certifying that the deed was purchased at a public sale, held in his Court, in execution of a decree, operates as a sale certificate, and, if it relates to immoveable property of the value of Rs. 100 and upwards, must be registered; and, if unregistered, is inadmissible in evidence. KANAHIA LAL v. KALI DIN, 2 A. 392.

(8)—Certificate of Registrar—Proof of execution of document.—The Court can assume from the certificate of the Registrar that certain persons appeared before him, and that, after satisfying him that they were the persons whom they represented themselves to be, they admitted execution of the deed. But, where the execution of the document is in issue, the circumstances of its having been registered does not of itself suffice to prove its genuineness and dispense with the necessity of any independent proof. FUZAL ALI v. BIA BIBI CHOWDHRIAN, 7 C.L.R. 276. (6 C.W.N. 105, R.)

(9)—Non-existence of property—Burden of proof.—When objection is taken to the legality and validity of registration of a deed on the ground of the non-existence of the property within the jurisdiction of the Registration District, the party setting up the plea ought to prove clearly that no property within the Registry District was comprised in the deed. JOGINI MOHAN CHATTERJI v. BHOOT NATH GHOSAL, 31 C. 146.

(10)—Property within Registration sub-district.—Where it is not proved that none of the properties described in a document lay within the jurisdiction of the Registration Office where it has been registered, the registration is valid. PURNA CHANDRA BAKSHI v. NOBIN CHANDRA GANGOPADHYA, 8 C.W.N. 362.

(11 & 12)—Invalidity of document for want of registration, objection regarding, when could be raised.—In a suit on a compulsorily registrable, but unregistered deed, the point as to the invalidity of the deed for want of registration was taken for the first time at the hearing of the second appeal. Held, the plea ought to be considered, though taken so late, the point being one which a Court ought to take judicial notice of. SAHEB LAL v. SUKH LAL, 2 N.L. R. 121. (2 B. 489, 2 A. 554, 3 A. 157, 19 W. R. 22, F.; 3 B.L.R. 125; 11 W.R. 381, Diss.: 13 A. 300, 14 C.P.L.R. 42, R.)

Registration—continued.

(13)—Non-delivery of document by executant to execute after registration, effect of—Validity of such document—Transaction whether completed.—Suit on a mortgage deed executed by defendant to plaintiff. The deed was presented for registration by the defendant and registered at his instance, but it was not delivered to plaintiff. The contention of the defendant was that the deed was invalid for want of delivery: held, there is no provision of law in this country requiring that a registered deed shall not operate until it is delivered to the person claiming under it. Further, the presentation of such document by the party executing it to the registration Officer and its subsequent registration must be regarded as equivalent to the formality of delivery prescribed for writing under seal by the law of England. KANSHI RAM v. TOTA RAM, 40 P.R. 1906=78 P.L.R. 1907.

(14)—Registration, duty of parties as to.—Where the registration of an instrument embodying a contract is necessary, it is essential that each of the parties thereto should do for the other all that is necessary towards securing the registration of the instrument. KIAM-UD-DIN v. RAJJO, 11 A. 13=A.W.N. 1888, 280.

(15)—Registration—Land referred to in document outside district of registering officer—Effect of registering document—Description of property misleading and insufficient for identification—Liability of person registering—Mistake of registering officer.—The registration by a Sub-Registrar of a document referring to land not in his sub-district has not the effect of registration where the description of the property given in the document was misleading and insufficient for the purposes of identification, though otherwise, a party presenting the document for registration should not be made liable for the mistake of the Sub-Registrar. MA PE SHU v. MAUNG THA DUN, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 577.

(16)—Execution by duly authorised agent—No special power necessary for purposes of registration—Transfer of property by execution and registration by agent.—Where a document is executed by a duly authorised agent on behalf of his principal, there is no necessity for a power of attorney authorising him to present it for registration. The execution and registration of the document by the agent effects such transfer of the property comprised in it as is intended thereby. HAZARI LAL v. DEBI PERSAD, 1 C.P.L.R. 87.

(17)—Bond—Instalment—Registration — Act XX of 1866, ss. 52, 53—A bond for a sum of money payable by instalments contained a proviso that, in case of default being made in the payment of two successive instalments, the whole amount secured by the bond and remaining unpaid should become due. The bond was specially registered under s. 52 of Act XX of 1866. Held, that the whole amount remaining due on the bond could not be recovered in a summary way as provided by s. 53 of Act XX of 1866 on the allegation of default of payment of two consecutive instalments—Ss. 52 and 53 not applying to such a case. Held, also, that these sections apply only to the two cases—where the full amount of the bond becomes payable and where an instalment becomes payable; and that the sections do not apply to cases not falling strictly within the words of the Act. In the matter of the Indian Registration Act, 1866, and in the matter of LACHMIPAT SINGH v. DOGAR ROY BAHADUR, 2 B.L.R. O.C. 151=11 W.R. O.C. 24. (8 W.R. 466, R.) [F., 6 B.H.C.O.C. 64; R., 85 P.R. 1869.]

(18)—Razinamah, whether requires registration and when.—A razinamah, in so far as it is submitted to, and acted upon judicially by, a Court is, in itself, a step of judicial procedure not requiring registration. (22 M. 508, P.C., F.) But, so far as regards such of its stipulations and provisions, as have not been incorporated with, and given effect to by, the order of a Court, it would not be exempt from, but be governed by, the provisions of the Registration Act. PATHA MUTHAMMAL v. ESUP ROWTHER, 29 M. 365. [R., 5 C.L.J. 611=36 C. 193, 7 C.L.J. 492=12 C.W.N. 849=35 C. 837, 7 A.L.J. 206.]

(19)—Compromise of suit—Pleadings not to be construed with strictness.—Each document of which the registration is alleged or denied to be compulsory must be judged of strictly on its own merits and care must be taken not to decide one case on the analogy of the decision in another case unless the document in each case is practically of the same purport and character. (97 P.R. 1895, R.) An application to Court containing the terms of a compromise in whatever language it might be couched cannot properly be treated as the original contract between the parties to the case in which it was made; it must be held to be a mere recital of the contract independently entered into between them. (98 P.R. 1902=18 P.L.R. 1903, R.) A compromise in so far as it is submitted to and is acted upon judicially by Court being in itself a step of judicial procedure does not require registration. (22 M. 503, R.) Held, that the petition addressed to the Court embodying the terms of a compromise arrived at between the parties and given effect to by the Court at the request of the parties did not require registration and was admissible in evidence, though it was unregistered. (76 P.R. 1887, 25 M. 553, 95 P.R. 1894, 30 C. 783, R.) In this country a plaint and the pleadings of parties should not be construed with absolutely literal strictness. Where a suit filed on behalf of a purdahnashin lady was described in the plaint as based on a razinama and the admissibility of the document in evidence having been disputed for want of registration, the plaintiff sought to rely on the oral agreement which resulted in the razinama—Held, that the plaintiff might be allowed to do so. KHARIUL NISSA v. BHDADUR ALI, 11 P.L.R. 1906=27 P.R. 1906.

Registration—continued.

(20)— Compromise petition, constituting a lease and filed in a criminal proceeding—Registration, if necessary.—Plaintiff sued a tenant for increased rent on the basis of a petition of compromise filed in a criminal proceeding, which resulted in the withdrawal of the proceeding, though no order was passed incorporating the terms of the petition. Held, that the petition was not admissible in evidence without registration. If the petition had been filed in a civil proceeding and had been followed by an order or decree, which embodied directly or indirectly its terms, then it would not have been necessary to have had it registered. BIRAJ MOHINI DASSI v. KEDAR NATH KARMOKAR, 12 C.W.N. 854 =8 C. L. J. 90=35 C. 1010. (8 C.W.N. 485, 26 I. A. 101, 22 M. 508, 30 C. 783, 1 C.L.J. 388, R.) [D., 2 Ind. Cas. 662.]

(21)—Agreement registration of which is compulsory, embodied in a petition of compromise —Agreement conferring right of pre-emption—Compromise filed before a Revenue Court.—Held, that an agreement conferring a right of pre-emption, the registration of which is compulsory, is not exempted from the operation of the Registration law, on account of its being embodied in a petition of compromise filed in a mutation proceeding before a Revenue Court. KAMTA PRASAD v. SEWAK RAM, 13 O.C. 241. (4 O.C. 78, 32 A. 206, 10 O.C. 49, R.)

(22)—Adoption deed not registered—Factum of adoption.—The mere circumstance of an adoption deed not being registered is no ground why the adoption should not be believed. KALI CHANDRA CHOWDHRY v. SHIBCHANDRA BHADURI, 6 B.L.R. 501, P.C.= 15 W.R.P.C. 12.

(23)—Interest in land of the value of Rs. 100 —Test.—A deed is not compulsorily registrable which does not create an interest in land of the value of Rs. 100. The value of the present interest should always determine the amount for registration purposes. SADAGOPA v. DORASAMI, 5 M. 214. (1 A. 274, Diss.; 2 B. 353, 1 M. 380, Appr.)

(24)—Registration—Bond for principal less than Rs. 100 with ascertained interest more than Rs. 100 charging immoveable property.—Where a bond charging immoveable property dated 18th July, 1871, provided that the principal amount, Rs. 96-11-0, should be paid on the 15th June, 1876, together with interest at the rate of one per cent. per mensem, held that the bond should have been registered, as the principal sum was secured with the certain and ascertainable increment of the interest at twelve per cent. for five years. MAHIP SINGH v. SUMAT KUAR, A.W.N. 1881, 27. (2 A. 40, R.)

Registration—continued.

(25)—Registration—Immoveable property over Rs. 100 in value given in lieu of dower to his wife by a Mahomedan.—Held, that a transfer by a Mahomedan of immoveable property of the value of over Rs. 100, even though in favour of his wife, in lieu of dower, cannot be recognised, unless made by a registered instrument. ASALAT FATIMA v. L. SHAMBHU DAYAL, 14 O.C. 214=11 Ind. Cas. 928. (13 C.W.N. 160, F.; 88 P.R. 1901, 86 P.R. 1902, R.)

(26)—"Birt" Meaning of—Birt deed for less than Rs. 100*—Registration—Sale of under-proprietary rights—Transfer of Property Act* (IV of 1882), s. 108*—Reservation of annual rent or lagan sarkari—Lease.*—The question was whether a birt deed of which the consideration was less that Rs. 100 and which reserved a fixed annual rent was valid without registration. Held, that such a deed really implied a grant for money paid for under-proprietary rights by a superior proprietor in favour of the birt holder, and should, therefore, be treated as a sale-deed, and not as a lease, and did not therefore, require registration. (1 O.C. 124, 4 O. C. 31, 8 O.C. 121, 10 O.C. 318, 6 C.L.J. 693, 11 C.W.N. 913, 9 Bom. L. R. 851, 17 M.L. J. 400, 4 A.L.J. 737, 2 M.L.T. 402, 29 A. 708, R.) Birt generally implies an under-proprietary right. It is cession under which a superior proprietor parts with a certain portion of his proprietary rights either for money paid or for religious purposes. RAM AUTAR v. DRIGPAL, 8 Ind. Cas. 725.

(27)—Registration—Lease and agreement of lease.—An agreement to execute at some future time a lease which should contain specified terms and particulars is neither a lease nor even an agreement to lease, and does not therefore, require registration under s. 7 of the Registration Act. Whether a Court of equity would, under such circumstances, consider a party who had signed such a document as this to be in the same position as if he had actually executed the contemplated lease or its counterpart is another question altogether. HAJI ABDULVIDONA JONAS v. HAJI HARONE ESMILE, 7 B.L.R. App. 21.

(28)—Lease—Compulsory registration—Tenancy determinable at the option of the lessor.—Where a lease contains provisions for payment of rent annually and for payment of the rent in advance in each year, it may import a tenancy exceeding a year. But, where it also provides that the tenancy is to be determinable at any moment at the option of the lessor, it is not compulsorily registrable. RATNASABAPATHI v. VENKATACHELLA, 14 M. 271. (8 B. 493, L.R. 3 Q.B. 658, and Hand v. Hall, L.R. 2 Ex. D. 355, R. & Appr.) [R., 9 C.P.L.R. 88.]

(29)—Resignment of absolute occupancy rights —Necessity for registration.—An instrument which purported to resign the absolute occupancy rights in lieu of debts exceeding Rs. 100 required registration, and an acknowledgment of execution by the executant did not give it validity. PURANSINGH v. PARMESHWAR DASS, 1 C P.L.R. 91.

Registration—continued.

(30)—Instrument relating to sale of house, construed—Agreement to sell—Registration.—Where an instrument recited that a house had been sold for a certain sum, that the vendor had received part of the price as earnest money, and would receive the remainder after due execution and registration of the sale deed, and the instrument also provided penalties in case either party withdrew from the sale held, in a suit brought by the vendee to recover the earnest money and the penalty under the instrument, owing to the vendor's default, that the instrument was not a conveyance but only an agreement to sell, and did not require registration to enable the plaintiff to recover under it. HURGOBIND v. MUSSUMMAT JUMNA DAI, 8 P.R. 1877. [R., 183 P R. 1889, F.B.]

(31)—Registration Act, III of 1877—Unregistered agreement forming step in a judicial proceeding.—Where, during the pendency of a previous suit to recover immoveable property, two unregistered agreements were entered into between the parties, one relating to the items included in the suit and referring only by way of remark to the other agreement, and the other relating to properties not included therein but forming the subject of the later suit in question, and by both agreements the parties had agreed to divide among themselves the properties in halves, and the former agreement was produced in Court as a compromise and formed the basis of the decree therein, held, in the later suit to recover items covered by the latter agreement, that the document being unregistered, could not be admitted in evidence and that no title conferred thereby could be recognised. Held, also that the former agreement, though unregistered, had been submitted to the Court and acted upon judicially and did not therefore require registration. PRANAL ANNI v. LAKSHMI ANNI, 22 M. 508, P C =26 I.A. 101=3 C.W.N. 485=1 Bom. L.R 394=9 M.L.J. 147=7 Sar. 516. [F., 29 M. 365; Expl., 28 A. 78=2 A.L.J. 564=A.W.N. 1905, 195; R., 4 O.C. 78, 25 M. 7=11 M L.J. 370, 30 C. 783, 1 C.L.J. 388, 27 P.R. 1906=11 P.L. R. 1906=13 C.W.N. 226=9 C.L.J. 96, 3 N.L. R. 72, 5 C L J. 611=36 C. 193 9 C.L J. 16=13 C.W.N. 217=5 M.L.T. 274=5 M.L.J. 359, 35 C. 837=12 C W N 849=7 C.L.J. 492, 35 C. 1010=12 C.W.N. 854=8 C.L.J. 90, 5 A.L J. 717=31 A. 13=A.W.N. 1908, 264, 31 M. 330=18 M L J. 16 (N)=3 M.L.T. 377; D., 5 C L J. 15]

(32)—'Dowl Fehrist'—If requires registration.—A 'dowl fehrist' is to more a contract than are chittas, measurement papers or 'sumthalic' papers, and does not require to be stamped or registered. GUNGAPERSAD v. GOGUN SING, 3 C. 322. [F., 5 C. 864=6 C.L.R. 286; D., 10 C.L.R. 121.]

Registration—continued.

(33)—Gift—Registration—Hibabilawaz.—A hibabilawaz was held to be merely a deed of gift, notwithstanding the fact that it was supported by a nominal consideration of a "than of cloth and natural love and affection" inasmuch as such consideration should, for all practical purposes, be treated as merely nominal. GOLAM MOSTOFA v. GOBURDHONE MULLA, 8 C L.R. 441.

(34)—Gift incomplete, not being registered—Right of donee to compel registration—Registration of document not containing description of property—Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 21—Document relating to appointment of guardian and gift of immoveable property—Registration of document.—A deed of gift may be registered though it contains no description of the properties referred to in it. Where a deed of gift, though an onerous one, has not been registered, the donee cannot compel the donor or his legal representatives to register the same, since that would be compelling the donor or his legal representatives to complete an incomplete gift. A document appointing a guardian is not a document relating to immoveable property within the meaning of s. 21 of the Registration Act any more than a power of attorney authorizing an agent to collect rents of immoveable property is such a document. Where a document relates to the appointment of a guardian and to a gift of immoveable property, the registration of the document can be compelled so far as it relates to the appointment of the guardian, though the registration thereof cannot be compelled so far as it relates to the gift of immoveable property. The document will have to be registered with the proviso that the registration is to take effect only so far as it is one appointing a guardian. AMIRDAN v. MUTHUKUMARA CHETTY, 13 M.L.J. 303. [R., 15 M.L.J. 30.]

(35)—Transfer of property in compromise of lawful claim—Transfer not gift, sale or exchange—No registration necessary—Effect of transfer.—Where the plaintiff and his brothers allowed their sister to retain and enjoy certain land by way of compromise of her claim in respect of a land belonging to her which they had sold, the transaction was neither a gift, sale or exchange under the Transfer of Property Act. Such a transaction need not be in writing registered, and it conferred a valid title to the land in favour of the sister. THIRUVENGIDACHARIAR v. RANGANATHA AIYANGAR, 13 M.L.J. 500. [R., 11 Bom. L R. 1336.]

(36)—Possession—Registration of deed of gift not equivalent to possession.—The registration of the deed of gift is not equivalent to possession. ISMAL v. RAMJI, 1 Bom. L.R. 177=23 B. 682.

(37)—Mortgage bond.—Where an instrument is executed in the form of a mortgage bond (the registration of which is compulsory) the mortgagee is entitled, on the mortgagor's refusal to register, to call in at once whatever amount is due on the bond without waiting for the expiration of the period set out in the bond. NGA NWE v. MI BYAW, L.B.R. 1872—1892, 313.

Registration—continued.

(38)—Mortgage—Test for registration—Unregistered mortgage—Money bond.—The test in determining the value, for purposes of registration, of the interest created by the mortgage, is the amount of the least sum recoverable under it. It is the value of the interest created, not the consideration for the creation of the interest, which must be regarded. [Appr., 6 M. 422, 10 C. 82, 13 C.L.R. 256.] An unregistered mortgage is not receivable in evidence for the purpose of affecting immoveable property, or in proof of any transaction affecting it, but it may be received as evidence of the personal obligation JAGAPPA v. LATCHAPPA, 5 M. 119. (7 M.H.C. 296, F.) [Appr., 13 C.L.R. 256, 15 M. 336, 19 B. 36; R., 23 M. 105, 25 M. 396; D., 4 N.L.R. 90.]

(39)—Mortgage transaction being reduced to writing on different papers—Ascertainment of intention from all documents—Registration.—Though there is nothing in the law to prevent the whole of a mortgage transaction being reduced in any form to writing on different papers whether attached or detached from each other, and the Court, in cases in which the terms as appearing in the different papers are contradictory or inconsistent, has to ascertain the intention of the parties by reading all the papers together as forming one document though each paper on the face of it purports to be a separate document, yet, the requirements of the Transfer of Property Act, making registration compulsory for the validity of such a transaction cannot be held to have been complied with if some of the papers are registered while the others are left unregistered. MUTHIA VENKATACHELAPATI v. PYANDA VENKATACHELAPATI, 27 M. 348.

(40)—Reg. XVII of 1802, s. 3, cl. 3—Hypothecation bond capable of registration.—A deed of hypothecation fell under the head of mortgage capable of registration under cl. 3, s. 3, Reg. XVII of 1802. KADARSA RAUTAN v. RAVIAH BIBI, 2 M.H.C. 108.

(41)—Sulehnama hypothecating immoveable property—Registration—Suit for money charged on immoveable property.—A charge, exceeding Rs. 100 in value, created upon immoveable property by means of a Sulehnama (with a half-rupee Court-fee stamp affixed) presented in Court in execution proceedings, cannot be enforced against such property, the document not being properly stamped and not being registered. Observations, by Spankie, J., on previous decisions of the High Court in which sulehnamas were relied on as evidence of a separate oral agreement or were held not to require registration. SURJU PRASAD v. BHAWANI SAHAI, 2 A. 481.

(42)—Mortgage-deed not registered—Covenant to register—Evidence—Admissibility.—The defendant borrowed from the plaintiff on a mortgage of immoveable property and granted a lease in the name of a minor son of the plaintiff which contained an agreement to have the document registered in the following month. As the defendant failed to perform his part of the contract and as for want of registration the plaintiff could derive no title to or interest in the property mortgaged, plaintiff sued to recover back with interest the money advanced. The defendant contended that no action would lie on the mortgage lease which had not been registered and that it was not admissible in evidence. Held that the defendant would not be allowed to avail himself of the non-registration of the document for the purpose of protecting himself in a suit against him for a breach of his covenant to register, and that the document was admissible for a collateral purpose without being registered. SHAM NARAYAN LALL v. KHIMAJIT MATOE, 4 B.L.R. F.B. 1. [Appl., 15 C.P.L.R. 33; R., 7 B.H.C.O.C. 45.]

Registration—continued.

(43)—Registration—Unregistered mortgage—Suit for money—Admissibility.—In a suit to recover a sum of money with interest, which had been lent by the plaintiff on an agreement by the defendant to mortgage certain immoveable property and the mortgage-deed was not registered, held, that the document was admissible in evidence as it was used merely as the best evidence that the money sued for was owing and was not used to show any interest in the land. BUTTO KRISTO DOSS v. KHETTRA CHANDRA BUTTACHARJEE, 6 B.L.R. App. 69.

(44)—Unregistered mortgage-deed, not admissible as evidence of personal liability.—When a document records a single and indivisible transaction of mortgage for a sum of money over Rs. 100 and is not registered, it is inadmissible as evidence when it becomes necessary to prove that transaction even for a money decree only. THAKUR DAS v. FATTE KHAN, 60 P R. 1880. [D., 80 P.R. 1881.]

(45)—Receipt containing declaration of title as to immoveable property, when admissible without registration.—The document produced by the plaintiff in this case was executed with the main object of showing that the mutual claims of the parties had been satisfied, but the defendant, therein spoke of the plaintiff as the proprietor of certain lands above Rupees one hundred in value and mentioned the fact of his having come into possession. The document was held to be admissible in evidence, so far as it was sought to be used as a receipt or acquittance and nothing further; but when used as evidence of title, as an admission or acknowledgment of his title to the lands specified therein, and as proof that, at the date of the document, the defendant's possession was not adverse to him, it would come within the letter and spirit of those provisions of the Registration Acts which require declarations of title to be registered so as to be inadmissible without registration. FAKI v. KHOTU, 4 B. 590. [F., 19 B. 36; R., 9 A. 108=6 A.W.N. 1886, 310, 20 B. 553, 24 B. 615.]

Registration—continued.

(46)—Unregistered receipt, proof of payment recited in—Admissibility of receipt—Extinction of mortgage-right.—Even where an unregistered receipt passed on payment of money purports, in the result, to extinguish a mortgage right, the Court should not refuse to receive it in evidence of the payment therein recited, oral evidence as to the fact of such payment being also admissible. APPAMMA NAYUBALU v. RAMANNA, 23 M. 92=9 M.L.J. 124.

(47)—Acknowledgment of debt contained in unregistered document—Admissibility of document as evidence of acknowledgment.—When an unregistered document which is compulsorily registrable contains an acknowledgment of a debt, it is admissible as evidence to prove such acknowledgment. KHUSHALO v. BEHARI LAL, 3 A. 523.

(48)—Evidence, admissibility in, of compulsorily registrable but unregistered lease.—Plaintiff claimed the land in dispute under one T and defendants contended that the land belonged absolutely to them as the successors in title of one H. Plaintiff sought to use in evidence an unregistered, though compulsorily registrable lease, which T had given to H, urging that the lease-deed, though invalid for want of registration, was still admissible for the purpose of showing that the possession with H, the predecessor in title of the defendants, was permissive and not adverse as against T, under whom the plaintiff claimed. Held, an unregistered instrument, of which registration is compulsory, is admissible only to prove a collateral fact, that is to say, such an instrument may be admitted in evidence for proving something independent of, or divisible from, the purpose for which the law requires registration. (10 C. P.L.R. 107, D.) The admission in evidence of the unregistered lease-deed in the present case as indicating the quality of possession of the land with the alleged lessee thereunder was illegal, being in contravention of the express terms of s. 49 of the Act, because the transaction was one affecting immoveable property. NARAYAN BISNOI v. JASWANT SINGH, 1 N. L.R. 147.

(49)—Bond—Registration—Evidence.—The mere circumstances of a bond not being registered is not sufficient by itself to counterbalance the evidence if it is generally satisfactory in proof of the validity of the bond. GANGA PRASAD v. MAWJI LAL, 9 B. L.R. 426, P. C.=16 W. R. 30, P. C.

(50)—Evidence for—Collateral purposes—Unregistered document.—A document which requires to be registered in order to affect immoveable property or to confer a power to adopt may, if not registered, be used for a collateral purpose, which does not require registration. BACHOO v. KHUSHALDAS, 4 Bom. L.R. 1883.

(51)—Document.—An unregistered document affecting immoveable property is admissible to prove a personal obligation where it contains a distinct, i.e., separate admission of liability or personal undertaking to pay and not otherwise. MAUNG KYAN BET v. MAUNG LU DOK, U.B.R. 1904, 4th Qr. Registration, p. 1 (18 B. 745, 19 B. 663, 20 B. 553, 9 C. 520, 26 C. 334, 5 M. 519, 8 M. 182, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 125, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 212, L.B.R. 1872—1892, 195, R.)

Registration—continued.

(52)—Compulsorily registrable document—Admissibility in evidence—Divisible and indivisible transaction.—Where the transaction, evidenced by a compulsorily registrable document, is indivisible, the document, if not duly registered, would be inadmissible in evidence. But otherwise where the transaction is divisible; thus a document, in the nature of a bond, securing the repayment of money and further providing for the hypothecation of certain property as collateral security for the loan, would, if unregistered, be admissible to prove the executant's liability for the loan though not to prove the hypothecation. KRISHTO LALL GHOSE v. BONOMALEE ROY, 5 C. 611=5 C.L. R. 43. (2 C.L.R. 428, D.; 4 B.L.R. F.B. 18, F.) [F., 11 C.L.R. 166; R., L.B.R. 1872—1892, 195, 13 M. 281, 15 M. 336, 4 C.L.J. 510.]

(53)—Reception in evidence of unstamped and unregistered document—Objection in first appeal—Civ. Pro. Code, 1859, s. 350—Civ. Pro. Code, 1877, s. 578.—An appellate Court may admit and consider an objection to the reception, in evidence, of an unstamped and unregistered document. SAFDAR ALI KHAN v. LACHMAN DAS, 2 A. 554. (3 B.L.R. 126, Disc.) [R., 2 N.L.R. 121.]

(54)—Will—Proof—Identifiers—Admissibility of evidence—General reputation, evidence of—Registration—Presumption—Effect of registration.—The registration is a solemn act to be performed in the presence of a competent official appointed to act as Registrar, whose duty it is to attend to parties during the registration and see that the proper persons are present and are competent to act and are identified to his satisfaction; and all things done before him in his official capacity and verified by his signature will be presumed to be done duly and in order. When the Judge in the Court below had stated and that the "general reputation of character which the two identifiers enjoyed" tended to throw a cloud of doubt upon the bona fides of the transaction, held that such evidence of the general reputation of the character of those persons who had both been dead ought not to have been admitted at all. GANGAMOYI DEBI v. TROILUCKHYA NATH CHOWDHRI, 3 C.L.J. 349, P.C.=10 C.W.N. 522=33 C. 537=8 Bom. L.R. 375=1 M.L.T. 131=16 M.L.J. 161=33 I.A. 60.

(55)—Unregistered trust deed—Admissibility in evidence—Possession.—Where a party claimed the right of possession of certain land on an unregistered trust deed which required registration and it was argued that the trust deed though unregistered was admissible in evidence as to the nature of the possession. Held, that the utmost use that could be made of the document was to show that the land had not been forcibly acquired. MAUNG SHWE NI v. MA NGWE ZA, L.B.R. (1893—1900), 32. (25 W.R. 211, 6 B. 215, R.)

Registration—continued.

(56)—Registration in wrong District—Admissibility in evidence.—A lease of immoveable property situate in one district, registered by the Registrar of another District, could not be rejected when tendered in evidence, if it bore upon it the Registrar's certificate. BISHUNATH NAIK v. KALLIANI BAI. A.W.N. 1882, 175. [R., 11 A. 319.]

(57)—Document registered by officer having no jurisdiction— Admissibility in evidence.—Where a Court finds that a document has been registered by an officer who had no jurisdiction to register it, it will refuse to receive it in evidence on the ground that it has not been duly registered. The observations of the Privy Council in 15 B.L.R. 228, upon which the decision in 7 C.L.R. 223 proceeds, are not applicable to this case, as in the former case the document in question was registered by an officer that had the jurisdiction to register it. BENI MADHAB MITTER v. KHATIR MONDUL, 14 C. 449.

(58)—Petition transferring rights—Collusion—Fraud—Non-registration — Admissibility in evidence—Registration Act XX of 1866.—A petition, under which the petitioner transfers his rights to another cannot be regarded as collusive, where there is no proof of any fraud having been attempted against any third party. Such a petition, if unregistered, could neither operate as a transfer of the rights of the transferor, nor be used in evidence before any Court. KALEE DASS GOSAIN v. MOOKTAKESHEE THAKOORANEE, 17 W.R. 218.

(59)—Fraudulent concealment—Registration — Notice. — The principle that registration amounts to notice to all subsequent purchasers of the same property is not applicable to a case where there has been a fraudulent concealment by a judgment-creditor of the extent of his judgment-debtor's interest in the property brought by the judgment-creditor to sale in execution of a decree obtained by the latter against the former. AGARCHAND GUMANCHAND v. RAKHMA HANMANT, 12 B. 678. [R., 20 B. 290.]

(60)—Registration, equivalent to notice—Law in Bombay—First mortgage and transfer of title-deeds to mortgagee—Registration of the mortgage — Mortgagee subsequently giving title-deeds to mortgagor—Gross neglect — Second mortgage with transfer of title-deeds—Priority —Notice—Respective rights of encumbrancers.—In the Presidency of Bombay, registration is equivalent to notice to subsequent encumbrancers. [F., 6 Bom. L.R. 1043.] The land in dispute was mortgaged by S to T under a registered deed date 11-11-1884. Subsequently, the title-deeds having got back into the possession of S, the latter mortgaged the same property to X and also delivered the title-deeds to him. Thereupon, T sued X for a declaration that his mortgage was entitled to priority over that of the defendant. The latter pleaded that the plaintiff had been guilty of fraud in delivering the title-deeds to the mortgagor with the result that he had advanced money on the security of the same property, under the impression that it had been unencumbered, that he had no notice, and that, therefore, he was entitled to priority over the plaintiff. Held accepting the finding of the lower Court that the plaintiff had not been guilty of fraud or negligence in parting with the title-deeds, that the plaintiff's mortgage must prevail over that of the defendant, because registration thereof was equivalent to notice to the defendant, and because there was, in this case, no misrepresentation made by the plaintiff (as prior mortgagee) which would have relieved the defendant (as subsequent mortgagee, of the duty of enquiry. If there had been such misrepresentation, the effect of constructive notice by reason of registration of the first mortgage would be destroyed. BALMUKUNDAS ATMARAM v. MOTI NARAYAN, 18 B. 444. [R., 17 M.L.J. 499=31 M. 7=3 M.L.T. 87.]

(61)—Notice, mere registration is.—A mere registration of a sale or mortgage in itself gives notice to subsequent purchasers or mortgagees. This doctrine is as applicable since the introduction of the Transfer of Property Act, as it was before. DINA v. NATHU, 4 Bom. L.R. 253=26 B. 538.

(62)—Registered and unregistered documents, priority between.—Quære.—Whether the case of a second registered purchaser with notice of a prior unregistered sale is an exception to the rule in 8 C. 597 (F.B.) BAMASUNDARI DASSI v. KRISHNA CHANDRA DHUR, 10 C. 424. [Expl., 13 C. 70.]

(63)—Registered conveyance — Unregistered conveyance with possession—Priority—Notice.—One, who holds under an unregistered deed of sale, the registration of which is not compulsory, and is in possession of the property conveyed, has a superior title to one, who sets up a registered conveyance of a later date unaccompanied by possession; the later purchaser presumably having notice of the title of the first purchaser from the fact of possession having been given. (The authorities on the question of priority are discussed here.) DINONATH GHOSE v. AULUCK MONEE DABEE, 7 C 753=10 C L.R. 129. [R., 6 B. 515, 10 C. 424, 10 C. 1073, 8 A. 540, 13 C. 70, 16 M. 148, F.B., 1 L.B.R. 293; Cons., 8 C. 597, F.B.]

(64)—Is registration notice.—The doctrine that registration is notice has no application so far as registered voluntary transfers as against creditors or subsequent transferees for consideration are concerned. If the doctrine be applicable, it can only apply for the purpose of either rebutting the presumption of fraud or preventing the presumption of fraud from arising. JOSHUA v. ALLIANCE BANK OF SIMLA, 22 C. 185.

Registration—continued.

(65)—Registration of puisne mortgages, whether notice to prior mortgagee—Suit on mortgage, subsequent mortgagees not being made parties—Rights of purchaser under decree as against puisne mortgagees.—The mere fact of the registration of a subsequent mortgage is no notice of its existence to a prior mortgagee; it is not the duty of a prior mortgagee, before suing, to make a search in the Registrar's office to find out who has, subsequent to the mortgage to him, acquired a right to redeem and therefore should be made party to the suit, and he is not guilty of either gross negligence or wilful abstention in not causing such a search. (16 A. 478, Diss.; 9 B. 427, 14 B. 506, 17 B. 741, 9 A. 591, Disappr.; 15 M. 268, 12 M. 429, 13 M. 383, 23 C. 790, 27 C. 358, 5 C.W. N. lxxxiii, Notes, Appr.) Whether registration itself is notice or not, depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case, upon the degree of care and caution which an ordinary prudent man would necessarily take for the protection of his own interest by search into the registers kept under the Registration Act. A decree obtained by a prior mortgagee who had no knowledge of the subsequent mortgages is not bad under s. 85, Transfer of Property Act, because the subsequent mortgagees were not parties to the suit; where a prior mortgagee who purchases the mortgaged properties under such a decree brings a suit for confirmation of possession against the puisne mortgagees and purchases the property in execution of those decrees, the prior mortgagee ought to succeed against the puisne mortgagees, but subject to their right to redeem the prior mortgage. (23 W.R. 338, D.) A purchaser under a prior mortgage may always shield his possession and protect his interest by setting up such prior mortgage, and it is not proper to allow him to be dispossessed simply on the ground that a third party has the right to redeem. BUNWARI JHA v. RAMJEE THAKUR, 7 C W. N. 11. [F., 31 C. 737, 32 C. 891=9 C.W.N. 728=1 C L.J. 371; R., 12 C W.N. 107=6 C. L.J. 612.]

(66)—No notice of document.—Mere registration of a document does not amount to a notice thereof. SUKHNANDAN v. SADARAM SETH, 13 C.P.L.R. 43. [R., 5 N L.R. 21.]

(67)—Preference of subsequent registered document to prior unregistered one.—As between a prior unregistered mortgagee and a subsequent registered mortgagee the preference given to the latter by registration must prevail in the absence of proof of notice of the prior transaction amounting to fraud on his part. SETH BONDRUSA v. SHEORAM, 16 C.P.L R. 95.

(68)—Priority.—An unregistered mortgage deed securing a sum over Rs 100 cannot be received, under s. 49, Registration Act 1877, in evidence to prove the mortgage; s. 50 of the Registration Act gives priority to the title under the registered document. A registered document has priority over an unregistered even when the latter is accompanied with possession. NGA SHWE LON v. NGA SHWE BON, L.B.R. (1872—1892). 151. (4 B. 126, 1 B.L.R., F.B., 82, Not appl.; 5 C. 336, F.)

(69)—Registered and unregistered documents—Act XIX of 1843—Act VIII of 1871—Act III of 1877—Priority.—An unregistered document executed when Act XIX of 1843 was in force, cannot be postponed to a document executed in 1873 and registered under Act VIII of 1871. CHATTAR SING v. RAM LAL, 3 A. 488. [R., 6 B. 168, F.B.]

(70)—Contract of sale—Registered conveyance—Unregistered contract for sale—Preference—Priority.—Between a purchaser who has a registered conveyance, and one who has only an unregistered contract of sale, the former must prevail. SHAMA CHARAN NEOGI v. NABIN CHANDRA DHOBA, 6 B.L.R. App. 1 =15. W.R. 239.

(71)—Prior unregistered and latter registered documents—Sales or mortgages of immoveable property worth below Rs. 100—Priority.—Held, that, between two purchasers for value of immoveable property worth below Rs. 100, the holder of a registered deed, though subsequent, must prevail against him who relies on an unregistered one, unless the former is shown to have had notice of the prior unregistered sale (5 C. 336, F.; 9 B. 427, 16 M. 148, R.) Held, also, that the question is not affected by the fact that the executants of the two deeds were different persons (e.g., the heir of the executant of the prior unregistered deed executing, as in this case, a subsequent registered one). (12 B. H.C. 241, 27 B. 408, R.) Held, also, that, as regards this question, there is no distinction between mortgages and sales. LALBEG v. VISHNUSA, 5 N.L.R. 82=3 Ind. Cas. 58. (9 B. 427, R.)

(72)—Registered deed of sale, priority of—Tangible immoveable proverty, definition of—Possession, delivery.—Subsequent to the enactment of the Transfer of Property Act, J executed an unregistered deed of sale of a house in favour of the defendant who was already in possession of the house as tenant. The sale-deed was for Rs. 30. On J's death his representatives sold this house by registered deed to the plaintiff. The plaintiff sued the defendant for possession of the house. Held, that delivery of tangible immoveable property having taken place the plaintiff could not claim priority for his registered deed of sale. Held further, that tangible property means lands, buildings, &c., which immediately or through the medium of tenants may be the subject of possession deliverable by the seller to the buyer. KHAIRATI v. SANDA, 2 O C. 74. [R., 9 O. C. 109.]

(73)—Effect of—Registered mortgage—Subsequent sale with possession—Priority.—A registered mortgage without possession has priority over a subsequent registered sale with possession. [F., 8 B. 168.] The effect of registration of a mortgage is to render it available against all subsequent purchasers or incumbrancers. (2 B. 299, F.) Where the rights of the mortgagee under a registered mortgage included that of bringing to sale the whole property, as it subsisted at the time of the mortgage, and the property was sold in execution of a decree on the mortgage, held the purchaser in execution acquired a right free from any created subsequently to the mortgage. B. SHRINGARPURE v. S. B. PETHE, 2 B. 662. [Diss., 5 M. 84; R., 4 B. 83, 5 B. 8, 8 B. 481, 28 B. 153.]

Registration—continued.

(74)—Registered mortgage—Prior oral mortgage—Priority—Notice—Mortgage before s. 59, Transfer of Property Act.—A registered mortgage does not take priority over an earlier valid oral mortgage of the same property, made when s. 59, Transfer of Property Act, was not in force at the place where the property is situated, if the second mortgagee had actual notice of the oral mortgage at the time when the registered mortgage was made. ARUNACHELLUM CHETTY v PERIA CURPEN CHETTY, 6 L B R. 184=8 Ind. Cas. 597. (199 P.R. 1900, 16 M. 148, Printed Judgments, Bom. H.C. 1896, p. 778, 13 C. 70, 19 A. 145, F.; 115 P.R. 1890, Diss.; 10 C. 250, 4 L.B.R. 26, 10 M.I.A. 220, R.)

(75)— Registered and unregistered deed — Priority—Collusion—No distinct finding—Remand. —A party who purchases an estate and registers his purchase deed, knowing that previous to his purchase the land had already been sold to another party who had not taken the precaution of registering, would not be entitled to priority over the holder of the non-registered deed of anterior date, on the ground of collusion between the vendor and himself. But if a purchaser buys bona fide without any notice or knowledge of any previous sale of the property, and takes the precaution which the law advises him to take by Act XVI of 1864 and registers his purchase deed, then, his registered deed would have priority over a deed of a date anterior to it, but not registered. [R., 7 B.H.C. O.C. 45, 9 B H.C. 121, 4 C. L.R. 257=5 C. 336, 4 B. 126, F.B.; D., 7 C. 753.] Where the lower Court failed to record a distinct finding of fraud or collusion on the part of the holder of the registered deed, while giving priority to an unregistered deed over a registered one, the party has a right to ask the appellate Court to remand the case for a proper trial. GOWRI KANT ROY v. GIRIDHAR ROY, 4 B.L.R.A.C. 8=12 W.R. 456.

(76)—Suit to compel registration of two documents — Value — Jurisdiction — Distinction between registered document and act of registration.—When two documents are executed by one and the same person and they create the the same interest in the same property standing to each other in the relation of an operative and a superseded document, the value of the suit for the purposes of jurisdiction is the value of the interest intended to be created by the operative instrument. [F., 31 M. 89=17 M. L.J. 573=3 M.L.T. 73, F.B.] The distinction between a registered document and the act of registration, is that the former is only evidence, and, if it is lost, the transaction may be proved otherwise, but without the latter there can be no legal transaction at all. Where the object of the suit is to secure legal efficacy to a transaction evidenced by a document and not simply a mode of proving it? the value of the transaction must be taken to be the value of the suit. RAMA KRISHNAMMA v. BHAGAMMA, 13 M. 56.

Registration—continued.

(77)—Unregistered bond— Limitation— Bona fide claim —Para. 10 of Circular 29 of 1859 was to the effect that "judicial officers shall have a discretionary power, to be very sparingly used, of admitting an unregistered bond for Rs. 50 and upwards in special cases." The Circular leaves it to the discretion of judicial officers to admit such documents in evidence or not. In exercising that discretion, they will have to consider whether a claim was bona fide or not and, if it is bona fide, to admit the document in evidence. The requirements of the above Circular were not designed to assist a defendant in pleading limitation, where limitation is not of necessary operation in the individual case. If it is only a question of limitation and not of the truth or falsity of the claim, the plaintiff must have the benefit of the discretion conferred by the Circular. ANONYMOUS, 11 P.R. 1866, Cir. Ref.

(78)—Registration of document in absence of one party executing it, validity of—Limitation.—Absence at the time of registration of one of the parties executing a document does not make the registration invalid, though such mode of registration is contrary to the express provision of the Act regulating the manner in which registration is to be carried out; the period of limitation prescribed for a registered document is applicable to a document so registered. SHEO MALL v. UMRDIN AND NURBUKSH, 60 P R. 1877. [D., 93 P.R. 1883.]

(79)—Actual fact of registration — Limitation.—There is in law no limitation for the actual fact of registration, provided the requirements of the Act have been complied within the matters for which a limitation of time is provided. SHAMA CHARAN DAS v. JOYENOOLAH, 11 C. 750. (15 B.L.R. 228, F.)

(80)—Registration—Petition of compromise filed in mutation proceedings affecting immoveable property of value less than 100 rupees—Whether admissible in evidence without registration—Whether it confers title.—A petition of compromise relating to immoveable property of value less than Rs. 100—was filed in a Revenue Court in a mutation proceeding, and the order of the Revenue Court was passed in accordance with the terms of the compromise. It was not registered:—Held, (1) that a petition of this sort should not be excluded altogether from evidence for want of registration. (20 A. 271=25 I.A. 9=2 C.W.N. 129, F.); (2) that, in view of the fact that the compromise related to property of value less than Rs. 100, it was capable of operating as a document of title,

Registration—continued.

although it was not registered. NIDHAI v. BIDESI, 15 Ind. Cas. 741. (8 A.L.J. 918=12 Ind. Cas. 109=33 A. 728, D.)

(81)—Notice — Registration—Presumption—Search of register — Presumption that party searching was acquainted with contents—Presumption it may be rebutted by mere statement that search was unsuccessful—Second appeal—Consideration of evidence by lower appellate Court from wrong stand point—Lower appellate Court misdirecting itself in regard to most important part of evidence—Ground of second appeal—Civ. Pro. Code (1908), s. 100.—Notice of a book is notice of its contents. The mere fact that an instrument was registered is not sufficient to affect a third person with notice of it. Where the search of a register is generally proved or admitted, there is a presumption that the party searching was acquainted with all the contents of the register. The presumption may be excluded by particular facts in a case, but it cannot be rebutted by the mere statement that, though a search was made, it was unsuccessful, that is, the person making the search could not find the document, though it was entered in the register which he searched. Where the lower appellate Court misdirected itself in regard to the most important part of the evidence bearing upon a question, or approached the consideration of that evidence from a wrong stand-point. Held, that it committed an error of law, and the High Court could interfere in second appeal. AKHOY KUMARI DEBI v. KANAI LAL KUNDU, 16 Ind. Cas. 618.

See ACT XIX OF 1843, 6 M.H.C. 391.

Incidental accrual of gain—of Company—See ACT VI OF 1882, s. 4, 17 C. 786.

See ACT VI OF 1882, s. 4, 20 M. 68=7 M.L.J. 26.

Mortgage of permanent tenure—Necessity of—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, s. 12, 3 C.W.N. 499.

Transfer of tenure and registration—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, s. 12, 19 C. 17.

Balance of account signed by agriculturist, necessity of—or, under s. 56 of the Dekhan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII of 1879)—See BOM. ACT XVII OF 1879, s. 56, 6 B. 729.

Sub-Registrar or Registrar being deceived by false recitals—Effect of registration—See C.P. ACT XI OF 1898, s. 46, 1 N.L.R. 112.

See ATTORNMENT, 19 B. 36.

See BILL OF SALE, 3 B.L.R. App. 125.

See BOND, 9 B.L.R. 426=16 W.R.P.C. 30.

See BUDDHIST LAW—GIFT, L. B. R. 1893—1900, 504.

Of certificate of sale—See CERTIFICATE OF SALE, 3 M. 37, F.B.

Registration—continued.

Incidental accrual of gain—of Company—See COMPANY—FORMATION AND REGISTRATION, 17 C. 786.

Decree not passed in accordance with compromise—Admissibility in evidence—Registration—See COMPROMISE—GENERAL, 8 A.L.J. 309.

See COMPROMISE—EFFECT OF, 4 O.C. 78.

Fraud—Suit for declaration—of decree—Effect—See COMPROMISE DECREE, 4 C.L.R. 52.

Registration, only a condition precedent to the right to sue—See COPYRIGHT, 17 C. 951.

Suit to enforce registration of deed of gift—Relief consequential—Ad valorem fee payable—See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, s. 7, cl. IV (c), 12 M.L.J. 87.

Suit to enforce registration—Amount of Court fee payable—See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, sch. IV, art. 17, cl. 12, 12 M.L.J. 88.

See COVENANT, 1 B.L.R. A.C. 7.

Admissibility in evidence of compulsorily registrable unregistered document for collateral purpose—See CUSTOMS—PUNJAB—INHERITANCE, 143 P.L.R. 1906.

Order of Bankruptcy — Composition deed relating to property in British India governed by the lex loci rei Sitae—Composition deed exempt from—See DEBTOR AND CREDITOR, 16 M. 85=3 M.L.J. 30.

Proceedings before District Registrar ordering registration of document—Civil suit to cancel the document—Maintainability—Specific Relief Act I of 1877, s 39—See DECLARATORY DECREE, SUIT FOR—SUITS CONCERNING DOCUMENTS, 7 C. 736=9 C.L.R. 471.

See DEEDS—CONSTRUCTION OF DEEDS, A. W.N. 1897, 69.

Execution of deed — Admission of signature before Registrar—Denial of execution—Registrar, jurisdiction of, to register Certificate of—See DEEDS—EXECUTION OF DEEDS, 6 C.W.N. 329.

Sale deed executed and registered non-payment of consideration under, not sufficient to prove that the parties did not intend it to be operative—See DEEDS—PROOF OF DEEDS, 21 M. 56.

Mere registration of document, effect of—See DEED—PROOF OF DEEDS, 17 C. 903.

See DEEDS—PROOF OF DEEDS, 15 W. R. 15.

Unregistered endorsement on registered sale-deed—Effect—See ENDORSEMENT, 2 B. 547.

Unregistered receipt for earnest money comprising terms of conveyance—Admissibility in proof of contract of sale without registration—See EVIDENCE — MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, 10 C.P.L.R. 107.

Entry in book recording extent of holding and rate of rent—Admissibility in evidence—Unstamped and unregistered document—See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, 5 C. 864=6 C.L.R. 286.

Registration—continued.

See EVIDENCE—MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, L. B. R. (1893-1900), 212.

Unregistered receipt for payment of mortgage debt produced by mortgages, inadmissibility of in evidence—See EVIDENCE — MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, 7 B. 123.

See EVIDENCE — SECONDARY EVIDENCE, 8 W.R. 438.

Accounts settled— Hypothecation bond for balance due—Ooliger preventing registration thereof—Suit on account stated — See EVIDENCE—SECONDARY EVIDENCE, 11 A. 13= A.W.N. 1888, 280.

Registry in Collector's Books —See EVIDENCE —MISCELLANEOUS, 11 M.I.A. 369.

Registered kabuliat, proof of—Contemporaneous oral agreement for reduction of rent—Conduct of the parties—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 92, 6 C.W.N. 60.

Nature of agreement inadmissible without registration, when original agreement is registered—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 92, 27 M. 368.

Evidence of oral agreement, admissibility of —Registered contract—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 92, A.W.N. 1886, 40.

Agreement by a plaintiff in a suit not to prosecute claim against a particular defendant and not to execute decree against that defendant—Agreement affecting immoveable property of more than one hundred rupees—Necessity for—of agreement—See EXECUTION OF DECREE—APPLICATION FOR EXECUTION AND POWERS OF COURT, 15 M.L.J. 370.

Registered deed of gift—Possession delivery of, under registered deed of gift—Transfer of Property Act, s. 123 – See GIFT, 5 O.C. 89.

Registration of deed of gift after donor's death—Validity—See GIFT, 20 A. 392 = A.W.N. 1898, 88.

Of deed of gift—See HINDU LAW—GIFT, 21 P.L.R. 1901.

Of gift—Deed not equivalent to possession—See HINDU LAW—GIFT, 7 B. 131.

Registered deed of gift executed before Transfer of Property Act—Possession or acceptance by donee necessary according to Hindu Law—See HINDU LAW—GIFT, 20 C. 464.

Of specific shares under Land Registration Act—Effect—See HINDU LAW—PARTITION, 3 Ind. Cas. 234.

Suit to compel—Of document—See JURISDICTION—CAUSE OF JURISDICTION, 7 M.H. C. 176.

See LAMBARDAR, 11 M.I.A. 369.

See LANDLORD AND TENANT—TRANSFER OF TENANT'S INTEREST, 26 C. 46.

Lease—Indemnity clause in lease—Lease not registered—Suit for indemnity by lessee—Lease, if admissible in evidence—See LEASE—GENERAL, 18 B. 745.

Registration—continued.

Lessor refusing to register lease—Deed—Suit by lessee to enforce registration and for possession—Maintainability—Admissibility of deed in evidence—See LEASE—GENERAL, A.W.N. 1885, 329.

Unregistered lease for term exceeding one year —Admissibility in evidence—See LEASE, —GENERAL, 10 Ind. Cas. 892.

Lease—Unregistered deed compulsorily registrable—Admissibility to prove damages for use and occupation—See LEASE—GENERAL, 11 Ind. Cas. 23.

Registration—Lease or agreement for lease—Proposal and acceptance—Contract in writing —See LEASE—MISCELLANEOUS, 7 C. 703= 10 C.L.R. 121.

Incomplete proposal to grant lease—Admissibility in evidence without registration—See LEASE — MISCELLANEOUS, 7 C. 708=10 C.L.R. 127.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1859, ss. 1 (10), 16, 2 M.H.C. 329.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 5, 184 P.R. 1889.

See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 18 and art. 95, 2 M.H.C. 401.

Unregistered document — Effect of non-registration on its admissibility in evidence for collateral purposes—Registration Act, 1871, s. 49--See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 19, 5 C. 215=4 C.L.R. 361.

Suit for pre-emption—Terminus a quo—Date of—or date of getting possession—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 10, A.W.N. 1887, 235.

Suit for money advanced to minor—Registration of bond executed by guardian—Extension of period of limitation—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, arts. 57 and 61, 10 O.C. 38.

Agreement in writing before — Law—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, arts. 116, 118 and 120, 6 B.L.R. 668=15 W.R. O.C. 1.

Transfer of property in lieu of dower debt, being sale, could only be effected by delivery or registered instrument—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—DOWER, 13 C.W.N. 160=4 Ind. Cas. 466.

See MUHAMMADAN LAW—WAKF, 24 A. 231=A.W.N. 1902, 32.

Registered or unregistered mortgage—Evidence of personal covenant—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 1 Ind. Cas. 1, F.B.=32 M. 410= 19 M.L.J. 584.

Unregistered mortgage bond — Divisibility of bond — See MORTGAGE — GENERAL, 11 C.L.R. 166.

Registration—Value of interest passed by mortgage deed for less than Rs. 100—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 4 C. 61=2 C.L.R. 547.

Registration—continued.

Hindu widow—Interest provided by unregistered "rukas"—Appeal, plea taken for the first time in—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 2 O.C. 209.

Unregistered mortgage deed—Personal Covenant to pay—Money decree—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 2 C.W.N. 591.

Assignment of mortgage, amount of consideration of, for the purposes of registration—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 8 B. 610.

Mortgage — Priority — See MORTGAGE — GENERAL, 2 M. 108.

See MORTGAGE — POSSESSION UNDER MORTGAGE, 2 N.W.P. 296.

Arrangement to hand over property other than mortgaged property for payment of mortgage-money—Effect when unregistered—See MORTGAGE—REDEMPEION, 10 Ind. Cas. 196.

Mortgage—Payment of first mortgage by third mortgagee in ignorance of second—Registration—Notice—Presumption of intention to keep alive first mortgage—See MORTGAGE—SALE OF MORTGAGED PROPERTY, 8 M. 246.

See MORTGAGE—MISCELLANEOUS, 7 A. 820=A.W.N. 1885, 279.

Payment by mortgagor to mortgagee—Registration of sub-mortgage—Notice—See MORTGAGE—MISCELLANEOUS, 29 B. 199.

Transfer of mortgage—Registration necessary — See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, 1881, ss. 9, 43, 46 (3), 10 M.L.T. 79.

Of document—Equity—See NOTICE, 134 P.L.R. 1904.

See PARTIES TO SUITS—GENERAL, 5 C. 445=5 C.L.R. 172.

Of surety bond—Admissibility in evidence—See PRINCIPAL AND SURETY—GENERAL, 8 Ind. Cas. 985.

Simple bond payable by instalments—Necessity for See MAD. REG. XVII OF 1802, s. 3, 1 M.H.C. 209.

See RIGHT OF SUIT—SALE IN EXECUTION OF DECREE, 20 M. 250.

Sale of land by unregistered deed—Vendee placed in possession—Right of some vendors to sue to recover possession after lapse of several years—See SALE—GENERAL, 12 C. P. L. R. 154.

Registered sale deed—Effect of, although the purchase money not paid—See SALE—GENERAL, 1 M L.T. 432.

Registrar—Registration of document when execution admitted—Necessity for sanction for prosecution for forgery—See SANCTION TO PROSECUTE, 2 M.L.J. 286.

Action for recovery of costs incurred in suit to compel registration of document, sustainability of—See SMALL CAUSE COURT, MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF — GENERAL, 6 M.H.C. 192.

Registration—continued.

Oral contract to execute lease—Subsequent registered lease with notice—Suit for—Registration of oral agreement—See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE, 6 C. 534=7 C.L.R. 487.

See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, s. 27, C. 358=4 C.W.N. 490.

Suit for cancellation of document—Suit based on non—of document—Discretion of Court—See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, s. 39, A.W.N. 1889, 147.

Relinquishment of claim to immoveable property—Value over Rs. 100—Whether release—Registration—See STAMP ACT, 1889, sch. 1, art. 15, 7 N.L.R. 36.

Registry in Collector's Book no evidence of title—See TITLE, 9 M.I.A. 303.

Registration of trade mark in England—See TRADE MARK, 98 P.L.R. 1902=55 P.R. 1902.

Effect of, of sale deed—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, 3 Ind. Cas. 177.

Notice—When amounts to—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 3, 2 C.W.N. 750.

See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, ch. IV, ss. 3, 85, 13 A. 432, F.B.

Registration of subsequent mortgage, how far notice to prior mortgagee—Registration Act, 1877, s. 50—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, ss. 4, 85, 16 A. 478, F.B.=A.W.N. 1894, 151.

Unregistered document—Value of property not specified in the deed, but exceeds Rs. 100—Whether valid—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 6, 10 O.C. 277.

Sale of undivided share in immoveable property below Rs. 100 — Registration — See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 54, 14 O.C. 161.

Sale of land of upwards of Rs. 100 in value, necessity of—in the case of—Possession on oral sale cannot give title—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 54, 16 M. 464.

Registration, if dispenses with proof of passing of consideration — See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 54, 13 C.W.N. 692=4 Ind. Cas. 541.

Document creating easement—Registration—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 54, 6 A.L.J. 871=3 Ind. Cas. 615=31 A. 612.

See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 54, 2 C.W.N. 207, 17 M. 146.

Possession of title-deeds—Prior incumbrancer — Gross negligence — See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 78, 7 Ind. Cas. 810=20 M.L.J. 979.

Effect of, on failure of prior mortgagee to get possession of title—deeds—Delay in—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 78, 17 M.L.J. 499=3 M.L.T. 87=31 M. 7.

Registration—concluded.

See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 78, 15 M. 268=2 M.L.J. 95.

See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 81, 23 C. 790.

As notice — Extension of doctrine — See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 88, 12 Bom. L R. 940=8 Ind. Cas. 633.

Patta tendered to and refused by tenant—Whether a lease—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 105, 8 M.L.T. 371.

Reclamation lease granted for removal of jungle—Registration—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, ss. 107, 117, 7 Ind. Cas. 864.

Registration—Arrangement by lessee to share profits with stranger—Whether necessary to be embodied in registered document—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 111 (g), 7 M.L.T. 419=6 Ind. Cas. 766.

Unregistered sale-deed confirming an oral sale of land—Subsequent registered conveyances intended to defeat the prior unregistered deed—Fraudulent execution of, effect of—See TRUSTS ACT, s. 84, 15 M.L.J. 478=29 M. 72.

Of lease—Transfer of Property Act, ss. 107 and 117—Oral evidence inadmissible to prove lease for a term exceeding one year—See USE AND OCCUPATION, 5 O.C. 222.

See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—COMPLETION OF TRANSFER, 192 P.R. 1882.

Delivery of possession without writing but for consideration less than Rs. 100—Deed of sale unregistered—Registration—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—COMPLETION OF TRANSFER, 22 C. 179.

Priority of registered over unregistered deeds—Scope of rule—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—POSSESSION, 6 B. 193, F.B.

Of sale deed subsequent to execution of second sale-deed, effect of, on subsequent purchaser with possession—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—POSSESSION, 6 B. 165.

Possession, how far amounts to notice to subsequent transferee—when equivalent to possession—Whether notice — See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—POSSESSION, 6 B. 168.

See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—POSSESSION, 2 B. 299=P.J. 1880, 57.

See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—PURCHASE MONEY AND OTHER PAYMENTS BY PURCHASER, 3 B.L.R. App. 49.

Non-effect of—Proof of actual contract of sale and possession on payment of purchase money—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—PURCHASERS RIGHT OF, 1 Agra 283.

See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—MISCELLANEOUS, A.W.N. 1882, 7.

Deposit of will under Act VIII of 1871, (Old Registration Act) is no registration—See WILL—MISCELLANEOUS, 10 C. 976, P.C.=11 I.A. 121.

Registration Act (XIX of 1843).

[REP., ACT XVI OF 1864.]

(1)—Act XIX of 1843—Purchaser for value without notice—Priority—Lien—Mortgage.—A registered deed of sale does not invalidate a prior unregistered mortgage under the provisions of Act XIX of 1843. A bona fide purchaser for value without notice is not entitled to priority over a prior unregistered mortgagee. MAHARAJA MAHESWAR BAX SINGH BAHADUR v. BHIKHA CHOWDHRY, B.L R. Sup. Vol. 403 =5 W.R. 61=1 Ind. Jur. N.S. 12. [F., 20 W.R. 110; Appr., 11 W.R. 559, 4 M.H.C. 434, 9 B.H.C. 121; R., 12 W.R. 217, 7 C. 753; D., 10 W.R. 291=1 B.L.R. A.C. 197.]

(2)—Registration—Registered and unregistered mortgage-deeds—Sale in satisfaction of both—Registered mortgage subsequent to decree and before auction-sale—Lien—Invalidity.—K had executed two bonds hypothecating his shares in an estate as security for re-payment of debts due to T and O; the bond in favour of the former was unregistered and that in favour of the latter was registered. Both T and O sued on their bonds and obtained decrees. T applied for sale of the hypotheca in satisfaction of his decree and the property was advertised for sale at his instance. O also applied for satisfaction of his decree out of the sale-proceeds. The hypotheca was sold and both the decrees of T and O were satisfied out of the sale-proceeds. K had, subsequently to the passing of the said two decrees and before the auction-sale, executed a conditional sale-deed in favour of the plaintiffs. Held that the sale of the property had substantially taken place in satisfaction of both the decrees and that that the property was not liable to a lien created subsequently to that of O, and that, although the plaintiffs might have, by reason of registration, a right preferable to that possessed by the decree-holder under an unregistered bond, they had yet no claim preferable to that of the decree-holder under the prior registered bond. MOTEE RAM v. KAISREE, 2 Agra 52.

(3)—Unregistered and registered mortgage-deeds— Same property—Priority. — Property sold in satisfaction of a superior lien cannot be held to have been sold subject to inferior liens. The provisions of the Registry law give a preferential value to a registered mortgage-deed over an unregistered one even of a prior date. SEETUL PERSHAD v. BABOO HUR CHUND SAHOO, 1 Agra 263.

(4)—Prior unregistered sale and subsequent registered sale of same property—Act XIX of 1843, s. 2.—It was not intended by s. 2, Act XIX of 1843, that a registered sale should invalidate an unregistered sale of earlier date, when the original vendor is dead and the second vendors are the persons who, but for the first sale, would have inherited the property. UMBIKA CHURN KOONDOO v. DHURMO DOSS KOONDOO, 11 W.R. 128.

(5)—Registration Act XIX of 1843, s. 2, construction of—'Authenticity,' meaning of, in proviso to s. 2.—Two questions arose in this case with reference to the Indian Act, XIX of 1843; first, whether the words at the close of the enactment, "any knowledge or notice of any such unregistered deed or certificate alleged to be bad by any party to such registered deed or certificate notwithstanding," are to be construed as referring only to the mortgages and certificates mentioned in the earlier part of the enactment; and secondly, what meaning is to be attributed to the words "provided its authenticity be established to the satisfaction of the Court," which are contained in the enactment. As to the first question, their Lordships were of opinion that, upon the true construction of the Act, the words first above mentioned apply not only to deeds and certificates of mortgage, but also to deeds of sale or gift; it would be difficult to find any reason why, in the case of a mortgage, priority should be given to a registered deed over an unregistered deed, notwithstanding knowledge or notice of the unregistered deed by the registered mortgagee, but in the case of a sale, however, priority of an unregistered deed over a registered deed should be retained, in cases of knowledge or notice by the registered vendee or donee. With regard to the second question, their Lordships observed that although the word 'authenticity' in the above section according to its natural meaning, would point merely at the exclusion of a forged deed from the benefit of the Act, it could not have been intended that, by the Act, a deed which was tainted by fraud, although in other respects genuine, should be placed on the same footing as an honest and bona fide deed. SREENATH BHUTTACHARJEE v. RAM COMUL GANGOOLY, 3 W.R.P.C. 43 = 10 M I.A. 220 = 1 Suther 600 = 2 Sar. 121.

Registration Act (XIX of 1843)—concluded.

(6)—Act XIX of 1843 s. 2—Construction of term "satisfied".—The term "satisfied" in s. 2, Act XIX of 1843, does not merely signify that the mortgage money may be realized by sale, but that all the stipulations of the mortgage-deed are to be performed, and its terms and conditions fulfilled No distinction of class is made in respect of mortgages save this; that those which are registered are to have priority over those which are not. PERSHAD NARAIN RAI v. SHEIKH MAHOMED SHOOKOOL HUQ, 1 N.W.P. 35.

(7)—S. 2—Registration—Priority.—By s. 2 of Act XIX of 1843, a registered mortgage takes priority over an unregistered mortgage of earlier date, and a purchaser, under a decree on the mortgage which has priority, has a preferable right over the purchaser under the execution of a decree on the other. PRAHLAD MISSER v. UDIT NARAYAN SINGH, 1 B.L.R. A.C. 197 = 10 W.R. 291. [F., 16 W.R. 270; Appr., 12 W.R. 217 = 3 B.L.R. A.C. 312; R., 9 B.H.C. 121, 7 C. 753.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1864).

[REP., ACT XX OF 1866.]

(1)—S. 13—Shebaitnama conveying no interest—Registration.—A shebaitnama conveying no right or interest, but merely providing for the expenditure of a portion of the thakoor's income, is a deed not requiring registration under Act XVI of 1864. GIREEDHUR DOOS MOHUNT v. NITTO GOPAL DOSS, 19 W.R. 291. [Appl., 19 B. 36; Expl., 24 B. 615.]

(1-a)—Ss. 13, 14—Usufructuary mortgage below Rs. 100—Registration.—Where a document purported to grant the plaintiff possession of certain lands for a term of six years in consideration of Rs. 99 advanced by the plaintiff to the defendant, held that the document was not a lease, but an usufructuary mortgage, and being a mortgage below Rs. 100, its registration was not compulsory, but optional. ISHAN CHANDRA v. SUJAN BIBI, 7 B L.R. 14 = 15 W.R. 331. [F., 4 C. 61, 12 C.L.R. 444, 10 C. 82 = 13 C.L.J. 256.]

(2)—Ss. 13 and 16—Registration.—Where a document in the first portion of it merely provided for a scheme of compromise between the parties to the document, part of which scheme was the execution of a deed of conveyance, but in the latter portion contained declarations of rights of the parties to immoveable property, held that the deed required registration and would be inadmissible in evidence if it were not registered. COWAR RAJKUMAR ROY v. COWAR KALIKRISHNA ROY, 7 B L.R. 197.

(3)—Ss. 13, 17—Deeds executed prior to Act, receivable in evidence—Scope and object of s 17.—S. 13 of the Registration Act XVI of 1864 refers to instruments executed on or after the date on which the Act came into operation, which was the first of January 1865; and s. 17, referring to s. 13, merely prescribes that instruments executed before the date on which the Act came into operation, shall not be accepted for registration unless presented for that purpose within 12 months from such date. This section was intended merely to encourage parties to register old deeds at once. It does not say that deeds executed prior to the passing of the Act shall not be received as evidence in Courts. KAROO LAL THAKOOR v. DOONAL MUNDUL, 8 W.R. 86.

(3-a)—S. 14—See No. 1-a, supra.

(4) This circular deals with Registration Act, XVI of 1864, ss. 13, 43, and 45. Cir. No. 5, dated the 31st March 1865, 2 W.R. Civ. Cir. Order, p. 2.

(5)—S. 15—Refusal to register—Suit to enforce Registration.—Suits to enforce registration are not, under Act XVI, solely maintainable in cases of refusal by Registrars to register an instrument. Such suits lay where one of the parties to the deed refused to register it. RAJAH KRISHAN KISHORE CHAND v. MAHOMED ZUKAH-OLL-LAH, Agra F.B. 148 = Ed., 1874, 111.

(6)—S. 15—See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS—PLEADER—REMUNERATION, 9 W.R. 101.

(6-a)—S. 16—See No. 2, supra.

Registration Act (XVI of 1864)—concluded.

(6-b)—S. 17—See NO. 3, supra.

(7)—Ss. 17 and 68—Admissibility in evidence—Priority of registered over unregistered deed.—A deed creating an interest in immoveable property exceeding in value Rs. 100 executed prior to 1st January 1865 was not affected by Act XVI of 1864, s. 13, although it might have been registered under s. 17. All former Acts and Regulations having been repealed except in respect of registered instruments, an unregistered deed creating an interest in immoveable property exceeding in value Rs. 100 executed prior to 1st January 1865 was not, by any provision of Act XVI of 1864, postponed to a registered instrument executed subsequently to that date. CHUTTERDHAREE MISSER v. NURSINGH DUTT SOOKOOL, 3 Agra 371. (Agra, F.B., Ed. 1874, 163, R.)

(8)—S. 18—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—INVALID SALES, 2 Agra 401.

(8-a)—S. 43—See NO. 4, supra.

(8-b)—S. 45—See NO. 4, supra.

(9)—S. 51—See EVIDENCE — MISCELLANEOUS DOCUMENTS, 5 W.R. S. C. C. Ref. 14.

(10)—Ss. 51, 52, bond registered under—Fixed amount of interest payable at end of every month—Execution.—Where a bond was registered under ss. 51, 52, of the Registration Act (XVI of 1864), and according to its terms a fixed amount of interest was to be paid at the end of every month, held that, by virtue of the special registration, the obligee was entitled to move for execution in respect of each instalment of interest due MANTHARESWARA AIYAR v. KAMALA NAIKER, 3 M.H.C. 88.

(11)—S. 52—Register of applications for enforcing a registered bond or other obligation as enjoined in s. 52, Act XVI of 1864. Cir. No 33, dated the 22nd December 1865, 4 W. R. Civ. Cir. Order, p. 7.

(12)—S. 52—See INTEREST — WHERE INTEREST IS SPECIFICALLY PROVIDED FOR, 10 W.R. 175.

(13)—S. 52—See NO. 10, supra.

(14)—S. 68—See NO. 7, supra.

Registration Act (XX of 1866).

[REP., ACT VIII OF 1871.]

(1)—Registered and unregistered mortgages—Priority--Decree.—Neither the Registration Act, XX of 1866, nor any subsequent Registration Law gives priority to a later compulsorily registrable mortgage-deed over an earlier deed the registration of which was only optional. Nor will the fact that a suit had been instituted and a decree obtained on the later deed, give priority to it over the earlier deed. KISHORI LAL v. SHAM KARAN, A.W.N. 1884, 184. (A.W.N. 1884, 134, R.)

(2)—Deed of sale—Non-registration—Effect of—Payment of purchase-money—Transfer of possession—Evidence.—On a sale of property the purchaser was given possession of the same after payment of the purchase-money by him, but the deed of sale which was made before the Registration Act came into operation, was not registered within the appointed time. Held that it did not follow from the above circumstances that the purchaser had acquired nothing by his purchase or that the vender could resume possession of the property. If there was a contract for sale, and the purchaser paid the money in pursuance of such contract and obtained possession of the property, it was for the vendor to show some title in himself to throw the purchaser out of possession; and that there was no provision in the Registration Act excluding such a sale-deed from being adduced in evidence. RAM SURUN DASS v. RAM CHUND, 1 Agra 283.

Registration Act (XX of 1866)—continued.

(3)—Registration Act (XX of 1866) — Registered document—Verbal transfer accompanied by possession—Preference.— When possession had been bona fide taken under a verbal transfer, a subsequent conveyance of the property by registered deed would not take effect. BUHADUR v. MUST. GRATTAN, 47 P.R. 1871.

(4)—Unregistered bond prior to Act XX of 1866 -Suit on bond subsequent to Act—Admissibility of bond in evidence—Debt or contract under inadmissible instrument—Parol evidence.—A money bond which, at the time it was made, ought to have been registered under the rules in force in 1859, and, which, if it had been executed after the coming into effect of Act XX of 1866 would have been receivable in evidence under that Act, is admissible in a suit instituted upon the bond subsequently to the coming into operation of the Act. A party coming into Court and resting his claim on a written document, cannot, when that document turns out to be inadmissible, prove his claim by secondary evidence. MYA DOSS v. KOULNAIN, 46 P.R. 1869. [F., 10 P.R. 1880.]

(5)—Registration Act, 1866—Trees—Moveable property.—Trees were held moveable property for the special purpose of the Registration Act of 1866, but not so in other Acts. CHOODHRY ROOSTUM ALI v. DHANDOO, 3 Agra 157.

(6)—This circular is one regarding the paper to be used for engrossing Memoranda under the Registration Act. Cir. No. 37, dated the 20th September 1866, 6 W.R. Civ. Cir. Order, p. 9.

(7)—Act XIX of 1843—Registration—Deed of sale or mortgage—Priority.—Act XX of 1866 makes no provision for priority of deeds of sale or mortgages for sums exceeding Rs. 100, registered under that Act, over deeds of sale or mortgages also for sums exceeding Rs. 100 which might have been, but were not, registered under Act XIX of 1843. (2 B.H.C. 204, 222, D.) Quære.—Would it be otherwise if the sale or mortegage was for less than Rs. 100? KHANDU DULABDAS v. TARA CHAND AMARCHAND, 1 B. 574. [F., 20 B. 390; R., 2 M. 108, 4 B. 459.]

Registration Act (XX of 1866)—continued.

(8)—Registered deed of sale—Prior unregistered sale—Notice—Act XIX of 1843.—A registered deed of sale invalidates a prior unregistered sale-deed, though notice of the prior deed be alleged. KRISHNASAMI PILLAI v. VENKATACHELLA AIYAN, 3 M.H.C. 89. [R., 7 B. H. C. 45, 9 B.H.C. 121, 26 P.L.R, 1900, F.B.]

(9)—Registration—Acts XX of 1866 and VIII of 1871—Admissibility in evidence of document—Question of procedure—Law at time of suit, applicable.—A suit was brought in 1874 to recover money secured by a mortgage in writing of immoveable property made in 1870. At the time of the execution of the document, Act XX of 1866 was in force and by it the document was not admissible in evidence even to enforce the demand for money, as it was not registered. At the time when the suit was brought, Act VIII of 1871 had come into force and according to it the document was rendered admissible. Held that the old law did not render such securities void but merely prevented them from being offered in evidence, and that, as the question was one of the course of procedure, it was governed by the law in force at the period of suit and that, under the new law, the document was admissible in evidence. GUDURI JAGANNADHAM v. RAPAKA RAMANNA, 7 M.H.C. 348. [Appr., 15 M. 336 ; R., 1 B. 197. 13 M. 308.]

(10)—Limitation Act, IX of 1871, sch. II, art. 168—Registration Act—Registration of certified copy of decree.—The words of art. 168, sch. II, Act IX of 1871, refer only to registration Act of 1871 ; because there is no provision for the registration of a certified copy of a decree in any of the earlier Registration Acts. Therefore, the said article of the Limitation Act cannot apply to a decree, of which only a memorandum has been registered under Act XX of 1866. RAJAH RUGHOO NUNDUN SINGH v. S. COCHRANE, 24 W.R. 372.

(11)—Agreement between landlord and tenant for more than one year—Pattah—Act VIII of 1865—Exemption from Registration Act XX of 1866.—An agreement between a landlord and tenant in the Presidency of Madras for more than one year is a pattah within the meaning of Act VIII of 1865, and consequently exempted from registration under Act XX of 1866. VAKATY RAMA REDDY v. DUVVURU AYAPPA REDDY, 7 M.H.C. 234.

(12)—Act XX of 1866—Bond—Interest.—Under a specially registered bond under Act XX of 1866, the creditor may summarily have a decree for the amount including interest up to date of decree. If he intends to secure interest at the rate stipulated after suit and decree, it is not enough to insert the phrase "date of realization," as this phrase must be held controlled by other parts of the agreement. ADUAR MONEE DEBIA v. KOOLO CHUNDER CHATTERJEE, 21 W.R. 140.

(13)—See APPEAL—ACTS AND REGULATIONS, 24 W.R. 225.

Registration Act (XX of 1866)—continued.

(14)—See SMALL CAUSE COURT, MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF—PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE, 9 W.R. 477.

(15)—See VENDOR AND PURCHASER—PURCHASE MONEY AND OTHER PAYMENTS BY PURCHASER, 5 B.L.R. App. 46=14 W.R. 20.

(16)—Ss. 2, 53—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXII, r. 3 (1) (2), 14 B.L.R. 408, F.B.=23 W.R. 187.

(17)—Ss. 3, 53, 55, Act XVI of 1864—Registration—Appeal.—The decision of the Subordinate Judge's Court made after the passing of Act XX of 1866 upon a petition presented under Act XVI of 1864 must, under s. 3 of the Indian Registration Act, have the same effect as if it had been passed upon a petition presented under Act XX of 1866; and, consequently, under s. 55, no appeal lies to the Judge. GIRISH CHANDRA DUTT v. BAZUL-UL-HUQ, 3 B.L.R. A C. 68.

(18)—S. 17, cl. 4—Construction of words Shan-ba-Shan in a pottah—Registration.—Where the form of a pottah is expressed by the words Shan-ba-Shan a year by year tenancy is meant, and such a pottah falls within the fourth clause of s. 17, Act XX of 1866, and is a lease for a term exceeding one year, and, unless registered, it cannot be received as evidence. RAMKUMAR MANDAL v. BRAJAHARI MRIDHA, 2 B.L.R. A.C. 75=10 W.R. 410. [D., 14 W.R. 68.]

(19)—Ss. 17, 18.—An agreement to deposit certain deeds and to execute a proper agreement is not a document coming within the meaning of cl. 2, s. 17, Act XX of 1866, but one the registration of which is optional, and which falls under the description in cl. 7, s. 18, of the Registration Act. MARK RIDDED CURRIE v. S. V. MUTU RAMAN CHETTY, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 126=11 W.R. 520. [R., 15 W.R. 354, 12 B.H.C. 175, 7 N.W.P. 124.]

(19-a)—S. 18—See NO. 19, supra.

(20)—Ss. 18, 50, 100—Scope—Registration.—S. 50, Act XX of 1866, does not vitiate titles acquired prior to the passing of that Act, merely because the instruments on which they rest are not registered. [Appr., 22 W.R 3; R., 11 W. R. 128, 47 P.R. 1871, 2 B. 299, 6 B. 168, F.B.; D., 19 W.R. 279, 7 C. 753.] Where, before the new Registration Law was passed, a bill of sale was executed, full consideration was paid, and the purchaser has obtained, and remained in possession bona fide, for eleven years, held that a subsequent sale, duly registered under Act XX of 1866 which was in force at the time of its execution, did not prevail against, or affect, the title which the purchaser under the prior unregistered deed had acquired. GIRIJA SINGH v. GIRIDHARI SINGH, 1 B.L.R.A.C. 14=10 W. R. 65. [Appr., 22 W.R. 3; R., 11 W.R. 128, 47 P.R. 1871, 2 B. 299, 6 B. 168, F.B.; D., 19 W.R. 279, 7 C. 753.]

Registration Act (XX of 1866)—continued.

(21)— Ss. 18, 50, 100—Priority.—Where a plaintiff came into Court upon an unregistered mortgage-bond nearly 12 months after its execution, and was met by an allegation of possession under a deed of sale by his mortgagor, held that the registered deed must prevail over the unregistered bond with reference to Act XX of 1866, s. 50, notwithstanding the fact that the mortgage-bond was executed before the Act came into operation, the principle of the section having been contained in the previous Acts XIX of 1843, s. 2 and XVI of 1864, s. 68. SOODHARAM BHUTTACHARJEE v. UDHOZ CHUNDER BUNDHOPADHYA, 10 B.L.R. 380=19 W.R. 279. [F., 5 C. 336=4 C.L.R. 257 ; R., 9 C.W.N. 14 ; D., 7 C. 753.]

(22)—Ss. 20, 53—Obligation specially registered and pledging land as security—Enforcement of obligation — Decree—Jurisdiction.—Where an obligation executed for repayment of a loan contained also a pledge of land as security for the debt, and was specially registered under s. 20 of Act XX of 1866, held that, under s. 53 of that Act, the Court had jurisdiction to give the creditor a decree only for the sum mentioned in the obligation with interest and costs, but had no jurisdiction to give also a decree declaratory of the creditor's right to sell the property pledged in the obligation. In the matter of RAJ MOHUN MOOKERJEE v. NIL MONEE MITTER, 11 W.R. 222. [R., 14 W.R. 233.]

(23)—Ss. 31, 82, 84—Refusal of Registrar-General to register—Endorsement of refusal.—Property outside jurisdiction of High Court—Registrar-General within jurisdiction—Petition to High Court.—S. 82 of the Registration Act (XX of 1866) is merely directory. A Registrar-General to whom a deed is duly presented for registration would be justified in not accepting it for registration, and not making any endorsement of refusal in the deed if he thinks fit to take this course. But, where he has in fact endorsed his refusal on the document, the last words of s. 82 are applicable and the case falls within s. 84, and the person aggrieved by the order of refusal has a right to present a petition to the District Court. Where the Registrar-General, who refused to register a document presented to him for registration, was within the jurisdiction of the High Court and had his office within that jurisdiction, and the order refusing to register was made within that jurisdiction, but the property to which the document related was without the jurisdiction of the High Court, the High Court must be the District Court within the meaning of s. 84 and it was within the power of the High Court to order the Registrar-General to register the deed. In the matter of PERCY WYNDHAM, 6 B.L.R. 576.

(24)—Ss. 41, 42.—This Circular directs that only one copy of memoranda for registration under ss. 41 and 42, Act XX of 1866, be retained by Civil Judges. Civ. Cir. No. 7 dated 12th March 1870, 13 W.R. Civ. Cir. 13.

Registration Act (XX of 1866)—continued.

(24-a)—S. 42—See NO. 24, supra.

(24-b)—S. 50—See NOS. 20, 21, supra.

(25)—Ss. 50, 100—Unregistered mortgage of 1865, and sale after Registration Act VIII of 1871—Priority.—With regard to the law of registration and its express and explicit enactment contained in ss. 50 and 100 of Act XX of 1866, and s. 50 of Act VIII of 1871, a registered sale deed of land subsequent to the passing of the latter Act takes priority over an unregistered mortgage on the same land effected in 1866. ADU RAM v. SADIK MUHAMMAD KHAN, 34 P.R. 1876. [D., 95 P.R. 1893.]

(26)—S. 51—Registration Act (XVI of 1864) —Bond registered under—Suit on—Limitation —Act XX of 1866, s. 51—Jurisdiction.—A suit for money lent under a bond registered under Act XVI of 1864, must, under S. 51 of Act XX of 1866, be brought within 6 years from the time when the cause of action arises. In a suit for money lent under a bond, which was executed at a place where plaintiff had been resident at the time and some years previously, and which provided for payment to the plaintiff in person, held that the intention of the parties being to make the money payable there, the District Judge had jurisdiction. NIRBAN SINGH v. KUMLA SAHOY, 17 W.R. 345.

(27)—S. 52—Obligation—Pledge of land as collateral security for payment of loan.—A contract to pay money on a certain day with interest is an obligation within the meaning of s. 52 of Act XX of 1866, though, by the same instrument, land is pledged as collateral security for the payment of the debt. This obligation can be enforced by a Subordinate Judge in the summary manner allowed by the Act. WOOMA CHURN MOOKERJEE v. HURRY CHURN BOSE, 11 W.R. 60. [D., 11 W.R 222.]

(28)—S. 52—Act VIII of 1859, s. 273—Act VIII of 1871, ss. 53, 54 and 55—Appeal—Execution —Procedure—Repeal. — Orders in execution under ss. 53, 54 and 55 of Act XX of 1866 are not appealable. Though this Act has been repealed by Act VIII of 1871, the procedure under it has been saved by ss. 53, 54 and 55 of the latter Act. RAMANAND v. THE BANK OF BENGAL, 1 A. 377. (7 W.R. 130, 17 W.R. 512, Cited.) [Overruled, 1 A. 583.]

(29)—S. 52—See AGREEMENT, 9 W.R. 498.

(30)—S. 52—See MERGER, 1 B.L.R. O.C. 35.

(31)—Ss. 52, 53—Suit on registered deed of simple mortgage.—There is nothing in Act XX of 1866 which excludes obligations accompanied by hypothecation of immoveable property from the provisions of ss. 52 and 53 of the Act. GOBIND SHUNKERJEE v. GIRDHAREE SINGH, 1 N.W.P. 142.

(32)—Ss. 52, 53—Signature by single partner in name of firm—Summary procedure.—The managing partner of a firm, who had executed a pro-note, on behalf of his firm, registered the note under s. 52, Registration Act, and signed the agreement mentioned in ss. 52 and 53. Held that, as there was nothing in the section to show that the summary remedy thereby given was so given against any person other than the obligor signing the agreement, the other partners of the firm could not be made liable. If the obligee wished to proceed against other persons alleged to be liable under the obligation, he should do so by ordinary Civil suit. Quære:—Whether he could do so after resorting to summary proceedings against the obligor who had signed the agreement? In re BAKATRAM BADRINATH, 6 B.H.C.O.C. 131.

Registration Act (XX of 1866)—continued.

(33)—Ss. 52, 53—Summary suit—Bond containing stipulation that in default of due payment of interest principal sum is recoverable—Summary procedure if applicable.—A mortgage bond payable 2 years after the date of its execution provided that interest should be paid in instalments and that, on failure to pay the instalments in due time, the whole amount of principal was due, and the bond was specially registered under s. 62. Held that, as, in such a case, it would be necessary for the plaintiff to produce evidence, beyond the mortgage deed itself, to show default in one of the monthly instalments of interest payable by the mortgagor, the summary procedure provided by s. 53 of the Act did not therefore apply. In re GANPAT MONIKJI PATIL, 6 B.H.C.O.C. 64. [Disappr., 6 M.H.C. 4.]

(34)—Ss. 52, 53—Bond—Instalment—Registration.—A bond for a sum of money payable by instalments contained a proviso that, in case of default being made in the payment of two successive instalments, the whole amount secured by the bond and remaining unpaid should become due. The bond was specially registered under s. 52 of Act XX of 1866. Held that the whole amount remaining due on the bond could not be recovered in a summary way as provided by s. 53 of Act XX of 1866 on the allegation of default of payment of two consecutive instalments—ss. 52 and 53 not applying to such a case. Held, also, that these sections apply only to the two cases—where the full amount of the bond becomes payable and where an instalment becomes payable; and that the sections do not apply to cases not falling strictly within the words of the Act. In the matter of the INDIAN REGISTRATION ACT, 1866, and in the matter of LACHMIPAT SINGH DOGAR ROY BAHADUR, 2 B.L.R. O.C. 151=11 W.R.A.C. 24. (8 W. R. 466, R.) [F., 6 B.H.C. 60, 64; R., 85 P.R. 1869.]

(35)—Ss. 52, 53—See LIMITATION ACT, 1871, arts. 166, 167, 1 A. 586, F.B.

(36 & 37)—Ss. 52, 53—See SMALL CAUSE COURT, PRESIDENCY TOWN, JURISDICTION OF—GENERAL, 6 B.L.R. 177=14 W.R. 478.

(38)—Ss. 52 to 54—Registration—Money bond.—Ss. 52 to 54 of Act XX of 1866 contemplate bonds for the payment of money and none others. A bond which provides for the delivery of paddy without any specification as to the money-value of such paddy of the amount to be paid if the paddy is not delivered, is not a bond which can be enforced summarily under the provisions of s. 53 of Act XX of 1866. JADUB MUNDUL v. BISHOO SIRDAR, 15 W.R. 369.

(39)—Ss. 52, 53, 55—Act VIII of 1859, ss. 2 and 32—Mortgagee's lien—Suit to enforce specially registered bond—Jurisdiction.—S. 55, Act XX of 1866 is no bar to the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in entertaining a suit for the enforcement of a lien on landed property mortgaged under a bond specially registered under that Act. OOTSHUB NARAIN CHOWDHRY v. CHITTRA RECKA GOOPTA, 14 B.L.R. 411, Note=17 W.R. 154. [R., 14 B.L.R. 408=23 W.R. 187.]

(40)—Ss 52 to 55, effect of.—The effect of ss. 52 to 55 is to make a decree under them of precisely the same validity as any other decree, to make it enforceable by the same process, but to render it impeachable on the special grounds referred to in s. 55. The special circumstances must be such as to show a vice in the mode in which the contract to submit to decree and the special registration were obtained, and an infirmity in the original obligation will not do. SINIA TEVAR v. RAJAH STRIMANTA RANGASAMI AIYANGAR, 7 M.H.C. 121.

(41)—S. 53—Application—Statutes conferring summary remedy are to be strictly applied.—The terms of s. 53, Act XX of 1866, confine the summaryremedy to obligations making the whole debt payable at one date or by instalments at several dates, and, in the case of an obligation of the latter description, to the recovery of only the amount of each instalment as it falls due. A summary remedy of this nature must be strictly applied. VENITHITHAN CHETTY v. MOOTHIROOLANDI CHETTY, 6 M.H.C. 4.

(42)—S. 53—Applicable only as between immediate parties.—The summary remedy under s. 53 of the Registration Act is made applicable only as between the immediate parties to the registered obligation; and there is nothing in the language of ss. 53 to 55 to warrant a distinction in favour of the representative of an obligee. In the matter of SUBBUVIYAN, 4 M H.C. 233. (3 M H.C. 199, F.)

(43)—S. 53—Summary application under.—A summary application under s. 53, Act XX of 1866, cannot be entertained at the suit of the assignee of the obligee. GOUR MOHAN DAS v. RAMRUP MAZOOMDAR, 1 B.L.R. A.C. 42=10 W.R. 84. [R., 23 W.R. 187.]

(44)—S. 53—Nature of proceedings under.—Proceedings taken under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866 for the enforcement of specially registered bonds are not suits. A suit pre-supposes there may be a defence. S. 53 of the Act does not permit a defence. JAMNA DAS v. MAHOMED ALI KHAN, 23 P.R. 1874. (6 W.R. S.C.C. Ref. 11, F.)

Registration Act (XX of 1866)—continued.

(45)—S. 53—Suit to enforce obligation against representative of one of the original obligors—Lien on surplus sale-proceeds.—Where a suit to enforce an obligation had to be brought against the representatives of one of the obligor's, and the object of the suit was to enforce a lien upon the surplus sale-proceeds in deposit in the Collectorate, held that the suit would not be covered by the provisions of s. 53 of the Registration Act. BOISTUB CHURN DIGPUTTY v. GOBIND PERSHAD TEWAREE, 13 W R. 203. [R., 9 M.L.T. 235 =8 Ind. Cas. 1072=21 M.L.J. 320=34 M. 188=M.W.N. 1910, 799.]

(46)—Bond registered under s. 53, Act XX of 1866—Suit on—Instalments — Waiver—Suit, Alteration of.—Where plaintiff sued for recovering the amount due for two instalments under an instalment-bond registered with an agreement under s. 53, Act XX of 1866, one instalment of which was due more than a year before the institution of suit, and the Court of Small Causes, having found that the bond was not executed by the defendant and was not properly registered, dismissed the suit, the High Court, on a reference, did not allow the plaintiff to waive the first instalment and get a decree in respect of the second instalment only, since it would have the effect of allowing the plaintiff to alter the nature of the suit and obtain payment of a sum of money to which he was not entitled upon the finding come to by the Small Cause Court after hearing the evidence. DHUNNUNJOY GHOSE v. BEMAL DHAR BAGDEE, 17 W. R. 514.

(47)—S. 53—Production of registered bond with application, not a suit—Jurisdiction.—Under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866, it is not competent to a Civil Court to pass a decree that the amount due under a registered bond shall be realized out of the property mentioned thereunder, or to pass a decree for the whole amount of the bond on the ground of its having become due by a default to pay an instalment, merely on the production of the registered bond and the petition of the bond-holder. It was not the intention of the Legislature that an application uuder s. 53, founded simply on the production of a registered bond and the bond-holder's petition should be substituted for a regular suit against the property. GRISH CHUNDER CHOWDHRY v. KRISTO SOONDUR SANDYAL, 14 W. R. 277.

(48)—S. 53 — Hypothecation — Mortgage—Sale in execution.—A decree in a suit on a bond under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866, can properly only be a decree for money, and not for enforcing any lien against property hypothecated in the bond. Where it appears, on the face of the decree, that although it professed to declare the lien, it was passed under the special provisions of s. 53 of Act XX of 1866, it could only be held valid as a money decree. A purchaser of immoveable property at auction in execution of a money decree acquires merely the rights and interests, which the judgment-debtor had at the time of sale. AKHE RAM v. NAND KISHORE, 1 A. 236, F.B. [F., 1 A. 240.]

(49)—S. 53—Loan on pledge of immoveable property—Sureties for loan—Liability of sureties before exhausting property pledged.—Certain borrowers executed a debt-bond undertaking to re-pay the loan with interest and pledging certain immoveable property as security for payment of the debt. In another part of the same instrument certain other person became sureties for the re-payment of the loan, in the event of the loan and interest not being recovered from the moveable and immoveable properties of the borrowers. The lender brought a suit upon the bond against all the subscribing parties and obtained a decree for payment of the sum borrowed with interest with a declaration that the amount should be realised by the sale of the property pledged. The decree was made against all the defendants. Held, that, in the circumstances of the case, the Court should not have made any declaration as against the property pledged, but must have passed a simple decree for money in the terms of s. 53 of Act XX of 1866 with the contracted rate of interest and costs. POORNO CHUNDER GHOSE v. GOBIND CHUNDER MOOKERJI, 22 W.R. 28.

(50)—S. 53—Decree upon bond specially registered under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866—Mofussil Small Cause Court, cognisability by—Second appeal from order in execution.—A suit upon a bond, specially registered under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866, for less than Rs. 500, is cognisable by a mofussil Small Cause Court ; and no second appeal lies, under s. 586, Civ. Pro. Code, against an order passed upon an execution application in respect of a decree made in such a suit. 14 W.R. 478=6 B.L R. 177 does not govern Small Cause Courts in the mofussil. Quære :—Whether an appeal lies at all against such an order in execution proceedings in respect of such a decree? Note.—There is a difference of opinion on the question between the Calcutta High Court and those at Bombay and Allahabad. SRI BULLOV BHATTACHARJI v. BABURAM CHATTOPADHYA, 11 C. 169. [Appr., 18 A. 481=A.W.N. 1896, 160, F.B.; R., 12 C.P.L.R. 12.]

(51)—S. 53—Ambiguous decree—Construction —Mortgage decree — Lien.—An ambiguous decree must be construed so as to be in harmony with the words of the law. In a decree on a mortgage bond passed under s. 53, Act XX of 1866, it is not competent to the Court to confer a lien in accordance with the bond. ASMA BIBI v. RAM KANT ROY CHOWDHRY, 19 W.R. 251.

(52)—S. 53—Decree under s. 53, Act XX of 1866.—A decree made under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866 has all the effects of a decree passed in a regular suit under the Civ. Pro. Code. GUNGA NARAIN CHATTERJEE v. RADHA KRISHNA DUTT, 25 W.R. 322.

Registration Act (XX of 1866)—continued.

(53)—S. 53—Decree—Appeal—Decree under section not a decree in regular suit—Limitation Act, 1871, arts. 166, 167.—Although it is clearly just that a party who has covenanted to submit to a summary decree should not be allowed to appeal against such a decree: yet, in the execution of such a decree, both parties being exposed to all the ordinary risks and possible injury arising from an erroneous order, there would appear no just cause why the sufferer should be deprived of any of the ordinary remedies which the Civ. Pro. Code provides for a decree holder or judgment-debtor. Accordingly, it was held that an appeal lies from an order in execution of a decree made under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866. [F., 12 C. 511; R., 10 C. 196, P.C.] Whether a decree made under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866, is to be taken as a decree in a regular suit or not, is provided in the Registration Act itself. The Act in ss. 52 and 53, speaks of the proceeding as a mode of recovering money "in a summary way," and directs that the petition shall be presented "to any Court, which would have had jurisdiction to try a regular suit on the obligation for the amount secured thereof." So, unless it is supposed that the Legislature has used technical terms in different senses at different times, it is quite clear that a proceeding under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866, though in the nature of a suit, is not a regular suit, and that a decree passed in such a proceeding is a decision of a Civil Court other than a decree passed in a regular suit. Accordingly, such a decree was held to be governed by art. 166 and not art. 167 of the Limitation Act, 1871. BHIKAMBAT v. JOSEPH FERNANDEZ, 5 B. 673, F.B. [R., 6 B. 54.]

(54)—S. 53—Decrees under s. 53 of the Registration Act (XX of 1866)—Appeal.—No appeal lay from decrees, or from orders in execution thereof made under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866. BHYRUB CHUNDUR v. GOLAP COOMARY, 3 C. 517.

(55)—S. 53—Special registration — Decree sought against personal representatives of deceased obligor.—Under the Registration Act, on production of the obligation and record, the petitioner is declared to be "entitled to a decree." Reliance is placed upon the special registration as a substitute for any investigation by the Court; but whenever any new parties are introduced or any question arises as to matter subsequent to the registration, it is obvious that the ground for the summary remedy fails. So, under ss. 52 and 53 of Act XX of 1866, a decree could not be passed against the representatives of the deceased obligor. By the majority of the Court (Holloway and Collett, JJ., dissenting). PUDIYAPORAYIL MAMY v. MADAKARTH AMMAN KUTTI, 3 M.H.C. 199. [F., 4 M.H.C. 233.]

(56)—S. 53, cl. 3—Application for enforcement of bond—Award of interest—Mode of drawing up decree.—In an application for the enforcement of a bond made under s. 53, cl. 3, Act XX of 1866, the decree should not award interest subsequent to the date thereof, but should be drawn up in strict conformity with that section. THAKOOR BHARIRO SINGH v. BECHOO JOOLAHA, 3 Agra 393.

(57)—S. 53—Provision in decree—Rate of interest—Costs.—No sum as interest from the date of decree to the date of realization could be awarded by a decree under s. 53, Act XX of 1866. It could only award a sum not exceeding that mentioned in the bond together with interest at the rate specified (if any) to the date of decree, and a sum for costs to be fixed by the Court. MAHCUM CHUND v. MANTAB, 3 Agra 318.

(58)—S. 53—See BOND, 5 B.L.R. 167=13 W.R. 252.

(59)—S. 53—See PLAINT—MISCELLANEOUS, 19 W.R. 156.

(60)—S. 53—See SMALL CAUSE COURT, MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF — GENERAL, 18 W.R. 199.

(61)—S. 53—See SUMMARY PROCEDURE, 10 W.R. 84=1 B.L.R. A.C. 42.

(61-a)—S. 53—See NOS. 16, 17, 22, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 38, 39, 40, supra.

(62)—Ss. 53, 54, 55—Summary procedure under Act XX of 1866—Appeal from order in execution of decree thereunder.—An appeal from an order or decree passed in proceedings had in execution of a decree made under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866 is not barred by anything in s. 55 of that Act. SRIBULLAV BHATTACHARJEE v. BABURAM CHATTOPADHYA, 12 C. 511, F.B.

(62-a)—S. 54—See NOS. 38, 39, 40, 62, supra.

(63)—S. 55—Bar of appeal—Applicability to passing and execution of decree.—Where s. 55 of the Registration Act, XX of 1866, barred an appeal, it did so equally in matters of execution as in respect of the decree passed.—Quære:—Whether a decree passed under s. 53 of the Registration Act is or is not a summary decree within the meaning of s. 22 of Act XIV of 1859. HURNATH CHATTERJEE v. FUTTICK CHUNDER SUMADDAR, 18 W.R. 512. [Diss., 1 A. 583, F.B., 12 C. 511, F.B; F., 23 W.R., 328, 24 W.R. 225, 3 C. 517.]

(64)—S. 55—Specially registered bond—Decree—Regular suit—Cause of action.—A decree obtained by the plaintiff on a specially registered bond under Act XX of 1866 and set aside under s. 55 of that Act, held not to bar a regular suit on the bond. UTSHAB NARAYAN CHOWDHRY v. CHITTRA RAKA GUTPA, 8 B.L.R. App. 92. (6 W.R. Mis. 121, 6 W.R. 11, Cons.)

(65)—S. 55—See MANAGER—OF ATTACHED PROPERTY, 15 W.R. 477.

(66)—S. 55—See RES JUDICATA—CAUSE OF ACTION, 17 W.R. 154.

(67)—S. 55—See NOS. 17, 40, 62, supra.

Registration Act (XX of 1866)—concluded.

(68)—S. 82—See NO. 23, supra.

(69)—S. 84—See NO. 23, supra.

(70) S. 100—See NOS. 20, 21, supra.

Registration Act (VIII of 1871).

[REP., ACT III OF 1877.]

(1)—This circular cancels 7 Circular Orders which have ceased to be necessary since the new Registration Act, VIII of 1871, came into force. Civ. Cir. No. 18, dated 6th July 1871, 16 W.R. Civ. Cir. 2.

(2)—Deposit of Will under Act VIII of 1871 (Old Registration Act) is no registration—See WILL—MISCELLANEOUS, 10 C 976, P.C.= 11 I.A. 121.

(3)—S. 2—Act VII of 1870—Act XX of 1866, s. 52.—The effect of the first and fourth clauses of s. 2 of the Indian Registration Act of 1871, read with the provisions in sch. I as to the extent of the repeal of Act VII of 1870, is to keep in force all the provisions of Act XX of 1866 relating to the procedure for the recovery in a summary way of the amount of an obligation upon agreements recorded under s. 52 of that Act, before the first day of July 1871. PACHAIPERUMAL CHETTI v. SAVAYYAR AUDONI, 6 M.H.C. 351.

(4)—Ss. 17, 49—Unregistered mortgage with possession — Subsequent registered mortgage—Priority—Act I of 1872, s. 91—Parol evidence of existence of unregistered mortgage whether admissible —S. 17 of the Registration Act read with s. 49 of the same Act renders invalid an unregistered mortgage-deed whether accompanied by possession or not, as against a subsequent registered mortgage-deed, and s. 49 precludes the prior mortgagee from relying upon the unregistered deed to prove the mortgage to him (14 W.R. 250, Diss.) S. 91 of the Evidence Act (I of 1872) precludes an unregistered prior mortgagee from adducing oral evidence in proof of the mortgage to him. CHOWGATTA v. CHATAR SING, 18 P.R. 1878. (1 B.L.R. F.B. 59, 6 B.H. C.A.C. 59, R.) [F., 70 P.R. 1880, 126 P.R 1884; R., 93 P.R. 1883, 90 P.R. 1885, F.B.; D., 2 P.R. 1885.]

(5)—Ss. 17, 49—Unregistered mortgage, admissibility of, to prove money lent.—When an instrument creates a title or interest in land and is also a security for money lent (as a deed of mortgage of land), it may be received in evidence as a document to prove the money lent, though unregistered. BISHEN SINGH v. SUNDER AND RAM DASS, 40 P.R. 1874.

(6)—S. 49—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 92—Document inadmissible for want of registration —Exclusion of oral evidence to prove its terms —Previous oral transaction leading to execution of document, evidence of—Possession, presumption from.—The plaintiff claimed occupancy rights in certain land under a gift accompanied with possession. The terms of the gift were embodied in a deed which, for want of registration, was inadmissible by reason of s. 49 of the Registration Act (VIII of 1871). Held that oral evidence of the contents of the deed could not be given: nor could the plaintiff fall back upon oral transactions preceding the execution of the document, for proving the gift. Held, also, that as the plaintiff's case was not that he was the owner of the land, but that he had acquired an interest falling short of ownership under a transaction effected by a written instrument, and such transaction could not be proved either by the production of the instrument, or by oral evidence, the presumption arising from the fact of possession, taken by itself, could avail him nothing. BADRA v. MAKHNA, 58 P.R. 1877. [F., 18 P.R. 1878, 123 P.R. 1882.]

(7)—S. 49—Unregistered document—Objection to admissibility, urged in appeal—Mortgage of land for over rupees 100 with right to share in produce—Suit for value of produce—Effect of want of registration of mortgage-deed on plaintiff's right.—Objection to admissibility in evidence of a document on the ground that it is not registered, can be entertained by an Appellate Court, though the objection was not urged in the Court of first instance. Where two plots of land were mortgaged by A to B for sums of over Rs. 100, by two unregistered deeds which provided that on payment of the amounts, the lands were to be released, and meanwhile, half the produce of the lands was to go to each party, held; in a suit brought by B to recover the value of his share of the produce for a certain year, that the deeds did not give a right to share in the growing crops independently of an interest in land, but only as accessory to the interest which the mortgage created, and were compulsorily registrable. Held also, that though the plaintiff's suit was for money, he could not prove his right to the money claimed without resorting to the mortgage transaction in order to prove his title to the crops, which he could not do by reason of s. 49 of the Registration Act. SARBOLAND KHAN v. CHAND SINGH, 84 P. R. 1877. [F., 123 P. R. 1882.]

(8)—S. 49—See NOS. 4 and 5, supra.

Registration Act (III of 1877).

[REP., IN PT., ACT XIII OF 1889; REP., IN PT. AND AM., ACT XII OF 1891, AM., ACT XII OF 1879; SS. 104 TO 107; ACT XIX OF 1883, S. 12 (1) and (3); ACT VII OF 1886; ACT VII OF 1888, S. 65; ACT XVII OF 1899; SUPPLEMENTED, ACT I OF 1880, S. 3; ACT IV OF 1882, S. 54, PARAS. 2 & 3, AND SS. 59, 107 AND 123 (SEE S. 4, AS AMENDED BY ACT III OF 1885, S. 3). REP, (EXCEPT IN BRITISH BALUCHISTAN), ACT XVI OF 1908. DECLARED IN FOREIGN BRITISH BALUCHISTAN, REG. I OF 1890, S. 3.]

(1)—Future crops are immoveable property.—According to the Registration Act immoveable property includes any benefit to arise out of land and consequently future crops must be classed as immoveable and not as moveable property. RAJA BIJE BAHADUR v. GANOOLAL, 5 C.P.L.R. 6. (13 C. 262, D.) [F., 5 N.L.R. 21.]

Registration Act (III of 1877)—continued.

(2)—Evidence—Document creating interest in land—Inadmissible for want of registration—Admissibility as evidence of debt.—Although a bond which created an interest in land as security for a debt is inadmissible in evidence if unregistered, it may be adduced as evidence of the debt, and a money decree may be given on the basis of it for the sum secured by it. SEETA KULWAR v. JUHUR NATH PERSHAD, 3 Agra 170. [F., 9 C. 520, F.B.; App., 3 A. 229, F.B.]

(3)—Evidence — Unregistered bond affecting land—Suit for personal relief—Admissibility of bond.—An unregistered bond containing the condition that the lender will get possession of certain land in default of payment by the borrower within a specified time, is admissible in case the lender sues, not to enforce any charge or lien against the land, but for personal relief in the shape of a decree against the defendant for the payment of the bond debt. ESHREE RAI v. BINDOOT RAI, 3 Agra 60.

(4)—Registered and unregistered sale-deeds—Possession.—A purchaser under a registered sale-deed has priority over a prior purchaser under an unregistered sale deed who had, but lost, possession before the subsequent registered deed. GHISU v. AMIRULLA, A.W.N. 1881, 33.

(5)—Registered and unregistered documents—Unregistered documents executed before Act III of 1877.—Documents not compulsorily registrable, executed before the Registration Act of 1877 came into force, will not, if unregistered, take effect against latter registered documents. SHIB CHUNDRA CHAKRAVARTI v. JOHOBUX, 7 C. 870=9 C.L.R. 224. (2 A. 851, F.; 4 C. 536, Dist.) [F., 11 C. 661; Rel. on, 9 C.W.N. 14; R., 6 A. 164, 13 B. 229, 20 B. 158.]

(6)—Presentation of insufficiently stamped document for registration—Effect.—There is no provision in the Registration Act or in the Stamp Act, which lays down that, where a document is presented for registration insufficiently stamped, the presentation shall be no presentation. It is a good presentation, though the actual registration is delayed. SHAMA CHARAN DAS v. JOYENOOLLAH, 11 C. 750. [R., 3 C.P.L.R. 67.]

(7)—Patta—"This to remain in force until another patta is granted" — Construction—Lease.—The words "This is to remain in force until another patta is granted" express an intention to create or regulate the terms of a tenancy beyond the year and from year to year. [R. 9 C.P.L.R. 88.] Looking to the language of the Registration Act, the term 'patta' appears to be included in the term 'lease.' A lease for a term, not exceeding five years at a rent reserved not exceeding Rs. 50, is exempted by the Local Government from Registration. VENKATACHELLAM CHETTI v. ANDIAN, 3 M. 368. [R., 9 C.P.L.R. 88.]

Registration Act (III of 1877)—continued.

(8)—Registration—Interest in land—Value.—The value of the interest created in immoveable property by a mortgage bond is, for purposes of the Registration Act, that sum by the payment of which the interest could be determined. TIYAGARAJA v. RAMANUJAM. 6M. 422. [R., 23 M. 105.]

(9)—Public works cess Bengal Act III of 1877—Road cess—Public cess—Income tax—See BEN. ACT X OF 1871, 11 C.L.R. 140.

(10)—Compromise, petition of, relating to immoveable property—Registration Act—Judicial proceedings--Transfer of mortgagee's rights to a third party, mortgagee's right to question validity of—See COMPROMISE—GENERAL, 6 O.C. 362.

(11)—See HINDU LAW—ADOPTION, 19 B. 239.

(12)—See IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY, 66 P. R. 1900.

(13)—See MAXIMS, 5 Bom. L.R. 995.

(14)—Constructive notice—Registration Act—See NOTICE, 7 C. 199.

(15)—See SUMMARY DECISION, 10 C. 196=13 C.L R. 385=10 I.A. 119, P. C.

(16)—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 54, A. W N. 1885, 201.

(17)—Trees—Moveable or immoveable—Determination of question—See TREES, 9 C.P.L. R. 53.

(18)—S. 17—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 23, 139 P.R. 1883.

(19) Ss. 17, 23 to 26 and 77—Agreement optionably registrable—Date of execution, necessity for—Evidence to prove date, admissibility of—Description of property, sufficiency of—Refusal of executant to admit execution — Execution not voluntary—Limit to enforce registration, maintainability of.—Disputes had been going on for a long time between the parties to the present suit regarding the right to collect rents of certain properties. The then Sub-Divisional Officer of the division sent for them and, on their reaching his quarters, the Officer asked them to settle their disputes then and there. The plaintiff offered certain terms and the Sub-Divisional Officer told the defendant, that, unless he accepted those terms, he would be sent to hajut. Ultimately after being confined for nearly the whole of the day in the bungalow of the Officer, without being allowed for bathing and food, the defendant agreed to sign a compromise and an agreement was written out by the Sub-Divisional Officer, signed by the plaintiff and the defendant and witnessed by the Sub-Divisional Officer and the Assistant Superintendent of Police. The agreement did not contain the date of execution. It gave the names of Dihis and Chuks of the properties comprised therein and not the names of the districts wherein they were situate. The plaintiff presented the agreement for registration, admitting his execution thereof. The defendant did not appear before the Sub-Registrar and proceedings to enforce his attendance were unavailing. The Sub-Registrar, therefore, admitted the document for registration as regards the plaintiff but refused to do so as regards the defendant. On appeal, the Special Sub-Registrar affirmed the decision of the Sub-Registrar. Hence the present suit under s. 77. Held, there is nothing in the Act requiring a document presented for registration to be dated. Documentary or parol evidence would be admissible to prove when, as a matter of fact, a document tendered for registration was executed. In the circumstances of the case, the description of the properties was sufficient. (4 M.H C. 91, 18 C. 556, R.) Held, also that, though the agreement was optionally registrable, as the provisions of the Act 'enforcing the appearance of executants and witnesses' are applicable to the case of a document, the registration of which is optional, the refusal of such an executant to admit execution gives rise to a cause of action under s. 77 of the Act. Held, further, that the defendant's signing of the agreement under the circumstances of the case was not an 'execution' thereof within the meaning of the Act, indeed it was no 'execution' at all. Execution means voluntary execution, the signing of the document of the executant's free-will. Appeal allowed and suit dismissed. CHANDRA KISHORE MUNSHI v. DINENDRA NATH SANYAL, 1 C.L.J 126. (6 W. R. Mis. 131, 1 B.L.R. O.C. 47, 4 M.H.C. 425, D.).

Registration Act (III of 1877)—continued.

(20)—Ss. 17, 49—Oral agreement followed by deed of sale.—The Courts recognise a special mercantile practice as to the creation of an equitable mortgage by the deposit of title deeds, but decisions relating to such contracts are not applicable to ordinary contracts for the transfer of immoveable property. Where the owner of certain immoveable property mortgaged such property on a duly registered mortgage deed and subsequently signed on such deed an endorsement (which is attested) to the effect that the mortgagor had absolutely made over the mortgaged property to the mortgagee, such endorsement—though written, as alleged, after delivery of such property—was intended to be the deed of sale and was tacitly considered by the parties themselves as the "only repository and the appropriate evidence of their agreement," and as such was subject to the provisions of s. 17 of the Registration Act. MA NYEIN THA v. MAUNG KYA GAING, L. B.R. 1893—1900, 34. (5 B. 232, 11 B.L.R. 405, R.)

(21)—S. 17 and s. 49—Deed of compromise—Petition to Court—Document declaring right to immoveable property over Rs. 100 in value—Inadmissibility of whole document in evidence—Plaint disclosing a cause of action irrespective of the unregistered document.—Plaintiff sued under s. 265 of the Contract Act asking for a dissolution of partnership, and the allotment to him of his share in the assets and property of the firm, and appealing to a document

Registration Act (III of 1877)—continued.

(which was unregistered) as explaining the relative rights of the parties, and the share he was entitled to. It appeared that the plaintiff had previously filed a suit for dissolution, but having come to terms with the defendant, appeared in Court with the document propounded in the present case, which showed that on certain concessions being made, and notably on certain properties alleged in the case to be joint, or firm properties, being recognised as defendant's sole property, the partnership business should not be dissolved but go on. This document, though headed with the names of the parties and with the form of claim in the suit, was in itself clearly an agreement between the parties, signed by them and witnessed. On the said document being filed, the Court ordered "that as plaintiff withdrew, the suit should be dismissed." Held, that the document relied upon in the present suit could not be regarded as a mere petition to the Court conveying information that an agreement had been come to, which agreement was not in the document itself, but existed as an oral agreement apart from and independently of it; and that as the document clearly did "declare," that is define, or arrange, or settle, some question relating to the title to immoveable property, which on the face of the document, though no particular value was set forth, obviously exceeded the limit of Rs. 100 in value, and as it was impossible to separate the parts of the document which required registration from the parts which did not, therefore the whole document was inadmissible for want of registration, and oral evidence could not be taken to supply its place. MUSSAMMAT DEOKI v. KALA, 76 P.R. 1887.

(22)—S. 23—Period within which document may be registered—Conduct of parties, effect of.—No conduct of the parties to a document, however much that might alter its character, could affect the term of limitation, prescribed by s. 23 of the Registration Act, within which such document must be registered. NOBAN NUSYA v. DHON MAHOMED, 5 C. 820=6 C.L.R. 136.

(22-a)—S. 23—See NO. 19, supra.

(23)—Ss. 23 to 26, 34, 77—Suit to enforce registration—Relevancy of question of consideration—Appearance of executant before Registrar.—Suit to enforce registration of an instrument of mortgage. Though the document was presented for registration within four months, the executants did not appear before the registering officer within four months, notwithstanding that summonses were taken out to enforce their attendance. The executants contended that there was no consideration for the document, except to the extent of a small sum, and that, as they did not appear before the registering officer within four months, the document could not be registered. Held that in a suit to compel the registration of a document, the question of consideration was wholly irrelevant. Held also that the non-appearance of the executants did not bar the institution of the suit. The appearance referred to in s. 34 of the Act included voluntary appearance as well as appearance under coercive process. HASSAN ALLI v. EKAMBARAM, 5 M.L.J. 29.

Registration Act (III of 1877)—concluded.

(24)—Ss. 23 and 26—See MUHAMEDAN LAW—GENERAL, 21 P.L.R. 1900.

(25)—S. 24—See Nos. 19, 23, supra, and No. 32, infra.

(26)—S. 25—See Nos. 19, 23, supra and No. 32, infra.

(27)—S. 26—See Nos. 19, 23, 24, supra.

(28)—S. 34—See No. 23, supra.

(29)—S. 48—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 91, L.B.R. 1872—1892, 650.

(30)—S. 49—See Nos. 20, 21, supra.

(31)—Ss 60, 75—Admissibility of a bond bearing registration endorsement—Presumption—Defective presentation—Second presentation after Judge's order—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 114, 9 A.L.J. 188.

(31-a)—S. 75—See No 31, supra.

(32)—Ss. 76, 77, 23, 24—Limitation for registration or order of refusal—Denial of execution—Refusal to attend—Limitation for suit under s. 77 of the Act.—No period is prescribed by Act III of 1877, within which a document which has been admitted for registration may be registered, or within which the order of refusal by the Registrar must be made; but the order of refusal must be made at some time after the expiration of the time allowed for admitting the document, except in cases in which there has been an express refusal [R., 25 C. 93.] Where there has been no express denial of execution, but the executant refuses to attend at the office of the Registrar, there is nothing in ss. 76 and 77 to compel that officer to make his order of refusal within the time limited for admission of execution by ss. 23 and 24. [R., 25 C. 93.] The period of limitation can only begin to run when the order of refusal is made, at which time and not before, the cause of action accrues LUCKHI NARAIN KHETTRY v. SATCOWRIE PYNE, 16 C. 189. (12 B.L.R. 228, 11 C. 750, 11 B.L.R. 20, Diss.) [R., 25 C. 93.]

(33)—S. 77—See Nos. 19, 23, 32, supra.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843.)

[SUPPLEMENTED—ACT I OF 1880, s. 3 (AND SEE ACT X OF 1897, S. 8); ACT IV OF 1882, S. 54, PARAS. 2 AND 3, AND Ss. 59, 107 AND 123 (SEE ACT IV OF 1882, S. 4, AS AM. BY ACT III OF 1883, S. 3, AND SEE ACT X OF 1897, S. 8).]

(1)—Bond specially registered—Execution of decree obtained thereon—Appeal against order in execution.—Orders, passed in the execution of decrees, obtained under s. 53 of Act XX of 1866 on bonds specially registered under s. 52

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

of the Act are appealable. Per Stuart, C.J., contra. WILAYAT-UN-NISSA v. NAJIB-UN NISSA, 1 A. 583, F.B. (1 A. 377, Overruled; 7 W.R. 130 and 18 W.R. 512, Diss.) [F., 1 A. 586, 5 B. 673, F.B.]

(2)—Splitting up of a transaction, validity of.—Where a person borrowed Rs. 198 and executed two unregistered mortgage bonds for Rs. 99 each on the same date, held, that, as there was nothing in the Act which forbade the splitting up of a transaction in this manner, the bonds were valid RAMJI MAL v. CHOTTE LAL, 3 A.L.J. 661=A.W.N. 1906, 281=29 A. 50.

(3)—Consideration and not value of property to be taken.—For the purposes of the Registration Act the amount of the consideration and not the actual value of the property sold should be taken. PUNOO LODHI v. KONDA, 6 C.P.L.R. 55.

(4)—Principal amount to be taken for calculating value for purposes of the Act.—For the calculation of the value of the right, title, or interest dealt with by a document for the purpose of the Registration Act only the principle amount secured by that document is to be taken into consideration. The question of the admissibility of a document to establish a lien at all and the question of the extent to which the document operates to establish a lien are altogether different. MT. SARDAR BAHU v. GOPAL, 6 C.P.L.R. 75. [R., 10 C.P.L.R. 10.]

(5)—New law—Rule as to operation.—A new law innovates no more than is necessary for its own proper operation, and this is especially the case with laws like those as to forms and procedure of a purely positive character. The mere circumstance that they would work more harmoniously with one system than another, is not a reason for implying a repeal of the latter, supposing it to have been the previously subsisting law, unless there be an actual repugnancy. Accordingly, the Registration Act although giving to certain documents a special advantage, is not meant to modify the general law of sale any further. LALUBHAI SURCHAND v. BAI AMRIT, 2 B 299=P. J 57.

(6)—Rejection by Court of registered document for non-compliance with Registration Law.—Where a document which purports to have been registered is tendered in evidence, the Court cannot, except perhaps on proof of fraud having been practised upon the registering officer invalidating the certificate of registration, reject it for non-compliance with Registration Law; but it can deal with all other objections against it on their merits. SHEO SHUNKUR SAHOY v. HIRDEY NARAIN SAHU, 6 C. 25=5 C. L. R. 194. [F., 4 A. 14=A.W.N. 1881. 105; R., 11 A. 319, F.B.=A.W.N. 1889, 101, 7 C.L.R. 223.]

(7)—Registered mortgage—Priority—Act III of 1877.—In a suit filed, after the Registration

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

Act of 1877 came into force, a registered deed of 1875 was held to have priority over an unregistered deed of 1870. KALLACOLATHURAN v. SUBBAROYA REDDI, 3 M. 73.

(8)—Admissibility of unregistered sale-deed—Specific performance —A document which, for want of registration, is not admissible in evidence, as creating an interest in land, is admissible for the purpose of obtaining specific performance of the contract. Secondary evidence can be let in where a document was not registered for no fault of the plaintiff. NAGAPPA v. DEVU. 14 M. 55. [F., 10 C.P.L.R. 107, 20 M. 250; R., 5 N.L.R. 70.]

(9)—Compulsory registration—Effect of.—A document compulsorily registered is as effectual for the purpose of the Registration Act as a document which has been voluntarily registered. PALLAYYA v. RAMAVADHANULU, 13 M.L.J. 364.

(10)—Registration—Registered and unregistered deeds—Priority—Reg. IX of 1827, s. 6, how far repealed—Act XIX of 1843—Act I of 1843.—The latter portion of the first clause of s. 6 of Reg. IX of 1827, relating to notice of unregistered documents, has been repealed by Act I of 1843, but the first part of that section which, taken together with s. 3 of the same regulation, clearly provides that a deed of sale duly registered shall be preferred to and satisfied before a deed of mortgage unregistered, or registered at a subsequent date, has not been repealed by Act I of 1843, Act XIX of 1843, or any other enactment. PARSHOTAM RANCHOD v. JAGJIVAN MAYARAM, 1 B.H.C. 60. [R., 7 B.H.C.A.C. 56, 9 B.H.C. 121, 6 B. 168, F.B.]

(11)—Necessity for registration of an award.—There is no provision for the Registration Act requiring that an award shall be registered. JAGANNATH v. RAMBUX, 6 C.P.L.R. 95.

(12)—Registration Act—Document registered under the provisions of the Act — Gift — Complete when registration effected.—A document registered in accordance with the provisions of the Registration Act is a registered instrument, and if the document is duly registered in accordance with those provisions, the gift is complete and valid. The law does not require that the registration should be at the instance of or with the consent of the donor. PARBATI v. BAIJNATH PATHAK, 10 A.L.J. 300=35 A. 3. (19 M. 433, Cons.)

——S. 2 (=s. 3 of 1877=s. 3 of 1871=s. 2 of 1866=s. 3 of 1894).

(13)—S. 2 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 3)—Mango tree—Standing timber.—A mango tree is a "timber" within the meaning of s. 3 of the Indian Registration Act, 1877. KRISHNARAO v. BABAJI, 1 Bom. L.R. 489=24 B. 31.

(14)—S. 2 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 3)—Definitions in Registration Acts.—The definitions in the Registration Acts are expressly given for the purposes of those Acts and ought not to govern the decision of questions raised under other Acts. PANDAH GAZI v. JANNUDDI, 4 C. 665=2 C.L.R. 526.

(15)—S. 17—Registration—Deed mortgaging "fruit upon trees"—Fruits to be produced, 'not a benefit arising out of land' 'constituting immoveable property.—From the mortgage deed in this case, it appeared that the only right that the mortgagee was given was to receive two-thirds of the fruit, the mortgagor whose possession was not interfered with taking the remaining one-third. No right was given to the mortgagee to receive possession of the garden under any circumstances or to remove the mortgagor from possession or to exercise any control over the garden. Held that the instrument in question was not a compulsorily registrable one under s. 17 of the Registration Act of 1877, because the right to receive a share of fruit to be produced in future could not be deemed a benefit to arise out of land so as to bring it within the definition of "immoveable property" in s. 3 of the Registration Act. BAGU MAL v. BAHAWAL BAKSH, 72 P.R. 1884. [R., 1 Ind. Cas. 903=5 N.L.R. 21; D., 66 P.R. 1900.]

(16)—S. 2 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 3)—Lease of gum of trees—Registration, whether necessary—Transfer of Property Act, IV of 1882, ss. 4, 107—Provisions of the Act supplemental to Registration Act —As the gum of trees is moveable property, a lease of the right to remove gum from certain trees does not require registration. Under the provisions of s. 4 of the Act, s. 107 has to be construed as supplemental to the Indian Registration Act. Consequently, a lease of moveable property does not require registration. ORR v. KUMARASAWMY, 5 M.L.J. 27.

(17)—S. 2 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 2)—A lease granted by a Zamindar to an intermediate holder is not a patta, as defined in s. 3, Madras Act, VIII of 1865, and hence requires registration under Act XX of 1866. RAMASAWMI CHETTI v. THE COLLECTOR OF MADURA, 5 C.L.R. 341, P.C.=2 M. 67=6 I.A. 170=4 Sar. 50. [Expl., 16 M. 40.]

(18)—S. 2—Bhadekhat Act XX of 1866, s. 17.—A Bhadekhat, being an agreement between the lessee and the lessor in the nature of counterpart of a lease, is a lease for the purpose of the Registration Act; and a provision in it that the lessee might, after 6 months, remain in occupation at a monthly rent, till the lessor called upon him to quit, will not extend the original term after which the lessee would be only a monthly tenant. The document need not, hence, be registered under s. 17, Act XX of 1866. MARO VITHAL v. TUKARAM valad MALHARJI, 5 B.H.C.A.C. 92. [Appr., 4 C. 61.]

(19)—S. 2 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 3).—Quære:—Whether 'masani' income is im-

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

moveable property within the meaning of s. 3, Registration Act. RAMSINGH v. HAR GOBIND, 83 P.R. 1891. [D., 10 P.R. 1896, 102 P.R. 1900.]

(20)—S. 2—Standing timber—Moveable property—Ss. 3 and 4, General Clauses Act—See BEN. ACT VIII OF 1885, ss. 144, 184, 193, sch. III, art. 2, 7 C.L.J. 152.

(21)—S. 2—See FRUITS, 3 A. 168.

(22)—S. 2—See SMALL CAUSE COURT—MOFUSSIL, JURISDICTION OF—GENERAL, 5 A. 564, F.B. = A.W.N. 1883, 148.

(23)—S. 2—Lease, meaning of—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, ss. 105, 107, 8 O. C. 197.

(24)—S. 2—Immoveable property—Right to "collect lac" from forest trees is a right in immoveable property—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 107, 5 N.L.R. 21 = 1 Ind. Cas. 903.

(25)—S. 2—Kabuliyat alone if constitutes a lease—Acceptance by lessor and registration—Effect—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, ss. 107, 4, 16 C.W.N. 606.

(26)—S. 2—Standing trees—Whether moveable or immoveable property—See TREES, 9 Ind. Cas. 478.

(27)—Ss. 2, 17 (= Registration Act, 1887, ss. 3, 17) —Immoveable property— Right to enter upon a given piece of land and collect dues—Lease—Transfer of Property Act, s. 107.—A Zemindar leased the right to enter upon a certain land belonging to him on which a weekly fair was held, and to collect the dues, which, but for the lease, the Zemindar would have been entitled to collect. The lease was for more than one year. It was in the form of a pattah; but was not registered. Held, that the right was a benefit arising out of land and as such, immoveable property within the definition contained in s. 3 of the Act; that, consequently, the pattah was compulsorily registrable under cl. (d) of s. 17 of the Act, as also under s. 107 of the Transfer of Property Act, that, being unregistered, the deed conveyed nothing to the lease and was inadmissible in evidence. SIKANDAR v. BAHADUR, A.W.N. 1905, 48 = 2 A.L.J. 208 = 27 A. 462.

(28)—Ss. 2 and 17 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 3 and 17)— Unregistered amalnama not forming lease or agreement to lease, admissibility in evidence of, in suit for ejectment.—The question raised in this appeal was whether certain documents produced by the defendant in answer to the plaintiff's claim which was one for ejectment, were inadmissible in evidence for want of registration. The documents were described as amalnamas and had been granted to the defendant by the plaintiffs' lessor. By those documents, the defendant was permitted to clear the jungle and hold the land without payment of any rent for 9 years and, on the expiration of that period, the lands were to be measured and assessed and granted on putta to the defendant on execution of a kabuliat by him. No lease was granted to the defendant in accordance with the amalnamas that he was allowed to hold on upon payment of rent. On the point whether the amalnamas above mentioned were documents which, having regard to s. 17 of the Registration Act, required registration, held, they were neither leases nor agreements to lease within s. 3 of the Act and should, therefore, be admitted in evidence without registration. DAWARKA NATH SAHA v. LEDU SIKDAR, 33 C. 502. (7 C. 733, D.)

(29)—Ss. 2, 17 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 3, 17) - Future rents—"Any other benefit to arise out of land"—Mortgage of future rents of value of over Rs. 100—Whether requires registration—Position of mortgagee who had taken an unregistered document—Trespasser.—Future rents payable in respect of lands are "benefits to arise out of land"; within the meaning of s. 3, Registration Act. A mortgage of future rents, upwards of one hundred rupees in value, can be effected only by a registered instrument. Therefore, a mortgagee of such rents, under an unregistered document, is liable to be evicted as a trespasser, and the document cannot be received in evidence. MANGALASAMY DEVAR v. SUBBIAH PILLAY, 6 Ind Cas. 504 = 8 M. L.T. 91 = 20 M L J. 966. (27 A. 462, A.W.N. 1905, 48, 2 A.L J. 208, 27 A. 564, A.W.N. 1905, 100, 2 A.L.J. 692, 19 B. 663, 13 C. 262, 10 A. 133, 11 W.R. 171, R.)

(30) Ss. 2 and 17 (= Registration Act, III of 1877, ss. 3, 17, cl. (b) and (c)—Grant of right to cut standing timber for certain years—Admissibility of document embodying said right without registration.—Plaintiff sued for a declaration of his right to certain standing trees and for an injunction preventing the defendant from cutting the same. Defendant contended that he had a right to cut and carry away the said trees under a yadast executed by plaintiff. The yadast was to the following effect: "As I have settled a value of Rs 3,400 for the said two shares together with the tank and bed of the said tank so that you may cut and enjoy the trees, etc., and the grass, korai, gum, karuvela nut, etc., from this day till the close of fasli 1304, and executed a yadast to you on receipt of a note from you promising payment within a period of six months, you will enjoy in the said tank, as mentioned above. Should there be any trees or other materials whatever in the said tank on the 1st day of fasli 1305, the above said person shall not interfere with it." The document was not, however registered, though it was to run for more than four years. Held per Shephard, J., that, as the intention was that the defendant should have exclusive enjoyment of the produce named in the yadast the document created an interest inimmoveable property. The yadast amounted to a lease of immoveable property and not a mere license, and as the enjoyment was given for a term exceeding one year, registration of the yadast was compulsory. In the absence of registration, the document was not admissible in evidence. Plaintiff was, therefore, entitled to a decree. Per Best, J.—The yadast was inadmissible in evidence for want of registration only if the suit was for possession of the land. The present suit related to trees standing on the land, which were moveable property according to the definition given in s. 3 of the Registration Act. Consequently, the non-registration of the document was no bar to its admissibility for the purposes of this suit SEENI CHETTIAR v. SANTHANATHAN CHETTIAR, 5 M.L.J. 253.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(31)—Ss. 2, 17, (d) (=Registration Act, III of 1877, ss. 3, 17 (d))—Agreement to cut timber, etc., for a certain period.—An agreement assigning for consideartion a right to cut and enjoy trees, grass, etc., growing on a land for a period of four years is an instrument conveying an interest in immoveable property. If the value of the interest conveyed is more than Rs. 100, the document is compulsorily registrable and, if unregistered, is inadmissible in evidence. SEENI CHETTIAR v. SANTHANATHAN CHETTIAR, 20 M. 58, F.B.=6 M L.J. 281. [R., 5 N.L.R. 21; D., 28 A. 277=3 A.L.J. 138=A.W.N. 1906, 4.]

(32)—Ss. 2, 17—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 20, 19 B 663.

(33)—Ss. 2 and 17 (d)—An undertaking by a tenant to occupy on certain conditions is not a lease within the meaning of—See LEASE—GENERAL, 6 M.L.T. 175.

(34)—Ss. 2, 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 3, 17 (d) 49)—Lease—Agreement to lease—Registration—Admissibility, in a suit for specific performance—Transfer of Property Act, s. 4—Trusts Act, s. 91.—An agreement in writing to grant a lease, which requires registration, cannot be received in evidence in a suit for specific performance of such agreement, whether possession was or was not granted in pursuance of the agreement. (17 M. 456, F.B., F.; 17 M. L.J. 218, Overruled; 7 M L.T. 278, 5 Ind. Cas. 615, D; 14 C.W.N. 65, 5 Ind. Cas. 38, Diss.) S. 49 of the Registration Act consists of two parts. It provides first "that no document, required by s. 17 to be registered, shall affect any immoveable property comprised therein." The second part of the section says that such a document "shall not be received as evidence of any transaction affecting such property," i.e., the immoveable property comprised therein. As regards the immoveable property, other than that comprised in the instrument or a transaction in respect thereof, the section contains no prohibition against the admissibility of the instrument. The two parts of the section deal with different subjects. The first part presupposes that the document itself is the transaction or the mode in which it is carried out. The second part relates to cases where the document itself is not the transaction, but is only the record of a transaction, or being itself a transaction contains a reference to or a recital of another transaction which affects the immoveable property comprised therein. NARAYANAN CHETTY v. MUTHIAH SERVAI, 8 Ind. Cas. 520.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(35)—Ss. 2, 17 (d), 49—Agreement to lease—Registration, if necessary—See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE, 14 C.W.N. 65=5 Ind. Cas. 38.

(36)—Ss. 2, 18 (=Registration Act, VIII of 1871, ss. 3, 18)—Lease for one year with readiness to hold over — Registration optional.—A lease for one year certain with an expression, on the tenant's part, of readiness to hold the land longer at the same rent if the landlord should desire it, did not create in the tenant any interest extending beyond one year, and the registration thereof was not compulsory. APU BUDGAVDA v. NARHARI ANNAJEE, 3 B 21. [F., 17 C. 548; Appl., 8 A. 198= A. W N. 1886, 56. 14 M. 271; R., 3 M. 358, 8 B. 493, 9 C.P.L.R. 88.]

(37)—Ss. 2, 47, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 3, 47, 49)—Effect of unregistered deed of assignment of mortgage decree—Effect of subsequent registration—Limitation Act, 1877, art. 179 (4)—Step-in-aid of execution—Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, s. 232(=O. XXI, r. 16, New Code).—A decree for sale on a mortgage is not immoveable property as defined in s. 3. An unregistered deed of assignment of such a decree for the sale of the hypothecated property can confer title thereunder, although the deed cannot be used for the purpose of proving such title (s. 49). And if the document is subsequently registered, it can take full effect as from the date of its execution (s. 47). [R., 26 A. 603=A.W.N. 1904, 148, 190 P.L.R. 1905=1 P.R. 1906, 30 A. 238= A.W N. 1908, 99=5 A.L.J. 607, 13 C.W.N. 533 =9 C.L.J. 443.] An application by such assignee, before the subsequent registration, for execution of the decree under s. 232, Civ. Pro. Code, was held to be a step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of art. 179 (4) of the Limitation Act (1877). ABDUL MAJID v. MUHAMMAD FAZULLAH, 13 A. 89=A.W.N. 1890, 186. [R., 13 C.W.N. 533=9 C.L.J. 443; F., 11 Bom. L.R. 1281.]

(38)—Ss. 2, 47 and 75 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 3, 47 and 75)—Registration of deed—Deed of gift.—The registration of a document does not depend on the consent of the person executing the document. It depends on the finding of the Registrar that the document has been executed, and that the requirements of the law for the time being in force have been complied with on the part of the person presenting the document for registration so as to entitle the document to registration. There is no exception or limitation to the rule laid down in s. 75 of the Registration Act, the registration shall take effect as if the document was registered when first presented for registration. When the donor has made over the deed of gift to the donee giving authority to the donor to present the document for registration, the donor has done all that was necessary to him to make the deed legally complete. PAYAG SINGH v. KAMTA SINGH, 3 O.C. 231.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

— S. 6 = (s. 6 of 1877 = s. 6 of 1871 = s. 8 of 1866 = s. 8 of 1864.)

(39)—S. 6 — See HINDU LAW — JOINT FAMILY, 3 W.R. 21.

— S. 7 (= s. 7 of 1877 = s. 7 of 1871 = s. 7 of 1866 = s. 7 of 1864.)

(40)—S. 7—See MORTGAGE—REDEMPTION, 27 M. 348.

(41)—Ss. 7, 30(a), 87 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 7, 30 (a), 87) District Registrar—Sub-Registrar, power of—Registration of a deed concerning lands situated in separate Registration sub district.—A Sub-Registrar, who was empowered, under s. 7 of the Act, to discharge the duties of a District Registrar, registered a bond which might have been registered by the Registrar at his discretion under s. 30 (a) of the Act. Held, that the bond was validly registered and that any doubt as to the validity of the registration was removed by s. 87 of the Act. JOGESHWAR NARAIN SINGH v. RAI RADHA RAWAN, 3 C.L.J. 165. (18 C. 556, D.)

— S. 17 (= s. 17 of 1877 = s. 17 of 1871 = s. 17 of 1866 = s. 13 of 1864.)

(41-a)—S. 17—Value of interest conveyed, test of.—For the purpose of the Registration Act, the value of an interest that is conveyed is the consideration mentioned in the sale deed by the parties thereto. VASUDEV MORESHWAR GUNPULE v. RAMA BABAJI DANGE, 11 B.H C.R. 149. [F., 10 C. 82 = 13 C.L.R. 256; R., 2 B. 97, 2 B. 353, 8 B. 610, 17 B. 235, 6 C.P.L.R. 55, 193 P.L R. 1905 = 1 P.R. 1906, 3 N.L.R. 72.]

(42)—S. 17—Registration—Determination of value.—The necessity for registration must be determined by the stated consideration, i.e., by the value stated in the instrument. Inadequacy of consideration, so far as it can be considered at all, can only be considered with reference to the bona fides of the transaction. ROHINEE DEBIA v. SHIB CHUNDER CHATTERJEE, 15 W.R. 558. [F., 11 B.H.C. 149, 2 B. 97, 6 C.P.L.R. 55; Appl., 4 C. 61, 5 M. 214, 12 C.L.R. 444, 10 C. 82; R., 2 B. 353, 8 B. 610, 3 N.L.R. 72.]

(43)—S. 17 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Optionally registrable but unregistered, document—Evidence.—Neither s. 17 of the Registration Act of 1877, nor the corresponding sections of the previous Acts, have the effect of rendering, a document, not compulsorily registrable under the Act of 1864, inadmissible in evidence without registration. RAM COOMAR SINGH v. KISHARI, 9 C. 68. [R., 18 B. 92]

(44)—S. 17 (= Registration Act, 1871, s. 17 = Act XX of 1866, s. 17 = Act XVI of 1864,

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871 XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

s. 13)—Optional registration — Determination of value—Consideration.—The value of "the right, title or interest" created by a mortgage under Act XVI of 1864, Act XX of 1866, or Act VIII of 1871, is estimated by the amount of the principal money lent, and without any regard to the duration of the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee, or to the rate or continuance of the interest payable. The words "or in future" which occur in Act XX of 1866 and Act VIII of 1871, have reference to estates in remainder or in reversion in immoveable property, or to estates otherwise deferred in enjoyment, and not to interest payable in future on principal moneys lent on the security of immoveable property. NANA bin LAKSHMAN v. ANANT BABAJI, 2 B. 353. (1 A. 274, Diss.) [F., 5 M. 214, 10 C. 82 = 13 C.L.R. 256; Appl., 3 A. 1; R., 23 M. 105, 30 B. 304 = 7 Bom. L.R. 742; D., 8 B. 610, 4 N.L. R. 90.]

(45)—S. 17 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, sub-ss. (b), (h)—Non-testamentary document—Evidentiary value of.—Case in which it was held that a non-testamentary instrument which clearly purports or operates to create or declare the right and interest of certain persons in immoveable property of the value of over Rs. 100, in the absence of registration, would be inadmissible in evidence and could not be relied upon for establishing any right thereunder. KALI CHARAN GHOSAL v. RAM CHANDER MANDUL, 30 C. 783. (22 M. 508, P.C., R.) [R., 34 C. 193 = 5 C.L.J. 611, 35 C. 1010 = 12 C.W.N. 854 = = 8 C.L.J. 90; D., 27 P.R. 1906 = 11 P.L.R. 1906.]

(46)—S. 17 (= Registration Act, 1864, s. 13)—Document creating and transferring right of use of growing trees for a certain period — Interest in immoveable property—Registration Act, 1864, s. 13.—A document which creates and transfers a right of use of growing trees for a certain specified period is a document which purports to create or transfer an interest in immoveable property within the meaning of s. 23 of the Registration Act, 1864, and so cannot be admitted in evidence unless registered. SUKRY KURDEPA v. GOONTAKULL NAGIREDDI, 6 M.H.C. 71. [F., 5 M.L.J. 253; R., 12 M. 303, F.B., 9 C.P.L.R 53.]

(47)—S. 17 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Documents which are compulsorily registrable not registered—Evidence for a collateral purpose.—A document of which registration is compulsory under the Registration Act, 1877, may be used as evidence for any collateral purpose—for any purpose other than that of creating or extinguishing a right to immoveable property. BAI GULABBAI v. SHRI DATTAGARJI, 9 Bom. L.R. 393.

(48)—S. 17 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Registration — Transfer of property under litigation—Promise of transfer—Value of right when not expressed.—A document containing a promise to transfer property under litigation, if decreed in favour of the executant, is not compulsorily registrable under s. 17 of the Act. In the case of a promise to transfer property under litigation, the value of the property after litigation is over cannot be presumed to have been the value of the right of the party found entitled to it while the litigation continued. GIRJA NAND v. NATHU RAM, 174 P.L R. 1905.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(49)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, VIII of 1871, s. 17)—Registration—S. 17 of the Registration Act.—The words "present or future," "vested or contingent" in s. 17 of the Registration Act point not to the value or its ascertainment, but to the right or interest in the land, which is to be created as a security. If the charge or interest created is of a value less than Rs. 100, registration is needless. NARASAYYA CHETTI v. GURUVAPPA CHETTI, 1 M. 378. [Appr., 10 C. 82, 5 M. 214; R., 4 C. 61, 13 C.L.R. 256, 10 C.P.L R. 10.]

(50)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Unregistered document admissible for showing nature of possession under it.—Held, that an agreement relating to immoveable property, though unregistered, is admissible for the purpose of showing the nature of the defendant's possession under it, though, notwithstanding the same, the defendant is liable to be ejected. VENKATACHARI v. RENGASWAMI IYENGAR, 6 M.L.T. 192=3 Ind. Cas. 223. (29 M. 336, F.B., R.)

(51)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Document containing merely statement of past events.—A document containing merely a statement of past facts with a promise for the future to act in accordance therewith does not require registration and is admissible in evidence. KOMARGOWDA v. BHIMAJI, 1 Bom. L. R. 61=23 B. 602.

(51-a)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Registration of document—Recitals of memoranda of previous disposition—Document drawn up to evidence partition made at the time.—Deeds which are mere recitals or memoranda of dispositions of property, which have been previously agreed upon or made, and which do not themselves operate to effect any such disposition, need not be registered. Where a person made a partition of his property, exceeding Rs. 100 in value, among his sons, and there and then drew up to a document to evidence the partition, and there was no evidence to show that there was any previously completed partition or that the document was merely intended to serve as a memorandum of what had been previously arranged:—Held, that the document was compulsorily registrable. NIHAL CHAND v. DAVID SASSOON & CO, KARACHI, 15 Ind. Cas. 28=229 P.L.R. 1912 =231 P.W.R. 1912. (30 P.R. 1884, 184 P.R. 1889, 48 P.R. 1905, 33 P.R. 1905, Rel. on.)

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871 XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(52)—S. 17 (=Registration Act 1877, s. 17)—Mortgage—Redemption—Interest in immoveable property.—A document entitling a person to redeem a mortgage of immoveable property on payment of money creates an interest in immoveable property, and its registration is compulsory under s. 17 of the Registration Act. MUTHIA VENKATACHELAPATI v. PYANDA VENKATACHELAPATI, 27 M. 348.

(53)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Unregistered mortgage deed—Value of interest created by deed—How determined.—A mortgage deed whereby the principal amount secured was below Rs. 100 was admissible though not registered, since, under s. 17 of the Registration Act, the test was the value of the interest created or otherwise dealt with in the instrument, and such value in the case of a mortgage deed was determined by the principal amount secured by the mortgage and not by the value of the land to which the deed related. JHANDA v. JOWAYA, 29 P.R. 1880.

(54)—S. 17—Registration—Mortgage to secure sum less than Rs. 100—Principal and interest amounting to more than Rs. 100—"Value of property."—According to the true meaning of the Registration Act "the value of property" is the value of the interest created by the deed; the value of the interest created by a mortgage is the amount of the sum secured by it, and the interest is merely the usufruct of that sum. Therefore, the deed which secures a sum under Rs. 100 does not require registration. PANCHI DASI v. AHMEDULLA, 12 C.L.R. 444. (4 C. 61, 15 W.R. 331, R.) [F., 13 C.L.R. 256; R., 10 C. 82.]

(54-a)-S. 17—Agreement relinquishing certain portion of principal and interest on mortgage—Compulsorily registrable—Whether agreement an acknowledgment.—An agreement executed by the mortgagee, after the date of the mortgage, relinquishing a certain part of the principal and all interest on the mortgage in lieu of certain services rendered by the mortgagor to the mortgagee, was a document which required registration to make it admissible in evidence, and it could not be said to be an acknowledgment of payment within the meaning of the exception contained in s. 17 (2), cl. 11 of the Registration Act. GOBARDHAN SAHI v. JADUNATH RAI, 11 A.L.J. 253=19 Ind. Cas. 449=35 A. 202.

(55)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, XX of 1866, s. 17)—Hypothecation bond for Rs. 99-15-0—Registration compulsory.—A bond which secures by the hypothecation of immoveable property the repayment, after four months from the date thereof, of a loan of Rs. 99-15-0, with interest at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, is an instrument that requires to be registered under s. 17, Act XX of 1866, as the amount thus secured, reckoned up to the date on which its payment is claimable, is manifestly in excess of Rs. 100. BABOO DHURMDEO NARAIN SINGH v. BABOO NUND LALL SINGH, 6 N.W.P. 257.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1863, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(56)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, XX of 1866, s. 17)—Mortgage for less than Rs. 100.—A bond which pledges land for sums to be hereafter advanced not exceeding Rs. 100, is an instrument of which the registration is necessary under the provisions of s. 17 of Act XX of 1866, where the sum actually advanced under it exceeds Rs. 100. J. PERRIN v. J.W. LEDLIE, 15 W.R. 364.

(57)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Deed of assignment of mortgage—Consideration.—A deed of assignment of a mortgage for over Rs. 100, for a consideration less than Rs. 100, is not compulsorily registrable. SATRA KUMAJA v. VISRAM HASGAVDA, 2 B. 97. (11 B.H.C. 149, 15 W.R. 558, F.) [Not F., 190 P.L.R. 1905=1 P.R. 1906; F., 10 C. 82=13 C.L.R. 256; R., 2 B. 353, 17 B. 235, 18 M. 454=5 M.L.J. 92; D., 8 B. 610.]

(58)—S. 17—Mortgage bond below Rs. 100—Unregistered — Lien with interest exceeding Rs. 100—Registered conveyance— Unregistered mortgage—Priority.—A mortgage bond which purports to be for Rs. 99, with interest at 2 per cent. per mensum, re-payable after 9 months and eleven days, so that the lien created by the bond amounts to at least Rs. 117, does not require registration. (15 W.R. 331, 12 C.L.R. 444, 4 C. 61, 11 B.H.C. 149, 2 B. 97, ibid. 353, 1 M. 378, 5 M. 119, F.; 3 A. 157, F.B. Disappr.) A registered conveyance is entitled to precedence over an unregistered mortgage deed, in the absence of proof that the person claiming under the registered document had notice of the mortgage deed. KARBAN ALI MIRDHA v. PETUMBARI DASI, 13 C.L.R. 256.

(59)—S. 17—Mortgage-bond under Rs. 100—Priority of later registered deed.—A mortgage bond for a sum less than Rs. 100, though it might swell to more than that amount at the time it becomes re-payable, is not compulsorily registrable. [Cons., 23 M. 105; R., 4 N.L.R. 90.] When, however, such unregistered bond is opposed by a later registered deed, the latter will have priority over the former. KORBAN ALLY MIRDHA v. SHARODA PROSHAD AICH, 10 C. 82.

(60)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 17(2)) —Hypothecation bond — Registration.—A hypothecation-bond for securing payment of Rs. 50 with interest at 9 per cent. did not mention any due date. When sued on, the money due on the bond by calculation exceeded Rs. 100. Held that this circumstance would not necessitate the registration of the bond. KHUDA BAKHSH v. KANIZAN, A.W.N. 1882, 209.

(61)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 17)—Mortgage.—A bond charging land with the payment of a principal amount of less than

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

Rs. 100, in which there is no stipulation preventing the debtor from repaying the loan within the time fixed, need not be registered. But, if registered, it is entitled to take effect against a prior unregistered bond, which is not compulsorily registrable. AHMAD BAKHSH v. GOBINDI, 2 A. 216. [F., 2 A. 688.]

(62)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 17)—Mortgage-bond.—A bond, charging immoveable property for the payment of both the principal and interest, and payable by instalments, under which the first instalment payable within three years with accumulated interest exceeds Rs. 100, creates an interest in immoveable property of the value of Rs. 100 and upwards, and must, under s. 17 of Act XX of 1866, be registered. BANNO v. PIR MUHAMMAD, 2 A. 688. (2 A. 40, F.)

(63)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1871), s. 17 (2) —Mortgage—Suit on unregistered bond charging immoveable property.—By the Full Bench, (Stuart, C.J., dissenting)—For the purposes of registration, the value of a bond charging immoveable property for the payment of a sum of money with interest within a fixed time, is to be estimated by the amount secured for certain by the hypothecation (including principal and interest). Per Stuart, C. J. contra. The value of the right in the property assigned by the bond should be the principal amount and nothing else. (2 B. 353, 1 M. 378, F.) A suit on an unregistered bond charging immoveable property which is not admissible in evidence for want of registration, must be dismissed. HIMMAT SINGH v. SEWA RAM, 3 A. 157. F.B. [Overruled, 5 A. 447, F.B.; Not F., 10 C. 82=13 C.L.R. 256; F., 3 A. 422; R., 2 N.L.R. 121.]

(64)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17, cls. (b), (h))—Instrument creating charge in nature of mortgage—Necessity for registration —Admissibility in evidence—Document admissible for certain purposes, may be inadmissible for other purposes.—A kararnama purported to have been executed in June 1885, by which A, in consideration of B's undertaking to pay off the debts due by A's father made over to B her father's house and lands for use and enjoyment, and she agreed to pass a deed of sale for the same, and transfer the khata in 1888-1889. The question was whether this kararnama was admissible in evidence without registration. It was urged in support of its admissibility that the first portion of the document only recited a fact, and created or declared no right, and that the last portion about the sale and transfer merely created a right to obtain another document, and that, therefore, it fell within the exception provided for by cl. (h) of s. 17 of the Registration Act. Held that the document required registration, and was inadmissible in evidence for want of it. The first portion of the document was not a mere recital of fact. It created as between the parties to it a charge in the nature of a mortgage. In consideration of B's undertaking, to advance a large sum which A was unable to pay herself, she made over certain property to B for use and occupation. There was no further consideration to proceed from B to A; which circumstance is an important element in ascertaining the nature of the instrument. And the mention of an intention to execute a deed of sale can make no difference, because the document did not merely create a right to demand another document. Documents which require registration and are unregistered, may be admissible in evidence for some purposes, and not admissible in evidence for other purposes. An unregistered mortgage-bond for more than 100 rupees may be admissible in evidence to prove the simple debt or a personal obligation but it is inadmissible in evidence to prove any right to the property affected by the instrument. VANI v. BANI, 20 B 553. (9 C. 520, 6 B.H.C. 134, 7 B.H.C. 1, 10 C. 315, 4 B. 591, R.) [R., 21 B. 704, U.B.R. 1904, 4th Qr., Registration, 1.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(65)—S. 17(=Registration Act, 1860, s. 17)—Registration Acts, XVI of 1864, and XX of 1866—Unregistered assignment of mortgagee, if admissible to prove personal obligation.—In a suit by the assignee of a mortgage of immoveable property to recover the amount of the debt from the mortgagor in pursuance of an express contract to pay the debt contained in the mortgage, where the mortgage was executed before the Registration Act (XVI of 1864) came into operation and the assignment was executed after Act XX of 1866 became law, held—Per Bittleston, Innes, and Collett, JJ.—As the assignment was an instrument operating to create an interest in immoveable property and as such required to be registered under s. 17 of Act XX of 1866, it was not admissible in evidence in a suit to enforce the personal obligation only. Per Scotland, C.J.—An instrument which has the two-fold operation of a simple contract or bond to pay a debt and a collateral mortgage security for the debt, is admissible in evidence for the purpose of proving the simple contract debt. ACHOO BAYAMAH v. DHANY RAM, 4 M. H.C. 378. [R., 13 M. 281, 13 M. 308; D., 7 M.H.C. 1, 15 M. 336.]

(66)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17)—Agreement to sell property to mortgagee, in writing not registered—Subsequent purchase with notice of agreement.—An agreement was made in writing between a mortgagor and mortgagee by which the former undertook to execute a sale-deed of the property to the latter. Subsequent to the agreement, plaintiff purchased the equity of redemption from the mortgagor and sued the mortgagee for redemption. The mortgagee pleaded, in answer, the agreement given to him by the mortgagor and imputed notice of the agreement to the plaintiff. The plaintiff having purchased with notice of the agreement was not entitled to redeem, and the written agreement, though not receivable in evidence (being unregistered) as creating an interest in land, might be used for the purpose of obtaining specific performance of the agreement. ADAKKALAM v. THEETHAN, 12 M. 505. [R., 14 M. 55, 5 C.P.L.R. 102, 10 C.P.L.R. 107, 29 M. 320, 1 M.L.T. 153=29 M. 336, F.B., 13 C.W.N. 326.]

(67)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Assignment of hypothecation bond—Bond originally for Rs. 50, but assigned for Rs. 176—Whether registration is necessary.—Where a hypothecation bond for Rs. 50 was assigned for Rs. 176, the interest having accumulated. Held that the assignment requires registration to operate as a transfer of the hypothecation. RAMASWAMI CHETTY v. PAVADAI SAMBAN, 7 M.L.T. 379=5 Ind. Cas. 852.

(68)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17)—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 54—Assignment of bond hypothecating crops, valid without registration.—Where the property hypothecated under a registered bond was not land but only certain crops on it, such hypothecation was one relating to moveable property. Consequently, an endorsement of the bond for the purpose of assigning it over would require no registration, either under s. 17 of the Registration Act, or under s. 54 of the Transfer of Property Act. KALKA PRASAD v. CHANDAN SINGH, 10 A. 20=A.W.N. 1887, 270. (7 A. 855, 9 W.R. 136, 2 M.H.C. 474, R.) [R., 9 C.W.N. 14.]

(69)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Assignment of charge on immoveable property.—When a charge for a sum exceeding rupees one hundred on immoveable property is assigned by deed, the document requires registration; under cl. (b) of s. 17 and the fact that the consideration for the assignment is stated in the deed as less than rupees one hundred does make the registration of the deed optional. RAM SARUP v. MUBARAK SINGH, 190 P.L.R. 1905=1 P.R. 1906. (23 C. 450, 13 A. 89, D.; 2 B. 97, 18 M. 454, Not F.; 11 B.H.C. 149, R.)

(70)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Release by mortgagee.—A release executed in writing by a mortgagee in favour of an assignee of a portion of the properties mortgaged, is inoperative unless registered, where the interest sought to be extinguished by it is of the value of Rs. 100 or upwards. IMAM ALI v. BAIJ NATH RAM SAHU, 10 C.W.N. 551=3 C.L.J. 576=33 C. 613. (2 A. 554, 2 B. 489, 16 W.R. 56, R.)

(71)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Practice—Pleadings—Ground not raised in lower Courts or in memorandum of appeal, but raised for the first time in agruments in Chief Court, disallowed.—Registration Act (III of 1877), s. 17—Record of occurrences which happened at a public meeting, in the course of which the plaintiff made certain admissions, disclaimers and promises regarding immoveable property,

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

not liable to registration—Evidence—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 20—Agreement come to under mistake of fact void—Consideration—Compromise.—A point, not raised in either of the lower Courts or in the grounds of appeal, cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in arguments in the Chief Court. A document which purports to be merely a record of occurrences, which are said to have happened at a public meeting in the course of which the plaintiff made certain admissions, disclaimers and promises, is not one purpurting to create or declare a right, and, therefore, need not be registered. (51 P.R. 1898, 48 P.R. 1905, 30 P.L.R. 1905, F.) An agreement which recites as a fact that a will was executed, while really no such will was executed, is come to under a mistake of fact common to all the parties, and, therefore, void under s. 20 of the Contract Act. A bona fide compromise of a real claim is a good consideration, whether the claim would have been successful or not. PAHU LAL v. DAVLAT RAM, 6 Ind. Cas. 651=47 P.W.R. 1910. (17 B. 457, R.)

(72)—*S.*17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Endorsement on mortgage-bond relating to specified portion of mortgaged property does not require registration.—A third party purchased a specified portion of a certain mortgaged property, and paid off a portion of the mortgage-debt. The fact of such payment together with the release of the portion purchased was endorsed on the mortgage-bond. Held, that such an endorsement did not require registration. GANGA BAKHSH v. JAGANNATH, 27 A. 305=A.W.N. 1904, 266=1 A.L.J. 693. (7 A. 820, F.)

(73)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Equitable mortgage—Agreement to mortgage.—Equitable mortgage-deeds, when creating an interest in land of the value of Rs. 100 or more, need registration; but not those that amount only to an agreement to mortgage. Such documents would be admissible in evidence as agreements to mortgage even without registration, though they must be registered for proving equitable mortgages. THE BENGAL BANKING CORPORATION v. S. A. MACKERTICH, 10 C. 315. [R., 12 M. 505, 5 C.P.L.R. 102, 20 B. 553, 10 C.P.L.R. 107, U.B.R. 1897—1901, Vol. II, 573, 574, 13 C.W.N. 326.]

(74)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 17)—Equitable mortgage—Loan and deposit of title-deeds—Promissory note with memorandum referring to deposit of title-deeds—Evidence Act, s. 91.—The deposit of title-deeds is evidence of an agreement for a mortgage, and an equitable title to a mortgage that is, the title created by the agreement is as good as legal title. The defendant deposited certain title-deeds with the plaintiff as security for the re-payment of a loan on an agreement which was not then reduced to writing. Subsequently on the same day the defendant executed a pro-note for the amount with interest with a memorandum depositing as collateral security the title-deeds by way of equitable mortgage, which was not registered as required by s. 17 of the Registration Act. Held that the equitable mortgage was created by the agreement which was evidenced by the loan and the deposit of title-deeds, and that the promissory note whether given at the same time or some hours afterwards in pursuance of the understanding between the parties, was not a writing which the parties had made, as the evidence of their contract, but only a writing which was evidence of the fact from which the contract was to be inferred, and therefore did not come under s. 17 of the Registration Act. KEDERNATH v. SAMLOLL KETTRY, 11 B.L.R. 405=20 W.R. 150. [F., 13 C. 322; R., 10 B. 634, 17 B. 235, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 178, 24 B. 615=4 C.L.J. 102 =10 C.W.N. 276=33 C. 410, 53 P.W.R. 1907; D., 1 B. 190.]

(75)—S. 17 (=Act VIII of 1871, s. 17, cl. 2)—Charge.—An instrument which creates a charge on immoveable property for the payment, in a given time, of Rs. 99 plus Rs. 6, interest for 3 months, thus making up over Rs. 100, must be registered under cl. (2), s. 17 of Act VIII of 1871. DARSHAN SINGH v. HANWANTA, 1 A. 274. [Diss., 2 B. 353, 5 M. 214, 4 C. 61; F., 2 A. 40, 2 A. 688; Cons., 3 A. 1.]

(76)—*S.*17 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 17, cl. (2)—Charge.—A bond, charging immoveable property for the payment on demand of an amount less than Rs. 100, with interest thereon, is only optionally registrable. KARAN SINGH v. RAM LAL, 2 A. 96. [F., 2 A. 216, 2 A. 688.] See also NARASAYYA CHETTY v. GURUVAPPA CHETTI, 1 M. 378=2 Ind. Jur. 168.

(77 & 78)—S. 17 (=Registration Act of 1877, s. 17 (b) and (c)—Indorsement of payment on mortgage-bonds—Registration, necessity for.—The strictest construction should be placed on these prohibitory and highly penal sections, which impose such serious disqualifications for non-observance of registration, and the Court should see that the document objected to comes within the four corners of these provisions. An instrument to come within sub-s. (b) of s. 17 must in itself purport or operate to create, declare, assign, limit, or extinguish some right, title or interest of the value of Rs. 100 or upwards in immoveable property, and to come within sub-s. (c), it must be on the face of it an acknowledgment of the receipt or payment of some consideration on account of the creation, declaration, assignment, limitation, or extinguishment of such interest as is referred to. In a suit on a mortgage the question for decision was as to the admissibility of an indorsement of payment appearing upon the mortgage bond. Held, that the indorsement did not fall within sub-ss. (b) or (c) of s. 17 of the Act, which require registration and consequently it was admissible in evidence, though not registered. JIWAN ALI BEG v. BASA MAL, 9 A. 108, F.B.=A. W.N. 1886, 310. (1 B. 197, 2 B. 489, 4 B. 590, 4 B. 126, 14 M.I.A. 129, 6 A. 335; D., 1 A. 442, R.) [R., 23 C. 450, 12 C.P.L.R. 96, 24 B. 609, 134 P.L.R. 1902, 71 P.R. 1906=111 P.L.R. 1907, 89 P.R. 1908=145 P.W.R. 1908.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(79)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 17) —Mortgage — Document acknowledging re-payment of consideration money—Registration —Evidence.—A document acknowledging the re-payment of consideration money advanced upon a mortgage need not be registered. It cannot be treated as an instrument which purports or operates to limit or extinguish any right, title or interest to or in immoveable property within the scope of cl. 2, s. 17 of Act XX of 1866. There is nothing in that Act to prevent that document from being admissible as evidence. SHEIKH GUGUNFUR ALI v. MAHOMED YASEEN, 20 W.R. 334. [R., 24 B. 609=2 Bom.L.R. 422; D., 1 B. 197.]

(80)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, cl. (h)—Letter acknowledging the payment of consideration on account of the creation of certain interest in land.—An instrument acknowledging the payment of consideration on account of the creation of an interest in immoveable property of over 100 rupees value and not coming within the exception of cl. (h), is inadmissible in evidence if it is not registered. RAMASAMI v. RAMASAMI, 5 M. 115. [R., 12 M. 505, 20 B. 553, 10 C.P.L.R. 107; D., 7 B. 310.]

(81)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 17)—Mortgage—Receipt for payment of mortgage money.—When a mortgagor makes a payment to the mortgagee on account of the mortgage-debt, such payment is one of consideration on account of the extinction of the mortgagee's right within the meaning of s. 17 of the Registration Act, 1871. Therefore, a receipt for such a payment is compulsorily registrable, and cannot be received in evidence if unregistered. IMDAD HUSAIN v. TASADDUK HUSAIN, 6 A. 335=A.W.N. 1884, 107. (1 A. 442, 2 B. 489, 1 B. 197, 7 B. 123, F.; 4 B. 235, Diss.; 4 C. 83, R.) [R., 24 B. 609, 103 P.L.R. 1905; D., 9 A. 108.]

(82)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (n)) —Receipt for payment of mortgage-money.—A receipt for part payment of the mortgage-money which does not purport to extinguish the mortgage is not compulsorily registrable. Though a receipt which purports to extinguish the mortgage is inadmissible in evidence for want of registration, the fact of payment may be proved aliunde. AMIR v. BIALA MAL, 91 P. L.R. 1904=39 P.R. 1904. (A.W.N. 1887, 188, F.)

(83)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Receipts passed by mortgagees, whether compulsorily registrable.—Receipts passed by a mortgagee for several sums, each exceeding Rs. 100, paid on account of the mortgage debt, would be admissible in evidence even though unregistered. Moneys paid towards the mortgage debt cannot be said to be the consideration for the limitation or extinction of a proportionate interest in the land created by the mortgage bond, so as to render receipts passed on such payments compulsorily registrable under cl. (b) of s. 17 of the Registration Act of 1877. SHIDLINGAPA v. CHENBASAPA, 4 B. 235. [Diss., 6 A. 335; F., 5 B. 181; R., 19 B. 36, 24 B. 609, 103 P.L.R. 1905; D., 7 B. 123.]

(84)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Receipt for payment of mortgage money—Oral evidence.—In an action to recover money due on a mortgage, where the defendants pleaded part payment and tendered in evidence an unregistered receipt for Rs. 280 which showed that the sum of Rs. 280 was paid by them on account of the mortgage debt and they also gave oral evidence in proof of the payment of Rs. 280 towards the mortgage debt, held that the receipt did not require registration (9 A. 108 F.B., Appl.); also held that, if the receipt required registration, oral evidence was admissible to prove the payment acknowledged by the receipt. NABI BAKSH v. MEWA RAM, A. W.N. 1887, 188. [R., 39 P.R. 1904=91 P.L. R. 1904.]

(85)—*S.*17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17(n)) — Receipt extinguishing interest of one only of several mortgagees, admissible without registration.—In a suit for sale under a mortgage, for the purpose of proving the re-payment of part of the mortgage-money, the defendants-mortgagors produced a receipt which purported to have been executed by one of the several mortgagees for his share of the mortgage-money. The decree of the lower appellate Court passed in favour of the plaintiffs, on the ground that the receipt was one extinguishing the mortgage and consequently was not within the protection afforded by cl. (n) of s. 17 of the Registration Act (III of 1877), was reversed, the High Court holding that the receipt, although it purported to extinguish the rights of one of the several mortgagees, did "not purport to extinguish the mortgage" itself, and was, therefore, by reason of the said cl. (n), admissible in evidence without registration. SRI RAM v. KESRI MAL, 18 A. 338=A.W.N. 1896, 92.

(86)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17 (c) & (h)—Receipt by vendee to vendor for money paid for re-purchase—Covenant to execute stamped document for re-sale—Document creating right to immoveable property.—Plaintiffs sought to recover the property in suit claiming under an admitted sale of it to them by the defendants. Defendants resisted the claim by alleging a re-purchase of the property from the plaintiffs, and, in proof of the re-purchase, produced a receipt passed by the plaintiffs for the consideration paid to them for the re-purchase by defendants. It contained also the recital that the plaintiffs had no longer any interest in the property and would execute a new sale deed on a stamp. Plaintiffs contended that, under cl. (c) of s. 17 of the Registration Act, the document required registration. The lower appellate Court had treated the receipt as an agreement falling within cl. (h) of s. 17 of the Act not in itself creating or declaring or extinguishing a right, but merely creating a right to a document, which will, when executed, create, declare, or extinguish a right, and reversed the decree passed by the first Court in favour of the plaintiffs. On second appeal, the High Court, disagreeing from the above view of the lower appellate Court, restored the first Court's decree in plaintiffs' favour. The document was one creating, or declaring, or extinguishing at once a right to immoveable property with a super-added covenant to execute a stamped document to the same effect. PARASHRAM v. GANPAT, 21 B. 533.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(87)—S. 17—Evidence—Receipt for money paid—Money due under sale of immoveable property—Admissibility without registration—Act VIII of 1871, s. 17, cl. 3.—An instrument acknowledging the receipt of consideration for the conveyance of immoveable property had to be registered under cl. 3, s. 17, Act VIII of 1871, and could not be admitted in evidence without such registration. SREENATH CHURN SOOR v. NILKANTO DEY, 22 W.R. 309.

(88)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, (c)—Receipt for profits.— S. 17, cl. (c) of the Registration Act, has no application to a receipt given by a pattidar to a lambardar as an acknowledgment for profits paid to him. BHAGWAN DAS v. ALLADEVI, A.W.N. 1883, 49.

(89)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Registration—Entry of payment in judgment-debtor's account book signed by decree-holder—"Receipts."—An entry of payment of a decree amount signed by the decree-holder in the account book kept by the judgment-debtor, is not a receipt in the terms of s. 17 of the Registration Act so as to need registration. TIKA RAM v. RAM CHAND, A.W.N. 1888, 82.

(90)—S. 17--Registration--Agreement to execute conveyance—Evidence—Specific performance.—An ekrar given to a lender by a borrower to execute a conveyance of certain landed property, is simply an agreement the registration of which is optional, even though the ekrar contains an acknowledgment by the borrower of the receipt of Rs. 100 for that purpose; such agreement may be given in evidence in a suit for the specific performance of the agreement to execute the conveyance for which it stipulates. ASGUR ALI SHIKDAR v. MOTHOORA NATH GHOSE, 15 W.R. 354.

(91)-*S.*17(=Registration Act,1877, s.17)-Agreement to convey and possession given to transferee —Conveyance by registered deed to transferee who has notice of previous agreement—Estoppel.—

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

It was agreed amongst certain successful plaintiffs, who by decree of Court had become entitled to a large estate, that a certain relative who had helped them in their suit should have a share in the property, and this agreement was carried out to the extent that this person's name was entered in the village papers as a co-sharer and he was put into possession by consent of the other co-sharers, but no conveyance of the share was executed and registered. Subsequently one of the original donors purported to sell the share so assigned to a person who had notice of the terms upon which it was held by the original donee. Held, that this sale, even though carried out by means of a registered instrument, was ineffectual as against the rights of the original donee, inasmuch as the vendor knew that, in equity, he could not have a title to convey, and the vendee also was aware that the vendor could not convey without committing a fraud on the original donee. ANNU MAL v. THE COLLECTOR OF BAREILY, A.W.N. 1906, 17=3 A.L.J. 100=28 A. 315.

(92)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (b) (c)—Registration—Sale-deed—Receipt.— Held, that a document of the following description is not a sale-deed falling within the purview of cl. (b), but does fall under cl. (c) of s. 17 of Act III of 1877 (new Act XVI of 1908) and is compulsorily registrable:—'bai karki zar-i-bai kul humm yeh chand haruf bataur rasid ke likh diye hain ke sanad ho.' RAM CHAND v. CHATAR SINGH, 57 P.W.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 645=73 P.L.R. 1910. (184 P.R. 1889, R.)

(93)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 17) —Decree for sale of mortgaged property—Assignment.—The assignment for valuable consideration, of a mortgage decree ordering the sale of the mortgaged property in default of payment, is a deed requiring registration under s. 17 of the Act. GOPAL NARAYAN v. TRIMBAK SADASHIV, 1 B. 267. [Diss., 23 C. 450; R., 13 A. 89, 17 B. 235]

(94)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)— Registration—Sale of standing timber—Immoveable property.—Held, that a document which purported a "theka" of a certain portion of a forest "for all kinds of trees" for two years was not a document conveying an interest in immoveable property and did not require to be registered. MATHURA DAS v. JADUBIR THAPA, A.W.N. 1906, 4=3 A.L.J. 138=28 A. 277. (20 M. 58, D.)

(95)—S. 17(=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)— Document creating a future right of the value of upwards of one hundred rupees in immoveable property.—Where M sold property to D by a registered sale-deed for Rs. 399 and on the same day agreed by an unregistered deed to re-transfer the property for Rs. 150 on the last day of Jeth in any year. Held, that the latter document not having been registered effect could not be given to it. SURAJ PERSHAD v. PHUL SINGH, A.W.N. 1906, 180.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(96)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Sale in lieu of dower—Value of property.— S. 17 of the Registration Act being a disabling section must be construed strictly. Unless a document clearly purports, on the face of it, to affect an interest of greater value than Rs. 100, it lies upon the party affirming the value to exceed Rs. 100 to prove the fact affirmatively. A deed of sale by a husband in favor of his wife in lieu of dower requires registration when the interest affected by the document exceeds Rs. 100. It cannot be treated as mere gift. MUSSAMMAT BHAGAN v. HARI MAL, 90 P.L. R. 1904. (4 M. 115, 5 A. 65, 7 A. 178, 87 P. R. 1882, R.)

(97)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 17) -Sale—Advance - Document evidencing Advance —Charge.—Where, on a sale being decided upon, the vendee advances more than Rs. 100 to the vendor as a portion of the consideration for the sale, and a document is drawn up evidencing an intention to hold the property agreed to be sold as a charge for the money so advanced, such document requires registration. JOY RAM GOSSAIN BHUTTACHARJEE v. KALEE NARAIN ROY, 20 W.R. 291.

(98)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1864, s. 13) —Unregistered sale-deed—Suit based on.—A suit for possession brought merely on the basis of an unregistered sale-deed and of the title alleged to be thereby conveyed must necessarily fail for want of proof of any right or title to obtain possession, as such deed is inadmissible as evidence under s. 13, Act XVI of 1864. RAJAH KRISHAN KISHORE CHAND v. MAHOMED ZUKAH-OLL-LAH, Agra F.B. 148=Ed. 1874, 111. [F., 15 W.R. 51.]

(99)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Mortgage-decree for Rs. 100 or upwards—Sale by unregistered deed—Validity—Civ. Pro. Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 232 and 559—Preferring a second appeal against parties against whom there was no appeal—Application to make parties to appeal after expiry of time.—A mortgage-decree for Rs. 100 or more is assignable without registration (23 C. 450, 6 C.W.N. 5, F.; 9 C. 839, Cons.) The validity of an assignment of a decree cannot be questioned after the assignee has been placed on the record as substituted decree-holder. A respondent should not be placed on the record under s. 559 of the Civ. Pro. Code, after the time for appealing against him has expired. In a second appeal no decree can be passed against a respondent against whom there was no first appeal. RAM RATAN CHUCKERBUTTY v. JOGESH CHANDRA BHATTACHARYA, 12 C.W.N. 625.

(100)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 17) -Deed of surrender.—A deed of surrender of lands of which the party executing it is in possession, is a deed that comes under the provision of cl. 2, s. 17 of Act XX of 1866 The deed is meant to extinguish the interest of the party in the immoveable property, and acknowledge the extinction of his right to such property. BHYRUB CHUNDER DASS v. KALEE CHUNDER CHUCKERBUTTY, 16 W.R. 56. [R., 33 C. 613=10 C.W.N. 551=3 C.L.J. 576.]

(101)—S. 17 — Easement — Light and air —Document purporting to prevent acquisition of easement — Document relating to immoveable property — Registration not compulsory.—A document which limits or extinguishes the chance of acquiring an easement of light and air does not require registration; because a chance of acquiring right to light and air is not immoveable property within the meaning of the Registration Act III of 1877, nor can any pecuniary value be put upon it. SULTAN NAWAZ JUNG v. RUSTOMJI NANABHOY, 20 B. 704. [Affirm., 24 B. 156, P.C.; R., 3 N.L.R. 114, 3 S.L R. 30=1 Ind. Cas. 958.]

(102)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Registration—Compromise of suit embodied in a decree.—In a suit for possession of certain plots of land reference was made, as part of the evidence in the case, to a compromise in a previous suit relating to other lands, but which dealt also with the lands in suit and had been incorporated into the decree of the Court in the previous suit. Held, that such compromise did not require registration and was admissible in evidence. RAGHUBANS MANI SINGH v. MAHABIR SINGH, A.W.N. 1905, 195=2 A.L J. 564=28 A. 78. (20 A. 171, 22 M. 508, R.; 1 C.L.J. 388, Cons.)

(103)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Petition of compromise—Necessity for registration thereof so far as it relates to properties not the subject of litigation.—The provisions of s. 17 of the above Act do not apply to proper judicial proceedings, whether consisting of pleadings filed by the parties or orders made by the Court. A petition of compromise, so far as it relates to properties in dispute, does not require registration, for, such portion of the compromise, becomes merged in the decree passed by the Court, which does not require registration. In so far, however, as the petition gives effect to the settlement touching properties extraneous to the litigation, the decree passed in the suit not being operative, the petition of compromise must be registered, if it affects immoveable property exceeding one hundred rupees in value. BIRBHADRA RATH v. KALPATARU PANDA, 1 C. L.J. 388. (30 C. 783, 26 I.A. 101, R.; 20 A. 171, 25 I.A. 9, D.) [R., 5 C.L.J. 611=36 C. 193, 35 C. 1010=12 C.W.N. 854=8 C.L.J. 90.]

(104)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (d) —Petition of compromise containing a recital of a previous oral agreement for lease — Stamp — Registration —Evidence.—Where a petition of compromise merely contained a recital of a previous oral agreement for lease: Held, that it did not require registration or stamp. It was evidence of an oral agreement, but not an agreement in itself. PITAMBER GAIN v. UDDHAB MONDAL, 12 C.W.N. 59.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(105)—S. 17(=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Compromise—Petition in suit affecting immoveable property, necessity for registration of—Admissibility in evidence when unregistered.—A razinamah stamped with eight-anna Court-fees stamp and presented to a Court in a suit relating to immoveable property of over Rs. 100 in value setting forth the names of the parties and the nature of the suit and containing a prayer to dismiss the suit in accordance with its terms is not a document requiring to be registered under s. 17 of the Act (76 P.R. 1897, 25 M. 553, D.) Whether such document actually contains the contract between the parties to it, or whether the agreement was actually made prior to the writing of the document, the latter being merely a memorandum of the oral contract and intended solely as a petition to the Court with a view to its taking action in accordance with the arrangements made out of Courts (95 P.R. 1894, 98 P.R. 1902, F.) neither creates nor declares any rights so as to be compulsorily registrable under the section. Moreover, the razinamah, in so far as it was submitted to and was acted upon judicially, by the learned Judges, was in iself a step of judicial procedure not requiring registration. KHAIRUL-NISA v. BHADUR ALI. 27 P.R. 1906 =11 P.L.R. 1906. (22 M. 508, F.; 30 C. 783, D.)

(105-a)— S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Compromise decree—Covenant to pay annuity—Recital that covenantor was owner of immoveable property—Property made security for annuity—Agreement to relinquish ownership in default of payment of annuity—Claim for annuity — Possession — absence of registration—How far document enforceable. — A covenant in an unregistered deed, whereby the covenantor, after acknowledging his ownership of the immoveable property under a prior conveyance, agrees to pay a certain annuity to another, and, in the event of default, to relinquish his ownership in the property, can be enforced for payment of the annuity, and for specific performance of the agreement to relinquish, but the document being unregistered, no suit can be maintained on it for possession. KARNAM PARTHASARATHY v. KARNAM BARATHAMMA, 16 Ind. Cas. 881.

(106)—S. 17 — Partition-deed — Registration—Stamp.—Held, that a solehnamah filed in a case was in effect a partition-deed and did not require registration or stamp. NEM ROY v. LALMUN ROY, 25 W.R. 376.

(107)—S. 17 (=Act XX of 1866, s. 17)—Agreement relating to a family arrangement.—In the case of a document drawn up mainly for the purpose of setting a widow's maintenance, though creating or declaring some right in immoveable property, held that, for the purposes of registration under Act XX of 1866, the actual value of the whole of the immoveable property proved to exceed Rs. 100, must not, when there was no evidence to show that the value of the widow's right exceeded that sum be taken to be the value of the right created or declared. NILAVA kom RACHAPPA v. RUDRAPA bin RACHAPA, 12 B.H.C. 141. [D., 24 B. 615.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(108)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Compromise—Muhammadan Law — Family arrangement.—Held, that a family arrangement in consideration of a cancellation of a tamilknama, which provided that J. S. should get the estate with which he had already parted subject to certain conditions during his life and with remainder to certain other persons on his death, was valid under Muhammadan Law. Held, also, that a petition containing the above arrangement filed in a suit did not require registration under s. 17, Registration Act, 1877. MUSSAMMAT NURAI BIBI v. GHULAM HASSAN SHAH, 20 P.L.R. 1901.

(109)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1887), s. 17 cl. (i)—Award—Instrument of partition.—An award is exempt from registration, under cl. (i) of s. 17 of the Act, and is not rendered compulsorily registrable, by reason of the fact that it is chargeable with stamp duty as an instrument of partition, under art. 45 of the second schedule of the Stamp Act, 1899. Where the award stated that, out of the entire land of the parties, certain shares were allotted to them by the arbitrators, and the rent due by the tenants was divided in certain other shares, and the award was signed by the arbitrators and also by the parties, to signify their consent to the arbitration and its result, held, that the award was not compulsorily registrable. GULAB SINGH v. MOHAR SINGH, 160 P.L.R. 1906. (9 B. 50, R.)

(110)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Award signed by the parties—Partition deed.—Held, that the award, which was signed by the parties to signify their acceptance of the award, should have been stamped as a Partition deed, and its registration was compulsory under s. 17, Indian Registration Act. RATTAN CHAND v. GHASITA MAL, P.L.R. 1900, p. 459. (9 B. 50, F.)

(111)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, cls. (b) and (1)—Agreement to partition—Award creating or declaring title to immoveable property —Whether compulsorily registrable.—Neither an agreement to effect a partition, nor an award of arbitrators, though creating or declaring title to immoveable property, is compulsorily registrable. TARAKANTA GHOSE v. RAI KISHORI GHOSE, 6 Ind. Cas. 361.

(112)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (b) —Registration—Partition deed—Document relating to both moveable and immoveable properties.—An unregistered instrument of partition relating to both moveable and immoveable properties of the value of one hundred rupees and upwards is inadmissible in evidence for want of registration, and the Court is not at liberty to refer to such portions of it as relate to moveable property. BUA DITTA v. MUSSAMMAT GANGA DEVI, 119 P.L.R. 1906=P.W.R. 1906, p. 10.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(113)—S. 17—Partition deed on a divorce.—An instrument whereby a husband and wife on divorce agree to a partition of their assets and debts, and which without any specific mention of immoveable property actually operates to give one or other of the parties an interest of the value of over Rs. 100 in immoveable property forming part of such assets, requires to be registered under s. 17, Registration Act, and if unregistered cannot affect the immoveable property or be received as evidence of any transaction affecting it. MAUNG SHWE BWIN v. MA SON, L.B.R. 1872—1892, 655.

(114)—S. 17 (= Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17 (b),(h)).—Though it contains a clause contemplating the execution of a further deed, a deed of partition between a mother and her son, of moveable and immoveable property above the value of Rs. 100, if not registered, is not admissible in evidence even to prove title to the moveable property. LAKSHMAMMA v. KAMESWARA, 13 M. 281. [R., 24 B. 615, 119 P.L.R. 1906 ; D., 15 M. 336.]

(115)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Unregistered deed of partition, evidentiary value of suit based on unregistered document inadmissible in evidence, effect of admission of defendants.—It is no doubt the policy of the Legislature that all documents affecting immoveable property should be registered. Documents, to be admitted in evidence of any transaction affecting immoveable properties, require registration. An unregistered deed of partition is not admissible in evidence to prove the transaction in so far as it affects the immoveable properties divided among the parties, but it is admissible to prove that the co-parceners therein referred to have become divided members. Such document is also admissible to prove the arrangement come to regarding moveables (15 M. 336, F.) The admissions of the defendants do not make an unregistered document admissible as evidence in so far as the immoveable property is concerned, nor can secondary evidence be given of its contents, but yet a decree may be given on the admission of the defendants. S. A. SUBRAMANIA IYER v. SAVITRI AMMAL, 4 M.L.T. 354=19 M.L.J. 228. (3 M.H.C. 342, R.) [D., 3 Ind. Cas. 247.]

(116)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Partition of immoveable property already completed—Record in bahis of partition what it constitutes—Registration of bahi not necessary —Admissible in evidence without registration.—Held, that a record, in the bahis of entries containing the details of a partition of immoveable property exceeding the value of Rs. 100 already completed by the parties, does not constitute a deed of partition and consequently, does not require registration. Such entries form merely a memorandum of the transaction already completed and cannot be excluded from evidence for want of registration. GANGOD GIR v. SHAM GIR, 33 P.L.R. 1905 =48 P.R. 1905. [Cons. & D., 71 P.R. 1906=111 P.L.R. 1907.]

(117)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, cl. (b) —Deed providing mode of partition of immoveable property of the value of Rs. 100 to be acquired in future—Explanation of cl. (b) of s. 17 of Act III of 1877—"Vested" and "contingent" defined—Transfer of Property Act, IV of 1882, ss. 19 and 21—Agreement inadmissible—Oral evidence barred—S. 91, Indian Evidence Act.—Held, that, in s. 17 (b) of Act III of 1877, the clause, "whether in present or in future" belongs to the bunch of infinitives preceding it and not to the nouns "right, title or interest," consequently the "right, title or interest," whether vested or contingent must be a present and not a future, right, title or interest. Held, also, that a deed prescribing the mode of partition of certain immoveable property of the value of Rs. 100 or more, to be acquired in future by the parties thereto, does not fall under cl. (b) of s 17 of Act III of 1877. Held further, that the definition of "vested and contingent" given respectively in ss. 19 and 21 of Act IV of 1882, are applicable to these terms used in s. 17 (b) of Act III of 1877. Where an agreement is inadmissible, oral evidence is barred. BHAN SINGH v. THAKAR DAS, 89 P.R. 1908=145 P.W.R. 1908. (16 P.R. 1895, 82 P.R. 1884, 150 P.R. 1889, 30 B. 304, 30 C. 1016, R.)

(118)—S. 17—Registration—Relinquishment by widow of her life-estate of the value of Rs. 100 in favour of her deceased husband's reversioners.—A deed executed by a widow, in favour of her husband's reversioners, relinquishing her life-estate of the value of Rs. 100 or more in immoveable property left by him, requires registration under s. 17 of Act XVI of 1908. SHAHAB DIN v. MUSSAMMAT PANNAH BIBI, 97 P.W.R. 1912=14 Ind. Cas. 749= 92 P.R. 1912. (12 B.H.C. 141, 7 M.H.C. 228, 3 M. 184, D.)

(119)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17, cl. (d))—Partnership agreement—Clause entitling partner to redeem mortgage of immoveable property—Admissibility of agreement without registration—Declaration of right of partner—Necessity for execution of further instrument.—A partnership agreement containing a clause entitling one of the partners to redeem certain mortgaged property belonging to the partnership has to be compulsorily registered under s. 17, cl. (d) of the Registration Act, inasmuch as the right created in favor of one of the partners is a right in immoveable property. If unregistered, the agreement is not admissible in evidence. Where the agreement is registered a declaration by the Court of the right of the partner as expressed therein is sufficient, and it is not necessary for the Court to make an order directing the execution of any further instrument. MAUNG PO HTI v. MAHOMED CASSIM, 13 M.L.J. 329, P.C.=30 C. 1016=30 I.A. 230=7 C.W.N 861=5 Bom. L.R. 975=8 Sar. 551. [R., 89 P.R. 1908=145 P.W.R. 1908.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(120)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 17, —Agreement for lease—Registration.—An agreement for a lease does not require registration. It does not come under s. 17 of the Registration Act, as it only leads up to a lease. BHAIRABNATH KHETTRI v. KISHORI MOHAN SHAW, 3 B.L.R. App. 1. (7 W.R. Civ. Rul. 280, F.) [R., 7 B.H.C. 45.]

(121)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Lease or agreement to lease, what is not.—Where a certain document was merely a provision for certain payments to the landlords by way of consideration in addition to those already agreed on, and that in the case of arrears certain interest should be payable, held, on a construction of the document, that it did not amount to a "lease or agreement to lease" so as to be inadmissible in evidence without registration. KADERNATH MITTER v. SURENDRO DEB ROY, 9 C. 865=13 C.L.R. 58.

(122)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17,) —Dowl—Lease or agreement to lease—Varying rent—Registration.—In considering whether a dowl is compulsorily registrable or not, the question to be decided is whether it embodies a special agreement between the parties. If it does, it requires registration, if it does not, registration is not needed. (3 C. 322, 7 C. 703, 7 C. 717, Cons.; 24 C. 20, 22 M. 217, F.; 5 C. 864, Cons. & Appl.) Where, as in this case, the dowl (a memorandum showing the rents payable by the tenants, bearing their signature) merely evidences that there has been a commutation of rent, that the rent which was previously payable partly in kind and partly in cash would henceforth be paid in cash, it is not an instrument relating to an interest in immoveable property and does not require registration. HARA PRASAD DAS v. RAM NARAIN CHOWDHURY, 11 C.L.J. 22=2 Ind. Cas. 89.

(123)—S. 17 (=s. 13, Act XVI of 1864)—Dowl or amuldaree—Registration—Oral evidence, admissibility of.—Neither of the documents, dowl and amuldaree, which are merely preliminaries to a lease, requires registration under s. 13, Act XVI of 1864. If a party chooses to trust to the uncertainty of oral evidence to support his claim for rent, no written lease having been executed, there is no reason why that evidence if credible and sufficient of itself to prove the existence of an agreement between the parties, should not be admitted by the Judge and enable him to give the plaintiff a decree upon his claim. GOLUCK KISHORE ACHARJEE CHOWDHRY v. NUND MOHUN DEY SIRCAR, 12 W.R. 394. [F., 17 W.R. 509.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871 XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(124)—S. 17 (=Registration Act of 1871, s. 17)—Evidence, admissibility of—Doul Fehrist —A doul fehrist containing a list of the holdings and rates of rent of the ryots with their signatures, and specifying that these holdings were to continue for seven years, does not constitute a contract to cultivate for that period, and is admissible in evidence without being registered. KARTICKNATH PANDAY v. KHAKUN SINGH, 1 C.L.R. 328.

(125)—S. 17—Doul Darkhast—Lease and agreement to lease—Registration—Contract in writing.—A Doul Darkhast amounting to nothing more than a proposal to pay a certain rent for land is no lease or agreement for a lease and so does not need registration. But the same proposal, if so accepted that both the proposal and the acceptance constitute a contract in writing, would require registration. LALL JHA v. NEGROO, 7 C. 717. (14 W. R. 178, 17 W.R. 508, Diss.)

(126 & 127) — S. 17 — Dowl-darkhast—Registration.—A dowl darkhast is only a preliminary to a lease and, as such, does not require registration. BIBEE MEHEROONNISSA v. ABDOOL GUNEE, 17 W.R. 509. [Cons., 7 C. 717; R., 7 C. 703, F.B.]

(128)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —rent-note.—A Rent-note providing that the tenants may hold the lands as long as they continue to pay rent or perform the service, is a lease of immoveable property which must be registered under s. 17, Indian Registration Act, 1877. PAGI MANIA v. DESAI LALLUBHAI, 2 Bom. L.R. 488.

(129)—S. 17—Rent-note by lessee—Undertaking to hold at lessor's option—Reservation of annual rents—Registration, if compulory.—The rent-note executed by the defendant to the plaintiff in this case ran as follows:—"I have this day hired from you two houses. . . . . Rs. 18 have been agreed to be paid to you as rent thereof per one year. I am to live therein so long as you allow me to do so." The note was construed as creating only a tenancy-at-will and not a tenancy from year to year. Consequently, although an annual rent was reserved by the instrument, it was not one requiring to be registered as under s. 17, cl. (d), of the Registration Act. JIVRAJ GOPAL v. ATMARAM DAYARAM, 14 B. 319. [R., 9 C.P. L.R. 57; D., 19 B. 150, 9 C.P.L.R. 88.]

(130)—*S.*17 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17), cls. (d) and (h) — Lease— Document creating right to obtain other document.—A document by which no immediate interest is created—there is no present demise—and which is merely an agreement to create a lease on a future day, the terms of which are to be defined by documents to be executed afterwards, is not a lease, and does not fall under cl. (d) of s 17, Registration Act, but is a document creating right to obtain another document within cl. (h) of s. 17, and is not compulsorily registrable. PANCHANAN BASU v. CHANDI CHARAN MISRA, 6 Ind. Cas. 443.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(131)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, cl. (d), proviso)—Lease — Non-reservation of annual rent—Lease for a term less than five years—Registration, whether necessary.—The proviso to cl. (d) of the s. 17 of the Registration Act requires two conditions for exemption from registration. One of them is that the term does not exceed five years. The other is that the annual rent reserved does not exceed Rs. 50. This latter condition does not mean that there should be an annual rent reserved and that it should not also exceed Rs. 50. It only means that, if an annual rent is reserved, it should not exceed Rs. 50. (4 M. 38, 24 M. 421, 27 M. 43, R.) Quære:—Whether, in a lease where the term is for a period less than five years, and one consolidated rent, say, a thousand rupees, can it be said that, because there is no annual rent, the annual rent reserved does not exceed Rs. 50. A. VENKATASAWMY CHETTY v. SUPPA PILLAI, 6 Ind. Cas. 382=8 M.L.T. 103.

(132)—S. 17 (=s. 17, Act III of 1877)—Lease not exceeding five years—Meaning of—Muchalika—Executed to remain in force till fresh one was executed—Exemption from registration.—The language of the proviso, "the terms granted by which do not exceed five years" in s. 17, Registration Act, means "the terms granted by which are not for a definite period exceeding five years." [F., 17 C. 548, 9 C.P.L.R. 88, 24 M. 421.] A muchalika executed for a fasli, on condition that it should be in force till a fresh one was executed, is a lease, and hence exempted from Registration, if the rent reserved is less than Rs. 50, by virtue of Government notification under s. 17 of the Registration Act. VIRAMMAL v. K. RUNGAYYANGAR, 4 M. 381.

(133)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, proviso)—Meaning of the proviso—Exemption of leases for a term and reserving an annual rent.—The meaning of the proviso to s. 17 of the Indian Registration Act, exempting from the operation of the section leases for a term and reserving an annual rent, is that the exemption extends to leases whose term does not exceed five years and the annual rent Rs. 50, so that unless the lease reserves an annual rent the proviso will not apply to it. VENKATASAWMY CHETTI v. SUPPA PILLAI, 4 Ind. Cas. 303=7 M.L.T. 30=33 M. 216.

(134)—S. 17 (=Act XX of 1866, s. 17)—Zuri-peshgi lease—"Leases of immoveable property for any term exceeding one year."—A zuri-peshgi lease granted on the advance of a loan for one year, but with a stipulation that it should continue in force, if the loan were not repaid within the period, was held to be a lease coming under "leases of immoveable property for any term exceeding one year" in s. 17 (4) of the Registration Act of 1866, so that registration was compulsory. The leases which were intended to be excluded foom the 4th clause are leases, the term of which was one year certain. BHOBANI MAHTO v. SHIBNATH PARA, 13 C. 113. [Diss., 17 C. 548; R., 9 C. P.L.R. 88.]

(135)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Lease for life of lessee—Construction—Registration.—A lease for the life of the lessee is a lease for a term exceeding one year, as it entitled the lessee to hold for more than that period if he live so long. It is not a lease terminable at the end of a year or at the option of the lessor. It, therefore, requires registration under s. 17 (d) of Act III of 1877. PARSHOTAM VISHNU v. NANA PRAYAG, 18 B. 109.

(136)—S. 17—Act XVI of 1864—Kabuliat—Registration.—A kabuliat executed whilst Act XVI of 1864 was in force need not be registered. HUR CHUNDER GHOSE v. WOOMA SOONDUREE DOSSEE, 23 W.R. 170.

(137)—S. 17—Kabuliat for specific year—Registration—Act XX of 1866.—A kabuliat by a ryot holding under a patta for a specified year, with an agreement between the parties that a fresh settlement should be made at the close of the period, not being a lease for more than a year, but only a lease for one year, does not require registration under Act XX of 1866, although the kabuliat contains a clause to the effect that year by year the ryot should pay rent at a specified rate. JUGDESH CHUNDER BISWAS v. ABEDOLLAH MUNDUL, 14 W.R. 68. [R., 26 W.R. 98.]

(138)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 17 (4))—Kabuliat—Lease for one year—Ejectment on certain conditions within a year—Lease for over a year Registration Act (III of 1877), s. 17 (1)—Change in law—Effect on aamissibility.—In a kabuliat executed in 1871, the executant stated that he had taken a house from the owner on a yearly rental of Rs. 3. No term was fixed, but there was a further stipulation that, if called upon, he would yield such services to the zamindar as the latter might require, and in the event of a breach of any one of the above conditions he would be liable to ejectment. Held, that, inasmuch as the lessee was liable to be ejected at any time within the period of one year from the execution of the kabuliat, the lease was not one for a term exceeding one year and its registration was therefore not compulsory under s. 17 (4) of the Registration Act, 1866. Held, further that a document which did not require registration under Act XX of 1866, was not inadmissible evidence by reason of the proviso to the Registration Act, 1877. INTIZAM FATIMA v. ALI BAKSH, 8 A.L.J. 609. (18 B. 92, 9 C. 68, F.)

Registratration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(139)—S. 17—Bombay Survey Act I of 1865, s. 36—Purchaser—Registration—Tender—Collector's refusal to accept rent tendered by defaulter's mortgagee.—The purchaser at a revenue sale, held in default of the payment of assessment, takes free of all incumbrances, although the revenue authorities, without otherwise depriving the defaulter of his right of occupancy, under s. 36 of the Bombay Survey Act I of 1865, have only sold his right, title, and interest. What operates to create the property recognised as a right of occupancy is the entry of the occupant's name in the Collector's books. A mere memorandum, therefore, declaring a person to be the successful bidder at the sale is not an instrument creating or declaring as interest in immoveable property, and requiring registration under s. 18, Act XX of 1866. The Collector may be responsible to the mortgagee of a revenue defaulter for refusing to accept the tender made by him of the Government rent, but if he does refuse it and the land is sold, the title of the purchaser is unimpeachable. GHELABHAI BHIKARIDAS v. PRANJIVAN ICHHARAM, 11 B.H.C. 218. [F., 5 B. 73; R., 1 B. 577.]

(140)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Relinquishment of tenant right for consideration.—Though a document relinquishing a holding, irrespective of the wishes of the landlord, under s. 12 of the Rent Recovery Act (Madras Act VIII of 1865) does not require registration, yet an instrument, whereby a tenant relinquishes his right to a holding in consideration of the landlord giving up his claim to arrears of rent, falls within s. 17 of the Registration Act and requires registration. The case is not altered by the fact that the landlord did not signify his consent to give up his claim before the instrument was given to him. RANGAYYA APPA RAU v. KAMESWARA RAU, 20 M. 367=7 M.L.J. 59. [R., 14 C.P.L.R. 29.]

(141)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Endorsement of Devasthanam manager on darkhast application—Agreement to lease—Criterion for registration.—Where an application for some waste land on darkhast is made to a Devasthanam to which the land belongs, and the Devasthanam manager sanctions the grant by endorsement on the application, communicated to the applicant, the endorsement of the manager must be taken to be an agreement to lease and, therefore, to be subject to the provisions of the Registration Act as if it were a lease. Where the grant does not in terms purport to be for a period exceeding five years, and the rent reserved by it does not exceed Rs. 50 per annum, it need not be registered, as it is exempted from registration by the notification of Government published under that section. Though a lease may, by custom, entitle the grantee to hold permanently, it does not in any way affect the question of registration, for, the criterion for registration is what is expressed on the face of the document. RAMASWAMY AYYAR v. THIRUPATHI NAIK, 27 M. 43. [Appl., 4 M.L.T. 79.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(142)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Instrument extinguishing tenant rights—Necessity for registration of.—S. 17 of the Act requires the registration of an instrument extinguishing tenant rights in consideration of a sum of Rs. 100 and upwards. TRILOCHAN GAONTIA v. LACHMAN PADHAN, 14 C.P.L.R. 29.

(143)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Recognition as mokuraridar.—Where a document recognises a person as purchaser of a certain mokurari right and also creates a perpetual mokurari right in his favour, it ought to be registered. AGIN BINDH UPADHYA v. MOHAN BIKRAM SHAH, 30 C. 20=7 C.W.N. 314.

(144)—S. 17—*Contract to execute pottah at a given rent—Default—*Baeenanamah treated as pottah compulsorily registrable.—Plaintiffs sued the four defendants, who were brothers, and one of whom was her husband, alleging that they had failed to carry out their contract to execute a mourousee pottah of the suit lands to her. The agreement was stated to be that, on defendants failing to perform their contract the baeenanamah was itself to be considered as a mourousee pottah, and she accordingly instituted this suit for possession of the lands. The Principal Sudder Ameen, holding that the document on which the plaintiff based her case was not such a document as under the Registration law was inadmissible in evidence unless registered, refused to give the defendants (the intervenors) whose lease from the plaintiff's lessors was admittedly registered, any preference as against the deed of the plaintiff under the provisions of s. 50 of Act XX of 1866. Held that the lower Court was wrong in law. The deed under which the plaintiff sued was nothing more or less than a pottah and the plaintiff had asked for possession only on treating it as such. Under cl. 2, s. 17 of Act XX of 1866, the document, being an instrument creating right in immoveable property, the registration of the same was compulsory and not optional. The defendant's pottah was admittedly registered and was entitled to preference over the unregistered document of the plaintiff, both documents relating to the same property. NUND RAM GHOSE v. MAUNOO BIBEE, 10 W.R. 177.

(145)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Permanent lease by occupancy raiyat—Registration contrary to Bengal Tenancy Act VIII of 1885—Effect of registration.—If any document be registered contrary to an express provision of law, the registration is void and the document must be regarded as unregistered. (26 C. 46, 29 C.148, Rel. on.) No sub-lease by an occupancy tenant purporting to create a term exceeding 9 years may be admitted to registration since the passing of the Bengal Tenancy

Registration Act (XXI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

Act. Without registration, a permanent lease is invalid under the Indian Registration Act. Therefore, a permanent lease registered contrary to the provisions of s. 85, cl. (2), is wholly void. FAZEL SHEIKH v. KERAMUDDI SHEIKH, 6 C.W.N. 916. [R., 8 C.W.N. 136.]

(146)—S. 17—Registration—Lease.—Where a lease is for only one year, with option to the lessor to allow the lessee to continue his tenure on the old conditions after expiration of the year: Held that the absolute right of the lessee is restricted to one; and that the lease is therefore a one year lease, the registration of which is not necessary. MOHUNTO SOUTHO PURSAD DASS v. PARASU PADHAN, 26 W.R. 98.

(147)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Document—Allotment of lands.—A document, which after reciting the allotment of lands, contains an agreement to act accordingly, is compulsorily registrable under s. 17 of the Registration Act, 1877. RAMACHANDRA v. DINKAR, 2 Bom. L.R. 800.

(148)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Deed of assignment of arrears of profits due by lambardar to co-sharer—Necessity for registration of—S. 54, Transfer of Property Act—Misjoinder of parties.—An assignee from a co-sharer of arrears of profits due to the latter by a lambardar, brought a suit to recover the arrears due. The heirs of the lambardar, who lived at the date of assignment, the present lambardar and the assignor were impleaded as parties to the suit. It was contended that the suit was bad for misjoinder of parties and that the deed of assignment conferred no title on the plaintiff, since it was not registered. Held, that there was no misjoinder of parties inasmuch as the present lambardar would be liable only to the extent of the profits collected by him and, under s. 28, Civ. Pro. Code, the parties were rightly impleaded in the suit. Held, also, that the deed of assignment did not require registration either under s. 17 of the Registration Act or s. 54 of the Transfer of Property Act, as the arrear was in reality a debt due to the plaintiff's vendors by the lambardar. DAMODAR DAS v. GIRDHARI DAS, A.W.N. 1905, 100=27 A. 564=2 A.L.J. 692.

(149)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Deed of gift—Voluntary registration by legal representative of donor, effect of the.—The voluntary registration of a deed of gift by the legal representative of the donor has the same effect, as its voluntary registration by the donor himself in his life-time MEIYYALU NADAN v. ANJALAY, 25 M. 672=12 M.L.J. 409. [R., 13 M.L.J. 303.]

(150)—S. 17—Act XVI of 1864, ss. 13, 17—Unregistered hibbanamah executed prior to Act, admissible in evidence.—This suit hinged upon a hibbanamah. It was admitted that it was executed before the 1st of January 1865, when

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

Act X of 1864 came into operation. The Principal Sudder Ameen refused to admit the hibbanamah as evidence because it was not registered. But it was held that the document was admissible because s. 13 applies to deeds executed on or after 1st January 1865, and not to deeds executed before that date. S. 17 contains no penalty for non-registration such as is contained in s. 13. RAMA SOONDUREE DOSSIA v. MADHUB CHUNDER GOOHOO, 8 W.R. 269.

(151)—S. 17 (=Act XVI of 1864, s. 13)—Compulsory registration—Amuldustakas—Contract —Breach—Damages.—It is impossible that the legislature could have intended s. 13 of Act XVI of 1864 to apply to deeds which are merely preliminary to the main contract or engagement, as the amuldustak is, or that deeds which are steps in, or mere parts of a transaction, should be registered before they can be used as evidence. [F., 12 W.R. 394, 3 B.L.R. App. 1; Appr., 17 W.R. 509, 12 B.H.C. 175; R., 7 B.H.C. 45.] In the absence of any suggestion to the contrary, a lessee who is in possession of certain property under a duly registered lease-deed must be taken to be bona fide; and he cannot be ousted by a person who is granted a lease subsequently. The latter's remedy is against the grantors only for damages for breach of contract. BUNWAREE LAL v. SUNGUM LAL, 7 W.R. 230.

(152)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Judicial proceedings.—The provisions of s. 17 of the Registration Act (III of 1877) do not apply to proper judicial proceedings filed by the parties, whether consisting of pleadings or of orders made by the Court. BINDESRI NAIK v. GENGA SARUM SAHU, 20 A. 171, P.C.=25 I.A. 9=2 C.W.N. 129=7 Sar. 273 [R., 4 O.C. 78, 28 A. 78=A.W.N. 1905, 195=2 A.L.J. 564, 36 C. 193=5 C.L.J. 611, 35 C. 837=12 C.W.N. 849=7 C.L.J. 492, 31 M. 330=18 M.L.J. 1, Note=3 M.L.T. 377, 6 M.L.T. 313=3 Ind. Cas. 701; D., 1 C.L.J. 388.]

(153 & 154)—S. 17—Certificate of sale—Property of more than Rs. 100 in value—Admissibility of unregistered certificate--Burden of proof —Allegation in plaint not traversed—Shifting of burden.—A certificate of sale granted by a Court in respect of property of more than Rs. 100 in value, should be registered, and is otherwise inadmissible in evidence to prove the sale. [R., 10 B.H.C 435, 12 B.H.C. 241, 7 C.L.R. 115, 13 M. 308.] The mere fact that an allegation in a plaint is not traversed by the defendant, does not relieve the plaintiff of the onus of proving his case. MULJI BECHAR v. ARUPRAM BECHAR, 7 B.H.C. A. C. 136.

(155)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Sale-certificates, registration of.—Sale-certificates granted under s. 259 of Act VIII of 1859 (Civ. Pro. Code) are not compulsorily registrabl under s. 17 of the Registration Act. PROKASH CHUNDER DASS v. TARACHAND DASS, 8 C. 82, F.B. = 12 C.L.R. 1.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(156)—S. 17 (=s. 17 (b) of 1877)—Sale certificate—Civ.Pro. Code, s. 316.—A certificate of sale, granted under s. 316 of the Civ. Pro. Code, does not require registration as provided by s. 17 of the Registration Act, for it is not an instrument of the kind mentioned in cl. (b) of that section. MASARAT-UN-NISSA v. ADIT RAM, 5 A. 568, F.B. = A.W.N. 1883, 159. [R., 142 P.R. 1908, F.B.]

(157)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (o)—Sale certificate granted by Collector—Sale of "B. class" lands—Transfer of title—Registration.—Sale certificates granted by the Collector in accordance with the rules issued by the Board of Revenue after the sale of "B. class" or surplus lands acquired by Government under the Land Acquisition Act, are sufficient in themselves to transfer the title from the Government to the transferee, and s. 17, cl. (o) of the Registration Act is authority for the proposition that such certificates are sufficient to validate the transfer of title to transferee without being registered. SARAT CHUNDER ROY CHOWDHURY v. JATINDRA NATH MOOKERJEE, 35 C. 614.

(158)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17)—Security bond given under Civ. Pro. Code, s. 545 – Transfer of Property Act, s. 58—Order accepting security.—A security bond, whereby immoveable property exceeding Rs. 100 in value was pledged to the Court. It was signed by the obligor and attested by two witnesses. The Court endorsed thereupon the words "security is accepted." Under these circumstances, it was contended that the deed did not require registration. Held, the deed fell under s. 58 of the Transfer of Property Act and required registration under s. 59, as amended by s. 3 of Act VI of 1904 and s. 17 of the Registration Act. Held, also, the words "security is accepted" merely meant an intimation by the Court that the property given as security was sufficient for the purpose. NAGARURU SAMBAYYA v. TANJATUR SUBBAYYA, 3 M. L.T. 317 = 31 M. 330. (32 C. 494, F.; 13 M. 1, 203, 22 M. 508, 20 A. 171, R.)

(159)—S. 17—Appeal to Privy Council—Security—Stamp—Registration—Objection to stamp based on rules of Revenue Department.—Where the High Court ordered a judgment-debtor, pending an appeal to Her Majesty in Council, to furnish security within a period of two months, and the judgment-debtor put in a petition just one day before the expiry of the two months, stating that he tendered a certain dur-putnee mahal as security and on the next day gave an unregistered security bond, which was rejected by the Judge, held that the bond was not required to be registered until the security was accepted by the Court, and the Court should have directed an investigation by a proper officer of the Court into the sufficiency or otherwise of the security. The objection that a security bond is engrossed on an eight anna stamp threaded to other stamps aggregating to the full value, contrary to the rules of the Revenue Department is merely a technical objection and does not affect the merits of the case. MR. A.D. DUNNE v. AMEEROONISSA KHATOON, 13 W.R. 41.

(160)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17)—Decree not an 'executed instrument' within the meaning of—Admissibility of decree in evidence without registration.—The application in this case, was refused on the ground that the decree was an instrument which created an interest in immoveable property, and could not be given in evidence for want of registration. It was held, however, on appeal, that it could be admitted in evidence, although not registered. Upon the true construction of the Act of 1871 read with Act X of 1866, the High Court was of opinion that a decree could not be said to be "an executed instrument" within s. 17 of the Act of 1871. But, in any view of that Act, the later Act, III of 1877 expressly excludes such decrees, whether passed before or after the Act, from the operation of compulsory registration. PURMANUNDDAS JIWANDAS v. VALLABDAS WALLJI, 11 B. 506. [R., 3 O.C. 32, 15 C.P.L.R. 69.]

(161)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Execution sale, evidence of—Sale certificate not admissible for want of registration.—As between the purchaser and the judgment-debtor, proceedings confirming a particular auction-sale would be sufficient evidence of the sale, quite independently of the sale certificate although it may be inadmissible as not being registered. BENODI LAL GHOSE v. TAMIZUDDIN, 7 C.L.R. 115.

(162)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17), cl. (b)—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 32, cl. (6)—Will — Statement — Words not purporting or operating to extinguish interest in present or future. —S. 17, cl. (b), of the Registration Act, 1877, does not render a passage in a Will inadmissible, where the words do not purport or operate to extinguish an interest in the present or in future, but only state facts. And the statement contained in the passage would, if proved, be admissible also under s. 32 cl. (6), of the Evidence Act. CHAMANBU v. MULTAN CHAND, 20 B. 562.

(163)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, III o 1877, s. 17)—Immoveable property.—The right to the status of a karnavan cannot be treated as an interest in immoveable property within s. 17 of the Registration Act. SHUPPA MENON v. NARAYANAN, 14 M.L.J 415, F.B.

(164)—S. 17 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17—Document—Petition for mutation of names.—The parties to this suit presented a petition in the Revenue Department for mutation of names

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

according to a previous agreement. This petition recited the dispute and the terms of the agreement in full. Held that this petition was not such an instrument as is contemplated by s. 17 of the Registration Act, and that therefore its registration was not compulsory. NUR ALI v. IMAMAN, A.W.N. 1884, 40. [D., 31 A. 13=5 A.L.J. 717=A.W.N. 1908, 264.]

(165)—S. 17 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17) —Petition for withdrawal setting out terms of agreement concerning immoveable property—Registration.—Where a petition for withdrawal of a suit, upon which the Court ordered the suit to be struck off, sets out the terms of an agreement entered into by the parties, creating rights in immoveable property to the value of over Rs. 100, such an agreement, if unregistered, is invalid, and a suit based upon it is unsustainable. MUTHAYYA v. VENKATARATNAM, 25 M. 553. [Expl., 7 C.L.J. 492=35 C. 837=12 C. W.N. 849; R., 5 C.L.J. 611=36 C. 193; D., 27 P.R. 1906, 11 P.L.R. 1906.]

(166)—S. 17 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (d)— Registration—Varying registered document—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 107.—A document which varies the amount of rent paid under an existing lease registered as required by s. 17 (d). Registration Act, as also the incidents of such payments, namely, the date of payment, and consequences of default of payment, requires registration. The case in so far as it determines that a document embodying an agreement for reduction of rent under a previously existing lease registered under s. 17 (d) requires registration, approved. LALIT MOHAN GHOSE v. THE GOPALI CHAUK COAL CO., LTD., 14 C.L.J. 411, F.B.=16 C.W. N. 55=39 C. 284=12 Ind. Cas. 723. (10 C.L. J. 570, 37 C. 293, Appr.)

(167)—S. 17,—Sanad granting hak—Regrant of hak by endorsement on sanad—Endorsement, if requires registration—Admissibility of other evidence as to alleged re-grant—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 92, proviso 4.—This was a suit brought for a declaration that the hak in question was liable to attachment in execution of the plaintiff's decree against his deceased judgment-debtor K. Defendant, the alleged grantor of the hak to K, pleaded a re-grant to himself by K, the grantee, relying on an endorsement made by him on the back of the sanad. The first Court was of opinion that the endorsement was inadmissible in evidence because, though purporting to extinguish the grant, it was not registered, and, finding that the grant was not rescinded, passed a decree for the plaintiff. Held by the High Court, on appeal, that the lower Court was wrong in holding that the endorsement required registration. It did not rescind the grant to K, nor did it, of itself, amount to a new grant back by K. It was simply an endorsement returning the sanad to the defendant without passing any interest in property. It was the alleged subsequent transaction between the judgment-debtor

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

K and the defendant which had the effect of passing the property, and that transaction was entirely distinct from the original grant by the defendant, so that it was clearly open to him to adduce other evidence to prove the special case of re-grant set up by him, the case not falling under proviso 4 to s. 92 of the Indian Evidence Act. HERAMBDEV DHARNIDHARDEV v. KASHINATH BHASKAR, 14 B. 472. [Appr., U.B.R. 1902, 4th Quarter, Evidence, 92; R., 129 P.W.R. 1908; D., 24 B. 615.]

(168)—*S.*17 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Document not requiring registration when it was executed—Retrospective operation—Construction of section—Admissibility of evidence under Act III of 1877—Hereditary office dues incidental to—Nature of dues, whether moveable or immoveable property under Act XX of 1866. —S. 17 of Act III of 1877 has no retrospective effect, and it was not the intention of the Legislature that it must be construed as requiring a document to be registered which would not have required registration when it was executed. A document not requiring registration under Act XX of 1866 is not inadmissible in evidence by reason of s. 17, Act III of 1877. Dues incidental to an office such as that of Desai, which can be held by a person not a Hindu, were not immoveable property when Act XX of 1866 was enacted. DESAI MOTILAL MANGALJI v. DESAI PARASHOTAM NANDLAL, 18 B. 92.

(169)—S. 17—See U.P. ACT I OF 1869, s. 13 (1), 16 C. 556=16 I.A. 53, P.C.

(170)—S. 17—See APPELLATE COURT—ADDITIONAL EVIDENCE ON APPEAL, 12 B. H.C. 247.

(170-a)—S. 17—Verbal submission to arbitration affecting immoveable property, if valid—Registered agreement to refer to arbitration—Variation—See AWARD, 14 C.L.J. 188.

(171)—S. 17—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 94, 6 M.H.C. App. 39.

(172)—S. 17—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XXI, r. 95, 14 P.R. 1893.

(173)—S. 17—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, O. XLI, r. 23, s. 104, O. XLIII, r. 1, 141 P.L. R. 1902=99 P.R. 1902.

(174)—S. 17—Judicial proceedings consisting of pleadings filed by the parties—Orders made by Court—Whether section is applicable—See COMPROMISE—GENERAL, 7 C.L.J. 492=12 C. W.N. 849=35 C. 837.

(175)—S. 17—See COMPROMISE—GENERAL, 25 M. 553.

(176)—S. 17—Registration of petition of compromise—See COMPROMISE—EFFECT OF, 5 C.L.J. 611=36 C. 193=1 Ind. Cas. 913.

(177)—S. 17—Razinama or deed of compromise—Registration—See COMPROMISE—MISCELLANEOUS, 90 P.W.R. 1911.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(178)—S. 17—See COMPROMISE—MISCELLANEOUS, 2 C.W.N. 663.

(179)—S. 17—Registration of deed of dower when necessary—See CUSTOMS—PUNJAB—ALIENATION, 71 P.W.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 931.

(180)—S. 17—See EVIDENCE—SECONDARY EVIDENCE, 4 Bom. L.R. 839.

(181)—S. 17—See EXCHANGE, 26 P. R. 1891.

(182)—S. 17—See HINDU LAW—ADOPTION, 10 B.H.C. 241, 6 W.R. 133

(183)—S. 17—See KABULIAT—GENERAL, 9 W.R. 537.

(184)—S. 17—See LANDLORD AND TENANT—TRANSFER OF TENANT'S INTEREST, 9 W.R. 425.

(185)—S. 17 — Compromise decree — Compromise petition relating to lease of immoveable property—A pleading properly filed by parties—Part of compromise not embodied in the decree—Registration, whether necessary—See LEASE—GENERAL, 6 M.L.T. 313=20 M.L.J. 20=33 M. 102=3 Ind. Cas. 701.

(186)—S. 17— See LEASE— GENERAL, 7 M.L.T. 298=6 Ind. Cas. 201=8 M.L.T. 69, 25 M. 603, P.C.=29 I.A. 138=12 M.L.J. 479 =6 C.W.N. 665.

(187)—S. 17—See LEASE—CONSTRUCTION OF LEASE, 4 N.W.P. 36.

(188) — S. 17 — See LEASE — MISCELLANEOUS, 8 A. 405=A.W.N. 1886, 170.

(189)—S. 17—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 80, 10 P.R. 1883.

(190)—S. 17—As amended by Act VII of 1886, s. 17 (n)—Receipt extinguishing mortgage—Limitation Act, art. 91—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, art. 91, 103 P.L.R. 1905.

(191)—S. 17—Unregistered sale-deed—Use of the deed for collateral purposes—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, arts. 132, 144, 13 Bom. L.R. 867.

(192)—S. 17—Endorsement on mortgage—Non-extinction of mortgage — Compulsory registration—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 11 C.L.J. 551=6 Ind. Cas. 159=37 C. 589.

(193)—S. 17—Sale of equity of redemption—Sale-deed when registrable—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 9 P.W.R. 1912.

(194)—S. 17—Transfer of land in consideration of debt—Mutation of names—Agreement to retransfer—Document creating no right in immoveable property, not compulsorily registrable under s. 17 of Act III of 1877—See MORTGAGE—FORM OF MORTGAGES, 21 B. 704.

(195)—S. 17—Usufructuary mortgage below Rs. 100—Proof of debt—Admissibility in evidence—See MORTGAGE—USUFRUCTUARY, 7 A.L.J. 71=5 Ind. Cas. 519.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(196)—S. 17—Immoveable property—Value not shown to be exceeding Rs. 100—Document merely admitting antecedent right—See SHAMILAT, 94 P.L.R. 1910.

(197)—S. 17—See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, 1877, s. 39, A.W.N. 1889, 147.

(198)—S. 17—See STAMP ACT, 1862, 14 W. R. 178.

(199)—S. 17—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, ss. 4, 105, 107, 5 Ind. Cas. 562.

(200)—S. 17—Agreement to execute a mortgage-deed—Whether such agreement can constitute a charge on immoveable property—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, ss. 54 and 100, 28 M. 54.

(201)—S. 17—Grant of assessment—Consideration in shape of services rendered—Sale—Gift—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, ss. 56 (6) (b), 123, 12 Bom. L.R. 9=5 Ind. Cas. 599=34 B. 287.

(202)—S. 17—Decree for sale on mortgage—Right given by the decree to proceed against other property in default—Unregistered assignment of the decrees—Effect—Election to treat it as money-decree—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 90, 11 Bom. L.R. 356=2 Ind. Cas. 516.

(203)—S. 17 (b)—Formal deed superseding oral bargain—Registration whether optional.—Where a formal sale deed which is obviously intended to supersede the oral bargain between the parties previous to the sale and to evidence the contract is executed, the deed is the only proof of the sale and a prior oral contract cannot be proved, if the deed which is compulsorily registrable is unregistered. BUTA SINGH v. GURDIT SINGH, 10 P.R. 1896. [R., 16 P.R. 1905.]

(204)—*S.*17 (b)—Letter declining to purchase.—A letter intimating that the writer thereof does not desire to purchase a certain land is not compulsorily registrable, it being only evidence of past conduct and future intentions. BARKATALI v. FAIZ MUHAMMAD, 58 P.R. 1890. [R., 48 P.R. 1905.]

(205)—S. 17 (b)—Sale of equity of redemption to mortgagee—Whether compulsorily registrable.—Where a property under mortgage for Rs. 400 is subsequently sold by the mortgagor to the mortgagee on receipt of a further sum less than Rs. 100, the registration of the sale-deed is optional. PIR BAKHSH v. MANGAL, 16 P.R. 1892, F.B. [Rel. on, 3 N.L.R. 72.]

(206)—S. 17 (b)—Instrument of exchange—Document embodying previous oral contract.—If the deed was intended by the parties not merely to be a recital of a completed exchange with an agreement for payment of penalty for recission of any of the parties from the contract, but was intended to be the instrument superseding and embodying the oral bargain

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

which precedes every such contract, it will require registration. GURMUKH SINGH v. POHLO, 120 P.R. 1894. [R., 48 P.R. 1905.]

(207)—S. 17 (b)—Sale of right of pre-emption—Creation of right or interest—Registration, optional.—The subjection of village-lands to right of pre-emption is a burden on the lands in the hands of every holder as the freedom of transfer is restricted thereby. But from this burden no right or interest in the land arises in any other person and so a document of sale of pre-emption right does not require registration. DHANI NATH v. BUDHU, 136 P.R. 1894. [R., 90 P.R. 1909, 91 P.R. 1909; Cited, 133 P.R. 1907=84 P.W.R. 1907=88 P.L.R. 1908, 94 P.R. 1902=134 P.L.R. 1902.]

(208)—S. 17 (b)—Right, title or interest—Construction of document.—The "right, title or interest" contemplated by the section whether in its nature present or future, vested or contingent, must be created at once by the deed in question. A deed which entitles a person to a right to come into existence at a future date, does not come within the section. IMAM BAKHSH KHAN v. KARIM SHAH, 16 P. R. 1895. F.B. [R., 89 P.R. 1908; Cons. & D., 71 P.R. 1906=111 P.L.R. 1907.]

(209)—S. 17 (b)—Construction—Creation of contingent right—Not compulsorily registrable—Property having no value.—An agreement admitting a person to a share in the interest to immoveable property contingent on his contributing towards the expenses of excavating a water-course does not require registration, there being no creation of a 'present" interest. If the property in respect of which an agreement is entered into has no value (e.g.) a ruined 'Kul' or water-course, registration of the deed will not be compulsory. The section must be strictly construed. Unless a document clearly falls within it, it will have the benefit of the doubt and will be admissible in evidence notwithstanding non-registration. SANSAR SINGH v. TILOKA, 51 P.R. 1898. [Cons. & D., 71 P.R. 1906=111 P.L.R. 1907.]

(210)—S. 17 (b) (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (b))—'Declare,' meaning of—Admissibility in evidence.—The term 'declare' in the section implies a declaration of will, by which a right is constituted, not a mere statement of fact, such as an acknowledgment by a person in a letter that a partition had taken place previously; such acknowledgment does not constitute the right or the legal relation, and is admissible in evidence even though unregistered. SAKHARAM KRISHNAJI v. MADAN KRISHNAJI, 5 B. 232. [R., 5 C.P.L.R. 102, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 178, 21 B. 704, 27 B. 452, 33 P.L.R. 1905=48 P.R. 1905, 9 Bom. L.R. 254; D., L.B.R. 1893—1900, 34, 20 B. 553, 24 B. 615, 2 Bom. L.R. 800, P.L.R. 1900, p. 459.]

(211)—S. 17 (b) (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, cl. (b))—Document creating charge for sum repayable before stated term, valuation of, for purposes of registration—Principal sum borrowed to be the basis.—In the absence of any custom or special contract precluding repayment, by the mortgagor of purangadom principal sum below Rs. 100 lent on a further charge over the property, at any time before the expiration of the period of the original kanom, so that the mortgagor had the right to repay the purangadom debt with the interest then in arrears, the document passed by the mortgagor for such debt is not liable to compulsory registration. The amount which determines the value for registration purposes (as well as for the purposes of the Transfer of Property Act, s. 59) is the principal sum secured by the document, irrespective of any interest which may subsequently accrue. The least sum payable under a document being the test as to whether it is compulsorily registrable or not, the principal sum secured by a mortgage-deed is alone to be taken as its value for the purposes of s. 17, cl. (b) of the Registration Act, as well in cases in which, the mortgage being redeemable at any time, it is uncertain whether at the time of redemption, principal and interest together will exceed Rs. 100, as in cases in which, the mortgage not being redeemable till expiry of a fixed period, it is certain that at the time of redemption principal together with interest will exceed that amount. KUNHI AMMA v. AHMED HAJI, 23 M. 105. [D., 4 N. L.R. 90.]

(212)—S. 17 (b) (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17)—Instrument appointing new trustee, if should be registered—Civ. Pro. Code (XIV of 1882), s. 437—Order under, effect of—Whether appeal lies against—Trusts Act (II of 1882), ss. 73 and 75.—An instrument appointing a new trustee under s. 73 of the Trusts Act does not require registration. An order on an application under s. 437, Civ. Pro. Code, 1882, allowing a new trustee to be brought on the record, is in effect one disallowing objection to the continuance of the suit by the new trustee, and, as such, is appealable. The instrument of appointment does not create any rights in the trustee, but such rights are created by the operation of s. 75 of the Trusts Act. The office of trustee is not immoveable property within the meaning of the Registration Act. SUPPIAH THEVAN v. M. KRISHNA RAO, 6 M.L.T. 240=3 Ind. Cas. 435.

(213)—S. 17 (b) (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, cl. (b))—Nikah-nama—Assignment by husband in favour of his wife in discharge of dower debt.—A nikah-nama purported to be an assignment by a husband in favour of his wife in full discharge of the dower-debt due to the latter. Held, that it was not a composition-deed, but a document which, within the meaning of cl. (b), s. 17 of Act III of 1877, purported to create a vested right, title and interest in certain immoveable property admittedly exceeding Rs. 100 in value and was, therefore, one the registration of which was compulsory. MARIAM BEGAM v. SYED MOHAMMAD, 3 O.C. 277.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(214)—S. 17 (b) (=Registration Act, 1877, s 17 (b))—Agreement—Registration.—An agreement recited that the parties thereto divided an inam village half to half; the junior branch, however, assigned to the senior branch all its inam rights over the lands held by the three mirasi occupiers mentioned therein, including the right to recover the assessment fixed on them (Rs. 40 a year) and the right of succession to the full ownership thereof should the mirasi tenure come or be brought to an end: Held, that the agreement fell within the provisions of s. 17 (b) of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, inasmuch as it assigned a right, title or interest in immoveable property and the value of the interest assigned "in present or in future" was more than one hundred rupees. Where a document is a declaration of will creating a definite change of legal relation to the property of the persons executing it; such a declaration is compulsorily registrable. ANANDRAV v. JOTI, 2 Bom. L.R. 427=24 B. 615.

(215)—S. 17 (b)—Agreement to refer to arbitration—Registration— Partition of estate settled by written agreement to refer to arbitration—Admissibility of agreement in evidence without registration—Agreement complete before formally written—Terms as a rule settled before writing—Pleader's fee—Costs—Practice.—In every case where an agreement is reduced to writing, the writing is a record of terms which have already been settled between the parties. Their minds are made up before they advance to the stage of writing, the terms are not settled between them as the writing proceeds, and, therefore, strictly speaking, written agreements, in all cases, are subsequent in point of time to the settlement of the terms which they purport to record. But the two operations of mental agreement and of putting down the terms of the agreement on paper constitute only one transaction. An agreement to refer to arbitration recited inter alia "the executants have agreed and consented to divide the estate in dispute and accordingly they appoint.....arbitrators and an umpire and agree that the arbitrators shall partition the estate and thereupon each executant shall obtain proprietary possession of his respective share as declared by the arbitrators." It was found on evidence that this agreement was the only record of matters which had been settled before it was executed, and there was no evidence of any agreement, independent of the instrument, to partition the estate: — Held, that the agreement was inadmissible in evidence for want of registration (5 B. 232, 20 B. 562, R.) Where a certificate by a pleader of the amount received by him, as his fee was lodged in Court after arguments had commenced, the amount of fee was not allowed as costs. RAGHUBIR SINGH v. UMRAO SINGH, 13 Ind. Cas. 500.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(216)—S. 17 (b)—Award effecting partition of immoveable property—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1908, sch. II, rr. 14, 15, 20, 84 P.R. 1907.

(217)—S. 17, cl. (b)—Mortgage—Mutation of names objected to—Compromise, varying terms of registered mortgage deed—Suit for redemption—Admissibility of compromise deed in evidence—Terms of registered mortgage deed can be varied only by registered, instrument—See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 2, 5 A.L.J. 717=31 A. 13=A.W.N. 1908, 264=1 Ind. Cas. 558.

(218)— S. 17 (b)— See EXECUTION OF DECREE— MODE OF EXECUTION, 51 P.R. 1885.

(219)—S. 17 (b)—Relinquishment of reversioner's interest—Registration—See REVERSIONER, 214 P.L.R. 1911.

(220)—S. 17 (b)—S. 59, Transfer of Property Act—Test to be applied to see whether mortgage deed requires or does not require registration— See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 59, 4 N.L.R. 86.

(221)—S. 17 (b) (c) (h)—Agreement relating to immoveable property of value above Rs. 100—Instrument merely reciting a right to obtain another document—Agreement declaring joint and equal right to promisee in decree giving to promisor title to half of a well.—The unregistered document on which the present suit was based declared that certain persons were sharers in a decree for half of a certain well in respect of which the writers of the deed had obtained a decree as pre-emptors, for which half share, the former persons had paid to them, the sum of Rs. 850. It explained why those persons were not parties to the plaint in the suit, and stating that cross-appeals were pending by the parties in the Court of the Commissioner, went on to provide that it was agreed thereby that, when the appeals shall have been decided, whatever shares the writers may get, they would have a registered conveyance duly prepared and cause mutation of names to be made in favour of the persons named therein. It was held that the suit of the plaintiffs must fail because the agreement was an instrument compulsorily registrable under s. 17 of the Registration Act. (Symth J., dissenting).—The document did not fall under cl. (h) of s. 17 of the Registration Act. It did not merely create a right to obtain another document which would when executed declare or assign a right, title or interest of the kind described in cl. (h); the instrument did, on the other hand, in itself declare that the promisees were jointly and equally interested with the promisors in the decree which gave to the latter a title to half the well named in the deed on payment of Rs. 700. The document was held to fall within cl. (c) of s. 17 of the Act, inasmuch as the receipt of a consideration on account of the declaration of a title or interest in immoveable property of the value of Rs. 100

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

and upwards was thereby expressly acknowledged. MALIK KARIM BAKSH v. MUHAMMAD BAKSH, 82 P.R 1884. [R., 37 P.R. 1888, 183 P.R 1889, F B., 184 P.R. 1889, 48 P.R. 1905 =33 P.L.R. 1905, 89 P.R. 1908=145 P.W.R. 1908.]

(221-a)—S. 17 (b) (c) (h)—Document declaring and limiting rights of parties in land—Registration.—The question in this case was whether the document in question did in fact declare an interest in land of the value of more than Rs. 100, or merely create a right to obtain another document declaring such an interest and thus fell under cl. (h) of s. 17 of the Registration Act. The document clearly purported to declare and limit the rights of the parties in the land, and though it contemplated the execution of a further instrument, it could not be said merely to create a right to obtain such further instrument. It therefore fell within s. 17 (b) of the Registration Act III of 1877, and not within the exception in cl. (h) of that section and, under s. 49, it could not affect the land or be received as evidence of any transaction affecting the land. BELLA SINGH v. BARA, 82 P. R. 1884, Note.

(222)—S. 17, cls. (c) and (h) (=Registration Act, III of 1877), s. 17, cls. (b) and (h)—Document giving right to obtain another document.—An ikrarnamah, by which certain tenants conjointly agreed that they would sign and have registered kabuliyats in respect of rents, held, not to fall under cl. (b), but under cl. (h), as a document merely creating a right to obtain another document. PERTAP CHUNDER GHOSE v. MOHENDRA NATH PURKAIT, 17 C. 291=16 I.A. 233, P C.=5 Sar. 444. [R., 26 B. 617; D., 13 C.W.N. 326.]

(223)—S. 17 (b, c, n) (=s. 17, cls. (b, c, n), Registration Act, 1877)—Registrable documents—Mortgage—Satisfaction.—Instruments acknowledging receipt of money paid in satisfaction of such a right as is referred to in cl. (b) to s. 17 of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, and not acknowledging receipt of moneys paid as the consideration for the extinction of such a right by a new act of will, are not compulsorily registrable. Similarly, endorsements or receipts acknowledging satisfaction of a mortgage by the payment of the whole mortgage-money are not compulsorily registrable under cl. (n) of the section. The cl. (n) indicates that an operative instrument which not merely evidences the satisfaction of a mortgage, but which is a transaction annulling an interest by a new act of will between the parties, is compulsorily registrable. The distinction is as follows: a payment made in discharge of an existing obligation, as in paying off a mortgage-debt according to its tenor, is a payment made in satisfaction of that obligation—and is not technically "consideration" paid in order to obtain the extinction of that obligation. In other words, the extinction of an obligation, when it is effected by the performance or satisfaction of the obligation according to its terms, follows from the terms of that obligation, and is not induced by any new consideration. Neither cl. (c) nor cl. (n) of the section requires registration in respect of the mere satisfaction of performance of the pre-existing obligation. These clauses require registration only when money is paid as consideration for a novation or a new agreement by a fresh act of the parties, the effect of which is to do away with the old obligation, not by accepting performance thereof, but on receiving a sum paid for the benefit of the new agreement. MAHAMAD KASAM v. RANU YESUJI, 9 Bom L.R. 254.

(224)—S. 17, (b) & (h) (=Registration Act, III of 1877, *s.*17, cls. (b) and (h))—Agreement to give another deed—Admissibility in evidence when unregistered.—If an agreement, without itself creating any rights in immoveable property, merely gives a right to the other party to obtain another deed, under certain circumstances, it will fall within cl. (h) and will be admissible in evidence, without registration in a suit for specific performance BURJORJI CURSETJI PANTHAKI v. MUNCHERJI KUVERJI, 5 B. 143. [F., 7 B. 310, 24 C. 20; R., 12 M. 505, 10 C P.L.R. 107, 21 B. 704, 22 B. 788, U.B.R. 1897—1901, 379, 1 N.L.R. 147, 13 C.W.N. 326=4 Ind. Cas. 85=6 M.L.T. 368; D., 20 B. 553; R., 19 M.L.J. 228.]

(225)—S. 17 (c) (=s. 17 (c), Registration Act, 1877)—Result of agreement to extinguish mortgage-debt Registration.—When the result of an agreement is to extinguish the mortgage debt and to convert the lien under the mortgage-bond into one under that document, the agreement is one of which registration, under the terms of cl. (c) of s. 17 of the Registration Act, is compulsory. If such agreement is not registered, it is inadmissible in evidence. TARAN SINGH HAZARI v. RAMRATAN TEWARI, 31 C. 89.

(226)—S. 17 (c) (=Registration Act of 1877, s. 17, cl. (c))—Receipt for money paid, registration of.—A receipt, which acknowledges part-payment of a sum due under a hypothecation deed, does not fall under s. 17 (c) of the Act, unless the fact is referred to as a consideration for a contractual engagement, whereby the interest created by the prior registered instrument is limited or extinguished. A mere receipt does not acknowledge the receipt or payment of a consideration. VENKAYYAR v. VENKATASUBBAYYAR, 3 M. 53. (1 A. 442, Diss.; 7 M.H.C. 4, Appr.) [R., 19 M. 288, 24 B. 609.]

(227)—S. 17 (c)—Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (c)—Agreement to renew kanom and to credit a sum as renewal fee—Admissibility in evidence.—The promise, contained in an agreement to renew a kanom, to credit as renewal fee a sum of money found due by the landlord to the tenant, is not an acknowledgment of money paid for the creation of an interest in land within the meaning of s. 17 of the Registration Act. Even if it were so, such an unregistered document would be admissible in evidence since the agreement to renew the kanom can be severed from the acknowledgment. KRISHNAN NAMBUDRI v. RAMAN MENON, 20 M. 484.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843) —continued.

(228) — S. 17 (c) (= Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17. cl. (c)) — Unregistered receipt of mortgagee—Admissibility in evidence.—An unregistered receipt given by a mortgagee to a mortgagor for sums paid on account of the mortgage-debt, was held admissible in evidence under cl. (c). s. 17 of the Registration Act 1877. ANNAPA v. GANPATI AND VISHNU, 5 B. 181. (4 B. 235, R.) [F., 19 B. 36; R., 24 B. 609 = 2 Bom. L.R. 422.]

(229) — S. 17, cl. (c)—Receipt for portion of purchase money—Not compulsorily registrable. — A receipt reciting that the executant thereof sold certain land to the executee for a larger sum, over Rs. 100, and reciting that the same (the receipt) was for a part of the consideration for the sale and that the balance would be received at the time of registration, held, not to contain the terms of the sale itself and to be admissible though unregistered; oral evidence of the terms of the contract of sale also held admissible. SANGAM LALL v. MUSSAMMAT SIKANDAR JEHAN BEGAM, 183 P.R. 1889, F.B. [R., 48 P.R. 1905.]

(230)—S 17, cl. (c)—See PRE-EMPTION—GENERAL, 36 P.L.R. 1903 = 9 P.R. 1903.

(231)—S. 17 (c)—Receipt for money paid prior to sale—Registration—See PRE-EMPTION—CONSTRUCTION OF WAJIB-UL-ARZ, 54 P.L.R. 1910 = 8 Ind. Cas. 233.

(232)—S. 17. (i and v)—Application setting out compromise—Registration.—Where a petition does not purport or operate of itself to create or declare any interest in the property but is merely an application in a pending suit setting out a compromise orally arranged by the parties and asking the Court to decide the case in accordance therewith, it does not require registration and the acceptance of the arrangement will in no way alter its character so as to render it compulsorily registrable. INDRAJ v. MOUJA, 97 P R. 1895. [R., 48 P.R. 1905, 27 P.R. 1906 = 11 P.L.R. 1906.]

(233)—S. 17, cl. (d) (= s. 17, cl. (i), Registration Act, 1877)—Transfer of Property Act, IV of 1882, ss. 107, 117 —Lease reserving annual rent of less than Rs. 50 for indefinite period —Lease deed not registered—Admissibility.—Suit to recover rent due under an unregistered instrument of lease of a betel garden reserving an annual rent of Rs. 38. No definite period was fixed in the lease deed for the determination of the lease. The question was as to the admissibility of the lease deed for want of registration. Held, that the term of the lease might no doubt have continued beyond five years in the event of neither party determining it in the meanwhile, but as either party might determine it before five years, it could not be said to be a lease for "a term exceeding five years" and inasmuch as the annual rent was below Rs. 50, its registration was optional under cl. (c) of s. 18 of the Registration Act. Held also that, as the lease for the cultivation of betel is, according to the usage and custom of the country, an agricultural lease falling as such under s. 117 of the Transfer of Property Act, it is not governed by s. 107 of the Act. Consequently, its registration was optional under the Indian Registration Act. MURUGESA CHETTY v. CHINNATHAMBI GOUNDAN 24 M. 421. (17 M. 98, Not F; 4 M. 381, F.) [R., 25 M. 627.]

(234)—S. 17 (d) (= s. 17 (d), Registration Act, 1877)—Lease exceeding one year—Registration. —A lease, under which the lessor agrees to let his premises for a period of one year and also agrees "not to increase the rent nor to have the premises vacated for further two years if the said tenant wish to occupy it for that period," is not compulsorily registrable under the provisions of s. 17 (d) of the Registration Act, 1877. YOUSAF v. POLEOLOGO, 8 Bom. L.R. 580.

(235)—S. 17, cl. (d) (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, cl. (d))—Lease reserving yearly rent—Creation of tenancy from year to year.—A lease on which a yearly rent is reserved as contemplated by s. 17, cl. (d) of the Act must be one which on the proper construction of it would create a tenancy from year to year. CHIMAN BOO v. HYDERALI, 9 C P.L.R. 57. (14 B. 319, App.; 8 A. 405, R.)

(236)—S 17, cl. (d) (= Registration Act, 1877, s 17, cl. (d)) — Lease for no definite term—But determinable at tenant's option— Registration compulsory.—A lease which fixes no definite term but which creates a tenancy determinable only at the option of the tenant is a document which requires registration. MANNA OJHA v. DADAN CHOBE, 9 C.P.L R. 88. (3 M. 358, 4 M. 381, 14 M. 271, 8 A. 405, 13 C. 113, 3 B. 21, 8 B. 493, R.)

(237)—S. 17 (d) (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (d) proviso, notification issued under—Leases falling within s. 107 of Transfer of Property Act.—The proviso to s. 17 (d) of the Registration Act must be restricted to cases not falling under s. 107 of the Transfer of Property Act, which absolutely requires the registration of the leases referred to therein. Consequently, leases under the above s. 107, are compulsorily registrable, notwithstanding the Government notification issued under the proviso to clause (d), s 17 of the Registration Act. VAIRANANDA NADAR v. MIYAKAN ROWTHER, 21 M. 109. [R., 6 M.L.T. 175 = 32 M 532.]

(238)—S. 17, cl. (d) (= Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17, cl. (d)—Lease exceeding one year

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

—Lease for year with option of renewal—Correspondence constituting lease.—Where a correspondence constitutes a contract leasing premises for more than a year, that correspondence must be registered, although a final document may be contemplated. A lease for one year, which provides that the tenant should have the option of a renewal for a second year, is not a lease for a term exceeding one year under s. 17 (d), Registration Act (III of 1877), so as to render its registration compulsory. A. C. BOYD v. A. KREIG, 17 C. 548. (Hand v. Hall, 2 Ex. D. 355, F.) [Diss., 9 C.P.L.R. 88.]

(239)—S. 17 (d) (=Registration Act, XVI of 1864, ss. 13, 14)—Act X of 1862—General exemptions—Surrender by tenant to his landlord.—A document which is substantially a surrender by a tenant of his interest in land to his landlord, was held to be exempt from stamp duty under the general exemption clause in Act X of 1862. JADAV RUGHNATH v. RAIJI HIMMAT, 9 B H.C. 246.

(240)—S. 17 (d) (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (d))—Lease for building purposes—Scope of agent's authority—Minor—Ratification—Compensation for building materials.—This was a suit to eject the defendants from a piece of ground owned by the plaintiff. During his minority the manager of his estate had leased the ground to the defendants who had built a house on a portion of it. It was pleaded by the defendants that the plaintiff was bound by the lease and the permission to build given by the manager, the plaintiff on attaining majority had ratified the lease, and the defendants were at least entitled to compensation for building materials. Held, that it was beyond the scope of the manager's authority to let the ground for building purposes and such authority could not be presumed, the plaintiff was not bound by the lease, and the permission, if any was given, was not for the plaintiff's benefit. Held, further, that from agent's accepting rent from the defendants and from plaintiff's silence, after attaining majority it could not be inferred that the plaintiff had ratified the manager's acts. Held, also, that the defendants were not entitled to any compensation, but they could be allowed reasonable time to remove the materials. Quære—Whether an appellate Court has authority to admit in evidence an unstamped document which was impounded under the provisions of the Stamp Act. RANZOR SINGH v. CHIPPAL, P.L.R. 1900, p. 303=37 P.R. 1900.

(241)—S. 17 (d)—Lease — Unregistered — Tenancy at will—Fixing of annual rent.—The mere recital of an annual rate of rent in a lease, determinable at any time at the will of the lessor does not make it a "lease reserving a yearly rent" within the meaning of this subsection so as to render it compulsorily registrable. But it will be compulsorily registrable if the term is extensible at the option of the tenant since, in the latter event, the lease is not limited to one year. MUHAMMAD MASAM KHAN v. MUSSAMMAT BAKHTAWAR, 70 P.R. 1895.

(241-a)—S. 17 (d), proviso—Rent in kind—Applicability—The proviso to s. 17, cl. (d) of the Registration Act is not confined in its operation to money rent, but also applies to rent payable in grain. SAKKI REDDI APPALASAMY v. PAKKURTI VENKATASAMI NAIDU, 11 M.L.T. 405=M.W.N. 1912, 919=15 Ind. Cas. 682.

(242)—S. 17 (d)—Whether unregistered deeds, executed by proprietary body owning shamilat land, alleged to create mugarraridari rights, admissible in evidence—See CUSTOM—PUNJAB—SHAMILAT LAND, 189 P.L.R. 1908.

(243)—S. 17 (d)—Unregistered dastak allowing plaintiff to take possession of land for cultivation—Document not a lease within the meaning of this section—See BEN. REG. XI OF 1825, s. 4, cl. 1, 8 C.L.J. 538=13 C.W.N. 267 =4 Ind. Cas. 511.

(244)—S. 17 (e) (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (e))—Composition deed—Conveyance—Assignment of a portion of property—Some creditors only signing the deed—Rights of the other creditors.—The "composition deed" contemplated by s. 17 (e) of the Registration Act must in substance be of the nature of a composition, not a conveyance. Where a debtor transfers his property to a creditor or creditors in consideration of the debts i.e., where he parts with his rights absolutely, the transaction may partake of the nature of a composition but in reality and substance it is not a composition but a conveyance. It is otherwise where with the consent of his creditors he parts with his property in favour of a trustee for the purpose of paying the composition upon the claims and the trustee is authorized to deal with the property for that purpose. Hence, where certain immoveable and moveable property of the debtor and his account books are vested in the trustee for the purpose of paying his creditors and there is no conveyance of the immoveable property of the debtor to the creditors, the deed amounts to a composition deed, and need not be registered under s. 17 (e) of the Registration Act. If a person assigns part only of his property in trust of creditors, then if the transaction is fair and bona fide, and in the ordinary course of business, or upon the pressure of the creditors, it is not open to objection; but if the settlor contemplates bankruptcy or even thinks it probable, though not inevitable, and wishes to give an undue preference to certain creditors over others, it is fraudulent and constitutes an act of bankruptcy. A composition deed for the benefit of all the creditors may be signed by some only of the creditors. The creditors who have not signed can take benefit under the deed but they cannot impugn it except on the ground that it represents a sham or fictitious transaction. MALUKCHAND v. MANILAL, 6 Bom. L. R. 296=28 B. 364.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(245)—S. 17 cl (d & h)—Agreement to sell land —Not registered—Construction of document.—T agreed to sell the land in dispute to R under a written agreement dated 17-4-1889, the consideration for the sale being the discharge of a mortgage debt due on the land and a certain amount paid in cash to the vendor. The agreement was not registered. It recited that the cash was paid on the day of the agreement, that the mortgage debt due on the land may be discharged by R at any time he liked, and that a sale-deed must be executed by T. T brought the present suit for enforcing the agreement. The lower Court held that the suit must fail, because the agreement in question operated as an assignment of the equity of redemption and should not be admitted in evidence for want of registration. The plaintiff appealed to the High Court. Held, upon a proper construction of the document, that it did not amount to an assignment of the equity of redemption and that, under s. 17, cl. (h) of the Registration Act (1877) it need not be registered. SHRIDHAR BALLAL KELKAR v. CHINTAMAN SADASHIV MEHENDALE, 18 B. 396.

(246)—S. 17, cl. (h) (=Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17, cl. (h))—Bargain-paper for purchase of immoveable property, not compulsorily registrable.—A document would come within the exception in cl (h) of s. 17 of Act III of 1877 if it does not "itself," by its express terms, create a certain interest in immoveable property, but expressly contemplates the creation of such an interest by a subsequent document. So a mere bargain-paper or agreement for the purchase of immoveable property of a value upwards of Rs. 100, need not be registered, and, such an agreement creating no right to the property itself, is admissible in evidence, though unregistered by reason of the said Act, s. 17, cl. (h). CHUNILAL PANALAL v. BOMANJI MANCHERJI MODI, 7 B. 310. [F., 18 B. 396; R., 21 B. 704, 10 C.P.L.R. 107; D., 20 B. 553.]

(247)—S. 17, cl. (n) (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, cl. (n))—Receipt.—Though a receipt given by a mortgagee purporting to extinguish the mortgage requires registration, yet, when the language of the receipt does not indicate any intention to extinguish or limit the mortgagor's interest, it does not require registration. UPPALAKANDI KUNHI KUTTI ALI HAJI v. KUNNAM MITHAL KOTTAPRATH ABDUL RAHIM, 19 M. 288. [F., 9 Bom. L.R. 254.]

(248 & 249)—S. 17 (n) (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (n))—Receipt of payment—Evidence —Appropriation of payments.—An unstamped and unregistered receipt of payment under a mortgage can be used as evidence of payments as also of appropriation of them, because it makes no variation of the contract itself but only a modification of the account in consequence of payments. LAKSHMAN v. DAMODAR, 2 Bom. L.R. 422=24 B. 609.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(250) — S. 17, cl. (2) (=Act VIII of 1871, s. 17, cl. 2.)—Questions directly and substantially in issue in a former suit—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 13—Res judicata—Admissibility of letter reducing tenant's rent.—In a previous suit brought by the plaintiff against the defendant for possession of a certain village, the principal question was whether the defendant held a perpetual lease of the village. A letter was produced by which the plaintiff's predecessor in title had agreed to reduce the rent of the defendant. The suit was dismissed on the ground that the defendant held a perpetual lease of the village. The plaintiff brought another suit against the defendant for arrears of rent, in which the said letter was again produced. It was contended by the plaintiff that the letter was not genuine and and was not receivable in evidence under cl. (2), s. 17 of Act VIII of 1871. The District Judge refused to go into the question of the genuineness of the letter and held that it was admissible in evidence. Held, that the question of the genuineness of the letter was directly and substantially in issue in the former suit and was therefore under s. 13 of the Civ. Pro. Code, res judicata between the parties. When a landlord reduces the rent of a tenant, it cannot be said that his title to, or, interest in, the land held by his tenant is to any extent extinguished. Held, therefore, that the letter did not require any registration under cl. (2) s. 17 of Act VIII of 1871, and was admissible in evidence. MUBARAK ALI v. DEPUTY COMMISSIONER, BARA BANKI, 2 O.C. 250.

(251)—S. 17, cls. 2, 3 (=Act VIII of 1871, s. 17, cls. 2 & 3)—Mortgage—Receipt for payment—Evidence.—A document intended to be a receipt for payment of money due on a mortgage and purporting to extinguish the same, fell within cls 2 and 3, s 17, of the Registration Act XX of 1866, and also of Act VIII of 1871, and was compulsorily registrable; and, when unregistered, was inadmissible in evidence of any transaction affecting any property comprised therein. The payment of the original mortgage-debt and the extinguishment of the mortgagee's lien, may be proved by oral testimony of witness, or by other evidence legally admissible. MAHADAJI v. VYANKAJI GOVIND, 1 B. 197. [F., 6 A. 335; Appl., 2 B. 489, 7 B. 123; D, 9 A. 108, 24 B. 609.]

(252)—Ss. 17, cls. 2, 3, 49 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 17, cls. 2, 3 and s. 49)—Sale—Memorandum of receipt of consideration—Admissibility in evidence, if unregistered—Plaintiff sued to recover possession of certain land from one of the defendants. She pleaded that he had sold the land to her, and in support of this plea tendered in evidence a "yadi" or memorandum purporting to be executed by him to her, reciting the sale and acknowledging the receipt of Rs. 483 in part payment of the price. This "yadi" bore a one anna receipt stamp and was not registered. Held that the "yadi" being unregistered, was by

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

s. 17, cls. 2 and 3, and s. 49 of Act VIII of 1871, inadmissible in evidence. MAHAD bin DANAPA v. DARI bin BALEE, 1 B. 196, Note. [R., 1 B. 197.]

(253)—S. 17, cl. (3)—Release—Stamp—Registration.—A letter, by which a person releases his right to the security of certain immoveable property hypothecated to him, cannot operate as a release and be received in evidence, unless duly stamped and registered. SAFDAR ALI KHAN v. LACHMAN DAS, 2 A. 554. [R., 17 B. 235, 33 C. 613=10 C.W.N. 551=3 C.L.J. 576.]

(254)—S. 17 (2) (XI) — Mortgage deed — Endorsement of payment of mortgage money—Registration — See MORTGAGE — GENERAL, 111 P.L.R. 1911.

(255)—S. 17—See Nos. 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 33, 34, and 35, supra and Nos. 514, 515, 516, infra.

(256)—Ss. 17, 18 (=Registration Act, 1871, ss. 17, 18)—Registration.—A document, by which the obligor, in consideration of a loan of a sum less than Rs. 100, agrees to lease certain lands to the obligee for one year, and undertakes to be responsible for any damages arising from failure to comply with the terms of such agreement and hypothecates immoveable property till the conditions of the agreement should be fulfilled, is a hypothecation bond for the amount of the loan; and there being no stipulation for interest or any other sum by which the principal amount may be augmented, and the damages stipulated for depending on a contingency which may or may not happen, and respecting which nothing can be anticipated at the time of registration, the document is one which does not require registration. But it could not be used to enforce a lien against property hypothecated to any extent greater than the amount of the loan. (1 A. 274, Observed on.) Per Stuart, C. J.—Such an instrument is essentially a usufructuary mortgage. Per Oldfield, J.—On the pleadings in the case, it is unnecessary to decide whether it should have been registered as a lease. BASANT LAL v. TAPESHRI RAI, 3 A. 1. [R., 5 A. 447, 10 C.P.L.R, 10, 12 C.P.L R. 96.]

(257)—Ss. 17, 18 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss. 17, 18)—Deed of partition — Compulsory registration—Proof.—The provision for optional registration in s. 18 is not superseded but supplemented or qualified by that in s.17; and so, a deed of partition is not excluded from the operation of s. 17, by being amongst those enumerated in s. 18. A deed of partition of immoveable property though it does not create, at least declares an interest therein, and where its value exceeds Rs. 100, it must be registered under s. 17, for its admission as evidence. Proof of the document may be, however, superfluous and dispensed with, where the defendant admits in his written statement its terms and the relations thence arising. SHANKER RAMACHANDRA v. VISHNU ANANT, 1 B. 67. [R., 14 B. 516, 24 B. 615.]

(258) — Ss. 17, 18 (= Registration Act, 1866, ss. 17, 18).—An agreement to deposit certain deeds and to execute a proper agreement is not a document coming within the meaning of cl. 2, s. 17, Act XX of 1866, but one the registration of which is optional, and which falls under the description in cl. 7, s. 18 of the Registration Act. MARK RIDDED CURRIE v. S. V. MUTU RAMAN CHETTY, 3 B L.R. A.C. 126=11 W R. 520. [R., 15 W. R. 354, 12 B.H.C. 175, 7 N W.P. 124.]

(259)—Ss. 17, 18 (=Act XX of 1866, ss. 17, 18)—Lease undertaking to pay rent so long as lessor leaves land with lessee—Registration if necessary.—The engagement in the kabuliyat in this case was, on its acceptance by the landlord, an agreement under which the tenant might claim possession for one year. But, as the undertaking was to pay rent only so long as the landlord left the land with the tenant, there was no interest created by way of lease extending beyond one year, and the kabuliyat therefore did not require registration under Act XX of 1866, s. 17. JAGJIVANDAS JAVHERDAS v. NARAYAN 8 B 493. [Appr., 14 M. 271; R., 9 C.P.L.R. 88.]

(260)—Ss. 17 and 18 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, ss. 17 and 18)—Transfer of Property Act, IV of 1882, s 54—Hypothecation for Rs. 87.—Under s 8 of Act IV of 1882, the transfer of a debt passes to the transferee the securities for the debt; but what is sold is primarily not the charge, but the debt. The assignment, being of a claim for less than Rs. 100, falls within the provisions of s. 18 of the Registration Act, and need not be registered. The words "other intangible thing" in s. 54 of Act IV of 1882 might include a charge, but construed with reference to the context should be taken to mean interests of the nature of reversions. The distinction between the two classes of property mentioned in the section was with a view to preserve a similar distinction created by ss. 17 and 18 of the Registration Act. The assignment of a charge for less than Rs. 100 does not require registration. It would be very anomalous if the transfer of a hypothecation should require registration when the original hypothecation did not require it. SUBRAMANIAM v. PERUMAL REDDI, 13 M. 454=5 M L.J. 92 [Diss., 24 M 449; R., 25 M. 396; D., 1 P.R. 1906=190 P.L.R. 1905.]

(261)—Ss. 17 and 18 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 18)—Maintenance right—Release—Registration.—A Hindu widow's right to maintenance is a mere possibility, and does not constitute an interest, vested or contingent, in the immoveable property of the undivided family, within the meaning of the Registration Act of 1866 and a release thereof does not require registration under cl. 2, s. 17 of the Act.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

[D., 24 B. 615.] Semble.—The releases and partition deeds mentioned in cl. (7), s. 18, are intended to be documents not relating to immoveable property. Releases affecting immoveable property, over Rs. 100 in value, are registrable under cls. 2 and 3 of s. 17. KALPAGATHACHI v. GANAPATHI PILLAI, 3 M. 184. [D., 24 B. 615.]

(262)—Ss. 17, 18 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, ss. 17, 18)—Agreement to remit rent.—An agreement to vary the terms of a tenancy with reference to the amount of rent to be paid by the tenant does not relate to an interest in immoveable property, and does not require registration. OBAI GOUNDAN v. RAMALINGA AYYAR, 22 M. 217=8 M.L.J. 256. [F., 2 Ind. Cas. 89; R., 24 B. 609.]

(263)—Ss. 17, 18—Instruments of gift of immoveable property—Registration—Act XX of 1866, ss. 17, 18.—All instruments of gift of immoveable property must be registered, whatever be the value of the property. PUTONA KOLITA v. MUTIA KOLITA, 2 B.L.R. App. 46=11 W.R. 334.

(264)—Ss. 17, 18—See LEASE—GENERAL, 24 C. 20.

(265)—Ss. 17 (d) and 18 (c) (=Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 17 (d) 18 (c))—Lease—Registration.—Where a lease set forth that a house was let to the tenant for a term of one year at a certain rent, and the lessee who executed it further declared that he would continue to pay the annual rent every year, and that if he should fail to pay the rent in any year, the lessor should be at liberty to recover the rent through Court, it could not be contended that the lease was for more than one year, that the lessee was entitled to occupy the house and the lessor was not entitled to eject him therefrom, so long as he continued to pay the rent. It would properly be held to be a lease for one year only, and thus falling under s. 18 of the Registration Act, it was admissible in evidence without registration. Subsequent to the period, the tenant could only be held to be a tenant at will and could be ejected. KHAYALI v. HUSAIN BAKHSH, 8 A. 198=A.W.N. 1886, 56. [F., 17 C. 548, 9 C.P.L R. 88.]

(266)—Ss. 17, cl. 2, 18, cl. 7 (=Registration Act, XX of 1866, s. 17, cl. 2, s. 18, cl. 7)—Instrument of partition—Registration, option or compulsory.—The registration of a deed of division of immoveable property of the value of more than Rs. 400, executed by members of an undivided Hindu family, is optional under cl. 2, s. 17 of Act XX of 1866, and a suit will not lie to compel registration. PROCEEDINGS, 9TH DECEMBER 1870, 6 M H.C. App 9.

(7)—Ss. 17, 18, 21, 25 and 77 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 18, 21, 24 and 77)—Document evidencing relinquishment of a share by a daughter to her father in his property—Registration—Refusal to register on the ground that the document did not contain sufficient description of the property—Discretion of the Registrar—Jurisdiction of Civil Court—Right of heir to succeed—Vested or contingent estate—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss 6, 19, 21—Indian Succession Act (X of 1865), s. 107.—A document, executed by a daughter in favour of her father (the parties being Mahomedans) provided that in consideration of her receiving Rs. 9,000 she had relinquished all her rights and claims to any property there may be on her father's death. This document was presented to the Sub-Registrar of Bombay for registration; the registration fee was taken and payment thereof was endorsed on the document. The registration was subsequently refused on the ground that the document did not contain a sufficient description of the immoveable property to which it related (s. 21 of the Indian Registration Act, 1877). In a suit under s. 77 of the Act: Held, (1) that the document cannot be treated as relating to property, much less can it relate to immoveable property, capable of being described and identified; and s. 21 of the Act cannot apply to it. (2) That even taking the document as relating to immoveable property, it contains not only a sufficient but the only description that can be given of it. (3) That the document does not fall within the category of any of the documents mentioned in s. 17 of the Indian Registration Act, but that it falls within cl. (d) or cl. (f) of s. 18 of the Act. Where a Sub-Registrar or a Registrar has exercised his discretion under s. 24 or s. 21 of the Indian Registration Act and accepted a document for registration, though subsequently he refuses to register it, the Court in a suit under s. 77 of the Act has no power to enquire into the propriety of his finding and discretion as to such acceptance. The discretion under s. 21 of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, arises only where a non-testamentary document "relates to immoveable property." Where it does not relate, the section cannot apply and the discretion cannot arise. And into this question it is open for a Civil Court to inquire in a suit under s. 77 of the Act. ABDOOL HOOSEIN v. GULAM HOOSEIN, 7 Bom. L.R. 742=30 B. 304.

(268)—Ss. 17, 18, 49, 73, 74, 75—Act XX of 1866, ss. 2, 49, 84—Registration of deeds—Denial of execution.—An instrument acknowledging the payment of the consideration money for what was to be ultimately an absolute sale of the property in question—for what, in equity, did presently operate as a sale of the property—is an instrument, which by Act XX of 1866, s. 2, is required to be registered, and cannot be received in evidence under s. 49 if it has not been registered. Where a person who is alleged to have executed a deed denies before the Registering officer that the deed was executed by him, the Zilla Judge, having regard to the provisions of s. 84 and the form of the petition given in the schedule to the Act, ha jurisdiction to determine such a question. FATI CHAND ZAHU v. LILAMBER SINGH DAS, 9 B.L.R. 433, P C.=16 W.R P C. 26=14 M.I. A. 129=2 Suther. 467=2 Sar. 709. [F., 20 W. R. 291, 22 W.R. 309, 1 B. 190, 2 B. 489; R., 4 B. 126, 7 B. 310; D., 12 B H C. 175, 2 C. 131 =3 I.A. 221=26 W.R. 50 P.C., 9 A. 108, F B.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(269)—Ss. 17, 18, 50 (=Registration Act, 1877), ss. 17, 18, 50, — Registration Act (1871), ss. 18, 50—Registered and unregistered instruments—Priority — Retrospective effect.— Under the Registration Act, 1871, a subsequent registered instrument, compulsorily registered, does not take effect, with respect to the property affected by it, as against a prior unregistered instrument affecting the same property, which is optionally registrable. [F., 7 C. 570; R., 13 B. 229.] The provisions of s. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, have no retrospective effect. BHOLA NATH v. BALDEO, 2 A. 198. [R., 6 B. 168, F.B.]

(270) —Ss. 17, 19 (=Registration Act, 1871, ss. 17, 19)—Assignment of mortgage—Power of attorney.—An assignment in writing of a mortgage for over Rs. 100 whether legal or equitable, required registration under ss. 17 and 49 of the Registration Act. A power of attorney enabling one to recover certain mortgage debts for one's own benefit amounted virtually to an assignment of the mortgage and as such required registration. GANPAT PANDURANG v. ADARJI DADABHAI, 3 B 312. [R, 12 B. 122, 13 A. 89, 17 B. 235, 34 C. 427=4 C.L.J. 495=11 C.W. N. 1.]

(271)—Ss. 17, 21, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss 17, 21 and 49.)—Attorney, power of, to create a charge on immoveable property.—Where a power of attorney was executed by A in favour of B to enable B to recover the rents and profits of the properties of which A was the administrator, in order to pay off an amount advanced by B to A as such administrator: Held, that in as much as the document was entered in Book IV instead of Book I, it was not registered according to the provisions of the Registration Act, and therefore could not affect immoveable property. SRIMATI INDRA BIBI v. JAIN SIRDAR AHIRI, 7 C.L J 149=12 C.W N. 316=35 C. 845. (7 C. 196, R.)

(272)—Ss. 17, 23 to 26 and 77—Agreement optionally registrable—Date of execution, necessity for—Evidence to prove date, admissibility of — Description of property, sufficiency of—Refusal of executant to admit execution—Execution not voluntary—Limit to enforce registration, maintainability of.— Disputes had been going on for a long time between the parties to the present suit regarding the right to collect rents of certain properties. The then Sub-Divisional Officer of the division sent for them and, on their reaching his quarters, the Officer asked them to settle their disputes then and there. The plaintiff offered certain terms and the Sub-Divisional Officer told the defendant, that, unless he accepted those terms, he would be sent to hajut. Ultimately after being confined for nearly the whole of the day in the bungalow of the Officer, without being allowed for bathing and food, the defendant agreed to sign a compromise and an agreement was written out by the Sub Divisional Officer, signed by the plaintiff and the defendant and witnessed by the Sub-Divisional officer and the Assistant Superintendent of Police. The agreement did not contain the date of execution. It gave the names of the Dihis and Chuks of the properties comprised therein and not the names of the districts wherein they were situate. The plaintiff presented the agreement for registration, admitting his execution thereof. The defendant did not appear before the Sub-Registrar and proceedings to enforce his attendance were unavailing. The Sub-Registrar, therefore, admitted the document for registration as regards the plaintiff but refused to do so as regards the defendant. On appeal, the Special Sub-Registrar affirmed the decision of the Sub Registrar. Hence the present suit under s. 77. Held, there is nothing in the Act requiring a document presented for registration to be dated. Documentary or parol evidence would be admissible to prove when, as a matter of fact, a document tendered for registration was executed. In the circumstances of the case, the description of the properties was sufficient (4 M.H C. 91, 18 C. 556, R.) Held, also that, though the agreement was optionally registrable, as the provisions of the Act 'enforcing the appearance of executants and witnesses' are applicable to the case of a document, the registration of which is optional, the refusal of such an executant to admit execution gives rise to a cause of action under s. 77 of the Act. Held, further, that the defendant's signing of the agreement under the circumstances of the case was not an 'execution' thereof within the meaning of the Act, indeed it was no 'execution' at all. Execution means voluntary execution, the signing of the document of the executant's free-will (6 W.R. Mis. 131, 1 B. L R.O.C. 47, 4 M.H.C. 425, D.) Appeal allowed and suit dismissed. CHANDRA KISHORE-MUNSHI v. DINENDRA NATH SANYAL, 1 C.L. J. 126.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(273)—Ss 17, 23 (1, 2), 34, 49, 77 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 23. 34, 49 and 77)—Indian Evidence Act, s. 91—Suit to enforce registration—Registration invalid—Personal covenant on the loan.—Plaintiff instituted a suit for an order to the Sub-Registrar to register a deed of mortgage executed to him by the defendants for money lent, and obtained a decree to the effect, that the defendants "do perform their part of the contract in registering the mortgage bond by appearing within one month after date of the decree before the Sub-Registrar and admitting execution and receipt of consideration therefor; and the Sub-Registrar do on application register the deed, whether the signatories admitted execution and receipt of consideration or not." The deed was registered in accordance with the decree, though it was not presented for registration within the 30 days as directed by the decree. In a suit on the mortgage deed for sale of the mortgaged property, it was held, (1) that as the first suit was not brought under the conditions required for the filing of a suit under s. 77 of the Registration Act, the decree obtained in that case would not have the effect of exempting the document registered under it from the necessity of compliance with the provisions of the Act, (2) that it was competent to the Court to decide as to the validity of the registration, (3) that, as the document in the case was not registered in accordance with the provisions of ss. 23 and 34 of the Act, it could not be received in evidence for affecting the mortgaged property as provided by s. 49 of the Act, (4) that the plaintiff was precluded by s. 91, Evidence Act from proving the existence of the mortgage by any other evidence than the mortgage deed, (5) and that as the deed contained a personal covenant to repay the debt a personal decree for the amount might be passed. MAUNG KYAW AND MA SAN HMWE v. SITHAMBARAM CHETTY, 4 L B R. 88. (3 A. 397, 9 C. 150, 11 Bur. L.R. 166, 20 A. 512, F.; 2 A. 46, 16 A. 303, 2 I.A. 210, 2 C.L R. 428, R.) [R. 4 L.B.R. 263.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(274)—Ss. 17, 28, 49 (= Registration Act, 1877 ss. 17, cl. (c), 28, 49.)—Money bond—Mortgage-deed—Registration—Limitation.—Where a deed of mortgage is registered by a Registering Officer within whose territorial jurisdiction the property mortgaged is not situate, it cannot be effective as a mortgage-deed. But the deed being registered, the person suing thereon will be entitled to a mere money-decree, on the footing that it is a simple registered money-bond, even though the suit is brought more than three years after, but within six years. JOGINEE MOHUN CHATTERJEE v BHOOP NATH GHOSAL, 29 C. 654 = 6 C.W.N. 856. (14 C. 449 = 18 C. 556, Rel on; 7 C.L R. 223, Expl) [Apol., 1 N.L.R. 112; R., 16 C.P L.R 141.]

275)—Ss. 17, 42—See CERTIFICATE OF SALE, 3 M. 37, F.B.

(276)—Ss. 17, 47) (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 47)—Execution—Registration When a registered deed begins to operate — Priority — Non-payment of consideration in full—Mortgage —Right of mortgagee to recover portion of debt advanced.—Defendant No. 1 executed a document to plaintiff on one-anna stamp mortgaging his property to the latter for a sum of money, a part of which was due to the latter by the former and the balance was payable in cash. This deed provided that, within fifteen days, a regularly stamped-mortgage-deed was to be executed and registered. Defendant No. 1, did not attempt to receive the balance from plaintiff; but, on the contrary, sold some portion of the property mortgaged to defendant No. 2 and another portion to defendant No. 3 and registered the deeds. Sometime after, plaintiff got the deed on the one-anna stamp paper executed in his favour compulsorily registered by paying stamp-duty and penalty. Plaintiff now sued to recover so much of the consideration money as was due to him as a debt, by sale of the property mortgaged to him. It was contended for the defence (1) that the deed executed in plaintiff's favour was not a complete mortgage-deed; (2) that the plaintiff was only entitled, under that deed, to get a mortgage-deed at a later date; (3) that the deed on the one-anna stamp could not, and did not create any charge; (4) that the plaintiff's deed having, in any event, been registered after the registration of the deeds in favour of the defendants, Nos. 2 and 3, it was not entitled to priority over them; and (5) that the plaintiff's non-payment of the balance payable in cash affected the nature of the document. Held, (1) that notwithstanding the recital in the deed that, later on, a regularly stamped deed would be executed to plaintiff, the deed executed on the one-anna stamp created an actual mortgage on its date, that the deed evidenced a present demise; that such was the intention of the parties was gatherable from the other terms in the deed and that, consequently, the deed began to operate as a present demise on mortgage from its date (10 B. 101, F.) (2) that the non-payment of the balance did not affect either the nature of the deed or the right of the plaintiff to recover what was originally due to him as a debt on the security of the property, since the defendant had a right, if he chose to assert it, to recover the unpaid mortgage-money; (3) that, on registration, the deed of the plaintiff began to operate, not from the date of registration but from the date of execution thereof (29 B. 42 F.) and (4) that the deed of the plaintiff was, consequently, entitled to priority over those of the defendants Nos. 2 and 3. MOTICHAND v. SAGUN, 29 B. 46.

(277)—Ss. 17, 48 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 48)—Letters embodying contract of sale, not compulsorily registrable under Equitable title under prior contract of sale, effect of notice of, on subsequent purchaser—Receipt passed for consideration received.—In this suit based on the plaintiff's equitable title under a contract for sale, for cancellation of some subsequent sales by his vendor to the defendants and for compelling the vendor to execute the sale agreed to by him, the contract for sale to the plaintiff was proved partly by two letters, and partly by oral evidence of the payment of earnest money to complete the bargain; and the letters were held to be not compulsorily registrable documents within the meaning of s. 17 of the Registration Act (VIII of 1871) and therefore not to be within s. 49 of the same Act, and consequently not excluded by it from being received in evidence. The written receipt passed by the vendor acknowledging payment to him of part of the consideration money was held to fall within cl. 3 of s. 17 of Act VIII of 1871, it having been a distinct acknowledgment of the receipt of consideration on account of the creation of a right, title or interest in immoveable property of value above Rs. 100. The said clause would include within its scope a payment of a part of the consideration as well as a payment of the whole of it. The provision in s. 48 of Act VIII of 1871 that a document, duly registered under it, shall take effect against an oral agreement unaccompanied by possession, cannot be applied to a registered document which has been given, accepted and registered in fraud of a third party, similar to the registered deed given by the first defendant and accepted by the other defendants in this case, with full notice of the prior contract for sale to the plaintiff by the first defendant and with the deliberate intention of defrauding the plaintiff The reason for the exception made by the said s. 48 in favour of an oral agreement accompanied by possession is that, by such possession, the parties who rely on a subsequent registered deed had, or might, if they had been reasonably vigilant, have had, previously to entering into their contract with the vendor and to their taking a conveyance, notice, by the fact of such possession, that there was some prior claim to the property; and consequently, in cases where the subsequent vendees have had actual notice of the previous oral agreement, the above object of the Legislature fully obtains, even when such agreement has not been followed by possession. WAMAN RAMCHANDRA v. DHONDIBA KRISHNAJI, 4 B 126, F.B. [F., 6 C. 534, 13 M. 324; Appr., 13 C 70, 4 L.B R. 26; R., 6 B. 168, F B., 7 C 753, L B.R. 1872—1892. 151, 9 B 427, 9 M. 119, 16 M. 148, 17 B. 235, 27 B 452, 142 P.R. 1908. F.B., 35 C. 34=11 C. W.N 983=6 C L.J. 273, F.B.; D., 9 A. 108, F.B., 71 P.R. 1906=111 P.L.R. 1907.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843) —continued.

(278)—Ss. 17, 48—(Registration Act, ss. 17 (d), 48) — Notice. — The mere registration of a mortgage deed does not affect a subsequent mortgagee with constructive notice of its existence so as to preclude him from claiming priority in respect of his mortgage. MADRAS BUILDING CO. v. ROWLONDON, 13 M. 383. [Appr., 7 C.W.N. 11.]

(279)—Ss. 17, 48—Mofussil property—Mortgage by deposit of title-deeds with creditor's agent in Calcutta—Sub mortgage by deposit of the mortgage-deed does not require registration —See EQUITABLE MORTGAGE, 10 C.W.N. 276=33 C. 410=4 C.L.J. 102.

(280) — Ss. 17, 49 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss 17, 49)—Unregistered mortgage, recital in, admitting liability—Whether admissible in evidence.—A recital in an unregistered mortgage deed, which is sufficiently distinct and separate to be considered as an unqualified admission of a certain liability as subsisting, is admissible as an acknowledgment of the original debt, though, under s. 49 of the Registration

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

Act, it cannot be received as evidence of a transaction affecting the real property. SYAD MUHAMMAD KHAN v. JAISUKH AND JAISUKH v. SYAD MUHAMMAD KHAN, 88 P.R 1880. [Appl., 80 P.R. 1881; R., 20 P.R. 1888; D., 17 P R. 1881.]

(281)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Authority to adopt being in writing and not contained in a Will—Registration compulsory.—An authority to adopt given to a widow by her husband, if it is in writing and not contained in a Will, must be compulsorily registered, and, unless registered, is inoperative to confer such authority. SOMASUNDARA MUDALI v. DURAISAMY MUDALI, 27 M. 30.

(282)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss. 17, 49)—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 259—Execution sale —Sale certificate—Registration—Admissibility in evidence.—A certificate of sale, issued under s. 259 of the Code, is an instrument within the meaning of ss. 17 and 18 of the Registration Act XX of 1866 and as such it requires registration. An unregistered sale certificate is not only inadmissible in evidence but invalid under s. 49 of that Act (Hicks v. Powell, L.R. 4 Ch. 741, R.) When such certificate is not registered, other evidence cannot be let in to prove the sale. PADU MALHARI v. RAKHMAL, 10 B H C. 435. (7 B.H C. 136, R.) [F., 7 B. 254; Appr., 12 B.H.C. 247; R., 12 B. 589; D., 10 B. 444.]

(283)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17 (b), 49)—Award by arbitrator, making partition of immoveable property of over Rs. 100, compulsorily registrable—Secondary evidence of, inadmissible under s. 91, Evidence Act.—Where two co-parceners, by agreement, appointed a sole arbitrator to effect a partition of their joint ancestral property and consented that the partition effected by the arbitrator, by taking the bids of the parties for the property, will be accepted, and the award was thereon made and written up on the back of the said agreement (which was not registered), held, that the document was intended to be, and was regarded by the parties as, an instrument declaring rights in or to immoveable property and that, since it did 'operate to declare' such rights in immoveable property of value exceeding Rs. 100, it was an instrument compulsorily registrable, and being unregistered, not receivable in evidence and that further, by reason of s. 91 of the Indian Evidence Act, it was not open to the parties to prove the partition, independently of the document, by oral evidence aliunde. AJIMAT SINGH v. KALWANT SINGH, 71 P.R. 1906=111 P L. R 1907. (4 B. 126, 13 M. 255, 9 A. 108, 48 P. R. 1905, 175 P L R. 1905, D.)

(284)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17 and 49)—Deed of adoption—Transaction affecting immoveable property.—Held, that an unregistered deed whereby plaintiff relinquished all claims to the land in suit in favour of defendant No. 3, whom in the said deed he expressly acknowledged as the adopted son of one

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

Kutba, could not be admitted in evidence, to prove the relinquishment of right to land, or the admission of adoption, as the consideration for the deed was over Rs. 100, and admission of adoption in such cases is to all intents and purposes equivalent to an acknowledgment of the title of the person named in the deed as adopted to the property comprised in it; the adoption was held to be transaction which very materially affected immoveable property. ALI BAKHSH v. RAUSHAN, P.L.R. 1900, p. 481 = 102 P. R. 1900.

(285)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Compromise recording contract of pre-emption—Not embodied in decree—Not admissible without registration.—A Sulahnama filed in a suit, in so far as it purports to create a right of pre-emption, is a transaction affecting immoveable property, and as such requires registration. Where such a document was not registered, no evidence of its contents could be given to establish a claim of pre emption. KASHI KUNBI v. SUMER KUNBI, 7 A.L.J 206 = 32 A. 206 = 5 Ind. Cas. 234 [R., 13 O.C. 241.]

(286)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Document compulsorily registrable, registered by mistake in Book 4—Mistake not to affect parties—Document to be treated as properly registered—Endorsement releasing mortgaged property for a cash consideration—Endorsements need registration.—A release, whereby a father relinquished his share in the immoveable and moveable property in favour of his son, was presented for registration. The document contained no description of the property released, but it was capable of identification. The release was accepted by the Registrar and registered not in Book I but in Book IV, that is to say, not in the book kept for the registration of documents compulsorily registrable under s. 17 of the Registration Act. Held, that the release must be considered as having been duly registered; since, the error of the Registrar in registering the document in a wrong book should not be allowed to prejudice the parties. At the back of a deed of conveyance, an endorsement was made by the mortgagee that the property covered by the conveyance was released in consideration of the payment by the mortgagor of a sum of money. The endorsement was not registered: Held that, in view of the provisions of s. 49 of the Registration Act, 1877, the endorsement was not admissible in evidence of either the redemption of the property or of the nature of the original transaction between the parties. PARASHARAMPANT SADASHIVPANT v. RAMA YELLAPPA LAKUNDI, 11 Bom. L.R. 1321 = 34 B 202 = 4 Ind. Cas. 588.

(287)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss 17, 49)—Immoveable property not subject-matter of suit—Compromise deed affecting—Non-registration of deed—Effect.—Where, in a prior suit, it was, by the terms of a compromise, settled, inter alia that both the lands sued for then and the lands which form the subject-matter of the present suit should be divided into two moieties and that the plaintiff should take one moiety and the defendant the other, and the agreement of compromise was not registered under Act III of 1877, and where, thereafter, a decree was passed in terms of the compromise so far as it related to the property which was then sued for. Held, that the agreement of compromise could not affect the title to properties now in question on account of its inclusion in the compromise. (20 A. 171, 22 M. 508, Expl.; 28 A. 78, 33 M. 102 = 7 M.L.T. 313, Doubt; 1 C.L.J. 388, 30 C. 783, 36 C. 193, F.; 34 C. 456, D.; 25 M. 553. 29 M. 365, 32 A. 206, 31 A. 13, R.) Where any portion of a razinamah has not passed into a decree or order of Court, a mere recital of it or its inclusion in pleadings put before the Court will not bring it under the terms of s. 17, cl. 1, Registration Act, 1877, and the document cannot affect the immoveable property compromised therein. RAVULAPARTI CHELAMANNA v. RAVULAPARTI RAMA ROW 10 M.L.T 232 = 21 M L.J. 870 = 2 M.W.N. 1911, 265 = 12 Ind. Cas. 317. (15 M. 19, 15 M. 378, 9 C. 586, R.)

(288)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Unregistered hypothecation bond—Admissibility as evidence of money-obligation.—Where, in a bond for money which also charges immoveable property as collateral security for its repayment, the personal covenant is separable from the hypothecating clauses, the bond, though its value exceeds Rs. 100, may be received in evidence to prove the personal liability, though, for want of registration, it may not be admissible to prove and enforce the hypothecation. In the matter of the petition of SHEO PAL v. PRAG DAT MISR, 3 A 229, F.B. [F., A. W.N. 1881, 138, 4 A. 3, 11 C.L.R. 166; R., 4 C.L.J. 510; D., 4 A. 232, 102 P.R. 1900.]

(289)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Unregistered bond for payment of money mortgaging immoveable property—Admissibility of bond in evidence in suit for money—Limitation Act, 1877, sch. II, art. 66.—A bond for the payment of money, by which immoveable property is mortgaged by way of conditional sale as security for a loan, and in which it is provided that interest should be paid annually and the principal at the end of five years, and that in default of such payments, the obligee may apply for foreclosure, involves a personal obligation of the obligor distinct and severable from the obligation in respect of the property, and is therefore, even though unregistered, admissible as evidence in support of a claim to enforce the money obligation. It would also be admissible, in proof of the fact, that the debt was not exigible until after the expiry of five years from the date of the loan. (3 A. 529, F.B., F) [R., 13 M. 281] Art. 66 of sch. II of the Limitation Act is not applicable to a suit to enforce the money obligation contained in such a bond, for it is not a single bond, that is to say, a bill or written engagement for the payment of money, without a penalty. LACHMAN v. KESRI, 4 A. 3 = A.W.N. 1881, 93. [R., 13 M. 281.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(290)—Ss. 17 and 49 (= Registration Act 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Effect of a registered instrument confirming a prior one of the same purport not registered.—An instrument purporting to assign a right in immoveables of more than the value of Rs. 100 (s. 17, sub-s. (b), of Act III of 1877), being unregistered, was ineffectual to affect the title of the purchaser. Some years after, the parties executed a deed of conveyance, making the same assignment, confirming the former instrument, and setting it forth in a schedule. The latter instrument was registered In a suit in which the ownership of the property was contested, held, that the fact of the prior deed not having affected the property, being unregistered, was no reason why the deed afterwards registered should not be admitted as evidence of title. In this there had been nothing contravening the object of the Registration Act. ALEXANDER MITCHELL v. MATHURA DAS, 8 A. 6, P.C. = 12 I A. 150 = 4 Sar. 663. (On appeal from, 4 A. 206.) [F., 4 Bom. L.R. 893.]

(291)—Ss. 17, 49 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17 (d), 49—Covenant in unregistered lease—Suit for specific performance.—Where an unregistered lease of a house for three years contains a covenant by the lessee that on a certain event happening he will purchase the house, and that event happens: the lessor cannot enforce the covenant by a suit for specific performance, as the covenant is part of and dependent on the lease for three years, and therefore cannot be put in evidence for want of registration. SAMBAYYA v. GANGAYYA, 13 M. 308.

(292)—Ss. 17, 49 (= Registration Act, 1866, ss. 17, 49)—Instrument accidentally destroyed by fire soon after execution and before registration—Suit by purchaser to compel vendor to execute another instrument sustainable.—S. 49 of the Registration Act was intended to prohibit the reception in evidence by any Court of an instrument liable to compulsory registration under s. 17 of the Act, which the parties had neglected to register in the manner and within the time required by the other provisions of the Act. But where an instrument the registration of which is compulsory under s. 17 of the Registration Act, is destroyed by fire accidentally soon after its execution and before registration, s. 49 of the Act does not apply, and secondary evidence of the contents of the unregistered instrument is admissible. [F., 14 M. 55.] Where an instrument of sale the registration of which is rendered compulsory by s. 17 of the Registration Act, is destroyed accidentally by fire soon after its execution and before registration, a suit lies by the purchaser to compel the vendor to execute another instrument to the same effect as that which had been destroyed. NYNAKKA ROUTHEN v. VAVANA MAHOMED NAINA ROUTHEN, 5 M.H.C. 123. [R., 20 M. 19, 20 M. 250.]

(293)—Ss. 17, 49 (= Registration Act, 1864, s. 13)—Registration—Evidence.—In a suit for recovery of possession of land on the allegation that it had been sold to the plaintiff by the defendant under a bill of sale which had been duly registered and was not disputed by the defendant, the defendant produced an unregistered ikrarnama by the plaintiff, for proving that the sale was not absolute, but only by way of mortgage, and alleged that the terms of the bill of sale were qualified and explained by the ikrarnama. Held that the ikrarnama was inadmissible in evidence, as it had not been registered under s. 13, Act XVI of 1864, but that the Court might look at other and independent evidence, viz., the acts and conduct of the parties, to throw light on their intention. SHEIKH PARABDI SAHAW v. SHEIKH MOHAMED HOSSEIN, 1 B.L.R A.C. 37. (3 M I.A. 317, R.) [R., 17 M L J. 469.]

(294)—Ss. 17, 49 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Occupancy-tenancy—"Immoveable property"—Mortgage.—The interest of an occupancy-tenant in his holding is an interest in immoveable property. A bond hypothecating such interest is therefore one hypothecating immoveable property, and as such, when its value, estimated by the amount secured, exceeds Rs. 100, must be registered. And a suit based on an unregistered bond of such value for the enforcement of the lien purporting to be created by it, must be dismissed as the bond cannot be received in evidence. NABIRA RAI v. ACHAMPAT RAI, 3 A. 422. (3 A. 157, F.)

(295)—Ss. 17, 49 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Instrument affecting moveable and immoveable property.—An unregistered agreement which provides for the distribution of moveables as well as immoveable properties between certain parties, is not inadmissible in evidence in a suit by one of them for the recovery of his share in the moveables. THANDAVAN v. VALLIAMMA, 15 M. 336 = 2 M.L.J. 130. [F., 4 M.L.T. 354.]

(296)—Ss. 17, 49 (= Registration Act, 1871, ss. 17, 49)—Registration of receipts—Inadmissibility of unregistered receipts—Admissibility of parol evidence, though receipt inadmissible.—A receipt for payments made towards a bond, hypothecating immoveable property, must be registered under s. 17, Limitation Act, 1871. [F., 6 A. 335; Not F., 4 B. 235; Diss., 3 M. 53, 9 A. 108, F B.; R., 24 B. 609, 100 P.R. 1902.] An unregistered receipt is not admissible in evidence to prove the payment, under s. 49, Registration Act. In such a case, parol evidence is nevertheess admissible. DALIP SINGH v. DURGA PRASAD, 1 A. 442.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(297)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss 17, 49)—Registration Act, III of 1877, application of—Covenant for title running with land—Admissibility of unregistered document containing assignment of interest in immoveable property Suit for damages for breach of covenant for title.—The provisions of the Registration Act III of 1877, were held to apply to all documents tendered in evidence on or after 1st April, 1877, when it came into force. A covenant for title running with the land, being in itself a transaction affecting the land within the meaning of s. 49 of the Registration Act, the instrument containing it, if coming within any of the cls. (a) to (d) of s. 17, must be registered before it is admissible in evidence for the purpose of proving the existence of such covenants, unless it comes within the exceptive cls. (e) to (l) of s. 17, and in particular within cl. (h). [R., 13 A. 89; Appl., 18 B. 745; D., 18 B. 92.] An unregistered document containing covenants for title though embodying "a transaction affecting immoveable property," is admissible in evidence in a suit for damages for breach of such covenants, provided that the document is conformable to the requirements of the exceptive cl. (h) of s. 17 of the Registration Act III of 1877. (1 B. 190, D.) But, where the evidence of the covenant is contained in a document itself purporting to assign an interest in immoveable property, and the effect of the covenant itself cannot be got at without looking at the portion of the document which contains the assignment, the document is not excepted by cl. (h) of s. 17 from the necessity of registration, and ought not to be received in evidence, even for the purpose solely of proving the covenant for title. RAJU BABU v KRISHNA RAU RAMACHANDRA, 2 B. 273. [Appl., 18 B. 745; D., 18 B. 92; R., 7 B. 310, 21 B. 704.]

(298)—Ss. 17 & 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, cls (b) & (d), 49)—Lease for quarrying limestone—Admissibility of unregistered lease for quarrying limestone.—In a suit for possession of certain land from which the plaintiff alleged that he had been dispossessed by the defendant, the question was whether two deeds under which the plaintiff and the person through whom he claimed were authorised to quarry limestone from the said land for a certain period required registration. Held, that, the deeds were leases and as such required registration under s. 17, cl. (d) of the Registration Act (III of 1877); that they were inadmissible in evidence; and that under s. 49 of the Act they could not legally be held to "affect any immoveable property comprised" in them, nor could other evidence be given of their contents. SHAIKH KARAM HUSAIN v. RAM GOPAL, 7 O.C. 231

(299)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss. 17, 49)—Mortgage—Evidence.—So far as a byewil-wafa, or deed of conditional sale, is a mortgage, it creates an interest in immoveable property and its registration is compulsory under cl. 2, s. 17 of the Indian Registration Act, but so far as it is a covenant or agreement for the re-payment of the money lent on a particular day, it is not an instrument requiring registration, and it is admissible in evidence notwithstanding the provisions of s. 49. NILMADHAB SING DAS v. FATTEH CHAND SAHU, 3 B L.R. A.C. 310=12 W R. 222. [F., 12 W.R. 435.]

(300)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss. 17, 49)—Registration—Unregistered deed of sale—Admissibility in evidence as receipt.—A bill of sale contains two things, viz., an acknowledgment of the receipt of money, and a conveyance of the property sold, and such a document, though unregistered, is admissible as evidence in the former character. A portion of an unregistered document requiring registration is admissible in evidence, when such portion does not relate to immoveable property. (3 B L.R. A.C 310 Rel. on.) SHIB PRASAD DAS v. ANNA PURNA DAYI, 3 B L.R.A C. 451=12 W. R. 435.

(301)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1864, s 13)—Deed relating to immoveable property—Evidence—Registration.—A deed whereby a defendant undertook to pay monthly a certain sum "for the use and hire of a steam-engine, boiler, and machinery sheds and a bungalow," is one relating to immoveable property. Such a document is not admissible in evidence without registration under s. 13, Act XVI of 1864. WINTERSCALE v. GOPAL CHUNDRA SEAL, 3 B L R. O C 90

(302)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Evidence Act, ss. 62, 64, 65, 91, 99—Secondary evidence of a compulsorily registrable but unregistered document, inadmissible—Transfer of Property Act, s. 56 (b) (6) equitable principle contained in, applied.—Under no circumstances can secondary evidence be admitted as a substitute for inadmissible primary evidence (1 B L R. 58, F.; 7 W.R. 112, R.; 14 M. 55, D.) A compulsorily registrable, but unregistered, deed of sale of specified property cannot affect the property, and cannot be used to prove the sale, though it is admissible for collateral purposes. (26 C. 334, 17 M. 456, 4 M.L J. 199, 14 M. 55, 20 M. 450, R; 1 N. L.R. 47, Commented on.) The plaintiffs, having agreed to convey a house to T, received the purchase-money, executed a sale-deed, which was left unregistered, and subsequently brought a suit for possession of the house. On default of the plaintiffs to produce the sale-deed, secondary evidence was let in to prove the sale, and the suit was dismissed. Held, on second appeal, that, under s. 17 of the Registration Act, the deed was compulsorily registrable, and s. 49 made it inadmissible to prove the sale. S. 91 of the Evidence Act prohibits the admission of secondary evidence of sale

Advocate High Court Jammu & Kashmir Srinagar

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

deed. The whole of s. 65, Evidence Act, presupposed that, but for one or other of the barriers stated therein, the document would have been capable of proving its contents under ss. 64 and 62, Evidence Act. Held, that plaintiffs remained owners of the house. Held, also that had the contract of sale taken place within three years of the suit, the contract might have been a valid defence against plaintiffs' claim for possession. (13 C.P.L.R. 163, F.; 29 M. 336, D., 17 C.P.L.R. 19, R.) Held, also, on the equitable principle contained in s. 56 (6) (b) of the Transfer of Property Act, the plaintiffs must pay back the purchase-money as a condition precedent to the recovery of the house. GANGABISAN v. TUKARAM, 5 N L R. 70=2 Ind. Cas 244. (28 B 466, Appl.; 1 N.L.R. 47, R.) [F., 6 N.L R. 98.]

(303)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1864, s. 13)—Registration—Deed pledging land.—The registration of a bond for the re-payment of money, in which land is pledged as collateral security, is not compulsory under s. 13, Act XVI of 1864. GOPAL PRASAD v. NANDARANI, 1 B L.R. A.C. 192=10 W.R. 252. [F., 6 B. H.C. O C. 134, 3 B L.R. A.C. 310=12 W.R. 222; R., 4 M.H.C. 378]

(304)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Admissibility in evidence—Parol evidence—Partnership.—The plaintiff claimed the lands in suit under two mortgage-deeds executed by the owners in 1860 and 1870 respectively. His case was that these mortgages were in favour of a money-lending firm; that several changes of partners occurred, on which occasions these mortgages were treated as partnership property; that the plaintiff's father S was admitted as a partner as evidenced by three letters dated 1874, A, B and C; that some time after this, P and S remained the only partners and that, on a division between them, these two mortgages were assigned to the share of S, and that by means of partition after S's death they became the sole property of the plaintiff, who claimed as mortgagee in possession. The lands were attached by the first defendant in execution of decrees against one of the mortgagors, and the plaintiff did not succeed in raising the attachment. The plaintiff filed this suit to establish his rights under the two mortgage-bonds. The defendants contended that the plaintiff had no interest under the two mortgage-bonds and that the letters relied on by the plaintiff were not admissible in evidence, not having been registered. Held that there was sufficient parol evidence to show that the plaintiff's father was at first admitted as a partner, and subsequently treated as a partner, and that as such partner the mortgages in question ultimately fell to his share at the final division; that if and when the position of the plaintiff's father as a partner was thus established, his right to the property followed by operation of law and no other proof of title was required. Per Jardine, J.—To lay down that the three letters in question which deal generally with the assets, moveable and immoveable, without specifying any particular mortgage or other interest in real property, require registration, would in the present state of the authorities, go too far. Such letters are not "instruments of gift of immoveable property," but rather disposals of a share in a partnership of which the business is money-lending and the mortgage securities merely incidental thereto. Per Telang, J.—Although a partner's share does not include any specific part of any specific item of the partnership property, still, where the partnership is entitled to immoveable property, such share does include an interest in immoveable property, and, therefore, every instrument operating to create or transfer a right to such a share requires to be registered under the Registration Act. The letters in question, not being registered, are inadmissible in evidence to prove directly a transfer of the share of one of the partners to S. JOHARMAL v. TEJRAM JAGRUP, 17 B. 235.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(305)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17 (d), 49)—Mortgage — Mortgagee with power to assign the lands leasing out in perpetuity — Registration — Second appeal.—A mortgagee with power to assign the lands gave the defendant a lease in perpetuity of the lands in question at a rent of eight annas per acre. Held, the instrument giving the right to hold the land in perpetuity was a lease within s. 17 (d) of the Registration Act, to which the exception referred to in the proviso to the section did not apply, and that the lease, not having been registered, could not under s. 49 of the Act be received in evidence. (27 M. 43, R.) Held, also that it was open to the High Court in second appeal to dispose of the case on the ground of non-registration of the document on which the defendant relied, although the point was not discussed by the lower Courts and it was not clear that the point was taken in the Courts below. SRINIVASA AIYANGAR v. PARTHASARTHY AIYANGAR, 4 M.L.T. 79.

(306)—Ss. 17, 49—Usufructuary mortgage—Receipt acknowledging extinction of interest—Registration—Act VIII of 1871, s. 17, cl. 3—Parol evidence—Receipt.—A receipt by a usufructuary mortgagee acknowledging receipt of consideration of over Rs. 100 for surrendering the mortgaged lands is compulsorily registrable, and is not admissible as evidence for the purpose of affecting the property, without registration. But parol evidence is admissible to prove receipt of money. SOORJO COOMAR BHUTTACHARJEE v. BHUGWAN CHUNDER ROY, 24 W.R. 328.

(307)—Ss. 17, 49—Act XX of 1866, s. 17, cl. 4—Unregistered kubooleut suit on, whether maintainable—Liability of tenant.—The registration of a kubooleut for a house when its term exceeds 12 months is compulsory, as it is defined in s. 2 of Act XX that a kubooleut is a lease within the meaning of the Act; and consequently, a person cannot sue for the rent stipulated to be paid under such a kuboolent when it has not been registered. But the person in possession of the house is bound to pay reasonable compensation for the use and occupation of it, although no strict legal tenancy has been created by the unregistered document. PUROMA SOONDUREE DOSSEE v. PROHLAD CHUNDER DASS, 12 W.R. 289.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(308)—Ss 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Contract for sale of land not registered— Subsequent sale in execution of decree—Payment of earnest money at time of contract—Subsequent execution of conveyance—Rights of vendee.—The defendants claimed the land in suit under an unregistered contract for sale of the same dated 22-1-1891. In execution of a decree against the owners of the land, the land was attached on 11-2-1891 and sold to the plaintiff at Court auction in 1892. Held, that the contract for sale not having been registered as required by s. 17, cl. (b), of the Registration Act (III of 1877) it would not in any way affect the land contracted to be sold thereunder. It would not operate to transfer the ownership and it cannot be received in evidence of any transaction affecting the land, i.e, it cannot be used to show that the ownership had passed from the vendor to the purchaser. So, at the time the property was attached in execution of the decree, it was the property of the judgment-debtors, and the plaintiff being the purchaser thereof at Court auction, had a good title thereto. [D, 24 B 400=2 Bom. L R 220, 26 A 266=A.W. N. 1904, 8.] A contract for sale of a certain land reciting that, on the date thereof, Rs. 100 had been received as earnest-money, and providing that, within 2 months, the vendors should execute a proper conveyance and thereupon receive the balance of the purchase money and give up possession of the property sold, falls within cl. (h) of s. 17 of the Registration Act (III of 1877). It does not create any right, title or interest in immoveable property, but merely creates a right to obtain another document, and gives the vendee a right against the vendor personally to call for a conveyance and possession on paying the balance of the purchase-money. HORMASJI MANEKJI DADACHENJI v. KISHEN PURSHOTEM, 18 B. 13.

(309)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1871, ss. 17, 49)—Agreement for purchase of immoveable property contemplating a future conveyance—Payment of earnest-money.—A "bargain paper" for the purchase of immoveable property worth more than Rs. 100, under which the execution of a future conveyance is to be made, need not be registered. JUSAB HAJI JAFAR v. HAJI MUHAMMAD, 12 B.H.C. 175. [F., 4 C.L.R. 257; D., 1 B. 190; R., 7 B. 310.]

(310)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1871, ss. 17, 49)—Suit on covenant in compulsorily registrable, but unregistered, mortgage-deed—Inadmissibility in evidence.—Where the plaintiff sued for a money-decree on a covenant in a compulsorily registrable, but unregistered, mortgage-deed, the deed, being in its terms indivisible and disclosing one transaction only, which the plaintiff must necessarily prove for making out his case, was held inadmissible in evidence, altogether, to prove a fact, for which registration is not necessary. 4 B.L.R., 18, F.B., distinguished on the ground that it was decided under the provisions of Act XX of 1866 and that the document in that case was divisible in its nature. MATTONGENEY DOSSEE v. RAM NARAIN SAD KHAN, 4 C. 83=2 C L.R 428. [D, 5 C. 611, 3 A. 229, F.B., 11 C.L.R. 166, 15 M. 253, 15 M 336; R., 6 A 335=A.W. N 1884, 107, 13 M. 281, 13 A. 89; Diss., 4 C.L.J. 510.]

(310 a)—Ss. 17, 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 49)—Registered kabuliat—Rent it can be varied up by unregistered document—Letter reducing rent, if admissible—Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), s. 29—If such letter may be granted by guardian.—A document, which embodies an agreement for reduction in the amount of rent under a previously existing registered lease, requires registration. (12 Ind. Cas 723=39 C. 284=16 C W.N. 55=14 C.L.J. 411, F.) The defendants executed a registered kabuliat in favour of the plaintiffs for 1304 to 1309 inclusive. In Assin 1310, the defendants obtained a letter from the plaintiffs' naib and certificated guardian by which the rent was reduced from Rs. 87 odd to Rs. 37 odd, on the ground that the entire land was not fit for cultivation: Held, that the letter required registration, and not being registered, it could not be received as evidence of any transaction affecting property under s. 49 of the Registration Act. Obiter dictum:—The plaintiffs' guardian was within his rights in writing a letter of this nature, as the transaction appeared to be a lease for a period not exceeding five years, and, therefore, was not forbidden by s. 29 of the Guardians and Wards Act. GANENDRA MOHAN CHOWDHURY v. GYA PROSAD TEWARI, 16 Ind. Cas 52.

(311)—Ss. 17, 49—See HINDU LAW—ADOPTION, 27 M. 30.

(312)—Ss. 17 and 49—Unregistered lease—Admissibility to prove adverse possession—See LIMITATION—GENERAL, 17 M L.J. 469=3 M.L.T. 187.

(313)—Ss. 17, 49—Document severable in parts—Some parts not requiring registration—Admissibility in evidence—Agreement between mortgagee and mortgagor for managing mortgaged property for remuneration—Registration—See MORTGAGE—REDEMPTION, 13 Bom. L.R. 162.

(314)—Ss. 17 and 49—Mortgage with possession—Second mortgage by an unregistered deed to secure a fresh advance—Delivery of property—Necessity for registration—See MORTGAGE—REDEMPTION, 11 O.C. 248.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843) —continued.

(315)—Ss. 17, 49—Deed effecting or declaring partition—Registration—See PARTITION—GENERAL, 6 Ind. Cas. 346=12 C.L.J. 25.

(316)—Ss. 17, 49—See RIGHT OF SUIT—MISCELLANEOUS, 3 M.H.C. 342.

(317)—Ss. 17 and 49—Registration of sale deed in Berar—See SALE—GENERAL, 3 N.L.R. 72.

(318)—Ss. 17 and 49—Aposhnama setting off one decree against another — Registration—Admissibility in evidence—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 118, 11 C.W.N. 342.

(319)— Ss. 17 (b), 49 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17 (b), 49)—Assignment of mortgage-decree—Evidence, admissibility of deed of assignment in.—A deed of assignment of a mortgage-decree is not compulsorily registrable, even though the consideration for the assignment is more than Rs. 100, the subject of the assignment (i.e., the decree) not being immoveable property. [F., 12 C.W.N. 625; Not F., 1 P.R. 1906=190 P.L.R. 1905.] A deed of assignment of a mortgage-decree is admissible in evidence, without registration, under s. 49, Act III of 1877. GOUS MAHOMED v. KHAWAS ALI-KHAN, 23 C. 450 (1 B. 267, Diss.; 9 A. 108, R.)

(320)—Ss. 17 (b) and 49—Compromise reciting previous agreement—"Declare" meaning of—Admissibility in evidence.—The word "declare" in s. 17 (b) is equivalent to "define" or "authoritatively set forth" and a mere recital of the fact which had already contracted about does not tantamount to a 'declaration' or assignment, etc., of a right to or in immoveable-property. WAZIR ALI v. ASA RAM, 95 P.R. 1894. [R., 48 P.R. 1905, 27 P.R. 1906=11 P.L.R. 1906; Cons. & D., 71 P.R. 1906=111 P.L.R. 1907.]

(321)—Ss. 17 (d) and 49 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 17, cl. (d), and s. 49)—Agreement for lease — Evidence. — A document although it purports to be a mere agreement for a lease, does require registration under cl. (d) of s. 17 of the Registration Act, 1877, if the agreement in question operated as a present demise, and without such registration is inadmissible in evidence under s. 49 of the Act. The circumstance of the document providing for a pucka agreement to be drawn in future, no doubt, may have an important bearing on the question whether an actual demise was intended, but it is not conclusive. The question always depends on the paramount intention of the parties to be gathered from the agreement as a whole. In the present case, the agreement in question dated 8th October, 1882, provided that the lease was to commence from the 1st October—a date already passed,—and that the rent was to commence from that day. It was, therefore, held to operate as a present demise and hence that it could not be used in evidence without registration. PURMANANDAS JIWANDAS v. DHARSEY VIRJI, 10 B. 101. [Not F., 14 C.W.N. 65, 11 C.L.J. 548; R., 6 Bom. L.R. 690=29 B. 46; D., 13 C.W.N. 326.]

(322)—Ss. 17, cl. (2), 49 (=Registration Act, 1871, ss. 17, cl. (2), 49) — Mortgage. — For the purposes of registration, the value of the interest created by a mortgage of immoveable property is not the amount of the principal, but such amount with the interest thereon payable at the time fixed in the bond. RAJPATI SINGH v. RAM SUKHI KUAR, 2 A. 40 (1 A. 274, F.; 2 B. 353, Diss.; 1 M. 378, Differed from) [Diss., 5 M. 214; F., 2 A. 688.]

(323)—Ss. 17 (2, 3) and 49 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 17, cls. 2, 3 and s. 49)—Acknowledgment of receipt of consideration.—A document acknowledging the receipt of Rs. 100, part of the consideration money, though contemplating the execution, in futuro, of a deed of sale of certain immoveable property, operates of itself to create an interest in the property of the value of Rs. 100 and upwards, and, therefore, under cls. 2 and 3 of s. 17 of the Act, requires registration; and cannot be admitted in evidence under s. 49 of the Act, if unregistered, in a suit for compelling the execution of the sale deed. VALAJI ISAJI v. THOMAS, 1 B. 190. (12 B.H.C. 175, 7 B.H.C. 67, 11 B.L.R. 405, D.) [F., 1 B. 197; Appl., 2 B. 489, 5 M. 115; R., 7 B. 310; D., 2 B. 273, 4 B. 126, F.B., 5 C.P.L.R. 102.]

(324)—Ss. 17, 49, 18 (=Registration Act, 1864, ss. 13, 16)—Lease for more than a year.—A lease-deed was in the following terms:—"I, P, having taken (premises described) on a monthly rent of one and a half annas, for my personal use as a dwelling, it is agreed that I shall pay the aforesaid rent month by month. Secondly, if I find it necessary to erect any fresh buildings on the aforesaid premises, I shall do so from materials found on the spot at my own expense; the owner of the premises shall have nothing to do therewith. Should I neglect to pay the aforesaid rent, the owner shall be at liberty to realize the same, and have the premises vacated, and at such time I shall have no claim as regards the buildings erected as aforesaid by me, nor shall I raise any objection or excuse thereabout; and if the landlord finds it necessary to have the premises (buildings and land) vacated, he shall give me fifteen days' prior notice. I shall thereupon vacate the premises immediately and pay all such arrears of rent as may then be due without any objection or excuse. I have received back two former leases which I have destroyed. Held that the lease was not for a period exceeding a year, and therefore did not require registration. HANSO v. HAR NARAIN, A.W.N. 1886, 115, F.B.

(325)—Ss. 17 (h), 50 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, ss. 17 (h), 50)—Unregistered agreement, reciting an agreement to sell immoveable property—Admissibility—Specific Relief Act, s. 27—Subsequent transferee with knowledge of prior contract—Suit to enforce specific performance.— An unregistered agreement on an one-anna stamp, reciting an agreement to sell immoveable property and acknowledging receipt of earnest money, comes within s. 17 (h), Act III of 1877, and is admissible in evidence notwithstanding non-registration. If, in a suit for specific performance, a prior unregistered agreement to sell, coming within s. 17 (h), Act III of 1877, is opposed by a later registered sale-deed relating to the same property, the latter deed cannot prevail over the former, if the vendee took his sale-deed with notice of the prior unregistered agreement. HURNANDUN SINGH v. JAWAD ALI, 27 C. 468. [R., 15 P.R. 1908=27 P.W.R. 1908=97 P.L.R. 1908.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(326) — Ss. 17, 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17, 50)— Mortgage— Value of mortgage — Deed for purposes of registration — Registered and unregistered documents.—Held by the majority of the Full Bench (Straight and Oldfield, JJ., dissenting)—For the purpose of deciding whether a mortgage of immoveable property is optionally or compulsorily registrable, its value must be considered to be the principal sum secured by it. (3 A. 157, F.B., Overruled). Held, accordingly, by the Division Bench, that, under s. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, a document compulsorily registrable under the Registration Act, 1871, which was registered under that Act, had priority, as regards the property comprised in it, over another document relating to the same property, which was optionally registrable under that Act, and was not registered. HABIBULLAH v. NAKCHED RAI, 5 A. 447, F B.=A. W.N. 1883, 87. [R., 23 M. 105, 4 N.L.R. 90.]

(327) — Ss. 17 and 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 17 and 50)—Registration—Notice— Possession.—Registration operates only as a constructive notice; this notice, however, does not extend to the unregistered document recited on the registered document. Per Batty, J.—(1) Possession amounts to notice of such title as the person in possession may have, and any other person who takes a mortgage or other charge upon, or purchases, immoveable property without ascertaining the nature of the claim of him in possession, does so at his own risk. (2) The general consensus of opinion of all the High Courts in India is that possession is at least very cogent evidence of notice, which a purchaser cannot with safety disregard; and that s. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, does not do away with the effect of notice in favour of the registration to which ceteris paribus it gives preference. The result of the Bombay decisions is that no purchaser can protect himself merely by registering his document of title, against the title of a person in possession of the subject-matter, and if he ignores that possession and fails to make inquiry into its nature and origin, he will be affected by all the equities which the person in possession is proved to have. In Bombay decisions, the reason for withholding preference from the subsequent registered purchase is based not on the doctrine that registration is constructive notice, for the prior alienation was in most of them unregistered, but upon the long established and undisputed principle that a purchaser is always bound by all the equities of a third party in possession, because possession presupposes title and, therefore, is notice which ought to put a purchaser on enquiry. TAJUDIN v. GOVIND, 5 Bom. L. R. 144=27 B. 452.

——S 18 (=s. 18 of 1877=s. 18 of 1871=s. 18 of 1866=s. 16 of 1864).

(328)—S. 18 (=Registration Act, 1864 s. 16, cl. 7,—"Deed, bond, contracts or obligation" scope of the expression under —Promissory note —Limitation Act (XIV of 1859) s. 1, cl. 10 —The expression "deed, bond, contracts or obligation" in cl. 7, s. 16 of Act XVI of 1864, is not limited in its application, but includes a promissory note, which must, therefore, be registered. A promissory note, executed at a time when Act XVI of 1864 was in force, is governed, in respect of limitation, by the provisions of cl. 10, s. 1, Act XIV of 1859. THE OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE ON BEHALF OF PEARY CHAND MITTER v. A. B. FRASER, 14 W R. O. C. 51.

(329)—S. 18 (=Registration Act, 1866, s 18) —Simple bond—Interest in immoveable property —Collateral security Evidence—Registration —Where an instrument purports to create an interest in immoveable property only as a collateral security, and is also a simple contract of bond for the payment of the principal debt, and the instrument is sought to be given effect to as a simple contract only, it is admissible in evidence in a suit to recover the debt, though it is unregistered. So far as it is a contract for the payment of money, it is an instrument the registration of which is made optional by s. 18, Act XX of 1866. VELLAYA PADYACHY v. MOORTHY PADYACHY, 4 M. H.C. 174 [Overruled, 4 M.H.C. 378, F.B.; F., 6 B.H C. 134, 7 B.H.C 1, 9 C. 520, F.B.; R., 13 M. 281, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 124]

(330)—S. 18—See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS—PROMISSORY NOTES, 6 B.L.R. App. 40=14 W.R.O.C. 51.

(331)—S. 18—See NOS. 36, 256 TO 269, 324, supra.

(332)—Ss. 18, 19 and 49— See PLAINT—AMENDMENT OF PLAINT, 68 P R. 1886.

(333) — Ss. 18, 50 (= Registration Act, 1866, s. 18, cls. 1 and 2, and s. 50) —Registered instrument and unregistered instrument only optionally registrable—Priority.—Under s. 50, a registered instrument, the registration of which was compulsory, has no effect against a prior unregistered instrument, the registration of which was optional, being for a sum

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

under Rs. 100. SHAIKH RYASUTULLA v. DOORGA CHURN PAL, 15 B.L.R. 294=24 W.R. 121. [F., 4 C. 536=3 C.L.R. 434 ; R., 5 C. 336=4 C. L.R. 257, 7 C. 753=10 C.L.R, 129.]

(334)—Ss. 18 and 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 18 (a) and 50)—Registered sale-deed—Prior unregistered mortgage—Priority.—Under ss. 18 (a) and 50, a registered sale-deed prevails over the prior unregistered mortgage. ARTHA NAHAKO v. BHAGAWAN NAHAKO, 4 M.L.T. 64.

——S. 19 (=s. 19 of 1877=s. 19 of 1871=s. 19 of 1866=s. 24 of 1864.)

(335)—S. 19 (d) (=Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 19, cl. (d))—Exemption of certain documents executed by or in favour of Government.—A letter from the Agent to the Governor-General to the Nawab of Murshidabad announcing the latter's position and income and informing him that he was to have State lands and jewels, held, to be exempt from Registration, as it operated as a grant by Government. HASSAN ALI v. CHUTTURPUT SINGH DUGARH, 19 C. 742. (9 C. 704, F.)

(336)—S. 19—See Nos. 270, 332, supra, and No. 788, infra.

——S. 20 (=s. 20 of 1877=s. 20 of 1871=s. 20 of 1866=s. 35 of 1864.)

(336-a)—Ss. 20, 55, 59, 73 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss. 20, 60, 67, 84)—Dispute—Reference to District Court—Denial of receipt of part consideration, no ground for refusal by District Court—One of two instruments describing property by reference to the other—No ground for refusing registration—Question under Act—Intention and not technical forms should be considered—Refusal of executing party to attest apparent alteration of instrument after execution—No ground for refusing registration.—Where an executing party to a document appears before the registering officer and admits execution, but refuses to sign on the back of the instrument as admitting the execution or do any other act towards its registration, the registering officer cannot, without the order of the District Court under s. 84 of Act XX of 1866, proceed with the registration of the instrument, as the provisions of ss. 60 and 67 could not be complied with. Denial of the receipt of part of the consideration money by the executing party is not a sufficient ground for the District Court refusing registration under s. 84 of the Act. Where two instruments are contained on the same paper, and relate to the same property, and are both presented for, and in all other respects are entitled to, registration, it is not a sufficient ground for refusing registration that in the second document the property is described only by reference to the first. As the Registration Act is applicable generally throughout India, it would not have been the intention of the Legislature that the right to registration should depend in any case upon the use of any formal or technical expressions in the instruments offered for registration; whenever any question arises under the Act as to the nature or effect of any instrument, or the sufficiency of any description contained in it, the Court must endeavour to gather from the words used what the parties intended by them, and give effect to that intention just as if it had been expressed in the most formal and technical manner. Although a discretion is given by s. 20 to the registering officer, the exercise of that discretion is manifestly subject to review by the District Court upon a petition under s. 84, and where there is no suggestion that there has been any improper alteration of the instrument after execution, and the only difficulty arises from the refusal of the executing party to attest an apparent interlineation, blank, erasure or alteration, the Court ought not to refuse registration on that ground. The interlineation does not of itself render the document non-registrable. In the petition of T. VENKATASAMI NAIK, 4 M.H.C. 101.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(337)—Ss. 20 and 72—Refusal to register—No appeal.—If the Sub-Registrar merely refused to take up the document for registration, no appeal will lie to the Registrar against the order. VELAMBAL ACHI v. GOVINDASAMI ODAYAR, M.W.N. 1912, 452=15 Ind. Cas. 370. (5 C.L.R. 517, R.)

——S. 21 (=s. 21 of 1877=s. 21 of 1871=s. 21 of 1866.)

(338)—S. 21 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 21)—Errors in description of the property—Sufficient identification—Registration not vitiated.—The registration of a document is not vitiated, merely by an error in the description of the property, if the description is sufficient to identify it. PARSOTAM DASS v. PATESRI PARTAB NARAIN SINGH, 11 A.L J. 241=18 Ind. Cas. 923=35 A. 250. (10 A.L J. 33, R.)

(338-a)—S. 21—See Nos. 267, 271, supra, and NO. 788, infra.

(339)—Ss. 21 and 22 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, ss. 21, 22)—Sufficiency of description of property—Necessity for description of local character—Deed of partition—Necessity for schedule of property.—The description of property, in order to be sufficient within the meaning of s. 21 of the Registration Act, need not be of a local character ; it is enough if it be sufficient to identify the property. A deed of partition of "family properties" between a father and his sons was presented for registration. The Registrar thought that a schedule of the properties was necessary and required the parties to supply the deficiency. When the schedule was added, one of the sons refused to sign the schedule. He, however, admitted execution of the document. The Registrar having refused registration of the document on the ground that there was not a sufficient description of the properties in it, a suit was brought for compulsory registration thereof

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

Held that the description of the properties as "family property" was sufficient and the instrument by itself without the schedule should have been registered. NARASIMHA NAYANEVARU v. RAMALINGAMA RAO, 10 M. L.J. 104 [Appl., 31 B. 202=11 Bom. L.R. 1321=4 Ind. Cas. 588.]

(340)—Ss. 21, 22, 76 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 21, 22, 76)—Refusal to register—Suit to enforce registration—"Sufficient to identify the same"—Jai dad—Scope of s. 21—Letter relating to immoveable property.—The provisions of s. 21, Registration Act, are positive and imperative, and not merely directory. The object of registering a document is to give notice to the world that a document has been executed and is in force. The object of the statute would be to a great extent nullified, and innocent persons would be exposed to great hardship and loss, if the words could be treated as purely directory. Hence, where a letter purported to transfer immoveable property and was presented as a non-testamentary document for registration, which was refused on the ground that it contained no description of the property "sufficient to identify the same," held that the refusal was under the circumstances proper. MAULVI SAYID MAHMUD v. MUHAMMAD ZUBAIR, 6 A.L.J. 627=6 M.L.T. 5 =3 Ind. Cas. 506=31 A. 523.

(341)—Ss. 21, 25, 34, 74, 77 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 21, 25, 34, 74, 77)—Document referring to prior document—Both documents whether registrable as one—Exercise of discretion by Registrar under s. 24, Court cannot enquire into—Second period for presentation given by s. 34.—Exhibit A in this case was an agreement of equitable mortgage of lands and exhibit B was an agreement to register A and in case of failure to do so to pay up the amount secured by A. Registration of A was not effected. Document, Exhibit B, was presented for registration subsequent to four, but within eight months from its date and was accepted for registration under s. 24 of the Act. On denial of execution by the defendant, registration was refused as against him. On suit filed under s. 77 of the Registration Act, decree was passed directing registration, and such decree was held not to be erroneous merely because of its not containing the particulars prescribed by s. 21. The agreement Exhibit B was a personal agreement on the part of the signatories to register a certain specified document. It was a mere personal covenant to do a particular act in reference to another document and did not itself constitute a document "relating to immoveable property" within the meaning of s. 21 of the Registration Act. With regard to the objection that the Registrar should not have directed that the document should be accepted for registration after the lapse of four months from its execution without inquiring whether the non-presentation within four months was owing to urgent necessity or unavoidable accident, it was held that it was not competent to the Court to inquire, under ss. 74 and 77 of the Act, into the propriety of a direction under s. 24 made by a Registrar that a document shall be accepted for registration. As to the other objection that the plaintiff did not, as required by s. 34 of the Act, appear before the registering officer within the extended time allowed by s. 24, the Court decided that the proviso to s. 34 allows an applicant a further period of four months within which to appear, subject to the conditions set out in the proviso. In the result, there was no ground of objection established to the decree so far as it directed registration. With regard to the further direction that Exhibit A was to be copied into the register as an annexure to Exhibit B, it was held that if A was in the nature of a schedule or appendix to B, the two documents could be registered as one, but as they were two essentially distinct documents separately stamped and executed to effect different objects, the decree ought not to have directed that Exhibit A should be registered as an annexure to Exhibit B and it should, therefore, be varied to that extent. TULLOKCHAND v. GOKULBHOY, 21 B. 724. (Appeal from Fulton, J., 21 B. 69.) [Appl., 30 B. 304=7 Bom. L.R. 742; R., 22 B. 849, 21 P.L.R. 1900.]

(342)—Ss. 21, 28, 35, 49, 60 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, ss. 21, 28, 35, 49, 60)—Registration made in contravention of the Act—Description of property erroneous and misleading.—Held, by a majority of the Full Bench.—Registration made in contravention of the provisions of the Registration Act would be invalid. Non-compliance with the provisions of s. 21, such as description of property, covered by an instrument, so erroneous and misleading as to be insufficient for purposes of identification, and want of territorial jurisdiction in the officer registering the document, will render registration invalid and of no effect. A mere endorsement to the effect that the document was registered could not render the registration valid for the purposes of affecting the immoveable property covered by the instrument. A party, presenting a document for registration, should not be made liable for the mistake of the Sub-Registrar. Per Petheram, C.J., contra.—Inasmuch as the document had been registered by the Sub-Registrar of Bhagalpur, who exercised and performed the duties of the Registrar of Bhagalpur, and to whom the Sub-Registrar of Bankura was subordinate, the want of jurisdiction under the circumstances might be regarded as removed; the provisions of s. 28 of the Act being directory only, the registration of the document was valid. The description of the property was in fact sufficient to identify the property. BAIJ NATH TEWARI v. SHEO SAHOY BHAGU, 18 C. 556, F.B. [F., 29 C. 654=6 C.W.N. 856, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 577; Appl., 1 N.L.R. 112; R., 18 M. 364, 16 C.P.L.R. 141=11 Bom. L.R. 1321; Diss., 1 C.L.J. 126; D., 23 M. 580, 6 C.W.N. 329, 3 C.L.J. 165.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(343)—Ss 21, 39, 73 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss. 21, 40, 84)—Duty of Court—" The revenue officer in whose jurisdiction the person whose attendance is desired may be," meaning of.—The only two things which, by s. 21 Act XX of 1866, are absolutely required as conditions without compliance with which registration is prohibited, are 1st, that the instrument shall contain a description of the property sufficient to identify it; and, 2ndly, that if the instrument contains a map or plan, then, a copy or copies of that map or plan shall accompany the instrument when presented for registration. The other provisions of the section are directory only, indicating the intention of the Legislature as to the kind of description ordinarily to be required, but not importing the absolute necessity of strict compliance therewith in order to entitle an instrument to registration, if the description which is given be sufficient to indentify the property. [R., 1 C.L J. 126.] Upon a petition under s. 84 of Act XX of 1866, the Court is bound to ascertain whether the description is sufficient to identify the property, notwithstanding the failure to supply some particular point mentioned either in s. 21 or the rules. It is not necessary that the executing party should attend in Court, pursuant to the notice served upon him under s. 84, in order to authorize the Court to order the registration of the instrument. The Court is not bound under s. 84 to direct registration of the instrument even if satisfied that the requirements of the law have been complied with. But, in the exercise of this discretion, the Court ought not to refuse registration unless very clearly satisfied that the registration will work injustice. The verified statement, in the petition for registration, of the execution of the instrument, is not, when the executing party fails to appear in Court, sufficient proof of the execution, in order that the Court may direct registration. The words in s. 40 of Act XX of 1866, " The Revenue Officer in whose jurisdiction the person whose attendance is desired may be," mean the chief Revenue Officer of the district, viz., the Collector, or, if, in any defined sub-district, a Sub-Collector has all the powers of the Collector, then, in that sub-district, the Sub-Collector. In the matter of the petition of NARAINASAMI PILLAI, 4 M.H.C. 91.

(344)—Ss. 21, 48, 49, 51 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, ss. 21, 48, 49, 51)—Certificate of registration, effect of—Non-observance of provisions of s. 21—Rights of third parties how far affected.—The word " registered " in s. 49 of the Registration Act has reference only to the act of registration by the registration officer. A certificate required by s. 60 renders the document admissible in evidence. The mere fact of registration is not, however, sufficient to cure defects arising from non-observance of the requirements of s. 21, so as to affect property not specifically described and which has passed into the hands of third parties, though, as against the executant of the document, it might be enforceable on the principle certem est quod certum reddi potest. Where the cousin of a deceased Hindu executed an agreement in favour of the latter's widow relinquishing in her favour all his rights in the self-acquired property of the deceased, and the agreement was registered in book No. 4 without sufficient description of the property concerned, the purchaser of the property from the cousin was preferred to the purchaser from the widow. NARASAMMA v. SUBBARAYUDU, 18 M. 364. [R., 16 C.P.L.R. 141; D., 23 M. 580.]

(345)—Ss. 21, 60, 88 (=Registration Act, III of 1877, ss. 21, 60, 88)—Description of property written at foot of document and signed by assignee only—Registrar accepting it and registering it—Effect.—S. 21 of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, does not particularise where the description shall be contained. Where the description of the property was only given at the foot signed by the assignee, but the Registrar thought that the provisions of the law were sufficiently complied with, and the document was registered and a certificate to that effect was given under s. 60 of the Act, held that the error in accepting the document for registration, if error there was, could not be held to invalidate the registration. It was not the intention of the Legislature that every registration of a deed should be null and void by reason of a non-compliance with the provisions of ss. 19, 21 or 36 of other similar provisions. It is rather to be inferred that the Legislature intended that such errors or defects should be classed under the general word " defect in procedure" in s. 88 of the Act, so that innocent and ignorant persons should not be deprived of their property through any error or inadvertence of a public officer on whom they would naturally place reliance. SHEKH ADAM ISUFBHAI v. JAMNADAS RANCHORDAS, 17 B. 94. (15 B.L.R. P.C., 228, 11 A. 319, R.).

——S. 22 (=s. 22 of 1877=s. 22 of 1871.)

(346)—S. 22—See Nos. 339, 340, supra.

——S. 23 (=s 23, paras. 1 and 2 of 1877= s. 23 of 1871=ss. 22 and 23 of 1866= ss. 17 to 20 of 1864).

(347)—*S.*23 (=Registration Act XVI of 1864, ss. 15, 18) — Registration of documents after expiry of period prescribed—Power of Registrar. —Under Act XVI of 1864, a Registrar could not register a document after the expiry of the time specified in s. 18, whether under a decree of Court or otherwise, except in cases which came under the provisions of s. 15 of that Act. MONMOHINEE DOSSEE v. BISHEN MOYEE DOSSEE, 7 W.R. 112. [Appr., 10 W. R. 51=1 B.L.R. F.B., 58; Rel. on, 5 N.L.R. 70=2 Ind. Cas. 244, 7 B.H.C.O.C. 45, 9 B. H.C. 121.]

(348)—S. 23—Registration of mortgage out of time by altering date—Lessee from executant

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

if may question validity of mortgage registered out of time—Estoppel—Where a mortgage-deed had been presented for registration more than four months after the date of its execution and its registration had been secured by the executant altering the date of the instrument. Held, that, even assuming that the deed had been wrongly registered, there being no fraud, the mortgagor would be estopped from taking the objection. Held, further, that lessees from the mortgagor who took their leases after the registration of the mortgage are, in the absence of fraud, equally estopped with the mortgagor from taking the objection. GOPAL CHANDRA CHUCKERBUTTY v. SURENDRO KUMAR ROY CHOWDHURY, 16 C.W.N. 585.

(349)—S. 23—Registration Act, XVI of 1864—Suit to enforce registration—Presentation for registration in time, necessary to support suit.—A suit to compel the registration of a deed cannot be maintained in respect of a deed which has not been presented for registration within 4 months from the date of its execution. OOJUL MUNDUL v. HERASUTOOLLAH MUNDUL, 7 W.R. 150.

(350)—S. 23—Act XVI of 1864, s. 17—Refusal to register deed of sale—Suit to enforce registration when maintainable against vendor—Express condition or contract to register.—This suit was brought to compel the registration of a deed of sale. The lower Courts held that, as the value of the property was under Rs. 100, registration was not compulsory, and dismissed the suit. The High Court further observed that the law nowhere provides that, if the Registrar, for any cause, refuses to register a document presented for registration under Act XVI of 1864, it is open to the applicant to bring a suit against his vendor to enforce registration, unless there be an express condition in the document itself or any other contract to register. MUSST. SOORNUM BUTTY v. MUSST. BOODHESSUREE, 10 W.R. 313.

(351)—S. 23—See Nos. 272, 273, supra, and No. 788, infra.

(352)—Ss. 23 and 24—See CIV. PRO. CODE, 1859, s. 272, 6 B L.R. 174=14 W.R. 363.

(353)—Ss. 23, 24, 34, 71, 76, 73 (=Registration Act, VIII of 1871, ss. 23, 34, 71, 73)—"Refusal to register"—Duty of Registrar.—S. 34 does not expressly say that in the event of the parties not appearing before the Registrar within the time allowed he is to "refuse to register" the document. It merely says that the document shall not be registered. It is clear, however, that in such a case, when the document has been presented in due time, the registering officer must "refuse to register," just as in cases falling under the latter clauses of s. 35, and must record the reasons for the refusal. The order of refusal should be made at once, as soon as it is apparent that the prescribed time has gone by, and the executing parties have not appeared. The party desiring registration must be taken to have known the time within which registration ought to be completed, and should apply to the Registrar at once, either to register, or refuse to register, so as to enable him within thirty days to take proceedings. In the matter of the REGISTRATION ACT, 1871, and in the matter of BUTTOBEHARY BANERJEE, 11 B.L.R. 20. [Diss., 15 C. 538, 16 C. 189.]

(354)—Ss. 23, 24, 60, 87, 89 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 23, 60, 87, and 89)—Certificate of sale, whether compulsorily registrable — Civ. Pro. Code, 1877, s. 316—Certificate of registration, effect of.—A sale certificate granted under s. 316 of the Civ. Pro. Code, is not a compulsorily registrable instrument. Although s. 316 of the Civ. Pro. Code, says that the sale certificate shall bear "the date of the confirmation of the sale," that provision cannot alter the fact of execution or the time when the certificate is actually executed, which is the starting point from which the four months mentioned in s.23 of the Registration Act must be computed. The certificate of registration is conclusive proof that a document has been registered according to law. HUSAINI BEGAM v. MULO, 5 A. 84=A.W.N. 1882, 183.

——S. 24 (=s. 23, para 3 of 1877=s. 23 last para of 1871=ss. 22 and 23 last para of 1866).

(355)—S. 24—See Nos. 272, 352, 353, 354, supra and No. 788, infra.

——S. 25 (=s. 24 of 1877=s. 24 of 1871=s. 24 of 1866).

(356)—S. 25 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 24)—Registration of deed after time on payment of penalty—Registrar's finding as to circumstances accepted.—Where the sale-deed in suit was presented for registration within six months of execution, and was registered on payment of a penalty under s. 24 of the Act, the vendor admitting execution, but pleading that only Rs. 10 out of Rs. 1,000 sale consideration had been paid: Held, that the effect of s. 24 is to allow registration within 8 months of execution under certain circumstances, and the Registrar's finding, that such circumstances existed, must be accepted; accordingly that the validity of the registration could not be in question in the suit instituted by the vendee nearly five years after registration. KHAIR MUHAMMAD v. ABDUL GHAFFAR KHAN, 44 P.R. 1901. (10 B.H.C. 98, 93 P.R. 1883, D.)

(357)—S. 25(=Registration Act, 1877, s. 24)—Procedure on acceptance of document for registration—Court not competent to enquire into exercise of discretion by Registrar—Presentation for registration of a document annexed with another—Suit to compel registration.—The defendant T and another M executed two documents, one of which A secured re-payment of money charged by mortgage on certain immoveable property, and the other, B, was an agreement to register A and, in case of failure to do so, to pay the amount secured by A. Document A was never registered as against defendant T. Document B which was presented for registration more than four months from its date but within eight months, and was accepted for registration under s. 24 of the Registration Act. T appeared but declined to admit execution, and registration was refused as against him. This suit was then filed under s. 77 of the Registration Act praying for a decree directing the document to be registered. Defendants pleaded that the Registrar had acted illegally in accepting A for registration under s. 24 of the Act without making any inquiry as to the ground for the failure to present it within four months. The Court was, however, of opinion that it had no jurisdiction to enquire into the exercise of the Registrar's discretion under s. 24. In this case, the plaintiff when applying to the Registrar alleged that he had failed to present the document within time by reason of unavoidable accident. It was for the Registrar to decide whether he will accept the mere statement of the applicant as sufficient or will make enquiry with a view to verifying that statement, and where the Registrar thinks it proper to accept such statement of the applicant as sufficient, it is not open to the Court to say that his action was ultra vires. With regard to the registration of document B it was held that B, being a registrable document of admitted execution, and having been presented and accepted under s. 24, ought to be registered, the document A, which was annexed to it by the use of the word "accompanying" in the agreement, being copied out as an annexure. GOKULBHOY MULCHAND v. TULLOCKCHAND HARNATH, 21 B. 69. [R., 30 B. 304=Bom. L.R. 742.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(358)—S 25—See Nos. 267, 272, 341, supra, and No. 788, infra.

(359)—Ss. 25 and 77 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 24, 77)—Order under s. 24 refusing to accept document of for registration—Suit under s. 77—'Refuse to register' and 'refuse to accept for registration' distinction between.—An order passed by a District Registrar under s. 24 of the Registration Act refusing to direct a document to be accepted for registration is entirely different from an order refusing to register. No suit is maintainable under s. 77 of the Act against an order of refusal under s. 24. Acceptance for registration is not the same as admitting to registration. Refusal to accept is not therefore refusal to register within ss. 76 and 77 of the Act. The condition with which s. 77 begins, viz., "where the Registrar refuses to order the document to be registered" is not one which attaches to refusal to give the direction for which s. 24 makes provision at his discretion. GANGAVA v. SAYAVA, 21 B. 699. [R., 10 M.L.J. 104, 30 B. 304=7 Bom. L.R. 742.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

——S. 26 (=s. 25 of 1877=s. 25 of 1871).

(360)—S. 26—See No. 272, supra.

——S. 27 (=s. 27 of 1877=s. 27 of 1871=s. 26 of 1866=s. 20 of 1864).

(361)—S. 27 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 27)—Suit, to obtain registration of document, Government, whether necessary party—Jurisdiction of Court—Registration Act (III of 1877), s. 27, decree in suit under, appealability of.—To a suit under s. 77 of the Registration Act, on the ground of an erroneous order, there is no reason why the Registrar or the Government should be made a party. The order is made against one of the parties interested in the deed and in favour of the other; and the former, being dissatisfied, naturally has, for his adversary, not the officer who adjudged between them, but, the opposite party in the earlier contention. The Registrar or the Government not being a necessary party, the proper forum for such a suit is the Court of the lowest competent jurisdiction and not the District Court. A decree in a suit of the above description is appealable. A decree of a Court in a suit is subject to appeal under s. 540 of the Civ. Pro. Code, except in cases where it has been otherwise expressly provided, and, it has been nowhere provided that no appeal shall lie from a decree under s. 77 of the Registration Act. WISHWAMBHAR PANDIT v. PRABHAKAR BHAT, 8 B. 269. [R., 11 B. 519.]

——S. 28 (=s. 28 of 1877=s. 28 of 1871=s. 29 of 1866=s. 21 of 1864)

(362)—S. 28 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 28)—Portion situate in British India and another portion out of British India.—A person can have his document registered in a district in British India where a portion of the property is situate, although the other portion of the same may be situate outside British India and in the territory of a Native State. GOPAL v. ANNABHAT, 2 Bom.L.R. 608 = 25 B. 50.

(363)—S. 28 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 28)—Registration at a place where a portion only of the property is situate—Validity of registration at a place where the property found not to belong to the executant situate—Fraudulent transfer—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 53—Consideration not a necessary test of bona fides—Creditors, deed executed in order to defraud—Intention to defraud makes whole deed inoperative.—Under the Registration Act, it is not the duty of a registering officer to inquire into the title of the person registering the document. The fact that the deed relates to a property situate within the jurisdiction of the registering officer is enough to give him jurisdiction, and the validity of the document on the ground of registration cannot be questioned on the basis that the executant had no title to the property situate within the jurisdiction of th tering officer. Where a transaction to have been effected with the object of preventing the property from being made available for the claims of the outside creditors, the transaction, even if with consideration, cannot be upheld. The deed, being merely a colourable transaction, cannot be treated as a genuine document, even if a portion of the consideration had been found to have been paid. The deed must, therefore, be set aside in its entirety. In order to ascertain whether a transaction is fraudulent or not, we must look to the dominant or principal motive of the transferee. JANKI BIBI v. BISHESHAR NATH, 7 Ind. Cas. 614. (24 C. 825, 1 C.W.N. 665, 34 C. 999, 6 C. L.J. 410, 11 C.W.N. 889, 25 B. 202; F., 35 C. 1051, 7 C.L.J. 586, 12 C.W.N. 761, D.)

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(364)—S. 28 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 28)—Transfer of decree — Place of registration of transfer—Objection by judgment-debtor.—Where the instrument transferring a mortgage decree was registered at a place where a small portion only of the mortgaged property was situate, the judgment-debtor could not object to the transfer, on the ground that the registration was not effected at a place where the substantial portion of the mortgaged property was situate, the matter being one between the transferor and the transferee. GULZARI LAL v. DAYA RAM, 9 A. 46. (7 A. 590, Diss.)

(365)—S. 28 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 28)—Registration — Mortgage-bond—Inclusion of property to which mortgagor has no title—Registration not invalid—Mortgage-decree—Interest after decree--Discretion of Court - Interference by Appellate Court.—Where an item of property, to which the mortgagor has no title, is included in a mortgage-bond, that circumstance is not sufficient to justify a Court in holding that, in fact, there is no such property covered by the deed situated within the jurisdiction of the Sub-Registrar as would give that officer power under the law to register the bond, and that the registration is invalid. (18 C. 556, 16 I.A. 12, 11 A. 136, R.) The allowance of interest after the date of the decree is a matter of discretion with the Court; and if the Court has allowed interest at six per cent. per annum and not at the bond rate, after the expiry of the period for payment of the money, it is not right for the Court of appeal to interfere without good and sufficient reasons. BROJA GOPAL MOOKHERJEE v ABINASH CHANDRA BISWAS. 5 Ind. Cas. 127=14 C.W.N. 532.

(366)—S. 28—See JURISDICTION—CAUSES OF JURISDICTION, 7 M.H.C. 176.

(367)—S. 28—See Nos. 274, 312, supra.

(367-a)—Ss. 28, 49, 50, 87—Registration in wrong sub-Registry office—Effect—Validity—Registration—What it means and includes—Object of—Whether intended to give notice to strangers—Provisions of the Act—Breach of—Consequences — Curable defects—S. 87 of the Act 'registered'—In accordance with the provisions of the Act—'Duly registered'—Meaning of the terms—Jurisdiction—Facts constituting absence of—Knowledge of both parties of—Estoppel—Onus of proof.—When a document has been accepted for registration, its improper acceptance on the ground of its having been presented by the wrong person or to the wrong Sub-Registry office is not a defect of an essential character, after the Registrar has satisfied himself of the due execution of the document and made the endorsements required by ss. 58 and 59 and does not render the registration invalid. (4 A. 14, 6 C.25, 14 C. 449, 2 I.A. 210, 18 C. 556, 35 C. 845, 34 B 202, 11 A.L.J. 241, 10 A.L.J. 33, 29 C 654, 18 M. 364, 7 A. 590, R.) Meaning of the terms 'registered in accordance with the provisions of this act' in s. 49 and 'duly registered' in s. 50 considered. Registration includes the getting made and the making of certain endorsements, making the certificate of registration and the copying of the documents in the register book and the filing of the map or plan if any in Book No. 1. The substantial portion is apparently complete with the making of the certificate of registration. Registration is an act of the Registrar and being an act of an administrative character, any error committed by him may be regarded as an error of procedure. S. 87 may not be sufficient to validate an act of registration violating any express provision of the act prohibiting it in certain circumstances or any conditions expressly laid down as necessary before the act can be done; but there is no reason why it should not cover any defect where there is nothing in the Act indicating that it is regarded as of a radical character making the registration ineffective. The primary object of registration is to check forgery and provide good evidence of the genuineness of written instruments (8 A. 6, 18 C. 556, 2 I.A. 210, Rel.) and not to give information to third parties of transactions affecting immoveable properties. Rules for determining as to what should be regarded as the consequence of non-compliance with statutory requirements that something shall be done in a particular manner or in a particular form, without expressly declaring what shall be the consequence of such non-compliance, pointed out. The rule that there can be no estoppel where a statutory requirement is violated, would apply if both parties in the present case were aware that the locality of the property is not within the jurisdiction of the Sub-Registrar to whom the document was presented. Where the jurisdiction of an officer depends on certain facts and the ascertainment of those facts is primarily the duty of one of the parties, there seems to be no reason why he should not be estopped from denying those facts as against one who derives his title from him. No rule of public policy is violated by applying the rule of estoppel in such a case. VEERAPA CHETTY alias VELLIAN CHETTY v. KADIRESAN CHETTY, 24 M.L.J. 664=14 M.L.T. 237=M.W.N. 1913, 525.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(368)—Ss. 28, 49, 60 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 28, 49, 60)—Mortgage — Registration of mortgage-deed in district in which the mortgaged property is not situate—Admissibility of document in evidence of money obligation.—Where a document which purports to have been registered is tendered in evidence, the Court cannot reject it for non-compliance with the provisions of the Registration Law. (Opinion of Broughton, J., in 6 C. 29, F.) A mortgagor whose misrepresentation has led to such erroneous registration, cannot, in a suit against him by the mortgagee, be permitted to object to the admissibility of such document, for, such objection would not have been available but for his own wrongful act. HAR SAHAI v. CHUNNI KUAR, 4 A. 14 = A.W.N. 1881, 105. [F., A.W.N. 1882, 175, 4 A. 384; R., 11 A. 319, F.B., 16 C.P.L.R. 141.]

(369)—Ss. 28, 49, 60 (= Registration Act, 1871, ss. 28, 49)—Registration made at wrong office—Effect.—Where a son who had full knowledge of a mortgage-deed and a rent agreement executed by his father and registered in a sub-district office within the local jurisdiction of which the property was not situate, though it was situated in the same district, objected to the admissibility of these documents as they had been registered in contravention of the provisions of s. 28 of the Registration Act (VIII of 1871), the Chief Court held that registration made in good faith should not be treated as invalid merely by reason of the terms of the Registration Act even in some substantial respects not having been complied with; that their registration was not null and void merely by reason of contravention of s. 28 of the Act; and that they were registered documents within the meaning of s. 49 of the Act. KASAMBRI DAS v. KIDARNATH, 67 P.R. 1883. [Rel. on, 44 P.R. 1898; D., 51 P.R. 1886.]

(370)—Ss. 28, 49, 60, 87, 38—Act XX of 1866, ss. 17, 36, 49—Registration of lease deed when executant's representative denied execution—Such deed whether duly registered.—The registration of a lease-deed by a registering officer in spite of the representative of the executant denying its execution, at the time of registration, is invalid as it contravenes the provisions of s. 36 of the Registration Act. There is a difference between a registered instrument and a duly registered instrument; it would be wrong, and would lead to abuse, which the Act was intended to prevent, to rule that a document which had been improperly registered should have the same effect as one duly registered. MAHOMED ALTAF ALI KHAN v. RAJAH PERTAB SINGH, 5 N.W.P. 91.

(371)—Ss. 28, 61, 65, 66 (= Registration Act, VIII of 1871, ss. 28, 64, 65, 66)—Where documents should be registered—Publicity.—Ss. 64, 65 and 66 of the Act contain provisions as to the publicity of the registration of a document relating to immoveable property where the property is situate in more districts than one; and the object of the Legislature in making these provisions appears to be that it should be sufficient under s. 28 of the Act that the registration be made in the place where some portion of the property—not a substantial portion, but any portion of the property—is situate, leaving it to the office to do the rest. HARI RAM v. SHEODAYAL MAL, 11 A. 136 = 16 I.A. 12 = 5 Sar. 281.

(372)—Ss. 28, 64, 65, 85 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 28, 64, 65, 85)—Registration, of document comprising properties in several sub-districts.—A document is not invalid merely because, only a small portion of the property comprised under it is situate in the sub-district where registration has been effected. DALCHAND v. LAHIRI, 1 C.P.L.R. 11. (7 A. 590, Diss.; 1 A. 465, R.)

(373)—Ss. 28, 87 (= Registration Act, 1871, ss. 28, 85)—Registration, place of—"Whole or some portion of the property."—The object of the Legislature in enacting s. 28 of the Registration Act, 1871, was that the registration of a document should have some reference to the locality of the property to which the document relates; and this would be defeated unless the words, "some portion of the property" in that section are interpreted so as to mean some substantial portion, and not merely some portion however small. Held, therefore, that a deed of mortgage—of two entire villages and shares in fourteen villages in District A, a village in District B, and an insignificant piece of land measuring 500 square yards in District C, which was registered in the last District, was not properly registered in accordance with the provisions of s. 28 of the Registration Act. Per Mahmood, J.—Such irregularity cannot be cured by s. 85 of the Act, which refers only to defects in the appointment or procedure of the registering officer. And while that section is addressed to the registering officer, the imperative provisions of s. 28 are addressed to the parties presenting documents for registration. Therefore, s. 85 of the Act which is intended to cure defects in the appointment or procedure of the registering officer cannot cure irregularities committed under s. 28. SHEO DAYAL MAL v. HARI RAM, 7 A. 590 = A.W.N. 1885, 46. [Diss., 9 A. 46, 1 C.P.L.R. 11.]

——S. 30 (= s. 30 of 1877 = s. 30 of 1871 = s. 31 of 1866 = s. 32 of 1864).

(374)—S. 30—See No. 41, supra.

(375)—Ss. 30, 71, 72, 73 (= Registration Act, 1866, ss 32, 82, 83, 84)—Refusal of Sub-Registrar to register—Appeal.—Where a document, which a Registrar, had a discretion to receive and register, was tendered for registration to a person S, who was duly officiating for the Sub-Registrar in the absence of the latter, his order of refusal to register was an order passed by him as Sub-Registrar within the meaning of s. 83 of Act XX of 1866 and an appeal against his order lay to the Registrar-General. Even if S's order was properly a refusal to exercise the authority given him by the first part of s. 32, the Act did not give any appeal to the District Court against such a refusal. Nor did such order of refusal fall under the operation of s. 84 and it was also not an order made under s. 82. There was, therefore, no appeal to the District Court. SARKIES v. SANGRAM SINGH, 6 B.L.R. 578, Note=14 W. R. 194.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(376)—Ss. 30, 72, 73 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 32, 83, 84)—Refusal to register—Jurisdiction—Registrar — Sub-Registrar.—The proviso in s. 83, Act XX of 1866, applies solely in the case where the Registrar for a district including a presidency town, passes an order on an application which relates to such a portion of his district as is not included in a sub-district. The consequence of this proviso is that the order so passed becomes an order of the Sub-Registrar, and is not within the words of s. 84 which give a right to a person aggrieved by a Registrar's order to apply by petition to the District Court; but in such a case an appeal first lies to the Registrar-General. Held, in this case, that, there being no evidence that the premises, the subject of the deed of sale, were situated in a part of Calcutta not formed into a sub-district, the Court would infer that the order was made by the Registrar as Registrar, not as Sub-Registrar. The Registrar was justified in refusing to register the deed, on the ground that the vendor, one of the parties to it, while admitting the execution of the deed, refused to endorse it. In the matter of BRAJANATH PYNE AND ARMALA DASI, 3 B.L.R. O C. 60=12 W.R. 386, Note. (1 B.L.R. F.B. 58, D.) [R., 12 W.R. 385, 12 W.R. 560.]

—S. 31 (=s. 31 of 1877=s. 31 of 1871=s. 33 of 1866=s. 65 of 1864.)

(376-a)—Ss. 31, 32, 52 and 87—Presentation by a person who was not an agent of the executant—Registration invalid—Procedure—Invalid presentation not a question of.—A mortgage-deed was presented for registration by the husband of a pardanashin lady, who was admittedly not a duly authorized agent, to the Sub-Registrar of Tahsil, Bareilly. The Sub-Registrar sent the document to the Departmental Sub-Registrar for its attestation by the executant. The Departmental Sub-Registrar went to the house of the lady and she admitted execution before him. The document was then sent back to the Sub-Registrar of Tahsil, Bareilly, who registered it. Held that, as the husband of the lady had no authority to present the document for registration, and as the Departmental Sub-Registrar had no authority to receive the document for registration, there was no valid presentation of the deed, and it had not been validly registered. KHALIL-UD-DIN AHMAD v. BANNI BIBI, 10 A.L.J. 440, F.B.=35 A. 34=17 Ind. Cas. 274.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(377)—Ss. 31, 87 (=Registration Act. 1871, ss 31, 85)—'Intending to register' meaning of—Registration at residence of party executing, validity of—Irregularity --In this case, the registration of a document was alleged to be invalid on the ground that the Sub-Registrar allowed it to be presented at the residence of one of the executants, and it was held that there was no irregularity whatever, and that, assuming there was, it would be covered by the provisions in s. 85 of the Registration Act VIII of 1871. Under s. 31 of the Act, it is open to the registering officer, on special cause being shown, to attend at the residence of any person intending to register a document. The words 'person intending to register' in the above section include as well a party executing the document as the one in whose favour it is executed, and the question of the sufficiency of the 'special cause' for the purposes of the section is one for the registering officer to determine, and his decision on the point cannot be called in question. ISAK MAHAMAD v. BAI KHATIJA, 6 B. 96.

—S. 32 (=s. 32 of 1877=s. 32 of 1871=s. 34 of 1866=s. 28 of 1864).

(378)—S. 32 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 32)—'Presented' meaning of.—The word presented has a technical meaning in s. 32 of the Registration Act. Where the executants are 'present' acquiescing in the handing over of the document to the Registrar for registration, no matter by whom the physical act is performed, the document is 'presented' within the meaning of the Act. NATHUMAL v ABDUL WAHID KHAN, 9 A.L.J. 362=14 Ind. Cas. 812=34 A. 355.

(378-a)—S. 32—Preseionntat for registration.—Where it is shown that, prior to the registration of the document by the duly authorized official, a person, who is competent to present the document for registration, was present before that official assenting to the registration, the requirements of the Registration Act are sufficiently complied with. ATMA RAM v. UGRASAIN, 11 A.L.J 99=35 A. 134=18 Ind. Cas. 697. (23 A. 233, 10 A.L.J. 510, R.)

(378-b)—S. 32—Presentation by a servant of the mortgagor in the presence of mortgagor—Presentation valid.—Where a mortgage-deed is handed over to the Sub-Registrar by a person other than the mortgagor, in the presence of the mortgagor and at the time of registration the mortgagor is present assenting to the registration of the document with full knowledge of what was being done in the office of the Sub-Registrar, held that the presentation is a valid presentation within the meaning of s. 32 of the Registration Act. KARTA KISHEN v. HARNARAIN CHAND, 10 A.L.J. 510=17 Ind. Cas. 466=35 A. 72. (34 A. 355, F.; 23 A. 233, D.; 34 A. 331, Not F.)

(379)—S. 32 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 32)—Document left with defendant—Suit whether

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

maintainable to compel registration—Instrument to be registered inadmissible to prove contract.—The document whose registration was sought to be obtained in this suit was an agreement or kabuliyat passed by the plaintiff by which he agreed to take certain premises of the defendants on lease on certain terms. It was signed by the plaintiff alone and given by him to the defendants. It was argued, for the plaintiff, that the defendants were bound by s. 32 of the Registration Act to lodge the document for registration, but it was held that that section only empowers certain persons to present documents for registration, on the assumption that the documents are in their possession or under their control at the time, and imposes no obligation on any person to produce a document for registration. It was further contended that, as the object of the suit was to compel registration, the unregistered instrument of agreement could be given in evidence to prove the contract between the parties, but it was held that, as the document was sought to be given in evidence not for a collateral purpose but to establish the contract of lease itself, it could not be received or used as evidence for the purpose of establishing the contract between the parties in which, as such, the plaintiff was interested, and which he was, therefore, entitled to have registered. HURJIVANIRJI v. JAMSETJI NOWROJI, 9 B. 63. [R., 11 B. 691 ; D., 17 M. 456=4 M.L.J. 198, F.B]

(380)—S. 32—Act VIII of 1871, s. 34—Execution of document by agent—Appearance before registering officer—Agreement to let—Execution by agent—Necessity for signature of principal.—Where a document was executed by an agent on behalf of his principal, it is sufficient that the agent appears before the registering officer to acknowledge execution and it is not necessary that the principal should appear. Where an agreement to let is executed by an agent, there is no necessity for the signature, of the principal to the agreement. A valid agreement to let is created even without the principal's signature. BISSENDOYAL AND HURDOYAL v. FERDINAND SCHLÆPFER, 22 W.R. 68.

(380-a)—S. 32—See NO. 376-a, supra.

(381)—Ss. 32, 33—"Presented."—Where a lady, the executant of a bond, went herself to the Registration office in a doli, when the document was handed over to the Registrar by her own father who held no power-of-attorney, duly authenticated under s. 33 of the Act, and she then and there admitted execution and receipt of consideration ; held, that the presentation of the document so made amounted to a proper presentation within the meaning of s. 32. WILAITI BEGAM v. FAZAL HUSSAIN KHAN, 9 A.L.J. 148=13 Ind. Cas. 961.

(382)—*Ss.*32, 33, 60, 87 (= Registration Act of 1877, ss. 32, 33, 60 and 87)—Registration of document by duly authorized agent—Registration of document, defect of procedure in—Decree duly registered under Registration Act, limitation for application for execution of—Limitation Act, sch. II, art. 179 (6)—Execution of decree.—In a suit brought by R. S. for money lent to the defendants a decree was passed on the 10th April 1889, which directed that the defendants should pay the plaintiff the decretal money in twenty annual instalments with interest on the same, and that in case of default in payment of any instalment or the interests due thereon the plaintiff should bring to sale certain immoveable property and recover the whole amount due to him etc., etc. Under the compromise of a dispute relating to the estate of R S. One R became the owner of the decree of which she made a gift to the appellant. The appellant applied for execution of the decree on the 27th April 1900. He alleged that default was first made in payment of an annual instalment on the 10th April 1896, but he also alleged that as a certified copy of the decree had been registered, the period of limitation for the application was under art. 179 (6) sch. ii, Indian Limitation Act, 6 years, which began to run from the 10th April 1896. He produced a certified copy of the decree which purported to have been registered on the 2nd July 1889. It bore on it the certificate referred to in s. 60 of Act III of 1877 which was in these terms :—"This document was presented in the office of the Sub-Registrar of Unao on 2nd July 1889.....I have satisfied myself as to the execution of this document, namely, copy of decree prepared in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Unao. Therefore it is registered." The copy was presented for registration under a power-of-attorney. It was not disputed that the copy of the decree was presented for registration by an agent of R.S. named S.B. under a general power-of-attorney, dated the 31st Janaury 1880, which was not executed before and authenticated by the Registrar, or Sub-Registrar within whose district or sub-district R.S. resided, as required by s. 33 of the Registration Act (III of 1877). The Court of first instance held the decree to have been duly registered, regard being had to the provisions of s. 87 of Act III of 1877. The District Judge held that the registration of the document was invalid. Held, that the persons legally entitled to present a document for registration, the persons "having title" to move the Registrar, are the persons specified in s. 32 of Act III of 1877, and no others. The agent of the persons mentioned in s. 32, if he is not duly authorised by a power-of-attorney, such as s. 33 declares shall alone be recognized, is not a person legally entitled to present the document for registration or a person "having title" to move the Registrar. It is the circumstance that he is the particular kind of agent described in s. 32, which entitled him to present the document for registration, and not the mere fact that he is an agent. Held, therefore, that S.B. was not a person legally entitled to move the officer, who registered the copy of the decree, to register it; that on the presentation by him of the copy to be registered, the Registrar could not legally exercise his jurisdiction; that the registration on such a presentation of the document could not be deemed to be mere defect in the registering officer's procedure which was covered by s. 87, but was invalid; that the document could not therefore be deemed to be registered within the meaning of art. 179 of the Limitation Act; and that the period of limitation for the application for the execution was three years. ATAL BIHARI LAL v. HIWANCHAL SINGH, 6 O.C. 9.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(383)—Ss. 32, 33, 87 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 32, 33, 87)—Mortgage bonds—Presentation for registration by general attorney unauthorized for the purpose. Presence of executants at registration—Validity of registration.—Two mortgage deeds were executed in 1882 and 1892 respectively. The deed of 1882 was presented for registration by Nathu Mal who was described as the general attorney of the mortgagee. The deed of 1892 was presented by Maula Baksh who was described as the karinda of the mortgagors. A search of the register of powers of attorney from 1878 to 1886 resulted in the discovery of a power of attorney in favour of Nathu Mal dated a few days before deed of 1882, which, however, did not authorise him to present documents for registration. There was no search of the register of powers of attorney from 1886 to 1892. The executants of both deeds attended the registration office when the document were registered but it was not proved that they were present when the documents were presented. Held, that the presumption in favour of the validity of the registration proceedings had been rebutted in the case of the document of 1882, but that, as there was no proof of any search having been made for powers of attorney between 1886 and 1892, the presumption in favour of the validity of the proceedings must prevail in the case of the document of 1892. The provisions of ss. 32 and 33 of the Registration Act of 1877 are not open to the lax interpretation that it does not really matter by whom the document is presented for registration, provided the executan appears before the Registering Officer and admits execution, and the provisions of s. 87 of the Act cannot be invoked in aid of the validation of registration proceedings done in violation of the express provisions of ss. 32 and 33. JAMBU PRASAD v. AFTAB ALI KHAN, 9 A.L.J. 420 = 34 A. 331 = 15 Ind. Cas 881.

(384)—Ss. 32, 33, 87 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 32, 33 and 87)—Validity of registration—Power of attorney—Authority of registering officer.—One Daulat Ram, after selling certain immoveable property to Mussammat Ram Bai, the mother of the plaintiff, on the 6th August 1900, sold the same property again on the 12th August, 1900, to the defendant. The latter sale-deed was duly registered on the 13th August, 1900 and on the same day, the sale-deed of the 6th August, 1900, was presented for registration by a pleader acting under a power of attorney from Mussammat Ram Bai. The power of attorney admittedly was not executed or authenticated in accordnce with the provisions of s. 33 of the Registration Act. The Registering Officer, however, took no notice of the defect; and after summoning Daulat Ram, who admitted execution, registered the sale-deed of the 6th August on the 17th November 1900. Held that the document of the 6th August had not been legally registered. The terms of ss. 32 and 33 of the Registration Act are imperative and proper presentation by an authorised agent is an indispensible foundation of the registering officer's jurisdiction; nor was the error of the Sub-Registrar a mere defect in procedure that could be cured by s. 87 of the Registration Act or by the fact that the executant, when summoned by the registering officer, consented to the registration of the sale deed of the 6th August. ISHRI PARSHAD v. BAIJNATH, A.W.N. 1906, 195 = 3 A.L.J. 743.

(385)—Ss. 32, 34, 87 (= Registration Act, 1877, ss. 32, 34, 87)—Jurisdiction or power of Registrar necessity to invoke—Presentation for registration by one not entitled to present it—Not a mere defect In procedure—No power to register—Deed invalid.—A registrar has no power or jurisdiction to register a deed unless he is moved by some person entitled to present it for registration under s. 32 of Act III of 1877, i.e., by some person having a direct relationship to the deed. A person holding a general power of attorney from the deceased executant of the deed is not entitled to present it for registration after the death of the executant. [Appl., 28 A. 707 = A.W.N. 1906, 195, = 3 A.L.J. 743; R., 26 A. 57, 5 C.L.J. 188, 13 C.W.N. 722; D., 30 C. 265.] The absence of any party legally entitled to present a deed for registration is not merely a defect in procedure falling under s. 87 of Act III of 1877, but goes to the jurisdiction of the Registrar, and renders the deed invalid. MST MUJIB-UN NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM, 5 C.W.N. 177 = 28 I.A. 15 = 23 A. 233, P.C. = 11 M.L.J. 58 = 3 Bom. L.R. 114 = 7 Sar. 829. [R., 13 C.W.N. 722.]

(386 & 387)—Ss. 32, 73, 74, 76 and 77 (Registration Act, 1877, ss. 32, 73, 74, 76 and 77)—Registration—Refusal to register by Sub-Registrar on the ground of denial of execution—Refusal by Registrar to direct registration, without making inquiry—Suit to enforce registration, maintainability of.—Held, that all that is necessary to establish, in order to maintain a suit under s. 77 of the Registration Act, is a refusal to register by a Sub-Registrar, an application to the Registrar within time, and a refusal by him. Held, further, that the fact that the Registrar has not held a full enquiry under s. 73 or has taken a wrong view of the law

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843) —continued.

when holding an inquiry under that section does not bar the suit PARTIT SINGH v. RAM SINGH, 11 O.C. 353. (24 A. 402, R.)

——S. 33 (=s. 33 of 1877=s. 33 of 1871=s. 35 of 1866=s. 28 of 1864).

(388, 389)—S. 33 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 33)—Power of attorney - Not executed before the Sub Registrar -Authentication - Presentation of document by the attorney—Validity of such presentation.—A purdanashin lady executed a power of attorney and signed it before its presentation to the Sub-Registrar. The Sub-Registrar went to her house, satisfied himself that she had voluntarily executed it and authenticated the document by a certificate to the effect that he had so satisfied himself. Held that the requirements of s. 33, Registration Act, were carried out. Held, further the presentation of a mortgage-deed for registration by the agent, who acted under such a power of attorney, was a valid presentation. CHHUTTAN LAL v. SHIAM PARSHAD, 7 A.L.J. 157=32 A. 179=5 Ind. Cas. 766.

(390)—S. 33 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 33) (a)—"Reside," meaning of—Civ. Pro. Code, s. 17, Expl. I.—The meaning of the word "reside" in s 33, cl. (a) of Act III of 1877 may be taken to be similar to the meaning given to the same word in s. 17, explanation I, of the Code of Civil Procedure and must be distinguished from the meaning of the words "domicile or domicil". RAM KUBER v. HAR CHARAN, A.W.N. 1896, 170. (A.W.N. 1892, 155, R.)

(391)—S. 33 (a)—Power of attorney for registration of document—Stamp -Act XVIII of 1869, sch. II, art. 13—Art. VIII of 1871, s. 33 (a).—For a power of attorney for registration of a document in a Registration Office, a stamp of 8 annas is sufficient under art. 13, sch. II of the General Stamp Act, (XVIII of 1869. KESHAV KASINATH, In re, 9 B.H.C. 43.

(392)—S. 33—See BUDDHIST LAW—ALIENATION, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 37.

(392-a)—S. 33 — See NOS. 381 to 384, supra.

(393)—Ss. 33, 49, 60, 87 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss. 35 (c), 49, 68, 88)—Registration—Presentation of document by agent under defective power of attorney—Validity of registration.—Where a document bore the certificate required by s. 68 of Act XX of 1866, showing that it had been registered, held, that it was to be treated as a registered document, although the person who presented it for registration was an agent holding a power of attorney not executed and authenticated as required by law, and therefore not recognizable under that Act for the purposes of s. 34. (15 B.L.R. 228=L.R. 2 I.A. 210=24 W.R. 75 and 1 A. 465=L.R. 4 I. A. 166, R.) A person who is himself responsible for any defect in the registration of a document cannot be allowed to object to the validity of its registration. IKBAL BEGAM v. SHAM SUNDAR, 4 A. 384. (4 A. 14, F.) [R., 11 A. 319, 6 O.C. 9, F.B., 26 A. 57=23 A.W.N. 195.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

——S 34 (=s. 34 of 1877=s. 34 of 1871=s. 36 of 1866=s. 29 of 1864.)

(394)—S 34 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 34)—Registrar refusing to register owing to non-presentation of document within four months allowed by law -Remedy -Suit for execution of fresh document.—When the Registrar refuses registration of a document under s. 34 of the Registration Act on the ground that it was not presented for registration within the four months allowed by law, a suit to compel the registration of the original document on account of the refusal of the Registrar to register it would lie, but a suit for the execution of a fresh document is not maintainable. PALNI GOUNDAN v. PARAMASIVA GOUNDAN, 6 M.L.J. 263. (16 M. 341, F.)

(395)—S. 34—Certificate of registration—Irregular presentation -Effect.—Where a document bears the certificate that it has been registered, an irregularity of procedure in registration, such as the presentation of the document by an unauthorised person, or registration taking place in the absence of the executant, or failure to conform to the provisions of this section, will not render the registration invalid and the document inadmissible in evidence. BHAGAT SINGH v. GAUHAR, 77 P.R. 1890. (15 B.L.R. 228, F.)

(396)—S. 34—See NOS. 273, 341, 353, 385, supra.

(397)—Ss. 34, 35 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 36)—Registrar, duty of.—The duty of the Registrar when an instrument is presented at the proper Registration Office, by any person executing or claiming under the same is clearly stated in the 36th section. Thus, if the parties to a deed appear in person before the Registrar, he has simply to ascertain whether the deed has been executed by the persons by whom it purports to have been executed. The language of s. 36 is distinctly imperative and leaves no option whatever to the Registrar. The Registrar has no legal training to enable him to deal judicially with the equities which may arise as between a party claiming to have a deed registered, and one who, having executed the deed, either denies his solemn admission therein contained or contends that he ought not to be bound by the deed till something is done by the opposite party. Under Act XX of 1866, a Registrar has no power to refuse to register a deed, on the ground that the full consideration therein mentioned has not been paid. In the matter of BRINDABAN CHANDRA SHAW, 1 B L.R. O.C. 47. (1 Ind. Jur. 240, F.) [R., 17 P.R.Cr. 1871; D., 1 C.L.J. 126.]

(398)—Ss. 34, 35 (=Registration Act, VIII of 1871, ss. 34, 35—Registration of sale-deed when one executant does not admit its execution—Sale-deed whether admissible as evidence of sale transaction.—Unless a deed be registered in accordance with the substantial provisions of the law of registration, it must be regarded as unregistered, though it may in fact have been improperly admitted to registration. A deed of sale which has not been registered according to law cannot be received in evidence of the sale transaction therein set forth, and a suit brought to enforce such sale is not maintainable. A sale-deed purporting to have been executed by three persons, was presented for registration. Only two of these persons appeared and admitted execution, and stated that the document had been executed without the knowledge or authority of the third party. Held with reference to the provisions of ss. 34 and 35 of the Registration Act VIII of 1871, that the registering officer was not warranted in registering it. BAIJNATH v. MAHOMED IRADAT, 7 N.W.P. 185.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843) continued.

(399)—Ss 34, 35 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 36)—Act X of 1859, s. 105—Sale of under-tenure—Fraud—Registration—Refusal to register.—Plaintiff having purchased at an execution sale the right, title and interest of tenant in an istemrari jote, obtained from the zemindar a pottah which he sought to register according to law. The zemindar appeared at the Registry Office and admitted the execution of the pottah but did not assent to its being registered, whereupon the Registering Officer withheld registration. Afterwards the zemindar sued the sold-out tenant for arrears of rent, obtained an ex parte decree and in execution sold and bought the tenure. He was then put in possession notwithstanding the protest of the plaintiff, who now sued to be restored to possession. Held, that it was the duty of the Registering Officer to register the pottah notwithstanding the executant's refusal of consent. Held, also that the zemindar took nothing by his purchase and was bound to give way to a bona fide purchaser. MOJAN MOLLO v. DULA GHAZI KULAN, 12 B.L.R. 492, Note.

(400)—Ss. 34, 35, 71 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss. 36, 82)—Improper registration—Suit for enforcement of deed—Procedure.—Where a deed was improperly registered with reference to the provision of s. 36, Act XX of 1866, a suit for the enforcement of the deed was maintainable, and, as registration had not been refused under s. 82, the procedure prescribed in the sections following was not possible. UNMOLE SINGH v. RAM BHUNJUN MISSER, 3 Agra 407.

(401)—Ss. 34, 77 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 34, 77)—Suit in Civil Court for registration of document—Maintainability.—S. 34 of the Registration Act is expressly subject to s. 77, which latter section it is that enables the Civil Court to direct registration of a document. And s. 77 does not provide any time within which parties are to appear to admit execution. To maintain a suit under s. 77, it is only necessary that there must be a refusal by the Sub-Registrar to register, an appeal within time to the Registrar and a refusal by him, and a suit within one month from the date of the Registrar's order refusing registration. The non attendance of the executing party within four or eight months is not fatal to a suit in the Civil Court under s. 77, and registration can be made after eight months. SHAMA CHARAN DAS v. JOYENOOLAH, 17 C. 750. (3 A. 397, 9 C. 150 and 9 C. 851, Considered.) [F., 15 C. 538; Rel. on., 16 C. 189; R., 18 M. 255, 24 A. 402=A.W.N. 1902, 99.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(402)—Ss. 34, 77 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 34, 77)—Limitation for registration after acceptance by registering officer.—Under the Registration Act, there is no time fixed for registering an instrument presented and accepted for registration, though the instrument must necessarily be presented for registration within a prescribed time from its execution. SATCOURIE PYNE v. LUCKEY NARAIN KHETTORY, 15 C. 538. (15 B.L.R. 228, 11 C. 750, F.; 11 B.L.R. 20, Not F.) [R., 5 M.L.J. 29, 18 M. 255.]

(403)—Ss 34 and 87—Registration contrary to s. 34 of the Registration Act, not void—Registration Act, s. 87, defect in procedure cured by.—Held, that the registration of a document contrary to the strict provisions of s. 34 of the Registration Act, is not ipso facto void. Failure to comply with the provisions of that section may amount to no more than a mere defect in procedure which is cured by s. 87 of the Act. RAMJI MAL v. SAIYED WAZIR HUSAIN AND SAIYED AHMAD ALI, 14 O.C. 207=11 Ind. Cas 925. (24 W.R. 75, 1 A. 465, 23 A. 233, 93 P.R. 1883, R.)

——S. 35 (=s. 35 of 1877=s 35 of 1871=s. 36 of 1866=s. 29 of 1864.)

(404)—S. 35 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 35) —Gift to wife—Registration by the donor himself, if necessary—Admission of execution by wife as 'donors' representative.—A Hindu executed a deed of gift in favour of his wife and died and the deed was subsequently registered at the instance of the widow. Held, the widow being entitled in the circumstances of the case to letters of administration to the estate of the donor, was prima facie qualified to admit execution of the document as his "representative" within the meaning of s. 35 of the Act, the fact, that she herself was the donee under the document being immaterial. BHABATOSH BANERJEE v. SHEIKH SOLEMAN, 10 C.W.N. 717=33 C. 584=4 C.L.J. 340 (23 M. 580, R.)

(405)—S. 35 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 35) —Registration of document as against person denying execution—Admissibility in evidence.—The registration of a document by the Sub-Registrar as against a person denying execution thereof, is ultra vires and illegal. The document cannot be admitted in evidence as against the party denying execution. RAZI-UN-NISSA v. SABIR HUSSAIN, 26 A. 57=A.W N. 1903, 195. (1 A. 465, 25 A. 337, 23 A. 233, R.)

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(406)—S. 35 — Admission of execution by representatives of donor—Error of registering officer in procedure, registration not rendered invalid by.—On the plaintiff's contention that the deed of gift relied on by the defendant was not duly registered and therefore inadmissible in evidence, because all the three sons by the deceased donor and not one of them only should have admitted the execution before the registering officer and s. 60 could only apply and render documents admissible in evidence when the terms of s. 35 had been complied with, it was held that assuming that the three sons should have joined in admitting the execution of the document and that the registering officer was in error in considering the only son that appeared as sufficiently representing the deceased donor, such error and the consequent non-compliance with the provisions of s. 35 constituted only a defect of procedure in the course of registration which was not therefore rendered invalid on that account. PAKRAN v. KUNHAMMED, 23 M. 580. [R., 33 C. 584=10 C.W.N. 717=4 C.L J. 340, 13 C.W.N. 722.]

(407)—S. 35—Patta—Registration—Act XX of 1866, s. 36—Consent.—Under s. 36 of Act XX of 1866, it is the duty of the Registering Officer to register a patta (the execution whereof is admitted), whether the executant asks or consents to it or not. MAGON MALLO v. DOOLA GAZEE KOOLAN, 19 W.R. 198.

(408)—S. 35 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 35)—Mortgage-bond executed by major son and father for himself and minor son—Registration on admission of executants, validity of, as against minor son's share.—The mortgage-bond sued on in this case had been executed by a Hindu father for himself and as guardian and next friend of a minor son of his, and by his adult son and registered on the admission of the two executants. The fact of the debt was not disputed and there was no allegation that the debt was incurred for any purpose which would exempt the minor son from the pious obligation of paying it. There was no such defect in the registration of the mortgage-deed as could prevent its affecting the share of the minor son as well, and the mortgagee was therefore held entitled to a decree for sale of the whole of the property mortgaged under the deed. KESHO DEO v. HARI DAS, 21 A. 281 F.B.=A.W.N. 1899, 59.

(409)—S. 35 (= Registration Act, 1871, s. 35)—Construction—Improper registration—Effect of.—The words of the section, taken literally, undoubtedly seem to require the registering officer to refuse to register a deed, which purports to be executed by several persons, if any one of these persons deny the execution or appears to be under any disability; such a construction, however, would cause great difficulty and injustice, which it cannot be supposed the Legislature contemplated; and would be inconsistent with the language and tenor of the rest of the Act. The words of the section, must, therefore, be read distributively, and be construed to mean that the registering officer shall refuse to register the document quoad the persons, who deny the execution of the deed, and quoad any persons, who appear to be a minor, an idiot or a lunatic: There appear to be no reason for extending the clause further than this, so as to destroy the operation of the deed as regards those, who admit the execution and who are under no disability, which would be the practical effect of a refusal to register at all. The proviso to the 23rd section of the Act shows that the Legislature contemplated a partial registration of a deed, that is, partial as to the persons executing it. [Appl., 5 A. 599=3 A W.N. 155; R., 8 C. 597, F.B., 26 A. 57=23 A.W.N. 195, 11 A. 319, 18 M. 364, 21 A. 281, F.B.=19 A.W.N. 59, 6 C.W. N. 329.] The fact that some of the provisions of the Registration Act have not been complied with, does not render the registration of a document invalid. MUHAMMAD EWAZ v. BIRJ LAL, 1 A. 465, P.C.=4 I.A. 166=3 Sar. 735. (15 B.L.R. 228=2 I.A. 210=24 W.R. 75, R. & Appr.; N.W.P. 1875, p. 185, R.) [Appl., 13 B. 449, 18 C. 556, F.B., 23 M. 580; D., 7 A. 590, 23 A. 233, P.C., 5 C.L.J. 188; R., 6 B. 96, 4 A. 384, 1 C.P.L R. 11.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(410)—S. 35 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 35)—Execution of bond by father on minor son's behalf—Registration of bond without minor being represented—Effect on minor's rights in property.—Where, in the case of a bond executed by a father on behalf of his minor son, the minor was not represented on the registration of the bond, such bond could not affect the minor's rights or interests in the property comprised in it. SHANKAR DAS v. JOGRAJ, SINGH, 5 A. 599=A W.N. 1883, 155. (1 A. 465, P.C.=4 I. A. 166, R.) [Overruled, 21 A. 281, F.B.=A. W.N. 1899, 59.]

(411)—S. 35 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 35)—Object.—The object of s. 35 of the Registration Act is that, if the registration authorities refuse to register on the ground that the executant is a minor, the question of minority may at once be brought into a Civil Court and there determined. CHUNEE MUL JOHARY v. BROJO NATH ROY CHOWDHRY, 8 C. 967=11 C.L.R. 315.

(412)—S. 35—Party applying for registration—Compliance with s. 29 of Act XVI of 1864—Registrar bound to register on—Regular suit to be maintained for compelling Registrar to register—The Registrar to whom a deed is presented for registration has nothing whatever to do with its recitals or its possible operation as regards third parties who are not parties to it. Where he has no doubt that the instrument has really been executed by those by whom it purports to have been executed, it is clearly his duty to register it. The High Court therefore directed the Registrar to register the deed if the parties had complied with the provisions of s. 29 of Act XVI of 1864. By the express words of s. 15 of Act XVI of 1864, "a regular suit" must be brought in order to compel a Registrar to register. Observing that the lower appellate Court was wrong in having proceeded with the matter as a miscellaneous application, the High Court treated the matter as it had come before it on special appeal in the regular course. MUTUKDHAREE LAL v. SHAIK FUZUL HOSSEIN, 6 W.R. Mis. 131. [D., 1 C.L.J. 126.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(413)—S. 35—See MINOR—CONTRACTS BY MINORS, 21 C. 872.

(414)—S. 35—See NOS. 342, 397 to 400, supra and NOS. 7, 88, infra.

(415)—Ss. 35, 40, 41 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 35, 40, 41)—Presentation of will for registration after death of testator—Inquiry as to disability of testator.—Where a will is presented for registration after the death of the testator, the rules laid down in s. 35 of the Act for an enquiry as to the testator's minority or sanity do not apply. ARUMUGAM PILLAI v. ARUNACHELAM PILLAI, 20 M. 254.

(416)—Ss. 35, 73, 74, 75, 87 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 35, 73, 74, 75 and 87)—Registration of—Document under orders of District Registrar, time for presentation, extension of—Procedure, defect of—Registration after fixed period, effect of—Indian Limitation Act (XV of 1877), s. 5, if applies to Registration Act—Registration, invalidity of, may be impeached by a person interested, though no party to the deed.—The Registering officer has no jurisdiction to register a document, presented after the lapse of thirty days from the date of the order passed by the District Registrar, under the first paragraph of s 75 of the Registration Act, even if the time for such presentation is extended by a subsequent order of the District Registrar. It is not a mere matter of procedure. A document, registered after the said period of thirty days, is not validly registered, and creates no title. (2 I. A. 210=15 B.L.R. 228, 4 I. A. 166=11 A. 465, D.; 23 A. 233, R.) The order of the District Registrar, directing the registration of a document, after the lapse of thirty days from the date of the order passed by him under the first paragraph of s. 75 of the Registration Act, is ultra vires. S. 5 of the Limitation Act has no application to such a case, and time for registration cannot be extended under the section. Where a person is affected by a deed which he impeaches as not duly registered, it is open to him to take the objection, although he was no party to the deed. BABAN SAHAI v. UDIT NARAIN alias NAND KISHORE LAL, 5 C.L.J. 188. (32 I. A. 113=27 A. 217, D.)

(417)—Ss. 35, 73, 76, 77 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 35, 73, 76, 77)—Denial of execution, meaning of—Sub-Registrar exercising Registrar's powers.—The case of an executant not appearing in obedience to the summons of a Sub-Registrar to admit execution, is tantamount to denial of execution, within the meaning of ss. 35 and 73 of the Registration Act. (11 B. 691, 5 C. 445, 16 C. 189, R.) Where a special Sub-Registrar, exercising the functions of a Registrar, refuses registration on the ground of the executant's non-appearance within eight months to admit execution, his order of refusal will be tantamount to the order of the Registrar, and a suit will lie to compel registration under s. 77, Registration Act. KUDRATHI BEGUM v. NAJIBUNNESSA, 25 C. 93. [F., 29 A. 284 = A.W.N. 1907, 46=4 A.L.J. 171.]

(418)—Ss. 35, 75, 77 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 36, 75 and 77)—Contract of sale followed by conveyance—Suit to enforce such conveyance without resort to procedure under Registration Act.—Where a contract of sale is followed by a conveyance, it is not incumbent on the vendee to take steps under the Registration Act to compel the registration of the conveyance, before suing in the Civil Court for such registration. The sections of the Registration Act, relating to procedure, to be followed for the registration of documents, are merely permissive, and do not exclude a suit for the enforcement of a contract, which includes an obligation to register the deed executed in pursuance of such contract. RAM GHULAM v. CHOTEY LAL, 2 A. 46. [Diss., 9 C. 150, 16 M. 341; F., 16 A. 303=A.W.N. 1894, 94; R., 4 L.B.R. 91, 24 A. 402; D., 3 A. 397, F.B.]

——S. 36 (=s. 36 of 1877=s. 36 of 1871=s. 37 of 1866=s. 21 of 1864.)

(418-a)—S. 36—See NOS. 421, 777-a, infra.

(419)—Ss. 36, 39, 49 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss 36, 40 and 49)—Decree-holder's application for execution by sale of lands of judgment-debtor—Objection of purchasers—Deed improperly registered, effect of—Irregularity in procedure, objection to.—The Registration Act of 1866 contains powers for compelling the attendance before the Registrar of persons whose presence is necessary for the due registration of deeds. Consequently a registering officer is not authorized to register a deed of sale in the absence of the vendors and their agents, merely because he is satisfied that there has been a sale pursuant to previous agreement. Unless a deed has been registered in accordance with the provisions of the Registration Act, it must be regarded as unregistered, though in fact, it may have been improperly admitted to registration. A decree-holder cannot be delayed or prejudiced in proceeding to execution by any incomplete arrangements between his judgment debtors and third persons to which he is a stranger. Objection to the irregularity of the Court of first instance in not framing issues before decision, is of no effect if the party objecting has not been substantially injured by such irregularity. SAH KOONDAN LALL v. MAKHUN LALL, 1 N.W.P. 247.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(420)—Ss. 36, 73, 77—Registration—Refusal by Sub-Registrar to register—Appeal to Registrar—Whether suit for registration in Civil Court maintainable.—A sale-deed was presented for registration, but the executants did not appear before the Sub-Registrar who reported the fact to the Registrar and was directed by the latter not to register it. Registration was accordingly refused. An appeal against that order to the Registrar was dismissed. It appeared that the summonses issued by the Sub-Registrar to the executants had been returned unserved. The vendees brought a suit for registration of the document. Held, that the suit was maintainable, the refusal by the Sub-Registrar to register not being based upon denial of execution. KHADIM HUSAIN v. BHARAT SINGH, 9 A.L.J. 234=34 A. 315=14 Ind. Cas. 433. (16 C. 189, D.)

——S. 37 (=s. 37 of 1877=s. 37 of 1871=s. 38 of 1866.)

(421)—Ss. 35, 36, 73 (=Registration Act III of 1877, ss. 35, 36, 73)—Non-appearance on summons under s. 36, whether amounts to denial of execution within s. 35.—The failure of a party executing a document to appear in obedience to a summons issued to him under s. 36 of the Registration Act (III of 1877) and duly served on him, is equivalent to a denial of execution by him for the purposes of s. 35 of the Act, so as to render it the duty of the registering officer to 'refuse to register' the document under the provisions of that section, and thus enable the party seeking registration to take further proceedings to have the document registered under Chap. 12 of the Act. A refusal to admit execution is a denial within the meaning of the Act, and a wilful refusal or neglect to attend and admit execution, in obedience to a summons for that purpose, should be deemed to be a refusal to admit, and, therefore, a denial. S. 35 contains nothing to the effect that the denial or refusal to admit must be in the presence of the registering officer. The object of the Act is that all documents of a certain description shall be registered as soon as possible after their execution, and it would not further but defeat such object, if it were held that a person executing a document requiring registration and successfully evading or deliberately disobeying the process of the registration office can prevent the document being registered. In re SHAIK ABDUL AZIZ, 11 B. 691. [Appr., 5 M.L.J. 29, 25 C. 93; R., 18 M. 255, 2 O.C. 77.]

——S. 39 (=s. 39 of 1877=s. 39 of 1871=s. 40 of 1866=s. 34 of 1864.)

(422)—S. 39—See NOS. 343, 419, supra.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

——S. 40 (=s. 40 of 1877=s. 40 of 1871=s. 44 (except the last clause of 1866=s. 46 of 1864.)

(423)—S. 40—See NO. 415, supra.

(424)—Ss. 40, 44, 45, 57, 43—Registration Act, 1866, ss. 44, 46, 65—Deposit of will—Probate—Jurisdiction.—N made a will and deposited it with the Registrar of Assurances at Bombay under a sealed cover under s. 44 of the Registration Act, 1866. On N's death, his executors applied to the Registrar to deliver over to them the original will in order to enable them to apply for grant of probate thereof. The Registrar refusing to part with the original Will, gave an authenticated copy thereof under the seal of his office. On the motion of the applicants, the executors, for an order to the Ecclesiastical Registrar, directing him to issue a citation, under the seal of the Court, to the Registrar of Assurances, to bring in and deposit with the Ecclesiastical Registrar the original Will, held (i) that it is in the High Court alone that the factum of the Will could be tried and determined, and that for that purpose it was absolutely necessary that the original Will itself should be brought into the Court; (ii) that a mere copy of it would not be sufficient; (iii) that the High Court has the power to call upon the Registrar-General of Assurances, as well as upon anybody else, to bring a Will in his custody into Court; and (iv) that the Registrar-General of Assurances should not give up any will when applied to by a party interested in its production, but should wait for an order of Court; and (v) that the proper procedure for him under the present circumstances would be to make a copy of the Will for his archives and make a note on it that the original had been removed into the High Court by its order to that effect. In the goods of NAGINDAS, 3 B.H. C. O.C. 135.

——S. 41 (=s. 41 of 1877=s. 41 of 1871=s. 76 of 1866.)

(425)—S. 41—See NO. 415, supra.

—— S. 42 (=s 42 of 1877=s. 42 of 1871=s. 44 of 1866=s. 46 of 1864.)

(426)—S. 42—See NO. 275, supra.

——S. 43 (=s. 43 of 1877=s. 43 of 1871=s. 77 of 1866=s. 47 of 1864.)

(427)—S. 43—See NO. 424, supra.

—— S. 44 (=s. 44 of 1877=s. 44 of 1871=s. 45 of 1866=s. 48 of 1864.)

(428)—S. 44—See NO. 424, supra.

—— S. 45 (=s. 45 of 1877=s. 45 of 1871=s. 46 of 1866=S. 49 of 1864.)

(429)—S. 45—See NO. 424, supra.

——S. 47 (=s. 47 of 1877=s. 47 of 1871=s. 47 of 1866=s. 67 of 1864.)

(430)—S. 47 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 47) —Registration—Priority—Date of the deed—

Advocate High Court Jammu & Kashmir Srinagar.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

Date of registration— Possession.—Where two deeds bearing different dates are each registered on different days, the priority as between them is ascertained with reference to the dates of the deed and not with reference to the date on which they were respectively registered. This priority is not influenced by the fact that the party having the later deed is in possession of the property. NARAYAN v. LAXUMAN, 6 Bom. L.R. 687=29 B. 42.

(431)—S. 47 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 47) —Several deeds of sale registered — Priority according to date of execution.—The sale-deed executed in favour of the plaintiff, in this case, was executed before, but registered subsequently to, that of the defendant. Plaintiff's claim under his deed was rejected by the lower Courts, but the High Court held that, as both the deeds of sale were registered according to law, they would operate as from the respective dates of their execution in accordance with s. 47 of the Registration Act, and the plaintiff's claim was therefore superior to that of the defendant. Also it was clear that the defendant had notice of the plaintiff's equitable title to the lands under the sale-deed executed to him SANTAYA MANGARSAYA v. NARAYAN, 8 B. 182. [Appr., 1 L.B.R. 293; R., 20 B 158, 27 B. 408, 29 B. 42=6 Bom. L.R. 687; D., 30 A. 238= A.W.N. 1908, 99=5 A.L.J. 607.]

(432)—S. 47—Compulsory registration of document after time—Defect in procedure—Defect whether curable by s. 87, Registration Act (III of 1877)—Right of third party to question registration—Recital of consideration in registered document—Effect—Subsequent denial. —Where a document which had been executed on the 7th October 1879, was actually presented for registration and registered on the 13th January 1881, it was held that, as the document was presented for registration 15 months after execution, it was not on the date capable of registration; that the defect was not cured by the provisions of s. 87 of the Registration Act, as the defect was one which affected the authority of the registering officer to register at all; and that it was open to a person not a party to the suit in which a decree for compulsory registration of a document was passed, and whose rights as mortgagee under a registered deed were then in existence, to dispute the validity of such registration so far as it affected his interests. (24 W.R., P.C., 75, 60 P.R. 1877, D; 10 B.H.C. 98, F.; 5 C 820, 4 A. 206, 7 W.R. 150, R.) [Appl., 21 P.L.R. 1900; D., 44 P.R. 1901, 14 O.C. 207=11 Ind. Cas. 925.] Where a registered mortgage-deed contained a recital that the consideration had been paid in full, and bore an endorsement by the registering officer that the mortgagor had admitted receipt of the same in his presence, the subsequent denial of the receipt of the consideration by him was held not sufficient to rebut the presumption of payment. BHAGAT SINGH v. RAM NARAIN, 93 P.R. 1883.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(433 & 434)—S. 47 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 47)—Registered sale-deed subsequent to optionally registrable but unregistered mortgage—Decree on prior mortgage—Right of purchaser not affected—Purchase with notice of encumbrance—Estoppel.—Under s. 47 of the Act the operation of a registered document as against unregistered document takes effect from the moment of execution. So, where subsequent to the execution of an optionally registrable but unregistered mortgage the property was sold by a registered sale-deed, the prior unregistered deed ceased to operate as regards the property comprised therein from the date of the subsequent registered deed, and a decree afterwards obtained on the document which had ceased to operate could not revive its operation. But if the subsequent purchaser took the property with full notice of the prior unregistered encumbrance he was estopped from claiming as against the mortgagee. MIRAN PINJARA v. RAMASA, 6 C.P.L.R. 112. (6 M. 88, Not F.; 7 A. 88, F.) [R., 8 C.P.L.R. 109.]

(435)—S. 47—Execution of mortgage-deed—Attachment of obligation—Deed when operates —See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 15 C.L.J. 61.

(436)—S. 47—See NOS. 37, 38, 276, supra.

(437)—Ss. 47, 49, 50(=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 47, 49, 50)—Registration—Competing registered documents—Priority—Delay in effecting registration—Notice.—As between two innocent purchasers both under registered documents, the one whose conveyance was first executed has the prior right without regard to the dates on which the two documents were registered. Delay in effecting registration when registration is effected within the period allowed by law, cannot possibly be held to amount to negligence so as to bring the case within the rule of estoppel. There is no authority for the proposition that if the subsequent purchaser has no notice of the prior purchase his title will prevail over that of the prior purchaser. MAUNG MYAT THU v. MAUNG THA ZAN, 1 L.B.R. 293. (2 B. 343, 8 B. 182, 7 C. 753, 6 M. 148, 9 B. 427, 10 C. 1073, 20 M. 250, R.)

——S. 48 (=s. 48 of 1877=s. 48 of 1871= s. 48 of 1866).

(438)—S. 48 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 48) —Oral mortgage—Registered sale-deed.—One Bahadur mortgaged lands to the plaintiffs orally by way of conditional sale and the mutation of names was effected in the Revenue Records but possession was not delivered to the plaintiffs. Bahadur, the mortgagor, brought a suit for redemption of the mortgage and obtained a decree permitting him to redeem on payment of Rs. 201. On appeal the amount was raised to Rs. 529. Before the expiry of the period fixed by the Original Court for the payment of Rs. 201, Bahadur sold the land to one Amir Chand by a registered sale. The plaintiff's suit for foreclosure of the mortgage was dismissed on the ground that proper proceedings under the Regulation (XVII of 1806) had not been taken. Plaintiffs now sued for the recovery of Rs. 529 by sale of the mortgaged lands. It was contended on behalf of Amir Chand, the vendee, that the plaintiff's mortgage being oral and unaccompanied by possession, the registered sale in his favour must take effect against the mortgage, under s. 48, Indian Registration Act, III of 1877. Held, that s. 48, Indian Registration Act, III of 1877 was not applicable to the circumstances of the case and the plaintiffs were entitled to the relief claimed on the ground that the mortgage was an accomplished fact, given effect to in the Revenue Records and had been considered by the Courts which had given decrees referring to it, all before the sale-deed in favour of Amir Chand was executed. SHANKAR DAS v. RAM DAS, P.L.R. 1900, p. 131. (115 P.R. 1890, D.)

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(439)—S. 48 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 48) —Oral sale of property mortgaged with possession—Subsequent sale by a registered document —Priority.—Land in dispute was mortgaged with possession for Rs. 99. After the mortgage it was verbally sold for Rs. 175 to another person, but the mutation of names in the Revenue register as regards the sale was refused to the vendee on the ground that he had not redeemed the land from the mortgagee. Subsequent to the oral sale the land was sold to the plaintiff for Rs. 270 by a registered deed. Held, that the intermediate transfer was not protected against the subsequent registered deed by s. 48 of the Registration Act 1877, because it cannot be held that the transfer was accompanied or followed by delivery of possession. Held, also, that the said section refers only to delivery of possession of the property itself, and could not be taken to cover the transfer of the rights of the mortgagor remaining, i.e., the right to redeem the property. RAM DAS v. SANWANA RAM, P.L.R. 1900, p. 352=10 P.R. 1900. (13 M. 324, R.)

(439-a)—S. 48—Oral agreement to sell—Subsequent registered sale-deed to a third person with notice of agreement—First agreement can be specifically enforced—Priority of registered agreement—Notice.—An oral agreement to sell property, even though not accompanied or followed by delivery of possession, would be protected against a subsequent sale of the same property effected by means of a competing registered instrument, if the person claiming under the latter had in fact notice of such agreement. BALDEO PRASAD v. PRAG DAS, 11 A.L.J. 137=18 Ind. Cas. 533.

(440)—S. 48 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 48) —Equitable mortgage constituted by deposit of title-deed—Priority over subsequent registered charge.—An equitable mortgage constituted by a deposit of title-deeds of certain property, is not "an oral agreeement or declaration relating to such property" under s. 48 of the Registration Act, so that it would have priority even against a subsequent written and registered charge. COGGAN v. POGOSE, 11 C. 158. [F., L.B.R. 1893—1900, 660, 33 C. 410=10 C.W.N. 276=4 C.L.J. 102; Commented upon, L.B.R. 1872—1892, 555.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(441)—S. 48 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 48)—Oral agreement to sell in favour of incumbrancer —Subsequent registered sale to third party--Effect of sale—Delivery of possession—Transfer of Property Act—Effect on s. 27 of Specific Relief Act.—Where a mortgagor agrees to sell by an oral contract, the mortgaged property to the mortgagee in possession, and subsequently sells the same by a registered conveyance to a third party with notice of the incumbrance and the oral contract to sell, the mortgagee is entitled to specifically enforce the oral contract, notwithstanding the subsequent registered sale. The mortgagee's possession under the incumbrance together with the agreement to sell is equivalent to delivery of possession within the meaning of the Registration Act, s. 48. Neither Act IV of 1882 (Transfer of Property Act) nor the Registration Act, nor the decisions as to the effect of notice with reference to s. 50 of the last mentioned enactment, override the doctrine of equity embodied in s. 27 of the Specific Relief Act. KANAN v. KRISHNAN, 13 M. 324.

(442)—S. 48 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 48)—Registered sale with notice of prior agreement—Rights of purchaser.—Notwithstanding s. 48 of the Registration Act, a party who purchases, even under a registered deed, with notice of a prior agreement for sale, shall not be allowed to retain the property, as against the person claiming under the prior agreement. CHUNDERNATH ROY v. BHOYRUB CHUNDER, 10 C. 250. (7 C.L.R. 481, F.; 5 C. 336=4 C.L.R. 257, R.) [R., 9 M. 119, 13 M. 324, 4 L.B.R. 26.]

(443)—S. 48 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 48)—Oral agreement to sell—Constructive possession —Priority.—An oral agreement to sell certain land, when accompanied by the attornment of the tenants to the purchaser at the request of the vendor, is sufficient to prevail against subsequent registered documents relating to the same property, and the conditions of s. 48 of the Registration Act are satisfied by such possession. PALANI v. SELAMBARA, 9 M. 267. [Appr., 13 M. 324.]

(444)—S. 48 (=Registration Acts, 1866 and 1871, s. 48) — Registered instrument — Oral hypothecation.—Whether under s. 48 of the Registration Act, 1866, or under s. 48 of the Act of 1871, an oral hypothecation, not accompanied or followed by possession of the property charged, cannot prevail against a registered sale-certificate in respect of the same property. NATHU RAM v. PHULCHAND, 6 A. 581=A.W. N. 1884, 183.

(445)—S. 48 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 48)—Possession—Title—Parol agreement.—Though a purchaser under a parol agreement may, in some cases of immoveable property, and in all cases of moveable property, rely upon his title against the former owner, that title will not avail him in any case against a rival registered purchaser, whether the property be moveable or immoveable. By a "declaration" as distinguished from an "agreement," in s. 48, Act XX of 1866, is meant a declaration of his wishes by the owner with reference to his property not amounting to a contract, and which the maker is at liberty to recall, whereas by an "agreement" is meant something which, if correct in point of form, is binding on the maker. The strict provisions of the Registration Act as to registration do not apply where possession of the thing to be transferred is given by the owner to the transferee. As a general principle of law, the fact of obtaining possession affects the title, and has, in all systems of law, European and Oriental, been always treated as a most important element in the acquisition of title. SELAM SHEIKH v. BAIRDONATH GHATAK, 3 B.L.R. A.C. 312 = 12 W.R. 217. [F., 14 W.R. 250, 9 B.H.C. 147; Appr., 47 P.R. 1871; R., 2 B. 299 = P.J. 1880, 57, 12 W.R. 456; D., 21 W.R. 421, 5 C. 336 = 4 C.L.R. 257, 7 C. 753 = 10 C.L.R. 129.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(446)—S. 48 (= Registration Act, 1866, s. 48) —Registered sale-deed--Parol sale accompanied with possession.—The plaintiff sued the defendant for recovery of possession of a house sold to him by a registered sale-deed by its owner. The defendant pleaded that he was in possession of the house under a prior oral sale by the owner, that he had paid the purchase-money and that a formal deed of sale was agreed to be passed to him. Held, that the registered sale-deed would have priority over the verbal sale accompanied with possession. BHANDU valad RAJARAM v. DAMAJI valad JIVAJI, 6 B.H.C., A.C. 59. [Expl., 7 B.H.C. O.C. 45; Doubted, 9 B.H.C. 121.]

(447)—S. 48 (= Registration Act, 1866, s. 48) —Possession under unregistered lease—Priority. Under s. 48, where possession has been given under an unregistered lease, and such lease is dealt with merely as a parol contract, a registered lease to another party cannot prevail against it. NARSINGH PORKEAT v. MUSSAMMAT BEWA, 5 B.L.R. App. 86 = 14 W.R. 250. [F., 9 B.H.C. 147; Appr., 20 W.R. 287; Cons., 5 C. 336 = 4 C.L.R. 257; Expl., 7 C. 753 = 10 C. L.R. 129; R., 9 B.H.C. 121.]

(448)—S. 48—Possession—Notice—Transfer of debt accompanied with delivery of possession—Subsequent conveyance by registered deed—Priority.—A, the owner of a house worth more than Rs. 100, made it over to the defendant in satisfaction of a debt, and put the defendant in possession. Subsequently, A sold the house by registered deed to the plaintiff, who then sued for possession. Held, that, as the house was given over to defendant in satisfaction of a debt, and the defendant was in possession, the plaintiff must be deemed to have had notice of defendant's right. MAUNG SIT YIN v. MUNG BIN, 12 Ind. Cas. 905.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(449 & 450) — S. 48 (= Registration Act, 1864, s. 48)—Applicability of section to transactions completed before Act came into force.—S. 48 of the Registration Act of 1864 did not apply to transactions which became perfected before the Act came into force. So, where a lien was created before the 1st January, 1865, by means of a verbal agreement, the subsequent execution of a Gujerati document (unregistered) after the Act came into force, in respect of the same transaction, did not affect the validity of the prior transaction which had become perfected. JIVANDAS KESHAVJI v. FRAMJI NANABHAI, 7 B.H.C.O.C. 45. [R., 4 B. 126, F.B., 8 Ind. Cas. 178, F.B.]

(451)—S. 48 (= Registration Act of 1871, s. 48) —Registered document as against oral agreement or declaration—Priority—Necessity for transfer of possession.—The provision of s. 48 of the Registration Act of 1871, that documents relating to any property duly registered should take effect against any oral agreement or declaration relating to such property, unless where the agreement or declaration had been accompanied or followed by delivery of possession, did not apply where there was no such alteration or transfer of possession. KIRTY CHUNDER HALDAR v. RAJ CHUNDER HALDAR, 22 W.R. 273. [R., 2 B. 299, 4 C. L.R. 257.]

(452 & 453)—S. 48—Scope—Oral agreement —Written agreement followed by possession.—This section refers only to oral agreements followed by possession and does not include the case of an unregistered document the registration of which is compulsory. Such document, when not registered has no effect whatever and cannot be admitted in evidence under any circumstances. GHANSHAM DAS v. HEMRAJ, 92 P.R. 1890.

(454)—S. 48 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 48) —Equitable mortgage—Mortgage by deposit of title-deeds—Executory agreement — Registered instrument—Priority.—An equitable mortgage is not an oral agreement within the meaning of s. 48 of the Registration Act. "A mortgage by deposit of deeds is a complete act and not an executory agreement." S. 48 of the Registration Act is therefore not inapplicable to such a transaction. The holder of a registered instrument does not by virtue of that section take priority against an equitable mortgage by deposit of title-deeds. MAUNG SAN YA v. A. S.S.P.L. VENKETACHELLUM CHETTY, L.B. R. 1893—1900, 660. [F., 14 Bur. L.R. 211.]

(455)—S. 48—Mortgage by deposit of title deeds—Whether it is something more than a mere oral agreement or declaration—See EQUITABLE MORTGAGE, 14 Bur. L.R. 211.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(456)—S. 48—Application of doctrine of notice—See SALE—GENERAL, 4 L.B.R. 26.

(457)—S. 48—See NOS. 277 to 279, 344, supra.

(458)—Ss. 48, 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 48 and 50)—Oral agreement—Subsequent registered agreement—Notice—Priority—Specific performance—Delivery of possession whether necessary.—The equitable doctrine that a subsequent registered sale-deed cannot be pleaded as a defence to a suit for specific performance on a prior unregistered document under s. 50 of the Act, if the holder of the registered document has notice of the latter, is equally applicable to a prior oral agreement to sell under s. 48 of the Act. (25 M. 11, R.) The provision as to delivery in s. 48 of the Act does not preclude the party to the oral agreement from relying on the doctrine of notice, when there has been no delivery of possession. THIMMAJAMMA v. ABDULLA SAHIB, 17 M.L. J. 319.

(459)—Ss. 48, 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 48, 50)—Preference between innocent purchasers—Registered and unregistered deed—Oral alienations of immoveable property.—The only reasonable construction of s. 50 of the Registration Act (III of 1877) is that, where property under the value of Rs. 100 is purchased by two innocent purchasers, the one by a registered and the other by an unregistered deed, and there is no fraud shown, or other circumstances, which, in equity, would protect the unregistered purchaser against the registered, the title of the latter shall prevail—Per Garth, C.J. (9 W.R. 547, 10 W.R. 36, 10 B L.R. 380, 15 B.L.R. 296, 12 B.H.C.A.C. 179, R.) [Cons., 8 C. 597, F.B.; Disc., 15 M. 73; But see 16 M. 148, F.B.; F., 5 N.L.R. 82 ; R., L.B.R. 1872—1892, 151, 5 M. 139, 10 C. 424, 13 C. 70.] S. 50 of the Registration Act applies to the case of the two innocent purchasers, giving the preference to the one, who has taken the greater precaution to secure his title (by registration), but not to the case of a subsequent purchaser, who registers, but who, at the date of his purchase, had actual notice of a prior unregistered purchase. Pontifex, J. [D., 7 C. 753, 10 C. 250; R., 6 B. 168, 6 B. 515, 8 A. 540, 6 C.P.L.R. 112.] The broad doctrine that a purchaser under an unregistered deed, who has obtained possession, would have priority as against a subsequent purchaser, under a registered deed, is not deducible from s. 50 of the Registration Act and the qualification cannot be imported into the section. The words relating to possession inserted in s. 48 of the Registration Act are only a declaration of the law limiting the operation of oral alienations ; the only oral alienations of which the law can take notice, in competition with registered instruments, are those which are properly established by evidence of possession. An oral agreement for the sale or letting of land, coupled with possession, is protected by s. 48 as against a subsequent registered deed. FUZLUDEEN KHAN v. FAKIR MAHOMED KHAN, 5 C. 336=4 C.L.R. 257. [D., 6 C. 534=7 C.L R. 487.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

—S. 49 (=s. 49 of 1877=s. 49 of 1871=s. 49 of 1866=s. 13 of 1864.)

(460)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49)—Unregistered deed—Local rules requiring registration—Admissibility in evidence.—An unregistered deed of 1866 which ought to have been registered under the Punjab local rules contained in Judicial Commissioner's Circular No. 11 of 1859, not being affected by the provisions of Act III of 1877 which was in force at the time the deed was tendered in evidence, was held admissible in evidence. There is nothing in s. 49 of Act III of 1877 which excludes as inadmissible or renders inoperative an instrument executed in the Punjab in 1866. NANAK v. CHALU, 10 P.R. 1880. (46 P.R. 1869, R.)

(461)—S. 49—Registration in wrong office—Admissibility in evidence.—The mere fact that a compulsorily registrable mortgage-deed is registered in a wrong Registry office does not render it inadmissible in evidence as against a purchaser at an execution sale of the mortgaged land who, not knowing that such land was subject to mortgage does not plead that he was misled by the deed not being registered at the proper office or that he was induced to purchase because, on enquiry at the latter office he learnt that there was no outstanding encumbrance. BASHESHAR DAS v. BHAGWAN DAS, 44 P.R. 1898.

(462)—S. 49—Registered deed—No possession—Validity.—No possession is necessary to render valid a registered mortgage deed. BALAJI NARAYAN v. RAMACHANDRA, 11 B.H.C. 37.

(463)—S. 49—Unregistered document—Evidence—Admissibility.—An unregistered document, if followed up by possession, may be used as evidence of that possession. LALLA GOPEE CHAND v. SHAIKH LIAKUT HOSSEIN, 25 W.R. 211. [Diss., 17 M.L.J. 469; R., 27 B. 515, 33 B. 610.]

(464)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 49)—Object—Mortgage-deed not registered—Personal covenant to pay—Evidence—Admissibility.—The object of the Legislature in s. 49 of the Registration Act, XX of 1866, was that no document should be received in evidence as a document affecting an interest in land unless it should have been registered ; but it was not the intention that such a document should not be admissible in evidence for a purpose for which registration was not necessary. Therefore a mortgage-deed which is compulsorily registrable is admissible as a bond simply for the purpose of enforcing against the obligor personally the payment of money secured by it, though it is not admissible as evidence to prove that the obligee was entitled to the security of the land. LACHMIPAT SING DUGAR v. MIRZA KHAIRAT ALI, 4 B.L.R.F.B. 18=12 W.R. 11. [F., 7 B.H.C. A.C. 1, 2 N.W.P. 860, 6 B.L.R. App. 69, 9 C. 520, F.B., L.B.R. 1893—1900, 125; R., 4 Bom. L.R. 883; D., 4 C. 83, 9 B. 63; Expl., 5 C. 611.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(465)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49)—Unregistered mortgage for over Rs. 100—Suit for breach of contract—Admissibility of unregistered deed in evidence.—Defendant executed to plaintiff an unregistered mortgage-deed of immoveable property for Rs. 800. The deed provided that the plaintiff ought to be in possession for a certain number of years and enjoy the usufruct in lieu of interest. Plaintiff's case was that she was in possession under the mortgage for a certain number of years and that, thereafter, she was unlawfully dispossessed by the defendant. Hence she claimed damages as for breach of contract. Held, that, under s. 49 of the Act, the deed of mortgage being inadmissible in evidence, the plaintiff was not in a position to prove by other evidence, what the terms of the contract were and that the suit was, consequently, unsustainable. BALAJI TELI v. MT. BANA BAI, 1 N.L.R. 47. (4 A. 232, 18 B. 745, F.; 17 M. 456, D.) [F., 5 N.L.R. 21; R., 5 N.L.R. 70.]

(466)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49)—Mortgage deed unregistered—Admissibility of such deed to prove that money had been borrowed.—The defendant executed a usufructuary mortgage in favour of the plaintiffs. The consideration was paid off, but the deed was not registered, nor did the defendant deliver up possession to the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs brought this suit for possession or for the recovery of money they had paid: Held, that the mortgage deed, being unregistered, was inadmissible in evidence as a deed of mortgage, but that it was admissible for the limited purpose of proving the fact that money had been borrowed. JADOO CHAUBE v. BHAGWAT CHAUBE, 2 Ind. Cas. 516=7 A.L.J. 71. (3 A. 229, 4 A. 232, 26 A. 178, 4 A. 3, 15 M. 304, 22 C. 444, R.)

(467)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49)—Unregistered mortgage deed with implied personal covenant to repay—Suit to enforce personal obligation—Admissibility of deed in evidence.—A mortgage deed, which, by law, is required to be registered, can be used in evidence, in a suit to enforce an implied personal covenant to repay the money advanced, although the same could not be used as evidence in a mortgage suit. MYAT THIN v. P.C.V.E. KASU VISVANATHAN CHETTY, 4 L.B.R. 52. (15 M. 336, 9 C. 520, P.J.L.B. 124, F.)

(468)—S. 49—Mortgage — Registration—Jurisdiction.—An unregistered mortgage bond dealing with property of the value of more than 100 rupees could be sued upon only as a common money bond, and the Courts cannot, even with the consent of parties, treat it as a mortgage or make any decree thereon affecting the property mortgaged. SHIBO SOONDURREE DEBIA v. SOUDAMINEE DEBIA, 25 W.R. 78.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(469)—S. 49—Mortgage — Compromise in course of mutation proceedings—Registration.—Where the law requires a registered instrument, in order to the effecting of a certain transfer of property by way of sale, mortgage, exchange or gift, such transfer can only be effected by registered instrument or by decree of a competent Court. Where, in a dispute between the plaintiff and her two sisters for mutation of names in the Revenue Courts, a compromise was entered into, whereunder they were ordered to be recorded proprietors of the property in dispute in equal shares, held that the order of the Revenue Court did not confer title, and the petition of compromise was not admissible in evidence under s. 49, Registration Act. RUSTAM ALI KHAN v. GAURA, 8 A.L.J. 918=33 A. 728=12 Ind. Cas. 109.

(470) — S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 49)—Payment of mortgage-debt — Endorsement of payment on mortgage-bond—Endorsement not registered—Admissibility in evidence.—The plaintiff hypothecated certain land to the defendant by a duly registered instrument, and subsequently paid off the debt and received back the instrument. At the time of payment, the defendant made an endorsement on the bond to the following effect—"25th Kartike of Sukla. Rupees two hundred and sixty three, principal including interest, was received on account of this bond, and there is, therefore, no lien whatever." Sometime afterwards plaintiff discovered that what he had paid in redemption of the mortgage claim was in excess of what was due, and he brought a Small Cause suit to recover the amount overpaid, tendering in evidence the endorsement on the bond. The objection was taken that the endorsement not being registered was not receivable in evidence, under s. 49 of the Registration Act of 1866. The District Munsiff dismissed the suit upon the ground that the endorsement was not signed by the defendant and was, therefore, not admissible in evidence, but referred to the High Court the question whether the evidence was rightly excluded. Held that the fact of there being no signature to the endorsement was no objection to its reception as confirmatory evidence of the sum received by the defendant. Per Scotland, C.J.—The endorsement was admissible for the purpose for which it was offered, although not registered, the endorsement not being used as evidence of the creation or discharge of an obligation, but merely as confirmatory proof of a fact provable by oral evidence although stated in writing. Per Innes, J.—The endorsement was admissible evidence, its reception not being precluded by the provisions of the Registration Act. VENKATARAMA NAICK v. CHINNATHAMBU REDDI, 7 M.H.C. 1. [F., 3 M. 53; R., 19 M. 288; D., 1 B. 197, 3 C.W.N. 922.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(471)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49) —Unregistered mortgage-bond—Evidence of personal liability—Construction.—A compulsorily registrable but unregistered deed, embodying a personal undertaking to repay money borrowed and also a hypothecation of property as security, is admissible in evidence to enforce the personal liability. [D., 102 P.R. 1900; Cons., L.B.R. 1893—1900, 124; R., 10 C. 315, 13 A. 89, 15 M. 336, 20 B. 553, U.B.R. 1904, 4th Quarter. Registration, 1, 19 M.L.J. 584, 32 M. 410=5 Ind. Cas. 1.] The words "shall be received as evidence of any transaction affecting land" in s. 49 mean "shall be received as evidence of any transaction so far as it affects land." ULFATUNNISA v. HUSAIN KHAN, 9 C. 520, F.B.=12 C.L.R. 209. [F., 8 P.R. 1891, 4 L.B.R. 52.]

(472)—S. 49—Mortgage of immoveable property—Unregistered document if and when admissible in evidence.— An unregistered bond whereby immoveable property is pledged by way of collateral security is admissible in evidence where effect is sought to be given to it for the purpose of obtaining a decree for money due under it. TUKARAM VITHOJI v. KHANDOJI MALHARJI, 6 B H.C.O.C. 134. [R., 2 B. 273, 9 C. 520, 14 B. 577, 15 B. 183, 20 B. 553, 20 B. 408.]

(473)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s 49) —Unregistered mortgage bond containing also a personal undertaking—Divisibility of document —Admissibility in evidence.—An unregistered bond, containing a personal undertaking to repay money borrowed and also a hypothecation of land above Rs. 100 as a security, may be used in evidence to enforce the personal obligation. It is unnecessary to consider whether a document of this kind embodies only a single transaction or may properly be said to contain two. MA THA v. MA SHWE HNIT, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 124.

(474)—S. 49(=Registration Act, XX of 1866, ss. 17, 18, 49)—Mortgage bond—Suit for money decree—Evidence.—Where, under a bond, land is pledged as a mere collateral security, and the bond is, to all intents and purposes, a simple bond for money lent, its registration is optional and it is not one of the instruments defined in cl. 2, s. 17, of the Registration Act, and it can be received in evidence in a suit for money in which a simple money decree is sought. WOODOY CHAND JANA v. NITYE MUNDUL, 9 W.R. 111. [F., 12 W.R. 222, 6 B.H.C.O.C.J. 134; Appl., 10 W.R. 252=1 B. L.R.A.C. 192; R., 7 B.H.C. A.C. 1.]

(475)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 49)—Receipt releasing mortgage, if admissible without registration.—The design of the Registration Act would be entirely defeated if a document, introduced in a suit as of a kind not requiring registration, could then forthwith be employed for purposes which the law intends to be effected only by registered instruments. So, a document called a receipt but meant to operate as an actual release of a mortgage of immoveable property, cannot have such an operation unless it was registered, as required by s. 49 of the Registration Act, VIII of 1871. BASAWA AND GURBASAWA v. KALKAPA SHARHANA AND SIDOJI, 2 B. 489. [F., 6 A. 335=A.W.N. 1884, 107; Appl., 7B. 123; R., 4 B. 235, 19 B. 36, 103 P.L.R. 1905, 33 C. 613 =10 C.W.N. 551=3 C.L.J. 576; D., 9 A. 108, F.B.=A.W.N. 1886, 310, 24 B. 609=2 Bom. L.R. 422.]

(476)—S. 49—Mortgage — Suit to recover money—Plea of discharge—Pleadings—Production of mortgage deed—Whether necessary.—Where in a suit to recover a certain sum of money alleged to have been advanced on a mortgage of land, the defendant admitting receipt of the money pleads subsequent discharge, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to produce the deed of mortgage at all after such admission by the defendant, as the only question on the pleadings is whether the amount has been repaid or not. NIAZ GUL v. RAM DITTA, 52 P.R. 1883.

(477)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1864, s. 13)—Sale—Sale-deed not registered—Purchase money paid—Repudiation of contract—Suit for possession.—Defendant executed in favour of the plaintiff a bill of sale in respect of the lands sued for, after receiving from him the full amount of the purchase money agreed upon. Afterwards, the defendant repudiated the contract, and refused to give effect to it by making over to the plaintiff the possession of the property sold, and the sale-deed was not registered. In a suit by the plaintiff to recover possession of the land sold to him. Held that the plaintiff would be entitled to succeed if he could satisfactorily establish by other evidence the payment of the consideration-money and the execution of the sale. In this country, where there is no such legislative enactment in existence as the Statute of Frauds in England, titles to property can pass from one person to another by virtue of a contract not reduced to writing. There is nothing in the Hindu, Mahomedan or Regulation Law to invalidate such a contract. There is nothing in s. 13 of Act XVI of 1864 which says that no contract purporting to create or transfer any right, title or interest in land, shall be recognised by the Civil Courts, unless the same is reduced to writing. Held also that the plaintiff was entitled to show that the document was not registered, not from any fault of his own, but from the fraudulent conduct of his adversaries. MEER HELALOODDEEN v. CHOWDHRY ABDOOL SUTTAR, 9 W.R. 351. [D., 9 W.R. 528.]

(478)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, XX of 1866, s. 49)—Sale of immoveable property by registered deed—Prior sale of same property by unregistered deed—Suit for possession by purchaser under registered deed—Admissibility of admissions before registration officer to prove prior sale.—The plaintiff sued to recover certain immoveable property sold to him by the first defendant by registered deed of sale. Defendants two to four pleaded a sale to them by the same party, the first defendant, on a prior date, and that the first defendant after receiving consideration in full, had improperly refused to have their deed of sale registered. The provisions of s. 49 of the Registration Act of 1866 having precluded the reception in evidence of the prior unregistered instrument of conveyance, the lower Courts held that certain admissions made by the first defendant in an enquiry held before the Registration Officer were admissible in evidence to prove the prior sale. The suit was therefore dismissed with costs. Held that the admissions made by the first defendant were evidence against plaintiff, as made by one from whom plaintiff derived his title, but the provisions of the Registration Act precluded any effect being given to the sale evidence by such admissions; there being a writing, the sale could not be proved by mere oral evidence. Per Innes, J.—The term "instrument" in s. 49 of Act XX of 1866 was used on the understanding that the writing was not merely evidence of the transaction, but was the transaction itself. SOMU GURUKKAL v. RANGAMMAL, 7 M.H.C. 13. [F., 4 B. 89; R., 7 M. 226, 13 M. 281, 119 P.L.R. 1906, 6 C.L.J. 167.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(479)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49) —Suit for possession—Plea of adverse possession —Plea of sale under unregistered sale—Sale-deed if admissible as evidence of admission of plaintiff's subsisting title—Burden of proof. —In a suit for possession of a house and for arrears of rent, defendant denied the tenancy and pleaded adverse possession till 1875 and also claimed under an unregistered sale executed in his favour in that year by the plaintiff's predecessor in title, which he had accepted in order to avoid further dispute. Plaintiff denied this sale-deed. Held that the sale-deed being unregistered could not be admitted in evidence, and it was not open to the plaintiff who denied the sale, to make use of the sale pleaded by the defendant as an admission by the latter of his subsisting right at the date of the sale. Nor was there any admission by defendant that plaintiff's right had subsisted up to 1875, for so far from admitting plaintiff's title the defendant pleaded adverse possession. The burden of proof was on the plaintiff to show that the defendant's possession was not adverse, and that he was plaintiff's tenant. Though the defendant's sale-deed was inadmissible, he could fall back on his plea of adverse possession. NIHAL CHAND v. TEJU, 74 P.R. 1883. (121 P.R. 1882, 122 P.R. 1882, R.)

(480)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 49) —Certificate of sale not registered, suit not maintainable by holder of.—Plaintiff holding an unregistered certificate of sale sued for possession of the property sold. The suit was held able to dismissal on the ground that the unregistered certificate was, by reason of s. 49 of the Registration Act, useless and inadmissible in evidence of the sale of the property comprised in it. The fact that the plaintiff subsequently obtained a certificate, got it registered and filed it in Court, could not make any difference. The registered certificate of a date later than that of the plaint in the suit could not be admitted in evidence in support of such suit, although the certificate might perhaps enable him to bring another action. HARKISANDAS NARANDAS v. BAI ICHHA, 4 B. 155, [R., 17 B. 375; D., 6 B. 139 10 B. 444.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(481)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49) —Agreement of sale accompanied with possession.—An agreement of sale accompanied with possession is entitled to priority over a registered deed of sale subsequently executed. HARI v. HIRA, 2 Bom. L.R. 110. [F., 3 Bom. L.R. 246.]

(482)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49) Priority between unregistered and registered deeds—Auction-purchaser, Rights of.—A purchaser in possession under a registered sale-deed has priority over a person who claims under a prior unregistered mortgage unaccompanied with possession, of which the purchaser has no notice; and if in a suit brought upon the mortgage, to which the purchaser under the registered deed is no party, the property is sold in execution of the decree obtained against the mortgagor, the auction-purchaser is in no better position than the mortgagee, in whose rights he stands. KARBASAPPA v. DHARMAPPA, 2 Bom. L.R. 223.

(483)—S. 49—Registration Act (XX of 1866), ss. 17, 49—Interest in immoveable property, document creating—Admissibility as evidence.—A document which purports to create a lien upon property as collateral security for money lent by giving the lender a right to have the property brought to sale, and to recover out of the proceeds the amount of money lent, principal and interest, is one which creates an interest in immoveable property, within the meaning of s. 17 of the Registration Act, and, as such, is not receivable in evidence without registration. KALA CHAND MUNDUL v. GOPAL CHUNDER BHATTACHARJEE, 12 W.R. 163 [D., 7 B.H. C. O.C. 45.]

(484)—S. 49—Lease—Registration.—A lease for more than a year is not the less a lease for more than a year because a condition is attached to the consideration, or that the full term for which it is executed may be lessened on the payment of a sum of money by the lessor. It cannot therefore be used as evidence in any Court unless it is registered. BUKSH ALI BOOHEAN v. SREEMUTTY NUBOTARA, 13 W.R. 468.

(485)—S. 49—Lease for more than a year —Registration — Evidence.—A lease of immoveable property for a term exceeding one year cannot be received in evidence without registration. MUSSUMAT MOONA v. JEY MUNGUL SINGH, 4 N.W.P. 164.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(486)—S. 49—Unregistered lease—Suit based on right of occupancy.—In the above case, it was held that the plaintiff's claim for possession was not in any way affected by the circumstance that the lease held by him was not registered and could not be produced in evidence. For the plaintiff's claim was based on his right of occupancy and could be maintained without any necessity for the production of the lease. SAWANTEE v. SEWA RAM, 2 N.W.P. 35.

(487)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49) —Agreement to give lease unregistered - Admissibility of, in evidence in suit for specific performance.—In a suit for specific performance of an agreement to give a lease, the document containing the lease does not require registration, to be admissible in evidence, where it is only used for the purpose of proving the contract, for the breach of which the action is brought. SRINIVASACHARYULU v. VENKATARAJU, 17 M.L J. 218 (17 M. 456. F.) [Diss., 21 M.L.J. 44, F.B.=8 Ind. Cas. 520= 9 M.L.T. 142; F., 14 C.W N. 65; R. Cited, 7 M.L.T. 278.]

(488)—S. 49—Kubooleut—Registration.—In a suit for rent, where the defendants admit the debt but plead payment, the non-registration of the kubooleut is no ground for dismissing the suit, but it may be objected to when the kubooleut is tendered as evidence on a disputed point. SYUD REZA ALI v. BHIKUN KHAN, 7 W.R. 334.

(489)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49)-. Unregistered kabuliyat—Admissibility in evidence.—A kabuliyat which requires to be registered, but which is unregistered, is admissible in evidence to prove the contract contained therein, when the party relying on it does not assert his title under the incomplete kabuliyat, but complains of the breach of contract on the part of the other party in refusing to register the kabuliyat and give him cowle, and also in disturbing his possession. RAJA OF VENKATAGIRI v. NARAYANA REDDI, 17 M. 456=4 M.L. J. 198, F.B. (9 B. 63, D.) [F., 17 M L.J. 218; R., 15 C.P.L.R. 33, 1 N.L.R. 47, 5 N.L.R. 70.]

(490)—S. 49—Rent—Kabuliat for one year—Suit for rent of another year—Reaistration.—A kabuliat for a particular year cannot form the basis of an action for rent for the subsequent year. If there is a provision in a kabuliat extending its term to more than one year, the document is not admissible in evidence without registration. KISTO KALEE MOONSHEE v. AGEMONA BEWA, 15 W.R. 170.

(491)—S. 49—Recovery of possession under Act XIV of 1859, s. 15—Suit for declaration of itle—Kobala unregistered—Evidence.—Where he defendants have recovered possession of the tank in dispute under s. 15 of Act XIV of 1859, the plaintiff, in order to recover possession from the defendants, must establish his title. If the plaintiff's title is derived by an unregistered kobala, it cannot be given in evidence, nor can it affect any property comprised in it. KALEE CHURN MUNDUL v. HURADHUN PAL, 20 W. R. 310.

(492)— S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 49)—Letter creating interest in land.—The defendant executed a bond in favour of the plaintiff and sent the following letter to the plaintiff with the title-deeds relating to a house belonging to the defendant: "I have the pleasure of handing to you the title-deeds of a house, 56, Lower Circular Road, as a collateral security for the Rs. 20,000 (twenty thousand rupees) which falls due this day. Please accept them from my manager, and kindly enlighten me for its safe destination." Held that the letter was one creating an interest in land and should be registered. Without registration it would be inadmissible in evidence. DWARKA NATH MITTER v. S.M. SARAT KUMARI DASI, 7 B.L.R. 55. [R., 10 B. 634, 33 C. 410=4 C.L. J. 102=10 C.W.N. 276; D., 20 W.R. 150=11 B.L.R. 405.]

(493)—S. 49—Evidence — Admissibility — Unregistered document—Registration compulsory.—It is doubtful whether a plaintiff can rely upon a document which is not registered as it ought to have been and which is therefore not admissible in evidence under the Registration Act. DEB NARAIN MUNDUL v. BEHAREE LALL GHOSE, 18 W. R. 329. [R., 19 B. 36.]

(494)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49) —Registration—Unregistered document—Money debt.—Where an unregistered document contains an admission of debt and at the same time a mortgage of property to the extent of Rs. 100 by way of security for repayment, it can, when divisible, be received as evidence to establish the debt, but not for the purpose of enforcing the charge on the land. MAING WUT AND MI BWIN v. KO NYAUNG AND MI SIN, L.B.R. 1872—1892, 195. (4 C. 83, D.; 4 B.L.R. F.B., 18, 5 C. 611, F.) [R., L.B.R. 1893—1900, 124, U B.R. 1904, 4th Qr., Registration 1; F., U.B.R. 1897—1901, Vol. II, 375.]

(495)—S. 49—Unregistered deed — Reception in evidence—S. 73, Contract Act—"Masani."—According to s. 49, a document compulsorily registrable but not registered shall not be received in evidence of a transaction affecting immoveable property. But, it can be used to enforce a right to receive compensation on breach of contract, though specific performance could not be enforced. Quære:—Whether 'masani' income is immoveable property within the meaning of s. 3, Registration Act. RAM SINGH v. HAR GOBIND, 83 P.R. 1891. [D., 10 P.R. 1896, 102 P.R. 1900.]

(496)—S. 49—Compulsorily registrable document unregistered — Evidence of collateral purpose — Admission of adoption.—A deed inadmissible in evidence for non-registration in proof of relinquishment of land cannot be admitted in evidence for proving an admission of an alleged adoption contained therein, the title to the land depending on adoption. ALI BAKHSH v. RAUSHAN, 102 P.R. 1900. (9 C. 520, 3 A. 229, 80 P.R. 1881, 83 P.R. 1891, D.; 50 P.R. 1893, F.)

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(497)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 49) —Unregistered bond, admissibility of—Suit to enforce personal obligation.—Under the provisions of s. 49 of Act VIII of 1871, an unregistered bond, though immoveable property is, by its terms made collateral security, is admissible in evidence in a suit to enforce the personal liability of the person executing the bond. It is only excluded where it is offered as evidence of a transaction affecting immoveable property. STRI SESHATHRI AYYENGAR v. SANKARA AYAR, 7 M.H.C. 296. [F., 5 M. 119; Appr., 15 M. 336, 13 M. 308.]

(497-a)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49) —Admissibility of compulsorily registrable deed for collateral purposes—Limitation Act, 1877. —A compulsorily registrable but unregistered deed can be admitted in evidence for a collateral purpose—e.g., for showing that there has been an acknowledgment of liability on the part of the executant sufficient to prevent a claim from being barred by limitation. MUGNIRAM v. GURMUKH ROY, 26 C. 334. [R., 5 N.L.R. 70, U.B.R. (1904), 4th Quarter, Registration 1.]

(498)—S. 49—Suit on unregistered agreement —Admissibility of deed as evidence of acknowledgment of personal pecuniary liability—Indivisible transaction.—The purchasers of certain land paid the pre-emptors a certain sum of money in consideration of the latter forbearing to urge their claim. The pre-emptors executed a document, in which it was provided that, if any of them sued to enforce their rights they should forfeit their share in the money received with half as much again. The pre-emptors notwithstanding this agreement instituted a suit for pre-emption, and obtained a decree. The purchasers then sued to recover the money forfeited as above. The defendants denied execution, and the sole question in the case was whether the document being unregistered was admissible in evidence to enforce personal liability. Held, that the document could not be received in evidence. In order to succeed, the plaintiffs were bound to prove (a) an obligation not to prosecute the claim for pre-emption; and (b) its breach. The former could not be established without the document which could not be received in evidence for want of registration, and consequently the suit failed. SANTA v. WASSAWA SINGH, 59 P.R. 1890. [R., 89 P.R. 1908.]

(498-a)—S. 49 — Sale-deed — Unregistered letter written on the same day—Admissibility of latter to prove sale intended to operate only as mortgage—Suit for possession of immoveable property—Decree with condition to restore money received—Propriety—Equitable relief—Contract Act, s. 65.—M executed a deed of mortgage in P's favour in 1894. In 1896, with respect to the same property M executed a deed of sale in P's favour for Rs. 8,000 and odd. On the same day when the deed of sale was executed, a document in the shape of a letter which was unregistered was written which showed that the transaction between the parties was intended to be an usufructuary mortgage and not a sale. In 1900, P sued on the usufructuary mortgage and the suit was dismissed for want of registration of the letter. M instituted the present suit for the recovery of the same property, on the ground that no property passed to P because the parties never intended the sale-deed to be effective as a sale deed. The lower Court decreed M's suit on condition that he should make over to P whatever money he received under the deed. Held that the lower Court was competent to pass a decree imposing the condition which it did. There is nothing in s. 65 of the Contract Act which suggests that the Court has no such power, and independently of the Contract Act it lies perfectly within the competence of the Court, in a case of this nature, to impose a condition which would do complete justice between the parties. Even, in cases in which the relief sought is not strictly speaking an equitable relief, the Court has the power in a proper case to refuse to grant a decree to the plaintiff except on terms indicated by obvious considerations of justice. (9 A. 340, F.) The above principle is analogous to that embodied in several statutes of the Indian Legislature, for instance, s. 41, Specific Relief Act, s. 55, sub-s. 6, cl. (b), Transfer of Property Act, and s. 86, Trusts Act. (12 M.L.T. 264, 17 M. 232, R.) Per Abdur Rahim, J. (Miller, J. dissenting).—The letter written contemporaneously with the sale-deed can be admitted in evidence to prove that the sale-deed was not intended to be given effect to. Neither s. 92 of the Evidence Act, nor s. 49, Registration Act, would apply to the present case so as to prohibit the admissibility of the letter in evidence. The main object of the Registration Act is to prevent documents of a certain class having any effect unless they are registered. The primary object of the Act is not to deal with questions of evidence pure and simple. (17 M. 456, F.B., R.) Per Miller, J.—Held that the letter is not admissible in evidence because s. 49 of the Registration Act forbids its admission. The transaction which was sought to be proved by the letter was a mortgage and that is a transaction affecting immoveable property, though the document for want of registration did not have any effect. (7 M.L.J. 469, R.) Not only was the purpose to prove a transaction which does affect immoveable property, but the purpose of proving it was to affect immoveable property to enable the plaintiff to distrub the possession and replace it by his own. MUTTA VENKATACHELLAPATHI v. PYINDA VENKATACHELLAPATHI, 23 M.L.J. 652=12 M.L.T. 579=17 Ind. Cas. 987.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(499)—S. 49—Registration Act, 1866, ss. 17, 18—Unregistered document creating interest in land—Suit on personal covenant—Admissibility of document in evidence.—An instrument creating an interest in land, and which required registration, was not registered. The document contained a promise to pay the money borrowed. The creditors sued to recover the money only. Held that, notwithstanding the absence of registration, the document was admissible in evidence. SANGAPPA bin NINGAPA v. BASAPPA bin PARAPPA, 7 B.H. C.A.C. 1. [F., 9 C. 520=12 C.L.R. 209; Expl., 2 B. 273; R., 19 B. 36, L.B.R. 1893—1900, 124; D., 20 B. 553.]

(500)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49)—Unregistered document, admissible for showing statement regarding adverse possession.—A document inadmissible under s. 49 of the Registration Act, 1877, cannot be used as evidence of delivery of possession. But, an unregistered document inadmissible for the purpose of affecting immoveable property or of any transaction affecting such property may yet be looked to not in any way creating a title, or as showing a transaction that affected the property, but merely as containing a clear and exhaustive statement of the nature of the adverse possession which was set up by a person whose claims were admittedly limited to the rights enumerated in such document. A document inadmissible under s. 49 of the Registration Act, 1877, cannot be used for the purpose of showing what are the terms consented to or as evidence of any implied transaction affecting the property. But if it is allowable for the defendant to plead adverse possession of a limited interest, or if independent evidence, proves that adverse possession has been enjoyed not of an absolute interest but of an interest limited by definitive conditions, those conditions form an inseparable part of the adverse possession proved. And if the conditions are described in terms which are definite in themselves but which distinctly specify the conditions to be those contained in a certain book, enactment, set of rules or other document, such document must be looked to, not for the purpose of making it operative, but to show especially what was really included in the language used to describe those conditions. FATESINGHJI v. BAMANJI, 5 Bom L.R. 274=27 B. 515.

(501)—S. 49 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 49)—Unregistered document, admissibility in evidence—Plea of forgery.—The provisions of s. 49, Act III of 1877, do not affect the existence of an unregistered document, nor do they absolutely prevent the document from being received in evidence, as for instance, in a case where a document, not registered, was sought to be declared null and void, on the ground that it was a forgery. The provisions of s. 49 merely barred the Court from receiving the document in evidence of the transaction referred to in it. It is still open to the Court to examine the document, to compare the handwriting of the alleged executant and the like, to consider the probabilities of the case, and try, as best it might, the fact of its execution. GOBIND RAI v. DHARAM DAS, A.W.N. 1881, 138.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(502)—S. 49—See CHAMPERTY, 150 P.R. 1889.

(503)—S. 49—Novation—Fresh contract contained in a deed which, though compulsorily registrable, was not registered—Effect—See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 62, 14 Bom. L.R. 26.

(504)—S. 49—See DECLARATORY DECREE, SUIT FOR—DECLARATION OF TITLE, 2 N.W. P. 160.

(505)—S. 49—Proof of title—Unregistered deed of sale—See EVIDENCE—SECONDARY EVIDENCE, 1 C.L.R. 542.

(506)—S. 49—See EVIDENCE—SECONDARY EVIDENCE, 6 M. 117.

(507)—S. 49—See LEASE—MISCELLANEOUS, 8 A. 405=A.W.N 1886, 170.

(508)—S. 49—Unregistered document—Effect of non-registration on its admissibility in evidence for collateral purposes—See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 19, 5 C. 215=4 C.L.R. 361.

(509)—S. 49—See MAHOMEDAN LAW—DOWER, A.W.N. 1885, 19.

(510)—S. 49—Unregistered document which is compusorily registrable—How far admissible in evidence—See MAINTENANCE, 7 M.L.T. 278=5 Ind. Cas. 615.

(511)—S. 49—See MORTGAGE—GENERAL, 1 Ind. Cas. 1, F.B.=32 M. 410=19 M.L.J. 584.

(512)—S. 49—See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 54, 2 Ind. Cas. 413.

(513)—S. 49—See Nos. 34, 35, 37, 268, 271, 273, 274, 280 to 324, 332, 342, 344, 367-a, 368, 370, 393, 419, 437, supra, and No. 788, infra.

(514)—Ss. 49 and 17—Unregistered mortgage deed, suit for money due on—Deed whether admissible as acknowledgment of subsisting liability under original debt.—Defendant executed a mortgage-bond to plaintiff for balance of account and the present suit brought on the bond was dismissed by the first Court because the deed of mortgage was not registered. On appeal, the Commissioner held that the deed, though not admissible to charge the land, was admissible to prove the debt. Defendant on appeal contended that the mortgage-deed did not create any right for plaintiff to sue for the money due or make the defendant in any way personally liable. Plaintiff claimed that he had a right to sue for the original debt due to him, and that the bond must be accepted as an acknowledgment of the liability reviving the period of limitation, treating the recital in the deed as an acknowledgment separable from the mortgage; but the Chief Court held that the plaintiff not having sued on the old accounts offering the bond as a proof of acknowledgment, the present suit brought by him to enforce the bond itself must fail. CHUHAR v. WAZIRA, 17 P.R. 1881. (88 P.R. 1880, 89 P.R. 1880, Cited.) [D., 80 P.R. 1881.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(515)—Ss. 49 and 17—Unregistered hypothecation bond—Loan and pledge—Single but not indivisable transaction — Bond admissible to prove defendant's personal liability, but not hypothecation.—The document refused to be admitted in evidence by the Court below, was evidence of a single but not indivisible transaction, namely, of a loan and a pledge to secure the loan. There was a distinct undertaking by the defendant to re-pay the money lent, and the portions of the document which related to the pledge were capable of being struck out or treated as non-existent without impairing the portion containing the personal undertaking of the defendant. Consequently it was held that, as regards the pledge, the document not being registered, was, by reason of s. 19 of the Registration Act, inoperative and inadmissible to prove the pledge, but that it was admissible to prove the transaction so far as it affected the defendant's personal liability. KHUDDU MAL v. KUNJI LALL, 80 P.R. 1881. (88 P.R. 1880, F.; 60 P.R. 1880, 89 P.R. 1880, 17 P.R. 1881, D.) [R., 10 P.R. 1883, 20 P.R. 1888; D., 102 P.R. 1900 = P.L.R. 1900, p. 481.]

(516) Ss. 49 and 17—See PLAINT—AMENDMENT OF PLAINT, 131 P.R. 1883.

(517)—Ss. 49, 50 (=Registration Act, 1864, s. 68)—Registered and unregistered deeds — Priority—Optional and compulsory registration.—S. 68, Act XVI of 1864, distinctly lays down that, even with regard to that class of deeds the registration of which is optional, registered deeds will be entitled to preference over unregistered ones. The practical distinction between the two classes of deeds, namely, those the registration of which is compulsory and those the registration of which is optional, amounts to this, that the former, if unregistered, will not be received in evidence at all, but the latter will be received in evidence, notwithstanding the absence of registration, though they must give way to registered documents of subsequent dates relating to the same property. MUNSOOR ALI v. AZMUT ALI, 9 W.R. 282. [F., 4 B.L.R. App. 73; Cons., 14 W.R. 318; R., 9 B.H.C. 121.]

(518)—Ss. 49, 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 49, 50)—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s 54—Unregistered deed of purchase—Subsequent purchase by another person with notice of prior unregistered purchase - Priority.—An unregistered deed of sale in respect of immoveable property does not create any interest in the purchaser. A subsequent purchaser by registered deed is entitled to priority, even if he had notice of the abortive purchase by unregistered deed. HAJEE ZACKARAYA SETT v. CHUNNU PANDARAM, 9 Ind. Cas. 65 = 9 M.L.T. 270. (29 M. 336, 16 M.L.J. 395, 1 M.L.T. 153, F.B., R.)

(519)—Ss. 49, 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 49, 50)—Notice - Fraud—Optional registration — Effect —Priority.—Though, where the prior instrument is optionally registrable, mere notice may not deprive a person claiming under an instrument subsequently executed and registered, of the priority given him by the Act, inasmuch as the prior instrument was effectual to create a title, a participation in fraud by the person claiming under the second instrument will deprive him of the benefit of the provision which was aimed at the prevention of fraud. NARASIMULU v. SOMANNA, 8 M. 167. [R., 16 M. 148, F.B.]

(520)—Ss. 49, 50—Registration Act—Execution of kobala—Subsequent grant of mokurruree lease to third person — Fraudulently getting possession of kobala by executant — Suit to recover kobala — Mokurrurudar's claim to be made party.—The defendant executed in favour of the plaintiff a kobala in respect of the plaint property. Subsequently, the defendant, having changed his mind, did not register the kobala and fraudulently got back the document. He then executed a mokurruree lease in favour of a third person. Thereupon the plaintiff, having already obtained possession of the property, sued to recover the kobala for the purpose of registration and use. Held that the plaintiff's claim was not barred by the provisions of the Registration Act. The plaintiff's case having been established, the mokurruree lease, though registered, could not prevail as against the plaintiff's claim. Held also that it was proper for the Court to have allowed the mokurrureedar to be made a party to the suit as the claim of the plaintiff would be established in one suit against the person claiming through the defendant a priority over the plaintiff's right. MEER SHUMSHARE ALI v. SYUD LUTAFUT KUREEM; LALLA THAKOOR SAHOY v. SYUD MAHOMED LOOFOOLLAH, 18 W.R. 504. [D., 24 W.R. 320.]

(521)—Ss. 49, 50 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss. 49, 50) — Registration — Priority. — An unregistered contract of sale, though not such as absolutely to require registration according to s. 49, Act XX of 1866, in order to be admissible as evidence (even if sufficiently complete to pass rights of property from the vendor to the purchaser), cannot have any priority against any other authentic instrument of conveyance executed afterwards by the vendor and duly registered. MOFUZEL HOSSEIN v. GOLAM AMBIAH, 10 B.L.R. 381, Note=10 W.R. 196. [Appl. 15 W.R. 239=6 B.L.R. App. 1 ; R., 5 C. 336=4 C.L.R. 257.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(522)—Ss. 49, 60 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 49, 60)—Certificate of Registration—Erroneous procedure in presenting or admitting execution, effect of.—Where a document is registered as a fact and bears a certificate thereon to the effect that it has been registered, a mere irregularity in the process of registration, such as want of qualification in the person presenting it for registration and admitting execution thereof, does not invalidate the registration nor render it inadmissible in evidence. HARDEI v. RAM LAL, 11 A. 319=A.W.N. 1889, 101. (4 A. 14, 384, A.W.N 1882, 175, 183, 6 C. 25, 4 I.A. 166, 2 I.A. 210, 16 I.A. 19, R.) [Diss., 6 O.C. 9; R., 17 B. 94, 20 A. 392, 23 M. 580, 26 A. 57; D., 18 M. 364.]

(523)—Ss. 49, 60, 66 to 68(=Registration Act, 1866, s. 49)—Registration after completion of all formalities—Expression of intention of registering officer to reject document—Validity of registration—Certificate of registration—Memorandum of registering officer noting defect in title of transfer—Effect of memorandum on validity of registration.—Where a document was registered after all the requirements of the law had been fulfilled, an expression of his intention to reject the document made by the registering officer in a report was no impediment to the passing of the title under it, as it was a well-registered document within the meaning of s. 49 of Act XX of 1866. Under Act XX of 1866, registration was complete when all the requirements stated in ss. 66 to 68 of the Act had been fulfilled. A certificate by the registering officer that the document was registered is prima facie evidence that those requirements have been fulfilled. Where, after the registration of a kobala, the registering officer made a memorandum on the back of the document to the effect that he was not satisfied with the title of the person conveying, such memorandum did not in any way affect the registration of the document. MUSSAMUT ROHIMOONNISSA v. SHAIKH ABDULLAH KHAN, 22 W.R. 319.

(524)—Ss. 49, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75 (=Registration Act, 1866, ss. 49, 82 to 84)—Act VIII of 1859, ss. 1, 15—Suit—Contract—Registration—Secondary evidence.—A suit was brought to establish the plaintiff's right to certain lands alleged to have been purchased by him. A written kobala, or bill of sale, had been executed ; but it was refused registry, because the defendant appeared at the Registry Office and declared that the contract had not been completed. The plaintiff claimed to prove the contract of sale by oral evidence, and sued for possession of the property covered by the contract. Held by the majority (Mitter, J., dissenting) that the suit could not be maintained so long as the kobala remained unregistered, and that secondary evidence of its contents was not admissible; and that the plaintiff should have taken steps to establish his right to have the written contract registered under the provisions of s. 84 of the Registration Act, XX of 1866. SHEIKH RAHMATULLA v. SHEIKH SARIUTULLA KAGCHI, 1 B.L.R.F.B. 58=10 W.R. F.B. 51. (7 W. R. 112, 1 Agra F.B. 148, F.; 10 M.I.A. 220, 540, Commented on; 9 W.R. 351, 8 W.R. 423, Cited.) [F., 3 B.L.R., App. 49, 6 B.H.C.A.C. 59, 20 W.R. 110, 24 W.R. 320, 9 C. 150; Appr., 12 W.R. 385, 4 B.L.R.A.C. 65, 47 P.R. 1871, 9 B. 63; Rel. on, 5 N.L.R. 70=2 Ind. Cas. 744, 746 ; R., 2 B.L.R.A.C. 105, 10 W.R. 483, 3 B.L.R. App. 125, 46 P.R. 95, 2 N.W.P. 160, 8 A. 540 ; Cited, 7 B.H.C. O C. 45 ; Com. upon, 9 B H.C. 121 ; D., 3 B.L.R.O.C. 60, 15 W.R. 189, 7 C. 753.]

(525)—Ss. 49, 87—Defect in procedure—Validity of registration.—Where a sub-registrar accepts for registration a document and registers the same without the appearance and admission of one of the executing parties but upon evidence called for by him, held that the irregularity or defect was merely one of procedure, and as such did not render the registration null and void. MAUNG TUN v. MAUNG PAW U, L. B. R. 1893—1900, 27. (11 B. 691, 15 B.L R. 234, R.)

(526)—Ss. 49, 87 (=Registration Act, 1877, ss. 49, 87)—Death of executant—Registration at the instance of one of several heir—Validity—Document if binds immoveable property.—A document, which was presented for registration by one of the heirs of the deceased executant and registered, is not precluded by s. 49 of the Registration Act from affecting the immoveable property specified in it, although the registration might have been irregular. Quære.—Whether s. 87 of the Registration Act, which cures defects in the procedure of the registering officer, can be extended also to cure the shortcomings of persons who apply to have documents registered. SRIMATI SUJAN BIBI v. SRIMATI ASAFA KHATUN, 13 C.W.N. 722=4 Ind. Cas. 69. (23 M. 580 ; F.; 23 A. 233, R.)

S. 50 (=s. 50 of 1877=s. 50 of 1871=s. 50 of 1866=s. 60 of 1864.)

(527)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50)—Registration Acts, XVI of 1864, XX of 1866, VIII of 1871 and III of 1877—Priority between registered and unregistered documents—Optional and compulsory registration—Retrospectivity of enactments, rule as to.—Under the Registration Acts prior to Act III of 1877, the registration of documents compulsorily registrable did not give them preference over unregistered documents subject to optional registration. S. 50 of Act III of 1877 first introduced that preference but this section has no retrospective effect, and the new preference over such unregistered documents accorded to registered documents is confined to documents registered under that Act, viz., Act III of 1877. [R., 6 B. 168, 13 B. 229, 20 B 158.] The safest rule for the interpretation of statutes is, that the Legislature, while possessing the power to divest existing rights, is not to be understood as intending to exercise that power retrospectively to any greater extent than the express terms of or necessary implication from its language requires. (Moon v. Durden, 2 Ex. Ch. 22. Williams v. Smith, 4 H and N. 559, 2 B. 18, 4 I.A. 127. R.) ICHHARAM KALIDAS v. GOVINDRAM BHOWANI SHANKAR, 5 B. 653. (4 I.A. 127, R.)

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(528)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Retrospectivity of statutes, rule as to.—Every statute which takes away or impairs vested rights acquired under existing laws, or creates a new obligation, or imposes a new duty, or attaches a new disability in respect of transactions or considerations already past, must be presumed, out of respect to the Legislature, to be intended not to have a retrospective operation. Applying this principle, s. 50 of Act III of 1877 should not be construed as having any retrospective effect. Before Act III of 1877 became law, a compulsorily registrable document had no priority over a document the registration of which was merely optional. S. 50 of the Act ought to be so read as not to affect rights acquired and existing under previous Acts. Held, therefore, that a deed of a sale of a certain land for Rs. 297 executed and registered on 20th March 1877, when Act VIII of 1871 was in force, cannot acquire any priority over an unregistered mortgage deed of the same land with possession executed on 18th March 1867, the former being compulsorily registrable and the latter only optionally registrable KANITKAR v. JOSHI, 5 B. 442. [F., 6 B. 495; R., 6 B. 168, 5 B. 653, 13 B. 229, 20 B. 158.]

(529)—S. 50—Section how far retrospective.—In the Punjab, a document registered after this Act came into force would have priority over unregistered deeds executed after Act VIII of 1871 came into force but not over those executed before that Act. A transfer is not fraudulent merely because the transferee had notice of a prior unregistered transfer. DHAN MAL v. GANGA RAM, 95 P.R. 1893. (115 P.R 1890, R.; 34 P.R. 1876, D.)

(530)—S. 50 (=Registration Act 1877, s. 50) —Unregistered and registered sale deeds—Priority—Possession—Notice.—A sale deed registered under Act III of 1877 takes precedence of unregistered deeds previously executed, the registration of which is optional; and the circumstance that the former was executed before Act III of 1877 came into force makes no difference. If, however, the subsequent registered purchaser has notice of the right of the prior purchaser whose deed has not been registered when he purchased, he cannot without fraud rely upon a purchase from a person whom he knew at the time to have no title; and in that case he cannot claim the advantage given him by s. 50 of the Registration Act. (5 C. 336, F.) Possession being one of the indications of ownership may in many cases be sufficient notice to the second purchaser, to put the duty of enquiry upon him, but to opetate as notice, knowledge of the possession should be brought home to him. GHULAM NAUKSHBAND v. MIRA KHAN 159 P.R. 1883. (8 C. 597, 608, R.) [Overruled, 115 P.R. 1890 F.B.; Appr., 126 P.R. 1884, 56 P.R. 1900=26 P.L.R. 1900; D., 90 P.R. 1885, F.B.]

(531)—S. 50—Scope—Competition for priority.—S. 50 of the Registration Act applies to instruments of which the registration is optional, giving priority between such instruments to the one which is registered. HAMED BUX v. BINDR ABUN, 2 N.W.P. 37. [F., 24 W.R. 121; R., 6 B. 168 F.B.]

(532)—S. 50—Act XX of 1866, ss. 18, 50, 100 —Scope—Registration.—S. 50, Act XX of 1866 does not vitiate titles acquired prior to the passing of that Act, merely because the instruments on which they rest are not registered. Where, before the new Registration Law was passed, a bill of sale was executed, full consideration was paid, and the purchaser has obtained, and remained in possession bona fide, for eleven years, held that a subsequent sale, duly registered under Act XX of 1866 which was in force at the time of its execution, did not prevail against, or affect, the title which the purchaser under the prior unregistered deed had acquired. GIRIJA SINGH v. GIRIDHARI SINGH, 1 B.L.R.A.C. 14=10 W.R. 65. [Appr., 22 W.R. 3; R., 11 W.R. 128, 47 P.R. 1871, 2 B. 299, 6 B. 168, F.B.; D., 19 W.R. 279, 7 C. 753.]

(533)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Application.—It was not intended by s. 50 of the Registration Act to enable the vendor to sell his property more than once. On the true construction of that section, the instruments in competition must be taken to be those relating to the same property, though not necessarily executed by one and the same person, as the intention was to enable intending purchasers for value to rely on the registration books as a certain index of prior titles and incumbrances. The real scope of s. 50 of the Act is limited to cases in which the party in possession can only rely on an unregistered instrument. KRISHNA ASARI v. SIVA SUBRAMANIA PILLAI, 1 M.L.J. 43.

(534)—S. 50 (=Act III of 1877, s. 50)—Registration.—S. 50 of the Registration Act of 1877 does not operate so as to exclude, on the ground of their non-registration, instruments executed, before Act XVI of 1864 (the first of the present series) came into operation. TIRUMALA v. LAKSHMI, 2 M. 147. [F., 5 M. 139, 20 B. 390, 28 A. 607=3 A.L.J. 320=A.W.N. 1906, 113; R., 7 C. 753, 1 N.L.R. 158.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(535)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Registration—Priority—Policy of Registration Acts.—As between an unregistered mortgage of property to A in 1872, a registered mortgage of the same to B in 1876, and an unregistered sale of the same to A in 1877, the priority is to the registered document of 1876, though both the documents of 1876 and 1877 were optionally registrable; and though Act VIII of 1871, under which the document of 1876 was registered was repealed, the right of that document to defeat the prior document of 1872 was unaffected. [R., 8 A. 540, 16 M. 148, 7 O.C. 342.] There has been a continuous policy, commencing with Act XVI of 1864, to allow registered documents, to defeat prior and subsequent unregistered documents, though optionally registrable, relating to the same property. MUTHANNA v. ALIBAG, 6 M. 174.

(536)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Purchaser in possession under unregistered sale deed—Subsequent registered purchaser—Priority—Notice, doctrine of.—Where a person purchasing land under a registered deed with the knowledge that another person has been in possession as an earlier purchaser with a defective title, his deed of sale not being registered, comes into Court, and claims priority over the latter, under s. 50 of the Registration Act (III of 1877), he is estopped by the law from urging that the prior deed is invalid and void because it is not registered; and the question whether the first deed is one of which the registration is compulsory or only optional, does not affect the principles on which the doctrine of "notice" is founded. AKBAR v. PREM SINGH, 2 P.R. 1885. [Diss., 90 P.R. 1885, F.B.; D., 14 P.R. 1885, 15 P.R. 1908=97 P.L.R. 1908.]

(537)—S. 50—Mortgage—Registration--Claim under unregistered mortgage—Registration Act (III of 1877), ss. 49, 50—Presumption of ownership from possession—Evidence Act, s. 91.—The owner of certain property mortgaged it for more than Rs. 100 by means of an unregistered deed. After his death, his heir sued for possession of the property free from any incumbrance. The defendant claimed under his mortgage. Held that the document, being unregistered, was inadmissible in evidence, and with reference to s. 91 of the Evidence Act, its place cannot be supplied by any oral evidence, as the mortgage had no existence independently of the document which purported to create it. It was argued, however, that the possession left with the defendant should be deemed to afford a presumption of ownership right in him, and he was accordingly entitled to succeed, but it was held that, as the defendant advanced no claim as owner, there was no rule of evidence that would apply setting up a presumption in his favour. MUSHKA KHAN v. JAFIR KHAN, 126 P.R. 1884. (18 P.R. 1878, R.) [F., 14 P.R. 1885; Appr., 90 P.R. 1885.]

(538)—S. 50—Mortgage—Possession—Purchase—Registration.—Where a mortgagee in possession of the mortgaged properties became purchaser of the same for the amount secured by the mortgage, under a deed of sale which was neither stamped nor registered, held that the mortgagee could fall back upon his mortgage, and recover the amount thereof, in preference to a subsequent purchaser of the same property, whose deed of sale was both stamped and registered. HIRACHAND BABAJI v. BHASKAR A. SHENDE, 2 B.H.C. 198. [R., 5 B.H.C. 147, 9 B.H.C. 121, 4 B. 70, 6 B. 168]

(539)—S. 50—Registration—Priority—Registration Act (XIX of 1843).—A registered deed (though subsequent in date) is entitled to priority over a prior unregistered verbal contract. [Cons., 9 B.H.C. 121.] Held that a person cannot claim under an unregistered prior verbal contract to the detriment of a party holding bona fide under a subsequent registered deed. KOYLASH CHUNDER CHATTERJEE v. GOPAL CHUNDER CHATTERJEE, 1 W.R. 78.

(540)—S. 50—Act XX of 1866—Registration—Possession.—A registered deed could not prevail against an unregistered deed under which possession had been delivered to the alienee. NAGESH BHAT v. BALVANTRAV, 9 B.H.C. 151, Note. [R., 6 B. 515, 27 B. 452.]

(541)—S. 50—Registration Act, XX of 1866 —Priority of unregistered as against registered deed—Nature of proof required.—Where a defendant set up an unregistered deed as against the claim of the plaintiff under a registered deed of later date, it was necessary for the defendant to show that the transaction on which he relied was a genuine one, and complete in every respect, and followed by peaceful possession before the passing of the Registration Act of 1864. MUNSOOR ALI v. WOOMED ALI, 22 W. R. 12.

(542)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Registered and unregistered document, competition between.—In a competition between a document which is compulsorily registrable and registered and one which is optionally registrable and unregistered, the former will prevail, whether the unregistered document be of the same nature as the registered document or not, unless the person claiming title under the unregistered document proves that the person who took the registered document took it with notice of his title. SHRISH CHANDRA ROY v. MUNGRI BEWA, 9 C.W.N. 14. (7 C. 570, 10 B. L.R. 380, 13 C. 70, 16 M. 148, 25 M. 1, 10 B. 105, 27 B. 452, 19 A. 145, 25 A. 366, Rel. on.)

542-a)—S. 50—Registered and unregistered documents—Priority — Unregistered document

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

not invalidated nor rights under it extinguished. —A purchaser at an auction-sale held in execution of a decree on a registered mortgage only takes the right, title and interest of his mortgagor, and if there is a previous valid unregistered mortgage on the same property, the debt secured by the latter is recoverable from the surplus, if any, left after the satisfaction of the registered mortgage. S. 50 of the Registration Act provides that a registered document takes effect as regards the property comprised therein against an unregistered document relating to the same property, but the unregistered one is neither invalidated nor are the rights of the mortgagee thereunder altogether extinguished. DHAN PAL SINGH v. BUDH SINGH, 11 A.L.J. 291=35 A. 271=19 Ind. Cas. 783.

(542-b)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Priority between registered and unregistered deeds—Same property.—R executed an unregistered mortgage, deed in favour of G on August 21, 1894. R executed another unregistered mortgage-deed in favour of B in respect of the same property on May 30, 1896. B brought a suit for sale on his mortgage and got a decree. In execution of his own decree, he purchased the property. His son sold the property to B K, and the latter's heir sold it to I. B K's heir, however, sold the full right of ownership in the property, and the sale-deed in favour of I was registered. In a suit for sale on his mortgage by G, held that I had priority over G's unregistered mortgage. ISHRI PERSHAD v. GOPI NATH, 10 A.L.J. 222=34 A. 631=17 Ind. Cas. 19.

(543)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) — Unregistered document optionally registrable — Subsequent registered document — Notice—Priority. — Held, that s. 20 of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, will not avail to give the holder of a subsequent registered deed, priority in respect of his deed over the holder of an earlier unregistered deed, not being a compulsorily registrable deed, if, in fact, the holder of the registered deed has, at the time of its execution, notice of the earlier unregistered deed. SHANKAR DAS v. SHER ZAMAN, 26 P. L. R. 1900=56 P. R. 1900. (115 P. R. 1890, Overruled.) [R., 7 P. R. 1901, Rev.= 43 P.L.R. 1901; Cited, 4 P. R. 1901, Rev.= 106 P.L.R. 1901.]

(543-a)—S. 50—Priority—Unregistered prior mortgage—Purchase at auction-sale—Sale by the purchaser by means of a registered instrument—Re-sale by the vendee to the vendor by a registered instrument.—R made an unregistered mortgage by way of conditional sale without possession in favour of B in 1896. G purchased the mortgaged property in execution of a simple money-decree in 1905. In 1910, G sold the property to the appellants by means of a registered deed, and the appellants in their turn sold a portion of it back to G by a registered deed. R brought a suit for foreclosure upon his mortgage: Held, that the appellants were entitled to rank in priority over the unregistered mortgage in favour of R, inasmuch as they had no notice of it; held also that, in respect of the re-sale to him, G was entitled to priority over R, because he had no notice of the mortgage; and he was bound by it as auction-purchaser, as there was no conflict between the mortgage and his purchase, and he was not protected by s. 50 of the Registration Act. RAM LAL v. BACHCHA SINGH, 10 A.L.J. 614=16 Ind. Cas. 625. (12 B.H.C. 241, R.)

(544)—S. 50 — Registration — Priority—Act XIX of 1843—Proof of authenticity of document. —Priority of registration would afford priority of title under Act XIX of 1843, only when the authenticity of the document is proved. GANDHAREE DEBIA v. SONATAN PANDAY, 10 W.R. 215.

(545)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1871, and 1877, s. 50)—Registered and unregistered documents—Priority. — Per Stuart, C.J.—Under the explanation to s. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, a document compulsorily registrable and registered under the Act of 1871, takes effect, as regards the property comprised in it, against a document relating to the same property, optionally registrable, but not registered, under that Act. DORI LAL v. UMED SINGH, 6 A. 164=A.W.N. 1884, 29. (2 A. 431, 2 A. 951, Observed on; 4 A. 227, Diss. & F.)

(546)—S. 50—Regsitered and unregistered documents—Priority—Deeds of different descriptions.—Registration of a deed gives priority over one not registered. This general rule is not applicable to deeds of different descriptions. KHETTUR BALSEE v. GOUR HURREE, W.R. 1864, 387.

(547)—S. 50—Registration Act, 1866—Unregistered deeds.—A registered document of posterior date is not to prevail over an earlier unregistered deed where the transfer under such deed has been perfected by possession. This principle was held not to extend to a case in which, after such possession, the claimant under the unregistered deed had been dispossessed by the opposite party. ISSUREE DOSSEE v. LALL BEHAREE HOLDAR, 21 W.R. 421.

(548)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Effect of passing of Act on sales valid before. —S. 50 of the Registration Act was not intended to invalidate sales, which were valid, when the Act came into force. DASHRATH v. MT. TANI, 1 C.P.L.R. 105.

(549)—S. 50 (=Registration Acts, III of 1877, s. 50, and VIII of 1871)—Registered and unregistered documents.—A document, the registration of which under Act III of 1877, is compulsory, and which is registered thereunder, takes effect in respect of the property comprised in it against a document relating to the same property, executed while Act VIII of 1871 was in force, the registration of which under that Act was optional, and which was not registered thereunder. KALLAN v. SHANKAR LAL, A. W.N. 1881, 76.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(550)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Prior unregistered bond—Subsequent registered bond—Decree on first bond.—The appellants sued the respondents to enforce a lien created by a registered bond, dated 21st May, 1872. The respondents became in 1877 the auction-purchasers of the hypothecated property in execution of a decree passed on the 8th July, 1873, on the basis of an unregistered bond dated 20th April, 1872. Held, that, as the prior bond was an unregistered one, the appellants were entitled to plead the provisions of s. 50, Registration Act, nor would the decree passed subsequent to the date of the registered bond hold the respondents. BALDEO PRASAD v. GANGA PRASAD, A.W.N. 1881, 30.

(551)—S. 50—Unregistered mortgage-deed—Subsequent registered sale-deed — Priority—Notice.—Where in a suit for possession by the purchaser of an occupancy tenure by a registered deed, the defendant pleaded that he was already in possession by a prior unregistered deed of mortgage, it was held that the prior deed, the registration of which was not optional, did not affect the land by its not being registered; that the doctrine of notice did not under the circumstances of the case apply; and that the title of the defendant as mortgagee did not exist in any way. MATHRA v. GURDITTA, 14 P.R. 1885. [Appr., 90 P.R. 1885, F.B.; R., 143 P.R. 1889.]

(552)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1871 and 1877, s. 50)—Registered and unregistered instrument—Priority.—Under s. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, a document registered under it takes effect, in respect of the property comprised in it, as against an optionally registrable but unregistered document relating to the same property, executed while the Registration Act, 1871, was in force. ABDUL RAHIM v. ZIBAN BIBI, 5 A. 593=A.W.N. 1883, 136. (2 A. 851, F.) [R., 13 B. 229.]

(553)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50)—Conflict between unregistered and registered deeds under Act VIII of 1871.—A compulsorily registrable deed registered under Act VIII of 1871, did not take priority over an unregistered deed, whose registration was optional under the same Act. KANHAIYA LAL v. BANSIDHAR, A.W.N. 1884, 136. [Appl., 13 A. 288, F.B =A.W.N. 1891, 63; R., 8 A. 23=A.W.N. 1885, 310, 7 A. 888].

(554)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 50) —Registered and unregistered documents—Precedence.—Where plaintiff based his right on an unregistered document, dated 8th Dec. 1873, the registration of which was optional under Act VIII of 1871, and defendant claimed under deeds severally dated 15th August 1874, 21st August 1875 and 3rd October 1876, and all these deeds required registration and were registered under Act VIII of 1871, held that plaintiff's document was entitled to precedence over the defendant's documents, that s. 50 of the Registration Act of 1871 gives preference to registered documents, of which the registration is optional over unregistered documents, and that, as here the registration of the defendants' documents was compulsory, the defendant's documents had no precedence over plaintiff's documents. KARAMAT ALI v. MUHAMMAD MOHSIN. A.W.N. 1886, 15. (4 A. 227, F.B., 6 A. 165, F.)

(555)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Registered and unregistered documents—Act XVI of 1864.—Under the Explanation to s. 50 of the Registration Act 1877, an unregistered deed executed before Act XVI of 1864 came into force, is neither invalidated by, nor postponed to, a deed registered under Act IX of 1871. RAM BARAN RAI v. MURLI PANDEY, 3 A. 505. [R., 6 B. 168, F.B.]

(556)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Registered and unregistered documents—By the Full Bench (Stuart, C.J., doubting).—S. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, does not confer upon documents registered under former Registration Acts, precedence over all unregistered documents of which, at the time of their execution, registration was either optional or not required. As between documents executed before Act III of 1877 came into operation, their relative positions to one another remain upon the footing provided for them by the Registration Law in force when they were executed. SRI RAM v. BHAGIRATH LAL, 4 A. 227, F.B. =A.W.N. 1882, 19. (2 A. 851, F.B., Observed on.) [F., 6 A. 164=A.W.N. 1884, 29; D., 6 A. 164=A.W.N. 1884, 29, 7 A. 577=A.W.N. 1885, 115.]

(557)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1866, s. 50) —Optionally registrable instruments—Priority of registered instruments.—Under s. 50 of the Registration Act, 1866, a prior unregisteredreinstrument will be defeated by a subsequent gistered instrument, where both are optionally registrable. VENKAYYA v. KOTAYYA, 6 M. 153.

(558)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1871, s. 50) —Priority.—Under s. 50 a registered document takes effect as against a prior unregistered document, followed by possession, even though the document is one which does not require registration. BIMARAZ v. PAPAYA, 3 M. 46.

(559)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50)—Optional and compulsory registration—Act VIII of 1871.—A registered document, compulsorily registrable under Act III of 1877, takes effect, as regards the property comprised in it, against an unregistered document of a prior date relating to the same property, optionally registrable under Act VIII of 1871, which was then in force. KUAR GIR PRASAD v. BANSI, 2 A. 431. [F., 7 C. 570; Cons., 6 A. 164 = A.W.N. 1884, 29; R., 6 B. 168, F.B., 20 B. 158, 1 N.L. R. 158.]

Registration Act (XIV of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(560)—S. 50 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 50)—Optional and compulsory registration—Act VIII of 1871—Act I of 1868 (General Clauses), s. 6.—Under s. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, a document compulsorily registrable and registered under that Act takes effect, in respect of the property, comprised in it, as against an unregistered document relating to such property, executed while the Registration Act of 1871 was in force, and optionally registrable under that Act. S. 6 of the General Clauses Act (I of 1869) has no saving effect in such a case. LACHMAN DAS v. DIP CHAND, 2 A. 851, F.B. [F., 7 C. 570, 5 A. 593 = A.W.N. 1883, 136, 11 C. 661; Cons., 4 A. 227, F.B. = A.W.N. 1882, 19, 6 A. 164 = A.W.N. 1884, 29; R., 6 B. 168, F.B., A.W.N. 1881, 127, 18 B. 92, 20 B. 158, 27 B. 452; D., 7 A. 577 = A.W.N. 1885, 115.]

(561)—S. 50 (= Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 50)—Act VIII of 1871—Registered and unregistered documents—Priority.—A document, the registration of which under Act III of 1877 was compulsory and which had been registered thereunder, took effect as regards the property comprised therein, as against a document relating to the same property, the registration of which, under Act VIII of 1871, was optional, and which had not been registered under that Act. GOBIND RAM v. BATASO, A.W.N. 1883, 104. (2 A. 851, F.)

(562)—S. 50 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 50)—Registered and unregistered deeds—Priority—Notice—Possession as evidence of notice—Registration Act, III of 1877, ss. 49, 50.—The priority conferred by s. 50 of the Registration Act on a registered document of the kinds mentioned therein cannot be claimed where the person in whose favour the subsequent document was executed had notice of the prior title of another person. Such notice may be actual or constructive, but it is only in cases where the notice is clearly proved so as to make it fraudulent in the transferee to take and register a conveyance in prejudice to the known title of another that the registered deed ought to be set aside. The fact of possession having been transferred to the first transferee is important on the question of notice. Where it is proved that the first purchaser was in possession of the land at the time of the second sale, the second purchaser should be called upon to explain whether he made any and what enquiry from the first purchaser as to the circumstances of his possession, and unless he can satisfactorily account for this possession, as not necessarily involving any notice of the first purchaser's title as purchaser, he cannot rely on his registered deed to resist the first purchaser's claim. If the first purchaser was not in possession at the date of the second sale, the Court should inquire whether the second purchaser had any other kind of notice of the factum of the first sale. The rule that a subsequent registered deed cannot prevail over a prior unregistered deed when the person claiming under the registered deed has notice of the prior conveyance of the first purchaser, cannot apply to cases where the unregistered deed is one of which registration is compulsory. In such cases the provisions of s. 49 of the Registration Act are imperative and the document shall not affect the immoveable property comprised therein or be received as evidence of such transaction affecting such property. Unless therefore in such case the first purchaser can rely simply on the fact of possession having conferred an indefeasible title by prescription upon him, he would be in the position of being unable to adduce his title by purchase, and on proof of the vendor's existing title in the property, he would have to surrender his possession to the person who had obtained a valid conveyance of the estate from the former proprietor. AZIZ v. LADA SINGH, 102 P.R. 1883. [Overruled, 115 P.R. 1890, F.B.; R., 126 P.R. 1884, 2 P.R. 1885, 90 P.R. 1885, F.B., 90 P.R. 1885, Note, 56 P.R. 1900 = 26 P.L.R. 1900, F.B.]

(563)—S. 50 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 50)—Conflict between prior unregistered and subsequent registered deeds of sale—Priority—Notice.—In a conflict between a prior unregistered deed of sale and a subsequent registered deed of sale of the same property, priority cannot be claimed in respect of the subsequent registered deed where the purchaser under it had notice of the previous sale. GURADITTA v. JOWALA SHAH, 102 P.R. 1883. Note.

(564)—S. 50 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 50)—Registration, optional and compulsory—Unregistered documents—Priority—Old Act of 1864, —Benefit under s. 50, conditions of.—As between a document, optionally registrable under the Act of 1864 and not registered thereunder, and a document compulsorily registrable under the Act of 1877 and duly registered thereunder (both documents having been executed when the respective Acts were in force and relating to the same property), held, the registered document took effect against the unregistered one under s. 50 of the Act of 1877. (2 A. 851 and 7 C. 570 = 9 C.L.R. 224, Refd. to & Followed.) The only difference between the above case and the 2 All. case is, that in the latter the unregistered document was executed when the Registration Act of 1871 was inforce; while, in the above case, the unregistered document was executed while the Act of 1864 was in operation. All that a person seeking the benefit of s. 50 of the Registration Act of 1877 is required to prove is, that his document is a document of the kind mentioned in the first clause of the section; that it has been duly registered under the Act; and that it covers the same property as that covered by any unregistered document, against which it is contended that his document shall take effect. It is not necessary for him to show that he is claiming from a common vendor. GUNGA RAM GHOSE SIRDAR v. KALIPODO GHOSE, 11 C. 661.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(565) — S. 50 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) — Registration —Priority between a purchaser of 1878 and an unregistered mortgagee of 1872.—A registered sale-deed of 1878 is entitled to have priority over an unregistered hypothecation-deed of 1872, which is optionally registrable by virtue of s. 50 of the Registration Act. MADAR v. SUBBRAYULU, 6 M. 88. [F., 8 A. 23 ; Appr., 13 A. 288 ; R., 8 A. 540, 16 M. 148, 18 B. 355, 20 B. 158, 9 M. 119, 9 M. 495 ; D., 10 B. 105.]

(566)—S. 50 (= Registration Act, III of 1877, s. 50)—Sale of property under unregistered document—Possession given to vendee—Subsequent sale under registered document--Notice--Priority —Registration Act.—A subsequent purchaser of immoveable property under a registered document with notice that the same property had been sold to another under an earlier unregistered deed, who had also obtained possession, is not entitled to priority over the latter, notwithstanding the provisions of s. 50 of the Registration Act, III of 1877. KODU v. RAMAPAT, A.W.N. 1885, 57.

(567)—*S.*50 (= Registration Acts, VIII of 1871 and III of 1877, s. 50)—Prior unregistered document, possession under, notice to subsequent registered mortgagee.—Plantiff's claim to the land in this case was based on his registered mortgage-deed dated 19th September 1877 executed to secure Rs. 250. Defendant set up an unregistered deed of sale for less than Rs. 100 which was of a prior date, viz., the 1st of April 1877, and pleaded that he had been put in possession at the time of the sale to him, and had since occupied as owner. Held that, if the defendant was in possession when the mortgage-deed was executed to plaintiff, or plaintiff had otherwise notice of the defendant's purchase, he could derive no advantage from the registration of his mortgage, the registration of the title of, or possession by, a prior purchaser or mortgagee being notice of his title to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees. DUNDAYA v. CHENBASAPA, 9 B 427. [Disappr., 7 C.W. N. 11; F., 10 B. 105, 16 M. 148=3 M.L.J. 54, F.B., 5 N.L.R. 82=3 Ind. Cas. 58; Appr., 12 B. 569 ; R., 20 B. 158, 20 B. 290, 22 B. 213, 26 B. 538, 27 B. 452, 1 L. B. R. 293, 6 Bom. L. R. 1043.]

(568)—S. 50 (= Registration Act, 1877, *s.*50)—Notice to subsequent purchaser.—S. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, affects alike documents which it is optional, as well as those which it is compulsory to register, and the fact that the purchaser under the registered deed had notice of the prior unregistered transaction does not alter the effect of the registered deed. NALLAPPA v. IBRAM, 5 M. 73. (5 C. 336, Dis.) [Overruled, 16 M. 148, F. B.; F., 5 M. 139, 6 M. 88, 6 M. 174, 115 P.R. 1890 F.B.; R., 10 C. 424, 8 M. 167, 9 M. 119, F.B., 10 B. 105, 8 A. 540, 20 B. 158.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(569)—S. 50 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 50)—"Former part of this section"—Registered purchaser—Notice of prior agreement to sell.—The words "former part of this section" in s. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, refer to the whole preceding portion of the section. [R., 16 M. 148.] A registered purchaser of land, who buys with notice of a prior unregistered contract by his vendor to sell the same land to the plaintiff, cannot resist a suit for specific performance on the plea of registration. KADAR v. ISMAIL, 9 M. 119. [F., 13 M. 324 ; R., 12 M. 505, 16 M. 148, F.B.]

(570)—S. 50 (= Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Registration, not notice of unregistered documents from which registered holder derives title —Parties claiming under registered document, priority of.—Under a registered deed, dated 2nd April, 1894, the first and the second defendants, the sons of V, sold their lands to the third defendant. Such registered sale deed was held to take effect in priority, as regards the properties comprised in it, as against an unregistered convevance dated 23rd March 1876 executed by V in favour of H, who by a deed of gift had transferred the property to plaintiffs' vendor. The deed of gift and the sale to the plaintiffs being registered documents long prior to the registered sale-deed of April 1894, it was argued that they took precedence over the latter deed of 1894. This argument was held to be untenable. Plaintiffs and their grantors were mere strangers to the land unless they could rely upon the unregistered conveyance by V to H in 1876 which, however, could have no effect upon the property when brought into competition with the registered conveyance of April 1894 in favour of the third defendant. The grantees of H stood in his shoes and could not succeed as against the third defendant where their grantor H could not himself have succeeded. Another argument advanced to the effect that the third defendant had notice of the unregistered conveyance of 1876 through the registered deeds of gift and sale which followed it, was also held to be unsound. The register might be notice of the registered documents which it contains, but it would be pushing the doctrine of constructive notice too far to hold that it could be notice also of the unregistered documents under which the holders of the registered documents derived their title. CHUNI LAL v. RAMCHANDRA, 22 B. 213. [F., 27 B. 408 ; R., 27 B. 452, 1 N.L.R. 125.]

(571)—S. 50—Registration Act, XVI of 1864, s. 68—Impeachment of registered sale deed—Nature of proof required.—In order to prevent the operation of s. 68 of Act XVI of 1864, on a deed of sale registered under the Act, it was necessary to show that the registered deed was fraudulently executed, and that the purchaser was wilfully and intentionally a party to the fraud of the vendor, or at least that the deed was executed without consideration. RAM CHUND KOOMAR v. MODHO SOODUN MUZOOMDAR, 7 W.R. 119. [F., 14 W.R. 318; R., 20 W.R. 287; D., 7 C. 753=10 C.L.R. 129.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

(572)—S. 50—Registration Act, XX of 1866, ss. 49, 100.—Where an instrument conferring a right or interest on the parties in whose favour it was made, was executed before 1864 and was valid then, it would not become invalid by reason of the party not getting it registered within 12 months, nor would a person getting a conveyance and registering it under the Act of 1864, have priority over a person who should be holding an instrument not so registered. DOOLAL BIBEE v. NADA SHAHA, 13 W.R. 446. [R., 6 B. 168]

(573)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, XX of 1866, s. 50)—Prior unregistered deed—Subsequent registered deed —Fraud—Effect.—A subsequent registered sale deed is not, under s. 50 of Act XX of 1866, entitled to priority over a prior unregistered deed, if the former transaction is not a bona fide one, and its holder's conduct in collusion with his vendor is found to be fraudulent. BHIKDAREE SINGH v. KANHYA LALL, 14 W.R. 24.

(574)—S. 50—Registered and unregistered sale —Fraud—Priority.—A bona fide bill of sale which is not registered will prevail against a bill of sale got up by fraud, even if registered. DHOOKHAI MEER v. SHAIK MASSIR, 20 W.R. 110.

(575)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Priority of unregistered mortgage over subsequent registered sale—Notice—Fraud.—It shall only be in cases where notice of a prior conveyance, registration of which is optional, is so clearly proved as to make it fraudulent in a subsequent purchaser to take and register a conveyance in prejudice to the known title of another, that the Courts will suffer the registered deed to be affected. BHALU ROY v. JAKHU ROY, 11 C. 667. [Appl., 13 C. 70; R., 8 A. 540, 6 C.P.L.R. 112, 16 M. 148, F.B., 27 B. 452.]

(576)—S. 50 (=Registration Act, 1877, s. 50) —Sale-deed.—Under s. 50 of the Registration Act—the purchaser under a registered conveyance is entitled to the possession of property as against a prior purchaser under an optionally registrable, but unregistered conveyance, even though the latter was put in possession and enjoyed it for a long time before the execution of the registered conveyance. KONDAYYA v. GURUVAPPA, 5 M. 139. (2 M. 147, 5 M. 73, F.) [Overruled, 16 M. 148; Not F., 13 B. 229; R., 10 C. 424.]

Registration Act (XVI of 1908, III of 1877, VIII of 1871, XX of 1866, XVI of 1864, XIX of 1843)—continued.

